Corona News

Miss Carolyn Ortega, from Pastura, has been here for sometime visiting Louise Shelton. The two are planning on leaving Saturday for Pastura where Louise will spend a week with the Ortegas.

J. H. Benson, who recently bought the old McClellan place, is remodeling his new home. There will be all modern fixtures and several additions made to the house. He sold his Flying H ranch to Lee Hancock.

The Varneys have returned from Ruidoso, where they spent a week of their vacation.

No longer will the drivers of new cars (or old) in Corona, get well splashed with mud, or endanger their springs for the streets are being well cindered over the ruts and bumps.

Sunday afternoon Corona engaged in an exciting baseball game with Willard: all during the game Corona led, but at the last Willard quickly raised her score and won the victory with 11—9 score.

Mack Penix and family have returned from Oklahoma, where they spent their vacation. Malt Silvers, who was here during Mr. Penix's absence, has returned to Ancho.

Monday saw an old-timer here in the person of Densley Regan, who was here for the day from Ancho. Densley is operating there at the present. Several months ago he was operator in Corona.

Monday Bill Johnson, Mr. and Mrs. R. L. Lovelace and boys, Mr. and Mrs. Glen Greer, and Lam and Theda Richards went to Chama, in the northern part of New Mexico, on a fishing trip. From reports of other "fishermen", they should catch their limit each day.

Monday night was the beginning of an old time revival meeting held in our church. The meeting will last 2 weeks and is being conducted by Revs. John W. Williams, of Hot Springs, and F. C. Rolland of Carrizozo. Sunday there will be preaching all day and a picnic dinner at the church. Everybody welcome.

Willis, the eldest son of Mrs. Will Sultemier, had his tonsils removed last week.

Tuesday Mrs. Dishman and Zella returned from Texas, where they have been since school was out, on an extended vacation. Miss Edna Atkinson, who accompanied them on their trip, has also returned.

George Roberts left Wednesday for El Paso, where he will have some dental work done.

Local merchants are putting on July bargain sales.

Ft. Stanton News

We regret to report the death of Robert Courtney and Charles Toombs. Both had been patients here several years, and had many friends.

Wm. Gould and C. G. Carnes, better known as "Texas," have returned from a two weeks' outing with Mr. Gould's mother, grandmother, sister and brother. The party came from Cleveland, Ohio, staying here over the 4th and then taking the two boys on to the Grand Canyon. They report a wonderful trip.

J. M. Cavanaugh, mother and son Billie are spending this week at the Pajarita ranch.

A. L. Turner, wife and daughter Veda, of Rica Ranch, Channing, Texas, are expected today for a week's visit with the Cavanauhs.

Mike Peralta and wife have returned to the station after a ten days' outing.

Dennis Cooper spent his leave in Lamar county, Texas, making the trip in two days' driving. He reports fine peaches and watermelons.

Mrs. Jack Edwards spent several days here, the guest of Mrs. Marie Cavanaugh.

Mr. and Mrs. Barney Aldaz had the misfortune to lose an infant, Dora Tuesday night.

The Gift Shop at Fort Stanton continues to attract tourists from far and near. This is all a help to the patients, as well as a credit to the O. T. department.

The ball game Sunday started out very well but ended up in a merry-go-round for Alamo.

Mrs. Berry and daughter Jean have returned from a delightful vacation, spent in the northern part of the state.

A bride of scarce three months has passed from our lives. We wish to extend our sincerest sympathy to the relatives and dear ones of the young girl who died last Friday at Carrizozo. Hardly three months ago, on April 18, she and Clyde Kuyendall were happily married at Santa Rosa. She was born September 14, 1912, and died July 12, 1929. She is survived by her husband, Clyde Kuyendall, a father, A. L. Gray, four brothers and seven sisters. We feel the great sorrow that has come into the lives of these estimable families and wish to express our sympathy and regret.

It sounds inconsistent to hear a prohibitionist enthusiast extol the merits of a patent tonic that contains 23 per cent of alcohol. Ah, well—

TARIFF POINTERS

From whatever angle the Republican tariff bill is approached, its weakness and unpopularity is manifest.

