Paragraphs From Keynote Speech

The following extracts are from the keynote address by Honorable William Keleher, of Albuquerque, before the New Mexico Democratic State Convention at Santa Fe, Monday, September 26, 1932. We wish we had room for the entire address.

"Ladies and Gentlemen of New Mexico's Democracy:

Responding to the official call, men and women, who are proud to be identified as democrats, are here today from all parts of New Mexico, for the purpose of actually and actively participating in affairs incident to the conduct of their government. Nationally, New Mexico with three electoral votes, is of minor political importance, but citizens of New Mexico are as much, if not more, interested in the coming national campaign than citizens of any other State in the Union.

"New Mexico, ancient yet modern, old yet new, is a Kingdom within itself, a country of strange contrasts. With a background of knowledge and intelligence that was old when American civilization was young, with nature elusive and adverse in New Mexico, the people have conquered its gifts only by persistent overcoming of obstacles.

"The soil of New Mexico is naturally hard and reluctant to respond to the efforts of man to produce the fruits of earth. Oil, gas, coal, copper and the precious metals of New Mexico are mined and produced only by hard labor. In some parts of the State the waters disappear, form underground rivers, and attempt to evade serving a useful purpose. Man must recapture and return these rivers to the surface by means of artesian wells and pumping plants. No trade winds soften the breezes that blow on mountain top and in the valley. Sheep and cattle are successfully raised only in favored localities. With natural conditions adverse and resistant, New Mexico has been compelled to produce citizens of outstanding excellence, men and women of superior type, quarried from a matrix fashioned by sun and wind and rain. With the pioneer spirit predominant in their blood, they are accustomed to fight and to win.

It is gratifying to see here today representative citizens from every county, almost every precinct in the State. Twenty-one years have passed since New Mexico became a part of the Federal Union. Many since then are the changes that have come over the spirit of New Mexico's democracy.

There were many, however, who did not weary of the long and apparently futile fight for distillation of Democratic principles in territorial days and territorial ways, and steadfastly refused to abandon the cherished principles of Jefferson, Jackson, and Cleveland. Today we recall them with gratitude. All honor and glory to the men of New Mexico's early democracy, who fought the good fight, and established the corner stones for the Democratic party of this day. On such an occasion as this convention, we call back from shadowland the old war horses who worked for the Democratic party of New Mexico until they were dismissed from its ranks by death. Men like W. C. McDonald, A. A. Jones, N. B. Laughlin, John Y.

Hewitt, Felix Martinez, Ezequiel C. de Baca, Antonio S. Lucero, W. R. McGill, E. V. Long, Summers Burkhardt, and a host of others, now sleeping their last long sleep in the New Mexico they loved. We can best perpetuate their memories by continued adherence to the sterling type of democracy to which they subscribed.

With their backs to the wall in dreading to accept the punishment that awaits them at the polls for their years of misrule the Republicans again ask the indulgence of the voters. They propose that Herbert Hoover shall be given another opportunity to demonstrate his ability. They ask forgiveness for their political sins of yesterday, by pretending a newly found friendship for Alfred E. Smith, the candidate of Democrats in 1928 and by asking the people to forget that with a cruelty without parallel in history, they crucified the policies of Woodrow Wilson and hounded him to an untimely death because he dared to deal honestly in government and fair dealing between man and man and nation and nation. They ask the people to forget the horrors of the Harding administration and the colorless Coolidge.

Democrats should not be led astray by deceptive appeals for sympathy or forgiveness. More united than they have been in generations, the Democrats of the United States, have for their standard bearer, in the person of Franklin D. Roosevelt, a man who will give the people a new deal and a square deal. Roosevelt has demonstrated his ability as a leader and an executive. He has been tried and not found wanting. With him as president, the Democrats propose to substitute a government of decision, action and courage for a government of doubt, despair and disillusionment. With Roosevelt, the nation will have for its chief executive a man who shows sympathy and understanding for the interests for the masses of this great country; a man who will not be ruled by Wall Street, the power trusts or international bankers; a man who will remember the "forgotten man," and not forget starving children. The Democrats of New Mexico are particularly interested in the candidate of John Nance Garner, Roosevelt's running mate. Twenty-nine years in Congress, speaker of the House of Representatives at the last session, he is a man of outstanding ability. Because he is a son of the great Southwest, he will have the sympathetic understanding of the needs of this State and its people. "The cry goes up from millions of people of the United States: Democratic give us leadership!" Everywhere people are praying for freedom from fears and bewilderment. They are sick unto death of the aimless national leadership which has marked these troubled times. Democrats of New Mexico, the opportunity is before you to render a great service to the people of state and nation by doing everything within your power to help elect a Democratic ticket in the state and nation on November 8th.

"The party of Jefferson, Andrew Jackson, and Woodrow Wilson has never failed in a crisis such as now exists in America. Democratic leadership has always asserted itself for America in times of despair. The Republican party once again has been tried and found wanting. The people of this nation propose to return to the pathway of peace, progress and prosperity, pointed out to them, by that great Democratic statesman, Woodrow Wilson. The hour has struck. The government of our fathers, after next March, will be returned to the hands of the American people by again entrusting the affairs of this great nation to the Democratic party.

Fair Notes

1. The success of the 6th Fair and Track meet is now assured beyond question. The tournaments will line up as before with the exception that Tularosa will take Hondo's place in the girl's basket ball tournament. Many of the old stars of Carrizozo, Capitan, Tularosa and Corona will be in this tournament and fast and exciting games are assured.

2. Iggy Mulcaby will again start the races, referee the basket ball and football games. Iggy has this to say in his letter of acceptance: "I certainly enjoy your Fair, each year and have been looking forward to this one for the past few months. Some day I hope I'll be in position to just call it a vacation and give my services to your community fund." Iggy cancelled an engagement to referee a football game in order to handle the track meet.

3. Outside schools should send in the names of their entrants just as rapidly as possible. Corona has already reported with her list.

4. Watch the papers for announcements. Committee

Proposed Constitutional Amendments

Proposed Constitutional Amendment No. 1 to be submitted, at the General Election November 8, 1932, pursuant to the provisions of Senate Steering Committee Substitute for House Joint Resolution Number 8, approved March 18, 1931, as enacted by the tenth Legislature and provided by act of United States Congress approved June 15, 1926, and proposed Constitutional Amendment Number 2, House Joint Resolution Number 10 approved March 18, 1931, proposing to amend Section 19 of Article Four of the Constitution of the State of New Mexico.

MRS. M. P. BACA, Secretary of State, Constitutional Amendment No. 1

A Joint Resolution Proposing an Amendment to the Constitution of the State of New Mexico, Authorizing the Exchange of State Lands in the National Forest for Lands of the United States of Equal Value as Provided by Act of Congress Approved June 15, 1926. Senate Steering Committee Substitute for House Joint Resolution No. 8; Approved March 18, 1931.

BE IT RESOLVED BY THE LEGISLATURE OF THE STATE OF NEW MEXICO:

WHEREAS, the State of New Mexico is the owner of certain areas of land within the National Forests within said State, and said lands are scattered throughout the Forests in small tracts and are not so located as to enable the State to administer them for timber purposes.

WHEREAS, there are large areas of land within the state now owned by the United States.

WHEREAS, an exchange by the State of its timbered lands for a larger area of grazing lands of equal value would secure to the State part of the remaining federal public domain for lease or sale to private parties and thereby increase the taxable property in the State.

NOW, THEREFORE, the following amendment to the Constitution of the State of New Mexico is hereby proposed to Article XXI by adding the following article which shall be numbered Section 11 thereof:

Section 11. This State and its people consent to the provisions of the act of Congress, approved June 15, 1926, providing for such exchanges and the Governor and other state officers mentioned in said act are hereby authorized to execute the necessary instrument or instruments to affect the exchange of lands therein provided for with the government of the United States; provided that in the determination of values of the lands now owned by the State of New Mexico, the value of the lands, the timber thereon and mineral rights pertaining thereto shall control the determination of value. The legislature may enact laws for the carrying out of the provisions hereof in accordance herewith.

Constitutional Amendment No. 2

A House Joint Resolution Proposing to Amend Section Nineteen of Article Four of the Constitution of the State of New Mexico; and Fixing the Time of Holding an Election Thereon. House Joint Resolution No. 18;

Approved March 18, 1931. BE IT ENACTED BY THE LEGISLATURE OF THE STATE OF NEW MEXICO:

Section 1. That it is hereby proposed to amend Section Nineteen of Article Four of the Constitution of the State of New Mexico, said article being entitled, "Legislative Department," so as to read as follows:

"Sec. 19. No bill shall be introduced at any regular session of the Legislature subsequent to the forty-fifth legislative day, except the general appropriation bill, bills to provide for the current expenses of the government, and such bills as may be referred to the Legislature by the Governor by special message specifically setting forth the emergency or necessity requiring such legislation."

Sec. 2. In event of the passage and approval of the foregoing amendment the same shall be submitted to the people at the general election in November, 1932; Provided, however, that in case a special election is held prior to 1932 the same shall be submitted to the people at such election.

Enmienda Constitucional propuesta para ser sometida a la Elección General el día ocho de Noviembre 1932, para seguir las disposiciones de la Resolución Conjunta No. 8, aprobada el día 18 de Marzo 1931 autorizando el canje de Tierras del Estado en la Floresta Nacional por Tierras de los Estados Unidos de igual valor según está dispuesto por el acta del Congreso aprobada el 15 de Junio de 1926, y la propuesta Enmienda Constitucional No. 2 aprobada el día 18 de Marzo 1931 para enmendar la sección Diez y Nueva del Artículo Cuatro de la Constitución del Estado de Nuevo México; y fijar el tiempo para efectuarse la elección sobre la misma. MRS. M. P. BACA, Secretaria de Estado.

Enmienda Constitucional Num. 1

Una resolución conjunta proponiendo una enmienda a la constitución de Nuevo México autorizando el canje de Tierras del Estado en la Floresta Nacional por Tierras de los Estados Unidos de igual valor según está dispuesto por el acta del Congreso aprobada el 15 de Junio de 1926.

