Concerning the defeat of Senator Henry J. Allen of Kansas, what could be more appropriate at an election just preceding Thanksgiving than the beheading of the leader of the "Young Turks"?

"Rejuvenating" The Republican Party

Washington, Nov. — National Republican leaders, according to press reports, have decided, as a result of the late election, that the party must be reorganized and rejuvenated. A part of the reported program is that it must appeal to the younger element. Among the details of procedure, it is reported that former Senator Allen of Kansas—he will be former Senator on December 1—is to be a sort of liaison officer between the Congress and the White House to reconcile the various party elements, and that he will eventually be promoted to the Chairmanship of the Republican National Committee and be the focal figure around whom the younger element is to rally.

Commenting upon this plan, the New York Times is skeptical concerning results. The paper says:

"The Republican party has ceased to appeal generally to the young. They are disgusted by its . . . archaic pattern and mystic formulas, the corruption that has long marked it in Pennsylvania, Indiana, Illinois. In many States where there has been no act of scandal, the management is in the hands of bosses more successful in alienating old than in attracting new members. Generally speaking, the promotion of mediocrities is the rule. More and more, able and independent men find themselves out of sympathy with a party that has become so largely mechanical, time-serving, living in the past, barren for the most part, of brave and inspiring leadership. It loses followers because it lacks such chiefs.

"It must be revived, if it is to be, by being honest, straightforward and bold, led by men who have a nobler aim in public life than office and the distribution of patronage and the control of Legislatures. . . .

"The artificial stimulation proposed at Washington is merely humorous."

America's Forest Rangers

Now that only 3,000 United States forest rangers are left to cope with 50,000 forest fires annually, their duties in tracing and apprehending incendiaries, are rivaling the daring of the Northwest Mounted Police, according to John Coffman, chief of the forest service in the National Parks.

"These rangers are providing a new chapter in the history of woodsmanship rivaling Daniel Boone and his successors," says Coffman, "because many fires are started with malicious intent, and the capture of the incendiaries is as important as putting out fires."

Man, says the "smoke chaser" chief in the Country Home, is responsible for 20 per cent of the fires. That's where the trailing of culprits at the point of a gun begins. Some fires are started for revenge. Others for gain. In two outstanding cases, one incendiary was traced by the bare hoofs of his horses. Another was brought to justice by a broken horse-shoe. Rangers filled tracks with plaster of paris and introduced the casts as conclusive evidence.

The inexorable law pursues campers, careless smokers and campers through vast stretches, from coast to coast, says Coffman, but still 10,000,000 acres of woods are swept annually by fire and the Nation must pay $6,500,000 for carelessness and vandalism.

Five Senators Each Serve Part of one Six-year Term

Washington, Nov. — Senator-elect Bulkley of Ohio will be the fifth man to serve a part of the six-year term for which Frank B. Willis was elected in 1926.

Senator Willis (Rep.) died in 1928, and Governor Donahey (Dem.) appointed Cyrus Locher (Dem.) to the vacancy. Senator Locher was defeated in the 1928 Senatorial primary by Graham P. Hunt, and Hunt was defeated in the ensuing election by Theodore Burton (Rep.) Senator Burton died in 1929, and the Republican governor appointed Roscoe C. McCulloch (Rep.) to the vacant seat. Senator McCulloch was nominated in the Republican primary this year, and defeated in the late election by Robert J. Bulkley, who will be the second Democrat and the fifth man to occupy the seat for the term which will expire March 4, 1933. So far as known there is no parallel to this record.

"Economy" vs. Unemployment

Washington, Nov.—One who signs himself a "Sub Carrier" contributes the following to the "Peoples' Forum" of the New York World:

Postmaster General Walter F. Brown has turned out to be one of the most unfortunate blunders of President Hoover's administration. At this time of dire economic stress, when the bread lines are being lengthened, the Postmaster General chooses to carry on a militant "hamstringing" crusade. He tells us that his single purpose is to reduce the annual deficit. This in less tumultuous days was a high and worthy purpose. But in these days it is sad, especially since, as he himself has stated, the points at which some real economy might be effected are beyond the scope of his authority.

"What, then, becomes of his cheeseparing zeal? Reduction of the deficit? Hardly. Reduction of Republican majority in 1932 more likely."

J. HAM FOR PRESIDENT

(Detroit News)

New York presents the Democratic party with a candidate for the presidency in Governor Franklin Delano Roosevelt with a plurality of 725,000. But what of it? New York has a population of 12,600,000. Illinois, with a population of 7,000,000 rolls up a plurality of 700,000 for James Hamilton Lewis. If percentages count for anything, Senator-elect Lewis has a better title than Roosevelt. Besides, Senator Lewis comes from the middle west, the state of Lincoln. And he has many other advantages.

His very name is an asset. As Presidents we have had an Abraham, a Millard, a Ulysses, a Rutherford, a Grover, a Woodrow, a Calvin, and fairly unusual names in politics, but we have never had a Jim Ham. The short, euphonious syllables roll trippingly from the tongue. They suggest political balladry. If "Tippecanoe and Tyler too" could bring the Whigs into power, what might not poets of the people do for a Democracy led by Jim Ham? He fits elegantly into the tune of "Old Man River," for example: Jim Ham Lewis, that Jim Ham Lewis, He don't say nothing, he don't do nothing; He keeps rolling, just keeps on rolling along.

Then we never have had a president with pink whiskers and spats. Chester A. Arthur had whiskers, but they were not pink. He was not a handsome dresser, but spats were not in vogue in his day. Think what a credit it would be to America to have in the highest office of the land one of the best dressers of the land. It is not true that a Democrat, to be successful, must go without a necktie, or, if he does wear one, must carry a dried egg on it. That is a Republican slander.

But what of age? In 1932, Governor Roosevelt will be 50 and Jim Ham will be 66. But Jim Ham, like the famed Athanasius, is immortal, and, unlike that legendary character, he retains his youth and certainly will never pray the gods to be turned into a grasshopper. Age cannot wither nor custom stale his infinite variety, as Shakespeare remarked of Cleopatra. He remains young as the morning, fresh as a daisy, and if the Democrats in 1932 go into convention without considering his manifest and manifold advantages—(think of carrying a heavily Republican state by 700,000!—they will just be crazier than we imagine, that's all.

Some Housekeeping Hints and Recipes

By NELLIE MAXWELL

Why are the things that have no death Eternity is thrust upon A bit of earth, a senseless stone. A grain of dust, a casual cloud Receives the greatest gift of God. A pebble in the roadway lies— It never dies —Louis Untermeyer.

SUCH utensils as the egg beater or food chopper need oiling, but one must use olive or vegetable oils that will not cause any taint to enter the food when the utensils are used. Basement stoves and all iron or rustable utensils should be well greased with paraffin oil before leaving them for any length of time. It will ruin in a short time any good stove.

To bring out the full flavor of the tea add a lump of sugar to the pot when the tea is put on to brew. The sugar brings out the flavor of the tea and makes it much stronger. Always acid the pot with boiling water before adding the tea. A bit of orange or lemon peel kept in the tea canister is well liked, or where the jasmine flowers bloom a handful of the fragrant blossoms added to it will make a delightful flavor that will please many. When washing a sweater sew up the button holes to keep them from stretching. When baking potatoes, if in a hurry, drop them into boiling water for five minutes, then dry and grease them and the skins will be thin and tender.

Banana Bread. Cream one-half cupful of butter, add one cupful of sugar, three bananas mashed fine and two well beaten eggs. Sift two cupfuls of flour, add one teaspoonful of soda and one-half cupful of sour milk. Mix well and pour into a greased baking pan and bake one hour.

Tutti Frutti Bread. Beat one egg, add one and one-fourth cupfuls of milk. Sift and add two cupfuls of flour with one-half teaspoonful of salt, two tablespoonfuls of sugar and two ounces of grated chocolate, melted. Bake one hour. (© 1930, Western Newspaper Union.)

THE MOTHER OF THE MAN

By Douglas Malloch

THE child is father of the man, the saying may be true. And yet some woman must, and can, be mother of the two. The baby needs a mother, yes, the baby on the floor. But there is not a man, I guess, who doesn't need her more.

