Hoover, "World's Most Colossal Mistake," Says Tulsa Newspaper Owner

Washington, Aug.—Eugene Lorton, owner of the Tulsa World, who quit the Republican party in 1928 to support Governor Smith for the presidency, writing to his paper from Mr. Hoover's home state of California, has the following to say of that commonwealth's most distinguished citizen:

"Mr. Hoover to my mind is the most colossal mistake the world has ever seen. I trust I am not too severe in my judgment, but I do hope that we never have another engineer in the White House."

Incidentally Mr. Lorton presents an alibi for George Washington, who has been widely heralded as an "engineer" by the White House political chorus.

"You know," says Mr. Lorton, "Washington was only an ordinary county surveyor."

Concerning the condition of the Western oil industry, on which Secretary of the Interior Wilbur and Mr. Mark Requa were Mr. Hoover's advisers, Mr. Lorton epigrammatically says:

"Doctors Hoover, Wilbur and Requa have developed a fine case of fits and now they find out they don't even know how to cure fits."

But the Tulsa editor and publisher still has faith in the future. He concludes:

"With a good stalwart Democrat in the presidency I think everything will be hunky-dory again."

Not Age of Miracles

Washington, Aug. — Commenting upon a recent weekly press release of the Republican National Committee which declared that President Hoover is not a Miracle Man, Senator Millard E. Tydings (Dem., Md.) says:

"It seems that President Hoover is a Miracle Man only in campaign times. After election he is, according to his own press bureau, merely 'a wise leader,' who 'does not pull rabbits out of plug hats or produce eggs from silk handkerchiefs, or pour water out of empty buckets.'"

"These definitions are direct quotations from a leading article in the last clip-sheet of the Publicity Division of the Republican National Committee, all of the releases of which are said to be edited by the White House."

"He certainly waved a magician's wand in his speech of acceptance when he told his hearers that 'the poorhouse is vanishing among us,' and continued with the positive assertion that 'given the chance to go forward with the policies of the last eight years (the years of Harding and Coolidge) we shall soon, with the help of God, be in sight of the day when poverty will be banished from this nation."

"As late as last June his Publicity Chief, in a radio address, paid this tribute to Mr. Hoover's plan to postpone reparations payments: 'This project has almost with the force of magic given an upward impetus to the value of securities and commodities, and has done more toward the restoration of prosperity in this country than any single act that can be found in recent history.'"

"Now it does not seem right the proclaimed worker of wonders should cry off from the responsibilities as a producer of marvels, with a complaint that: 'They demand that he stretch forth a wand and suddenly make everybody in America rich and happy, while everybody in the rest of the world is poor and miserable; that he maintain the price of wheat in America at twice the figure it sells in any other market; that he give everybody employment whether there is anything for them to do or not.'"

"These were the very things Mr. Hoover promised to do if he were elected. Fate having brought industrial calamity instead of prosperity, and with the prospect of a dour winter, it is necessary that there should be a campaign alibi. Hence the disclaimer of extraordinary wisdom, prescience and power."

Doak's Report Compared With Wickersham Document

Washington, Aug. — When Secretary of Labor Doak's letter to the President, reviewing the activities of the Federal Employment Service was given to the press, it contained a line in capital letters far up in the report as follows:

TOTAL EMPLOYMENT PLACEMENT FROM APRIL 1 TO JULY 31, 1931: 638,689.

"This impressive figure was seized upon for press bulletin purposes," says J. Fred Essary, correspondent of the Baltimore Sun, "and was not found to be misleading until the very end of the report the following paragraph was found:

"The United States Employment Service, by combing the highways and byways, has succeeded in finding jobs for 281,769 unemployed from April 1, to July 31."

"Close examination of the Doak letter shows that the 638,689 jobs mentioned in capital letters includes both the Government and the 236 State employment agencies combined."

In other words, the State employment agencies found 356,920, or much more than half the jobs heralded in capital letters by Secretary Doak.

Commenting further on this incident, Mr. Essary says: "When this letter was given to the press much the same

Faces Sure Defeat

Washington, Aug.—George W. DePriest, former Republican Chairman of Cleveland County, N. C., not only states numerous specific reasons for opposing the renomination of Herbert Hoover, set forth in the Cleveland Star of Shelby, N. C., but declares that "sure defeat faces the Republican party if Hoover is renominated."

Some of his reasons as quoted by the Star are as follows:

My opposition to the renomination of Herbert Hoover is based upon my sincere belief that he is a 'one-term President.'

No President ever lost popularity so rapidly. . . . He is the least popular since Andrew Johnson.

The former Republican County Chairman credits Mr. Hoover with "high intellect," with having "made six million dollars in his technical profession," and as a man of "high moral qualities," and then says:

Yet a man may have all of these superior qualities and more besides, and fail dismally as President. Why? Because that rare quality of the human mind called "executive ability" is the great outstanding requisite of the head of a great nation. . . . Judged by this standard, President Hoover has failed lamentably.

Lack of leadership and the signing of the new tariff act, are other objections urged by former Chairman DePriest, who is quoted as saying:

He (President Hoover) is unable to control or lead the new Congress. It gets out of his hand and passes a most iniquitous tariff law, which has done more to upset business and clamp down the lid of depression in America and all over the world than any other one item among the causes of these evil conditions.

He declares that the tariff and the retaliation of foreign countries have driven American manufacturers out of the country, with loss of production and foreign trade here and consequent unemployment of American labor, and adds:

The slump in production here makes for hard times here, and as we grow hard up and our tariff walls slacken the inflow of foreign goods, the foreigners soon feel the slump reaction. They grow hard up and can't even buy America's food and other raw material. The thing becomes a vicious circle.