Aprobada Marzo 18, 1931. RESUELVASE POR LA LEGISLATURA DEL ESTADO DE NUEVO MEXICO:

POR CUANTO, el Estado de Nuevo México es el dueño de ciertas áreas de tierra dentro de la Floresta Nacional en dicho Estado, y dichas tierras están repartidas en distintos lugares de la Floresta en pequeñas porciones y no están situadas para permitir que el Estado las administre para cortar la madera.

POR CUANTO, que hay grandes áreas de tierra dentro del Estado pertenecientes a los Estados Unidos.

POR CUANTO, un canje por el Estado de sus bosques por una área grande de terreno pastoral de igual valor aseguraría al Estado parte del restante dominio público federal para arrendamientos o ventas a personas particulares y so aumentaría la propiedad sujeta a contribución en el Estado.

AHOR, POR LO TANTO, la siguiente enmienda a la Constitución del Estado de Nuevo México queda propuesta por la presente al Artículo Vigésimo-Primo agregándole la siguiente sección la cual se deberá numerar Sección 11 del mismo:

Sección 11. El Estado y su pueblo consenten a las disposiciones del acta del Congreso, aprobada el 15 de junio de 1926, disponiendo tales canjes y al gobernador y otros oficiales del estado ya mencionados en dicha acta quedan por la presente autorizados para ejecutar el instrumento o instrumentos necesarios para efectuar los canjes de Tierras señalados en el mismo con el gobierno de los Estados Unidos; siempre que en las determinaciones de valores de las tierras actualmente pertenecientes al Estado de Nuevo México, el valor de las tierras, la madera sobre las mismas, y los derechos minerales en las mismas, controlarán la determinación del valor. La legislatura podrá decretar leyes para el cumplimiento de las disposiciones de la misma de acuerdo con la presente.

Enmienda Constitucional Num. 2

Una Resolución conjunta propuesta para enmendar la Sección Diez y Nueva del Artículo Cuatro de la Constitución del Estado de Nuevo México; y fijar el tiempo para efectuarse la elección sobre la misma. Aprobada Marzo 18, 1931. DECRETASE POR LA LEGISLATURA DEL ESTADO DE NUEVO MEXICO:

Sección 1. Que por la presente queda propuesta la enmienda diez y nueve del Artículo Cuatro de la Constitución del Estado de Nuevo México, dicho artículo siendo titulado, "Departamento Legislativo," para leerse como sigue: "Sec. 19. Ningún proyecto será presentado en ninguna sesión de la Legislatura subsiguiente al cuadragesimo quinto día legislativo; excepto el proyecto de apropiación general, proyectos que prevengan para gastos corrientes del gobierno, y tales proyectos que fueren referidos a la Legislatura por el Gobernador mediante mensaje especial específicamente manifestando la urgencia y necesidad para requerir tal legislación."

Sec. 2. En caso de que se apruebe y se adopte la dicha enmienda será sometida al pueblo en la Elección General en Noviembre de 1932; advirtiéndose, sin embargo, que en caso de que se efectue alguna elección especial antes de 1932 la misma será sometida al pueblo en tal elección.

SYNOPSIS

Wilson McCann, young Arizona ranchman, finds an old friend, Jim Yerby, with a broken leg. Julia Stark, daughter of Matthew Stark, inveterate enemy of the McCanns, is returning first aid. Taking a pet from Julia to her father, Wilson is fired on by Jasper, Julia's brother. On the way from Julia's place, he loses Julia, leaving her companion's identity and disposes him in anger, the old feud rekindling. Ann Gifford, with her young sister, Ethel, are sheep raisers, and on that account supernaturally with the cattlemen. "Night riders" burn a cabin and shoot a McCann ranch hand. Peter McCann, Wilson's father, offers a reward for the disclosure of his identity. Wilson McCann horsewhips Jasper, he making practically no resistance. Matthew discovers his son for his cowardice, and posts notice he will kill Wilson McCann on sight.

CHAPTER IV

Red Tragedy

Wilson drew up among the scrub pines on the side of the hogback across from Yerby's cabin. These days he followed roundabout trails and moved with extreme caution. For his life had been posted by a man who never made vain threats. It was the sight of a white-faced bay standing in front of the house that brought him up short now.

With the trained eye of a cow-puncher he recognized the horse instantly. He had last seen it on a certain moonlit night and Julia Stark had been in the saddle. But he had no certainty that she was using it today. Some one else might be waiting for him in Jim's cabin—say Jasper Stark or his father or that Texas killer, Giltner. He decided to play safe.

From its place beside the saddle he drew a rifle and tested its mechanism. This done, he crept on all fours through the greasewood and the yucca till he had put a long hundred yards between him and Jim-Dandy. Behind a clump of cholla he squatted and watched the house patiently. For nearly half an hour he did not stir. Except his eyes he was motionless as a statue.

Julia Stark might not be alone with Yerby, though the fact that he could see only one saddled horse pointed to that conclusion. With the greatest care, he worked toward the house from the rear.

When at last he reached the window Wilson raised his head slowly and looked inside. Julia had seated herself and was evidently just about to read aloud from a book. Jim was sitting in a chair with his leg propped up in another chair in front of him. Wilson went back to his horse, rode across the arroyo, and shouted, "Hello the house!"

Miss Stark came to the door. She stood erect and uncompromisingly hostile, watching him as he dismounted. Her dark look was like a flashing sword.

He nodded good morning without response.

"How's Jim?" he asked. She stood aside to let him pass into the house, gathering her skirts close so that he would not brush against her as he went by. Nothing could have expressed more positively her detestation of him than that disdainful gesture.

With lightning spur he moved across the room. "How are you, Dad?"

"Fat like a match. What you know that's new?"

"Not much. Gather of bees on Poison creek next month. Some more rustling in the hills, they say."

McCann chatted easily, casually, with the nester, ignoring the burning resentment that held the girl passionately silent. His manner was coolly indifferent, but not for a moment was he off guard.

Watching him covertly, Julia saw a sudden change in the lounging posture. The back straightened and the muscles grew taut. Every sense had quickened to life. For some one was coming up the path toward the house.

Julia moved quickly to the door, then drew a breath of relief. She had dreaded and half expected to see her father. But the approaching figure was that of a young woman.

The new arrival was Ann Gifford. She had brought with her a cake. Since Yerby's accident she had been in the habit of coming every day to supply the simple needs. Even her fierce aloofness had not been proof against the little man's good will. Nobody who knew him could continue to dislike Jim Yerby.

"Meet Miss Julia Stark, Miss Gifford," their host said, and after pronouncing the formula added: "Miss Julia she's just back from Los Angeles, where she's learned most everything they is to know about them schoolbooks, I reckon."

Julia laughed at this testimonial as she stepped forward to shake hands. She had wanted to meet the Gifford girls ever since her return. Ann was still holding the cake and she did not put it down. Coldly she bowed.

"I called the other day, Miss Gifford, but you weren't at home," Julia said. "May I come again—some day soon?"

"We're both out with the sheep," Ann replied.

It was a ruse, but Julia refused to accept it. "You can't be out all the time. Try my luck again," she said.

Yerby tried to cover Ann's discourtesy by a flux of words. "Miss Julia she was jest startin' to read to me from this here David Dickens book."

"David Copperfield," Julia corrected. "Sure enough, Dickens he's the fellow that owns the brand. Well, I was sayin' that this Steerforth duck, the one that done it—Emily dirt, why some one had ortn hang his hide out to dry, seems like. I don't hold with dry-gulching, you understand, but there's times—"

The nester stopped abruptly, the springs of his garrulity dried up. A glance at Ann Gifford's frozen face had done it. He recalled the rumors that had come to him as to the reason why Nora had gone to Los Angeles and embarrassment flamed in his countenance.

McCann rescued him by commenting on the number of characters in the book. "I never did see so many foot-loose folks trillin' around. There's David an' Peggoty an' Miss Betsey an' the Murdstones an' Barkis—"

"Looks like he'd have trouble with all them folks millin' around in his haid whilist he was writin'," the old timer mused aloud. "But this Dickens guy sure knows how to throw a rope so as to cut out any 'em from the herd when he's good an' ready."

Ann Gifford did not stay. Her manner implied that she wanted to have nothing to do with any of them except Yerby.

The nester spoke first. "I'd like right well to do something for her an' her little sister if I knew what," he said, wrinkling his forehead in thought. "O' course sheep are pests. I ain't denyin' that none. But seems like these girls ain't hardly to blame because—"

Julia had opened her lips to say substantially the same thing, but she closed them again without speaking. She did not intend to be of the same opinion as Wilson McCann on any subject.

Nevertheless she had a word to say to him, and before she left she said it. He had stepped out to bring a bucket of water from the spring. She met him under a live oak a few yards from the house.

"You know my father is looking for you?" she said abruptly.

"Some one did mention that to me," he said.

"Why don't you go away? Why don't you leave the country?" she demanded.

"Because Matt Stark has served notice on me of his intentions?" he asked grimly. "What kind of a man would I be if I ran away after that? Am I the one lookin' for trouble? Did I print bills sayin' I'd kill him on sight?" His face was hard as hammered iron.

"You know why he did that—because you jumped on Jasper when he wasn't looking and beat him when he couldn't defend himself."

He laughed scornfully. "That's the story he's telling, is it?"

"And now, Father's crazy mad. If you don't go away—"

"I'm not going," he cut in harshly.

"Then some one will be killed," she cried despairingly.

"Yes."

His brown competent fingers were on the barrel of the rifle he had been carrying in one hand. There flowed through her a sense of his virile power. This man was dangerous. His force expressed itself in the cool quiet eyes, in the clean lines of the face and figure, in a certain wary stillness that meant reserve strength.

"If you'd only go—while there's still time—"

Her distress touched his not very accessible heart, the more because he knew her capable of fierce and primitive passion. Independence and courage were of the essence of her. But her pride could not stand out against the shadow of tragedy hovering in the background.

