What Wilson Thought

By Norman Haggood

What Woodrow Wilson thought about the present liquor situation would interest many persons, were it known. It is, of course, a familiar fact that he vetoed the Volstead Act, and it has been confidently stated that he prepared a light wine and beer plank for the convention of 1916, which was not presented. Be that as it may, he wrote out carefully, in 1924, his views of what ought to be done, in the predicament as it was then and is now; and I have just been reading his statement. It was written, he it said in passing, after he had been over the matter with as high a judicial authority as there is in the country.

He points out that when the amendment gives concurrent jurisdiction it invites both the federal government and the states to accept responsibility for carrying out the amendment. He then raises the question of what part of the federal government ought to take for itself, and argues emphatically that it ought to undertake no more than the prevention of importation from abroad and of transportation from one state to another. So much, as he points out, will call for more money than is likely to be appropriated, if it is done well.

Moreover, he gives a reason that goes further. He declares that it is unwholesome for the federal government to take away the responsibility placed on the states by the amendment, and urges that the whole health of our system of government is bound up with the system of divided responsibility. On that principle, he goes on, the only sound course is to leave the situation inside of a state to the inhabitants of that state, to carry out or neglect, as they may please, the mandate given to them by the amendment.

The First American

With reservations pouring in to Albuquerque for The First American, and the hotels rapidly filling up, the Chamber of Commerce is calling on householders through the city and preparing to provide accommodations to fill every application, according to a statement released today.

It was pointed out that Albuquerque normally has hundreds of available rooms throughout the city in addition to an unusual number of hotels, and that no difficulty is expected in caring for the crowd. Reservations will be taken care of in the order of their receipt, according to the headquarters.

Since the larger hotels report advance reservations to nearly their capacity, it was urged, that reservations be made as early as possible to avoid inconvenience. The Chamber of Commerce will be ready to assist if you are unable to get a place in the hotels. The dates of The First American are September 24, 25, 26, 27.

To Dr. Straton

From a Baptist

Among the reactions to the Rev. John Roach Straton's attacks on Governor Smith was a telegram to the minister from John Trotwood Moore of Nashville, Tennessee:

"Your father was pastor of the Siloam Baptist church, at Marion, Ala. My father and mother worshipped there. I grew up in it. I love it and whatever it stands for. Your card in today's paper quoted you as saying that your challenge to Gov. Smith was a joke. I do not mind your making a joke of yourself, but I resent your making a joke of my church. We are going to vote for Al Smith down here."

The Baptist, who thus represents the activities of Dr Straton is, and has long been the State Librarian of Tennessee, in charge of the archives in Nashville, to whom many historians and scholars are indebted for helpful services and suggestions. A scholar himself, a man of intellectual capacity and self-respect, he naturally despises bigotry and hates hypocrisy.

The best reply Dr. Straton can make to him is that the attack on the Governor was not addressed to men of Mr. Moore's intellectual attainments, but to a much lower order.—Evening World, New York.

Dodge Shipments Increase

August shipments by Dodge Brothers from the plants in the United States and Canada, in both the passenger car and the truck and motor coach divisions, showed an increase of approximately 43 per cent over July. The August shipments were exceeded in only one month in 1928 in March. They were greater than any 30 day period during the first eight months of 1927.

Shipments of both passenger cars and trucks are running heavy. Dodge Brothers entered September with large banks of carry-over orders in all divisions and the flow of orders from dealers shows no let up.

August was also a great export month. Shipments for the 30-day period were the heaviest this year. Truck export shipments were the greatest in the entire history of the corporation. August export showed better than 57 per cent increase over the same month last year while export business for the first eight months of 1928 shows a gain of approximately 33 per cent over the same period last year.

"Business is showing up exceptionally well and indications are that the last half of this year will be one of the best last half periods in our history," said John R. Lee, general sales manager.

School Superintendent

I hereby announce my candidacy for Supt. of Schools of Lincoln county, as the nominee of the Democratic party. Your support will be sincerely appreciated.

Mrs. S. H. Nickels.

Bryan's Plea for Religious Tolerance

That most of the opposition to Governor Alfred E. Smith in the south, however disguised it may appear, has a background of religious prejudice, is the opinion of Senator Caraway of Arkansas, one of the active field campaigners for the Democratic national candidates. In his speeches in the south Senator Caraway quotes from the late William Jennings Bryan's eloquent plea for religious tolerance before the Madison Square Garden, New York, in the 1924 Democratic National Convention. Col. Bryan was addressing the convention in opposition to the proposal of the resolutions committee to incorporate specific denunciation of the Ku Klux Klan. He succeeded and the Klan was not condemned in the platform. Making his plea for tolerance Col. Bryan emphasized the unwisdom and danger of intolerance generally in the field of religion and took occasion to pay a tribute to the church of which Governor Smith is an adherent.