Man courts her in his courting days, and will not let her be, And talks to her like books and plays, like movies that you see; He says she's like a rose in bloom, a lover's dream, and yet, O lucky, lucky groom, that isn't what you get.

A fellow thinks he wants a bride, he even wants a wife, And yet he really needs, beside, a mother all his life. He loves her for her beauty's sake, but when the sun is gone, He needs a mother who will make him put his rubbers on.

Man thinks he needs a maiden fair—the greatest need of his is some one who will tell where his hat or hammer is. The dog perhaps was once a pup, and kitten cats began, But one thing never does grow up, and that one thing's a man. (© 1930, Douglas Malloch.)

Fire Festival Used to Prove Love

FIRE festivals, one of the most primitive means of making a love charm, actually take place today in different forms in several countries, reveals a writer in Mystic Magazine. These fire festivals of today come from an old pagan sex rite in the days when fire was a symbol of fertility. In such times weird sorts of fire worshiping were practiced to insure the birth of many children and abundant growth of crops. They have been changed to their quaint and more wholesome use of today through modern influence. But the original rite may still be seen if one explores into the heart of central Africa and a few other tropical regions.

An intimate view of a modern fire festival, continues the writer, can be obtained by transporting ourselves to the pretty French province of Franche-Comte, where they are still held. If we are lucky, we find a spot in a forest where the ceremony is about to take place. We hide and watch by the light of the moon. Presently, a gay group of young men and women come tramping into a clearing among the trees. Some are pulling small carts loaded with fagots. Others gather up dead branches of trees from the ground. After much whispering and many gleeful smiles, the fuel is at last piled in preparation for a huge bonfire, ready for the lighting.

A match is applied to the wood and the flames commence to mount, throwing a ruddy glow to the tops of the trees. The comely girls stand about, fascinated, faces glowing from their task of gathering wood, eyes bright with faithful anticipation. Then the young people leap over and through the flames, taking great care not to singe or besmirch themselves. They believe that those who come through the ordeal unscathed will be happily married within a year, and be blessed with children.

Perhaps two lovers will get off by themselves to a clearing, light a bonfire and perform the curious custom alone. The young lad leaps boldly through the fire. If unscathed he smiles happily back through the tall, red tongues of heat to where his sweetheart stands preparing to jump. Her lover braces his legs and, with arms outstretched, is ready to receive her when she comes hurtling through the flames. If her flight is so swift that she is unscathed, both are overjoyed. They kiss tenderly, worshipfully, and set off for their homes, hand in hand, firmly believing that they will be married within a year.

This and That

When one waits on himself he considers himself well waited on.

There are times when a man is afterward glad he had no pistol.

These present days are going to be "the good old days" for somebody.

Your friend doesn't flatter you; he really means it, bless his golden heart.

Charity should begin at home and economy begins with staying there.

Humid nature does change; but about a hair's breadth in a generation.

If people hate to say no, one is foolish to push them into saying yes.

Too much "Independence of soul" prevents a man from being promoted.

One reason a great many men don't enjoy society is because they think they have to be artificial. They don't.

What prevents two men from becoming friends is that neither of them will brook opposition of any kind.

"Seas of the Sun"

The ancient Peruvians believed that the sun once came down to the earth and laid two eggs and then went back again. From these two eggs men sprung.

THE BRITISH HOWL

By Hugh Hutton

(Author of Nutty Natural History.)

THIS small feathered friend is quite common in the British Isles, and is the true explanation of the aversion to furnaces and other modern heating plants over there. Nearly every home has one tied up beside the fireplace. The snappy little creature is a regular little spitter, and whenever the fire gets low he becomes angry and expectorates into the coals, whereupon the fire revives. He thus acts as a very dependable automatic thermostat.

As shown here, the body of the howl is an English walnut, and the head a filbert. The feet are lima beans, the ears popcorn, and the beak is a split almond kernel sawed across. The eyes are painted on in almost any color. (© Metropolitan Newspaper Service.)

"Noisy" Telephone Wire Barred by Spinners

Two venerable spinners of Vermont are going to be sadly disturbed when airplanes get to sitting numerously above their roof, says the Boston Globe. Recently a new summer resident who has built a house near theirs wished to run a telephone wire from his house to the village and found that its best line lay over the cottage occupied by the maiden ladies. His request is so run it met with this response:

"We should be glad to accommodate our new neighbor in every way we can, but ours is a very quiet home. We won't even allow a radio in it, and the noise made by people talking by telephone over our heads would be too annoying for us to consider it."

Ingenious Franklin We have been using the mails for advertising and propaganda purposes ever since the days of Franklin, says an article in the United States Daily, Franklin, the first postmaster general of the Colonies, at the threshold of the Revolutionary war, changed his frank from "Free-B. Franklin" to "B. Free Franklin."

The Discontented Faces of Women

By JEAN NEWTON

WE SAT, my friend and I, at a table in the terrace of the Cafe de la Paix. Suddenly my friend remarked, "There come two American women."

"Why so sure?" I retorted. "They have the American woman's mouth. That mouth is a dead giveaway."

They came closer, talking. Yes, they were Americans. But what did my friend mean about the mouth? I noticed that these women had a slightly discontented expression. The corners of their mouths drooped. It gave them the appearance of fault-finding, of dissatisfaction.

"There's only one woman who goes about with that expression," asserted my companion, "the American woman." I pondered. Why was this so?

"Too much for nothing," declared my friend. "No vital interest. No need for any sacrifice of self. No inner companionship with their men. To be found only in work together. Without understanding it, these women feel cheated. They haven't grasped the fundamental fact that what they want isn't to be given something, but to give. They want to be asked for something worth while."

I have taken that from an article by Hildegarde Hawthorne in a current magazine because I believe it is well worth reading by every one. The discontented faces of women is a big question, and I believe Miss Hawthorne has hit the nail on the head as to the reason for them.

But I take issue with the author when she typifies the woman with a discontented face as the American woman! It may be true that many of the American women who frequented the Cafe de la Paix in Paris looked discontented. They were doubtless bored! But, while it is true that the luxury of travel is being opened up to even greater numbers of American women, it is still hardly fair to take a type of woman who happens to be familiar among those tripping about on the continent of Europe—and call her the American woman!

The busy mothers of America—who are not counted in tens or in hundreds—do not have that discontented look.

If America is a woman's country it is primarily so because it is a place where women have more opportunity for self-expression, for activity, for that giving of themselves which sustains the life of the spirit, and which is the greatest enemy of boredom and discontent. So the person who ascribes that discontented look, the bored face of the selfish, over-indulged woman to American women is making a mistake. You may meet those faces on some American women in Europe, but they are by no means typical of the American woman. (© 1930, Bell Syndicate.)

Trays for Yuletide Gifts

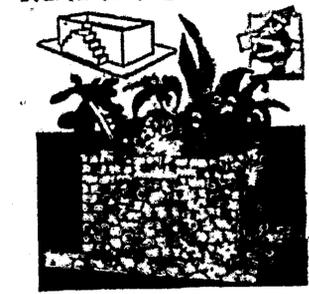

Trays are registering as especially "smart" Yuletide gifts in current holiday displays. Of the making of attractive trays, there seems to be no end this season. Like everything else in interior decoration trays have gone English to a great extent, depicting quaint stage-coach themes, and colorful hunting scenes. Contrasting these are exquisite effects which are French in their dainty rococo design and antique-lacquered flower colorings.

Amusing Hearthstone Brushes

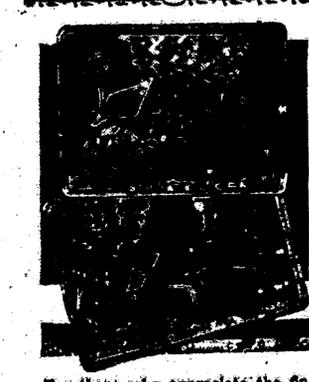

Perhaps it is a hint on Santa's part to keep the hearthstone splo and span for his coming. Anyway, his pack contains an unusual variety of amusing fireplace brushes this year. They are extremely decorative, too, for the spirit of the times is for the humblest utilitarian article to be ornamental to the nth degree as well as useful.