"I can't go. What would folks say?" "Does it matter what they'd say if you were doing right?" she asked.

"It would matter to me. Besides, I'd not be doing right to go. This is where I live—the only country I know. I can't let anyone run me out. I've got to go through."

"Why have you?" she pleaded. "It's all wrong, this feud. If you'd just go away, for a while, maybe things would quiet down. Then you could come back."

He shook his head. "No, I can't go. I don't want to have any trouble with your father, but if he's beat on it, why it'll have to come."

With a little gesture of helplessness she gave up. It was of no use. Before making the attempt to move him she had known it would be. For according to the frontier code he was right. None but a weakling could run away after an enemy had served notice that he was looking for him.

As she turned away his voice stopped her. "I'll promise the thing. It'll be a fair fight for an I'm concerned—no layin' in the bushes an' waitin' for him."

Her dark troubled eyes rested in his. Their appealing beauty disturbed him. He would have liked to give peace to her worried soul. But he could offer no assurance. When the hour came, if it lay within his power, he must strike her to the heart.

Much stirred, he watched her lithe young body as it moved with light rhythm toward the house. She belonged to the enemy clan, but he could not hold her in cold disapproval. An enemy, yes! But already he knew her a very dear one whose presence filled the secret places of his being.

As Jasper Stark moved about the streets of Mesa with his slouching gait, his eyes furtively questioned public opinion to discover what it thought of him. His manner of braggadocho still sat on him, but it was a hollow mockery. He was full of shame, resentment, and self-pity. Hatred surged in him.

He sent for Giltner. That hardy ruffian straddled into an upstairs room of the Gilt Edge and looked at young Stark with a scarcely veiled sneer. "Want to see me?" he asked.

They Talked, in Whispers, for an Hour, Their Heads Close and the Door Locked.

"Yep. Heard the old man say anything about me, Carl?"

"The old man don't mention your name. It's understood at the Circle Cross that Matt's through with you. Why?"

"Sit down," Jasper growled, with annoyed impatience. "I wanta talk." He pushed the bottle on the table toward the other man.

Giltner took a chair and a drink. He offered no comment. There was a tactical advantage in forcing the other to lead and he availed himself of it.

"Shove that bottle north by west," Stark said surlily, and then poured himself a large drink. He tossed it down at a gulp and almost at once replenished the tumbler. Morosely he eyed the liquor. "The old man been to town this week?"

"No. Last time he was in was the day he read the riot act to you." Giltner grinned maliciously. "But he's had Fletcher out to the ranch an' they spent most a whole mornin' together."

Jasper gloomed at his drink and poured it down his throat without visible pleasure.

"He was making a will, don't you reckon?" he said at last.

"I reckon."

"Question is, has he signed it yet?" "If you want to know, who don't you go ask him?" suggested the Texan with sarcasm.

"I don't need to ask him. He hasn't. Fletcher would draw it up when he come back to town. That would be the way they fixed it. But Fletcher had to leave Thursday night again for Phoenix to argue a case before the Supreme court. He got back this afternoon, not more 'an an hour ago. He'll finish writing up the will tomorrow."

"Looks like," agreed the man from the Lone Star state.

"An' he'll take it out either in the afternoon or next day."

"Sounds reasonable. Better kiss the ranch good-by, Jas."

The eyes of the two met and held fast. There was something of crouched significance in Jasper's narrowed gaze. It brought the other man to a wary and alert attention. He knew that he was going to find out now why he had been asked to come here.

They talked, in whispers, for an hour, their heads close and the door locked. Not once, though they drank much, did their voices lift. It might have been noticed, if anyone had been observing them, that Giltner left the Gilt Edge half an hour before his companion. Nobody but Miss Stark, the bartender knew that they had been in the room together.

At the hotel waiting for him Jasper found his sister. They walked a little distance down the road to be alone.

"No ask, Jas," she told him. "I've fought it out with Dad and he won't listen to a word. He's cutting you out of his will."

"That'll suit you an' Phil," he sneered. "What do you care if I do get a rotten deal?"

you think I'll sit down an' let him cut me outa my share of the ranch, why, you've got another guess. I'll not stand for it."

"You can't help yourself," Julia told him curtly. His boasting was an old story with her and she gave it no weight. "What's the matter with you anyhow, Jas? Why didn't you stand up and fight Wils McCann?"

"Tell you, he hit me when I wasn't lookin'. Tell you, I was dazed an' I fell. He jumped me when I was down. It's the honest-to-God truth."

She was convinced he was lying to save his face, but there was no use telling him so.

"When are you going?" she asked. "Going where?" "Away from here."

"Who said I was going?" "Why, I thought—Dad said—"

"I don't care what he said. He's not runnin' me. When I get good an' ready maybe I'll go an' maybe I won't."

She came to a subject that never was long from her thoughts. The fact that she mentioned it at all to her brother, from whom she could expect no help, showed how much the dread of it obsessed her.

"I'm worried about Dad—awful worried. Every time he rides away from the house my heart sinks. If he should meet that Wils McCann—and of course he will some time—"

"Does he ride alone?" "Not if we can prevent it. I go with him when he'll let me—or Phil—and once or twice Dave Stone. But if Dad sees we're trying to protect him he gets wild and won't have it for a minute."

"Sure. That's the old man for you. Well, you tell him something for me, Jule. He's not the only man that's lookin' for Wils McCann."

Her startled eyes fastened to his. "What do you mean?"

"What d'you reckon I mean? I'm a Stark, no matter what the old man says—an' he's a McCann an' on top of that he's dope me dirt. I'll fix him, sure as he's a foot high. But keep it under your hat. I ain't gettin' out any bills about it. Not none."

She was torn by conflicting emotions. That Jasper had spirit enough to fight his own battle, if he really meant it and would not weaken when it came to the test, was news that warmed her blood. "The danger in which her father stood might be averted if her brother met McCann first. Yet this was cold comfort. After the first flush of gladness for Jasper she knew by the chill that crept over her heart how dreadful it would be if any of her family killed Wilson McCann or were killed by him.

"Isn't there any way out, Jas—any way at all but this?" she cried, almost in a wail. "Do we have to start this—this awful feud? Surely there must be some way I could stop it if I only knew how."

Yellow lights gleamed like sinister beacons in his cold eyes. "No way. The McCanns started this an' it'll have to go through now."

Julia turned back toward the hotel with sick foreboding in her heart.

Phil was blabbing a calf when his father came out to the porch.

"Going to Mesa, son. Heck up the team for me, won't you?"

The boy, before he went to the stable, dodged for a moment into the kitchen. Julia was making pies.

Renascence Period of World's Great Advance

The Renaissance (literally the "re-birth") may be defined briefly in the phrase of a great classical scholar, Sir Richard Jebb, as "the whole process of transition in Europe from the medieval to the modern order." The movement, the beginnings of which are associated with Petrarch (1304-74) and the humanists of the fourteenth century—in Italy, was stimulated by the momentous events of the fifteenth century—particularly the fall of Constantinople, which drove Byzantine scholars with the literature of Greece into western Europe, the invention of printing, and the discovery of America. This "rebirth" or "awakening," which spread to France and northern Europe in the sixteenth century, was especially noticeable in the development of what are called the "fine arts." In Italy it led to great advances in expressional painting and sculpture, and to a return to classical design of architecture in France it developed especially in art and letters under Louis XII and Francis I; in Britain the movement expressed itself most notably in literature, following upon the impulse to classical learning given by Erasmus, Colet, Moore, and others; while in Germany the movement became associated with the Reformation.

National Conventions Although performing the function of selecting a man to rule the nation for four years, there is not one single statute relating to national conventions. Public opinion alone polices them and they are sovereign in themselves. A century ago, when national conventions had their inception, John Quincy Adams wrote in his diary, "These meetings cannot be multiplied without resulting in deeper tragedies. Their manifest tendency is to civil war." Nevertheless, the national conventions have reigned supreme and no man not chosen by one ever has been elected President.

As Old as His Creed The story is told of a young rector who, after a sermon on the divine character of the church, was approached by an elderly lady who said wrathfully: "How dare a boy like you talk to us in that manner?" The young man, who still wore his surplice, drew himself up and replied with crushing dignity: "Madam, when I have this on I am 1,900 years old." —Boston Transcript.

The Way of a Woman Seattle (Wash.) police asked Mrs. Beadle Ingram why she didn't investigate when she heard shots next door. Her reply was, "I had a react in the eye to that shot!"

"He's going to Mesa," he said quickly.

Julia at once unfastened her apron. "Keep him here till I'm dressed," she told him, and moved in her swift light way to the bedroom she used.

While Phil, with the assistance of a wrangler, was hitching to a buckboard the half-broken colts his father drove, a rider jogged up and stopped to pass word. The man worked for an outfit down the river.

"Lo, Red!" Phil greeted him. "How they comin'?"

"No complaint, as ol' man Peters said when his third wife died. Everything fine an' dandy with you?"

Red eased his weight in the saddle to relax stiffened muscles and rolled a cigarette.

"Miss Rollins jes' got back from Los Angeles, and she happened on a piece of news 'out there right interestin'," he volunteered. "She was takin' care of her daughter whilist an interestin' event—was occurin'—They was a nurse there to meet the lit' stranger the stork was bringin', an' it seems she was hired awhile ago to look after Nora Gifford, one o' them sheep-ranch women. The Gifford girl she had a hard time of it an' died—her an' the baby, too. Folks have kinda figured they was something wrong when the oldest sister come back alone. There's been right consid'able talk."

Phil flushed angrily. "Why don't folks mind their own d—d business?" he blurted out. "We're in lone business when we pick on some lone girls an' make their life hell for them." The generous indignation of youth flamed in him.

"That's right, too," agreed Red. "I knew Nora Gifford—some. She was a mighty sweet girl. The lobo wolf that ruined her life had ought to be hunted down an' shot in his tracks."

