(From Your Reader)

Cold and moisture combined have a tendency more than the bodily organs, and the digestive and secretive processes are apt to be more tardily performed in winter than in the hot months. The same is true, also, of the excretory functions. The bowels are often sluggish, and the pores of the skin throw off but little waste matter at this season. The system, therefore, requires cooling up a little, and also purifying and regulating, and the safest, surest and most thorough tonic and alterative that can be used for these purposes is Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. Persons who wish to escape the rheumatic twinges, the dyspeptic qualms, the painful disturbances of the bowels, the bilious attacks, and the nervous vicissitudes so common at this time of the year, will do well to reinforce their systems with this renowned vegetable stomachic and invigorant. It improves the appetite, strengthens the stomach, clears the spirits, and fortifies the whole physique.

Were you ever at sea in a storm—a storm near a coast, when you expected the next wave would dash the good ship to pieces? If you ever passed through such an experience you will remember the relief felt when you realized you were near life saving station with corps its corps of heroes, and you will be glad to know more of the life of those "brave watchers by the sea"; and ever a confirmed stayed-at-home will be interested in the handsomely illustrated article on "Our Life Saving Service" in the May number of DEMOREST'S FAMILY MAGAZINE. From the same comprehensive source you may also gain some very interesting information about the Isthmus States, —Central America (finely illustrated); "Signs of Character in the Face: How to Read Them" (also illustrated) will enable you to judge more correctly of human nature; and the excellent paper on "Delsarte and the Dalsartean Philosophy," with a portrait of the philosopher, will answer that oft-repeated question, "Who is Delsarte and what is his philosophy?" Then there are bright stories, and information on all live topics, and almost no end of illustration, (over 200), and a splendid article for "Our Girls," and the other departments, as usual, are brimming over with good things; and, altogether, this is an exceptionally good number of that always good Family Magazine, published at $2 a year, by W. JENNINGS DEMOREST 15 East 14th St., New York.

Suicides' Last Letters.

HORRIBLY DRAMATIC.

In our report of the Rigley-Doyle suicide, we stated that before going to their deaths both young women wrote letters to relatives and friends. We have been provided with copies of letters written by each of them to their loved and loving friend, Mrs. Lydia Goodin-Ellis, at or near whose house they laid down with suicidal intent and closed their young eyes in death:

* * *

FROM MISS RIGLEY.

March 24th, 1891.

Mrs. Lydia Goodin-Ellis:

My Friend:—By the time this is found you will desire to know what disposal I wish you to make of the things left on your hands.

I desire you to bury me as inexpensively as possible, and if anything remains of the $73 or $74 which I have send it to my brother, Charles M. Rigley, at Los Animas, Colo., at the same time informing him that my things here await his orders.

Pack everything in the trunk, excepting the things which you have given me—these I wish you to keep—and when you have heard from Chas. send the trunk to him.

In the little book in which I have kept my account's you will find two letters, one to my father, the other to Chas. Please mail them as soon as possible.

My oldest brother, Jas. B. Rigley, wrote that he intended to send me his spy-glass; if you receive it after I am gone, do not send it with the other things to Chas. but send it back to Jas. at his expense Address him at Liberty, Mo., in care of W. H. Thomason.

Burn all letters for me.

Of the act which I am about to commit I need say but little. I am only sorry that it happens here I feel that you and others will think it an awful crime, but I can say, truthfully, that I am not conscious of it's being a crime. I do it with a feeling of innocence and I do not fear punishment. I feel that I shall shorten my life but little and that I am only turning from a lingering and painful death.

You will perhaps doubt my sanity. I do not know how far you will be wrong, but I am sure that I am not more insane now than I have been all my life. Compared with others, and so judged, I have never been a rational being.

"From my youth upwards
My spirits walked not with the souls of men
Nor looked upon the earth with human eyes.
The things of this Ambition were not mine,
My joys, my griefs, my passions and my powers
Made me a stranger."

