ENCOURAGE HOME TRADE.

A Washington paper quotes an Omaha journal as giving this sagacious advice to Omaha people: "The way to build up Omaha is to give Omaha people your patronage."

This advice is in an especial way applicable to White Oaks, for no people that we ever knew traficked abroad so much as ours. Could the post office department and express company here talk and would give the facts away, revealing the amount of money sent away from here to foreign markets yearly, for goods kept in stock in town the figures would startle. There are many so narrow that they begrudge our local dealers a living profit so send their money to foreign dealers who do not pay taxes, own property here, or contribute to our present or prospective benefit, thus directly injuring our live and liberal merchants and the town and indirectly damaging themselves.

It is a foolish notion some people have that in order to get a better bargain or nicer goods they must send to foreign emporiums just where our dealers wholesale their stocks. The merchants of White Oaks are in all lines as capable of supplying the wants of the people as could reasonably be desired. They know our wants and have the capital, experience and enterprise suited to supplying them. They keep their stock fully up to the mark of popular taste. The finest and most fashionable merchandise is as obtainable here as elsewhere and on proportionate easy terms.

Of course a purchaser has the right to buy where he pleases, but if he can buy to as good advantage at home as at any other place, there are obvious reasons why he should. Everyone who has an interest in the growth and prosperity of White Oaks will contribute what he can to their promotion, and patronize home merchants and home manufacturers in preference to ordering his goods from merchants and manufacturers abroad. He who does not is void of local patriotism.

The stores of White Oaks are now opening out unusually large and diversified assortments in all branches of trade. Our merchants are thoroughly identified with our interests and are liberal and public spirited. They deserve to enjoy the local patronage in the highest extent, not only on their individual account, but more particularly because the commercial future of our town and county depends largely, on the utmost possible spirit of interests and the largest share the home trade can.

Hunt pool winds up October.—It was a pleasant month here.

A MILLION A YEAR.

Lottery and Prize Schemes used to Sell Alum and Ammonia Baking Powders.

A New York concern, manufacturers of an ammonia baking powder boasts that its yearly profits are over a million dollars. While, perhaps, none of the makers of alum powders individually can show so large earnings, yet their profits are enormous.

As business so profitable, will always attract to itself those whose greed will cause them to utterly disregard the effect their traffic may have upon the health or life of others.

Alum baking powders are introduced largely by gifts, prizes and lottery schemes. A piece of glass ware or china, a child's wagon, sled, a powder spoon or some other article of attractive appearance but of small intrinsic value or cost is given with each purchase or a number is attached to the can which entitles the customer to a similarly numbered article or to a prize of some kind. It is in some such way as this that the trade in alum and ammonia baking powders which has now attained such giant proportions and their consumption by the public which has reached an extent which is truly alarming.

The highest authorities of all countries condemn the use of alum in bread without reserve. In America the most distinguished physicians, chemists and hygenists have declared that the traffic in alum baking powders should be suppressed by law. In England and France where the subject of pure food, and its effect upon the system, has been more fully considered and made the subject of extended experiments by the scientists, so serious a matter is the use of alum in bread or other food considered to be, that most stringent laws have been enacted to prevent it. These laws are rigidly enforced, and the sale of alum baking powders would not be permitted for an hour. Any one who attempted to make them for use in food, or attempted to use them for raising bread, biscuit or cake would suffer severe penalties.

The ill effects upon the system of food raised by alum baking powders are the more dangerous because of their insidious character. It would be less dangerous to the community were it fatal at once, for then such food would be avoided; but their deleterious action becomes imperceptible at first, is no less certain.

The puckering effect which alum has when taken in the mouth is familiar to everyone. Physicians say this same effect is produced by it upon the delicate coats of the stomach and intestines.

What housewife would take home to her family a can of alum or ammonia baking powder if she knew it. Such powders not only undermine the system, but it is pointed out that ammonia taken into the in even infinitesimal doses day after day, imparts to the complexion a sallow and blotched appearance.

It is safe to discard all baking powders sold with a prize or gift.

What a misnomer are the words "Absolutely Pure," as applied to baking powders. Two of the best selling brands, one made from alum, the other containing ammonia, and both these drugged baking powers have stamped upon their labels and circulars these words absolutely pure, as a matter of fact they are "Absolutely Poor," as shown by official examinations.

CONSUMPTION CURED.

An old physician, retired from practice, having had placed in his hands by an East Indian missionary the formula of a simple vegetable remedy for the speedy and permanent cure of Consumption, Bronchitis, Catarrh, Asthma, and all Throat and Lung Affections, also a positive and radical cure for Nervous Debility and all Nervous Complaints, after having tested its wonderful curative powers in thousands of cases, has felt it his duty to make it known to his suffering fellows. ATTENTION, MINERS!

To the prospectors, miners, mine and claim owners of New Mexico, Arizona and Western Texas:

The depression that exists throughout the southwest is due to the unnatural depreciation of silver and to the evil effect caused by that portion of the silver act that prohibits the investment of foreign capital in mining property in the territories. The object of the Southwest Silver Convention that is to convene on the 15th day of December, 1891, in El Paso, Texas is to discuss and take steps to remedy these evils. No other subject but the silver question and the modification of the silver act will be entertained by the convention, and all attempts to pervert the object of this mass meeting of miners by the introduction of questions foreign to its principles for which it was called will be suppressed. The restoration of silver to its normal value or parity with gold 16 to 1—29 and the obliteration of an unjust discrimination against miners operating in territories, will engage the entire energy and time of the assembled miners of the southwest.

FLORENCE AND FLOWERS.

An Italian City Where Every One Wears Gay and Fragrant Blossoms.