The portion of the address by Col. Bryan which Senator Caraway is quoting is as follows:

"In this country it is not necessary to protect any church. I have such confidence in the Catholic church which was for 1500 years my mother church as well as yours, that I deny it needs political aid. It was the Catholic church that took our religion from its founders and preserved it—it was the only custodian—for over fifteen centuries. When it did this for Catholics it did it for me and every Protestant. The Catholic church, with its legacy of martyrs' blood and with the testimony of its long line of missionaries who went to every land, does not need a great party to protect it from a million Klansmen.

"The Jews do not need this resolution. They have Moses, they have Elijah and they have also Elisha, who drew back the curtain and revealed upon the mountain tops an invisible host greater than a thousand Ku Klux Klans. The Catholic church and the House of Israel have their great characters today who plead for respect for them whose pleading is not in vain.

"I am not willing to bring discord into my party. The Democratic party is united on all the economic issues. We have never been so united since I have known politics, and nobody has had more reason than I to regret past discord. Now, when we are united and face our political foes with dauntless courage and with enthusiasm never excelled, these people tell us that we must turn aside from this titanic task, divide our party on a religious issue and cease to be a great political force.

"The Democratic party has never taken the side of one church against the other; the Democratic party must remain true to its traditions; it cannot surrender its rights to exist; it cannot be false to the mission that it had in the days of Jefferson, to which it remained true in the days of Jackson and to which it was still loyal in the days of Woodrow Wilson.

"My last objection is that I am not willing to divide the Christian church, because if it is destroyed there is nothing to take its place. We must stand together to fight our battles of religion against materialism.

"There is only One who can bring peace to the world, and that is the Prince of Peace—the One of whose coming the angels sang, 'On earth peace, good will toward men.'"

Short Interviews

TREATING ON MATTERS PERTAINING TO THE TOWN AND OTHERWISE

BY M. DORRINO

Everybody in Carrizozo should feel that the coming second annual fair to be held in this town on October 12 and 13 is his or her fair and put faith in every effort to make it a success. With good weather there should be a large attendance from nearby towns. The program is a good one and is bound to please. In talking with several gentlemen about the fair a few days ago, they all thought the town should put on a good appearance on this occasion by displaying American flags everywhere—on flag poles, in show-windows, on motor cars, and everybody should wear a small American flag pin. A few "Welcome" banners would do lots of good.

Should the demand for furnished houses continue after the school buildings are finished and those houses now occupied by mechanics working on the new schools are taken by others, it will be necessary for someone in Carrizozo to build and furnish other houses—and it is hoped this will be done.

Who wants to start a small laundry in Carrizozo? There seems to be need for one. The money paid for laundry work done away from home should be kept here to be spent with the local merchants. Quite a few families would have the family washing done at the laundry and do the ironing themselves. At the present time, all articles that can be done in Carrizozo should be given to local wash women. It will help the town.

As has been the custom in Carrizozo other years when there was some entertainment held in the fall of the year, the principal business streets will, no doubt, receive a "brushing up" by cutting the weeds and removing all trash therefrom under the direction of the city authorities. On other streets the residents can do the community a big favor by removing weeds, old cans, etc. from in front of their premises. It only takes a few minutes to tear up the weeds in gutter and pick up a few pieces of rubbish that may have been thrown there or blown there.

Picnic on Bonito

A number of our people visited the South Fork of the Bonito last Sunday, and picnicked on the banks of that beautiful mountain stream. Those enjoying the outing were: Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Lemou, Mr. and Mrs. Morgan Lovelace, Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Clouse, Mr. and Mrs. George Dingwall, Mr. and Mrs. John Gallagher; Mesdames Nellie Branum, E. A. Gumm and L. E. Crawford.

For the fifth consecutive year, Paris has just "decreed" that women's skirts must be longer. The women, of course, show their independence by making them still shorter.

Summer is on the wing; autumn is here. With the closing of summer our thoughts cease to dwell entirely upon pleasure and turn to the more serious aspects of life. Autumn is the season which fans that lingering spark of ambition into flame, and each and every doer takes an inventory of his personal stock, checking up to find out where he is lacking and where he can improve himself so as to enhance his usefulness to himself, to his employer and all with whom he comes in contact. The animal is busy storing up his food for the winter months; the ambitious man resumes, with renewed zest and energy, his preparation for the winter of his life.

Virginia and Quail

(National Industries News Service)

After many attempts to raise different kinds of game the authorities of Virginia found that their best crup was quail. So the State Commission of Game and Inland Fisheries has specialized on breeding these birds for the past two or three years.

It is believed that Virginia's example will act as a stimulant to a great many other states where there has been some hesitancy about establishing large game farms.

New Golf Course

The new golf course, on the east side, is a busy scene these days. Bryan Casier has charge of the work, and, with a force of men and boys, is rapidly whipping the course into shape.

Appendectomy

Mrs. John Parker was brought to the Johnson hospital and operated on for appendicitis last Friday. Complications existed, making the removal of the appendix a delicate one, but the patient came through the ordeal in good condition and is now on the road to recovery.

Card of Thanks

I wish to take this opportunity to thank my many friends and the delegates to the Democratic Convention for their support in according me the nomination for school superintendent.

I have not been able to see all of you personally, but hope to do so soon.

If elected I trust that I shall always merit the confidence you have placed in me.