"Y'betcha!" agreed Red with the easy variability of the cowpuncher. "Dry-gulchin' wouldn't be none too good for him."

From his hip pocket he dragged a sack of "smoking." "I seen Wils McCann as I come up the road," he said, in a carefully casual voice. "He was fixin' the head gates of that ditch rannin' along the ridge to his father's place."

"Right now?" asked Phil instantly. "Well, it's a good four-five miles from here. Say an hour ago."

Matthew Stark came out from the house and swung across the yard toward the stable with his strong bow-legged stride. As usual he carried a rifle. He had not covered twenty yards before Julia appeared.

"Oh Dad!" she called.

Stark stopped, waiting for her. But before she could frame her request he refused it.

"No, you can't go to town with me. I don't care how many dofunnys you got to buy. No use you peesterin' me either. You ain't going. That's settled."

"We're out of salt, Dad, and canned tomatoes, and lots of things."

"You make a list. I'll get 'em. Now, honey, don't you argue with me about it. It won't be a mile of use."

She came up close and took him by the coat-lapels. She had always been the center of his dearest love. In his heart he thought her the most beautiful and wonderful creature under heaven.

"I want to go—awful," she whispered, her deep dark eyes appealingly earnest.

Find Records of

Stern Greek Law
Two pieces of pottery on which votes were inscribed which sent Aristides and Themistocles, Greek political and military leaders, into temporary exiles 240 years ago have been found in the ancient market place at Athens, Greece.

Citizens of Athens during the Fifth century B. C., were privileged under the constitution of the city to meet in public assembly and vote for the temporary banishment of any of the citizenry. If as many as 6,000 votes were cast in the ballot, the citizen receiving the largest number was exiled for ten years but not deprived of the enjoyment of his property.

At least eight Athenian leaders are known to have been ostracized, but votes cast in the ballots have only been found for four of the proceedings.

The above mentioned "ostrakon," Greek term for the ballots so used, which was cast against Aristides is the first of its kind ever discovered but the one with the name of Themistocles is the second found. Ostraca have now been found for the votes against Megacles in 487 B. C.; Xanthippos, father of Pericles in 483 B. C.; Aristides in 483 B. C., and Themistocles in 471 B. C.

Los Angeles Boy Needed Help

Leroy Young, 1110 Georgia St., Los Angeles, is a "regular fellow," active in sports, and at the top in his classes at school. To look at him now, you'd think he never had a day's sickness but his mother says: "When Leroy was just a little fellow, we found his stomach and bowels were weak. He kept suffering from constipation. Nothing he ate agreed with him. He was fretful, fussy and puny."

"When we started giving him California Fig Syrup his condition improved quickly. His constipation and biliousness stopped and he has had no more trouble of that kind. I have since used California Fig Syrup with him for colds and upset spells. He likes it because it tastes so good and I like it because it helps him so wonderfully!"

California Fig Syrup has been the trusted standby of mothers for over 50 years. Leading physicians recommend it. It is purely vegetable and works with Nature to regulate, tone and strengthen the stomach and bowels of children so they get full nourishment from their food and waste is eliminated in a normal way.

Four million bottles used a year shows how mothers depend on it. Always look for the word "California" on the carton to be sure of getting the genuine.

Penalty of Success

"Success knows no right or wrong."

William C. Durant, the automobile magnate, was speaking on success at a Kiwanis picnic in Boston.

"Yes," he went on, "success, like failure, has its penalties. The Slincksons, for instance, ran a small boarding house, Wave villa, at Ocean City last year, and their success was very great. One afternoon when Mr. Slinckson came home from the fish market Mrs. Slinckson said to him: 'I've rented the coalbin to old Jake Hodge, Joe. The rest of the season you'll have to sleep in the chickenhouse. I'm sure you won't mind the chickens.'"

Want "Ad" Jogs Memory

Unusual was the public announcement that appeared in the London papers recently. The Hungarian minister, Baron Ivan Ribido-Zichy, inserted this advertisement: "The Hungarian minister regrets that, having lost his engagement book, he is unable to remember his engagements for next week, and would, therefore, be grateful for reminders." Luckily three persons who had invited him to dinner on various nights telephoned to remind him of the dates, and as for the rest of the engagements he remembered them.

Nation's Largest Ranch
The largest singly owned ranch in the United States is the King's ranch, at Kingsville, Texas, which comprises 1,280,000 acres of land. This ranch borders the Gulf of Mexico for 100 miles and more than 100,000 calves are branded on it each season. Kingsville is a town of about 5,000 people and is the center of this vast estate, which is largely supported by the industries of the ranch.—Washington Star.

Fat folks should take one half teaspoonful of Kruschen Salts in a glass of hot water in the morning before breakfast—it's the SAFE, harmless way to reduce as tens of thousands of men and women know. For your health's sake ask for and get Kruschen at any drug store—the cost for a bottle that lasts 4 weeks is but a trifle and if after the first bottle you are not joyfully satisfied with results—money back.

Superintendent of Schools Charlotte Kell
Treasurer Louis J. Adams
County Clerk Edith Lesnet Crawford
Larry Dow
Commissioner 2nd District John Doering

Republicans Lack Capable Leadership

The huge Democratic victory in Maine... The election of a Democratic Governor and two Democratic Congressmen...

For the first time the unseasoned Warwicks in charge of Mr. Hoover's campaign seem to realize the extent of the revolt within the Republican party...

They remember the false hopes held out to agriculture, and how the attempt to stabilize agricultural prices by gambling in the wheat pit cost the tax payers nearly a half billion dollars...

Following the many attempts to deceive the electorate concerning the facts, the untrained and unpracticed leaders of the Hoover campaign attempted a further deception through propaganda to the effect that Mr. Hoover's speech of acceptance had turned the tide in his favor.

The Maine election put a quietus upon this claim, because it showed that the antagonism to the Hoover Administration had not decreased but, based on the election claims of both parties, and on the final result, had actually increased.

first has realized the extent of the Republican revolt and has understood the reasons therefor—the failure of Republican leadership. Governor Roosevelt, in his speech of acceptance, made this plain when he said: 'I shall not use the words 'Republican party,' but instead, day in and day out, 'Republican leadership.' He realized that the enlightened rank and file of the Republican party is in harmony with the rank and file of the Democratic party in its efforts to salvage the country.

Doubtless, Republican leaders, from now on, will undertake to win back the members of their party in revolt, but it ought to be apparent that they have no real chance of success. Practically every major spokesman for the Administration so far is discredited by his own acts or utterances; the candidate is discredited by his record. Millions of Republicans, victims of previous deceptions, are in no mood to be again deceived by glittering promises or misrepresentation of facts.

The overwhelming Democratic victory now in sight this year will not be merely a partisan victory but a victory of, for and by the people.

The advertisements demand to know of us if we inhale. Yep, except when we are on the windward side of a packing plant when we get along with a little inhaling as we can.

Many Children Need School Books

Everyone in the community is familiar by this time with the effects of the general depression on the material well-being of many of our fellow-citizens. Many families are obliged to cut down their food supply and other necessities to a minimum either on account of a reduced or an utterly depleted income.

At the suggestion of our Honorable Mayor of Carrizozo, we have decided to ask the people of this community to alleviate this shortage of books, either by donating used books or by financial aid for the purchasing of new books.

Rev. Fr James A. Brady, Supt D U. Groce.

Does make their honeycomb to last for years. If it is not disturbed by man, it is handed down through many generations. It is not unusual for a comb to be in use 20 years or more if periodically cleaned and repaired by the bees.

"Instinct" and "Intuition" Instinct is the term applied to an inherited tendency to perform a specific action in a particular way whenever a situation arises. Intuition, on the other hand, implies the faculty of knowing something beforehand, whether it be mystical, intellectual or moral.

Moral indignation "What an anomaly, that so-called Christian people should ever show anger!" exclaims a writer. Quiet anger that aims its blows against evil has its place. Spitting, blistering anger for selfish ends is a different thing.

Promised 90 per cent of the Farmers—Governor Woodring of Kansas says that Governor Roosevelt will receive the votes of 90 per cent of the farmers.

This will be the shortest political campaign we have ever known. The Democrats named their State ticket at the last minute of the last day permissible to file the names of candidates.

Mr. Hoover's decision to take the stump seems to be based on the exploded theory that a landslide can be stopped by getting directly in front of it.

The rate at which the anti-Administration revolt is growing suggests the possibility that President Hoover may feel impelled to appoint a Commission on the Presidential Election.

High School Notes

Like old times to have them with us again. The program was exceptionally good. Dorothy Dozier played a piano solo. A talk of local and historical interest was given by Georgia Lesnet. There was some old time fiddling by Sat Chavez and Reid Dudley.

Father James A. Brady addressed the High School assembly Monday morning. His talk was both entertaining and instructive. He stressed especially the value of correct English in the social and educational world. The Boughner girls delighted the students Wednesday morning by giving a concert of unusual merit. Several numbers were accompanied by Mrs. O. J. Snow.

Primary Department

The Primary Department has appointed a committee of three little people to take charge of the opening exercises each morning, and they arrange very nice programs.

There are 46 pupils in this department. Mrs. Sam Nickels is the teacher.

They are painting their tables and chairs.

Our daily newspaper is proving quite interesting. The pupils write the news on the blackboard each day. The main item of interest this week was Baby Hoffman's new tooth.

Republicans Lack Capable Leadership

The huge Democratic victory in Maine. The election of a Democratic Governor and two Democratic Congressmen--was only possible because thousands of men and women in the Pine Tree State who have heretofore voted the Republican ticket joined with Democrats in repudiation of the Hoover Administration.

For the first time the unseasoned Warwick in charge of Mr. Hoover's campaign seem to realize the extent of the revolt within the Republican party against the Hoover Administration and the Republican leadership, but without any apparent realization of the causes that led to the revolt.

They remember the false hopes held out to agriculture, and how the attempt to stabilize agricultural prices by gambling in the wheat pit cost the tax payers nearly a half-billion dollars; also the effort to mislead the public on the volume of unemployment, and they recall the many absurd alibis that have marked the failure of these devices.