Fern Garden for Christmas

For Christmas-giving miniature fern (actually growing) gardens are the "big idea" this year. The thought was inspired by the lilliputian Japanese gardens which have ever been an object of admiration. The one pictured is only about 14 inches long. You can buy the wooden framework (outline sketch in upper corner). Removable slat flower box or pan fits in the top. You can have the fun of painting it yourself to give it the appearance of a terraced rockery, using for the purpose sealing wax dissolved in alcohol which gives a handsome lacquered effect. Tiny plants and ferns are planted in the galvanized box in mossy soil. A gayly painted toy bridge and doll-like figures add to the landscape.

Scenic Beauty in Art Plaques

For those who appreciate the finer things, yet must "count the pennies" in Christmas giving, the problem is happily solved in the exquisitely artistic plaques which abound in the holiday displays this season. Many of these are of rare scenic beauty as will be seen by the two lovely types pictured. The one at the top is called "The Hawk-Way Change," and the other "The Roadside Mill." Being of plaster of paris done in relief work with old ivory finish, these bits of art are most inexpensive. Other subjects in this series of four are "A New England Home" and "Edinburgh Coast."

WORLD WAR YARNS

by Lieut. Frank E. Hagan

War Always Dodged Him

Lieut. Morrell Tomlin of the One Hundred and Twenty-fourth field artillery of the Thirty-third division was a veteran of the regular army. But it seems that until the World War came along he "just couldn't catch up with a war" and even when he found himself up near the front in France he was still pessimistic. Hence his plaintive statement to his friend, Capt. "Bob" Casey, now of the Chicago Daily News but in 1918 executive officer of Battery A of that artillery regiment:

"I've been trying to get into a war since the Wounded Knee massacre. I was just a kid then, but I ran away from home and tried to enlist. But by the time I found a recruiting sergeant who would take me all the Indians had decided to behave themselves.

"It's always like that. The excitement just naturally dies out when I come around. And you watch and see. It will be the same here. I never have any luck. I was in the guard when the Spanish-American war came along. I got as far as Chickamauga Park. I didn't even get typhoid. I wanted to go to the Philippines and got as far as Omaha. I was down on the border with the cavalry when Pershing went into Mexico and the closest I got to a battle was the Austin bike.

"I have a hunch I can stop this war any time I want to just by walking up to the front lines. The Helms will say, 'Oh, look! Here comes Tomlin.' And they'll call it a day and go home!"

An Interrupted Parade

June 4, 1918, was an eventful day at Atlantic City, N. J. Hundreds of bathers were at play in the surf. A parade of Knights of the Mystic Shrine was in progress along the boardwalk, preceded by a band which played "Where Do We Go From Here." Suddenly a boat appeared around the end of one of the long piers, a white flag of distress whipping at the bow. There was a moment of stunned silence then a shout of welcome arose from the crowd. The band swung into "The Star Spangled Banner" and excited Shriners, unmindful of their regalia, rushed waist-deep into the surf.

For they recognized this craft as one of the lifeboats of the New York and Porto Rico liner, Carolina, which had been torpedoed by a German submarine off the coast of New Jersey on June 2. Other lifeboats, carrying the survivors of the attack, had been picked up but up to this moment nothing had been heard of No. 3, which carried 21 men and 8 women.

As the boat was beached the crowd surrounded it. A little girl was the first passenger lifted ashore. She was dripping wet but smiling and she blew a kiss to the crowds that cheered her as she was carried into the hospital tent. "I'm all right. Help those other people. Just give me a coat. I'm cold," she said. To a big six-foot Shriners who tore off his gold-laced, trimmed green velvet coat and flung it about her shoulders, she smiled her thanks.

Two frail women, biting their lips in their effort not to break down under the strain of their experience were carried in to land. They were dressed in heavy blue overalls and jumpers. One of them fainted as a sudden blast from the band which was madly playing "The Star Spangled Banner" carried the tune of the national anthem to her ears. The other woman also as she heard the music for the first time seemed to realize that she was freed from the terror of the sea and among friends. "We're saved," she remarked simply, then fell unconscious into the arms of a doctor.

Time to Go Away From There

Out of a varied career in Belgium and Russian relief work and service in both the British Expeditionary Force and the A. E. F., Lieut. Carleton G. Bowden of the American Intelligence service, now a Boise (Idaho) business man, says this incident among all others stands out clear-etched in his memory. Here is how he tells about it:

"I was driving one day just back of the lines in a dilapidated Ford, barely able to creep along. A corporal from Atlanta was the chauffeur. A British 8-inch howitzer battery was firing alongside the road.

"As we passed near the battery there was a terrific explosion, caused, we learned later, by a premature in the bore. The air was filled with whistling scrap iron from the completely demolished gun.

"Stunned and paralyzed with fright, I turned to the driver. He was sliding over the wheel and out of the car. "Where are you going?" I asked as soon as I could recover my voice. "He looked at me with a blank stare. Then he muttered hoarsely: 'Lieutenant, I am going to get out and run!'"

The Extra Christmas Plate

By ROBERT J. C. STEAD

ON THE fourth Christmas in succession Nellie Martin set an extra plate. On past Christmases her husband and the two boys had pretended not to have noticed it. But this year Fred Martin, walking into the big dining room just as his wife was adding the finishing touches to her Christmas table, stopped when his eye fell on the extra plate.

"I think you shouldn't set it, Nellie," he said, gently. "It only reminds us of things we would be better to forget."

Mrs. Martin brushed a capable, flouzy hand quickly across her eyes. Things would go blurry when she thought of Lucy.

"Let me leave it just once more," she almost pleaded. "It is more than four years now since Lucy went, and every day I am hoping for her back. Particularly at Christmas I like to think that her place is set and waiting for her. Oh, Fred, if we could let her know."

Fred's hand found hers, where it had rested a moment against the table for support. "I know," he said quietly. "I was wrong in turning her out as I did. I thought the honor of the family demanded it. I thought perhaps she would write; that is, if she is still . . ."

He left the sentence unfinished. Death might not have been unwelcome to Lucy, and four years of silence left them to draw their own conclusions.

"Lucy is too proud to write," his wife asserted. "And yet, I have always felt that sometime she would come back. Perhaps at Christmas."

That is the time of year when one just can't help thinking of home.

"If that Blake boy had been any good," Fred lamented. "She was just throwing herself away on him. That is why I gave her the choice of giving him up or getting out. I wanted to save her. And she got out."

"I know," his wife agreed. "You meant it for the best. Arthur Blake was said to be wild and useless, but the Blake's are a good family, and I've often noticed that boys of a good family generally straighten up again, even if they do go a little wild for a while. You know, Fred, when I married you there were people who said you were, well, just a little—"

"But I got a wife like you," her husband answered. "That makes all the difference."

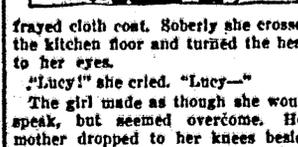

"Yes, and Arthur got a wife like Lucy—if he married her," Nellie Martin insisted. "Let me leave the plate once more. I'm not giving up hope—"

At that moment the boys were heard coming in by the kitchen door. There were muffled voices, and a sound as though they were helping some one.

George, the elder, appeared in the dining room door, and his face summoned his mother.

"Some one here to see you, Mom," he said, in an awed voice.

In the kitchen Mrs. Martin found a woman sitting on a chair, her head turned away, her figure enclosed in a frayed cloth coat. Soberly she crossed the kitchen floor and turned the head to her eyes.

"Lucy!" she cried. "Lucy—" The girl made as though she would speak, but seemed overcome. Her mother dropped to her knees beside her, chaffing her hands, speaking words of endearment, crying for Fred and the boys.