Yours Sincerely, Mrs. S. H. Nickels.

Courtesy Stressed

At Oakland Factory

To expedite the work of commercial men calling on the Oakland Motor Car Company, of whom there are more than 2,000 a month (approximately one for every ten cars built.) Charles O. Miller, supervisor of purchases has installed a courtesy plan designed to eliminate so far as possible the annoying wait in the lobby.

Under this system the information clerk checks the time of arrival of all callers having business with members of the purchasing department, and the time each caller had to wait before seeing his particular party.

In the operation of the plan during the past few months, the average wait of each caller has been reduced to 3 1/2 minutes. The best day's average was 1 1/2 minutes. This is the more remarkable in view of the fact that from one hundred to two hundred men are interviewed every day by the Oakland buyers.

A poster in the lobby tells the aim of the courtesy plan, and a bulletin board hanging by the information desk shows the number of men interviewed the previous day and their average waiting time. Each buyer also has posted before him, over the signature of Mr. Miller, this constant reminder of the courtesy creed:

"It is our aim to have the Purchasing Department callers delayed as little as possible in seeking an interview. It is the duty of each buyer to see salesmen promptly

"It is also his duty to see that salesmen have the proper regard for other salesmen who may be waiting their turn.

"I wish this policy to be something more than a framed notice on the lobby wall. It is up to each buyer to see that this is the case."

Every morning Mr. Miller sends the members of his department a record of the preceding day which shows the number of contacts each man made and the length of time he kept his callers waiting. The resultant intra-department rivalry has cut down the waiting average by a considerable margin, and has won for Oakland "good will" a new significance in the mind of the caller at the factory.

Two Millionth Milestone

Marking for the second time within eight months, the passing of a millionth milestone, the Chevrolet Motor Company announced today that the five millionth Chevrolet was produced at the Flint, Michigan, plant, Sept. 8. The four millionth car was built Jan. 11, following quickly on the spectacular nationwide reception accorded the present "Bigger and Better" model.

The early arrival of the 5,000,000th car was in response to a continued demand that has kept Chevrolet plants on a day and night basis since the first of the year and has resulted in the setting of new monthly production records every month this year.

Production for the year promises to go well beyond the million mark and will show more than a 1,000 per cent increase over 1921 when 27,565 cars were built.

The epochal five millionth car was a standard coach and came off the line amid the cheers of a vast army of assembled mechanics who gathered momentarily to see the record making model glide off the line under its power. Exact schedule requirements did not permit of any ceremonies and a few seconds later the five millionth car became history, when number 5,000,001 was driven away.

when the 3,000,000th car was produced, a little less than 20 months had been required to produce another two million.

This record-breaking program was in response to the greatest demand in the company's history. During the first six months of this year, 50 per cent of all automobiles sold in Chevrolets. This was an increase over 1927 when Chevrolet outdistanced all competitors by selling 40 per cent of all cars purchased in its price class.

In light of the fact that Chevrolet production is geared to meet the demand, ranking company officials viewed the recent production achievement as a tremendous popular tribute from the motoring public. W. S. Kuechen, President and general manager, stressed the point that precision is the father of speed. He explained that to make such a record possible it was necessary to adhere even more closely to precision manufacturing methods and to make the limitations even more exacting. The slightest inaccuracy in workmanship or inspection would increase costs and slow production, he pointed out.

Chevrolet's spectacular march to the 5,000,000 mark is shown in the following dates on which the various millionth cars were produced: One millionth car Feb. 27, 1923 Two millionth car July 10, 1925 Three millionth car Jan. 12, 1927 Four millionth car Jan. 11, 1928 Five millionth car Sept. 8, 1928

Arthur Bien, the fireman, then risked his life by climbing to the top of the locomotive and while he clung there amid clouds of steam he emptied the boilers through the valve. "The Jazz Singer"

"Indiana," says Geo. Ade, "is a state I will never go back on or to," and that is just what Al Jolson is saying of the stage since the spectacular success of his first movie, "The Jazz Singer," to show at the Crystal theatre, Friday and Saturday. The story of the play parallels Jolson's own life. He, too, ran away from an orthodox home to follow the lure of the theatre and was rewarded by applause such as no other entertainer in history has elicited.

At the moment of the triumph of the Jack Robin of "The Jazz Singer" his mother comes to tell him that his father is dying and to plead with him to leave Broadway for the humble home in the Ghetto to sing the Day of Atonement song in place of his father. Torn between two loves the piece rises to dramatic heights. The cast includes May McAvoy, Warner Oland, Cantor Josef Rosenblatt, Otto Lederer, Richard Tucker, William Demarest, Will Walling. Al Cohn did the scenario based on the Samson Raphaelson play. Alan Crosland's mastery direction is everywhere evident. But it is Jolson, the inimitable, the volcanic, the captivating, which makes audiences shout and weep and laugh. See and be convinced.