The other day Senator Wheeler of Montana pointed out that the huge industrial corporations were the smaller, less competent businesses as stalking horses to excuse unconscionable increases in the rates.

The Wall Street Journal, a staunch champion of big business, startled its clientele on July 8, by an editorial endorsement of this contention.

Under the heading "A Substitute for Efficiency" this business newspaper said:

"It is not often that The Wall Street Journal finds itself in sympathy with Senator Wheeler of Montana whose idea of legislation seems to be 'whenever you see a corporation head, hit it.' When, however, he says that the industries demanding ever higher and higher protection in the tariff must prove the claim by their books, he is on firm ground. One of the evils of protection is that it tends to become a substitute for efficiency.

"For reasons of climate we have never been able to build up a linen industry in this country to compare with those of the west of Scotland, Belfast or even Saxony. No industry has received higher protection than the manufacture of woolen goods and yet people of only moderate means wear Scotch tweeds, West of England cloths, Bradford serges, chevots and the like, because the quality is worth the difference in price, both in wear and in appearance. The idea of making people 'clothes conscious' by wearing two suits of inferior quality, at superior prices, in place of one which would look good to the last, has not 'caught on.'

"Our cotton goods manufacturers have received higher protection every time the Republican party has engineered a tariff advance in acknowledgement of favors received. In spite of the substantial increases of 1922 that industry in New England has scarcely been paying its way. The alternative seems to have been resort to cheap labor in the Southern cotton mills. It seems a decidedly un-American expedient and hardly bears out the contention that the protective tariff is good for the worker.

"What seems to be needed in the textile industries is not more protection but reorganization with an eye, together with an improvement in quality, both in the product and in the conditions of the worker. Other industries have proved that good wages and working conditions wonderfully improve the per capita output, both in quantity and quality. Long ago, when other motor car manufacturers without Ford's vision proposed to reduce wages below two dollars a day, Ford raised his minimum to five dollars and took the market away from them. Protection is perhaps something of a necessary evil but protection as a substitute for efficiency becomes less tolerable every day. 'To take only one group all the textile manufacturers have shown Congress is that protection has failed to teach them their business.'

The Minneapolis Tribune, heretofore a faithful supporter of the Republican administration, addresses an appeal to the business men of the Northwest to study the Hawley bill, from the point of view that whatever harms agriculture, harms the Northwestern merchants and bankers.

Ball Game at Stanton

Sunday afternoon, at 2:30, the "Cavemen" of Carlsbad will face the Fort Stanton team on the latter's diamond. The Fort team defeated the "Cavemen" at Carlsbad, about the first of the ball season, by a score of 3 to 2. The visitors, of course, crave revenge and the Stanton boys are on their toes, ready to give them another shock. The teams are quite evenly matched, and this mid-season contest should attract a large attendance of fans from all sections of the county. Suppose we go!

"All along the line," says a Tribune editorial, "industry has trimmed agriculture." It instances as an example that the hides-leather-and-shoe deal is calculated to cost the farmer from nine to eighteen million dollars a year, and then presents the following table:

PICTORIAL GOLF INSTRUCTION

By H. B. MARTIN

Mashie Pitch Requires Long Follow Through

IN MAKING a mashie pitch it is quite necessary for the club to pick up the ball, not scoop it. This can always be done by a long follow through. If the ball is played off the left foot there is a great chance of topping it. If it is played off the right foot there is more room for the follow through and better control will be obtained.

This is not what would be called the back spin shot. In this case the club hits the ball just a little before the center on the down swing knocking the legs out from under it and causing it to spin backwards.

HITTING RIGHT SHOULDER AT TOP OF SWING IS A VERY BAD FAULT

Hitting the Shoulder a Bad Fault

AT SOME TIME or another every golfer has developed the fault of hitting his shoulder with the club on the back swing. Some get rid of the habit right away, but others, not realizing what they are doing and not taking the trouble to consult a professional, go along for years with this fault.

The habit comes from loosening the grip with the left hand as the club comes to the top of the swing. Some golfers with this troublesome fault feel that they must hit their shoulder, even though they touch it ever so lightly, to make sure that they have taken the club back far enough. Bouncing the club off the shoulder sometimes comes from improper pivoting. A golfer that half sways and half pivots is likely to do this.