Following the many attempts to deceive the electorate concerning the facts, the untrained and unpracticed leaders of the Hoover campaign attempted a further deception through propaganda to the effect that Mr. Hoover's speech of acceptance had turned the tide in his favor.

The Maine election put a quietus upon this claim, because it showed that the antagonism to the Hoover Administration had not decreased but, based on the election claim of both parties, and on the final result, had actually increased. Democratic leadership from the first has realized the extent of the Republican revolt and has understood the reasons therefor--the failure of Republican leadership. Governor Roosevelt, in his speech of acceptance, made this plain when he said: "I shall not use the words 'Republican party,' but instead, day in and day out, 'Republican leadership.' He realized that the

SCHOOL AND FAIR SECTION

CARRIZOZO, NEW MEXICO, FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 30, 1932.

Football Season Opened Saturday

The football season started off with a bang last Saturday, when the heavier and more experienced Tularosa Wildcats came to town, and the Carrizozo boys held them to a hard fought 13-0 score. The game was played in a drizzling rain, which handicapped open play somewhat, but the number of fumbles were few.

Prospects are very rosy, that is, if a backfield can be molded out of green material that is out for the team. This week has been spent in an endeavor to find suitable candidates for the backfield positions.

The two hardest games of the season come right at first, then comes easier sailing.

Oscura School Notes

The Parent-Teachers Association of Oscura met at the school house Monday evening, September 19. The following officers were elected: Mrs. J. V. Taylor, President; Mrs. Vance Smith, Sec.-Treas. The Association is preparing a very interesting and beautiful quilt for exhibit at the County Fair.

Mrs. Maggie Brazel has been appointed member of the Oscura school board succeeding Mr. Louis Keene, resigned. Mrs. Brazel will make an excellent member of the board, as she has always taken much interest in the school.

Jimmy Taylor, who graduated here last year, is now a student in the N. M. M. I., at Roswell.

The school is going along in the most satisfactory manner under the supervision of Mrs. George Dixon. There are 21 enrolled.

Teacher and pupils are looking forward to the County Fair, when we expect to have some good exhibits on display.

Santa Rita School Notes

The Santa Rita School conducted by the Sisters of Mercy will finish the first month of the school term this week with an enrollment of 113 children.

Sister Mary Claudia is principal of the school this year and in charge of the high school classes. Sister Marie Pierre, Sister Mary Pasqual and Sister Aurelia are the teachers in the grades. Rev. Fr. Brady, our new pastor, will have charge of the classes in Christian doctrine and Bible history. Father Brady will also give instruction in physical education and will act as athletic coach for the boys of the school.

Sister Aurelia will give instruction in vocal and instrumental music.

Happenings in Alamogordo

(From the Alamogordo News)

Don English, of the Carrizozo Hardware store, is here this week checking up on and repairing several Frigidaire units for which his company is agent.

R. W. Morgan, of the Alamogordo News force, is at the Wm. Beaumont hospital, El Paso, for surgical treatment, having left home Monday.

Married—Mrs. Estelle Conder, of Alto, to Mr. Walter E. Lair, of Capitan, on Sept. 18, by Justice Barringer.

Mr. and Mrs. J. B. French, of Carrizozo, visited friends here Sunday last.

Mrs. Fannie Smith recently arrived from her home in Republic, Kansas, and will visit her daughter, Mrs. Tom Charles, and family this winter. This is Mrs. Smith's second visit to Alamogordo and she will meet many friends she became acquainted with before.

E. M. Barber, of Carrizozo, called this week to get a White Sands paper weight for his mother, who is visiting him from Gulfport, Miss.

Mrs. F. C. Rolland is head of the committee which is providing lodging for about 80 officers and delegates who are expected for the convention of the New Mexico Federation of Women's Clubs, Oct. 3 and 4.

Mrs. J. E. Farley returned Tuesday from Phoenix, Ariz., where she had gone the last week end to accompany her little grandson, Jackie Baker, to his home. (Editor's Note—The low down on this, as we get it, is that Mrs. Farley had to get the young man away from his grandfather, who was spoiling the young gentleman by humoring too much.)

Frank Butt, chairman of the New Mexico Highway Commission, was in the city Thursday, checking up on road conditions. Mr. Butt is very much in favor of the White Sands road and hopes that the commission will be able to complete a stretch at this end of the road in the near future.

Work on the Alamo-Tularosa road project has gotten under good headway during the past week. At the present time there are three sub-contractors at work on the job. Moller Bros. have a dirt contract at the Tularosa end of the work. Mr. Allen has a crew a little north and west of La Luz and Mr. Salie has a contract for the bridge work, most of which will be in the vicinity of La Luz. The classification of the applicants for work has been completed to date and the list of preferred ex-service men has been turned over to the contractors. There were nearly one hundred in this preferred list. It is believed that this list will be exhausted this week, and then the contractors will begin to draw from the list for non soldiers with dependents.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank J. Sager returned yesterday from Santa Fe where they have been visiting Miss Lorena Sager and the Chas. Spence family since last Wednesday.

Group singing was followed by a paper on Nutrition, by Miss Marie A. Brunk, the county nurse. Mrs. Voss gave a very interesting impromptu talk on Child Psychology and Training; Mrs. Evans sang the verses of "Oh, Fair New Mexico" and the club members joined in the chorus. The meeting then adjourned for a social hour during which Mrs. Bonnell served refreshments.

Takes Guesswork out of Meat Cookery

Here's good news for the housewife!

Recently, much experimental work has been done in meat cookery by the United States Department of Agriculture and by various college home economics departments. One of the greatest benefits gained from all this study is the simplification and standardization of meat cookery. There need be no problem and there need be no guesswork.

Cook According to the Cut

"The whole problem in cooking meat may be expressed in one short sentence—cook according to the cut," says Inez S. Willson, director of home economics of the National Live Stock and Meat Board.

All kinds and cuts of meat may be cooked by either of two general methods, according to Miss Willson; the tender cuts by dry heat, the less tender cuts by moist heat. Recipes are only variations of these few simple methods; some suggest different flavors, different food combinations, but essentially they are examples of one or the other of the general methods.

Cooking by Dry Heat

Broiling, panbroiling, and roasting are the methods of cooking by dry heat. The cuts which may be cooked by dry heat are the tender cuts, those which contain a smaller amount of connective tissue. Since connective tissue is developed by exercise, generally speaking those cuts which lie along the backbone are most tender and the cuts become less tender as they approach the fore and hind shanks and the flank.

Cooking by Moist Heat

Those cuts which are less tender are most successfully cooked by moist heat because moist heat has the effect of softening connective tissue. Therefore the less-tender cuts, since they contain more connective tissue, are made more tender by cooking by moist heat. Braising (browning meat in a little hot fat, then cooking slowly in a small amount of liquid); stewing (cooking small pieces of meat at a simmering temperature), or cooking in a large amount of water are ways of cooking by moist heat. However, meat even though cooked in water should never be boiled. It should be cooked at a simmering temperature in order to have the most tender product. Miss Willson says that the temperature of the water should smile, not laugh—just a little gentle movement under the surface, no violent bubbling.

Lights of New York

By WALTER TRUMBULL

On the way to dine at the Stork club, which used to be Heywood Brown's rendezvous with food and now is Bill Corum's favorite restaurant, my wife called my attention to the tremendous change in New York in the past two years. In former days, before renting an apartment, you always looked to see whether there was a vacant lot or an old building next door. Should there be either of these things, the chances were that building soon would be going on, which meant that riveting machines would be included in your lease. They would start their chatter early in the morning and continue until the evening shadows fell. Anti-noise societies used to have spasms of indignation and Franklin P. Adams used to write scathing paragraphs, but old man riveter just kept roaring along. Those were the golden days of '20.

Old Twenty-niners can remember when streets were blacked with boards, beams, and piles of bricks; when pedestrians walked through black after black of protective and temporary wooden tunnels; when bath-tubs and other fixtures stood crated on the sidewalks and plumbers, carpenters, plasterers, steelworkers, and tinners each contributed their brass filings, sawdust, lime puddles, steel shavings, and brick and plaster particles to the city ozone. But this is 1932. The air is clean and so are the streets. The sight of building litter would be as welcome as the discovery of land to Columbus. The sound of a riveting machine would be a witching strain. About the only place you can see and hear construction going on is around Rockefeller Center. And a fellow can't hang around there all day. We are thinking of asking Dene Aylesworth to use his influence to get a riveting machine fifteen minutes a day on the air. The great radio audience would tune in from Maine to California.

Edward G. Robinson, the film favorite, looks quite a bit like Emil Fuchs, the baseball magnate. They say that Judge Fuchs, an ex-criminal lawyer, never lost a decision. Ed Anthony and Frank Buck have been literary collaborators. Ed might have caught the animals, but Frank never could have written the books. The Ed Anthony and Charles Dana Gibson domes compare very favorably with those of the Capitol at Washington. The Martin Egan and John Guiton do in Motie Borglum domes might be in the running. The Marcus Cook Connelly roof is more like a minaret. It might be said Sculptor Borglum and Senator Borah were two of the bestest in who ever came out of Idaho, except that William Edgar Borah was born in Illinois. Dr. Henry W. A. Hanson, president of Gettysburg college, says there are no new problems and that there has been no fundamental change in youth, it being the mature generation which has gone balmy. Victor Moore is one comedian who makes me laugh.

New York is represented in the United States senate by Royal S. Copeland, born in Dexter, Mich., and Robert B. Wagner, born in Nastatten, Germany. At a wild guess, not more than half the senators were born in the states they represent.

Ours is in many ways a peculiar form of government. A senator from New York, with its 12,000,000 population, has no more voting power than a senator from Nevada, with its 11,000 population. The vote of a senator from Texas, with its 202,893 square miles, has the same weight as the vote of a senator from Rhode Island, with its 1,007 square miles.