If it is a punishable crime, I, and I only, must suffer for it, and I thank God that it is so.

I thank you from my heart for all your kindness, and if there is hereafter I shall be there as I am now here.

Yours Respectfully,
JESSIE ELIZABETH RIGLEY.

[The above was written in ink. The following postscript was written with pencil.]

P. S.—It is my wish as well as Portia's that we be buried beneath her. This is my last and most earnest wish, and I entreat you to carry it out to the letter.

JESSIE.

MRS. PORTIA DOYLE'S LETTER.

Lydia—Will you take the things that I mention here. The satin dress that you gave me, the chair tidy, bowl and pitcher, and the red gown bag, I want you to use them.

I want Howard to take my account book and collect all that is coming to me and give it to pa, and see that he gets the mare that Mrs. Lloyd has traded to me. I want pa to have it.

I want Howard to take his and my picture, for all the folks have one and he has none, and also the jewelry, the earrings and breast-pin, which you will find in my trunk in the case. My account book you will find in trunk too.

My last and most earnest request is that I am buried with Jessie in the same coffin.

I am very thankful to you all for all you have done for me, which I have always appreciated.

I think "all things happen for the best." Death is sweet.

Good-bye forever,
PORTIA H. DOYLE.

THE last term of court was a tame one. But few were in attendance and very little money was exposed. Most everybody put up at the Lincoln 'Otel and those who did'nt 'ad to go 'here and at the table of Whelan & Wiedeman take the bad taste out of their mouths. The grippe made it's advent in town while we were there. You can't pawn a grip spelled with two "pp's" there for grub, so we left as soon as possible. The ride from hither thither was pleasant, as also from thither hither. While at Lincoln we were warmly received by everybody and regretted that our visit sho'ld have been, by cruel necessity, caused mainly by the flitting of delinquent subscribers, brought to such a premature end.

—We should have said, in connection with our allusion to our trip to Lincoln and back, that we traveled by stage and found the coaches comfortable, the horses as fleet as schedule time would permit them to be and the drivers to be clean in person and of speech.

A certain Boston deacon who was a zealous advocate for the cause of temperance employed a carpenter to make some alterations in his parlor. In repairing a corner near the fireplace it was found necessary to remove the wainscot when some things were brought to light which astonished the workmen most marvelously. A brace of decanters, sundry bottles—all containing "something to take"—a pitcher, and tumblers were cosily reposing in their snug quarters. The joiner, with wonder-stricken countenance, ran to the proprietor with the intelligence. "Well I declare," exclaimed the deacon, "that is curious, sure enough! It must be old Captain Bunce that left those things there when he occupied the premises thirty years since." "Perhaps he did," returned the discoverer; "but, deacon, that ice in the pitcher must have been well frozen to remain until"

How Leeches Are Bred in Vast Numbers and Sold in Their Native Country.

There is a curious branch of [illegible] followed by certain [illegible] the great marsh lands in the [illegible] of Bordeaux, France.

Some years ago a farmer of [illegible] observed that the leeches [illegible] in these marshes attained to a [illegible] in places where many [illegible] were turned out to pasture, [illegible] more particularly where horses [illegible] the principal stock. This suggested [illegible] him the idea of making [illegible] culture a specialty. He had [illegible] small capital, and this he was [illegible] enough to turn to the best advantage. In the first place, he rented a large [illegible] marsh, which he divided into [illegible] square ponds, surrounded with [illegible] dykes. The water in these ponds [illegible] about fifteen inches deep, and the [illegible] on the bottom of them afforded [illegible] quarters for myriads of leeches. [illegible] when the warm sun of spring aroused them from their winter lethargy, [illegible] up to the surface very lively, and [illegible] ions for a gorge upon their native element, blood.

To supply this the leech cultivator invested a portion of his capital in droves of old horses, which were bought up by him at an average price of about twenty francs per head. Sooner were these wretched victims driven into the ponds than they were [illegible] upon by the leeches, whose voracious instincts were aroused. In a moment the water became agitated. Instances are not infrequent of horses becoming so exhausted by these [illegible] bloodsuckers as to sink down to the water, where they are sometimes suffocated before assistance [illegible] to hand.