Afternoon sees us strolling through the streets on a flower-buying expedition, and reveals the wealth of the florists' shops and the itinerant barrows. Where do they all come from? Where do they grow, these countless masses of color and form and perfume? Gigantic irises of the most vivid description, masses of a dusty purple with flapping calyxes of palest lavender, spotted thickly with almost black violet dots; others white, yellow, blue, great scarlet brutes, or what look like them, in bizarre contrast to the yard white ones; tulips, both wild and garden ones, yellow, scarlet, striped; gleaming poppies, scarlet ranunculus balls, papery-looking crimped anemone things of every color, lilac, yellow, scarlet, rose pink, white; roses in hills and mountains, of every hue, every shape, every scent, new-fangled roses and old-fangled roses; Dijon, crimson, palest tea rose, the strangely-gleaming "copper rose," which is a specialty of the place; every rose that blows is here to be had—for a price. Here, too, carnations of every shade, fresh and dewy, rich and luscious in perfume; lilies of the valley by the bushel, wall-flower, mignonette, narcissus; endless the variety, bewildering the choice, from tiny bunches of sweet violets up to masses of flame-tinted azaleas and great branches of yellow mimosa. Homely, but lovely still, stocks of white and purple lilac carry one's thoughts swiftly to English lanes and gardens, and so do the great pink peonies, simple and ruffling. Every one sells flowers, every one buys flowers; yet the baskets and the shops seem always full, always fresh and the masses of color on the broad ledge round the grim pile of the Strozzi palace never seem any smaller.—Temple Bar.

Next Tuesday the political agony in New York, Ohio and Iowa will cease.

A MAN OF FORETHOUGHT.

How He Provided for the Fate of a Large and Interesting Family.

He was a tall, thin man, in a black, threadbare suit, and he stood in front of the drop-a-nickel-in-the-slot-and-get-an-accident-insurance-policy machine at the Polk street station and looked at it in a thoughtful, solemn, almost melancholy way.

"It seems impossible that an outlay of only five cents can guarantee a man against financial loss in consequence of an accident disabling him within twenty-four hours, doesn't it?" he said to a bystander.

"It does, indeed," was the reply.

"And that in case of any fatal casualty his family will be preserved from the demon of want for at least a considerable time to come?"

"I don't see how they can afford to do it."

"What won't they get up next?" mused the man in black, as if speaking to himself, and shaking his head slowly. "Still, it does seem as if it were almost a duty incumbent on a husband and the father of a family whom he may at any moment leave destitute to take advantage of such an opportunity as this now and then does it not? Life is uncertain, and it is a terrible thing for a family to be deprived without a moment's warning of the natural protector and have to face the cold charity of a friendless world, is it not?"

"It is, indeed."

"And it seems all the more painful, the more lamentable, if I may so express it, when a man who feels a vague, uneasy foreboding that something disastrous may probably happen to him within the next twenty-four hours and would like to follow the dictates of his heart and his reason by making a wise provision for those whom he may leave widowed and fatherless, but is prevented from so doing for the want of a beggarly nickel—a paltry five-cent piece—does it not?"

"Why—er—"

"My friend," exclaimed the solemn man, with glistening eyes, "I see you apprehend my meaning. When the fate of a large and interesting family may be at stake you are not the man to hesitate! You will advance me the miserable trifle of five cents, to be repaid when I see you again—thanks! thanks! Heaven bless you, my friend! I will saunter about the station until it is about train time, and then I will deposit this coin in the appropriate orifice and take passage aboard. Thank you again, my friend, in the name of my wife and little ones!"

And the tall, thin man in the threadbare suit sauntered about the station in an aimless way until he found himself by the merest accident outside the front entrance, when he followed his gleaming nose swiftly in a bee line for the nearest beer saloon, where he deposited the coin in its appropriate slot, as it were.—Chicago Tribune.

How the Kaiser Rides.

Mr. Yates writes of the recent review at Aldershot of the British army by the Emperor of Germany: "The Kaiser was extremely industrious in looking into the heart of things, galloping about from point to point with a recklessness which rather disconcerted several corpulent officers in attendance upon him. He himself is rapidly increasing in weight, and is already quite as heavy a man as was his father in his mature prime. Headlong ride as he is, his seat on horseback is the reverse of good, being the very loose and bustling sort of seat that the old school of riding masters used to abjurgate as a 'wash-ball seat.' There can not be much snaffle with his left arm, since he holds the rein in his left hand, and, without employing his right, can pull a horse on his haunches from a gallop."

It has at last come out that Stephen B. Elkins will be the Secretary of War next month.

FLORAL DECORATIONS.

How to Make a House Look at Its Best for Weddings and Parties.

It is truly amazing to know the amount that is spent for floral decorations every year. During the present season "flower weddings" are the correct thing, and are as pretty as they are, much. One bride, whose name was Lily, had the whole house decorated with lily of the valley. Another, whose name was Rose, used roses for the decorations. Pansies, with their almost human faces, make very effective decorations.

The old-time wedding bell has been done away with and the umbrella, wishbone, fourleaf clover and other new designs have taken its place. Among the latest things are found the portieres, which are formed of dozens of ropes of smilax, draped here and there with rosebuds. A canopy of smilax makes a most effective and simple bower of green.

Large balls suspended by almost invisible wires, are as old as they are pretty. The frame is composed of wire and filled with wet moss; then it is filled as any other design is. Ferns and scarlet flowers are especially pretty for such a design.

A pretty idea is to decorate a house throughout with the same color; for instance, yellow or pink. Roses, carnations and other flowers of the same shade are used. White can be used with any color and plenty of ferns, smilax and other green.

At a pretty wedding lately occurred in Novombo, when flowers were scarce and high, the decorations were mostly of arbor vitæ and tea rod, bitter-sweet berries. The dining-room was festooned with ropes of arbor vitæ, dotted here and there with the bitter-sweet. In the parlors there were ropes of green and a canopy of smilax, under which hung a floral clover design. Bouquets of roses and carnations were scattered here and there.

An apple-blossom wedding, where the entire decorations were the sweet-scented apple blossoms, was truly a pretty scene. Field daisies used for designs, banks, bouquets and baskets make lovely decorations. Fancy shells filled with moss and flowers and an occasional fern make the most graceful and effective decorations. All sorts of odd shapes can be used, and where they will not hold water very well, fill with wet sand before putting in the flowers. Nasturtiums are especially pretty for decorating a house and will last so long. They can be grown in water all winter, or in earth, and their foliage is so graceful. Sweet peas and mignonette are particularly pretty in a slender, glass vase. Rose-bowls, or jars of frosted glass are much in vogue now, and can be found in all styles and sizes.