A Romance of Braddock's Defeat

"Captain de Beaujeu, your words are so many puzzles to me," I coldly informed him. "I stood at the side of Monsieur Falet when he offered his belt to Alliquippa, who refused it. I was not in the village, however, when the dead Huron was found. I know that Alliquippa did not relish our friend's presence in the village and that he left early in the evening instead of waiting to make the journey with me in the morning as we had agreed. Do you mean to say that he and the young Englishman had not arrived?"

"The Englishman arrived, but not with Falet. It is like this Monsieur Boland: The young man arrived before daylight. But it was Lieutenant Beauvais who accompanied him. I was tongue-tied for a good minute. It did not take me a second to realize that in the vague light of early morning Cromil had made a mistake and had killed poor Falet 'instead of Beauvais; that it was Beauvais and the girl who had passed so close to me when they entered the fort trail in the evening. Falet, whom I feared none, was at the bottom of the Monongahela; Beauvais, the last man I desired to meet, was due at any moment to keep a dinner appointment with me at the board. The world seemed to be tumbling about my ears. I could only say:

"I do not understand. Falet was to leave the Indian village with me. Because of Alliquippa's ill will, he changed his plans and left at night; or at least I surely believed he left at night. Now, behold! A miracle is worked. He starts with the Englishman, and it is Lieutenant Beauvais who comes in his place!"

Beaujeu smiled faintly and pleasantly said:

"It may not be a mystery after all. Lieutenant Beauvais did tell me that Falet planned to start at night and for some reason changed his plan. The Englishman who is French at heart was impatient to reach the fort and came with Beauvais instead of waiting to come with Falet. Yes, it is simple enough to get some bit of news. I shall be surprised if he does not arrive before we sit down to dinner. Ah, now it begins to straighten out. For some reason Falet left the village last night. Our belt had been refused and our Huron killed. Beauvais told me that much. Falet was unwelcome at the village, yet he tarried outside to transact some business. Perhaps to win over some of the younger Delaware. We shall know what it is all about when he comes. We shall laugh at the wonderment his change of plans has occasioned."

I left him and went wandering about the fort, seeking the Onondaga to tell him that our orders were very simple, or had been asleep, to allow us to stick our heads into such an ugly trap. It was a warm day and yet I felt a chill as I glanced about in search of Round Paw. Let us but get through the gate and to the edge of the forest and I would ask no more of fate.

Instead of the Indian I came upon the Dinwold girl. She was standing by the water-gate. She had her hair carefully arranged under her hat, or cut off. I could not tell which. And she would pass for a young man readily enough; a very young man. Yet she had betrayed her sex to Beauvais, and I wondered if de Beaujeu also knew the truth.

Far from being surprised at seeing her, she quickly greeted: "I have been waiting for you, mister. I saw you when you come in."

"I shall call myself most lucky if you see me go out alive and not a prisoner," I told her. "I have just learned that you came here with one called Beauvais."

"At the last minute Mr. Falet changed his mind. He told me to tell the truth to Mr. Beauvais, who, he said, was a good man. Mr. Falet said he should be in such a mortal hurry to make the fort I had best go on ahead. Mr. Beauvais is a good man. I'm to go to Canada at the first chance. What do you mean about being lucky if you get out of here alive? Do they guess you're a scout for Braddock?"

"For God's sake, hush!" I cautioned; for we were near the kitchen and sharp ears might overhear us. "If Beauvais comes back from Sheango and finds me here, the Indians will burn me."

"See small face, most white with horror. 'You can pass through the gate,' she muttered. 'Why do you wait? Get on now!'"

"Two things hold me. The Onondaga, whom I haven't found—and you."

"May" she gasped. "You must leave here and get back to the settlements where you belong. You must stop this thinking of going to Canada. It's a mad scheme. Do you believe that all men are honest, or Beauvais seems to be? You are English and cannot speak French. How do you know how you will be treated in Canada, especially after the French are whipped and any one of the English blood is pointed out to be hated? How do you know the few French soldiers, even those driven from this place, can protect you from their own Indians? Why, child, the French themselves will be fortunate if they escape being killed by the Ottawas and Hurons. You must stop this foolishness and go back with me—if I can find the Indian and get through the gate."

"If you make me go back, I shall always hate you," she passionately returned; and could Beaujeu have seen her then he would have known she was a woman. Before I could speak an expression of great misery passed over her face and she whispered:

"And if anything happens to you I'll kill myself." I had no patience with her, or with her sex. Fair Josephine in old Alexandria, who plighted herself to the last of the Bronos, and this elf-woman of the Wyitches' head, were all of a piece—always changeable.

"I'll help you if I can," I told her. "But I don't propose to go into a Huron kettle trying it unless you are willing to help yourself."

Much shouting and singing outside the eastern gate broke up our talk, and we turned and looked to see what the clamor portended. Through the gate, walking two by two, came several Frenchmen. Next came a long string of Indians. Pontiac, wearing no paint, led these, a gray blanket thrown over his shoulders although the day was very hot. Behind him came Captain Jacobs and Shingis, the leaders of the Delaware.

The Indians were whooping and slipping. The cause of the demonstration puzzled me until I beheld the body of a bear, slung on a pole. Over the bear's head was draped a red coat, taken from some unfortunate English soldier, who had been caught off his guard by some of the enemy's scouts.