The process of catching leeches is very simple one. It is mostly carried on by young girls and lads, who, during the summer season, enter the ponds, wearing long, waterproof boots of thick leather, and furnished, each of them, with a sort of campstool and a canvas bag. Seating themselves in the ponds, they disturb the water with their feet, and immediately the leeches, imagining that their foes have plunged into the ponds, swarm around the leech-fishers and fasten greedily upon their boots. Selecting the best-grown leeches, the fishers now pick them off, and put them in their bags, and in this way thousands are taken by them in the course of a few hours. The leeches are then carried home, and having been culled and sorted according to size, are placed in tubs filled with soft, moist clay, into which they immediately burrow. The tubs are then tightly covered with strong pieces of [illegible], and in this state the leeches are taken to market.—N. Y. Ledger.

A WONDERFUL METAL.

What Aluminum Will Be Used for When We Are All Dead.

By being subjected to the gold-beater's art a piece of aluminum the size of a dime may be beaten into a sheet over 21 feet square, so great is its ductility. Only two metals known can be rolled into a sheet as thin as it is and they are gold and silver. It can be used for every thing and put to every purpose to which iron, steel, wood are now put. Its adaptability to ship-building is very apparent.

Great steamships, the size of the largest Cunards, with the same tonnage and the same number of cargo-spaces, if constructed of aluminum from the keel to the top of the cabins instead of drawing from eighteen to twenty-six feet, would not draw more than four or five. In the days of long voyages aluminum deep-water coal-bins will be useless assemblages.

As it holds a polish the best of any metal known, there being but few elements that cause it to tarnish or corrode. Rust, too, is a quality unknown to this wonderful white metal. Salt water will not affect its brilliancy, which is retained for an indefinite period in any atmosphere. It will withstand for a greater number of years than gold or silver will. Strong acids vigorously attack silver, have no effect whatever upon aluminum. Steel or platinum will be quickly plunged into a bath of sulphuric acid, caustic or melted alkali; aluminum comes out bright and shiny as it was from a bath of pure cold water.

Taken all in all, it is a wonderful production of a wonderful age, and one that will make possible inventions now undreamed of. Let Invention hasten the advent of the new age. The goal is still in view. Perhaps a child is born that will see the wildest dream of these enthusiasts realized, but the time is not yet; we can but hope.—N. Y. News.

Chinese Foot-Cramping.

One esteemed Chinese century ago, the Hu Pan has been buried in the origin of the foot-cramping of Chinese women. The practice is of very ancient date. Some affirm that it rose in the time of the five dynasties—that is, in the tenth century A. D. Jan Niang, the mistress of Li Yu, last Emperor of these dynasties, bound her feet with silk into the shape of a crescent moon, and all the fair beauties of the time imitated her. Traditions of previous dynasties refer to the custom. During the reign of Kang Hi (1661 A. D.) WORKS OF CHARLES DICKENS,

In Twelve Large Volumes,

CHARLES DICKENS.

Which we Offer with a Year's Subscription to this Paper for a Little More than One Regular Subscription Price.

Wishing to largely increase the circulation of this paper during the next six months we have made arrangements with a New York publishing house, by which we are enabled to offer as a premium to our subscribers a set of the Works of Charles Dickens, in Twelve Large and Handsome Volumes, with a year's subscription to this paper, for a little more than our regular subscription price. The works of no author ever published have been more popular than those of Charles Dickens. They abound in wit, humor, pathos, masterly delineation of character, vivid descriptions of places and scenery, thrilling and artistic word pictures. Every book is a classic. Its merits cannot be overestimated. No modern could be without a set of these great and romantic works. Not to have read them is to be far behind the age in which we live. The set of Dickens' works which we offer as a premium is complete, handsomely printed from entirely new plates, on extra fine paper, and bound in extra cloth, gilt back and side stamp. The following volumes embody the following well-known works, each one of which is published complete, and is now obtainable separately:

DAVID COPPERFIELD,
MARTIN CHUZZLEWIT,
NICHOLAS NICKLEBY,
DOMBEY AND SON,
BLEAK HOUSE,
LITTLE DORRIT,
OUR MUTUAL FRIEND,
PICKWICK PAPERS,
BARNABY RUDGE AND CHRISTMAS STORIES,
OLIVER TWIST AND GREAT EXPECTATIONS,
THE OLD CURIOSITY SHOP AND THE UNCOMMERCIAL TRAVELLER, A TALE OF TWO CITIES, HARD TIMES AND THE MYSTERY OF EDWIN DROOD.

The above are the best known of the miscellaneous novels that were ever written. For a number of centuries they have been celebrated the world over, and in every corner of the civilized world. To all of the thousands of readers in America who have enjoyed the rare treat of following Pickwick through his adventures, and of laughing over the eccentricities of Micawber, the announcement that the publishers of this paper have arranged to furnish a complete set of Dickens' works at a price within the reach of all will be welcome news. Every one of the fifty thousand families who are now subscribers to this paper should avail themselves of this opportunity to secure a set of Dickens' works at a price within the reach of all

How Leeches Are Bred and Gathered in Their Native Haunts.

There is a curious branch of industry followed by certain inhabitants of the great marsh lands in the department of Bordeaux, France.

Some years ago a farmer of that district observed that the leeches in these marshes attained to a large size in places where many cattle were turned out to pasture, more particularly where horses formed the principal stock. This suggested to him the idea of making leech-culture a specialty. He had no capital, and this he was shrewd enough to turn to the best advantage. In the first place, he rented a tract of marsh, which he divided off in square ponds, surrounded with ditches. The water in these ponds, about fifteen inches deep, and the mud at the bottom of them affords ready quarters for myriads of leeches, which when the warm sun of spring arouses them from their winter lethargy, come up to the surface very lively, and anxious for a gorge upon their native element, blood.

To supply this the keen cultivator invested a portion of his capital in a drove of old horses, which were bought up by him at an average price of about twenty francs per head. Sooner were these wretched victims driven into the ponds than they were fastened upon by the leeches, whose voracious instincts were aroused to such a pitch by the smell of blood that instances are not infrequent of horses becoming so exhausted by these insatiable blood-suckers as to sink down into the water, where they are sometimes suffocated before assistance can be at hand.

The process of catching leeches is a very simple one. It is mostly carried on by young girls and lads, who, during the summer season, enter the ponds, wearing long, waterproof boots of thick leather, and furnished, each of them, with a sort of camp-stool and a canvas bag. Seating themselves in the ponds, they disturb the water with their feet, and immediately the leeches, imagining that horses have plunged into the ponds, swarm around the lads' shores and fasten speedily upon their boots. Selecting the best-grown leeches, the lads now pick them off, and put them in their bags; and in this way many thousands are taken by them in the course of a few hours. The leeches are then carried home, and having been culled and sorted according to size, are placed in tubs filled with moist clay, into which they immediately burrow. The tubs are then tightly covered with string, parchment, and in this state the leeches are taken to market.—N. Y. Ledger.

A WONDERFUL METAL.

What Aluminum Will Be Used for When We Are All Dead.

By being subjected to the galvanic current a piece of aluminum the size of a dime may be beaten into a sheet a mile square, so great is its ductility. Only two metals known can be rolled into a sheet as thin as gold paper, and they are gold and silver. Iron is used for every thing and put to every purpose to which iron, steel and wood are now put. Its adaptability to ship-building is very apparent.

Great steamships, the size of the largest Cunards, with the same proportionate and the same number of square feet, if constructed of aluminum from the keel to the top of the smoke-pipe instead of drawing from eighteen to twenty-six feet, would not draw more than four or five. In the days of future aluminites deep-water channels will be useless assemblages.