At a recent wedding reception that was given by a bride who had every thing that love or money could buy, it was noticed that the house was decorated with garden flowers. The parlor was made fragrant with slender vases and rose-bowls, filled with sweet peas, and the dining-room was gorgeous with the many colored nasturtiums.—Carrie May Ashton, in Farm and Fireside.

STIRRING UP STRIFE.

How an Ape Brought About a Battle Between Two Monster Reptiles.

One morning, says a traveler in Java, I was standing beside a small lake fed by one of the rills from the mountains. Stretching its limbs over this pond was a gigantic teak-tree, and in its thick, shining, evergreen leaves lay a huge boa, in an easy coil, evidently taking his morning nap. Above him was a powerful ape of the baboon species—a leering race of scamps, always bent on mischief.

The ape, from his position, saw a crocodile rise to the surface of the water, just beneath the teak limb where lay the serpent. Quick as thought he jumped plump upon the boa, which fell with a splash into the water just in front of the crocodile. The ape saved himself by clinging to the limb of the tree; but a battle royal immediately began in the water.

The crocodile had fixed its jaws in the snake, which made the water boil by its furious contortions. Winding his folds round and round the body of his antagonist, the boa disabled its hinder legs, and by his contractions made the scales and bones of his enemy crack.

Over and over the combatants rolled, neither being able to obtain a decided advantage.

All this time the cause of the mischief was in high glee. He leaped up and down the branches, came several times close to the scene of the fight, uttered a yell, and gaily trotted away. Perhaps ten minutes passed and the noise of the conflict began to fade into silence. The folds of the serpent were relaxing, and though they trembled along the back, the head hung lifeless in the water. The crocodile, also, was dead. The monkey now perched on a low limb just above the dead bodies of his two foes, and amused himself by making faces at them. This seemed to be adding insult to injury. I picked up a stone from the edge of the lake and hurled it at the ape. It struck him on the head and down he fell upon the crocodile's body. He was up again in a moment, and sprang into the teak-tree, where he disappeared among the thick branches.—Youth's Companion.

TWENTY DAYS.

The Washington editor of the Workingman's Journal, has taken some pains to look up and compile the decisions of the Postmaster-General on subjects of interest to publishers, and gives to the Washington Post, as the result of his investigations, the following, which may be relied upon as correct:

1. Subscribers who do not give express notice to the contrary are considered wishing to renew their subscriptions.

2. If the subscriber orders the discontinuance of his periodical the publisher may continue to send it until all arrearages are paid.

3. If subscribers neglect or refuse to take their periodicals from the office to which they are directed, they are responsible until they have settled their bills and ordered them discontinued.

4. If subscribers move to other places without informing the publisher, and the papers are sent to the former address, they are held responsible.

5. The courts have decided that refusing to take periodicals from the office or moving and leaving them uncalled for is prima facie evidence of intentional fraud.

6. If subscribers pay in advance they are bound to give notice at the end of the time if they do not wish to continue to take it, otherwise the publisher is justified in sending it, and the subscriber will be held responsible until an express notice is sent and all arrearages are paid.

7. The law makes no distinction between a subscriber who takes a paper from the office regularly or one who takes it from the post-office occasionally; it is fraud for any person to take a paper and refuse to pay for it. Under this law the following has been decided: If a subscriber orders his subscription to be discontinued at some time unpaid and the publisher neglects or refuses to do so, and continues to send the paper, the subscriber is liable for the whole amount, if he takes the paper from the office or has it sent to a private house. If he orders it discontinued, and the publisher continues to send it, he is not liable for any subsequent numbers unless he takes them from the office or has them sent to a private house. If he orders it discontinued, and the publisher continues to send it, he is not liable for any subsequent numbers unless he takes them from the office or has them sent to a private house. Brunswick, one day after date, with interest on the first note mentioned at the rate of eighteen per cent. per annum from maturity, and twelve per cent. per annum from maturity on the note last above mentioned.

And whereas it was provided in and by said mortgage deed that if default should be made in the payment of said notes, or the interest thereon, at the time and in the manner specified in said notes, then and in such case, all of said indebtedness, the same should become due and payable, and the said mortgagee, his heirs and assigns, should have the power to sell the premises described in said mortgage deed, or any part thereof, at public auction to the highest bidder for cash in hand, after having given notice of the time and place of such sale by publishing a notice thereof for four successive weeks previous to the day of such sale in some newspaper published in the county of Lincoln, and territory aforesaid, the first publication of said notice to be made at least four weeks before the day of sale, and out of the proceeds of such sale to retain the amount due on said notes and mortgage, with interest thereon, and all costs and charges, and the balance, if any there be, to pay over to the said mortgagor, or to his heirs or assigns, as may be entitled thereto; and whereas default has been made in the payment of the said notes, and each and every part thereof, and the whole thereof is now due and payable, and the said mortgagee, his heirs and assigns, intend to foreclose said mortgage for the purpose of satisfying said indebtedness, and will sell at public auction to the highest bidder for cash in hand, at the front door of the house in the town of Lincoln, in said county of Lincoln, on the 1st day of April, A. D. 1882, between the hours of 9 o'clock a. m. and 5 o'clock p. m. of said day, all of the above described premises, to satisfy the amount due on said notes and mortgage, with interest thereon, and all costs and charges, and the balance, if any there be, to pay over to the said mortgagor, or to his heirs or assigns, as may be entitled thereto; and whereas default has been made in the payment of the said notes, and each and every part thereof, and the whole thereof is now due and payable, and the said mortgagee, his heirs and assigns, intend to foreclose said mortgage for the purpose of satisfying said indebtedness, and will sell at public auction to the highest bidder for cash in hand, at the front door of the house in the town of Lincoln, in said county of Lincoln, on the 1st day of April, A. Which we will supply free to every New Subscriber to this Paper for Five Dollars—a Trifle More than Our Regular Subscription Price.

While we do not expect to greatly increase the circulation of this paper during the present year, we have made arrangements with a New York publishing house to supply a limited number as a premium to our subscribers, a set of the Works of Charles Dickens, in twelve large and handsome volumes, with a year's subscription to this paper, for a little more than one regular subscription price. They abound in wit, humor, [illegible] delineation of character, [illegible] of home and incidents, [illegible] carefully wrought plots. Everybody is anxious to read them. No household should be without a set of these great and remarkable books. Not to have read them is to be far behind the age in which we live. The set of [illegible] works which we offer as a premium is printed from clear, readable type, on fine paper, and contains many works, each one of which is published in a volume by itself, and sold at a high price.