Hoover signs the destructive tariff bill, but vetoes other important measures that would have contributed to better times, such as the Muscle Shoals development and the Wagner Employment Bureau bill.

Ingratitude to Southern Republicans is one the objections the former Republican County Chairman has to Mr. Hoover. He says:

In electing Hoover half of the Southern States voted Republican for the first time since the Civil War. Hoover shows his "gratitude" by selecting his Cabinet exclusively from the North and West, not a Southern man considered.

The former Republican Chairman further declares:

Mr. Hoover's anomalous position on prohibition is another nail in the coffin of his political

Army Drive Successful

Baron Auriemma returned this week from a swing around the circle which covered a good part of the eastern and southern end of the county and reports a pleasant reception at every point visited and quite a liberal response to his appeal.

Capitan was the first place he encountered after leaving here, and he was delighted, with his reception there and the results achieved. The Baron hands Jeff Herron a neat compliment, for the devotion of his time and exercise of his local knowledge, which was of much service in coming in contact with the people; much gratification was also expressed by the Baron for the general endorsement given the Army by Geo. A. Titworth and other commercial interests of the town.

Lincoln was the next place visited, and there a joint service held at the church. The Baron led the singing, which included the Holy city, with Mrs. Penfield at the piano. A short talk on charity was also made by the Baron, and the material results were quite satisfactory.

The communities of Tinnie, Hondo, Ruidoso and Hollywood were visited and the objects of the Salvation Army placed before those people. A good interest was aroused and opened a way for better things in the future.

Then the Baron swung back to Fort Stanton, where always a responsive crowd awaits his coming. He gave a concert in ward No. 10 to the sick patients, at 3:00 p. m., and sang pleasingly to those unable to see or hear beyond the four walls of the ward, cal hopes. . . . Mr. Hoover is as poor a statesman on the prohibition issue as he is on many other things.

He also declares that "the depression has succeeded in convincing the American people that the name Republican does not necessarily mean prosperity," and that "the Republican party must either refuse Hoover the nomination, or face certain defeat at the hands of a Democrat."

the melodies we all like so well, viz: "God Touched the Rose," "Where the River Shanon Flows," "Absent," "Twilight," and "Let Me Call you Sweetheart." And in the evening, a program was given in the dining hall, at which the Baron sang: "Service," "Invictus," "The Blind Ploughman," "La Donna e Mobile," "The Holy City," "O, Sole Mio," "It All Depends On You," "Springtime in the Rockies," and "Good-Night, Sweet Dreams." In both concerts Mrs. W. C. Hendren was the accompanist. The concert in the ward was dedicated to the late Mickey McNeff. The Baron was more than pleased by the warm reception accorded him at the Fort by patients and officials, and particularly feels grateful to the commanding officer, Dr. R. L. Allen, for the generous courtesies extended, and to R. S. Fagan, Mr. O. L. Speckelmeir, Mrs. Hendren and others for their co-operation and assistance given. Nothing was lacking in the warmth of the reception nor in the response given.

The receipts reported in detail by the Baron are as follows:

Capitan, Hondo & Ruidoso communities	$70.00
Fort Stanton	67.50
Lincoln	31.00
Corona	88.00
Carrizozo	272.00
Total	$528.59

The Army desires to aid through the period of stress ahead, and most of all wants the cooperation of the people so there will be as little duplication as possible. All who are appealed to for something to eat, as they are daily here, will materially advance the purposes of the Army by letting Mr. F. J. Sager know of the request, and proper forms will be supplied. Then work will be offered those who are willing to exchange a little labor for a meal. When that is done, an order for a meal ticket will be given. A mendicant unwilling to work will not be given a meal ticket and, following that to a reasonable conclusion, the applicant is unworthy of aid. If the foregoing is not clear, talk the matter over with Mr. Sager.

confusion was created as attended the issuance of the original Wickersham prohibition report when a loose-leaf set of conclusions was made public, indicating that a dry report had been made. Dotted Net Is Charming and Chic

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

WHAT with the program of party frocks for the last several summers being mostly a matter of one printed chiffon frock after another, the idea of printed or embroidered cotton net suggests a most intriguing diversion.

The beauty about these very charming new quality-kind cotton nets which are now so smartly in fashion for evening wear is that they can be safely and successfully washed—no danger of colors "running" as heretofore. Then, too, these nets drape ever so charmingly, at the same time having enough body in them to stay crisp and fresh looking on the warmest evening.

Very newest printed nets carry the message that dots have appeared on fashion's horizon for midsummer evenings. For the slender woman the dress pictured is ideal. It is a very "young" frock for slim and swells youth, and later providing you're the type.

A particularly summery and actually washable durable cotton net fashions this lovely gown. Of course, you will be interested in the deep caplet collar which reminds us that shoulders are generally covered this summer if only with a wisp of a scarf, or a tiny drape which looks as if it might have started to be a sleeve and decided to "just pretend." We most forgot to tell you that the dots which pattern this particular dress are in "English Officer" red, from which striking color the hand-made silk apples, which form the corsage take their cue. A slightly stiffened pleatum is featured, its hemline following the contour of the skirt hemline with considerable artistry.

Quite as effective, although not so unusual and new as the big coin dots are the charming nets which are patterned with colorful florals. These tune in every key from flamboyant rose motifs to demure Dolly Varden flowerettes.

