The County Teachers' Meet

The most successful meeting, perhaps, in the history of Lincoln county was last Friday and Saturday, when the Lincoln County Teachers' Association held forth in the High School Auditorium here. Not only was this evidenced by the number of teachers in attendance—which included almost the entire teaching force of the county—but by the presentation of a magnificent program which reflected credit upon the framers of the program and those performing the duties assigned.

It would be difficult to give a review of all that was said and done, nor shall we attempt it; but we have been favored with the County Superintendent's aid, whose succinct report of the program appears under School Notes elsewhere in this issue.

We shall, therefore, confine our report to two or three features, beginning with the declaration that every detail of this epochal meeting was carried out in an admirable and pleasing manner, and every attendant must have returned home with the firm conviction that the time was most profitably spent.

The banquet given by the organizations of the town, with Mrs. C. N. Lemmon as general chairman and Mrs. C. P. Huppertz as banquet chairman, took place in the Domestic Science Room. Never has it been our good fortune to attend a banquet where arrangements were so ideal, the service as perfect—so near perfection, in fact, that it had a machine-like precision; and, following a number of inviting courses—how many we don't hazard a guess—the impromptu responses to toasts were delightfully pleasing, wit and humor flying about as if uttered by seasoned veterans, and the band of teachers, representing the best thought in our every day life, rose to the occasion with a will.

Just one more thought and our little say about this splendid gathering will be concluded. Generally, it is not safe to single out an individual number on a program, but, in this instance, we are impelled to depart from the rule, and that is to make specific reference to Mrs. Thomason's response to the address of welcome. This is done not only because, as the County Superintendent says in her notes, it was clever—and it was—but because it came as an expression on the part of the teachers, and it quite ably and touchingly told its story. We failed to secure the text, but did procure a copy of the poem used at the conclusion of the address, and the song that followed, which is presented herewith:

Response To Carrizozo Town

Analogue galore to Edgar A. Guest and his "A Friend's Greeting"

We'd like to be the sort of friends that you have been to us, We'd like you every one to know we like—even Carrizozo dust, We'd like to make you like us better each minute of our stay For we like you, Carrizozo town, more and more each passing day.

We'd like to do the fine things, the splendid things, for you To make you glad you welcome us and plan the things you do.

We'd like to sing a kind of song that maybe you have heard That'll tell to you the appreciation your hospitality has stitted.

We'll try to give you back the joy you've planned on giving us, Yet that would be impossible since you are you—and we's 'at us!

We'd like to make you know that we who sojourn here a while

Will better grow and happier be for your glad and welcoming smile.

We're wishing you, our county seat, that we could but repay A portion of the gladness you're planning for our stay.

Highway Meeting

Roswell New Mexico.

April 8, 1929.

Carrizozo Chamber of Commerce, Carrizozo, New Mexico.

Gentlemen:

The meeting of the Carlsbad Cavern-Grand Canyon Highway Association has been called to meet at Carlsbad on Monday, May 6. There will be an early trip Monday morning to the Caverns escorted by Col. Tom Bolea, the government superintendent of the Caverns, and other citizens of Carlsbad. There will possibly be a short business session in the afternoon and after dinner that night any further business may be attended to.

We believe that this highway has great possibilities of bringing tourists to our towns along the route as it is possibly the most scenic 700 miles in the United States. Many of these points of interest are nationally known as the Grand Canyon, Painted Desert, Meteor Crater, Rainbow Petrified Forest, Datil National Forest, the lava beds (Malpais), Lincoln National Forest, the town of old Lincoln, Picacho Hill, Bottomless Lakes of Roswell, oil fields near Artesa, Lake Avalon and Lake McMillan, Carlsbad with its bathing beach and mineral springs, and Carlsbad Caverns. This gives one a variety of scenery that they are always glad to see on their way to and from points in Texas, New Mexico, Arizona and California.

We are hoping to have with us at this meeting the governor of New Mexico with his highway department and the governor of Arizona with a representation from the Arizona highway department as well as many people from both states who are interested in this highway.

We want to urge you to be present and bring your friends. Let us have a big meeting and put this over in a large way.

Yours very truly,

J. S. B. Woolford

Secretary.

So—could we have our wish today—this we would have you know—

We'd like to take your welcome home when it comes time to go.

AZALIA A. THOMASON.

SONG—"THANK YOU"

(Sing to tune "My Bonnie Lies Over the Ocean")

I

We're glad to come to your city,
We're glad to shop in your stores,
We're glad to hear the good speakers,
For we're from the country, you know.

CHORUS

We're glad, we're glad,
We're glad to come to your town—and you,
We're glad, we're glad,
And we're glad that you are glad, too.

II

We may not know all your rules,
We may not find every street,
We may not park just right,
But still we're hard to beat.

CHORUS

Yes, sir, — yes, sir,
You'll find we are hard to beat, to beat,
Yes, sir, — yes, sir,
You'll find we are hard to beat.

III

We thank you for all your kind words,
We thank you for all you have said,
We thank you for the welcome you give us,—
For program and banquet and bed.

CHORUS

Thank you, thank you,
We thank you most truly, we do, — we do,
Thank you, thank you,
We thank you, yes truly we do!

Ft. Stanton News

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Wilson, of the Indian Service, and Mrs. Wm. Hill, of Cedar Falls, Iowa, visited Sunday at the Cavanaugh home.

A. V. Rogers made a trip to Carrizozo Monday with two patients, Barico Flores and Amel Jensen who are applying for citizenship. Jensen created no little amusement when asked by the court who the representative of the 16th district was? His answer was, "Jimmie Cavanaugh's wife."

Well boy, howdy! Next time you are looking for local color, seeking a thrill or what have you, go to Capitan for the school election. After a very exciting day, Mr. Everett, of the State Highway Department, was elected by one vote. Two hundred and seventy votes were cast, exceeding the vote cast last fall for president.

The ball team is practicing every day. While we need a few more players, the boys look good. Little too much fat on some of the tummies yet; that will come off in the next few weeks. A game is scheduled for the 29th with the Institute. And the 82nd Field Artillery has asked for two games the 26th and 27th of April. Our ball club at Fort Stanton is not a profit-making concern. The players, secretary and manager donate their services. The money charged for uniforms and traveling expenses, when the team is away. It is conducted solely for the benefit of the patients.

Travis Werner is on leave for a few days.

Miss Mary Ferguson and Mrs. Sam Cox were two lovely visitors in our home Saturday evening.

We received a copy of the Yuma Morning Sun. Quite a lively newspaper. Noticed on the society page that Mrs. Della P. Cospser was the Society Editor. The page was charmingly written and we congratulate Mrs.

A PROGRAM FOR THE ### AID OF AGRICULTURE

Senator Charles L. McNary, of Oregon, chairman of the Committee on Agriculture of the Senate, has called the committee together, and it is now in session in Washington, holding hearings to, if possible, secure consensus of opinion of the leading minds of the country as to the proper form of proposed legislation for the relief of the farmers. Heads of agricultural organizations, leading dirt farmers, financial leaders, public officials will all be given an opportunity to express their views. J. P. Morgan; Owen D. Young; Secretary of the Treasury Mellon; Henry Ford; Chas. M. Schwab; Paul M. Warburg; Roy A. Young, chairman of the Federal Reserve Board; Earnest I. Lewis, chairman of the Interstate Commerce Commission; and William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, have been invited by Secretary McNary to attend the committee hearings and express their views. President Hoover declined to express himself at the present time as to the kind of legislation he favored, but promised the committee his assistance.

Senator McNary has expressed concrete ideas for a program for the aid of agriculture. In his opinion there must be a short time and a long time approach for the solution of the problems of agriculture.

Early relief, he states, may be obtained by the passage of a measure providing for the handling of surplus products, which will probably be the limit of direct legislation at this session of Congress. Such legislation, with proper effort to amend the tariff laws so as to make them more beneficial to the farmer, will suffice for the short time approach, or quick relief measure.

The long time approach is more complicated and far reaching, and in Senator McNary's opinion involves many issues, some of which must be solved by the farmers themselves, either individually or collectively. Others must be solved by the states, but the majority of the issues must in his opinion be solved by the national Government. These involve the broadening and strengthening of the research work of the U. S. Department of Agriculture; the pro-

MEXICANS MAKE DELICIOUS

CANDY FROM MILK AND SUGAR

In Mexico, a very delicious candy, called "leche quemada" or "burnt milk" is made of sugar and goat's milk, says L. H. Addington of the New Mexico Agricultural College. While goat's milk is usually used, the preliminary tests at the Experiment Station indicates cow's milk to be equally as satisfactory for making this candy.

Fresh, sweet milk is used, to which sugar is added, the amount of sugar being 25% of the weight of the milk, or approximately ½ pound of sugar to a quart of milk. The mixture is then boiled until it is of the consistency of syrup. If set to one side in shallow buttered containers for a few days, it will become very hard. This is the form usually made in Mexico.

The heating may be continued until enough water has been evaporated to give the mixture the consistency of bread dough. It will then be hard enough to retain its shape when cold. Hot caramelize sugar. During the latter part of the boiling the product sticks to the bottom of the container, and must be scraped loose. The combination of caramelizing and scorching gives the candy a delicious nutty flavor.

The greatest improvement in this product over that of most other candies is that on a dry weight basis, it contains approximately 9% of a very high quality protein and 2% ash, the ash being composed of minerals necessary for body growth.

vention of the creation or production of damaging surplus; reduction of production costs on the farm by the use of more efficient methods; reduction under the Clarke-McNary Act should be extended; domestic markets for farm products should be broadened, by expanding the industrial uses of agricultural products, and the substitution of domestic for imported raw materials, such as cotton for jute. This is along the line suggested in a bill recently introduced by Congressman DeLoach of Iowa; Foreign Markets must be enlarged and foreign competition regulated; waste in the marketing of farm products must be reduced to a minimum; the Federal Intermediate Credit System should be broadened to more adequately meet the credit needs of the farmers; insurance against crop losses and other hazards not now available should be provided, and last, but by no means least, the Senator points out that farm taxation must be given serious attention, and relief along this line must come through legislative action by the states.