YOU WANT

a San Francisco paper and of course you want a good one. The WEEKLY EXAMINER fills the want completely, for it is the best. It gives you every week not only all the news, but the best literary and miscellaneous matter published on the American continent—that is its specialty; being the best. It wants your subscription—yours particularly—and offers not only to you, but to every other subscriber, one or more attractive premiums.

In the first place, it gives every subscriber, one of the four magnificent etchings or paintings described below, and delivers it safely at his address, postage paid.

"The Retreat from Moscow," by Meissonier.
"The Roman Chariot Race," by A. Wagner.

Each of these pictures is 21x28 inches, and they are elegantly reproduced in the finest style, showing every tint and color of the great originals, either one of which would not be purchased for $100,000.

"Women and Children First," by C. Napier Hemy.
"Christ Leaving the Prætorium," by Gustave Doré.

Each of these pictures is reproduced in photo-gravure [illegible] and is suitable for framing, and will adorn the walls of the most elegant house.

Each subscriber has the choice of any one of these four pictures, which will be mailed him in a tube direct from the EXAMINER office, as soon as his subscription is received.

In the second place, it will give 5,000 premiums, valued in the aggregate at about $125,000 to its subscribers this year. If there are 50,000 subscribers, one in ten will get one of these premiums; if there are 100,000, only one in twenty. But no matter how many there are, each and every one of these premiums—which range in value from 50 cents to $6,000—will be given absolutely without cost to some of those who have paid $1.50 for the WEEKLY EXAMINER for one year. The EXAMINER is thoroughly responsible, as you know, as Wells, Fargo & Co. or any bank or commercial agency in San Francisco will assure you, and the leading men of the city will see that its premiums are distributed exactly as agreed and that every subscriber no matter where he is located, will receive just what is assigned to him.

Of course you want your home paper also, and you can just as well as not save a little money by taking the EXAMINER with it. The price of the WEEKLY EXAMINER is $1.50 per year, including the premium picture and your share of the $125,000 list of premiums, which are fully described in the twelve page Premium Supplement, which will be sent free on application to

FLORAL DECORATIONS.

How to Make a Floral Luck at Its Best for Weddings and Parties.

It is truly amazing to know the amount that is spent for floral decorations every year. During the present season "flower weddings" are the correct thing, and are as pretty as they are much. One bride, whose name was Lily, had the whole house decorated with Lily of the valley. Another, whose name was Rich, used roses for the decorations. Pansies, with their almost human faces, make very effective decorations.

The old-time wedding bell has been done away with and the umbrella, wishbone, four-leaf clover and other new designs have taken its place. Among the latest things are found the portieres, which are formed of dozens of ropes of smilax, dotted here and there with rosebuds. A canopy of smilax makes a most effective and simple bower of green.

Large hoops, suspended by almost invisible wires, are another fancy that they are pretty. The frame is composed of wire and filled with wet moss; then it is filled as any other design is. Ferns and scarlet flowers are especially pretty for such a design.

A pretty idea is to decorate a house throughout with the same color; for instance, yellow or pink. Roses, carnations and other flowers of the same shade are used. White can be used with any color, and plenty of ferns, smilax and rubber plants.

At a pretty wedding that occurred in Navasota, when flowers were scarce and high, the decorations were mostly of arbor vitæ and the red, bitter-sweet berries. The dining-room was festooned with ropes of arbor vitæ, dotted here and there with the bitter-sweet. In the parlors there were ropes of green and a canopy of smilax, under which hung a four-leaf clover design. Bouquets of roses and carnations were scattered here and there.

An apple-blossom wedding, where the entire decorations were the sweet-scented apple blossoms, was truly a pretty scene. Fluid dahlias used for designs, banks, bouquets and baskets make lovely decorations. Fancy shells filled with moss and flowers and an occasional fern make the most graceful and effective decorations. All sorts of odd choices can be used, and when they will not hold water very well, fill with wet sand before putting in the flowers. Nasturtiums are especially pretty for decorating a house and will last so long. They can be grown in water, oil, water, or in earth, and their foliage is so graceful. Sweet peas and pignonette are particularly pretty in a slender glass vase. Rose-bowls or jars of beaded glass are much in vogue now, and can be found in all styles and sizes.

At a recent wedding reception that was given by a bride who had every thing that love or money could buy, it was noticed that the house was decorated with garden flowers. The parlor was made fragrant with slender vases and rose-bowls, filled with sweet peas, and the dining-room was gorgeous with the many colored nasturtiums.—Carrie May Ashton, in Farm and Fireside.

STIRRING UP STRIFE.

How an Ape Brought About a Battle Between Two Slender Reptiles.

One morning, says a traveler in Java, I was standing beside a small lake fed by one of the rills from the mountains. Stretching its limbs over this pond was a gigantic banian tree, and in its thick, glinting, evergreen leaves lay a huge boa, in an easy coil, evidently taking his morning nap. Above him was a powerful ape of the baboon species—a leering race of scamps, always bent on mischief.

The ape, from his position, saw a crocodile rise to the surface of the water, just beneath the teak limb where lay the serpent. Quick as thought he jumped plump upon the boa, which fell with a splash into the water just in front of the crocodile. The ape saved himself by clinging to the limb of the tree; but a battle royal immediately began in the water.

The crocodile had fixed its jaws in the snake, which made the water boil by its furious contortions. Winding his folds round and round the body of his antagonist, the boa disabled its hinder legs, and by his contractions made the scales and bones of his enemy crack.

Over and over the combatants rolled, neither being able to obtain a decided advantage.

All this time the cries of the mischief were in high glee. He leaped up and down the branches, came several times close to the scene of the fight, uttered a yell, and again frisked away. Perhaps ten minutes passed and the noise of the conflict began to fade into silence. The folds of the serpent were relaxing, and though they trembled along the body, the head hung lifeless in the water. The crocodile, also, was dead. The monkey now perched on a low limb just above the dead bodies of his two foes, and amused himself by making faces at them. This seemed to be making him up to injury. I picked up a stone from the edge of the lake and hurled it at the ape. It struck him on the head and down he fell upon the crocodile's body. He was up again in a moment, and sprang into the teak-tree, where he disappeared among the thick branches.—Youth's Companion.