You may have quite a time deciding whether to buy a printed or an embroidered net for your next evening or garden-party frock. Choose either and you will play safe. The inspiring thought in this connection is that through perfected processes these fine quality durable nets no matter how delicate their tones and tints may be or how bold, they may be relied on as being fast color. This means they are not only appealing from an aesthetic point of view, but they are also thoroughly practical.

HATS OF ALL SIZES APPROVED BY PARIS

There is nothing monotonous about hat fashions this summer. Sizes range from mere skull caps to cape lines, with brims a foot wide. There is as much variety in shapes as in sizes and more materials involved than there is room to list. Soft, fabriclike straws, crocheted or mesh straws are being used for new versions of the beret, and to make crowns for some of the brimmed hats. The familiar panama, bako, milan, leghorn and other well knowns are making all manner of brimmed hats. Stitching is used to give body to cotton and linen hats and to decorate brimmed sports hats of jersey and felt.

Among the small hats Agnes' French colonial creations and Suzanne Talbot's derby-brimmed hats are of particular interest. Agnes has taken the various headgears and hair dresses of the Moroccans, the Algerians, the Cambodians and translated them in a collection of peaked and wrapped and draped turbans and berets that are enormously smart. Furthermore, she has taken over the brilliant and exotic colorings that distinguish the original models.

Stunning Dinner Gown

This is a Lanvin replica of a dinner gown in black. The braided pleural is unique, as are the long satin gauntlets with jeweled bracelets.

Three Colors for Scarf; Worn With White Sports

There are all sorts of attractive scarfs, many of them made of red, white and blue. There are lots of clothes accessories in those colors, anyway. They are worn with white sports clothes.

There are, for instance, scarfs made in triangles of the three colors, oddly chunked together. There are scarfs of the three colors in wide stripes, others with the center portion of the scarf white, the ends striped red and blue. These scarfs, striped and triangles, are made of the finest wool crocheted in a loose, lacy stitch.

Other scarfs are made of the three colors striped lengthwise, in soft silk crops. Still others are made of two colors on one side, lined with the third color.

Mesh Stockings Regarded Comfortable for Sports

Do you like hose for sports stockings? Many women do, because it looks less dressed up and formal. Do you like mesh for sports stockings? Its open work seems next most comfortable to bare legs. Lisle and mesh combine, therefore, to make comfortable, good looking stockings to go with sports costumes. And lisle mesh socks are a joy for tennis.

Socks continue to be worn for active sports, but usually over stockings. Extra legs may be worn for comfort, but only in private and informal places.

With the white clothes and the bright colors you will be wearing this summer you will find that a light clear beige is most becoming. This is the shade that tones best with your outdoor-darkened skin.

Women at Palm Beach adopted this shade almost universally in the daytime. In the evening they wore pale tones—reds and pinks.

There is talk of white and off-white hose for wear in the evening.

BEFORE THE COMING OF THE WHITE MAN

Abundant Proof That Indians Had Villages on Site of the Capital.

There are many evidences that before the coming of the white man Indians spoke the language of the great Algonquian family which covered the East coast, and for this reason the Algonquians were met by John Smith at Jamestown and by the Pilgrims at Plymouth. Dr. Walter Hough writes, in the Washington Post, "Accustomed as we are to the buckskin of the western Indians, we will be surprised to know that Powhatan's braves had nary a shirt to their backs, robes taking their place. The women wore short skirts and the children dispensed with clothes. Of course, in the cold months of winter the Indians withdrew into their houses and enjoyed the stores of corn, smoked fish, hickory nuts and such things as they had laid up. The houses were of bent poles covered with mats and were in shape like a hayrick seen on farms.

It may seem unfortunate that the District of Columbia Indians left so few traces of their life here. Archeologists trained to the work are able to see much in small things and to tell the story without straining the imagination. One picks up an arrowhead, say, at Anacostia. It is of a certain stone and worked from a boulder most likely at the Piney Branch quarry. He knows that the arrow was fixed with sinew at the end of a wooden shaft, straight and smooth, which was notched at the end to receive the string; also that it was feathered to guide its flight. The arrowhead was found at Anacostia and belonged there because it is the right kind of stone. Another variety of stone would indicate that it was a point made by the hostile Indians living on the Susquehanna or where the certain stone was found.

The District of Columbia Indians were in the Stone age and imperishable stone tools left in the soil are silent though eloquent of the old times.

The river life of the Potomac in 1608 must have been very interesting. John Smith tells of divers savages in canoes, well laden with the flesh of bears, deer and other beasts. Some of these dug-out canoes are in the Potomac mud no doubt now. There were many places to paddle not open today. Boats could move about freely where the new government buildings are going up, and the eastern branch was a great river 300 years ago. At night, reflected in the undulating Potomac, were the lights of the torches of fishermen, and over the smouldering fires of the primitive griddles the catch was smoked for the winter.

Land trails also centered in the District, leading to the Susquehanna and on to the West. Braddock used an old trail to Cumberland worn deeply in old times by Indian moccasins.

In its natural conditions or only slightly aware of the presence of man, the District must have been an ideal place for savage life. Every family could have a deer a day and not decrease the herd; a bear once in a while, wild turkey, what birds, fish, roasting ears and ripe corn would vary the fare.

The coming of the white man to Jamestown in 1607 was a small entering wedge into a vast territory, and perhaps we would think it of little effect on the District. On the contrary, in 75 years there was not an Indian left in the valley of the Potomac, the same story that became old as the white man pushed the remainder west. The District was settled by hardy pioneers and a new line of history began.