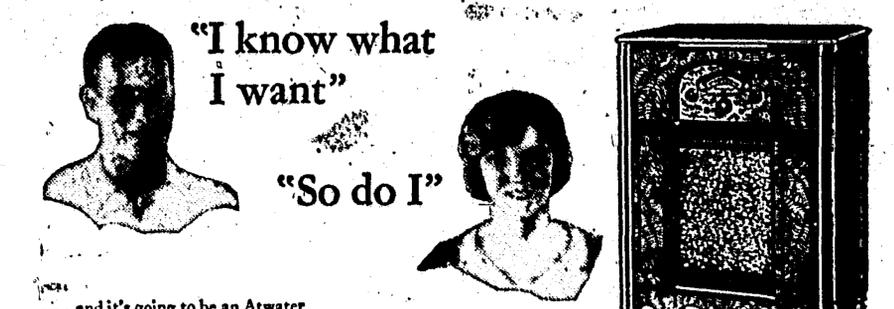

"We found her in the snow, just between the barn and the house," the boys explained. "She seemed to have fallen there."

But right then Lucy seemed to come to life. She sprang to her feet. "Mother—Dad—I can't keep it from you any longer. Please help me off with my coat."

Willing hands drew it from her shoulders. "Why, Lucy!" her mother exclaimed, "you are well dressed."

"Well enough, mother. You see, Arthur wanted to be sure how you would receive your erring daughter before he would agree to come in."

ATWATER KENT RADIO with the GOLDEN VOICE

"I know what I want"

"So do I"

... and it's going to be an Atwater Kent. What we want is performance, and so far as we're concerned there's only one choice.

We want the Golden Voice of the new Atwater Kent—good, clear, consistent reception, without a lot of noise. We want power enough to bring in distant stations. We want a dial we can read easily from any position, without straining our eyes—that new Atwater Kent Quick-Vision Dial. We want the new Atwater Kent Tone Control, so that we can bring out the low notes or the high notes as we please.

We want a radio that's always ready to go when we come to the end of a day's work. We want the kind of dependability that Atwater Kent is famous for. We want a radio from the maker who insists that farm people shall have just as good performance as city people.

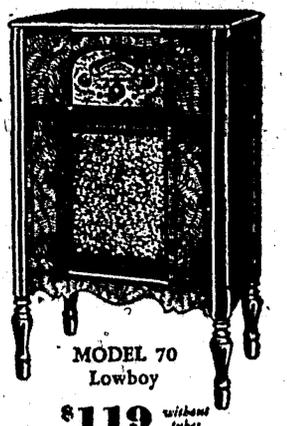

We want an up-to-date radio, with all the newest worth-while improvements—plus Screen-Grid, from the manufacturer with longest Screen-Grid experience. We want a really good-looking radio—one we can show with pride when friends come in.

We're going to put our money where our faith is, and that means one of the new Atwater Kents. When we go into town tomorrow, we're going to stop at a dealer's and order an Atwater Kent. We know what we want and we're going to get it—NOW.

The new 1931 Atwater Kent with the Golden Voice is built for either all-electric or battery operation. That's another reason why rural families all over the United States prefer the new Atwater Kent.

Man's Never-Ending War on His Insect Enemies

One war that never ceases is that waged by insects upon man. Every year insects cost the human race millions upon millions of dollars by their destruction of growing crops and stored harvests. And they kill or maim thousands of human beings by spreading disease.

Science is constantly engaged in investigating new means of keeping insect foes at bay, and wonderful work has been done.

The stamping out of malaria in large areas once almost uninhabitable, and the checking of the spread of sleeping sickness are examples of what has been accomplished.

Now comes news of a discovery which may open up entirely new lines of attack on insect pests. For a long time past a young Australian scientist, Dr. F. G. Holdaway, has been endeavoring to find a way of dealing with the flour beetle, which does an enormous amount of damage. He has found that the proportion of grubs that turn into males and females can be controlled by regulating their food; starve a hundred grubs for one day and the majority will develop into male beetles.

Now, the female beetle may lay thousands of eggs. If, therefore, he has found a means of decreasing the number of females, the beetle pest may be kept down. Similar principles of sex-control may be found applicable to other insect enemies of man.

Petrified Tree Stump

While blasting out a lodge at Moose River, Maine, a road commissioner blew out a large fragment of rock which had in the center the well-defined remains of an ancient stump that had become almost wholly petrified, small pieces of the wood being easily picked out of the stone. The wood appeared to be a knot, which in some remote age had solidified as the sandstone formation in which it was found gradually hardened into a concrete mass.

Ammonia in Drinking Water

A new use for ammonia is in treating water in combination with chlorine. To insure proper bactericidal action an excess of chlorine is usually added and the water thus treated has a noticeable and rather unpleasant taste. If ammonia is added to the chlorine, forming chloramine, the amount of chlorine necessary is reduced to less than half the usual standard and the bactericidal action is increased and made more thorough.

Perfectly Technical

"When you see a football man start off on a long run," says a woman analyst of football in Woman's Home Companion, "look in front of him. That is the secret of his success."

Fretful DAYS Restless NIGHTS ... give child Castoria

FUSSY, fretful, can't sleep, won't eat . . . It isn't always easy to find just where the trouble is with a young child. It may be a stomach upset; it may be sluggish bowels.

But when little tongues are coated and there is even a slight suspicion of bad breath—it's time for Castoria!

Castoria, you know, is a pure vegetable preparation especially made for babies and children. When Baby cries with colic or is fretful because of constipation, Castoria brings quick comfort, and, with relief from pain, soothes him to restful sleep. For older children—up through all the school years, Castoria is equally effective in helping to right irregularities. Just give it in larger doses. What a HEAD THROB?

The woman who knows, would as soon start out without her purse! She always carries Bayer Aspirin.

When your head fairly throbs from the stores and crowds, reach for that little box. Take two or three tablets, a swallow of water, and resume your shopping—in comfort. Relief is immediate.

Most people use these wonderful tablets for something. But do you know how many, many ways they can spare you needless suffering? From the discomfort—and danger—of a neglected cold. From serious consequences of a sore throat. From those pains peculiar to women. From the misery of neuralgia and neuritis. Every drugstore has genuine Bayer Aspirin. The box says Bayer, and every tablet bears the Bayer cross. Tablets thus marked do not depress the heart.

Getting Ready

Local Democrats who have met many defeats, but who are on the winning side once ever so often, are getting out their old, dusty, battered tiles, giving them a brushing up—with this general Hoover prosperity new ones are not thought of—with the hope of using them, in combination evening suit and tuxedo that have lain in moth balls for 10, these many years. Many back yards reek with the odor from the clothes lines which bear the apparel that warns the olfactory nerves that the anti-moth treatment, though long-drawn out, has been effectual; and about January the one these same old faithful suits and tiles that, with their wearers, have seen better days, will be in Santa Fe—because another Democrat, Arthur Seligman, will be inaugurated governor on that date. There may be some tears, we hope there will be no splits.

Organize for Christmas Cheer

In every community some individual or organization arranges to provide a basket of Christmas cheer for the less fortunate of the town.

In many communities several individuals or organizations working independently each provide baskets.

The result is that some families receive several baskets and a few do not receive any.

The best way to handle the matter of providing Christmas Cheer is to form an organization in each locality composed of interested organizations and individuals.

A list of the needy of the community is made up and given out by the chairman of the organization. If one individual group or organization desires certain families these are assigned to him and to no other. In this way there is no duplication and every deserving family is remembered.

The plan where it has been tried has proven very satisfactory and once instituted is easily kept up from year to year.

Farm Board Again Speculating In Wheat

Washington, Nov.—A recent news dispatch from Chicago stated that the Farm Board through Chairman Legge announced that the Grain Stabilization Corporation had bought 10,000,000 bushels of December wheat and would demand delivery. "As there are only 7,000,000 bushels of wheat in Chicago of the December contract variety," says the dispatch, "there appears to be a squeeze coming unless over 5,000,000 bushels more can be rushed here."

This is the first announcement by the Farm Board of its purchase of the new crop. The board has over 60,000,000 bushels of the last crop in storage which it has not sold, according to the same authority.

It seems like retributive justice that Senator Watson, Republican Senate leader, who assured his audiences in the late campaign that Democratic success meant "chaos," should be selected as his party's spokesman to accept the Democratic proposal to aid the administration in all matters designed to rescue the country from existing depression.

THE NEW CHEVROLET SIX HAS MANY IMPROVEMENTS

The introduction of the new Chevrolet Six marks the most impressive forward step in Chevrolet's twenty-year record of constant progress and improvement.