LATEST LAWS.

A Washington client of the Workingman's Journal, has taken some pains to collect and compile the decisions of the United States courts on a subject and gives to the Washington Post, as the result of his investigations, the following, which may be relied upon as correct:

1. Subscribers who do not give express notice to the contrary are considered as wishing to renew their subscriptions.

2. If the subscriber orders the discontinuance of his periodical the publisher may continue to send it until all arrearages are paid.

3. If subscribers neglect or refuse to take their periodicals from the office to which they are directed, they are responsible until they have settled their bills and ordered them discontinued.

4. If subscribers move to other places without informing the publisher and the papers are sent to the former address, they are held responsible.

5. The courts have decided that refusing to take periodicals from the office or removing and leaving them uncalled for is prima facie evidence of intentional fraud.

6. If a subscriber pay in advance he is not bound to give notice at the end of the time if he do not wish to continue to take it, otherwise the publisher is authorized to send it, and the subscriber will be responsible until an express notice, with payment of all arrearages, is sent to the publisher.

The latest postal laws are such that newspaper publishers can prosecute any person who takes a paper from the office and refuses to pay for it. Under this law the following decision is rendered: Any person who takes from the post-office a newspaper addressed to another person's name, or to a fictitious name, or to a name other than his own, or who has it sent to a place and refuses to take it from the office to which it is directed, is liable to arrest and fine or imprisonment, or both, at the discretion of the court.

"Hello! Tom. Glad to see you, old fellow! It's almost ten years since we were married. Sit down; let's have an experience meeting. How's the wife?"

"Oh! she's so-so, same as usual,—always wanting something I can't afford."

"Well, we all want something more than we've got. Don't you?"

"Yes; but I guess I won't tell on my master." I started to keep down expenses; and now Lil says I'm 'mean,' and she's tired of saving and never having anything to show for it. I saw your wife down street, and she looked as happy as a queen."

"I think she is; and we are economical, too,—have to be. My wife can make a little go further than anyone I ever knew, yet she's always surprising me with some dainty contrivance that adds to the comfort and beauty of our little home, and she's always merry as a lark. When I ask how she manages it, she always laughs and says 'Oh! that's my secret!' But I think I've discovered her secret.' When we married, we both knew we should have to be very economical, but she made one condition—she would have her Magazine. And she was right! I wouldn't do without it myself for double the subscription price. We read it together, from the title-page to the last word; the stories keep our hearts young; the synopsis of important events and scientific matters keeps me posted so that I can talk understandingly of what is going on; my wife is always trying some new ideas from the household department; she makes all her dresses and those for the children, and she gets all her patterns for nothing, with the Magazine; and we saved Joe when he was so sick with the croup, by doing just as directed in the Sanitarian Department. But I can't tell you half!"

"What wonderful Magazine is it?"

"Demorest's Family Magazine, and—"

"What! Why that's what Lil wanted so bad, and I told her it was an extravagance."

"Well, my friend, that's where you made a grand mistake, and one you'd better rectify as soon as you can. I'll take your hat right here on my wife's account; she'd have to have a shiny new set in time for my wedding next month. My gold watch was the premium I got for getting up a club. Here's a copy, with the new Premium List for clubs,—the biggest thing out! If you don't see in it what you want, you've only to write to the publisher and tell him what you want, whether it is a tack hammer or a new carriage, and he will make special terms for you, either for a club, or for part cash. Better subscribe right off and surprise Mrs. Tom. Only $2.00 a year—will save fifty times that in six months. Or send 10 cents direct to the publisher, W. Jennings Demorest, 15 East 14th Street, New York, for a specimen copy containing the Premium List."

The set of Dickens' works which we offer as a premium to our subscribers, is a new type, handsomely printed, and contains the following books, each one of which is published in a large volume:

IF YOU WANT

a San Francisco paper and of course you want a good one. The WEEKLY EXAMINER fills the want completely, for it is the best. It gives you every week not only all the news, but the best literary and miscellaneous matter published on the American continent—that is its specialty; being the best. It wants your subscription—yours particularly—and offers not only to you, but to every other subscriber, one or more attractive premiums.

In the first place, it gives every subscriber, one of the four magnificent etchings or paintings described below, and delivers it safely at his address, postage paid.

"The Retreat from Moscow," by Meissonier,
"The Roman Chariot Race," by A. Wagner.

Each of these pictures is 21x29 inches, and they are elegantly reproduced in fac-simile, showing every line and color of the great originals, either one of which could not be purchased for $100,000.

"Women and Children First," by C. Napier Hemy,
"Christ Leaving the Prætorium," by Gustave Doré.

Each of these pictures is reproduced in photogravure on paper 24x28, and eminently fitted for framing, and will adorn the walls of the most refined house.

Each subscriber has the choice of any one of these four pictures, which will be mailed him in a tube direct from the EXAMINER office, as soon as our subscription is received.

In the second place, it will give 2,220 premiums, valued in the aggregate at about $125,000 to its subscribers this year. If there are 50,000 subscribers, one in ten will get one of these premiums; if there are 100,000, only one in twenty. But no matter how many there are, each and every one of these premiums—which range in value from 50 cents to $6,000—will be given absolutely without cost to some of those who have paid $1.50 for the WEEKLY EXAMINER for one year. The EXAMINER is thoroughly responsible, as you know, or as Wells, Fargo & Co. or any bank or commercial agency in San Francisco will assure you, and the leading men of the city will see that its premiums are distributed exactly as agreed and that every subscriber no matter where he is located, will receive just what is assigned to him.

Of course you want your home paper also, and you can just as well as not save a little money by taking the EXAMINER with it. The price of the WEEKLY EXAMINER is $1.50 per year, including the premium picture and your share of the $125,000 list of premiums, which are fully described in the twelve page Premium Supplement, which will be sent free on application to

FLORAL DECORATIONS.