Senator McNary and his committee approach the question of aid to agriculture in an aggressive manner that indicates a seriousness of purpose that will produce results.

WHY WE ARE CHEERFUL

By M. K. Thomson, Ph. D.

THE normal healthy person is usually cheerful. Cheerfulness is the rule rather than the exception. The optimistic attitude is like a gauge. It indicates that all is well. The opposite attitude shows that there is something wrong.

comparing difficulties and dangers are increased by maintaining a cheerful frame of mind.

It is because of this fact that we often pretend to be cheerful and optimistic when we are far from it. It helps us to keep up a good courage which is so essential to success.

We are also cheerful because we have discovered that it has a more favorable effect on others. No one wants to be associated with a grouch. "Laugh and the world laughs with you; weep and you weep alone." The world places a high premium on joy, laughter and cheerfulness. Those who make others laugh are extremely popular. They are welcome everywhere.

Cheerfulness is desirable not only as a means of getting what we want, but it is also desirable in its own right as an end in itself.

Pleasure and happiness which cannot exist without a cheerful disposition are a part of life and a very important part. We live for these experiences. When we have them we seek to retain them. When we haven't them we move earth and heaven to attain them.

"BY JINGO"

By Jean Newton

"BY JINGO" dates back several hundred years, being a contribution made to our language by Basque mountaineers who in the Thirteenth century were brought over to England by Edward the First to aid him in the subjugation of Wales.

The Basque provinces lie along northern Spain and southern France and their speech is said to be the sole survival of the ancient Iberian tongue.

In the language of these hillmen "Jainko," from which we have "by jingo," expressed the supreme deity.

Appropriated originally by the English soldiery the corruption took hold in popular speech and the phrase "by jingo" has survived to this day.

Sandman Story About Wart Hog

"I KNOW I'm the ugliest creature living," said the Wart Hog to Billie Brownie who had gone to the zoo to see his friend the wart hog.

The wart hog's name, as you remember, is Clarence.

"Well," said Billie Brownie, "it saves you the trouble of fussing about yourself all the time."

"Now I heard of a little girl and a grown-up lady," Billie Brownie continued. "The grown-up lady scolded the little girl for being very vain because she looked in the glass so much."

"But the little girl saw the lady often looking in the glass, too! Yes, the little girl had had these ways handed down to her from her mother. Both were very vain, though it is true both were very good looking."

"They knew there was something to see that was pretty if they looked in the glass, yet their expressions didn't amount to much so vain and conceited they were!

"Now you are never bothered that way."

"Never," said the Wart Hog, "it is true. I don't need a mirror. I don't want a mirror. In fact, I dislike a mirror."

"I'm aware of my own ugliness, and that is a good thing. Of course, I do not see how I could help but be aware of it."

"It's plain on the face of it and I mean that as a joke as well as the truth," added the Wart Hog. "I think it is often well to announce when a joke is a joke. Then one is sure to get a polite laugh or a smile at least, and one's own feelings aren't hurt, and the other creature doesn't feel as though he had made a mistake by not knowing whether to laugh or not."

"Yes, it's a good friendly thing to tell another when one makes a joke, or make what one thinks is a joke."

"Now I think it is quite nice for the Wart Hog to say it's plain on the face of it, for that is an expression and yet there is much truth when one speaks of his being plain on the face of the Wart Hog."

"Of course this isn't uproarious funny, but it is a nice little line deserving ing of a friendly smile from those who hear it."

Billie Brownie smiled.

"Ah," said the Wart Hog, "that was nice. Well, no one can deny my ugliness if they do doubt (and I wouldn't blame them) whether I've a sense of

WHAT DR. CALDWELL LEARNED IN 47 YEARS PRACTICE

A physician watched the results of constipation for 47 years, and believed that no matter how careful people are of their health, diet and exercise, constipation will occur from time to time. Of next importance, then, is how to treat it when it comes. Dr. Caldwell always was in favor of getting as close to nature as possible, hence his remedy for constipation, known as Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, is a mild vegetable compound. It can not harm the system and is not habit forming. Syrup Pepsin is pleasant-tasting, and youngsters love it.

Dr. Caldwell did not approve of drastic physic and purgatives. He did not believe they were good for anybody's system. In a practice of 47 years he never saw any reason for their use when Syrup Pepsin will empty the bowels just as promptly.

Do not let a day go-by without a bowel movement. Do not sit and hope, but go to the nearest drugstore and get one of the generous bottles of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, or write "Syrup Pepsin," Dept. 123, Monticello, Illinois, for free trial bottle.

The World Is Full of Miracles

By F. A. WALKER

A READER writes the following: "I note that in giving us something to think about, you frequently refer to the Bible. I am an earnest student of the scriptures, but there is one part of them that I cannot understand and that is the miracles. I wish you would write an article about them."

The reality of the miracles has always been the first thing attacked by those who were unbelievers in the Christian religion.

Voltaire, although before he died he erected a church which bore the inscription: "Deo erexit—Voltaire." ("Voltaire erected this to God"), was an unbeliever and of the miracles, he said: "A miracle is a suspension of the laws of nature; such a thing never did and never can take place."

Let us suppose that in the interior of Africa there lived a man who never having seen ice knew nothing of its character or properties.

Another native who had traveled to a cold climate saw men and even horses shod by the surface of a river.

Would not the first man receive the story of what his companion had seen with utter unbelief?

Would he not say, "What you tell me cannot be true because they would sink as soon as they stepped on the water? To remain on the surface would be a suspension of the laws of nature and so cannot be true."

The Bishop of Ripon, in a sermon preached during the war and listened to by at least one American soldier, said: "A miracle is not arbitrary in nature, but contrary to our conception of nature."

Two thousand years before the Christian era Sanscrit history tells of the miracles of Meen and later of Krishna, and the religious literature of India, by far the most voluminous of all religious writings, gives thousands of incidents of "supernatural" happenings.

For nearly three centuries after the death of Christ the historians of that period have written down the accounts of miracles. Tacitus and Suetonius recite them and even the raising of the dead is recorded as having resulted from the application of religious truths.

If this be so—if miracles result from the application of truth—then they are as possible in the Twentieth century as in the first.

Certain it is that there has never been a great religion from the time of Brahma and his "Institutes" down to the present which has not had its record of miracles—which is a better translation of the Greek original than "miracle." And profane as well as sacred writings have lent their support to the recordings.

But why let the question of the authenticity of the healing of the lepers or the curing of the blind or even the resurrection of the dead interfere with the acceptance of the idea of an all-knowing, all-powerful and all-loving Creator?

Are not the springing grass, the bursting flower, the beauty of nature and the wonders of the human body and intelligence such a marvel, a miracle, past all explanation and human comprehension?