THE BALL FLATTENS OUT AT THE BEGINNING OF THE FOLLOW THROUGH

Sweeping Follow Through Increases Distance

WHEN we hit a golf ball, the motion or stroke is a sweep, or should be a sweep. There should be no attempt to check the club head as it comes through. The ball being of rubber flattens out on the club head, almost egg-shaped. This process goes on for the first four inches or so, then it snaps back to shape as it gradually releases itself from the club. This is called follow through and is an all-important part of golf.

If you keep the club head with the ball a long time, the drive will be straighter. This can be managed by sending the club on through with no attempt to check it, nor to pull across the ball.

"Vaccine" Said to End Poison Ivy Suffering

The affliction from poison ivy is now treated in the same way that hay fever is combated—that is, by injecting into the sufferer minute quantities of extract of the very poison which causes the distress. This has been found effective both as a preventive measure and as a method of treatment. An injection of the poison ivy antigen, which is an extract made up of poison ivy leaves, acts in the same manner as a vaccine. It usually requires about three injections into muscular tissue for the cure of a case. Within 24 hours after the injection the itching ceases and the irritation begins to disappear. This treatment immunizes the patient against an attack of poison ivy for about two months. However, the patient is again susceptible the following season. It also is possible before the season begins to give one injection of poison ivy antigen and thus afford immunity from the affliction for three or four months.—Washington Star.

Value of Resistance

No doubt a world in which matter never got out of place and became dirt, in which iron had no flaws and wood no cracks, in which gardens had no weeds and food grew ready cooked, in which clothes never wore out and washing was as easy as advertisements describe it, in which the right word was not hard to find and rules had no exceptions, and things never went wrong, would be a much easier place to live in. But for purposes of training and development it would be worth nothing at all. It is the resistance that puts us on our mettle; it is the conquest of the reluctant stuff that educates the worker. I wish you enough difficulties to keep you and make you strong and skillful.—Henry Van Dyke.

Power From Pit-Head

Some of the collieries of France are not only producing coal but power as well for the use of neighboring industries. The current is also made use of for operating the mine machinery. This enables them to consume not only any excess coal but also the unmarketable low-grade coal and dust. Since the war, six such power plants have been constructed. These are interconnected and range in capacity from 20,000 to 60,000 kilowatts.

Modest Suggestion

A country editor hit on the following advice for dunning delinquent subscribers:

"There is a little matter some of our subscribers have seemingly forgotten. Some of them have made us many promises but have not subscribed to them. To us it is a very important proposition—it's necessary in our business. We are very modest and hesitant to speak about such remittances."—Pathfinder Magazine.

Centenarians

In 1910 there were 3,655 centenarians, whereas in 1920 the number reported was 4,297. More women than men reported. In 1920 1,511 of the centenarians were men and 2,786 were women.

DR. CALDWELL'S THREE RULES

Dr. Caldwell watched the results of competition for 47 years, and believed that no matter how careful people are of their health, diet and exercise, constipation will occur from time to time. Of next importance, then, is how to treat it when it comes. Dr. Caldwell always was in favor of getting as close to nature as possible, hence his remedy for constipation is a mild vegetable compound. It can not harm the most delicate system and is not habit forming.

The Doctor never did approve of drastic physics and purges. He did not believe they were good for human beings to put into their system. Use Syrup Pepsin for yourself and members of the family in constipation, biliousness, sour and crampy stomach, bad breath, no appetite, headaches, and to break up fevers and colds. Get a bottle today, at any drugstore and observe these three rules of health: Keep the head cool, the feet warm, the bowels open. For a free trial bottle, just write "Syrup Pepsin," Dept. ARTIE

in Love, Life and the Pursuit of Happiness
By GEORGE ADE

Artie at the Wedding
LARGE yellow rose drooped from Artie's lapel as he came into the office Thursday morning.

"Ting-a-ling, the bells will ring."
As he sang this, he put one hand behind his ear and stood in the listening attitude so commonly affected by neat song-and-dance artists.

"Aha! The best man, I believe?" said Miller, moving back from his desk and regarding Artie's specialty with keen delight.

"You know it," replied Artie, "you know it. I was the stroke ear at the doin's, and it's a conservative estimate when I say that me and Mame was the hit o' the piece."