How to Make a House Look as Its Best for Weddings and Parties.

It is truly amazing to know the amount that is spent for floral decorations every year. During the present season flower weddings are the correct thing, and are as pretty as they are novel. One bride, whose name was Lily, had the whole house decorated with lily of the valley. Another, whose name was Rose, used roses for the decorations. Pansies, with their almost human faces, make very effective decorations.

The old-time wedding bell has been done away with and the umbrella, wishbone, four-leaf clover and other new designs have taken its place. Among the latest things are found the portieres, which are formed of dozens of ropes of smilax, dotted here and there with rosebuds. A canopy of smilax makes a most effective and simple bower of green.

Large baskets suspended by almost invisible wires, are so odd as they are pretty. The frame is composed of wire and filled with not more than it is filled as any other design is. Ferns and scarlet flowers are especially pretty for such a design.

A pretty idea is to decorate a house throughout with the same color, for instance, yellow or pink. Roses, carnations and other flowers of the same shade are used. White can be used with any color and plenty of ferns, smilax and other green.

At a pretty wedding that occurred in Nyquabo, where flowers were scarce and high, the decorations were mostly of arbor vitæ and the red, bitter-sweet berries. The dining-room was festooned with ropes of arbor vitæ, dotted here and there with the bitter-sweet. In the parlors there were ropes of green and a scarcity of smilax, under which hung floral clover design. Bouquets of roses and carnations were scattered here and there.

An apple-blossom wedding, where the entire decorations were the sweet-scented apple blossoms, was truly a pretty scene. Field daisies used for designs, banks, bouquets and buckets make lovely decorations. Fancy shells filled with moss and flowers and an occasional fern make the most graceful and effective decorations. All sorts of odd shapes can be used, and where they will not hold water very well, fill with wet sand before putting in the flowers. Nasturtiums are especially pretty for decorating a house and will last so long. They can be grown in water all winter, or in earth, and their foliage is so graceful. Sweet peas and nigonette are particularly pretty in a wooden glass vase. Rose-bowls, or jars of hacked glass are much in vogue now, and can be found in all styles and sizes.

At a recent wedding reception that was given by a bride who had every thing that love or money could buy, it was noticed that the house was decorated with garden flowers. The parlor was made fragrant with slender vases and rose-bowls, filled with sweet peas, and the dining-room was gorgeous with the many colored nasturtiums.—Carrie May Ashton, in Farm and Fireside.

STIRRING UP STRIFE.

How an Ape Brought About a Battle Between Two Hideous Reptiles.

One morning, says a traveler in Java, I was standing beside a small lake fed by one of the rills from the mountains. Stretching its limbs over this pond was a gigantic teak-tree, and in its thick, shining, evergreen leaves lay a huge boa, in an easy coil, evidently taking his morning nap. Above him was a powerful ape of the baboon species—a fearful race of scamps, always bent on mischief.

The ape, from his position, saw a crocodile rise to the surface of the water, just beneath the teak limb where lay the serpent. Quick as thought he jumped plump upon the boa, which fell with a splash into the water just in front of the crocodile. The ape avoided the limb by clinging to the limb of the tree; but a battle royal immediately began in the water.

The crocodile had fixed its jaws in the snake, which made the water boil by its furious contortions. Winding his folds round and round the body of his antagonist, the boa diminished its hinder legs and by his contractions made the scales and bones of his enemy crack.

Over and over the combatants rolled, neither being able to obtain a decided advantage.

All this time the cause of the mischief was in high glee. He leaped up and down the branches, ran several times close to the edge of the fight, uttered a yell, and again fixed a ware. Perhaps ten minutes passed and the noise of the combat began to fade into silence. The folds of the serpent were relaxing, and though they trembled along the base, the head hung lifeless in the water. The crocodile, also, was dead. The monkey now perched on a low limb just above the dead bodies of his two foes, and amused himself by making faces at them. This seemed to be nothing less than injury. I picked up a stone from the edge of the lake and hurled it at the ape. It struck him on the head and down he fell upon the crocodile's body. He was up again in a moment, and sprang into the bush-trees, where he disappeared among the thick branches.—Youth's Companion.

Typographical.

Typographical Union of the Workmen of Ireland, having taken steps to collect and compile the decisions of the Typographical Union on the subject and given to the Washington Post, as the result of his investigations, the following, which may be relied upon as correct:

1. Subscribers who do not give express notice to the contrary are considered wishing to renew their subscriptions.

2. If the subscriber orders the discontinuance of his periodical the publisher may continue to send it until all arrearages are paid.

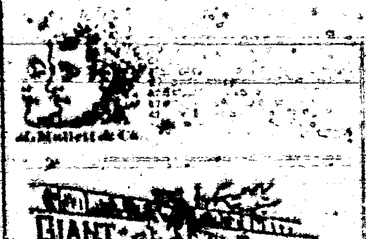
3. If subscribers neglect or refuse to take their periodicals from the office to which they are directed, they are responsible until they have settled their bills and ordered them discontinued.

4. If subscribers move to other places without informing the publisher and the papers are sent to the former address, they are held responsible.

5. The courts have decided that refusing to take periodicals from the office or moving and leaving them uncalled for is prima facie evidence of intentional fraud.

6. If subscribers pay in advance they are bound to give notice at the end of the time if they do not wish to continue taking, otherwise the publisher is justified in considering the subscription renewed, and the subscriber will be held responsible until an express notice, with payment of all arrearages, is sent to the publisher.

The latest postal laws are couched in such a way that publishers can prosecute any person who takes a paper or periodical from the office and refuses to pay for it. Under this law the refusal to take a paper or periodical from the office where it is directed, and the giving notice to the postmaster, or sending a notice to the office that the paper is not wanted, is prima facie evidence of intentional fraud. Any person who receives a paper or periodical from the office, whether directed to his name or another's, or whether he has ordered it or not, and whether it is taken from the office or a private house or place, and reads it or uses it, is responsible to the publisher for the subscription price, and the collection of it can be enforced by law. The only way to stop a paper is to notify the publisher to discontinue it, and pay up all arrearages, or else the paper is kept and used by the person to whom it is sent, and he is responsible for the subscription price. The law is the same whether the paper is sent to a man's name or to the name of his wife, his son, his clerk, or any other person. If a man orders his paper discontinued, he must also notify the postmaster, or else he will be responsible for the paper sent to his address by the postmaster until the publication is discontinued. If he refuses to take the paper from the office to which it is sent, or allows it to remain uncalled for, he is responsible. The postmaster is required to report all such cases to the department at Washington, and the person refusing to take the paper is then reported to the publisher, and he can collect his pay through the courts. The law is very explicit on this point, and was framed expressly to meet the cases of persons who refuse to pay for papers sent to them by the postmaster.