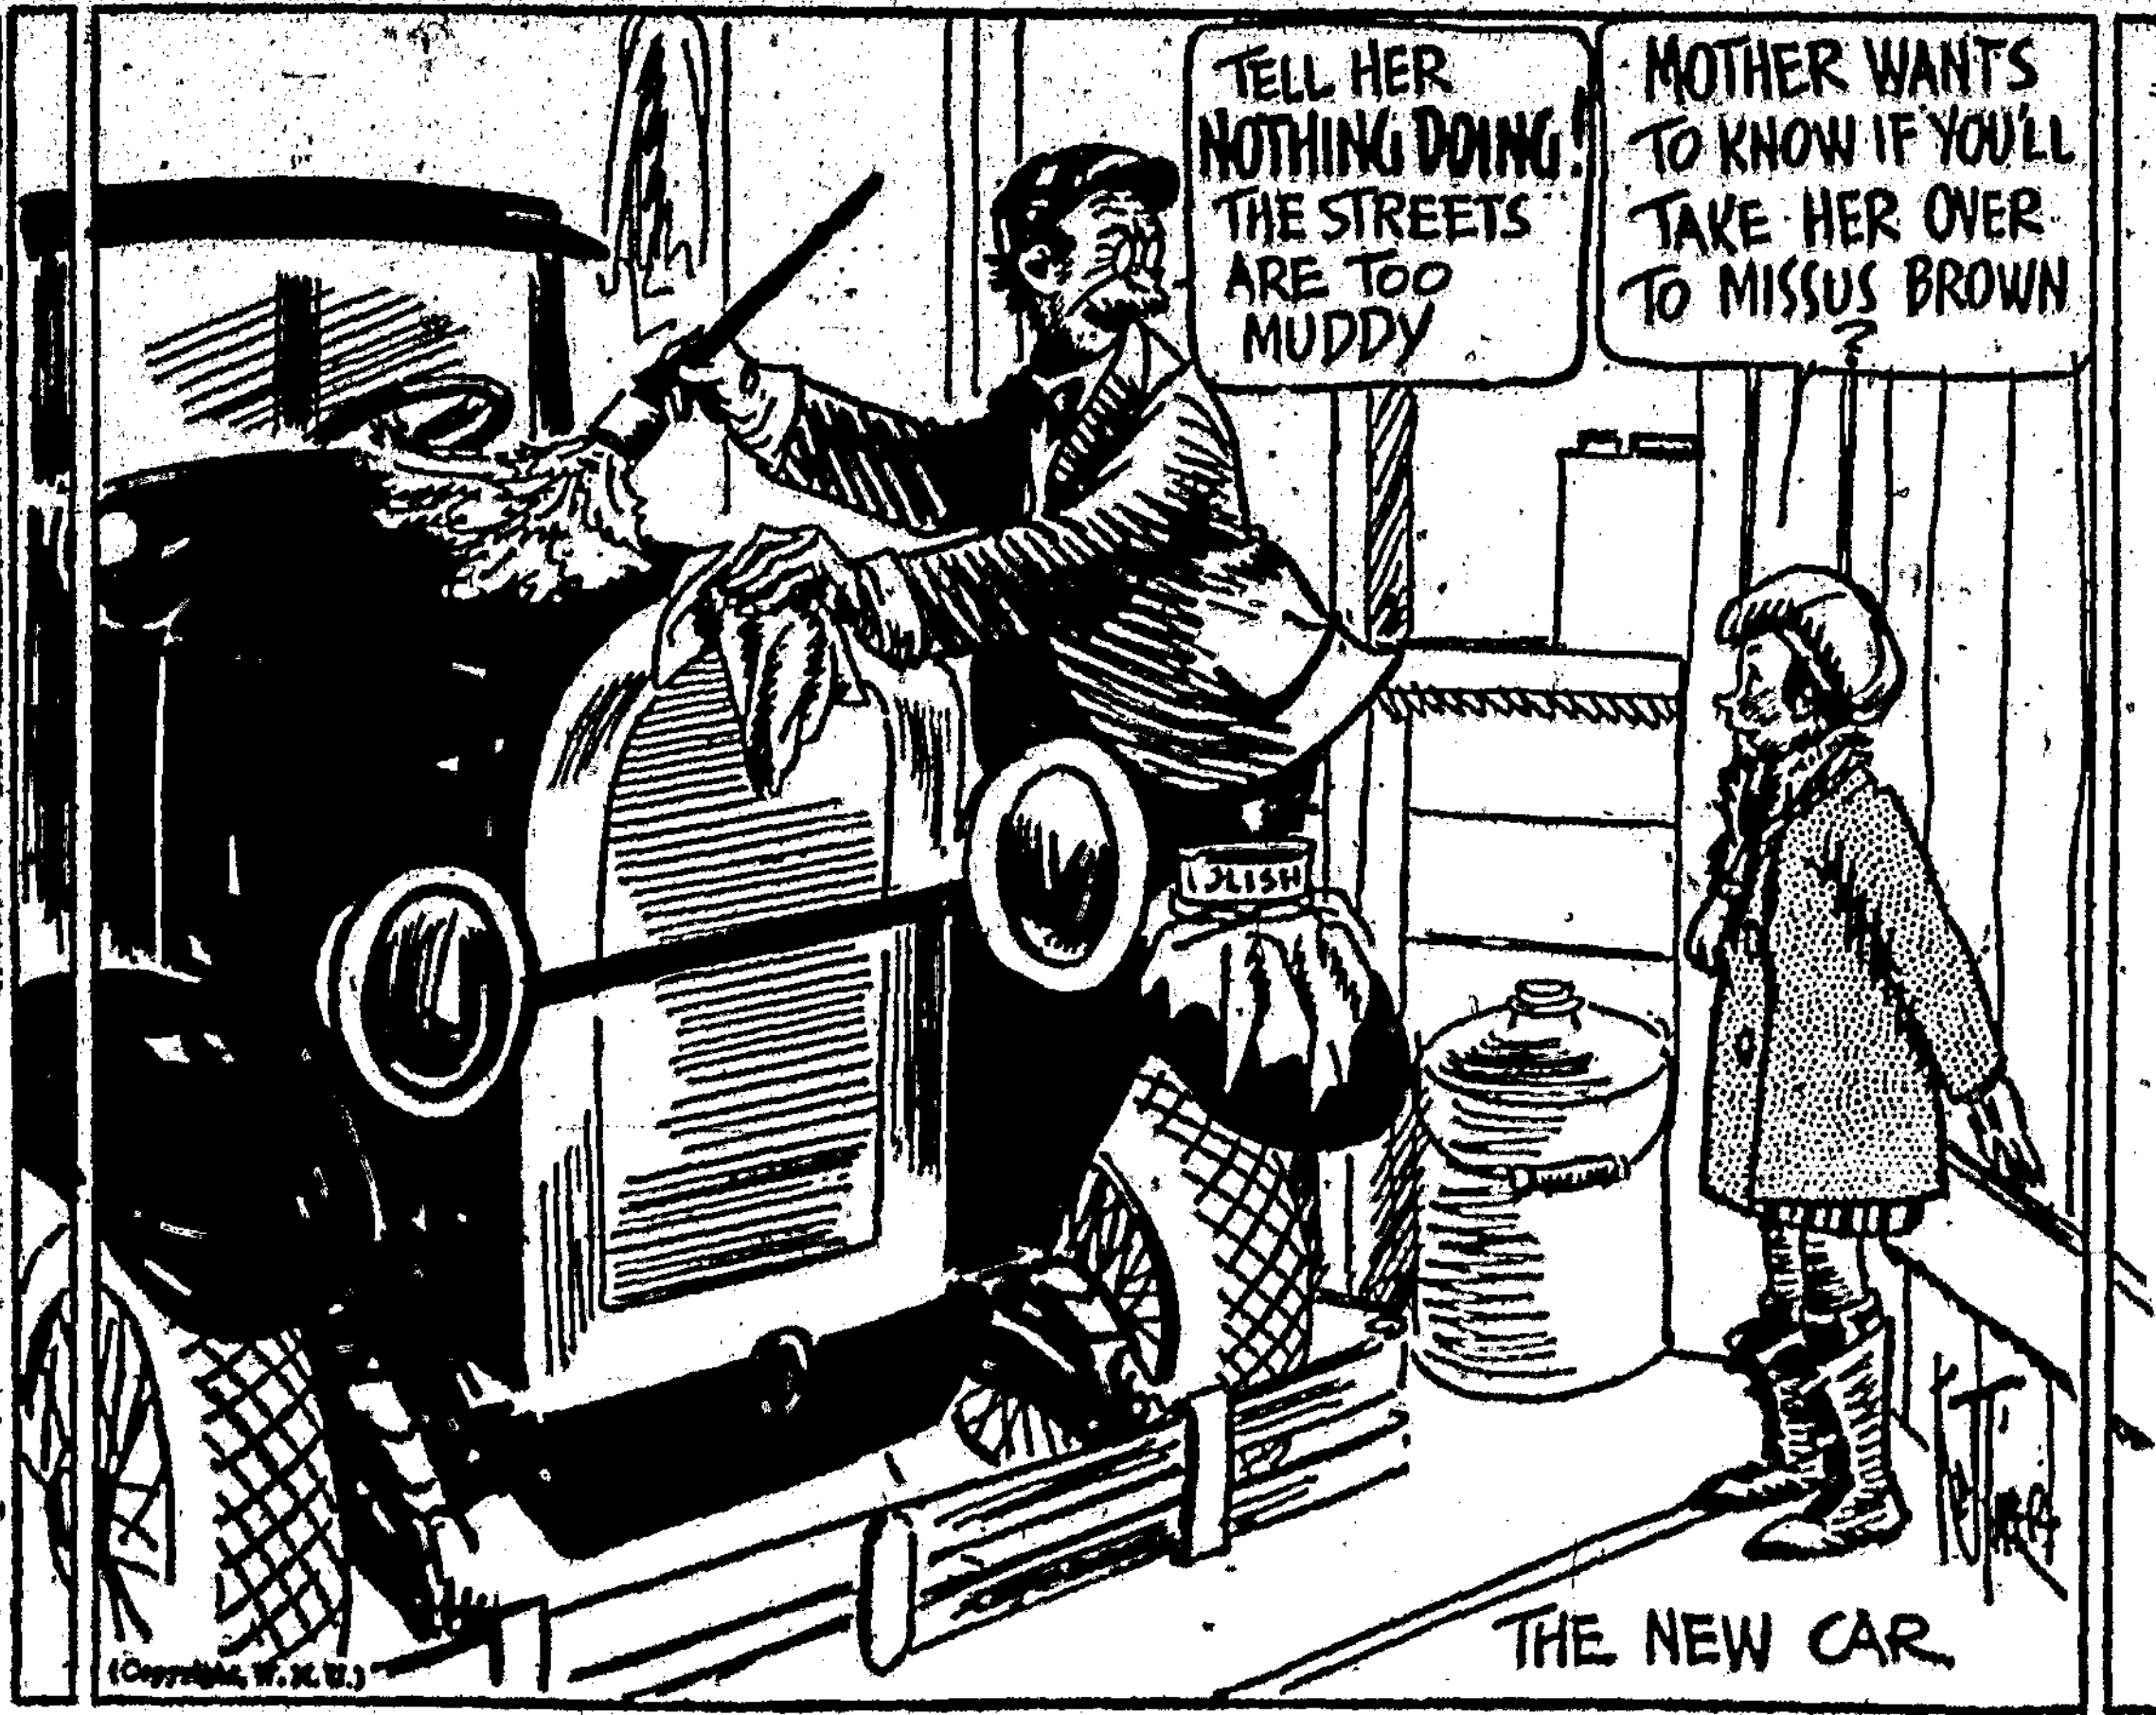

Every sunrise and every star-lit sky is a wonder a thousand times greater than all the miracles ever written down.

"The world," said Martin Luther, "is full of miracles." Few of them we understand, all of them we accept. Why quarrel or question that all things are possible to the Creator? (By McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

What the Yellow Light Meant

IT WAS in the days when a peep-show was among the attractions of every village fair in England. Standing beside the entrance, the showman was reciting his usual speech explaining the picture being shown within.

Among the spectators, all with eyes glued to the tiny apertures outside, was a small and inquisitive boy. "You now see before you," announced the showman in loud and impressive tones, "a picture of the great London Express. This marvelous train makes the phenomenal run from terminal to terminal in only three and a quarter hours. This record-breaking run is made with only one brief stop for the taking on of water. The great train then proceeds on her way without further interruption until her destination is reached. In the picture, if you will look closely, you will see a red light. This red light is a warning light, signifying possible danger. If the red light is seen this swift train must slow down to ascertain the peril."

The small boy's voice interrupted: "But, Mister, what is the yellow light?" It piped.

The entertainer looked at him severely. "There is no yellow light in the picture. There is, as I said, a red light—the danger signal warning the train to stop until the tracks are clear. She will then proceed with her phenomenal run and in exactly three and a half hours will reach her destination."

Once more the plaintive voice of the youngster broke into his recital:

"But I don't see what the yellow light is for!"

The showman fixed him with a glare. "I have already stated that no yellow light is shown in this picture. I have explained that the danger signal, the red light, is placed there to prevent any accident to this magnificent fast train in her phenomenal run."

"But I don't understand yet about the yellow light," piped the small voice, seemingly almost in tears.

The showman was exasperated almost beyond words.

"Will some one remove this boy?" he demanded. "I have repeated that no yellow light appears in the picture. The small boy was protestingly removed and the showman petulantly placed his own eye at the aperture whence the diminutive patron had been forcibly removed."