"You got through all right, then?"

"A little slow on the getaway, but I made a Garrison finish. I was runnin' in strange company, too, but as soon as I got the pace they couldn't head me."

"Tell me all about it. You and Mame really stood up with them, did you?"

"Did we? Ain't I tellin' you we led the league? I give Mame a wad o' roses that laid over anything the bride could flash, and maybe you think she wasn't in good form. Oh, boy! She looked, gee, just beautiful!"

"By George, Artie, you are hard hit," said Miller, laughing.

"You're dead right there, an' I make no bones about it. She's got me lauded and strung."

"Are you going to tell me about that wedding?" asked Miller, impatiently.

"Well, it was a whiz! We didn't break into the sassiest notes, but that's Koshier in our set. It took all day to pull it off. Mame told me to come straight to the Connolly house, because she had to go there early in the morning. Her and the other Connolly girl was handlin' the bride."

"When I got there, there was a big jam in the front room—Mame's mother, old man Connolly, Mrs. Connolly, Tommy Bradshaw—he was the groom, you know—ons o' Tommy's brothers from the South side and a chilly, ex by the name of Parker.

"Tommy—new suit, new topper, new shoes. He was washed and combed till he didn't look right. I think he overdone it myself. And say, you ought o' seen him when Mame's mother started to razz him."

"How was that?" inquired Miller.

"Oh, the old girl's got a fast line! You see, here was Mrs. Connolly settin' there bobbin' and bawlin' around as if she was goin' to bury the daughter instead of stakin' her to a cigar store. That worried old man Connolly, and so Mame's mother tried to jazz up the crowd by ridin' with Tommy. She'd say, 'Well, Mr. Bradshaw, you're a very handsome man in your wedding clothes,' and then throw me the wink. Then she'd ask him if he'd back out if he had the chance and how many girls he'd been engaged to before. She had him fussed up till he couldn't say a word. No use, though: Mrs. Connolly kept movin' her eyes and every little while sayin' 'Ah-h-h-h' like that. I guess it wasn't put on, though. She was probably broke up. Women are different."

"Oh, yes," assented Miller, "she hated to lose her daughter."

"I don't believe it was that. She clapped it was the happiest day of her life, and then as soon as she said it she commenced to bawl again."

"How did you get to the church?"

"Why, we give a big parade—five cars we had. I hadn't hardly had a chance to see Mame in her new clothes till we got in the bus with Florence and Tommy. Florence had about twenty yards o' this mosquito-bar stuff hangin' to her and was made up great, but even at that she couldn't get better place with Mame in the rumble."

"She's a nice girl, though. She was all fussed and so was Tommy. All the way to the church they didn't say more'n twenty words, and that was about how glad she was the sun had come out and wantin' to know if Mr. Parker was in the car behind. Tommy grinned and looked foolish."

"To tell the truth I got kind o' groggy myself when we stopped in front of the church and piled out. Mame was all right, though. She froze to me and steered me through without a bult."

"Well, what did you have to do?" inquired Miller, with growing interest.

"I done nothin' but stick to Mame. Tommy agreed to a lot o' business that's enough to set any boy a-thinkin' if he goes against the game."

"Oh, I forgot; it was right in the dead serious part, just when Florence and Tommy put their lunch hooks together. 'They're off,' I whispered to Mame and she came purt' near bustin' out and queerin' the whole act. She panned me good and hard for it afterwards."

"What did you do after the ceremony?"

"Say, the ceremony was just the first part o' the show. When we got out o' the church Florence's mother was cryin' again and kissin' everybody except me and the old man. We did a run-around on her. They loaded up the carriages again and all but us four went back to the house. We went over to get some photographs."

"Oh, I see."

"Well, I should say so. You've always got to have one o' them bride-and-groom pictures in the house even if there's nothing to eat. They wanted me and Mame to go along, so we rode over and watched 'em."

"Tommy was all right by that time. He'd got his nerve back, and he was real peppy, kiddin' Mame and me, and sayin': 'That's all right. Some time I'll come and see you two blinched up. Wasn't that a raw deal, huh? There I was—I'd never said nothin' to Mame about the marry idea, and he was takin' it for granted that everything was set. He was pretty fresh about it.'