As it holds a polish the best of any metal known, there being but few elements that cause it to tarnish or rust, rust, too, is a quality unknown to this wonderful white metal. Boiling water will not affect the finish which is retained for an indefinite period in any atmosphere. It will be used after a few years in a greater number of ways than gold or silver will. Strong acids ravenously attack silver, have no effect whatever upon aluminum. Gold or platinum will be tarnished if plunged into a bath of sulphuret of potassium or melted nitre; aluminum comes out bright and shiny as from a bath of pure cold water.

Taken all in all, it is a wonderful production of a wonderful age, and one that will make possible inventions undreamed of. Let inventive genius hasten the advent of the new epoch. The goal is still in view. Perhaps a child is born that will see the wildest dream of these enthusiastic realized; but the time is not yet; we can but hope.—N. Y. News.

Chinese Foot-Cramping.

Our esteemed Chinese contemporary, the Hii Pao, has been investigating the origin of the foot-cramping of Chinese women. The practice is of very ancient date. Some affirm that it rose in the time of the five dynasties; that is, in the tenth century A. D. Jan Niang, the mistress of Li Yu, the last Emperor of those dynasties, is said to have had her feet bandaged with silk into the shape of a crescent moon, and all the fair beauties of the time imitated her. Tradition of previous dynasties alludes to the custom. During the reign of Kang Hi (1661 A. D.) a proclamation forbade foot-cramping under very severe penalties, the long officials in charge of the law for people in the provinces. But the fashion was too strong for the Emperor, and in spite of proclamations to the contrary, it has continued to the present day.

Excellent Testimonial.

The present writer has had occasion to use A. P. & P. Pills from time to time, and can recommend them as excellent.

After leaving El Paso, Texas, the Santa Fe Route runs through to Kansas City, reaching that city the second day, and Chicago morning of third day after day of departure. This train carries Pullman palace sleepers from El Paso to Kansas City, and Los Angeles to Chicago, with Pullman tourist sleepers Los Angeles to Kansas City making direct connection at La Junta for Pueblo, Colorado Springs and Denver and at Barstow for St. Louis via the Texas Pacific Ry.

The train from San Francisco (with palace sleepers to Kansas City and tourist sleepers to Chicago) leaves Albuquerque daily at noon, strikes darkness near Wagon Mound, arriving in Kansas City evening of next day, and in Chicago the following morning. An additional Pullman sleeper is attached at Las Vegas, running through without change to Denver via La Junta and Trinidad.

The Santa Fe Route runs by its fast time, fine equipment and reasonable rates, to merit the patronage of the traveling public.

Free Reading Matter.

There are various schemes for supplying reading matter free to the above actual case. But how you think if you could get your literature free?

Drop a postal to G. T. Nicholson, G. P. and T. A., A. T. & S. F. R. R. Co., Topeka, Kan., and ask for a copy of "To Mexico Palace Car." You can also have free copies of "A Santa Barbara Holiday," "Guide to San Diego Bay Region," Las Vegas Hot Springs Guide" and folders relating to Texas, Oklahoma and Indiana.

Wonderful Tree.

Dr. Tuchterman, editor of the Cleveland, has taken some pains to test and compile the decision of a Court on this subject and gives, as the result of his investigations, the following, which may be relied upon as correct:

1. Subscribers who do not give notice to the contrary are considered wishing to renew their subscription.

2. If the subscriber refuses or neglects to take his paper from the office to which it is sent, he is responsible until he has settled his bill and ordered the paper discontinued.

3. If subscribers remove to other places without informing the publishers, and papers are sent to the former direction, they are held responsible.

4. If subscribers order their papers discontinued, they must pay all arrearages, or the publisher may continue to send them until payment is made, and collect the whole amount, whether they take the paper from the office or not.

5. The courts have decided that refusing to take newspapers or periodicals from the post-office, or removing and leaving them uncalled for, is prima facie evidence of intentional fraud.