Only for a second did he gaze through the peep-hole. Then, in a terrific voice he shouted wildly:

"My God—the show's on fire!"

The Untrustworthy Britisher
TODAY'S offering has been doing a yeoman service for years now, but I claim its very popularity attests its intrinsic worth.

An Irishman stranded at Southampton, applied for a job on a ship bound for American ports, hoping to work his passage back to New York where he lived. The skipper agreed to sign him on—provided he could produce a written recommendation testifying to his honesty and good character. The applicant hunted up an obliging boarding-house keeper, who wrote the required paper for him, and, on the strength of this he temporarily was enrolled as one of the ship's company.

Just as the craft was preparing to sail a Britisher presented himself before the master asking for a place to the crew. As the ship was short-handed and time-pressed, this man was accepted without the formality which had marked the employing of the first green hand.

Two days out from port the Irishman and the Englishman were scrubbing decks, each equipped with a pail and a swab. There was a head sea on. Suddenly a big tumber broke over the bow. The drenched Irishman was tumbled about and slammed against a rail, still clinging, however, to his broom and bucket, but his fellow worker tared worse. He was carried overboard and vanished instantly. Dripping, the survivor made his way to the bridge where the skipper stood.

"Captain! Say, captain!" he called up.

"What is it?"

"You remember that d—n Britisher you took on without any references? Well, he's gone off and took one of your buckets with him."

Elizabeth Palmer Peabody, an American educator, was born at Haverhill, Mass., in 1804. She was for a time connected with the school of Amos Bronson Alcott, in Boston, of which she wrote an account entitled "A Record of Mr. Alcott's School," but later she came under the influence of Friedrich Froebel and was one of the most active in introducing the kindergarten system into the United States. The educator died in 1894.

NICE WORDS WON'T DYE a dress or coat...

Neither pretty pictures nor colorful adjectives will dye a dress or coat. It takes real dyes to do the work; dyes made from true anilines.

Next time you have dyes to do, try Diamond Dyes. See how easy it is to use them. Then compare the results. Your dealer will refund your money if you don't agree they are better dyes.

You get none of that re-dyed look from Diamond Dyes; no streaking or spotting. Just fresh, crisp, bright new color. And watch the way they keep their brilliance through wear and washing. Philippine Coinage
Money coined for the Philippine Islands first arrived in the Philippines from the Philadelphia and San Francisco mints in June, 1903, and was first placed in circulation in July, 1903. This was done in accordance with the provisions of a tentative law passed in 1902. On June 23, 1900, an act was passed to establish the standard of value and to provide for a coinage system in the Philippine Islands. From that time on the San Francisco mint, when requested to do so, has coined money for the Philippines. For the past few years the United States has not struck coins for the Philippines. The old dies are still in use.

Martian Transformer

A Brazilian inventor recently announced that he has perfected a device to make walking swifter and less tiresome. This apparatus, which he calls a Martian transformer, weighs about two pounds and is attached to the back. It is supposed to energize the nervous system, so that one may hike long distances over high mountains with a small expenditure of bodily energy. With a similar device weighing about 33 pounds, the inventor claims that one may take off in aerial flight like a bird. As yet, however, no practical demonstrations have been given.

NEW TOBACCO BILL PASSED BY SPECIAL LEGISLATURE

The special session of the legislature did not pass very much new legislation aside from correcting the highway department docketing bill and passing a new appropriation bill. However, a new tobacco tax bill was passed, known as No. 9. An attempt was made by Will D. Bryner, Otero county, to kill the bill, so that the former bill would remain on the statute books and the people would have a chance, probably to vote on the bill at a referendum. He failed and the bill was passed 32 to 15.

NEARLY HALF MILLION CUT IN NEW APPROPRIATION BILL

Santa Fe, April 8.—The general appropriations bill was in the hands of the enrolling and engrossing forces tonight and will be signed tomorrow. The bill as finally passed totaled $1,009,999 for the eighteenth fiscal year, unofficially, and $2,254,108 for the 19th fiscal year.

While the figures represent a slashing of better than $400,000 from the appropriations of the regular session which was pocket-voted by the governor, it gave nearly all educational institutions increases and in most of the departments some raises over their appropriations for the present biennium.

The greatest cut for any department or institution was that of the University, which was cut $24,000 for the 19th fiscal year. The cut actually totaled $74,500, but included in that figure was $29,000 annually for a dining hall which the legislature lumped as $40,000 and carried over to the 19th year, and $20,000 to start an engineering building which the legislature placed on the 19th year only.

The senate this afternoon passed and sent to the house of representatives a measure cutting the state's appropriation for predatory animals to $50,000 annually, and providing that $20,000 annually shall be taken from the game and fish funds.

That move made $120,000 annually with the legislature saved in appropriations by offsetting funds. The other saving was of $100,000 annually when the state highway department took over payment of the interest on the 1921 highway bonds.

The governor gave up his automobile appropriation, the board of finance took a $2,500 cut, traveling expenses in all departments and institutions suffered slashes, the biggest slice on traveling expenses came when the university's request for $5,000 was cut to $250, and $2,400 was lopped off of the department of education's traveling figure.

Other losses included reductions on salary on new posts authorized by the ninth legislature, the state corporation commission lost an additional clerk, N. M. A. & M. got $5,000 for purchase of livestock instead of $10,000, experimentation in the Middle Rio Grande conservancy project was cut from $10,000 to $5,000, and demonstration work in Curry county was cut from $1,000 to $500. N. M. Normal got $5,000 instead of $10,000 for completion of Hildred auditorium and the schools paying cut was $1,000.

In one chunk the legislature knocked off $210,000 for the 19th year, when it put building appropriations over to the 19th year. The building lineup, as finally drawn for the 19th fiscal year follows: U. of N. M., $40,000 for dining hall, $30,000 for engineering building; N. M. M. I., $20,000; Portilla Normal, $22,500; School for Blind, $50,000. The $7,500 for a building for New Mexico's Girls Welfare home and $7,500 for a fire-proof building for the museum were not allowed.

The disabled soldiers' relief commission was trimmed heavily when the legislature eliminated a $1,000 item for clerical help and cut the contingent and traveling expenses from $1,000 to $500. The item of $2,400 for a salary for service officer was retained intact.

Transportation of prisoners was cut $1,000; $7,500 was saved with elimination of the New Mexico-Colo. boundary commission, $1,500 was saved by eliminating a catalogue for the state library extension service.

NATIONAL EGG WEEK

State College, New Mexico. — The week of May 1 to 7 inclusive has been set aside by the National Poultry Council as National Egg Week for 1929.

America's poultry industry has in the past quarter of a century attained a position of great economic importance in our field of human food production. The products of our American hens yearly exceed in value one and a quarter million dollars and it is our sixth most important agricultural industry. American people are taking a greater interest in the raising of poultry and the consumption of egg and poultry meat than ever before. Eggs are now recognized as one of the most healthful, wholesome and necessary parts of the daily diet.

Under the provisions of the proclamation made by the National Poultry Council, National Egg Week will be a period set aside to acquaint the consuming public with the peculiar and valuable protective properties possessed by eggs as human food. It will be a period in which special emphasis

PICTURESQUE INDIAN OF WAPATH DAYS IS DEAD AT MESCALERO

By Leonard B. Radtke, in Roswell Dispatch.

Mescalero, N. M., March 20.—Death Thursday, March 23, removed from this community one of a fast disappearing type, when it took Pego, an aged Indian patriarch of the Apaches, whose varied career included the warpath with its paint and feathers, and also financial success in the peaceful pursuit of sheep raising.

The agency records show Pego to have been born in 1845, a time when the southwest was still under the sway of Mexico. He was born near Mescalero and lived in this vicinity his entire life.

In his early days he frequently accompanied bands of Apaches to Mexico on raiding expeditions. About a year before his death, Pego related to some of the agency employees, how he took part in the fight at Round Mountain, seven miles below Mescalero, when Sergeant Glass and four troopers of the Third U. S. Cavalry augmented by a body of Tularosa volunteers, shot it out with the Apaches on April 17, 1868.

When Geronimo took the warpath in 1875, Pego, like so many other Mescalero Apaches, enlisted as a scout in the U. S. Army. He served throughout the campaign, and at his discharge held the rank of chief of the scouts. At the time of death he was drawing a federal pension for his service.

After the close of the Geronimo campaign, Pego returned to Mescalero and entered the Indian police, and rose to the head of the organization. He also served as a judge on one of the Indian courts which were prevalent at Mescalero some twenty years ago.

Pego was one of the most successful sheep men on the reservation and at one time his herd numbered about 2,000 head, but these he cut down as he grew older so that his herd numbered about 500 at his death. The Apaches seemed to have great confidence in Pego's ability to help them in their dealings with the government, and about 20 years ago, sent him at the head of a delegation to Washington to see the White Father regarding conditions among their people. Also on this occasion, the tribe requested Pego to urge the White Father not to make Mescalero into a national park. When America entered the World War, Pego realized that he was too old for military service, but desiring to be of service, he persuaded his Apache friends to buy Liberty Bonds. He personally purchased $2,500 worth. Pego was buried by Father Braun, the Franciscan missionary at Mescalero, Friday morning with the rites of the Catholic church, he having forsaken the primitive beliefs of his ancestors in 1913 when Father Weber, the well known missionary who labored many years among the Navajos, offered him baptism. In addition to his widow, Pego is mourned by seven children all of whom are living on the Mescalero reservation.

NEW DIGESTANT FOUND IN SAP OF THE PAPAYA

Miami, Fla.—Dr. J. Peterson, well-known Miami horticulturist, who has been experimenting with tropical plants for the past 15 years, contemporary with other scientists of tropical research, has just disclosed a vast store of knowledge on the papaya as a remedy for stomach troubles.

Through experimentation it has been found that papain, the white milky sap of the papaya, has the same effect upon the stomach as does pepsin, but with greater efficiency and quicker results. Tests have revealed that a drop of dry papain will dissolve a square inch piece of steak in two minutes.