Turks Shaken in Their Veneration for Koran

Arabic, being a sacred language, the ecclesiastics have cried out against their holy book, the Koran, appearing in any other tongue. But the Turkish government has in spite of this allowed the publication of three separate translations. Fourteen thousand copies have been sold. Turks, who formerly heard the sounding Arabic of the Koran without understanding anything of its meaning, imagined it charged with tremendous and mystic meanings. That impression melts away when the Koran is read in the vernacular. It is sometimes enough to place a Koran and a Testament in the hands of a Turkish reader and leave him to draw his own conclusions. It is said that Kemal Pasha in disgust threw the book across the room into a corner. Yet in the Sudan the primary textbook in all the government schools is the Koran, and Islam is gaining ground constantly in the Anglo-Egyptian Sudan. — Sunday School Times.

Counts Time Spent on Study of "Math" Wasted

I believe that an appalling amount of time is spent in childhood in learning things which don't matter, remembering things which will never be needed, and doing silly tricks which an intelligent man need never waste his time upon.

Let us contemplate, for example, the absurdities and abominations of arithmetic. At a conservative estimate, I have myself wrestled with arithmetic and its related studies through ten years of my irreplaceable youth.

I was, moreover, pretty good at it; I could throw a mean logarithm and chase a cotangent into a corner and hang my hat on it. I have done all the geometry, plain and fancy, and dabbled delicately in calculus. I could once make an advanced algebraic equation say "Uncle."

I assure you that not a trace of it is left, and that furthermore I don't miss it. There must be a large blank area in my brain which was once full of arithmetic, but it isn't the least painful. Except for a reasonable facility with the multiplication table there isn't a particle of arithmetic left in my system.

I can make change, but so can a street car conductor. But I can't remember more than five telephone numbers, and so long as they continue to print telephone books I won't need to. — Donald Rose in the Forum and Century.

Salt Statistics
The man who "isn't worth his weight in salt" and the one who "feels like 30 cents" seem to be on a par, judging from the salt statistics of last year. During that period, 8,000,000 tons of salt were produced and the total value was about $25,000,000, which on the basis of a 200-pound man works out at about the rate of 30 cents.

Michigan led in production, and with New York, Kansas and Louisiana accounted for 98 per cent of the national production.

Most of the disappointments are due to depending on some one else.

CAR OWNERS bought more Firestone Tires during May, June and July than in any like period in History

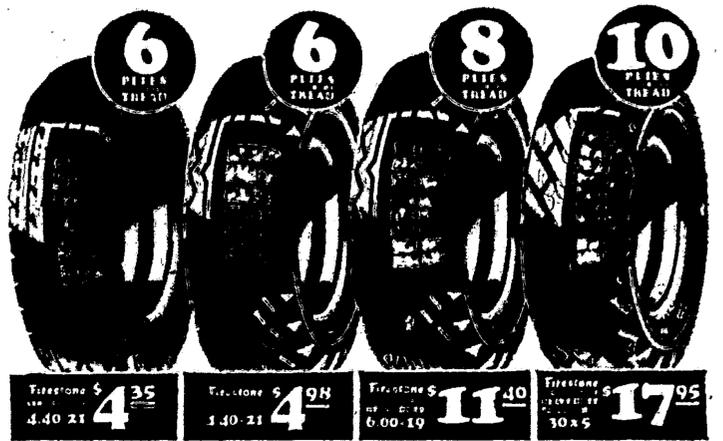

THERE are reasons for this—Firestone is building the Greatest Tire Values in history, with the result that Firestone factories are operating 24 hours a day, 6 days a week, to meet public preference.

This is the year everybody is scrutinizing his purchases. This is particularly true in tire buying because of the many confusing and misleading statements made about tires.

To give car owners the facts, Firestone published comparisons showing quality, construction and prices. Then the public went to Firestone Service Stores and Service Dealers—made their own comparisons with cross sections cut from Firestone Tires—and from special brand mail order tires and others.

When they saw the facts, they bought more Firestone Tires during May, June and July than in any like period in Firestone history.

Let the Firestone Service Dealer show you these Firestone Extra Values and have your car equipped for Safe, Trouble-Free Motoring. Drive in today.

A Violation of Custom

It is a new experience for the electorate of the United States to have the President in the midst of his term telling them in effect what a good Executive he has been.

The assumption of the party in power has always been that its high officials were competent, and that the nation in its wisdom must appreciate the deftness and skill of the administration.

It is all different this time. The deduction must be made from the output of the publicity branch of the Republican National Committee in that so far from applauding the President, the country is most doubtful of his capacity and increasingly critical of his performances.

A recent publication emanating from the Committee carried an elaborate dissertation on the inaccuracy of the assumption that the President was a miracle worker in the direction of insuring prosperity.

More recently we have a White House statement telling of the marvelous achievements of the administration in the National Building Program and Secretary of Labor Dool's report on the re-employment of 291,000 men for which he gives the Hoover regime credit.

yet. Lest it be thought that Fletcher's strictures had a partisan bias, it may be noted that Senator Bingham of Connecticut, rock-bound Republican regular, was equally vehement in his criticisms of the government's delay.

The instances could be multiplied indefinitely to show the extraordinary appeal that is being put forward to excuse the President. It is a curious political departure and the significance that President Hoover feels it is necessary at this time to go to such length to appease dissatisfaction with his administration is perhaps the leading political index of the day.

Why Industrial Workers Have Short Span of Life

Industrial workers have eight years less expectation of life than office workers, Dr. Louis L. Dublin, statistician of the Metropolitan Life Insurance company, declared at the industrial conference of New York state.

Doctor Dublin urged founding under the state department of labor, or another agency, of industrial clinics to study and treat cases of occupational disease among workers, reports the New York World.