"Hello! Tom. Glad to see you, old fellow! It's almost ten years since we were married. Sit down; let's have an experience meeting. How's the wife?"

"Oh! she's as-so, same as usual,—always wanting something I can't afford."

"Well, we all want something more than we've got. Don't you?"

"Yes; but I guess I want will be my master. I started to keep it on expenses; and now I'll says I'm mean, and she's tired of saying and never having anything to show for it. I saw your wife down street, and she looked as happy as a queen."

"I think she is; and we are common cus, too,—have to be. My wife can make a little go further than anyone I ever knew, yet she's always surprising me with some dainty contrivance that adds to the comfort and beauty of our little home, and she's always 'merry as a lark.' When I ask how she manages it, she always laughs and says: 'Oh! that's my secret!' But I think I've discovered her 'secret.' When we married, we both knew we should have to be very careful, but she made one condition: she would have her Magazine. And she was right! I wouldn't do without it myself for double the subscription price. We read it together, from the title-page to the last word; the stories keep our hearts young; the synopsis of important events and scientific matters keeps me posted so that I can talk understandingly of what is going on; my wife is always trying some new idea from the household department; she makes all her dresses and those for the children, and she gets all her patterns for nothing, with the Magazine; and we saved Joe when he was so sick with the croup, by doing just as directed in the Mother's Department. But I can't tell you half!"

"What wonderful Magazine is it?"

"Demorest's Family Magazine, and—"

"What! Why just what I all wanted to had, and I told her it was an extravagance."

"Well, my friend, that's where you made a grand mistake, and you'd better rectify as soon as you can. Tell Mrs. your wife right here, as my wife's accomplice, she's bound to have a shine, too—yet in time for the wedding next month. My gold watch was the premium I got for getting up a club. Here's a copy, with the new Premium List for clubs,—the biggest thing out! If you don't see in it what you want, you've only to write to the publisher and tell him what you want, whether it is a sack hammer or a new carriage, and he will make special terms for you, either for a club, or for part cash. Better subscribe right off and surprise Mrs. Tom. Only $2.00 a year—will save fifty times that in six months. Or send 10 cents direct to the publisher, W. Dobbins' Electric Soap

THE BEST FAMILY SOAP IN THE WORLD.

It is Strictly Pure. Uniform in Quality.

THE original formula for which we paid $2,000 twenty years ago has never been changed or changed in the slightest. This soap is therefore to-day as it was when first introduced, and is the same that made it twenty years ago.

It contains nothing that can injure the finest fabric. Brightens colors and bleach whites.

It washes flannels and blankets as no other soap in the world does—without shrinking—leaving them soft and white and like new.

READ THIS TWICE

THERE is a great saving of time, of labor, of soap, of fuel, and of the fabric, when Dobbins' Electric Soap is used according to directions.

ONE trial will demonstrate its great merit. It will pay you to make that trial.

LIKE all best things, it is imitated, but never equaled.

Beware of Imitations.

INSIST upon Dobbins' Electric. Don't take any cheap, common soaps that are said to be "just as good," simply because it is cheap. They will ruin clothes, and are dear at any price. Ask for and take no other. Nearly every grocer from Maine to Alaska keeps it in stock. If yours hasn't it, he will order from his nearest wholesale grocer.

READ carefully the inside wrapper around each bar, and be careful to follow directions on same outside wrapper. You cannot afford to wait longer before trying for yourself this old, reliable, and truly wonderful

Dobbins' Electric Soap.

BEWARE OF Imit. use.

Whereas, Felipa Miranda and Dorotea Miranda his wife, then of the county of Lincoln, and Territory of New Mexico, by their certain mortgage deed, dated the 15th day of May, A. D. 1881, and recorded in the Probate Clerk's office of Lincoln County, in Book "A" of the record of Mortgages and Conveyances, pages 178, 179 and 180, did convey to H. Brunswick, his heirs and assigns, as mortgagee, the following described parcel of land and real estate, situate in the county of Lincoln, and Territory of New Mexico, as follows, to-wit:

The east half of the north-west quarter of section (2) two, in township (9) nine south of range (18) eighteen east of the New Mexico principal meridian, containing 80 acres.

To secure the promissory notes of said Felipa Miranda dated respectively February 5th, 1881, for the sum of $110.15, and February 12th, 1881, for the sum of $1.65, payable to the order of the said H. Brunswick, one day after date with interest on the first note above mentioned at the rate of eight per cent. per annum from its maturity, and twelve per cent. per annum from maturity on the note last above mentioned.

And whereas it was provided in said mortgage deed that if default should be made in the payment of said notes, or the interest thereof in said notes named at the time and in the manner specified in said notes, then and in such case the whole of said mortgage debt should become due and payable, and the said mortgagee, his heirs and assigns, in person or by their agents or attorneys, should have full power to sell the premises described in said mortgage, at public auction to the highest bidder for cash, after having given notice of the time and place of such sale by publishing a copy of said notice for four weeks in a newspaper published in the county of Lincoln, the last publication to be made not less than ten days before the date of such sale, and to make deed to the purchaser or purchasers at such sale, which deed should be executed by the said mortgagee, and should be a perpetual bar both in law and equity against the said mortgagors, and all persons claiming under them, and out of the proceeds of such sale to retain the principal and interest which should then be due on said notes, together with the costs and charges of making such sale, rendering the surplus, if any there should be, unto the said mortgagors, their heirs or assigns; and whereas default has been made in the payment of the said notes and interest thereon, and the said mortgagee has elected to declare the whole of said mortgage debt due and payable, and has placed the same in the hands of the undersigned for collection, and has requested the undersigned to sell the premises described in said mortgage, to satisfy the amount due thereon, and the undersigned will sell at public auction to the highest bidder for cash, at the front door of the court house in Lincoln, the seat of justice of said county of Lincoln, on the 26th day of March, A. GRAND PREMIUM OFFER!
A SET OF THE WORKS OF CHARLES DICKENS,
In Twenty Large Volumes.