The discovery of papaya was synchronous with the discovery of Central America, its native soil, hundreds of years ago. Coast pirates used it for food, but upon the annihilation of the pirates the papaya was forgotten.

Forty years ago it was rediscovered and during the last few years has made great strides in the health food markets. Today its demand is so great in local sections that little of it has been shipped North. It can be prepared in so many ways that such preparation will have a distinct taste like cherry, peach, apple, plum or rhubarb pie. Likewise it is made into jellies, candy, salads, fruit cocktails and preserves.

AERIAL PHOTOGRAPHIC SURVEYS IN SOUTHEASTERN ALASKA

Washington, March 29.—The latest thing, but he advent of the air-planes has made it possible to get pictures of large tracts of country. Various departments of the Government, as well as private concerns, have utilized this new means. The Alaskan Aerial Survey Expedition was organized by the Navy Department, and in 1925 successfully photographed about 10,000 square miles in southeastern Alaska.

An account of this project and of the methods by which the photographs are being worked up into maps is given in a report recently issued by the Geological Survey, as bulletin 797E. The bulletin is accompanied by a map showing the lines of flight and the numbers of the different photographs on each flight. Mapping is on a scale of about 4 miles to the inch. Reliefs are shown, but all the streams, lakes, and other water areas are represented. It is the purpose of the Geological Survey to complete the topographic mapping of the area covered by this map as rapidly as practicable, and during the field season of 1928 a topographer mapped about 1,000 square miles in this area.

It can be said upon more efficient and effective methods of producing and marketing eggs.

Prof. L. N. Berry of the New Mexico Agricultural College has been appointed State Chairman for New Mexico. Anyone who would be interested in helping to develop and promote the appropriate observances of National Egg Week can obtain suggestions and assistance by writing Prof. Berry at State College, New Mexico.

REP. SUMMERS PUSHES TWO FARM AID BILLS

Washington, April 6.—Members of Congress, with an economic cast of mind, have long since come to the conclusion that farm relief for all producers can not be secured through one single piece of legislation.

Among the early advocates of this plan is Representative John W. Summers, from the Fourth District of Washington, who will press for passage during the special session two bills which he introduced during the Seventieth Congress.

Mr. Summers' bill, "To suppress unfair and fraudulent practices in the market of perishable agricultural commodities in interstate and foreign commerce," it is believed, will correct the most flagrant trade abuses in a two-billion-dollar industry. This bill has the approval of the Department of Agriculture and is backed by producers and shippers throughout the country.

Representative Summers also believes an adjustment of freight rates is imperative in working out legislation that will be beneficial to farmers generally. He will, therefore, insist on a modification of the Interstate Commerce Act as proposed in his bill introduced in the last session. The purpose of this bill is to authorize the Commission to delegate authority to competent personnel to render decisions in thousands of minor cases. This would enable the Commission to speed up decisions in freight controversies affecting large sections of the country where hearings were held from one to three years ago and where no decision is yet reached.

"Time," says Congressman Summers, "is a chief factor in relief. Reduced freight rates after the farm has been sold by the sheriff avail nothing."

AMERICANS TAKE BIG RISK IN ENLISTING IN MEXICAN REBEL ARMY

American citizens who are enlisting in the forces of the Mexican rebels should bear in mind the fact that by so doing they assume the status of Mexican insurrectionists and are subject to the death penalty just as any Mexican rebel. This warning was given orally by the Secretary of State Henry L. Stimson, on April 3.

Secretary Stimson said that while he had received no official reports on the enlistment of American citizens he had read in the newspapers that many were so enlisting.

Motor Vehicle Accidents Increase During 1928

Santa Fe, April 2.—Motor vehicle accidents are increasing each year in spite of new safety measures in highway construction and the nation wide educational campaign which is being carried on, a bulletin released today from the highway offices states.

There were approximately 28,500 people killed in the United States last year which shows an increase of 7 per cent over the previous year, the bulletin says. If a similar increase is noted this year it will mean over 30,000 persons will be killed in 1929.

The highest rate of increase is noted in Montana with a percentage of gain of 85.33 per cent. New Mexico shows an increase of 26.32 per cent, 57 deaths being reported in 1927 and 72 in 1928.

"Accidents are preventable," reiterates the highway bulletin. "Until the motorist inspects his car periodically and drives with constant attention on the road ahead and the operation of his car, we will probably show an annual increase. The real tragedy of it all is that practically all accidents are a foolish waste of life and property."

"The highway department plans to erect several thousand more warning signs this year," the bulletin continues, "also to continue the work of flattening curvature and super-elevating the curve itself. The nail picker's activities will be continued and maintenance made as rigidly as possible. If any new angle of building safety into the road is discovered it will be adopted. The work of grade crossing elimination will be carried on in a greater degree than before with the enactment of the new law for making the railroads' share of such elimination greater. Now if the motorist will only cooperate by endeavoring to protect themselves by care in driving and constant car inspection New Mexico may show a decrease in fatalities for 1929."

Jerry Kelley Dies

Jerry Kelley died at his home in Riverside, California, Wednesday of this week, after a very brief illness, according to a wire his brother T. E. Kelley received. Neither the wire nor a subsequent letter gave the exact cause of death, the physicians' diagnosis not defining the cause. The deceased was ill only a day or two. The funeral took place yesterday at 2:30 p. m.

Jerry, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ed R. Kelley, was born in Johnson County, Texas, in 1874; came with the family to New Mexico in 1887, and to Lincoln county in 1907. During his residence here he was associated with his father and brother, T. E. Kelley, in the furniture and hardware business, and went to California some fifteen years ago. He leaves a wife, father and mother, four sisters and two brothers, T. E. Kelley being the only member of the family now living here. A large number of friends were shocked to hear of Mr. Kelley's death and deeply sympathize with the surviving members of the family.

Aged Woman Dies

Mrs. Thurza E. Buxton died at Capitan Wednesday at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Chloe May Fisher. Funeral services are to be held this afternoon in the church at Capitan, and interment will be made in the cemetery at Angus. Mrs. Buxton had been an invalid for a number of years, and the past two, since suffering a stroke of paralysis, she has been entirely helpless.

Born November 26, 1843, at Troy, New York, she had passed the four score and five mark at the time of death. She was the daughter of Jonathan E. and Chloe Gillett-Hoadley, and was married in 1861 to Stephen L. Buxton, who preceded her to the grave more than twenty years ago. She was the mother of six children, two sons and four daughters, two of the latter living in Lincoln county—Mrs. H. S. Comrey, Aucho, and Mrs. Fisher, Capitan, with whom the aged mother made her home. S. E. Greisen, county clerk is a grandson of Mrs. Buxton.

Mrs. Buxton was a devout member of the Methodist church and lived her long life faithful to its tenets.

Schell Bros. Trained Wild Animal Shows

The old and well known Schell Bros. Trained Wild Animal Shows will exhibit at Carrizozo on Thursday, April 18th.

The billboard, barns and dead walls are announcing with pictorial art, the coming occasion; about the time the milkman makes his rounds on the morning of April 18, the first of the big red cars will be pulled into town. Schell Bros. Shows will be bigger this year than ever. European agents have sacked the old world of novelties, the question of salary was not considered. New acts and faces will disprove the fallacy that "all shows are alike."

Foremost among the features is Capt. Alfreds and his big $50,000 group of black-maned African junglebred lions. This act must be seen to be appreciated, it is sensational to the utmost. "Cheerful" Edward Ortez, the animal trainer and his troupe of elephants, Miss Vela Engesser and her balloon lion. This lion ascends to the apex of the big canvas top, with his beautiful young trainer and is lowered to the ground amidst a flurry of fireworks and skyrockets. Schell Bros.' trained animals form the feature of the show. In an imposing steel arena will be seen lions, tigers, leopards, bears and other wild beasts, broken to perform marvelous feats.

Scores of aerial, gymnastic and acrobatic acts help to make up the two hour program of Schell Bros. Show, also an innovation is being presented this year in the way of a novel dancing exhibit, participated in by a number of perfectly formed young women. Madam LaDuc's "The Nymphs of the Statutes" the act beautiful has roused unprecedented enthusiasm. The Schell Bros have left nothing undone in their efforts to present the finest show in the world. Nothing finer has ever been shown than this glittering pageant of unsurpassed grandeur. The gilded chariots, the satin robes of the riders. This is the show to which you will take your wife, your mother or your sweetheart; this is the show that gives what it advertises—the show that pleases.

SERVICE EXTENSIONS AT LESS COST

Rural Sections and Urban Subscribers Both Benefit

Continuing its aim to provide the most telephone service and the best, at the least cost to the public, this company recently announced an increase in the amount allowed for the extension of telephone service to subscribers located in sparsely settled sections and for the installation of private branch exchange systems most commonly provided for larger telephone users in cities and towns.

Previously, this company in furnishing service to outlying subscribers had paid at least $35.00 of the cost of construction for extending a new line from an isolated ranch or farm to the nearest existing telephone pole line. Under the new practice now effective, the company will pay $75.00 and in some cases more, when conditions warrant. This is simply another affirmation of this company's continuing effort to provide a service that will enable anyone anywhere to talk by telephone with anyone else anywhere else.

In connection with the installation of private branch exchange equipment, employed by large telephone users, this company's former allowance to the subscriber was $5.00 for each telephone connected. This limitation has now been removed entirely and these types of private branch exchange systems will be provided without payment of any installation charges.

The new practices, therefore, will benefit new subscribers in remote sections and also subscribers in cities and towns.

THE STORY

Hilton Hanby, prosperous New York merchant, has purchased a country place—the Gray house, near Pine Plains, Miss Heleno, a former tenant of the Gray house, calls at his office and warns him that the house is under a curse. Further alarming details are impressed upon Adolf Smucker, Hanby's secretary, by a man who claims to have been chauffeur for Sir Stanford Seymour, former occupant of the place. The Hanbys laugh off the warnings they have received both from Miss Heleno and from Smucker's acquaintance, as some form of practical joke.

CHAPTER II—Continued

"Who are you, to butt in like that?" she demanded finally.

Hanby came into the room, and she backed out.

"Forgot all about you, Smucker," Hanby admitted. "It was a birthday party. What is it?"