For this Bigger and Better Six offers new beauty of line and color, new luxury, new completeness and new quality—yet it sells at lower prices!

In every curve and sweep of Chevrolet's modern lines—in every detail of its smart new Fisher bodies, you will see the fine hand of the master designer and the skillful craftsman. And the more closely you inspect it, the more deeply impressed you will be.

The improvements in the new Chevrolet Six begin at the smart new chrome-plated headlamps and extend throughout the entire car. The radiator is deeper and unusually efficient. Due to the increased wheelbase, the lines are longer and lower, giving an air of exceptional fleetness and grace. And the new Fisher bodies combine with this more attractive exterior appearance, a new degree of interior luxury.

The upholstery is of fine quality mohair or broadcloth, carefully tailored and fitted. The number of individual springs in the rear seat cushions has been increased by 25%. The windshield and windows have been redesigned to provide wider vision. And all interior fittings have been made more pleasing to the eye.

The chassis of the new Chevrolet Six has also been refined and advanced in a number of different ways. The frame is heavier, deeper and stronger than before. There is a smoother operating, long lived clutch; a sturdier front axle; an entirely new steering mechanism of the worm and sector type; an easier shifting transmission. In fact, every vital feature of the new car has been made better and more satisfactory to the owner.

Obviously, these many improvements are responsible for a higher standard of quality than before. And they become doubly significant when you consider that they are offered in a car which provides the smooth, quiet, flexible performance of a 50-horsepower, six-cylinder motor—the comfort of four long semi-elliptic springs and four hydraulic shock absorbers—the safety of a gasoline tank at the rear of the car—and an economy of operation not surpassed by any automobile.

AT NEW LOW PRICES

Fine as it is, the new Chevrolet Six now sells at lower prices—making the economy and satisfaction of Chevrolet ownership even more outstanding. We urge you to come in and see the Bigger and Better Chevrolet. Its modern design reflects the spirit of the times—and it represents a value which will command the interest of every buyer in the low-price field.

Mrs. Paul Mayer was a visitor in El Paso Thanksgiving.

Attorney John E. Hall was in attendance upon the District Court in Estancia this week.

Leo and Orris Smith, of the Texas Park neighborhood, visited Alamogordo Thursday.

For Sale—O. M. Franklin Black Leg Bacterin; and Black Leaf 40. The Titsworth Company, Inc.

Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Garrard were in Roswell Thursday and took Thanksgiving dinner with Mr. and Mrs. Hawks.

The weather softened up during the week, and rain instead of snow was the form of moisture for our particular section.

Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Clouse went to El Paso Saturday, returning this week, accompanied by Mrs. Nellie Branum.

Mrs. Zoe Glassmire is very much improved following an illness that has confined her to her home the past ten days.

Mrs. L. Rupert, aunt of Mrs. S. S. Gillespie, is here from El Paso, visiting the Gillespies, and will remain until after New Year.

Get your Waterless Cookers and Utensils card and have it punched when you pay cash or pay on account at Ziegler Bros.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Shafer, among others, attended the Ford Show in Alamogordo. Mr. Shafer's Company here handles the Ford.

E. J. Shuida, S. P. engineer, who has been on the Tucumcari-Dawson run for about a year, returned Sunday. He will make runs out of Carrizozo from now on.

Dr. F. S. Randles came in this week from Mammoth, Arizona, and went to the Bonito country to look after mining interests. Doc says he's the twelve-millionth one to succumb to Hoover prosperity.

Mesdames Ellen C. Sellars and representative-elect Marie Cav enough passed through Sunday enroute to Fort Stanton from Santa Fe.

The Thanksgiving excursion on the S. P. to El Paso drew quite a few from Carrizozo. An extremely low rate was made by the Railroad Company.

Miss Clara Whitt, a sister of Mrs. Ramond Gillette, visited the Gillettes over the Thanksgiving period. Miss Whitt is a teacher in the Socorro, Texas, schools.

The local merchants are arranging their stock of Christmas goods, and will soon be ready to supply the demands. The "Shop and mail Early" idea is a good one and should be carried out.

The Finleys, the Barbers and the Haleys spent Thanksgiving on the Border with relatives and friends. They visited in a foreign country while absent, saw many others similarly engaged, all intent on establishing amicable relations with our neighbors across the Rio Bravo.

Charlie Fritz was a visitor Saturday from San Patricio. Charlie says he killed a 250 lb buck, but did not benefit in the Kelley-rifle contest for the reason that he did not register at the beginning. Even so, there is some glory in bagging a 250 lb. buck.

Floy Skinner, pipe line superintendent, was down Friday last from his home on the Mesa. When questioned concerning his success during the game season, he replied that he burned up a considerable amount of ammunition—shot at deer running and standing but failed to get a buck.

Edward Queen, formerly a resident of White Oaks but for the past few years residing in the Los Angeles region has again entered the mining game and is now superintendent of the New River Mining Company, near Denny, California. For many years Ed was engaged in mining at White Oaks and beat the game.

75 to 100 deer killed

1930 probably marks the biggest deer kill in the history of Lincoln county, and, naturally, the greatest number of hunters the county ever had. The T. E. Kelley Hardware & Sport Shop and the Hedrick Company, here, report license sales amounting to $800.00. We have no report from other sections of the county as to the number and value of licenses sold, but Mr. Kelley estimates that Ruidoso, Alto, Fort Stanton, Capitan, Nogal and Corona disposed of even more than the number sold here. Deer were killed in almost every section of the county—from Corona to Three Rivers; from the Oscuros to Picacho—and the number slain in this county will, it is believed, fall just a little short of a hundred. A number of non-residents spent the hunting season in our county, some of whom were successful in getting theirs, and quite a number of carcasses, the slaying having been made west of us, passed through here enroute to Texas points.

Prof. and Mrs. Gillette entertained the High School track team at their apartment last Saturday evening. The apartment was beautifully decorated for the occasion. A salad course, pie and cocoa were served, and as the team was not permitted to eat sweets during the intensive training period, they grabbed up Mrs. Gillette's promise to supply all the pie they wanted. One boy got on the out side of five slices, and others closely followed. We don't blame them however; the pie was good—we know because we had three slices ourselves. Two teachers, Miss Davis and Mr. Moore, were also guests, but a report is lacking on their consumption of pie.

SOUTHWEST NEWS

Mrs. Annie Lorentz of Phoenix shot and killed her five-year-old son, Scherer, and then sent a bullet through her left breast.

Skeels and Graham, Tucson, with a bid of $61,679.70 were the lowest of eight bidders for oil surfacing fifteen miles of the Phoenix-Yuma highway near Piedra.

For the first time in several years each of the fourteen counties of the state was represented by exhibits in agriculture, horticulture, livestock and mining at the Arizona State Fair at Phoenix.

Mrs. Frances Belle Allen of Las Cruces and Nicholas Escasjada of Santa Fe won the fourth national radio audition for New Mexico at State College. They will compete in the district audition at Dallas.

E. A. Hughes, chairman of the state tax commission, announced in Phoenix that the annual tax conference between Arizona county assessors and the tax commission of Arizona has been set for Jan. 5 at Tucson.

Gasoline tax receipts in New Mexico totaled $258,740.91 during October, an increase of 16 per cent over the corresponding month of last year, according to the monthly report of the Gasoline Tax Department.

The United Verde Extension Mining Company announced in Prescott that it had obtained an option on the famous Vulture mine, at one time the greatest gold producer in the Southwest. The property is eleven miles from Wickenburg.

Weddings in Arizona increased 6.7 per cent during 1929, the Department of Commerce announced in Phoenix. The increase is attributed to California's three-day marriage law. The department's figures showed 7,405 marriages in the state last year, as compared to 6,400 in 1928.

With an infant mortality rate of 23.4 for 1929, Arizona tied with Virginia for 38th place in the United States, the U. S. Bureau of Census announces. New Mexico and Utah surpassed Arizona in number of infant deaths. New Mexico had the highest rate in the nation with 26.9.

The old Bankhead Hotel at Roswell, built in early days by Pat Garrett, sheriff of Lincoln county, and for years the gathering place for the Pecos valley and all eastern New Mexico, will soon be replaced by a six-story modern hotel to cost $200,000. It will be built by J. P. White.