Charles Dickens

Offered as a Premium for a Year's Subscription to the Twice-a-Week Edition of the
NEW YORK WEEKLY TRIBUNE,
Which is Twice as Large as any Regular Weekly Publication, and Only
One Dollar a Year.

Wishing to largely increase the circulation of this paper during the coming months, we have made arrangements with a New York publishing house to enable us to offer as a premium to our subscribers a set of the Works of Charles Dickens, in twenty large and handsome volumes, with a year's subscription to this paper, for only one dollar more than our regular subscription price. Only a limited number of sets will be offered, and those who subscribe at once will be sure to receive them. Charles Dickens was the greatest novelist who ever lived. No one has ever come near his place in the hearts of the people. His books are as much read now as they were when they were published, and his works are even more popular today than during his lifetime. They abound in wit, humor, pathos, masterly delineation of character, vivid descriptions of places and incidents, and are universally sought after. Every household in the land should have a set of these great and remarkable works. Not to have read them is to be far behind the age in which we live. The set of Dickens which we offer as a premium is complete in twenty large volumes, with new type, printed from entirely new plates, with many full page illustrations, each one of which is a work of art.

DAVID COPPERFIELD,
MARTIN CHUZZLEWIT,
NICHOLAS NICKLEBY,
DOMBEY AND SON,
BLEAK HOUSE,
LITTLE DORRIT,
OUR MUTUAL FRIEND,
PICKWICK PAPERS,

BARNABY RUDGE AND CHRISTMAS STORIES,
OLIVER TWIST AND GREAT EXPECTATIONS,
THE OLD CURIOSITY SHOP AND THE UNCOMMERCIAL TRAVELER, A TALE OF TWO CITIES, HARD TIMES AND THE MYSTERY OF EDWIN DROOD.

The type is clear and perfect, the paper is of excellent quality, and the binding is substantial and handsome. Each volume contains about 500 pages, and the whole set is a most valuable addition to any library. The publishers have arranged with us to supply a limited number of sets at the above price, and we are confident that every one who sends for them will be pleased with the bargain. Address a San Francisco paper and of course you want a good one. The WEEKLY EXAMINER fills the want completely, for it is the best. It gives you every week not only all the news, but the best literary and miscellaneous matter published on the American continent—that is its specialty; being the best. It wants your subscription—yours particularly—and offers not only to you, but to every other subscriber, one or more attractive premiums.

YOU WANT

In the first place, it gives every subscriber, one of the four magnificent etchings or paintings described below, and delivers it safely at his address, postage paid.

"The Retreat from Moscow," by Meissonier.
"The Roman Chariot Race," by A. Wagner.

Each of these pictures is 21x28 inches, and they are elegantly reproduced by the similar showing every tint and color of the great originals, either one of which could not be purchased for $100,000.

"Women and Children First," by C. Napier Hemy.
"Christ Leaving the Prætorium," by Gustave Doré.

Each of these pictures is reproduced in photogravure 21x28, and eminently fitted for framing, and will adorn the walls of the most refined house.

Each subscriber has the choice of any one of these four pictures, which will be mailed him in a tube direct from the EXAMINER office, as soon as his subscription is received.

In the second place, it will give 2,220 premiums, valued in the aggregate at about $125,000 to its subscribers this year. If there are 50,000 subscribers, one in ten will get one of these premiums; if there are 100,000, only one in twenty. But no matter how many there are, each and every one of these premiums—which range in value from 50 cents to $5,000—will be given absolutely without cost to some of the 50 cents to $5,000—will be given absolutely without cost to some of the subscribers who have paid $1.50 for the WEEKLY EXAMINER for one year. The EXAMINER is thoroughly responsible, as you know, or as Wells, Fargo & Co. or any bank or commercial agency in San Francisco will assure you, and the leading men of the city will see that its premiums are distributed exactly as agreed and that every subscriber no matter where he is located, will receive just what is assigned to him.

Of course you want your home paper also, and you can just as well as not save a little money by taking the EXAMINER with it. The price of the WEEKLY EXAMINER is $1.50 per year, including the premium picture and your share of the $125,000 list of premiums, which are fully described in the twelve page Premium Supplement, which will be sent free on application to

W. R. HEARST, Publisher, San Francisco, Cal.

The SEMI-WEEKLY EXAMINER, the best paper published, the subscription price of which is $3.00, will be sent you for one year, postage paid, for $2.00. Send the money to the office of the Leader and your subscription will be promptly forwarded to the EXAMINER, and you will receive therefor the EXAMINER'S numbered receipt. You can get a Premium Supplement by applying at this office.

COLDS have been quite prevalent amongst our people the past week, occasioning more or less disability. Ye editor had one of the more type.

OF late there has been considerable energetic and intelligent prospecting and development work been done on Baxter Mountain and all report satisfactory results.—We learn that among others, J. A. Alcock is "in the swim."

A FEW years ago Michael McDonald and wife lived in White Oaks. They were then the parents of some eighteen children. They now live in the Sacramentos. Last week they went to La Cruces to prove up a land claim.—While there death snatched from them their 21st birdling, aged about 6 months.

THIS week a letter was received here written by a Las Vegas gentleman in which he says: "I am very much pleased to be able to also tell you that your town and the manner in which her delegates and citizens have acted in the late R. R. Convention, is the current theme of conversation here, as both are certainly quoted as objects of emulation to all places and people interested in this new enterprise."

WE are in receipt of a neat card on which is printed: "Peter F. McLaren, J. Kathleen Chase—Married, Wednesday, October 21, 1891, Derby Line, Vt." Said card was associated by another which read: "At Home, after November 2nd, Elmira, N. Y."

The bride above named is a daughter of our late townsman, Gov. E. P. Chase. We have never seen her but have so often heard her talented mother speak of her beloved and loving "Kate" that we cannot refrain extending warmest congratulations.