"But Mame—say, she passed it off smoother 'n silk. She just give him the ha-ha and says: 'That'll be all right. You'll get your bid when the shootin' match comes off.'"

"She didn't call it a 'shootin'-match'?"

"Naw! I'm just tellin' you, you know. Well, they got their pictures. Florence

FARM STOCK

IN MAKING AND FEEDING SILAGE

Best and Cheapest Form in Which to Store Feed.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Some important points to observe in the making and feeding of silage are discussed by live stock specialists of the United States Department of Agriculture in a revised edition of Farmers' Bulletin No. 678-F, "The Making and Feeding of Silage," which is now ready for distribution to interested persons.

"Silage," the authors of the bulletin say, "is the best and cheapest form in which to store succulent feed. Many forage crops can be made into silage; but corn, where it can be grown successfully, makes the best silage."

"Silage is suited for feeding to all live stock. Dairy cows, not on good pasture, need it perhaps more than other classes of animals, because the succulence it supplies is helpful in the production of large quantities of milk. It is a cheap and economical feed for beef cattle, from breeding cow to fattening steer. Sheep like it and it is well suited to their needs. Even horses and mules may be fed limited quantities of good silage with good results."

A method of making silage, known as the Ronnung method, has come into use in the last few years and is considered the easiest known method of making silage. The standing corn is harvested and cut into proper lengths for the silo by a machine drawn and operated by a tractor. The cut corn is delivered to a wagon box drawn alongside. It is then hauled to the silo and pushed off into a blower which elevates it into the silo. When a pit silo is used the work of filling is still less. Making silage by the Ronnung method requires approximately the same size crew as when a harvester and bundle elevator is used, but the advantage lies in saving the labor of handling the heavy bundles.

A copy of the bulletin may be obtained by writing to the United States Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C.

"Well, They Got Their Pictures."

Practical Methods of Destroying Hog Mange

(By J. W. Lumb, Extension Veterinarian, Kansas State Agricultural College.)

Crude petroleum will turn itself into a money maker when used as a destroyer of mange of swine.

The three most practical methods of destroying mange are hand applications, spraying and dipping.

Hand applications may be satisfactorily provided if only a few hogs are treated. The hogs are confined and applications made with a brush or cloth. Petroleum should be rubbed over the entire hog, including inside the ears.

Spraying, if carefully carried out, will destroy mange. The hogs should be confined in a small pen, bedded with clean straw. A spray pump or sprinkling can may be used. The hogs' ears should be lifted so that spray material will coat the lower side. They should be left in the pen for an hour to become well saturated by contact.

Dipping is the most effective way of applying material to hogs for controlling mange. Concrete or galvanized iron dipping vats are more or less permanent and not prohibitive in expense for the large hog raisers.

Swine should be dipped at least twice, 12 to 14 days apart, and old beds burned. The house and sleeping quarters should be thoroughly cleaned and disinfected.

Use of Self-Feeders Is Most Satisfactory

The use of self-feeders is the most satisfactory system of growing hogs we have found. With hand feeding so many things in the busy season, and that takes all summer; most farms, a little neglect in chores checks up the desired growth. Living in a good, clean, legume pasture with self-feeders for corn and protein feeds and an opportunity to get at some minerals, the pigs are at fault if they do not make good. Last year corn was so scarce in our neighborhood that we ran the pigs through with a little less than they would have liked. The pigs were slowed up by it, too, but with an all-winter rise in the hog market the financial returns were not so disappointing. Fattened pigs do not always meet that kind of a market reception. The general trend has always been the other way.

Pigs Over Summer

Spring pigs that are not to be fattened for the early fall market may be carried through the summer on good pasture and a limited amount of grain. The pigs should receive enough grain to provide for normal growth, since they cannot develop on pasture alone. Pigs handled during the summer in this way will be in good shape to follow steers in the feed lot this fall and winter, or they may be fattened for market, as soon as the new corn crop is ready.

er, old man Connolly, Mrs. Connolly, Tommy Bradshaw—he was the groom, you know—ons o' Tommy's brothers from the South side and a chilly, ex by the name of Parker.