Standing majestically among the archives and exhibits in the Arizona Pioneer Society's museum at Tucson is the first printing press brought to Arizona. Upon this press, one of the first newspapers of the Southwest, the Arizonian, established at Tucson in February, 1859, was published four years before Arizona was cut away from New Mexico territory.

Consideration of the unemployment problem in Arizona was begun at a conference called in Phoenix recently by Gov. John C. Phillips and plans made for appointment of a state committee to carry on the study. Business leaders told the conference they believed steps should be taken to warn laborers elsewhere that conditions are not good in Arizona. "Arizona can take care of her own unemployed," Governor Phillips said after the meeting, "but it will become increasingly hard to care for the transients."

The industrial employment survey report recently issued by the U. S. Employment Service of the U. S. Department of Labor in Denver states that there was an upward trend in practically all major industries in Arizona except metal mining and lumbering activities which continued on a greatly curtailed basis. Harvesting of the cotton crop absorbed a large number of workers who will be employed in the next two to three months. A shortage of cotton pickers developed toward the latter part of October. Harvesting of other crops and other fall agricultural work gave employment to many men. Gold mining increased in the Kingman and Oatman districts. Building and general construction continued quite active and included considerable municipal improvement work, miscellaneous telephone construction, school buildings, churches, and manufacturing establishments. Highway construction offered employment to quite a number of men in various parts of the state. Forces employed in the railroad freight transportation departments are expected to show some increase in November with the supply of railroad labor equal to all requirements. There was a slight improvement in employment in several of the major industries in New Mexico during October; however, the supply of all classes of labor exceeded requirements, largely due to an influx of workers from other states. Harvesting of the fruit and vegetable crops was practically completed.

Raymond Huff, superintendent of schools at Clayton, was elected president in a contest with Miss Lela Manville of Silver City. The vote was Huff, 99; Miss Manville, 242.

Gov. R. C. Dillon has estimated the unemployment rate in New Mexico at 18 per cent and suggested to Arthur Woods, head of President Hoover's unemployment commission, that the situation would be materially remedied if the government would start work on federal building projects for which appropriations have already been set up.

What Roger Brought Home

A Christmas Story

by MYRTLE KOON CHERRYMAN

ROGER was always bringing home something! His twelve-year-old ideas of fun, household benefit and chivalry were sometimes embarrassing to the family. This time, it was a foreign looking woman, and luckily Mr. Damon was busy in the library, so he didn't have the shock of seeing her first.

Mrs. Damon, as she lay in bed, recovering from an attack of flu, had the news broken to her gently by Roger, who came in and closed the door after him.

"Mother, when I went down to the station to mail that letter on the train for Dad, I saw a woman sitting there crying, and I found out she'd come to work for some family, and they hadn't met her. She'd lost the address and could not remember their name—isn't that dumb? So I brought her home to have something to eat—she hadn't had any breakfast, and was afraid to go to a hotel."

"But, darling, did you tell her I was sick, and that our maid had to go home for a funeral?"

"Yes, I explained that we were in a pickle, too, and were trying to decide whether Dad and I should go to a hotel for our dinner."

"Well, you are going? It's foolish of you to stay home because the doctor won't let me get up yet. The turkey will keep, and if my fever doesn't return today, I can get up tomorrow. Mary will be back next day, and we can have our Christmas dinner then."

"Well, we'll see—but now I'm going to take her into the kitchen—she's Mrs. Schwartz—German, I guess—and got out the eggs and things for her. I told her I'd make her some toast, but that I wasn't very good on coffee. Dad could make it fine, but I was afraid he wouldn't be enthusiastic."

"Hardly!" exclaimed Mrs. Damon, remembering her husband's complex against doing anything not on the program. "Well, do the best you can, dear—but I hate to think of the way that kitchen must look after two days of male housekeeping."

She went back to her reading, and as the house was quiet, she finally fell asleep, making up for the hours lost worrying in the night about what her "boys" would do for holiday festivity in this bleak situation.

Two hours later she was roused by a gentle tap at her door, and in response to her "Come!" Roger entered, carrying a dainty tray, with a cup of steaming chocolate, and some attractive little cakes.

"She made it—the chocolate—and these are some kuchen, or whatever you call 'em—she had in her bag, like they make in the old country. And she's got all the dishes washed. I helped put 'em away—and now, what 'd'ye s'pose?"

"She has unfolded her wings and flown back to heaven!" guessed Mrs. Damon, sipping the most delicious cocoa she had ever tasted.

"No! She's got the turkey in the oven, and is getting the dinner! I'm going to the phone now to see if I can locate the folks that sent for her. She remembered the name—Martin. She told me half an hour ago, but I didn't want to hurry too much, because I wanted her to get the dinner cooked first."

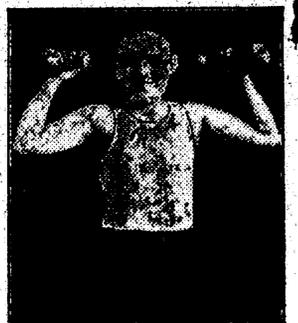

"Oh, you scamp!" laughed his mother. "Go right to the phone and call up all the Martins. There are so many it may take until the turkey is done, anyway."

"Yes, it's pretty near ready now!" Whether Roger artfully timed his search for lost employers or not, they were located just as dinner was ready, and were so jubilantly grateful that they told Mrs. Schwartz to serve the dinner and eat her own; they would send for her in an hour to cook their own evening meal. It seemed they had expected her at another station, and had worried all morning over what had happened to the poor woman, as well as what would happen to their own poor dinner.

When the angel-cook left at four o'clock, she would take no pay for her work, saying: "I had a gut Christmas, and the little boy was my Kris Kringle."

"Gerald suffered with his stomach and bowels until he was listless and weak," says Mrs. B. E. Geren, 822 W. Main St., Oklahoma City, Okla. "Now he's the strongest boy I know. I gave him California Fig Syrup, because Mother used it. It increased his appetite, regulated his bowels, helped his digestion."

Nothing could be more convincing than the way thousands of mothers are praising California Fig Syrup to show how it acts to build-up and strengthen headachy, bilious, half-sick, constipated children.

Your doctor will approve the use of this pure vegetable product as often as impure breath, coated tongue, listlessness or feverishness warn of constipation—or to keep bowels open in colds or children's diseases.

CHAPTER X—Continued

Will was only slightly aware of her weeping. He seemed to have entered into a new and stimulating plane of existence. He had passed out of the role of adorer and slave for Ernestine, he thought, with some indefinable vexation at her in his heart. He felt himself a man grown now, and full of asp. A wife was only one part of the complex and fascinating business of living.

He was late at the office in the morning, as they had over slept. There was something heavy against the door, so that he could scarcely open it, and, on entering, he almost fell over the lifeless form of John Poole.

He had come back to the office after his birthday party, and had been at work. The light still shone over his drawing board. He had died here, alone, and Will, even in that first shock, was full of the knowledge that his death had come, not alone in the night but with the loss of his gift.

Yet on the drawing board was a picture—his last. It was different from his other work. It was a bend in the stream with a great tree overhanging the water and the meadow beyond and the figures of half a dozen small boys naked and white in the sunshine, playing about the tree and on a spring-board caught beneath a great root. There was in it no mockery, no satire, no clowning. It was simple, kind. Staring at it, before he went to give the alarm, Will felt sure that this work of the skilled pencil was the externalization after half a century of some remembered scene of his boyhood.

Will grieved honestly for John Poole and thought often and mysteriously about that last picture. If John Poole could draw like that, why had he never done so? The answer to this was disturbing.

Will established his rights to Poole's cartoon ideas only to find them worthless. Contracts ran out, strips piled up unused, and he found himself working against a vast indifference, more crushing, more impenetrable than that which he had fought for a place for Poole's strip. But his new inner activity carried with it such personal joy that he could not be sufficiently chagrined by the collapse of his business enterprise and the danger to his income.

CHAPTER XI

The Rift in the Lute

"I think you'd better go to Pastano's, don't you, Ernestine?" Will asked one night in June. The children sat at the supper table with them, and the heat, turning more sultry with dusk, was already stifling.