In addition to 2,000 deaths each year in this state from occupational accidents, specific diseases afflict the worker, Doctor Dublin said.

Among the most virulent are tuberculosis, especially among stone cutters, sand blasters and grinders; pneumonia and the degenerative diseases caused by exposure and strain, and poisoning from lead, brass, mercury, arsenic, aniline, wood alcohol, hides and skins.

Doctor Dublin called on the 170,000 physicians of the state to consider industrial diseases more seriously and to help fight them.

Arthur Williams, president of the American Museum of Safety, said out of 41,000,000 employees an average of 2,000,000 are on the injured list all the time, a $1,200,000,000 economic loss yearly.

Died at Son's Home

John G. Taylor, died last evening at 7:30 at the home of his son, J. V. Taylor, from a stroke of paralysis. The deceased, who with his lovely wife had been visiting the son and family at the I-X ranch, suffered a light stroke last month, and later a much more severe stroke came, and his condition was very serious for a time. However, his condition began to improve and he had begun to sit up and take interest in his surroundings, and the stroke that finally brought death, in the twinkling of an eye, was an unsuspected as it was silent and inexorable.

The Kelley mortuary took charge of the remains and prepared them for shipment. After consulting various members of the family by wire, Beaumont, Texas, was the place agreed upon as the place for burial, and shipment will be made from here tomorrow morning. Mrs. Taylor, Sr., and Mr. and Mrs. J. V. Taylor will accompany the body of husband and father on the last sad journey.

The widow and three sons survive. To them the sincere sympathy of the community is unflinchingly given.

The funeral of Mrs. Christian Schale and interment of the remains took place at the White Oaks cemetery Saturday morning August 15. Mrs. Schale died in El Paso August 12, and the body was shipped to this point to be interred beside the husband who passed on earlier this year.

The Earth Trembled

Sunday morning, between 4 and 5 o'clock, people with very sensitive nerves felt a slight tremor and heard the rattle of pans and dishes; but most of our population passed through the disturbance without waking, and only became acquainted with the earth's tremblings through the mouths of others. The quake was no joke however, in the Rio Grande region, where much damage was done, especially in and around Valentine, Texas.

HEART OF THE NORTH

BY WILLIAM BYRON MOWERY

THE STORY

Six bandits board the steamer, Midnight Sun, tied to the bank of the Mackenzie, hold up Father Claverly and other passengers...

Unwilling to detain him, Joyce offered him her hand, wishing him success today, hiding her fears for him when he should come up with these men...

Fifty miles above the MacMillan trading store, Alan ordered Pedneault to reverse in toward the north bank and stop.

He believed those bandits could not be very far ahead now. Across this silent wilderness the roar of the launch's engine carried for five or six miles.

As he hurried back down to the launch, he began to realize that those two canoes had traveled more swiftly than he had thought possible.

Twice more that morning, between Pedneault's reckless dashes, he hurried ashore and futilely searched ahead. Something had gone wrong.

the MacMillan trading post. He had come a hundred and twenty, and no sight of them yet.

It was afterward, when the waters of the Aloska had given up their ghastly secrets, that Joyce MacMillan listened to the accounts of several Yellowknife men and gazed upon certain grim evidence...

Fifteen miles from the Aloska Forks he went ashore a last time and climbed a squat tree. He had a clear view to the Forks.

Far ahead, three short miles from the Forks of the Aloska, a pair of tiny black objects, like bugs crawling along a silver ribbon...

He jumped out of the tree, leaped down the slope. Splashing aboard, he flung all caution to the winds.

But then, as he skirled around a headland, his prophesy yesterday to Haskell, and his conviction, founded on long man-hunting experience...

Dipping faster, deeper, he and Bill and Larry paddled at a furious pace to come up within rifle range.

As they skirled out upon a shallow little lake fringed about with tall flags, Larry suddenly heaved back on his paddle.

Alan looked where he pointed, at the north shore, at the wall of dense reeds. A path had been broken through the flags there; the reeds were parted, some of them trampled, their tops bent to either side.

It told the story to him. Hard-pressed, those men had whipped ashore to shake off pursuit; had lifted canoes to shoulder, and were trying to cut north and hit another channel.

Oblivious to ambush danger, they skidded over to the telltale break in the flags and drove out upon the mud. Alan and Bill slung the canoe upon their shoulders; and with Larry in the lead, following the signs, they started at a lope back through the flags.

Within a few hundred yards they came to a little creek, a sluggish muskrat highway that led north. The bandits had taken to it. Too shallow for a canoe, they had had to wade.

The little creek took Alan's party a thousand yards north to a lake, a deep blue lake covering several acres; and there, within the Thal-Azzah itself, late in the afternoon, the long relentless chase came to its end.

Larry, a dozen steps in the lead, glimpsed the silvery sheen of water ahead; and stopping dead-short, motioned Bill and Larry to be cautious.

They beelied forward toward the lake edge where the flags were thin and they had clear view.

West African Colony of Liberia Flourishing

The free negro republic of Liberia was established in West Africa long before slavery was abolished in this country. The American Colonization society was formed in December, 1816, for the purpose of colonizing part of Africa with freed negroes.

Larry and Bill and I'll cover the north. If you sight them, don't pitch into that pack. You'd be fighting six men single-handed.

Alan's estimate that his quarry could not be more than a mile and a half in the lead, was true enough; but a stern chase is a long chase, and if those bandits were aching from exhaustion, they had the fear of death in their hearts to goad them on.

A whole hour, an hour of terrible labor, went by, and still no sight or sound of the bandits. With the responsibility of this patrol on him, with human lives, the lives of comrades, at stake, a fear gripped Alan that those bandits had taken the south branch of the Aloska.