"He isn't with them!" whispered the girl. "Thank God he isn't with them!"

I had been holding my breath while I waited, as had she, to behold Beauvais in the procession.

"Come with me and make the forest and return to where you belong," I urged. "Then spend your life hating me if you will. The Onondaga should be near the gate. The singing would draw him to it."

But although I saw Delawareans from the Susquehanna, Shawnees from Grave's Creek and the Muskingum, Mingoes from the Ohio, and Iroquois from the Long House, Ojibways and Potawatomi from the northern lakes, Ottawaes from Superior, and Hurons from the Falls of Montreal and the mission of Lorville, Coughawaugans from the St. Lawrence, and even Abnaki from the far eastern streams, I failed to locate the tall figure of Round Paw of the Onondagas.

"Go on!" she whispered, as I halted just outside the gate.

"My friend, I must not leave him behind."

"Go on! I will find him and tell him," she whispered, giving me a little peck.

Royalty Had Eye to Saving the "Bawbees"

The collection of books made by the late King Leopold I of Belgium is extremely valuable. A French writer tells of how Leopold, hearing that a particular book he desired was in the possession of a small dealer in a poor quarter of Paris, set out to obtain it at the lowest price possible, for Leopold counted with care every penny he spent on his hobby and part of the pleasure it afforded him, according to a writer in the New York Herald-Tribune, was the netting of a valuable volume at a few francs. This particular book was a French translation made in the thirteenth century of a Latin work by a writer named Crusonus, written about 300 A. D. When Leopold, noting in Paris to

"He would not understand. He is not with the savages outside. He must be inside the stockade somewhere," I was demurring, when she gave a little cry and moaned:

"Mister, you've killed both of us." Before I could look about to learn what had prompted this lugubrious speech an arm was hooked through mine and Captain Beaujeu was gently inviting:

"Come, my friend. We will not wait for Beauvais. The Indians have killed a bear, and Pontiac tells them it's a good omen. We will have the chiefs in while we eat and give them some brandy to keep their hearts high. We will give some faced coats to the warriors who killed the bear. Come, monsieur, let us forget for a few hours that the English are drawing close, and show nothing but confidence before our red children. The Englishman shall go with us, if he will."

But the Dinwold girl was walking back toward the river stockade, and I explained:

"He speaks no French yet. He would not enjoy it."

CHAPTER VII

Beaujeu Gives a Dinner

There were six of us at the table and two empty chairs. One of these was reserved for Beauvais. I followed the example of the others on entering the room and stood my long rifle up in the corner nearest the door; but in my belt, and concealed by the skirts of my hunting-shirt, were my ax and knife. I sat facing an open window through which the savages took turns in watching us. The night was closing in hot and close, and the door, like the window, was left open. About the door were grouped various tribal leaders, and the two warriors who had killed the bear.

I was seated between Sieur de Carquville and Sieur de Parieux. Beaujeu was at the head of the table and facing the open door. After we had taken our places and wine had been poured, the commandant called for two pewter dishes and filled them with brandy. Two faced coats were brought and placed beside him. Then he called for the slayers of the bear to enter. Pontiac escorted them forward.

The commandant recognized him as being the intellectual superior of the other chiefs, and rose and clasped his hand and asked him to be seated and take a glass of wine. But Pontiac seldom if ever departed from his role. He was all for the red man and preferred to remain standing while he filled the office of interpreter. He gave the impression of having but one desire—to expedite the bestowal of honors on the bear-killers. And yet his crazy mind knew what the white men were thinking; that his was the dominant personality. He could perform a humble service because it did honor to the recipient.

Captain Jacobs and Shingis, of the Delaware, for whose heads the governor of Pennsylvania would soon be offering a reward of a hundred and forty pounds apiece, were outside among the fighting men. But I do not believe they resented the great Ottawa's quickness to put himself ahead and act the mouthpiece when he was not acting the leader. Some will say that Pontiac was a demagogue, one who used the peace-pipe to mask his plans for wholesale killings. My experiences early taught me that the white men, as well as red, were cruel in war. Pontiac was a great man, by whatever racial standards we judge him. And surely deceit and intrigue were practiced in the Old world long before this red leader became an adept at dissimulation.

The bear-killers greedily bolted their brandy and proudly put on their gay coats, although the room was like an oven. Pontiac drank but a portion of his wine. After the manes of the bear had been appeased and the happy killers had hurried outside to display their finery, the Ottawa chief remained to say:

"Son of Onontio, child of the French king, your master and our uncle, the sorcerers of the Potawatomi have dreamed of a medicine lodge set up outside this room." He pointed through the window. "The dead bear is the English army, the dream said. In the medicine lodge, ghosts will talk, and tell if the English army will have the ax stuck in its head."

DIG THREE MONTHS FOR POT OF GOLD

Aged Woman's Dream of Riches Starts Race.

Honolulu.—An aged woman's dream of buried treasure kept four men busy three months digging a lot 20 feet broad and 80 feet deep in a back yard in one of Honolulu's residential districts.