"It's one way of getting rid of us," said Ernestine, a quality of familiar bitterness in her voice.

Will made no answer for a moment, then he said, with more gentleness than had become his wont, "I think perhaps it'll be a good thing for all of us. It will give me a chance to work out some ideas here in the house alone, and it will be a rest and change for you. Anyhow, kitten, don't you think you could dispense with a little of the heavy irony? If I want you to stay in Chicago it's in the hope that you will die of the heat, and if I want you to go away, it's to rid myself of you. Let's think about only the children."

"Wrong again," said Ernestine, and laughed unhappily.

They were poor again now, and it was so hot. It was necessary for them to go either to Pastano's or to mamma's, and this fact spoiled the prospect of a summer at the lake. She wondered why she was reluctant to leave Will when they rubbed each other so raw!

It was not like it had been, that other hard time, when they were close—heart against heart, sharing every thought and feeling. For now, she was poor, but he was not. She was looking upon the face of poverty that John Poole had depicted for her years ago when she was a careless bride. But Will, either because of longer and closer acquaintance with Lack, or more probably, because of his own secret happiness, was not dismayed—was, in fact, unfeeling.

All day long, with the front bedroom door shut, he worked in there on drawings which he would not let her see, but which he could not seem to sell. Their difficulties, her fears for the future, did not pierce him. He was characteristically good-natured and happy. Ernestine was filled, with a deep despair and vexation with him that he could be so casual.

As she sat, trying to swallow a little of the food she had prepared so carefully, Ernestine saw ahead of her a long vista of the years in which she washed and ironed Will's clothes, tended to his bodily needs, for food, for comfort, for sex, and was for ever outside the circle of his reality, a person whom he saw only to forget when his glance left her. She could bear any hardship, and pain. But to do without love—this she could not bear. "I really don't see why I shouldn't go to mamma's," she said. "All these silly old quarrels with Loring—what do they amount to? But mamma is going to have guests all summer—and you don't want me to go there."

"I don't care what you do," he said stiffly. "Only I'll never go to take Haven again."

"It's go to Pastano's," she said listlessly. "I'll write tomorrow."

The day came when Pastano's big limousine with the swarthy chauffeur stood at the door for them, to take them to the train. Ernestine was admonishing the children about keeping clean, and Will put his arms about her, so practical and stern in her motherhood.

"Why are you always so sore at me?" he asked, and kissed her averted cheek. "You're so strange, and so difficult. I know it's hard for you, but I'm doing all I can."

"Are you?" she asked, and smiled in a secret annoying way.

Will's temper rose within him. "You think I'm not?"

"Did I say that?"

"Yes—practically—yes, you did. Your tone—"

"Oh, then I must be careful even of my tones?"

He flung his hands up in a gesture of despair, and made no further effort to win her. After a moment she turned to him with her great tragic eyes.

"You know that I don't care how poor we are. I can do without everything—you know it isn't material things."

But Will had withdrawn his effort at conciliation. He knew that she was talking about his secrecy over his drawings. Well, he could not share with her what was so ephemeral that a stray thought in his own head destroyed it. He couldn't talk about it. All the strong instinct of self-preservation within him forbade it utterly. The processes he was trying to put upon paper were nebulous. He was acutely fearful for them. If Ernestine did not like them, they would be destroyed.

"Don't open that suitcase, Peter," said Ernestine, and they went out and got into the car, bags and all.

They met Madame Pastano and her tall, silent, handsome husband, whose expressive eyes glanced at once into Ernestine's with a penetrating look. Will went into the coach with them, kissed them all goodby, and went away.

The children waved to him from the windows, but he did not look back, hastening off through the gate, his very back eager and relieved.

Ernestine leaned back against the cushion and closed her eyes against Madame Pastano's friendly curiosity. Through everything that had happened to them they had been in love, until these last few months. Would she ever have Will again as she had had him once—his tender love, his gentle passion, his strength? Not if she kept on striking and wounding him, common sense told her. But she sighed with helplessness. In the face of her knowledge the attraction at her heart for the old love, the old confidence and affection between herself and Will, she could not control her pride, her desire for revenge. The word brought her up short. Revenge? What had she said to revenge? Will had not harmed her. Bewildered, she could not un-over your passions; Extend to every one a kindly salutation; Yield not to discouragement; Zealously labor for the right.

CHAPTER XII

The Death Car

"If you came home again your father would make a settlement upon you. He thinks you fear that the money would destroy your marriage. But if you came home, he would do it for you."

"I wouldn't leave Will. I'm still of the same mind that money doesn't solve problems."

"But, Ernestine, think how nice it would be for you to be home again. It isn't as though you were happy. We can see that you aren't. We can all see such a change in you this summer. And another baby! Of course, it's your own affair, but Lillian and your mother would be so delighted. It's impossible for us to be friends with Will. We've tried—"

Ernestine smiled scornfully and glanced at Loring with such disdain that he flushed.

"Never mind," he said, "you don't know how we have tried. You don't know—Will doesn't appreciate you at all. I don't care what you say."

They were lying in the sand on the beach at Langley lake. Mrs. Pastano's gaudy white and green summer house reared its red roof back of them. The water was very shallow at this point so that the children could run in and out of it.

"Oh, Ernestine, if you would come home, we would be so glad to you." Loring's voice implored her.

"We?" she asked, turning to look at him. "Is it that you want me back in the family circle and that you want to break up Will's home?"

"I think he is by way of breaking up his own home," he said slowly, weighing his words, moving cautiously against her loyalty to Will. "I understand that he hasn't written to you since you came down here four weeks ago. Maybe he wouldn't be sorry to be free."

Ernestine laughed at this, and he said solemnly:

"At this time such neglect must seem cruel to you."

"I wish," she exclaimed impatiently, "that people were able to ignore my so-called 'delicate condition.' After all, Will has his own problems. Let's not talk about it. Probably he hasn't written because he has no news to write about."

Loring was persistent and presently he took up the matter again from a different point of attack.

"It's wonderful what a little money can do for children. I've noticed Elaine every time I've been down this summer. She's so happy here—by the cool water—"

Ernestine wondered why she listened to him. Certainly the child had responded to the opportunities of the lake shore, the sleeping porch, the cool nights and sunny days. But not even for Elaine would she go back on Will—on her marriage.

If only Will would write to her! Her longing for some word from him was intolerable. She felt that if she did not hear from him she would leave the children behind and go to Chicago. Twice she had made all her arrangements for such a trip, but both times pride had held her back. If anything happened to him, the neighbors would know. She wrote to Mrs. Pryor once a week or so. Will wanted to be alone. He wanted the tie between them to be in abeyance. She could not go after him. Not now.

"Oh, Ernestine, my dear little sister," Loring pleaded with her, seeing her tears, being unable to suppress his feelings. "Why do you keep yourself tied to him, when he has brought you only unhappiness? You have done everything for him—everything. What have you had from your marriage but poverty and child-bearing and distress? He needs to be awakened—he doesn't realize what you have meant to him."

She was listening to him now, for the first time, and her heart trembled under the dark suggestions of his words. If she could hurt Will, as he had hurt her!

LIVE STOCK

LIGHT FEEDERS WIN IOWA TRIAL

Made Cheapest Gain and Left Biggest Profit.

Baby beeves made the cheapest gain and left the greatest profit in the feeding trials at Iowa State college last winter and spring. In these tests three lots of steers were used. One lot consisted of two-year-olds that averaged 613 pounds when the feeding started. A lot of yearlings averaged 615 pounds and the calves averaged 324 pounds.

The calves gained 2.43 pounds a day and put on 100 pounds gain at a cost of $10.08. The yearlings required $18.80 worth of feed to gain 100 pounds in weight, and they gained only 2.11 pounds a day. The two-year-olds gained 2.19 pounds a day and ate $14.48 worth of feed to gain 100 pounds.

The baby beeves, after having the same kinds of feeds for the same length of time, showed a return above feed cost of $33.45 a head. The yearlings had a return of $22.11 and the two-year-olds $21.31 above feed cost when marketed at the end of the 240-day feeding period. These feeding tests revealed that feeders can afford to pay a higher price for lightweight calves at the time of purchase during the feeding period are so much cheaper.