The chase was entering the Thal-Azzah itself, that watery wilderness of lakes and labyrinthine channels and muskeg thousands of square miles in extent. Not far ahead the branch split into a dozen channels leading in every direction.

Alan looked where he pointed, at the north shore, at the wall of dense reeds. A path had been broken through the flags there; the reeds were parted, some of them trampled, their tops bent to either side.

Oblivious to ambush danger, they skidded over to the telltale break in the flags and drove out upon the mud. Alan and Bill slung the canoe upon their shoulders; and with Larry in the lead, following the signs, they started at a lope back through the flags.

Tarpon Jumps Into Boat; Smacks Angler

San Benito.—Tarpon fishing held unexpected thrills recently for four San Benito men when a giant silver king leaped into their boat and gave one of the fishermen a resounding whack on the back of the neck.

While making a strike the fish leaped over the shoulder of one man, seated on the deck in a camp chair, and struck another in the middle of the boat. The impact threw the tarpon onto the boat's side, where it stopped back into the water, the surprised witnesses state.

N. J. Davis, F. E. Burger, R. B. Temple and F. Rhodes were fishing near Brazos Santiago pass when the tarpon, estimated to be about five feet in length, leaped overboard.

GHOST OF MOTOR VICTIM BEGS RIDE

Specter Causes Kentuckians to Watch Their Step.

Cincinnati.—The maid of the Licking has taken her place in ghostly legend alongside the headless horseman, Marley and the Flying Dutchman.

Her story has residents of northern Kentucky walking warily in the late hours of the night, particularly when they cross the dimly lighted bridge across the Licking river from Covington to Newport.

Harry Stellar, a Bellevue (Ky.) youth, is the latest to give the maid a ride to her former home.

According to Stellar's story, he encountered the beautiful girl as he reached the bridge. She seemed to have appeared out of the mists that rose from the river.

"I've lost my pocketbook," she told him, "and can't get home." She said her name was Virginia Smith, but talked little during the moonlight trip.

When he was nearing the house to which she directed him, the girl suddenly vanished. The youth heard no noise, no movement, but his companion disappeared while the automobile was still in motion.

Stellar then went to the house and rang the bell. An elderly man answered.

"Does Virginia Smith live here?" the youth asked.

"It's all right," the man replied when he had told his strange tale. "I'm her father. Nine years now it has happened on the day my girl was killed in an auto accident. Each year some one brings her home like this and then she vanishes."

Burglar Snatches One Kiss and Then Departs

Vancouver, B. C.—When a "difficulty" arose to foil his holdup attempt, a well-dressed young bandit took the "difficulty" in hand, planted a kiss squarely on her lips and bowed gracefully out of the door.

The "difficulty" was pretty Miss M. Hagglund. She was awakened when a burglar entered the bedroom she shared with her mother, Mrs. H. Hagglund, and Miss I. Harvey.

Refusing to tell him where she kept her purse, Miss Hagglund rose from bed, swung open the door and ordered the intruder to leave.

After hesitating a moment, the man walked to the door, and as he passed Miss Hagglund he grasped her firmly in his arms and kissed her.

Sheriff Puzzled Over Theft of Oil Pipe Line

Redwood City.—Sheriff J. J. McGrath is wondering who and, more particularly, how, and also where, some one stole 2,000 feet of pipe from the Mid-State Oil company premises here.

Sections of the pipe line were discovered in a San Francisco iron works, but the company insisted that it had purchased the pipe from a man named C. Vincent, who had posed as an official of the oil company.

Charles White, manager of the concern, denied that there was any such person connected with the company.

Burglar's Lost Shoe Leads to His Capture

St. Louis, Mo.—When a burglar lost his shoe in a home he was robbing police faced the same task as the prince in the tale of Cinderella.

Armed with the burglar's shoe, the officers broadcast an alarm. A few minutes later police arrested a man who was strolling down an avenue with only one shoe. They tried the shoe on. It fit.

Thieves Cannot Agree on Loot, So Are Arrested

St. Louis, Mo.—Police recently saw two men rolling a barrel up a busy street here. "Cider is in it," one said. "Sauerkraut is in it," the other said. Suspicious then, police broke the barrel open. It contained mustard. The two were arrested on their charges.

WORLD WAR YARNS

by Lieut. Frank E. Hagan

"Gone West"

Two outstanding contributions to current speech were made by the British soldiers during the World War. One was "Blighty" and the other was "Gone West." "Blighty" was derived from an East Indian word meaning "over the sea" or "home" and was probably brought to the battlefields of France by veterans who had served in India. So when a "Tommy" was wounded, he accepted his wound philosophically as a "ticket to Blighty." The term was also used as a synonym for "leave of absence."

The American soldiers did not readily pick up "Blighty" from their British comrades in arms. Perhaps the difference between a 3,000-mile trip across the Atlantic and the short passage across the English channel accounts for the fact that "Blighty" didn't figure much in the life of the average Yank. But he did take over the expression "Gone West" as a synonym for death.

There are various theories as to the origin of this expression. It was a common phrase in South Africa at the beginning of the present century and it was probably taken to England by British soldiers who had served in the Boer war and then carried to France. But the idea goes back much farther than that. Thousands of years ago the Egyptians spoke of their dead as those who had "Gone West" and among many primitive peoples, including the North American Indians, there was a belief that the abode of the dead was in the west, the land of the setting sun.