6. In suits for subscriptions, the publication may be regarded as a book account, and the regularity of the mailing may be proved by the mailing clerk. In case of non-payment, it is not necessary to have the paper in court, or to prove its contents.

The postal laws are such that newspaper publishers are not compelled to pay postage on papers sent to subscribers who refuse to pay for it. Under this law the man who allows his subscription to run along for months unpaid and then orders the postmaster to send it "refused," or have a postal card sent notifying the publisher, leaves himself liable to arrest and fine for petit larceny.

The World Enriched.

The significant of the present day for the production of everything that will conduce to the material welfare and comfort of mankind are almost unlimited as when Syrup of Figs was first produced the world was enriched with the most perfect laxative known, as it is the only remedy which is truly pleasing and refreshing to the taste and prompt in its action to cleanse the system gently in the Spring time or, in fact, at any time and the better it is known the more popular it becomes.

THE firm of Lowenthal & Moyers, general dealers in liquors and cigars, Albuquerque, N. M., has captured a big trade in this country. The proprietors are thoroughly business men, and having a wholesale emporium of their own in N. Y. City they can safely defy competition. They have a good all in their itinerant representative Milton Katzenberg, whose every visit elicits remunerative orders.

JUST before adjournment Congress passed an Indian Depredation law that will put $20,000,000 in circulation. This law practically removes all restrictions and limitations, and every settler or his heirs can now get pay in full for all losses occasioned by Indians. Henry N. This offer is made to both those renewing old subscriptions and to those becoming subscribers for the first time. No other paper in this county is able to make subscribers this offer, the LEADER having secured the exclusive right to club with "Judge's Library" for this vicinity. "Judge's Library" is a monthly magazine of fun, the subscription price of which alone is $1.00. It contains 32 pages of humorous illustrations and reading matter, to all which "Judge's" famous artists and writers are contributors, and is neatly printed and bound in handsomely colored covers. It is a condensation, in fact, of "Judge's" brightest humor

PROPOSALS FOR FUEL, FORAGE, ETC. QUARTERMASTER'S OFFICE, DEPOT OF ARIZONA, Office of the Chief Quartermaster, Los Angeles, Cal., March 20, 1891.—Sealed proposals will be received at this office, and at the offices of the Quartermasters at each of the posts hereinafter named, until 11 o'clock a. m., on Thursday, April 30, 1891, and opened immediately thereafter in the presence of bidders, for the furnishing and delivery of fuel, forage and straw, during the fiscal year ending June 30, 1892, at military stations in the Department of Arizona, as follows: Fort Apache, Bowie, Camp Huachuca and Whetstone and Fort Grant, Whipple Barracks, and Tucson, A. T., Los Angeles and San Diego Barracks, Cal., and Fort Bayard, Fort Stanton, Fort Wingate, Albuquerque and Santa Fe, N. M. Preference given to articles of domestic production and manufacture, conditions of price and quality being equal, and preference given to articles of American production and manufacture produced on the Pacific Coast to the extent of the consumption required by the public service there. Proposals for either class of supplies mentioned are to be received from dealers in the articles required, or their delivery of the supplies at points other than those named will be entertained. Specifications, general instructions to bidders and blank forms of proposal will be furnished on application to this office, or to the Quartermasters at any of the stations named above. R. H. PAPPENHEIM, U. S. Army, Chief Quartermaster.

$200 Reward for the Thieves.

The common opinion of the camp fires that much is lost by the Government in the awarding of contracts to lowest bidders, it is also apparent with the Therefore, the Old Abe Co. offers a standing reward of Two Hundred Dollars for the arrest and for information leading to the arrest and conviction of any person or persons guilty of stealing any of the property of the Old Abe Co., over the smallest specimen of art. The rule of this company is small all evidence. Therefore none of the art from this mine can be honestly held as specimens. And as the receiver with guilty knowledge is as guilty in law as the thief, this offer applies to the holder of Old Abe specimens.