As they dug ancient Hawaiian charms were brought into use to protect them from evil spirits.

Mrs. Pele Keakuauilua, ninety-nine years old, was the dreamer. In her vision, it was explained, she saw the Hawaiian goddess of fire and the volcano, Pele, pointing out a spot in the yard where there was buried $25,000 in the five-cornered gold pieces of the old Hawaiian monarchy. The money was supposed to be contained in the bow of a canoe.

The excavation work went on for weeks before it came to official attention, when two motor cycle officers scouting the region for stolen automobiles noted the unusual activity.

At the end of three months no treasure had been found, but the excavating continued. The searchers had, however, uncovered a peculiar stone, differing in composition from the others in the shaft, and this has been greeted by Hawaiians as a "sacred stone."

A side light of the treasure hunt was the arrest of Kaalawai and John Mucumui Niu, one of the diggers, on charges of "kahunaism" or witchcraft. The charges were dismissed when it was found that Kaalawai had prayed only to a luck goddess—Pele and two others—that the treasure sought might be found. The court held that invocation of good omens from spirits was not criminal.

Metal Mining Staging Comeback in Colorado

Denver, Colo.—The metal mining industry in Colorado slowly is staging a comeback.

From 1850 to the beginning of the Twentieth century, the state literally lived gold, silver and lead. Gregory started the "goldmadness" that caused Central City and Black Hawk to spring into being. He watched them grow to be leading, hell-roarin' mining camps.

Then came the slump. Today, however, mining camps are "looking up." Nevada, a famous "ghost town," is coming to life again. Two mines are reported working in that community after years of idleness.

Considerable activity is reported in Cripple Creek, one of the most famous of the old-time camps. From the time Bob Wreck, a cowboy, found free gold in the Cripple creek area in 1881, millions of dollars in gold were taken from the hills.

Leadville, boom town of the Rockies, is engaged actively in a new attempt to regain its former position in the mining world. Aspen, center of the silver district, is active, "experts say." Prosperity is returning to Idaho Springs with its famed Argo tunnel, which pierces the heart of the rich gold-bearing district for more than seven miles.

Old Cliff Dwelling

Is Used as a Garage

Phoenix, Ariz.—The ancient and modern are in strange combination at the home of Joseph Johnson, a Verde valley rancher, who has utilized a prehistoric cliff dwelling as garage for his automobile. His cabin is high up on the talus of Red Rock Rim, in which are the remains of scores of rock-built habitations of a people of whom no one is known than is carried by a few vague legends of the Indians of today.

Eat Rattlesnake

State College, Pa.—The evidence is that fried rattlesnake is delicious. A college statement notes that some girls campers liked it as well they ate it four times in three weeks.

Toll of Floods for Year Is Enormous

Washington.—The Red Cross reported that 120,000 persons have been affected by floods in the Mississippi valley this year and that one-half as many casualties have been inundated as during the spectacular disaster a year ago.

The relief organization said the only reason why public attention has not been directed toward conditions this year is because they lack the dramatic features of the 1927 rise.

Twenty-eight relief workers have been stationed in Arkansas, Missouri and Louisiana, where tribulations have been needed since May. Mr. Bond reported that there had been no loss of life because the water rose slowly, enabling all to reach safety. Another staff of relief workers is on duty at points in Illinois, Indiana, Kentucky, West Virginia, where the big floods, Licking and other rivers have been in flood.

The abandonment of these workers has been driven from the valley by the rising waters. They have been driven from the valley by the rising waters. They have been driven from the valley by the rising waters.

Money is drawn by the orders of the different banks visited by the flood.

ONLY 5 IN 100 WHO PLAY MARKET WIN

Outsiders Warned Failure Is Nearly Certain.

New York.—Not more than five out of every 100 persons who speculate in the stock market have any chance of quitting with a profit!

This is not a casual estimate, but a calculation carefully arrived at through a study of brokers' records by Fred C. Kelly, financial writer, who analyzes the current record-breaking market operations in an article written for the Cosmopolitan.

Of the estimated 12,000,000 Americans, most of them newcomers to speculation, who are "playing the market," the 5 per cent of winners is made up almost entirely of hardened, experienced speculators who have plentiful capital, Mr. Kelly finds. The number of uninitiated outsiders who have made money at the end of a month or a year of market dabbling is almost infinitesimal.

One Winner Draws Hordes.

But a handful of outsiders do tumble into easy money, and it is the tales of their quickly won wealth, rather than the recital of the millions of failures, that draw new millions into the stock market game yearly. The man or woman with a little idle capital and the gambling instinct is like the thousands of girls who are drawn to Hollywood by the story of one star's overnight rise from obscurity. They forget the stranded hordes before the studio gates.

"I know a hard-working stenographer who learned the market by noting the methods of her employer," writes Mr. Kelly. "For three years she made her own clothes, went without vacations or minor luxuries to save what she needed to start a little speculative account. And you can believe it or not, she has won and kept nearly $200,000." But she is the one success in 1,000 cases.