He Died for Love of a Spy

He was a cadet at the aviation center of Issoudun. His brother birdman called him Jerry O. which, for the purposes of this story, is near enough to his real name. He made love to every welfare girl he ever met—this upon the word of one of them who is the authority for this story—that is, until Marie came to Issoudun. Marie was a barmaid, the sister of a man who gave French lessons to the officers at the flying camp. After he saw Marie, he couldn't "see" any other girl. Their romance flourished for awhile.

And then—Marie was arrested. French counter espionage officers revealed the fact that she was a German spy. They questioned her and Jerry was involved. He hadn't betrayed any secrets, for he didn't know any to betray. But the upshot of it was that he was removed from flying lists and confined to quarters. There he brooded—over the disgrace that had come upon him, and over the deception by his sweetheart.

Eventually he was restored to his former status and put back on the flying lists. But he made only one flight after that. As his buddies watched him circling around for a landing they saw that he had apparently lost control and from a height of about 1,000 meters his plane dived straight for the ground. The ground officers who investigated crashes made their examination and turned in a report of accident. But that didn't deceive his brother flyers. They knew that he was too good a pilot to dive a thousand meters at the ground—accidentally.

Today a white cross stands in the graveyard at Issoudun. It bears the name of Jerry. The welfare girl who tells this story visited it a year or so after the war. On it she saw a huge wreath of imitation green leaves and bead designs done in the usual French manner. There was a sun-dazed card on the wreath. It read: "For the grave of Lieut. Jerry O. From his great friend Marie M." Yes, Marie had been released from prison when the war was over and she had returned to Issoudun long enough to decorate Jerry's grave. And that's the end of this story of Jerry O., American aviator, and Marie M., French, barmaid and German spy.

When Wilson Went Home

President Wilson departed from France the early afternoon of June 29, 1919, in striking contrast to the exciting scenes which had marked his reception a few weeks before. A typical Brest day of drizzling, intermittent rain and oceans of mud, greeted the President when he arrived in the forenoon at the French embarkation center on his special train.

The George Washington, transport on which the President made his eastward voyage, waited in the outer harbor. Only a detachment of M. P.'s were present as Mr. Wilson rode out to the vessel. No doughboy guards were lined up as on the previous occasion when he debarkeed.

Non-coms of the Forty-first division, who had served as an honor guard at the President's mansion in Paris, the Fifth Engineers and the One Hundred and Forty-sixth Machine Gun battalion were aboard the George Washington when she sailed for home. These men had barely completed their midday chow when the historic George Washington whistled her farewell to France and, with the President, headed west.

So inconspicuous was the departure that many American soldiers in the French port were unaware that day that their commander in chief had sailed for home.

Confession of French Murderer Reveals Series of Fantastical Crimes.

Marseilles.—One of the most fantastic crimes which ever took place in France has been uncovered by the Marseilles police, following extraordinary confession by George Saret, insurance attorney, and two German sisters, Catherine and Philomela Schmidt, who are held here accused of robbing an insurance company of $70,000 by faking the death of one of the Schmidt sisters.

After a dramatic grilling which lasted several days the police learned that the gang had murdered two other people.

Learns of Murders.

M. Cals, Marseilles chief of detectives, questioned the two women separately and obtained some scraps of information which he utilized with such effect when subsequently interrogating Saret that the latter thought he had been denounced and broke down and confessed that in July, 1923, he shot a man who was trying to blackmail him and dissolved his body in sulphuric acid.

Saret admitted that he invited his man to a villa, where Catherine awaited him, and while he was looking out the window Saret shot him in the back. The two women who had robbed an insurance company by faking a death, were horrified at the sight of a real corpse.

Bodies Dissolved.

The killer then told the women that he was going to find the man's wife so he could say that he had slain her husband in self-defense. When the wife arrived, according to the police, Saret shot and killed her. Then, aided by the two sisters, Saret took the bodies to the bathroom and pushed them into the tub, which he filled with sulphuric acid. In three days the bodies were completely destroyed.

According to Professor Balthazar, one of the leading crime specialists of the French Academy of Medicine, it is easily possible to dissolve completely a human body and its clothing in pure sulphuric acid. The physician recalled a similar case which took place about twenty years ago when the police discovered that Henri Pel, a watchmaker, had killed several newborn babies by plunging them in a bath of sulphuric acid. The small bodies were dissolved in a few hours.

Toothless Police Dog Puts Copper to Flight

Evanston, Ill.—A police dog who couldn't recognize a policeman afforded residents of Evanston the spectacle of one of the town's special officers in undignified flight.

Iven J. Rubin, court clerk and policeman, has as a result threatened jail for any one who reminds him of the episode, and the pet of the children along Railroad avenue is languishing in the pound because of his falling sight.

A threatening move from Rubin brought the police dog after him. Pursuit continued for several blocks. Harry Rubin, seeing his brother's plight, overtook and tackled the animal. As the dog's jaws closed over his arm, Rubin yelled, while neighbors shouted with laughter.

The dangerous police dog, long ago due for the pension list, is toothless and has been for years.

Half-Starved Monkey Quelled by Policemen

New York.—A small, brown, half-starved monkey with a "Two-Gun" Crowley complex was captured after a two-hour siege by firemen, police and civilians.

The starving simian had gone on a foraging expedition through apartments in a five-story tenement house on First avenue, to the consternation of housewives.

Flooded with phone calls, police dispatched the emergency squad. After striving nearly a half-hour to dislodge the monkey, police put in a call for firemen, and more than 1,000 persons were attracted to the scene.

The animal was taken by Joseph Gallo, a fearless bystander armed with a banana.