How It Started

By JEAN NEWTON

TO BE "TOUCHY"

"TOUCHY," it may surprise many of us to learn, has no relation with "touch." Etymologically speaking, the words have nothing to do with each other.

Our word "touchy," indicating sensitiveness that is quick to take umbrage, comes to us from the Old French "Techo" meaning "fault."

From its true sense of "fault" to its imputed slang sense of "fault-finding" was an easy though illogical bridge, but then slang never did make nice distinctions. If it did, it probably would not be slang.

Texan Gets Education as Riding Instructor

Fort Davis, Texas.—A riding school which Johnny Prude started as an experiment has put him within striking distance of a degree from Sul Ross State Teachers' college and may develop into such a lucrative business he will ultimately devote all his time to it.

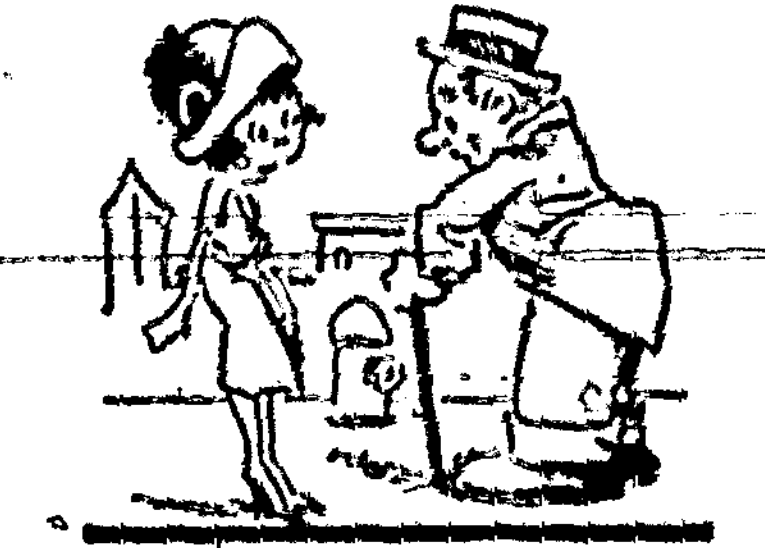

Prude enrolled in this school in 1920, but dropped out of school when he married. He taught rural schools in the winter and took summer courses from the teachers' college.

In 1929 he started his riding academy for Sul Ross students, a project which authorities endorsed. In two years the enrollment jumped to forty and he has employed three college students to aid him.

Puddings From Fruit Closet

A WELL-supplied fruit closet is as much satisfaction to the housewife as is a well-filled purse. The unexpected often happens and the pleasure of entertaining a friend is always enhanced if there is something to draw on in case of emergency, when the friends drop in just before meal time.

A can of fruit with a little cream to whip and serve with it, a small cake or cookie, is a most satisfying dessert to offer to anyone.

Take canned pears, chill, hollow out the centers and fill with a bit of bright colored jelly or orange marmalade, serve with the chilled juice. Peaches, chilled, sprinkled with chopped almonds or served with whipped cream sweetened and flavored with almond are other faithful friends. Or sprinkle with coconut and top with another half of peach and serve with whipped cream.

Cup cakes may be scooped out and filled with various fruits or jelly, custards or whipped cream. One may always buy lady fingers if the cup cakes have disappeared.

Sliced pineapple, spread with marshmallow cream and topped with another slice and served very cold with the pineapple sirup is delicious.

Fill the centers of the pineapple with orange marmalade or jelly or a bit of cream-cheese, add a cookie and there it is ready to serve.

Canned figs are most delicious served with whipped cream or with cream cheese and crisp crackers.

Canned fruit cut into bits, served in cocktail glasses and topped with cream, will use three or four kinds of fruit well.

Canned apricots to which a little lemon juice is added, put through a sieve, a little sirup added, use as filling for tiny biscuits; top with cream.

Make a cake sandwich by splitting slices of sponge cake, spread with the apricot puree, sprinkle with chopped nuts and serve with cream.

FURTHER PROOF OF VALUE OF CULLING

How New York Dairyman Increased Production

Consistent culling, on the basis of dairy record club tests, has enabled W. C. Hubbard, master farmer of Oswego county, to increase the average production of his herd from 7,000 to 11,000 pounds to the cow in the past six years, according to C. G. Bradt of the New York State College of Agriculture.

From the individual records of milk and butterfat each cow gives, Mr. Hubbard has selected the calves from the best cows for replacements in his herd and has sold the poorer milking and poorer testing cows. He has not purchased any replacements, he says. Mr. Hubbard also finds that he has a better market for surplus stock; for buyers want cows that have satisfactory records. The dairy record club, or the mail-order testing, which Mr. Hubbard follows, is used by nearly 700 New York State dairymen. Mr. Bradt says. In this association each dairyman weighs the milk from each cow in his herd and mails the samples and records to a central laboratory where the samples are tested and the records are summarized. The charge is made on the number of samples each dairyman sends, rather than by the herd basis.

Points Good Dairyman Keeps Always in Mind

A good dairyman has his ear to the ground; he knows that there is an important relation between quality and consumption and that good consumption helps prices.

1. He has a barn where the milking can be done in a sanitary manner.
  - a. The barn is clean and white-washed.
  - b. The cows are clean.
  - c. He wipes off the udder and flanks with a clean cloth.
  - d. He uses a sanitary milk pail and wears clean overalls.
  - e. He uses a sanitary cotton disk strainer.
2. If he is skimming the milk, he cleans the separator twice a day.
  - a. He cools the cream in a cooling tank with water at all times.
  - b. He stirs the cream while cooling, and he does not mix warm and cold cream.
  - c. Likewise if his milk goes to the plant, he cools it in water in the cooling tank before it leaves the farm.
  - d. He has a good little milk house where he keeps the milk and cream the year around.—H. T. Sondergaard, in Hoard's Dairyman.

Dairying Pointers

Supplying replacements from well-bred, well-grown, home-grown heifers is the most economical way of maintaining the number of cows in the herd.

Teaching a calf to drink is all in knowing how, and having a little patience to do as well as one knows.

Many a promising calf has been stunted for months all because of being fed from dirty, filthy feeding pails.

Overfeeding calves does more harm than underfeeding during the first two or three weeks.

When calves are about three weeks of age one may gradually substitute skim milk, or powdered skim milk mixed with water, for whole milk.—Hoard's Dairyman.

Holstein "Producer"

Speckled Segs, a seven-year-old purebred Holstein cow, owned by the Essex County hospital at Cedar Grove, N. J., has completed a yearly record of 80,207.6 pounds of milk and 1,044.2 pounds of fat, according to the Holstein-Friesian Association of America. This is the first cow to exceed the 30,000-pound milk mark in New Jersey, and she stands third in the state for butterfat yield for the breed.

DAIRY FACTS

Six Iowa cows are among the record producers reported recently by the Holstein-Friesian Association of America.

In mixing cream from two different skimming, fresh cream should always be cooled before it is put in with cold cream.

Objectionable weed flavors in milk which are so common at this season may be avoided if plenty of good pasture is provided for the cows. The cows will leave the weeds alone when they are supplied with an abundance of feed.

Do not turn cows on pasture until the grass gets a good start, Penn State dairy specialists warn. The pasture will be better all summer if the grass is permitted to get a good start in the spring.

L. A. Smith, dairyman of Wake county, North Carolina, reduced his grain feed by 200 pounds a day and cut out the use of beet pulp when he turned his herd of 50 cows on a pasture that was limed, fertilized and planted last fall.

The Tide Is Turning

Flask Toters Lived Back in 143 B. C.

Ann Arbor, Mich.—Liquor flasks, rat traps and market baskets, all made of stone and dating back to 143 B. C., have been unearthed by Dr. Leroy Waterman of the University of Michigan at Seleucia, in Mesopotamia.

Doctor Waterman, heading a University of Michigan expedition in connection with the Cleveland and Toledo Art museums, said that undoubtedly the design of the present-day liquor flasks was copied from the antique containers.

The rat traps, made entirely of stone, differed materially from current models, Doctor Waterman reports. They were made of a hollow stone tube with a large piece of flat stone at one end. Opposite the flat rock the bait was placed and when rodents touched it the stone fell, making them captives.

Greater London Shows Big Gain in Population

London.—The population of Greater London now totals 8,203,942, as revealed by the first official report compiled from the census reports of last year.

The increase in population, as compared with 1921, has been 9.7 per cent or nearly three times as great as in the preceding decade, and nearly twice as great as the current increase for the nation at large.

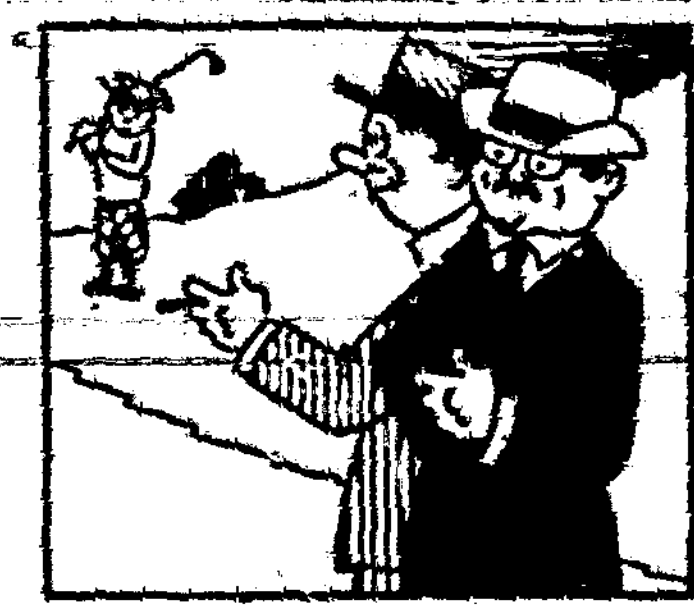

Greater London's inhabitants are divided into 4,371,026 females and only 3,832,916 males. How that happened, the report doesn't deign to disclose. Figures for the city of London and the 23 metropolitan boroughs which comprise the administrative county of London (as distinct from Greater London) show a decline of 87,250 for the ten-year period. This population is now 4,397,003.