Of the failures the investigator encountered, one man lost his life savings of $8,000, an elderly woman lost all she had, $300, with which she had planned a trip home; an experienced operator saw his capital reduced from $75,000 to $3,000 within a trading week.

To test the value of the tips on which most inexperienced speculators do their buying, Mr. Kelly played the market "on paper" for several months. "If a friend advised me to buy United States Steel common for a quick move upward, I scarcely wrote down the suggestion," he explains. "After a time I tallied up my list of such suggestions to see what actually had happened. In this way I made the discovery that most of the stock tips that one receives casually are wrong. Even after disregarding information from irresponsible people and those who seemed unlikely to know what they were talking about, if I had bought ten shares of each stock I was advised to buy I would have lost heavily."

However, the Cosmopolitan writer finds another and brighter aspect to the record-breaking period of market activity which has extended over the past four years. The millions who have bought reliable stocks carefully, not for speculation but as investments, are making the little stockholder the most important factor in American big business. Within a few years the control of many great corporations has passed from the hands of a few capitalists to numerous small investors.

Little Investors Multiplying. The average stockholder of the New York Central railroad owns only 62 shares today," he points out. "As recently as the beginning of the European war the average holding was more than 100 shares. The average stockholder of the Pennsylvania railroad now owns 71 shares, while 15 years ago the average was 118 shares. More than half of the American Telegraph and Telephone company belongs to people who have less than 10 shares apiece. At least 75,000 stockholders are employees. And moreover, no one, not even the largest stockholder, has as much as 1 per cent of the stock of this company."

Sleeping Infant Holds Up Business of Court. San Francisco.—With all its dignity and authority, a Federal court bowed before the inalienable right of a baby to sleep, whenever and wherever the impulse is felt. The infant whose somnolence slowed down the busy wheels of the Federal court was Harry Perdeck, Jr., eight months old. Judge Lenderback called the case of Harry, Jr.'s mother, Mrs. Minnie Perdeck, subject of the queen of Holland, who wished to become a citizen of America. "It is wrong," said the court, "to disturb the peaceful sleep of a baby. We will pass this case until the child awakes."

Not until Harry, Jr., had emerged from his nap, without legal pressure, did the Federal court resume its business of making an American citizen of Mrs. Minnie Perdeck.

Large Families

Coalgate, N.Y.—Of the 210 families in this village, 121 mother more than seven children living and 39 have more than ten. This is all in accordance with tradition, since in the century following Napoleon's battle the hamlet more than doubled its population, jumping from 1,048 to 2,100.

Yellow Fever Peril

by No Means Ended

Contrary to popular belief, yellow fever has not been wiped from the face of the earth. Although it has been kept out of the United States and Europe, it is still a very great menace. Two main centers of the disease exist. One is in Africa, where Noguchi and two associates died recently of the disease in the course of their investigations on it, and the other is in South America. A flareup from either center is always possible, just as cholera and plague frequently spread to epidemic proportions from their centers in India.

Recent investigations point to a reservoir of yellow fever in certain monkeys of Africa, and public health officials believe that a similar animal or mosquito or even human reservoir exists in South America. These reservoirs consist of subjects that have been infected and recovered, but yet are capable of transmitting the disease to others.—Columbia (S. C.) Record.

Lucky Days

IN RUSSIA, when a man thinks the time has come to take a wife, he will put a turquoise ring into his pocket on Whitsunday and go into the Summer park (at Leningrad) determined to bestow this trinket on somebody before the day is over, but having no idea when he sets out who the lady will be.

A common saying runs: "Born on Monday, fair of face, Born on Tuesday, full of grace, Born on Wednesday, sour and sad, Born on Thursday, merry and glad, Born on Friday, worthily given, Born on Saturday, work hard for your living, Born on Sunday, you will never know want."

The Spaniards hold Friday to be a very unlucky day, and never undertake anything, consequently, on this day. The Finns think Monday and Friday are bad days in which to transact business.

To wear green on Friday is lucky. It was on Friday that Columbus discovered America. George Washington was born on that day, and the Pilgrim Fathers reached the Plymouth Rock on Friday.

Word and Letter Divination

DIVINATION by words or characters is of very ancient origin, being used by the Greeks and Romans. A boy or man would post himself in a doorway and when consulted he would cast dice on a tablet which contained a number of verses. The verse on which the dice fell would be the proper direction. This form of divination was derived from the Egyptians.

Among the ancients there was also a divination by opening some poems at hazard, and accepting the first passage that turned up as an answer. Even Socrates believed in this superstition.

A species of word divination was called clononamantia, the good or evil presage of certain words uttered without premeditation when persons came together in any way. It was a favorite method of word divination among the Pythagoreans; at Smyrna the oracles of Apollo were thus interpreted.

The Greeks often referred to misfortunes as being caused by the signification of proper names. Divination by the Bible and key is a form still practiced. A key is placed on the first page of the Gospel of St. John, taking care that the ring of the key is passed over the pages. The book is then closed and a cord attached to it. The person trying this form of divination places the index finger of his left hand in the ring, and pronounces the names of fifteen different places in which the treasure may be found. If the key moves on the finger that holds it, the omen is considered favorable and a search in the place indicated is made. (© 1928, Western Newspaper Union.)