Other tests carried on at the same time showed that one lot of steers which was fed iron oxide with the regular mineral mixture showed the best gain of any of the lots used in the mineral tests. They gained 2,023 pounds a day and 100 pounds of gain cost $11.47. The mineral mixture used was 49.97 per cent of special bone-meal, 49.97 per cent of ground limestone, and .04 per cent of potassium iodide. To this standard mixture was added 2 per cent of iron oxide.

Experiments also showed that barrel salt gave best results early in the feeding trials as the cattle had just come off the range and consumed larger quantities than later. Block salt was found satisfactory during the final months of the feeding period.

Care of Lambing Ewes in Winter and Spring

D. E. Rusk, of the New Hampshire station, gives the following about winter and spring care of ewes.

Shelter for ewes in the months just before lambing time is necessary, but it is not a good practice to keep them in a closed barn, unable to exercise. A good yard in which sheep can keep a dry footing is one of the best aids to bringing the ewes through the late winter season in good condition.

In the house, or shed about 15 square feet of floor space is required by the average ewe. The real need of the shed is for protection from storms. The floor should be sufficient warmth when dry. There must be plenty of ventilation without drafts. If the quarters are airy and comfortable the sheep will resort to them whenever necessary. As lambing time draws near, the ewes should be closed in during the night so that lambs do not become chilled.

Feeding practices will depend on the condition as a fat ewe does not need as much grain as a thin one. The best available hay—either alfalfa or clover—should be fed just before lambing. Thin ewes will require about one pound of grain daily. A good mixture is one of 30 pounds cornmeal or hominy, 30 pounds of ground oats, 20 pounds of bran, and 10 pounds of oil meal.

Don't turn cattle or sheep on luxuriant clover when the dew is on.

Clean the farming quarters with boiling lye water and spray with compound cresol solution.

Clean the sides and udders of the sow with soap and water before she is put in farrowing quarters.

Haül, don't drive, the sows and pigs to clean pasture where hogs have not ranged for at least a year.

Cattle can well have access to salt and plenty of good water at all times, for when they are on green pasture they can assimilate and store minerals better than at any other time.

It has been found that if sheep have access to snow through the winter months, they will get along and do well without being watered.

Lime and sulphur dip is a satisfactory treatment for mange in cattle. The treatment should be repeated three times at intervals of one week.

With the present depression in the market for both mutton and wool it will be possible to buy very good range ewes at a much lower price than has existed for several years.

DON'T let a Cold Settle in your Bowels!

Keep your bowels open during a cold. Only a doctor knows the importance of this. Trust a doctor to know best how it can be done.

That's why Syrup Pepsin is such a marvelous help during colds. It is the prescription of a family doctor who specialized in bowel troubles. The discomfort of colds is always lessened when it is used; your system is kept free from phlegm, mucus and acid wastes. The cold is "broken-up" more easily.

Whenever the bowels need help, Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is sure to do the work. It does not gripe or sicken; but its action is thorough. It carries off all the souring waste and poison; helps your bowels to help themselves.

Take a spoonful of this family doctor's laxative as soon as a cold starts, or the next time coated tongue, bad breath, or a bilious, headachy, gassy condition warns of constipation. Give it to the children during colds or whenever they're feverish, cross or upset. Nothing in it to hurt anyone; it contains only laxative herbs, pure pepsin and other mild ingredients. The way it tastes and the way it acts have made it the fastest selling laxative the drugstore carries!

My Mind Is Keen—My Skin Is Clear—Of Petty Ills I Have No Fear

No doubt about it—I am 48 and never felt better in my life—I feel like 30 and you can take my word for it—It's the Little Daily Dose of Kruschen That Does It.

Once I was fat and forty—had headaches a plenty—Was tired out most of the time—My liver was sluggish and my bowels inactive—I searched for a real remedy and by good fortune I found it in Kruschen Salts.

Fat isn't healthy—so Physicians state, and I want to say to this world full of fat people—that the Kruschen Method of losing fat is safe, sure and sensible—Just cut out sweets—pies, pastries and ice cream for a month—go light on potatoes, rice, butter, cream and sugar—and don't forget to take one-half a teaspoon of Kruschen Salts in a glass of hot water before breakfast every morning.

I wish I could induce every overweight person on earth to try this splendid method—It surely doesn't cost but a trifle—for an 85 cent bottle lasts 4 weeks and can be bought at any drug store in the world—Get It—Grow Thin—Feel younger.—Ady.

Ancho News

Mrs. Joe Roscoe left Sunday for a week's stay in El Paso with relatives and friends.

Mr. J. M. Frame has returned from San Francisco where he spent two months with his wife, whose health is improving. Mrs. Frame will probably return to Ancho in the spring.

Mrs. L. L. Peters and her little daughter, Edwina, were in Alamogordo on business last week.

Mr. and Mrs. S. J. Pruett, Jr., will spend Thanksgiving in Pastura, guests of Mr. and Mrs. S. J. Pruett, Sr.

Mr. Riordan, prominent citizen of Brownwood, Texas, is spending a few weeks here on business. He is interested in an oil well which was recently brot in near Kerville, Texas.

The hills are full of mining men from various points.

Bill Reynolds, of Luna, was the lucky winner of the rifle offered by T. E. Kelley.

Attorney John E. Hall was thru Ancho Sunday. His wife and baby were with him. John has lots of friends here who are always delighted to see him.

Kim Graves, who resided here a number of years ago and is now salesman for W. K. Kellogg Co., was in Ancho Tuesday calling on trade. He always has an order written out for T. J. Straley store which he knows will be signed by the buyer, as he is an old friend of the Straleys.

Mr. John Brickley is back at Luna after an extended visit in Howard, Pennsylvania.

Ralph Hall, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Hall, is suffering from a case of infantile paralysis. His many friends hope for him a speedy recovery.

Bill Reynolds Wins Rifle

The Winchester Rifle, offered by the T. E. Kelley Hardware & Sport Shop, for the hunter who brought in the biggest buck during the season, was awarded to W. E. Reynolds, of Ancho. The rules required all contestants to register before the season opened, and an even hundred registered—eighteen more entrants than last year for the same purpose. Carcasses were to be brought in and weighed, after having had the insides removed.

Thirteen of the one hundred weighed in their kill, and the following was the result:

- W. E. Reynolds 226
- E. M. Brickley 214
- Jim Greer 200
- Walter Riggs 195
- Fay Harkey 194
- Paul Aguayo 171
- Joe Devine 168
- John Buck 165
- Henry Dale 164
- E. H. Harkey 163
- R. E. Blaney 162
- A. B. Zumwalt 154
- Bryan Hightower 144

Water Hearing Postponed

The celebrated Bonito water case has again been continued, owing to the continued illness of Judge Kiker, of the Fifth District, who was to preside in the case. By agreement of attorneys representing the plaintiffs and defendants, the case has been set for January 5.

The Southeastern New Mexico

Water Users Association, the Hondo Land & Cattle Company, et al, are the plaintiffs, and the Rock Island and the Southern Pacific Railroads are the defendants. The plaintiffs seek to restrain the defendants from the construction of a dam on the Bonito.

The country won't be properly run until one can buy a farm with as little money and credit as he can an automobile.

STEEL ECLIPSE

Starts sooner— pumps longer

Two windmills stood just across the road from each other. With the first sign of a breeze the one connected up smoothly and quietly. When the breeze became a wind, the other started with a groan and lumbered away only to stop as the wind raised a dust in the air. Then it stopped as abruptly as it started, while the other continued pumping for some time—then it finally stopped completely to rest with the last trace of the going breeze.

That is the difference between a superior windmill and just a windmill. It is the difference between accurately machined and fitted gears and ordinary cast gears; and the difference between turned, ground and polished shafts and ordinary steel shafts.

In other words, it is the difference between the Fairbanks-Morse Self-Oiling Steel Eclipse Windmill and just a plain windmill.

Come in and see this great advance in windmill construction. See the self-oiling feature—the rubber lip feature—the mechanism that enables the Eclipse to actually pump water during two-thirds of every revolution of the wind wheel. You will form a new idea of how good a windmill can be.