"I wish to see Mrs. Hanby, too," Smucker returned. "It's a matter of life and death."

Hanby saw that the fellow had been drinking, and that the unaccustomed stimulant had let down some of Smucker's barriers of restraint. He had always known that his employee disapproved of him, but he was unprepared for the hate that glared from the red-rimmed eyes. It came as something of a shock.

"Mrs. Hanby is busy," he said. "Also I don't propose to inflict any business troubles on her. I may say that you behaved in very questionable taste in shouting what you did just now. It's none of your business whether I have a few people in to dinner, is it?"

"A matter of life and death," Smucker went on. "I am wasting my time, alarming my own wife, and spending car fare, all for your benefit, and you insult me. I might have expected it!"

"It's nothing to do with office business, then?"

"A matter of life and death. Mrs. Hanby must hear it, too." Hanby paused a moment.

"All right! I'll send for her." Dina Hanby had long ago known that in Smucker her husband employed a disaffected and unpleasant sort of man. She bowed coldly to the intruder, who found in her fresh fuel for his wrath. He saw a lovely woman of forty, who looked no more than thirty. He hated her for that. Mrs. Smucker was not dowered with beauty. He saw a splendidly dressed woman who held herself regally. He considered that at forty a woman should be plump, and not concerned about dress or complexion. First of all she should be a good cook.

Mrs. Hanby outraged his sense of feminine proportion. She was slender and graceful. Once, in the office, when the light had been poor, he had mistaken her for Celia.

"I am the death's head at the feast," he said pompously. "You have been imagining yourself the mistress of a great mansion. It is a house of death and disaster!"

"Oh, Bill!" she cried. "What does he mean?"

What the red-faced man had told him an hour or so earlier, Smucker now wove into an intensely dramatic narrative. Mrs. Hanby, listening eagerly, learned that the house in which she and her children were to live had, since its erection more than a hundred years before, been the tomb of all young people who inhabited it. There was a supernatural strain in her, and Smucker could see that she grew uneasy. It irritated him to see Hanby immune from fear.

"Is this true?" she asked her husband.

It relieved her to see him wholly unaffected by the dread that gripped her. She did not understand why he was concerned mainly with getting an accurate description of Mr. Seymour's chauffeur.

is coming when we intellectuals will reign!" He looked through the window, which showed the Hudson. "What do you see there?"

"The river, I suppose," said Mrs. Hanby, puzzled.

"It will be a river of blood some day, from Albany to the sea. It will be reddened with the blood of corrupt politicians, of the officer caste trained at West Point to enslave us. It will be red with the blood of New York capitalists. His blood, your husband's blood—"

Dina Hanby looked at him with flashing eyes. Why did this vindictive live little creature hate a man who had kept him on year after year simply through pity?

"Be quiet," she said, "you disgust me!"

She turned from him, and met her husband coming in.

"The taxi's coming," he said. "Let me know tomorrow to what expense you've been put. Good night!"

When Smucker had gone, Dina put her hands on her husband's shoulders.

"Dear," she said, "you've always been very good to me. You've given me everything that I wanted and much more than I deserved. I want to ask a favor."

"It is granted," he replied; "even unto the half of my lands and forests, my lakes and lordly manor houses, and the small change I have in my pocket."

"Get rid of that man the first thing tomorrow. He is evil, and hates you."

"All right, Salome," said Hanby. "His head will be on a charger for its stay time you care to call for it after ten o'clock tomorrow morning."

As she went back to her guests, she asked him why he laughed at Smucker's story.

"Because Reggie Brophy and Bill Pelham have put up a joke on me. Reggie is mad as a horse because this cuts out our Wednesday and Sunday foursome. Pelham said he'd prevent the from going there by book or crook. If that wasn't Reggie feeding old Smucker with that haunted house stuff, I'll drink the lake dry!"

"It might be Reggie," she admitted. "It would be just like him. What about Bill Pelham?"

taker at the Gray house has been murdered?"

Hilton Hanby came back to his guests after ten minutes at the telephone.

"A very unfortunate thing," he told them. "A man named Kerr, whom I engaged through my lawyers only yesterday, has been killed. I must go up tomorrow and see about it."

"I'll go with you, dad," Junior said promptly. "Tell us the details."

"There are none. Kerr was an unmarried man of good character, a veteran of the Spanish-American war, who had been living at Kingston. I wanted a caretaker, because we hadn't been living there for a time, and I've been warned that thieves make a specialty of new plumbing fixtures. If there's nobody to guard them,"

"But you haven't had time to put any in," said Dina.

"That's the mysterious part of it—there's nothing to steal, Kerr moved a bed and a few household belongings into a ground-floor room, and they have not been disturbed."

"Was he killed inside the house?" Celia demanded.

"No—outside. His body was found in the lake."

Hanby shot a quick look at his wife as he said this. From the little frown she gave he saw that the memory of what Smucker had said lingered with her and assumed a new importance at this tragedy.

"Was he drowned?" Dina asked.

"No—his head was battered in with the handle of a pick. Why they threw him in the lake I can't imagine. They did it to conceal the body," suggested Junior. "The weights probably slipped off and the corpse came to the surface again."

"Lakes are always dragged," Hanby replied. "It seems a silly, meaningless crime."

"There's always motivation, if you know where to look for it," Junior answered wisely. "On the whole, it's rather fortunate that I'm going up with you tomorrow."

"The police will be delighted," his father said.

Hanby was annoyed to think that this crime had obtruded itself on his birthday. It was a bad beginning for his ownership of the Gray house.

"The police!" sneered Junior. "What do the police know of the psychology of crime?"

"Fifty them, don't chide them," Celia mocked. "Poor policemen, they haven't been to Merceburg and New Haven."

TOTS AGAIN PLAY IN WHITE HOUSE

Hoover Grandchildren to Visit There Often.

Washington.—The Hoover administration will bring children into the White House family circle again for the first time since the Roosevelt administration.

The two little children who know the new President as "grandpa," rather than as Chief Executive of the United States, will not live at the White House, but they will be about often on visits and on every vacation. The Hoovers observe vacations in an old-fashioned way by family gatherings.

The two children are "Peggy," aged three, and Herbert Hoover, III, one-and-a-half years old, daughter and son of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Hoover, Jr., son Linva in Los Angeles.

Herbert Hoover, Jr., the President's elder son, and his family will live in Los Angeles. His wife recently went West to select a home for them there. The younger son, Allan, who is twenty-one, will graduate from Stanford university this June, and is expected to go into business on the West coast, probably in San Francisco. He is considering such a proposition, but has not accepted a position definitely as yet.

The whole family was reunited here for the inauguration.

Herbert, Jr., who is twenty-five, will leave here in a few days to take up a new position with the Western Airways express. He is an expert in radio and his work will be in connection with development of telephone communication between the line's airplanes and ground stations in the projected extension of its route to Kansas City. The line now operates between Los Angeles, San Francisco, and Salt Lake City.

Distance never has meant anything to Herbert Hoover or his family. They take a trip from the West to the East coast as a matter of fact, they have made it so often. Therefore they are making plans to spend their vacations at the White House.

The new President is a busy man, hard at work almost constantly, but he will lay even the most important task aside with a happy smile when Peggy pushes open the door to his executive office and rushes in eagerly for a romp, her little brother toddling along behind her on tiny legs still a bit wobbly.

Adele Grandpa.

The two children adore their grandfather, but not more than he does them. They are expected to be favorites among White House employees. In the hearts of a some of the old attaches they will fill a place in the affections once held by Quentin Roosevelt, whose famous escapades as a youngster in taking his pony up on the White House elevator and riding it on the shiny east room floor and shooting out the lights about the driveway with his air rifle still bring food smiles of memory.

The romance of Herbert Hoover, Jr., and his wife, was a repetition of that of his father and mother. They were classmates at Stanford university, graduated together, and married within a week after commencement, now over four years ago. Mrs. Herbert Hoover, Jr., a California girl, is beautiful and has a very charming personality.

Both of the new President's sons possess the timidity of their father upon first acquaintance. Both are delightful to know. Allan made many friends on the good will tour to South America on which he accompanied his father and mother.

Gang Loots Berlin Bank After Digging for Weeks

Berlin.—Several hundred thousand dollars in banknotes, securities and other valuables were obtained by a gang of safe blowers who tunneled their way into the deposit vault of the West End branch of the Disconto Gesellschaft.

This institution is one of the five largest banks in Germany. The robbery showed the results of many weeks of painstaking labor. Investigation disclosed that the gang had entered the vault by squirreling singly through a tunnel connecting with an alleyway.

The task of burrowing through the ground is thought to have required several weeks. Before departing with their loot the robbers destroyed the steel lock from the inside. Expert locksmiths worked 12 hours to open the door of the vault.

Belgrade Girls Warned to Quit Shaving Brows

Belgrade, Yugo-Slavia.—The headmaster of one of the girls' high schools here recently paraded all the pupils from fifteen to twenty years of age, and told them that if they did not wear the plain frocks regulations prescribed, stop using rouge and lipstick, and stop shaving their eyebrows, they would be expelled. "Even if they were daughters of a cabinet minister."

Many people regard his step as oppressive. Belgrade is a town that strives very hard to be five minutes ahead of Paris, and eyebrow shaving took hold of the high school girls like fire to tinder. Serbian girls often have a marvelously thick and luscious eyebrow, and there was a trace of regret for the "good old times" in the headmaster's remark that he "considered a girl's eyebrows her greatest ornament."

FAMED GARDEN IN SOUTH CAROLINA

Beauty Spot Laid Out in 1741 Still Exists.

Charleston, S. C.—A landscape garden of such world-wide fame that each spring it is visited by hundreds of pilgrims first came into being at Middleton Place. Amid the culture and refinement of the Carolina province in 1741.

One of the first landscape gardens in America, it was laid out by an English gardener on the bluffs that overlook the swiftly flowing Ashley river, surrounded by a vast forest. Here, Henry Middleton made his home and erected Great House which was destined to play a large part in the affairs of the colony.

Ten years were needed to complete the work of mapping the garden, but so successful was it that Middleton Place soon became famous even in the Old world.