Use of Sharkskin

The chief use of sharkskin in the industrial field is to take the place of leather. It is used for making shoes, pocketbooks, traveling bags and other leather accessories. Sharkskin is edible. The liver oil is sold and used for oil tanning of skins and in the manufacture of soap. The shark roe are a delicacy with the Chinese, as they seek them to make a glutin soup.

OLD FOLKS SAY DR. CALDWELL WAS RIGHT

The basis of treating sickness has not changed since Dr. Caldwell left Medical College in 1875, nor since he placed on the market the laxative prescription he had used in his practice.

He treated constipation, biliousness, headaches, mental depression, indigestion, sour stomach and other indispositions entirely by means of simple vegetable laxatives, herbs and roots. These are still the basis of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, a combination of senna and other mild herbs, with pepsin.

The simpler the remedy for constipation, the safer for the child and for you. And as you can get results in a mild and safe way by using Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, why take chances with strong drugs?

A bottle will last several months, and all can use it. It is pleasant to the taste, gentle in action, and free from narcotics. Elderly people find it ideal. All drug stores have the generous bottles, or write "Syrup Pepsin," Dept. D, Monticello, Illinois, for free trial bottle.

Learn From Mistakes

Learn from your mistakes, but do not cry over them. He who never makes a mistake never makes anything. The trouble with the man who never makes a mistake is that he does not know a mistake when he makes one. Wise men make mistakes; fools continue to make them.—Milwaukee Journal

DON'T suffer headaches, or any of those pains that Bayer Aspirin can end in a hurry! Physicians prescribe it, and approve its free use, for it does not affect the heart. Every drug-gist has it, but don't fail to ask the drug-gist for Bayer. And don't take any but the box that says Bayer, with the word genuine printed in red!

Aspirin is the trade mark of Bayer Manufacture of Monacopolis, Germany.

Poor Business

Col. E. H. R. Green, the capitalist who is about to build a superb flying field at his South Dartmouth country place, said at a luncheon that he recently gave to a group of young flying officers:

"The airplane is swift, but modern love is swifter. Modern love, if we are to believe all we hear, is born swiftly, and it dies as swiftly as it is born."

"The whole story of modern love—if we believe all we hear—might be summarized in three sentences: "You cherish a girl, I worship you." "You beautiful woman, I love you!" "Holy mackinaw, go get your face lifted!"

Let us honor truth by use.

Mr. Fred Pflugsten was a business visitor in Carrizozo last Saturday.

Mr. Edward Penfield has returned to Roswell where he will re-enter New Mexico Military Institute for his second year's work.

Miss Nellie Shaver visited with home folks in Carrizozo over the week-end.

Miss Julia Penfield, teacher in the Picacho schools, came up Friday evening to spend the week-end at home.

Rev. Henry, Presbyterian Missionary for the state, delivered an interesting talk to the Sunday school, Sunday morning and in the evening preached a good sermon. This is Rev. Henry's second visit to Lincoln and we trust he may return again.

At the first meeting of the P. T. A. last Thursday evening, much interest was manifested in school affairs for the coming year. There was a splendid attendance for the first meeting and we hope this will continue. Plans were started for a Rodeo and Fall Festival to be held about the last week in September. Watch for further announcement and plan to be with us. After a business session, Miss Kell being elected secretary of the Association, Dr. Woods gave an address of welcome to our teachers in his usual pleasing way. This was responded to by Miss Kell, Principal, whose talk started a regular round-table discussion, bringing out many matters of importance pertaining to the school. The President would like each meeting to prove as interesting and informal as this one.

We are, indeed, very proud of our school this year. The first week found twenty-one enrolled in High school, which made it necessary to call in a n o t h e r teacher, Miss Jewell Miller of Carrizozo, taking the place. So much interest is being shown by both teachers and students in the grades and High school that success must follow. The primary department, Miss Nellie Shaver in charge, has an enrollment of forty; Miss Nellie Pflugsten, teaching the intermediates has twenty-six, while the seventh and eighth have eighteen. Mr. Hubbard giving these two grades his attention along with his High School classes. Mr. Hubbard is also making plans for athletic training to start in the near future. Altogether we are pleased with the teachers, the students, the school board and the interest of the parents in co-operating with all these and feel sure our aims and ambitions will be realized.

STEEL ECLIPSE Windmill Starts sooner—pumps longer. Two windmills stood just across the road from each other. With the first sign of a breeze one started up smoothly and quietly. When the breeze became a wind, the other started with a groan and lumbered away only as long as the wind raised a dust in the road. Then it stopped abruptly as it had started, while the other continued turning for some time—then it finally came smoothly to rest with the last trace of the dying breeze. This is the difference between a superior windmill and just a windmill. It is the difference between a superior windmill and a common one. The superior windmill is actually pumping water during two-thirds of every revolution of the wind wheel. You will form a new idea of how good a windmill can be. City Garage, V. Reil, Prop.