6,000 Pies Are Spilled on Road in Auto Wreck

Clear Lake, Minn.—Six thousand pies, en route from Minneapolis to Fargo, N. D., were destroyed when a truck ran into a horse herd. The horses were being led along the highway when it was started by the lights of the truck, and failed to get out of the path of the approaching truck, which could not be stopped. The horses were killed and the pies scattered over the countryside as the truck turned over three times.

Jail Inmates Consume 42,000 Aspirin Tablets

Fort Worth, Texas.—Evidently there were plenty of headaches in the Tarrant county jail last year—the 1931 drug bill reveals that 42,000 aspirin tablets were purchased for the 100 inmates. But the prisoners also received amply of other kinds of medicine along with the "sleepers." The bill shows 11,400 purgative tablets, 174 pounds of salts, and 211 pints of castor oil were consumed.

BIRD MYSTERY

(How good a detector are you? In every phrase that is in a parenthesis is the name of a bird concealed. There are twenty of them in all. For instance in the first phrase the letters spelling oriole will all be found. It is this way throughout the tale.)

It was indeed, (a glorified morning). People were strolling hither and yon, climbing the flowering hills and (taking a look at the parks). Having finished her (bowl of milk), and a slice of bread spread with (yesterday's jam), a little girl by the name of (Roberta Innes) decided that she simply (must rush through) this simple process of eating her breakfast and pick some flowers. She would (present some marigolds) to her mother whom she adored. After that she would take one of those delicious sticks of (sugar candy) which her Uncle Jim had brought her for her birthday down the road to the new boy who had moved into the neighborhood recently and who had given her (a terrible wrench), while coasting in his wagon down the hill. Roberta remembered with pity what (a barrowing shriek) he had let out when the wagon had turned over, but fortunately it had been mostly fright that had caused it. He had spoken (words of contempt) when Roberta had cried for him as any boy would who was manly, although of course he appreciated her concern and told her so. He knew he had been cowardly to shriek that way. Roberta still felt sorry for him and knew that even if he did not wish her to cry for him she would probably like a piece of her candy anyway. And besides she did wish to see the chicken his father kept. Her father had said they looked to him like (rather spare fowls) but Roberta was fascinated by the crow of the colored roosters and the (then's colorful cackle).

She found her friend out under the apple trees very much absorbed in a book and when she went over to him he very courteously showed her the pictures that were interesting him. The one he liked best was of (various igloos) in Iceland, and he told Roberta (thrilling tales) of the eskimo people. He said something that sounded rather strange to her, too, something about there having been very (few archeologists) who had discovered anything of any value in Iceland, but Roberta didn't even know what an archeologist was. "Is it cold up in Iceland?" she asked. "Well," he answered, "the weather up there wouldn't exactly (allow you to swelter)." Whatever did he mean by that? This was a strange sounding boy indeed. She showed him the (quantity of lace) that was hand made and that decorated her new handkerchief but he didn't seem interested in that. He began instead to (probe here and there) and look very mysterious about something. There was (a great fall) in the conversation and Roberta got up to go. "I hope you like the candy," she said. "Oh, I do, and thank you very much," said the boy gratefully but bashfully. And Roberta (turned to go) sally away. Later when they knew each other better they were great friends.

TALES OF THE CHIEFS

By Editha L. Watson

JOHN OTHERDAY

Out in a cow pasture, some twelve miles from Willmot, S. D., there is a lonely grave.

There is no headstone to tell who lies here. There are no lovingly-planted flowers to brighten the spot. Two or three small stones mark the location—stones which a child could roll down into the creek which flows by.

Yet in this little-noticed, unkept grave lies the dust of John Otherday, hero.

He was a Wahpeton Sioux, born at the beginning of the nineteenth century, and his early manhood was not what we would expect from heroes. Passionate and revengeful, he killed several of his tribesmen in drunken rages. Here, surely, was not the material from which good citizens are made.

Bravery, however, was a virtue which Otherday always possessed. In one of the fierce battles between those life-long enemies, the Sioux and the Chippewa, he carried a severely-wounded tribesman from the field, and later in the day saved the life of another. Thus the scales might be said to balance, for though he killed on one hand, he heroically saved on the other.

I do not know what changed Otherday into the man he became. At any rate, when he decided to become as nearly like a white man as an Indian could, he went at the task with the intensity he showed in everything. He became a devout church member, and dressed in white man's clothing.

This, perhaps, was not unusual in itself, but the "Spirit Lake massacre" proved Otherday to be a sincere friend of the white man. Inkaputah, a hostile, renegade Sioux, with his followers killed the settlers at Spirit Lake, S. D., and carried off two white women, Abigail Gardner (later Mrs. Sharp) and Mrs. Noble. Otherday and another Sioux, a chief, offered to attempt a rescue, and followed the dangerous band at the risk of their own lives. Mrs. Noble died before the friendly pair won through to them, but Miss Gardner was released.

Otherday was fifty-six years old at this time. The exciting events of his life, especially this latest exploit, were enough for one person to have experienced, surely. He had married a white woman, and lived comfortably in a house built for him by the agent of his reservation. It is unlikely that he expected further adventures—he had certainly earned a peaceful life for his later years—and it is doubtful if he ever longed for other deeds of valor to perform.

But his service was not over; in fact, it may be said to have scarcely begun. The Sioux outbreak of 1862, in which hundreds of Minnesota settlers were tortured and killed, aroused the entire region. Something must be done, and done quickly.

John Otherday, Sioux, one of the very tribes whose anger had flamed forth in such dreadful might, heard the call again. He was sixty-one years old, but he knew that he must answer. There was a wilderness between the besieged settlers and Saint Paul, where they would be safe. The people needed a guide, lest they become lost and die as they fled.

Sixty-two white persons were gathered by Otherday. He led them through to Saint Paul safely, and then turned back to the frontier to offer every aid at his command.

General Sibley and his troops having been ordered to quell the uprising, Otherday became attached to them as a scout, fighting against his tribesmen. It is said that "no person in the field compared with him in the exhibit of reckless bravery." He dressed all in white, and it was his custom to go so far in advance of the troops that they often fired at him, mistaking him for an enemy.

Remember the age of John Otherday; it seems incredible that he could kill several younger men, Sioux warriors, and take their horses, but a man who had lived through adventures enough to fill several lives, found this feat not so difficult.

At the close of this war, the valiant old Sioux was granted the sum of $2,500 by congress. He bought a farm, and tried to succeed at agriculture, but it was too late for the war horse to begin drawing a plow. Finally he moved to the Sisseton and Wahpeton reservation, where he lived only a short time, dying of tuberculosis, and was buried on the land which he had hoped to some day own.

There is a monument at Morton, Minn., erected in honor of Otherday and the three other Christian Indians who showed their loyalty so heroically during the Sioux uprising. But only now, more than sixty years after his death, a movement has begun to mark the grave in a fitting manner.

I suggest an epitaph for the stone: "Here lies the body of an Indian, which enclosed the soul of a white man."

"Inland Islands"

Britain's "inland islands"—land situated in one county but under the jurisdiction of another—will soon disappear, according to recent reports. Neighboring counties in which these "islands" exist have decided to exchange their "foreign" territories. The change will simplify administration work, but it is meeting some opposition from those who for sentimental reasons regret the passing of this peculiarly English anomaly.

CHILDREN'S SOBS UPSET COURT AND REVERSE A JUDGE

Girl and Boy Refuse to Go With Mother and Cling to Their Father.

Chicago.—A nine-year-old girl and her five-year-old brother threw the courtroom of Superior Judge Ross C. Hall and part of the county building into turmoil by defying a court order placing them in custody of their mother. The children secured reversal of the order after the judge confessed he was upset by the children's protests. They left happily with their father. The domestic drama opened when the judge ordered Mrs. Margaret Smrz, twenty-eight years old, to take Eileen, her blond daughter, and Rudolph, Jr., from her husband, a truck driver. Mrs. Smrz is seeking a divorce on charges of cruelty. Her attorney, Victor Frohlich, said the father had refused to surrender the children.

Cling to Their Father.

The children were led from the courtroom crying. In the corridor the boy wrapped his arms about his father's legs and refused to move. The daughter clung to his arm. Both wailed. The mother was in tears. Other courtrooms emptied. Bystanders offered advice.

The father consented to take the children to the street and talk with them. The children continued crying in the elevator. Employees left offices in the building to learn the cause of the disturbance.

A throng swelled about the family in the lobby of the county building. The children refused to leave their father, meeting each argument with a fresh burst of crying. A bailiff suggested all return to the courtroom.

In the courtroom the children screamed as their mother and father argued, attorneys wrangled and Mrs. Smrz's mother, Mrs. Margaret Westrasky, shouted that her daughter was not worthy to have the children. Attorney Richard Klein, representing the father, and Attorney Frohlich were near blows. At every lull Mrs. Westrasky shouted that fortune tellers had told her the children would be better off with their father.

Judge Leaves Bench.

The judge left the bench, announcing he would be unable to make a decision in such disorder. He ordered the children brought into his chambers. Screams and crying could be heard through the door. The judge came out 15 minutes later, perspiring.

"The girl is in hysterics, the boy is in hysterics and I'm near hysterics," he said. "Let their father have them."

Widow Who Never Saw Mate to Share Estate

New Haven, Conn.—A widow who never saw her husband was granted a share in the estate of Louis Lopes, in a decree entered in Probate court here.

Lopes, a Portuguese citizen, was married by proxy April 28, 1931, to Mary Miguel Lopes of Fogo, Portugal. Lopes, who came to this country in 1911 and lived many years in Wareham, Mass., died April 1, 1932, before he had an opportunity to bring his unseen bride to this country.

Probate Judge John L. Gilson after an examination of Portuguese law, declared the proxy marriage legal and ordered the estate divided between Mrs. Lopes and two sons by a previous marriage, John and Joseph Lopes of Port-Chester, N. Y.