With smooth lawns and countless exotic plants, a sunken garden and many lakes, it is beautiful at all times, but when spring comes humming through the air and flowers burst into bloom, it is indescribably lovely.

In the crystal waters of Azalea pool are mirrored, like shooting, dancing flames, bright-colored blossoms of overhanging azalea bushes that bend and sway with every passing breeze. From the river, one views a succession of terraces, radiating warmth and joyous life from the brilliant flowers that crown the slopes. On the highest terrace once stood Great House, a massive, three-story brick building in Tudor style, which boasted a secret passage.

The noted French botanist, Andre Michaux, here introduced many Oriental plants, among which were the first four Camellia Japonicas ever planted in America. Today, after a lapse of almost 200 years, three of the original plants may still be noted among the myriads which beautify the place. The only tunnel of camellias in existence is here, and also a magnificent live oak which, it is estimated, has viewed the happenings of 700 years or more.

Great House was adorned with priceless works of art, many of which were mutilated by the British. Almost a century later, the mansion was destroyed by fire in Sherman's march to the sea, one wing alone remaining. This has been restored and here the owner makes his home.

Henry Middleton, second president of the Continental congress; Arthur Middleton, signer of the Declaration of Independence, and others, whose names are linked with the history of their country, rest within the mausoleum near the river.

Chinese Tree in Gotham Gardens Poisons Keeper

New York.—A more curious than careful gardener in the New York zoological gardens recently fell victim to a severe case of poisoning from a twig of the fruit of the Chinese ginkgo tree.

Failure to remove the fleshy covering that surrounds the edible kernel of the plumlike fruit of the ginkgo was responsible for the gardener's mishap. It is a favorite food of the Chinese, who carefully remove the outer coat, which gives warning of its toxic power by a strong, rancid odor.

Rows of the decorative ginkgos, or maidenhair trees, line the drive west of the museum. They were brought here to help popularize them, a they are remarkably free from disease or insects, and withstand city life. In summer they bear wedgeshaped leaves.

Three Students Enjoy College on $30 Month

Pullman, Wash.—You can get an education on $10 a month and still not miss a thing—if you know how.

Three students of Washington State college do just that. Carl Ellingson, varsity three sport athlete; Ralph Carlton, frosh basketball star, and Kenneth Kadow are the three makeiters who bag a cheap education together.

They get free room, light and heat for caring for a furnace. Food and incidentals total $30. Carlton and Ellingson earn by working in the college gymnasium, while Kadow's job as stage electrician in the college auditorium nets the other third of the expenses.

Building Since War Cost $52,000,000,000

New York.—A total of $52,000,000,000 has been lavished in new buildings since the war by the American people, according to a survey just made. Expenditures during 1922, it is estimated, will add $7,500,000,000 to this total.

How this expenditure affects the construction industry was indicated by a large increase in the production of cement and face brick in 1927 as compared with the year 1926.

Laughs at Advancing Years and Blindness

A sixty-seven-year-old blind pastor, who must travel nearly 100 miles each season day to serve, is chaplain of the Connecticut senate. He is Rev. Edward P. Ayer of Branford, now serving his third term in the office. Despite his years and affliction, Ayer is strong and active. In his youth—before excessive study robbed him of his sight, he was captain of the Amherst college from Yale Divinity school. The blind chaplain heads an organization known as the Society for the Handicapped, a group which seeks to alleviate the misfortune of the blind in Connecticut. During the World war he donned overalls and managed a sizable "war garden." In addition, he milked five cows, fed three yearlings, two calves and twenty-five hens and raised ninety-two chickens.—Indianapolis News.

Why Father Incurred Small Girl's Censure

The late Marcus Loew, the movie millionaire, planned marriage at a movie banquet.

"Marriage," he said, "is a new thing, especially for women. It gives a woman freedom. We like to see married women first. It is an attractive sight. But if a married man sits at a table, of course, the old story of the married man whose wife said to him: 'John, I didn't like the way you stared at that blonde girl at lunch.'"

Dame Fashion Smiles

By Grace Jewett Austin

When Dame Fashion went as a bride to a small New England town in western Massachusetts, there was one "flon" in the place in the shape of a novelist, now quite generally forgotten, who gained a wide, if transitory fame, because her book, "A Reverend Idol," became identified with the revered Phillips Brooks. Her heroine, in those days of more than thirty-five years ago, had a "rainy-day friz" of artificial ringlets sewed into her hat, and the poor novelist came in for more or less criticism because the hero, for lack of more precious souvenirs, took this false piece to save for a treasure.

Never, never since that day so long ago until this season has Dame Fashion heard of similar planning, until a recent Paris dispatch came, headed, "Sewed-in Ringlets Boosted in Paris." It goes on to declare, "Curls which come off with the bonnet, being sewed into it, are a serious suggestion of Parisian milliners, including some of note. They are attached at the back of the bonnet shaped hats for afternoon and evening wear. Most of them are just a turned-up fringe, but some milliners are sewing three and four-inch curls into such hats." The old adage in New England used to be, "Keep a thing for seven years and you will find a use for it," but in fashion cycles, "Keep a style for forty years and it returns," might be nearer.

One good index finger comes pointing out of this story. And that is, that Paris still acts strong approval upon the clove-shaped bonnet hat, which in becomingness has some of the qualities of the famous "little girl with a curl"; when it is well suited to the face, it is immensely becoming, but "when it's bad, it's horrid." Not so many years ago, when hats were made comfortably large, milliners often slipped inside them an adjustable band, to make them fit the head, calling this a "halo." A rhymester wrote:

The modern saint is modest,
Though she's good for this and that;
But you'll surely have to praise her
For her halo's in her hat!

Now times have changed. Sweeping up from the face, in many of the newest season hats goes a semi-circular section, of the same material as the hat, or a trimming material. And the technical name for this extremely prominent part of the modern hat is "halo!"

Quite in contrast with the old idea of "keeping seven years" is the new industrial idea coming to the fore of "creative wasting." A powerful speech was lately made by a great man in industry on this topic. Declared he, "We need to do more creative wasting in order to promote greater progress." So if we have pondered whether to "get through another summer with last year's hat" it probably would be the part of wisdom to do a bit of this high-sounding "waste" and bloom out like the roses.

Faded Dot Accessories
Youthful cardigan, knitted and felt ensembles are shown in the always attractive pink dot. This trio is predicted as the Everest blouse suit for wear with a white or pastel sleeveless frock. A few new charming three-piece ensembles are seen in pink dot and plain combinations.

All Women Should Study Problems of Dressmaking

Commercial dress patterns are made to suit certain specified textures, says Marjorie Kinney, in an article on home dressmaking, in the People's Home Journal magazine. Because of this, she says, it is the best plan to select the material and pattern in relation to each other before purchase. "A model is designed in a specific textile," says this writer. "This means if a velvet model is bought to be copied, the pattern is adapted to velvet and probably is not suited to cotton or chiffon. This is the first stumbling block for the home sewer—she does not think in terms of material and pattern."

"The second point is to select the dress best suited to your type," continues this writer. "The lines and silhouette are most essential prerequisites for a smart and becoming costume. Every woman should enjoy studying her own problems of dressmaking, selecting lines which will bring out all her best points and cover any defects, and indulging only in colors which will make her look young and pretty rather than old and worn. If one will only give this thought to the selection of her clothes there is no reason on earth why she may not be becomingly dressed for a minimum sum."

Semisports Style Shoe Introduces Innovations

An unusually attractive new semisports shoe is being shown. It is an oxford of leather with triple eyelets and is made up in two colors, dark brown with a rich beige. Heels, toes and eyelet parts are of the beige, while the remainder is of the beige. The beige section is perforated in an all-over design which lends a very "swagger" appearance to the shoe. The heels, too, are different from those seen recently; they are high, with straight lines, yet comfortable, and very flattering to most women's feet.

For day wear there are new steel-cut shoe buckles in square, oblong and oval shapes. The designs are worked out in conventional leaf patterns, solid effects and modernistic motifs. Those for evening wear are made on a white gold or aluminum base with crystals, rhinestone or colored stone settings. These are made with the thought of matching the shoe color, or to lend a touch of brightness.

Sunburn Powder Is Not Given Warmest Welcome

This sunburn powder vogue Paris sent over here has been duly noted, sniffed at and shelved. That is, by some women who realize the absurdity of walking around looking "sun burned" and yellow faced—for no reason at all. This fad may go well during the beach season and serve those who do not wear well under the light of the real sun, but absolutely not a chance has this dark complexioned vogue got in a big city!

Paris has also made a little plea for longer skirts. Here, too, the American woman prefers to decide for herself.

Separate Blouse, Skirt in Personality Costumes

So enthusiastic has fashion become over the possibilities for individuality in the separate blouse and skirt in the assembling of personality costumes that shops have instituted departments wherein these are to be found in innumerable styles and colors. This allows the imagination free play in forming a two-piece frock to express one's own color taste. Quite frequently two plain shades are selected in blouse and skirt with surprising smart effect.

Every purchaser of a fishing or hunting license in New Mexico this year will be required to tell how much game was killed or how many fish were caught by him last season. State Game Warden E. L. Perry believes it will be almost impossible to accurately obtain the number of fish, ducks, doves or geese because of the large numbers caught or killed, but he states that the record should show accurately the amount of other game killed.