"Tommy—new suit, new topper, new shoes. He was washed and combed till he didn't look right. I think he overdone it myself. And say, you ought o' seen him when Mame's mother started to razz him."

"How was that?" inquired Miller.

"Oh, the old girl's got a fast line! You see, here was Mrs. Connolly settin' there bobbin' and bawlin' around as if she was goin' to bury the daughter instead of stakin' her to a cigar store. That worried old man Connolly, and so Mame's mother tried to jazz up the crowd by ridin' with Tommy. She'd say, 'Well, Mr. Bradshaw, you're a very handsome man in your wedding clothes,' and then throw me the wink. Then she'd ask him if he'd back out if he had the chance and how many girls he'd been engaged to before. She had him fussed up till he couldn't say a word. No use, though: Mrs. Connolly kept movin' her eyes and every little while sayin' 'Ah-h-h-h' like that. I guess it wasn't put on, though. She was probably broke up. Women are different."

"Oh, yes," assented Miller, "she hated to lose her daughter."

"I don't believe it was that. She clapped it was the happiest day of her life, and then as soon as she said it she commenced to bawl again."

"How did you get to the church?"

"Why, we give a big parade—five cars we had. I hadn't hardly had a chance to see Mame in her new clothes till we got in the bus with Florence and Tommy. Florence had about twenty yards o' this mosquito-bar stuff hangin' to her and was made up great, but even at that she couldn't get better place with Mame in the rumble."

"She's a nice girl, though. She was all fussed and so was Tommy. All the settin' down with the flowers in her lap and him standin' behind with one of his fins kind o' hid in that mosquito bar. Then we all drove back to the house to feed our faces."

"Oh, you had a wedding breakfast?"

"I hope to tell you! That was where I cut loose. I made a speech, just for a kid, you know, but it started 'em—all but that cold guy. We fed 'em then we smoked and danced, and old man Connolly played the saxophone—rotten, thank you, Mame was the star, too. Don't forget it."

"Honest, we had a good time. Them people up there's good enough for me. No frills, but they're on the level, and when it comes down to cases they're just as good as a lot of people that make a bigger front. They got hearts in the right place."

"It's like a man at the boat club says. 'If you can't travel with the bell-cows, stick to the gang.' That's wise talk, too."

Big Ice Box Museum Planned for Siberia

A gigantic refrigerator museum in ice-covered Siberia for the scientific preservation of men and animals has been planned by the Far Eastern Geophysical observatory.

The phenomenon of "eternal frost" in parts of Siberia is thought to be entirely suitable for such a project. It has been found that organic elements can be preserved for centuries in the frozen ground. Proof is cited in the discovery of the bodies of mammoths in a refrigerated condition.

Sponsors of the museum plan to file away for the ages specimens of all races, the remains of their daily life, food, products and animals. It is estimated that about $5,000,000 will be required and application will be made to scientific organizations all over the world for donations.

POST TOASTIES

The Wake-up Food gives you new energy Quick

NO wonder it's called the Wake-up Food! This crisp, good-to-eat breakfast cereal, Post Toasties, turns so quickly into fresh, abundant energy to start the new day. There's rich energy stored up in those toasted savory flakes, energy so easy to digest that your body quickly gets this rich supply of new vigor.

And energy is just half the reason why people eat it! The flavor is so delicious. The sun-mellowed sweetness of choice white corn delicately flaked and toasted crackling-crisp.

Try it with milk and berries tomorrow morning! Don't forget—there's just one way to get the Wake-up Food. Ask your grocer for Post Toasties—in the red and yellow wax-wrapped package.

The Rain Came

After showering all around us yesterday every minute hearing the never-falling Indian sign—until early this morning the clouds opened and gave us the drenching of the season. It has not been learned the extent of territory covered, but the indications were that it was more general than any rain this year. An additional and satisfactory feature, also, was that the precipitation was of such a nature that the earth absorbed it as it fell not a dash and run off sort

Trek of the Tourist

The annual trek of the tourist is in full swing. Cars go through headed to all the cardinal points of the compass. Some are loaded down with equipment, bed springs, mattresses, and the like. As a rule, the older travelers carry a minimum amount of equipment. There is little pleasure in a trip that resolves itself each day into a job of loading and unloading that is not unlike many a complete lot of household goods

Laws and Crime

Crime, according to Wade Ellis of the American Bar Association's Crime Commission, costs the United States $13,000,000,000 a year.