Jealous Wife Puts Out Mate's Eyes With Acid

Rome.—Revenge was taken by a jealous wife who accused her husband of ill treating her when Lucia Tomasinelli of Trascatti poured hydrochloric acid into her husband's eyes while he slept, according to police. It is alleged that she poured a few drops of the acid over the closed eyelids, and when he opened his eyes, emptied the rest of the phial into them. The man lost the sight of both eyes.

Advocates Wheat as Substitute for Corn

Expert Advises Its Use in Rations of Hogs.

Proving an excellent substitute for corn in the hog ration, wheat may be fed with profit as long as its price stays near its present level and does not cost more than 10 to 12 cents more per bushel than corn, states J. W. Wulchet, specialist at Ohio State university.

As a feed for hogs, wheat is worth about 6 to 8 per cent more than the same weight of shelled corn and may be substituted entirely for corn in the ration, according to Wulchet. In fact, some tests show that greater returns are obtained by feeding wheat alone with some good protein supplement than by mixing large amounts of corn in the ration.

To get the most out of wheat, Wulchet believes that it is best ground or crushed, preferably the latter, as grinding fine does not improve the digestibility and only adds to the cost. Soaking wheat improves it about 1 per cent, but grinding adds about 16 per cent to its value.

As wheat contains more protein than does corn, less protein is necessary to balance it. Corn, he says, requires about 10 per cent tankage to balance it and wheat requires about 8 per cent. So by feeding wheat good results may be obtained although less tankage and other high protein feeds are used.

No More Useful Feed Than Silage on Farm

Silage is one of the most useful feeds that is produced on the average farm. The entire crop is preserved with much less cost than from any other method in handling. Good clean silage that is free from mold is greatly relished by all classes of live stock. With corn silage and alfalfa hay as the basal ration, supplemented with linseed meal and corn, experiments at the Michigan State college experiment station, as well as at other experiment stations, have shown that considerable grain may be saved by inducing the calves to eat more silage and hay in the early part of the feeding period. When starting on feed, calves weighing 375 to 400 pounds will gain practically as fast for the first two months with about six pounds of grain and all the silage they care to eat as if they are eating eight to ten pounds of grain and considerably less silage. In fact, calves fed six and one-half to seven months gained almost as fast and were practically as fat when fed approximately two-thirds as much corn as other calves that ate from a self-feeder. The selling price was the same two years out of three.

Lack of Protein Cause of Rooting by Pigs

Pigs fed a ration deficient in protein rooted more and more as the length of the feeding period extended at the Ohio experiment station. Pigs which had a good ration with plenty of protein and salt rooted very little, according to W. L. Robinson, reporting his year's research work.

Fish meal again proved to be the most economical protein supplement for corn fed to growing pigs. Minerals added 18 per cent gain when fed with corn alone and reduced the feed required 13 per cent. No protein supplement was used.

Ground oats were more productive than whole oats with tankage and alfalfa. A ration of ground corn, oats, tankage and minerals proved to be more profitable than the corn-oat combination. Cost of production was $4.92 a hundred. Hulling oats was not profitable for pigs.

Ordinary cottonseed meal fed to pigs with the regular corn ration did not do well. Some died after the 40th day. Special cottonseed meal furnished the pigs a good protein supplement and on which they did well.

O. P. V. Suitable for Either Silage or Hay

At one of the Dominion experimental stations in Ontario an experiment has been conducted for a period of years to determine the best time for sowing a mixture of oats, peas and vetch (O.P.V.) for silage or hay. The mixture used was two bushels of oats, one bushel of peas and one-half bushel of vetch per acre. The seed was sown on six different dates each year, at intervals of seven days. The average date of the first seeding over a six-year period was May 23. The average date of the last seeding, June 27.

The experiments showed that good yields may be grown either for silage or hay; that the earlier seedings produce the better yields; yet very good results may be obtained even from seeding later in the summer. Hence, the crop may be grown even on low-lying land, slow to dry up in the spring.

Around the Farm

Nearly half the world's population uses soy beans daily as a protein food. The amount of oats that can be fed hogs, sheep and chickens is limited. Oats has a place in every laying ration. Government scientists are experimenting with wheat and oat straw in an endeavor to make use of these farm products in the manufacture of high quality paper.

Carrizozo Public Schools

Open August 31st

The Carrizozo schools are up-to-date in every respect and fully accredited. The faculty is composed of college men and women who are specialists in the subjects that they teach.

This year, Carrizozo High School offers the largest and most complete curricula ever offered in the history of the school. New elective courses in Science, Commerce, History and Music will be added to increase the total number of units in all subjects to thirty one this year.

Parents residing outside of the Carrizozo School District are invited to enter their children in the Carrizozo Schools, free of tuition charge.

High School education is more valuable and indispensable today than ever before in the history of the world. Increased competition in all lines of human endeavor coupled with an unparalleled increase in high school attendance places a severe and lasting handicap on the youth who is without high school training.

Statistics prove that every day spent in high school is worth $10.50, to the student in money value alone as based upon the increased earnings of high school graduates over the earnings of individuals not thus trained.

Today, High School Education is the Nation's Birthright of Youth in terms of service, economic independence and happiness. Carrizozo High School earnestly desires to serve this community and nation by helping young men and women to acquire this heritage of great price.

The Bible or some part of it has appeared in 919 languages and dialects according to a statement issued by the American Bible Society. This figure, in which no duplication of languages or dialects occurs, represents the publication of the three major Bible Societies functioning throughout the world. The latest book from the press is the Gospel of St. Mark in Atehe, a dialect used by one of the tribes on the French Ivory Coast of West Africa.