Crazed Farmer Kills Self With Dynamite

Richmond, Va.—Caroline county officials are investigating the sale of six sticks of dynamite to George Duhak, a farmer bereft of his reason by financial troubles, who used the explosive to commit suicide.

While his family looked on, Duhak slashed the throats of his horses and cattle and then lighted the fuse attached to the dynamite and blew himself to pieces.

His children fled from the barn, which was destroyed in a second explosion which their father had caused by lighting a longer fuse.

Numbered Phone Poles Used as Guides in Maine

Surry, Maine.—"Where does Farmer Brown live?"

Once it would have been a problem for a native to reply to the stranger asking this question, for Surry's dwellings are numberless.

But now the tourist inquiring the way to Farmer Brown's may be told: "Go down the road to telephone pole No. 187."

Each telephone pole in Surry bears an aluminum number for guidance of company linemen, and residents have come to use these identification marks in lieu of house numbers.

Fisherman's "Catch" Is 100 Pound Anchor

Lawrence, Mass.—Samuel Rudkin went deep-sea fishing recently. Luckless for over an hour, his line finally grew taut. It took all his strength to pull in the catch, which proved to be an anchor weighing nearly 100 pounds.

Gran Chaco Known as Land of Death

Where Bolivia, Paraguay and Argentina join on the map of South America lies the Gran Chaco, a steaming, insect-swarmed triangle 600 miles by 300 between the Paraguay and Pilcomayo rivers.

Julian Duguid, British explorer, has described the Pilcomayo as "a vast, foul-smelling, oozy stretch of bog with as much movement as an unqueezed sponge. . . . An Englishman may obtain some insight into the discomfort of penetration into the Chaco if he locks himself into a bathhouse, waters the flowers, closes all the windows, and allows a blazing sun to shine through the glass while he rides a stationary bicycle. Even then he will not be bothered by insects."

The worst insects are the ant, vicious black flies that hang in dark clouds in the air. There are also poisonous snakes, jaguars and piranhas (carnivorous fish). Despite the dampness, water holes are 15 to 30 miles apart.

This is the land over which Bolivia and Paraguay have squabbled since 1870. Paraguay wants the Chaco because the district is larger than the rest of their country and its jungles contain great growths of the quebracho tree, whose bark yields 30 per cent tannin.—Time Magazine.

Luck is against some men; and laws cannot change it.

Explaining the Sign

Near Cleveland, Ohio, a man noticed a store with a neatly painted sign on the front window reading: "We dress all our own poultry." Below this sign in the window were displayed summer dresses, hostery and other women's apparel. The mystery was solved when it was discovered that a meat store had just moved out and dress shop had just moved in.

Price of Responsibility

"A man who has no cares," said Hi Ho, the sage of Chinatown, "must eventually feel that he has been useless because he was entrusted with nothing."—Washington Star.

WARNING to PROPERTY OWNERS

TODAY a letter came to my desk that deeply impressed me. It was written by a woman—the mother in a typical American family. Her little home had been saved from foreclosure by a coat of new paint, for which a part of their meager savings had been paid.

Those few gallons of fresh paint had so revived the appearance and enhanced the value of the property that the mortgagee had consented to renew the loan . . . and the little home was saved.

I could not help thinking of the thousands of homes and buildings that are shabby and unattractive today due to several years of neglected painting; of the millions of home owners who, because of reduced incomes and enforced economy, have been obliged to sacrifice painting for taxes, interest, assessments, to say nothing of food, clothing, heat and other essentials of comfort and health.

You have seen these paint-starved houses and buildings, as have I. They are everywhere about you. Perhaps your home is included.

Do you understand what they signify? Do you realize what will happen to wood or metal that is literally naked of paint if these houses and buildings face the attack of another season of rain, snow, ice, and frost?

Never in the history of our country has the situation been paralleled. Property owners face an added burden of expense amounting to millions of dollars for repairs and replacements next spring.

And the crisis, in my opinion, will be reached this coming winter when paint of four, five, and even six years exposure to the weather will be unable to resist the elements—when badly weathered wood and metal will be easy prey for rot, rust and decay.

Today the big question facing thousands of property owners is plain. It is "paint or pay." Either you must invest a little this fall in new paint or you must take the risk of paying many times the cost of paint to repair the damage done by rot, rust and decay this winter.

Even at the sacrifice of other things, have your house or buildings completely repainted now. No investment you can make will pay better dividends. And nothing you can buy will make you and your family feel so uplifted and cheerful.

If you cannot arrange to do a complete repainting job now, at least give the badly weathered places a coat or two of protecting paint.

Look especially, to the window sills, thresholds, outdoor porches and steps; the joints of porch railings and palings; the bases of pillars; the edges of eaves; the roof; the gutters and down spouts. These are the vital spots where water lodges—where ice and frost settle—where rot and rust attack first.

A few dollars' worth of good paint, applied now, will protect these vital spots—will tide you over this crucial winter. And it will probably save you a much greater expense for repairs and replacements next spring and summer.

Under existing conditions, you may be tempted to buy a cheap paint because of its low price. I hope you will not make this costly mistake.

Even on sound lumber, inferior paint is a poor bargain. But on weathered wood, which is very porous, such paint is worse than useless. It gives you a false feeling of security and leaves you without protection.

Prices of well-known, established brands of paint are now the lowest in fifteen years. Enough good, dependable paint can be purchased for a few dollars to protect all the badly weathered surfaces on your building.

Again I repeat, do a complete job this fall if you can. But at least do the vital exposed places before it is "too late."

 Where Did You Spend Last Sunday?—Somewhere we have read the following striking analogy. The shellfish on the sand of the seashore live without water while the tide is out, but they depend absolutely on its regular return. When one of them is tossed by the waves beyond the reach of the later tides, it dies. The weekly day of rest and worship is the spiritual tide that refreshes our inner lives and gives them strength to progress for another week, to be in the world and yet not of it. That nobler life has waned and died in many a man because he has given up his holy day. The temptations to the neglect of the Lord's Day are now very numerous. We need not enlarge on these temptations or even name them, but we do declare that to yield to these temptations is perilous to the spiritual life. The place for the Christian on the Lord's Day is in his church. When a man is constantly or even frequently absent from his place in the Lord's house, you may depend upon it that his heart is growing cold, even if his life is not becoming worldly and sinful. Remember the analogy of the shellfish.—Watchman-Examiner.

Montoya-Trujillo
 Monday morning, September 26, in the church of Santa Rita, at Carrizozo at ten o'clock Mr. Eulalio Trujillo of Escuinosa, N. Mex., was united in the holy bonds of matrimony with Miss Josefita Montoya of the same town. The Rev. Fr. James A. Brady, newly appointed pastor of the Santa Rita Mission, officiated at the wedding ceremony. Immediately after the young couple pronounced their marriage vows, Father Brady celebrated nuptial mass in the presence of the bride and groom and their relatives and friends.
 The bridal couple were attended by Mr. and Mrs. Pedro Peralta of Capitan, to which place the whole party went after the ceremony to attend a wedding breakfast.
Notice to Contractors
 Notice is hereby given that sealed proposals will be received until 10:00 A. M. October 7, 1932, at the office of the State Highway Engineer, Capitol Building, Santa Fe, New Mexico, at which time and place proposals will be publicly opened and read.
 The proposed work is briefly described as follows:
 F. A. P.—E—NO. 120 REO.
 This proposal is for the construction of Emergency Construction Federal Aid Highway Project E—No. 120 Reopened, located on U. S. Highway No. 70 in Lincoln County between Hondo and Glencoe. The length of this project is approximately 9.170 miles.
 The proposed work consists of base stabilizing, top course surfacing, oil-processing, and seal coating. All oil and asphalt materials will be furnished by the contractor.
 Alternate proposals will be received on (1) Road Mix and (2) Plant Mix Oil-Processing.
 The contractor will be required to start work as soon as notified and to maintain on the job at all times a maximum efficient working force to the satisfaction of the engineer.

 The engineer may at any time order the contractor to place on the job additional equipment and men. This contract must be completed not later than December 1, 1932. Liquidated damages in the amount of one hundred dollars ($100) per day will be collected for each calendar day necessary to complete this project after the expiration of the above mentioned date.
 The engineer's estimate of cost will not be published.
 Each bid must be on proposal form of the Highway Department and must be accompanied by a certified check in the amount of Two Thousand Three Hundred Dollars ($2,300). No cashiers' checks or personal checks will be accepted.
 Plans and specifications may be examined at the office of the State Highway Engineer, Santa Fe, or at the office of Acting District Engineer L. J. Vauchelet, Roswell, N. M.
 Contractors should be familiar with New Mexico laws relating to labor.
 The minimum wage to be paid by contractor to skilled labor shall be fifty cents (50c) and unskilled labor (thirty-five cents, 35c) per hour respectively.
 Laborers will not be required to board and lodge at the contractor's construction camp unless they so elect.
 Where contractor operates a camp he shall not charge more than twenty-five cents (25c) a day for meals and lodging, with a maximum of twenty-five cents (25c) for each meal consumed by laborer.
 The contractor will not be allowed to sub contract any of the work without the written consent of the State Highway Engineer.
 Complete specifications including schedules, proposal forms and contract forms accompanied by general layout and typical cross sections may be secured at the office of the State Highway Engineer upon payment of Two Dollars ($2.00), or the same will be mailed U. O. D. It is understood that all blue prints become the property of the prospective bidder and there will be no refund for returned prints.
 All bidders are required to properly and completely fill out the Contractor's Questionnaire found in the Proposal and to affix signatures as indicated. In addition to the above, all bidders are required to file with the State Highway Engineer, prior to date of letting a complete Experience Questionnaire and Financial Statement on forms which will be furnished upon request. Failure to comply with the above conditions may disqualify a proposal. Any alteration or condition attached to a proposal will be considered sufficient cause for its rejection. The Highway Commission reserves the right to reject any and all proposals and to waive technicalities.