We have 12,000 murders annually, 50 times the number recorded in Great Britain. Since 1900 our murder rate has increased 350 per cent.

The causes of crime are many and foremost among them Mr. Ellis places our multiplicity of laws which, by simple mathematics, has increased the total of crimes. Every new law breeds new criminals, decreases respect for society and places new burdens on our courts of justice.

It is a disheartening fact that the great majority of our citizens take crime more or less as a matter of course. What is needed is an active public consciousness that will force a simplification and reform of our laws and legal system, and oppose the tendency to pile more enactments on the already bulging statute books. Too many laws touch the good citizen and fail to discomfort the criminal.

The sole test for any law is whether it protects society and punishes or reforms the underworld. We must return to first principles in our war against crime.

Different

A woman sent the society editor an announcement of her daughter's engagement. An hour later the daughter called up in evident agitation to ask if it were too late to correct one of the details. "Mother made a dreadful mistake and I can't understand how it happened. She said father is a plumber." "And isn't your father a plumber?" patiently inquired the editor. "Certainly not! My father is a domestic sanitary engineer."

Everyone has heard about the man who makes two blades of grass grow where one grew before, but the fellow in whom hay fever sufferers are most interested is the man who can make one dandelion grow where two grew before.

Prepare for Tournament

The local Golf club is making preparations to entertain the Southern New Mexico Golf Club Association, which meets here August 18-19. It is estimated that at least 100 players will attend the meet. Dr. Johnson, president of the club, has named the following committees:

- Tournament Committee—Bryan Cazier, Charles M. Cree, T. E. Kelley, T. A. Spencer. Grounds and Greens Committee—M. U. Finley, Will Ed Harris, T. E. Kelley. Rules Committee—Bryan Cazier, A. J. Rolland, T. A. Spencer, Ino. A. Haley. Trophy Committee—A. J. Rolland, Sabino Vidaurri, T. E. Kelley, T. A. Spencer. Lodging Committee—M. B. Paden, G. T. McQuillen, Ben Sanchez. Entertainment Committee—J. M. Beck, J. C. Burkett, Will Gallagher. Refreshment Committee—Mesdames LaValle, Crow, Finley, Will Ed Harris, F. H. Johnson, Cazier, Burkett. Reception Committee—Mesdames Will Ed Harris, Cazier, Rolland, Beck, F. H. Johnson, Haley, Burkett.

"I'd never marry a man who was studying pharmacy."

"Why?"

"Oh, I just couldn't stand living on a farm."

"When did Moses live?" asked the teacher.

The class was silent, so she continued: "Open your books and read the page about Moses. What does it say there?"

After a pause a boy replied: "It says, 'Moses, 4000 B. C.'"

"Then why didn't you know when Moses lived?" demanded the teacher

"Well," said the boy, "I thought that was his telephone number."

Mrs. Scott Dies

Mrs. Lillie McClung Scott, who made Carrizozo her home a number of years, died in El Paso Wednesday of this week. Our information comes through the El Paso Herald of yesterday's date, which makes the following announcement concerning her death:

Mrs. Lillie McClung Scott, 60, of 1118 North Florence street, prominent in club and welfare circles, died at Providence hospital early Wednesday, following an illness of about three months. She returned to El Paso Monday from Claypool, Ariz., where she had gone to visit her sons. Living in El Paso for the last eight years, she was very active in Eastern Star and was a member of chapter No. 4. Mrs. Scott also took a great interest in the work of Westminster Presbyterian church, of which she was a member.

Surviving her are two brothers, C. P. McClung, Marshall, Texas, and D. D. McClung, Palestine, Texas; three sons, Kenneth K. and Benjamin O. Scott of Claypool and Charles M. Scott of Beaumont, Texas, and two daughters, Miss Alice D. Scott of Harrisonburg, Va., and Miss Margaret E. Scott of El Paso.

Funeral arrangements are pending the arrival of Miss Alice D. Scott of Harrisonburg, who is expected Friday.