PICTORIAL GOLF INSTRUCTION

By H. E. MARTIN

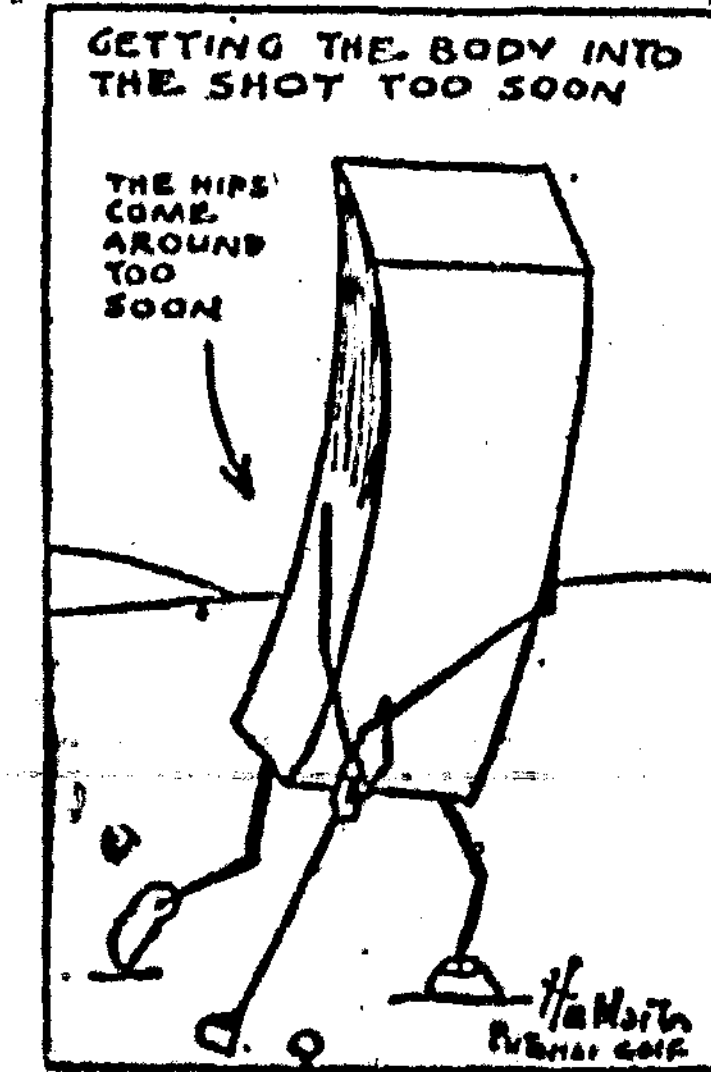

A BASE BALL PLAYERS GRIP RESEMBLES THE OLD FASHIONED GOLF GRIP

Few Baseball Players Make Good Golfers

WHEN a baseball player takes up golf he goes about it much the same way that he plays baseball. Naturally he grips a club as he would a bat. If the hands are close together this is not so bad. The worst feature of this is that he grips with the palms instead of the fingers.

The old fashioned way of holding a golf club was just about the same way that a baseball player grips. In golf we soon learned that a finger grip was better and that by overlapping we could make the hands act more as one which is an additional asset. Golfers with short fingers might find it an advantage to stick to the old fashioned grip but they can still use a finger grip.

Body Should Follow Club, Not Lead It

MOST golfers fail to play good golf because of the anxiety to play the shots with the body instead of permitting the clubhead to do its work. When one fails to wait until the club comes through the shot is nearly always ruined.

This is putting the cart before the horse. That is, the club should not lead the body, but the body assist the club, waiting until the proper time to do its part of the work. Those who are off their game will find that by taking it easier and letting the club swing through they will hit better balls and with more certain direction.

In Overlapping Grip, the Hands Work as One

WE ALL know that if we chop wood, hit a baseball or anything else where two hands are required on the handle, it is better to place the hands close together. It is more essential in golf than in any other game. With the hands far apart there is a good chance that each hand will work independently of the other. The closer the hands the better for the golf swing. This is why the overlapping grip has become the most popular in golf. The hands work together as a unit.

Could Populate Oceans
The finger eel, which is an important food fish of Europe, is said to lay 20,000,000 eggs, and it is estimated if each egg grew to maturity and the increase continued at the same rate, every ocean and sea would be full of younger eels in ten years.

Will Produce Larger Litters Than Thin Animal.

Proper attention to feeding and care of the brood sows before and during the breeding season has a big influence on the number of pigs one will be able to save, according to W. E. Carroll of the University of Illinois. A sow in thrifty condition and gaining rapidly a short time before she is bred will produce larger litters than a sow in thin condition.

"Because of this it is desirable to feed sows a full feed of a well balanced ration for a week or ten days before they are bred. This stimulates the maturity of the eggs in the ovaries which are to produce the litters of pigs. If the breeding is delayed until pasture is gone, it will be well to include in the ration some good quality alfalfa hay, either as alfalfa meal or fed whole in a rack.

Protein supplements also are necessary. If skim milk or buttermilk is available a gallon of either of these daily for each sow, together with a ration of corn or barley or a mixture of corn and oats or corn, oats and barley, will give excellent results. If skim milk is not to be had, a mixture of two parts tankage, one part linseed meal and one part alfalfa will make a fine substitute. The sows probably will eat about one-half to three-fourths of a pound of this supplement in addition to a full feed of corn. Water, of course, should be available at all times.

Where soy beans are available it is possible also to supplement the ration with these. The sows probably will eat about a pound of the beans daily a head. In case the soy beans are fed, a mineral mixture should be allowed. This can be made of two parts ground limestone, two parts steamed bone meal and one part salt. After the sows are bred the ration can be reduced in order to avoid getting them overfat for farrowing.

Tankage Is Excellent Protein Supplement

Tankage is an excellent protein supplement to use with corn for hogs. At the present prices of feeds, a mixture composed of tankage two parts, linseed or cottonseed meal one part, and alfalfa meal one part is cheaper and will produce just as rapid gains as tankage. Shorts is worth approximately the same, pound for pound, as corn for fattening hogs and slightly more than corn for pigs at weaning time. The shorts may be fed dry or mixed with milk. Oats is worth about one-half as much per bushel as corn. Not over one-third of the grain ration should consist of oats. A protein supplement should be fed with oats, shorts, and corn. Pigs that receive corn plus skim milk or tankage in the proper amounts do not need additional mineral when running on alfalfa pasture.—A. D. Weber, University of Nebraska.

Silage Is Excellent for All Live Stock

Silage can be fed to sheep, in fact, it is quite the universal practice for those who own silos and sheep to feed them silage. The fact of the matter is silage has a much wider use as a feed for all classes of live stock than is commonly accorded it.

In the feeding of silage to sheep or horses there is one point that must be given close attention. These two classes of animals should not be fed silage that in any manner is not first-class silage. Sheep and horses react very unfavorably toward spoiled silage. Outside of this one point, however, silage can be fed to sheep.

Live Stock Items

Young animals are more susceptible to trouble from parasites than older ones.

Good feed and plenty of exercise in winter will aid the ewes to produce good lambs in spring.

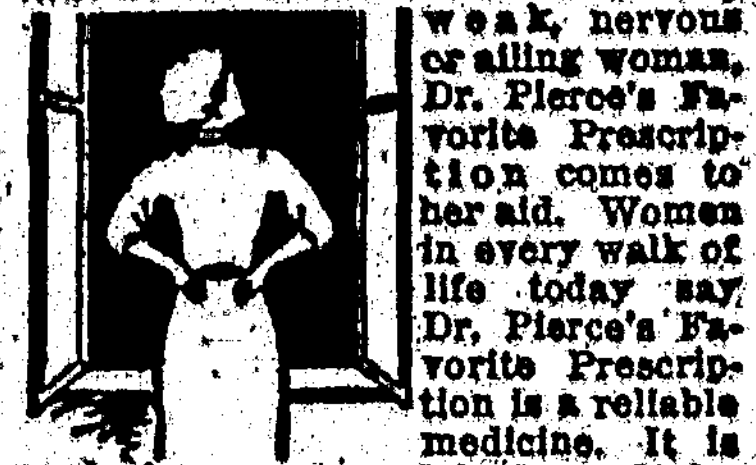

There can be no definite rule as to just how much grain is required to keep the ewes in proper condition for the spring lambing.

Live stock frequently suffer from lack of water during freezing weather. When the only water supply available is a stream or spring, daily attention is necessary to be sure that the ice is broken.

Feed supplied to the sow plays an important role in the success of the spring pig crop. It is not too early to think of this matter because proper nutrition is just as essential at the time of mating as in any subsequent period.

Make sure plenty of clean, fresh water is always available. Drinking cold water is claimed by some men to be dangerous for the sow. The greatest danger comes from drinking water that is contaminated with disease germs, dirt and filth.

Mason and Dixon Line Only Divided States

The Mason and Dixon line was the boundary line between Pennsylvania and Maryland, as surveyed in 1787, and popularly accepted before the Civil war as the dividing line between the free and slave states. If that line were to be extended due west it would divide such northern states as Ohio, Indiana and Illinois and leave Kansas in the south. As a matter of fact, the states south of the Mason and Dixon line which are generally regarded as southern states are Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia, Florida, Alabama, Tennessee, Mississippi, Arkansas, Texas, Louisiana, Oklahoma, Kentucky, Missouri, Maryland and Delaware. Cumberland, Maryland, is south of the line. The slave-holding states just before the Civil war included all of those mentioned above except Oklahoma, which was not then a state. Slavery had been abolished in the northern states before that time.

Mile-Deep Diving
Dr. William Beebe, famous ichthyologist of the American Museum of Natural History, recently told of a new diving device which would enable one to descend a mile below the surface of the sea. It consists of a large steel cylinder, built to withstand a pressure of five tons to the square inch. Water pressure at the depth of one mile is about one ton to the square inch, so that the device would give its users a maximum margin of safety.

STEEL ECLIPSE Windmill Starts sooner—pumps longer. Two windmills stood back across the road from each other. With the first sign of a breeze one started up smoothly and quietly. When the breeze became a wind, the other started with a groan and lumbered away only as long as the wind raised a dust in the road. Then it stopped as abruptly as it had started, while the other continued pumping for some time—that is, really came smoothly to rest with the last trace of the spring breeze. That is the difference between a paper windmill and just a windmill. It is the difference between a pump that merely pumps water during low periods of every revolution of the wind wheel. You will find it one kind of how good a windmill can be. In other words, it is the difference between the Fairbanks-Morse Steel-Eclipse Windmill and just a plain windmill. Come in and see this great subject in windmill construction. The Fairbanks-Morse Steel-Eclipse Windmill has a special feature—the center shaft—double-shaft design that enables the blades to pump water during low periods of every revolution of the wind wheel. You will find it one kind of how good a windmill can be. City Garage, V. Reil, Prop. Carrizozo, New Mexico FAIRBANKS-MORSE PRODUCTS "Every Line a Leader"
