Oklahoma Reports Jury Service Is Popular Now

Oklahoma City.—Jury service, once bugaboo of every male citizen from farmer to capitalist, has come into its own as a popular, sought after profession.

The depression did it. Court Clerk Cliff Myer office is the mecca of hopeful men, young and old, looking for two weeks' work.

"They are not unemployed laborers," Myers said. "Many of them are men owning businesses, department heads, professional men."

The pay is $6 a day. Sixty per cent of men summoned for jury service three years ago sought to evade it. Now not more than 10 per cent ask release.

Formula of Famous Varnish Is Sought

Berkeley, Calif.—Experiments under way at the University of California may result in the discovery of the exact quality of varnish on the famous Stradivarius violins, of which the tone quality has never been equaled, universally, scientists said recently.

The experiments are being made at the request of Lynwood H. Cornell, sixty-three, former dentist and now a violin maker and musician.

A special resin, which Cornell says he discovered in southern California, is needed in the varnish. The results of his application of the varnish to violins of his own manufacture are being tested by the university.

Business is Business

Whoever looks at business as something to play with is afflicted with astigmatism. Business is not something for the thoughtless, the indolent, or the unimaginative.

Business has come to be a very carefully scientized occupation. It is subject to rules quite as definite as are the laws of engineering or medicine. If it were not true that business is complicated, difficult and exacting, the present economic situation would not be so extremely troublesome. We have all violated the fundamental principles of business. We have gotten into a dilemma from which we find it hard to extricate ourselves. The government of the United States is not trembling itself about the professions because the professions and all other human activities follow in the wake of business. A few years ago we went on a business debauch. We started to celebrate the flow of wealth into the United States and concluded that "easy money" would be with us forever. To escape from our difficulties, we need more than ever business intelligence and that results from the study of business problems which can best be made in the business school.

Realizing how exacting and scientific business has become, we are specializing in stressing the essentials and avoiding technicalities. Let us send you our catalog telling you something about the opportunities there are in business.

Regular October 1933 Meeting of the Board of County Commissioners of Lincoln county, called to order October 2nd, 1933 by H. T. Reynolds, Deputy Sheriff.

Present: T. E. Kelley, Chairman; Melvin Frank, Member; Milario Gomez, Member; H. T. Reynolds, Deputy Sheriff; Ernest Key, Clerk.

Dr. E. E. Woods of Lincoln appeared before the Board and presented claims for holding inquest over the body of Florentino Gutierrez in Precinct 4, in the year 1927; and claim for medical attention rendered to one Antonio Herrera in Pct. 2, about September 20th, 1933. Same were passed for advice from District Attorney.

A Petition was filed with the Board by Albert May and others of Precinct No. 11, Nogal, signed by ten free holders of said Precinct, in accordance with Sec. 64705 of the 1919 Compilation, requesting the Board to create a County road to run from the main county road known as Nogal Canyon road and terminate at southeast corner of SW 1/4 NW 1/4 of Sec. 8 in land described as the SW 1/4 NW 1/4 Section 8, Township 9 South, Range 13, East, and NW 1/4 SW 1/4 of Sec. 8, township 9 South, Range 13 East N.M.P. The Board adopted Rule and Regulation No. 6, of the Federal Relief Administration and instructed the Clerk to spread same on the minutes of the Board.

The Board recessed at 12 M. and convened at 1 p. m.

Eugenio Salazar appeared before the Board in person and requested that the old road through the land of Profoto Salazar described as traction SW 1/4 NW 1/4 NW 1/4 SW 1/4 Section 13, Twp. 9 South, Range 15 East should continue to be a way for him to go to and from his house to the public highway. It was ordered by the Board that Mr. Profoto Salazar should provide gates by which means the said Eugenio Salazar and others might reach the public highway over this old road.

The Board recessed at 6 p. m. and convened at 7:30 p. m.

The audit report made of Lincoln county for the 20th and 21st fiscal years by M. A. Tweedy and filed in the Clerk's office was approved by the Board.

A petition was presented by citizens of Pct. No. 18, Joneta requesting the appointment of T. H. Bryant, as Justice of the Peace in said precinct. And after due consideration the Board appointed said T. H. Bryant Justice of the Peace in and for Precinct No. 18, Joneta, to qualify according to law.

The Board passed upon and approved various claims against the County and discussed other matters, and being informed by the Treasurer that sufficient funds were available for the payment of salaries of bounty officials for one month, the Clerk was ordered to pay salaries of officials for the month of July.

Birthbay Party

Mrs. Brack Sloan entertained thirty children last Friday afternoon in honor of the fifth birthday of her little daughter, Betsy. Party favors were caps and balloons. Refreshments were delicious. The little honoree received many gifts.

Miss Wilma Beauchamp of Alamogordo, the gifted young teacher of dancing who gave a recital here at the Lyric theatre last March is going to open a dancing class here right away. Don't fail to read her announcement in this week's paper. It will be remembered that Miss Beauchamp and her pupils gave a very high class entertainment last spring.

All the billboards have been removed and this method of advertising has been discontinued in the city.

Jolly and Walker tailor shop was burglarized this week and $13.75 stolen. Entrance was through a broken window which had not been properly safeguarded.

Judge Hatch Appointed

Last Tuesday Governor Heskenhull appointed Judge Carl A. Hatch of Clovis as United States senator to succeed Judge Sam G. Bratton. Judge Hatch has many friends in this part of the state who heartily approve of his appointment.

Visits Santa Fe

As representatives of Lincoln county and the Capitan Chamber of Commerce Messrs. Herman Kelt and Perry Sears left for Santa Fe yesterday afternoon where they will confer with Hon. Dennis Chavez and others in regard to questions which will affect directly, or indirectly every citizen of Lincoln county. One is to try to speed up the starting of the road project from Capitan to Lincoln. Another is to present the many reasons Fort Stanton should be left where it is instead of being consolidated with Fort Bayard. The removal of this Fort would be a great loss to Lincoln county as well as to residents of the Pecos valley.

It's Smart TO BUY TIRES NOW...

Now... is the time to buy tires. Prices may go higher. If they do, it will actually cost you money to use up old tires.

And with fall and winter weather and wet and slippery roads just around the corner, it's a good idea to have the protection of safe new tires all around. And remember this—tire wear is slower in winter than it is in summer—the tires you buy now will give you full protection all winter and you will still have good tires for next spring and summer to withstand the ravages of hot summer roads. We carry the complete line of Goodyear Tires—Speedway, Pathfinder and All-Weather. At the price you wish to pay we have a Goodyear Tire. Why not come in today and talk it over?

FAIR VISITORS

GOLD—PRECIOUS GOLD!

Here are some figures about this fascinating yellow metal, compiled by professors at Columbia University. Since Columbia discovered America there have been produced in the world 1,100,000,000 troy ounces of pure gold...

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets are the original little liver pills put up 60 years ago. They regulate liver and bowels.

But They're Not Popular Those who like to be disagreeable are usually a great success at it.

Why Hospitals Use a Liquid Laxative

Hospitals and doctors have always used liquid laxatives. And the public is fast returning to laxatives in liquid form. Do you know the reason?

The dose of a liquid laxative can be measured. The action can be controlled. It forms no habit; you need not take a "double dose" a day or two later.

The right liquid laxative brings a perfect movement, and there is no discomfort at the time, or after.

The wrong cathartic may keep you constipated as long as you keep on using it! And the habitual use of irritating salts, or of powerful drugs in the highly concentrated form of pills and tablets may prove injurious.

A week with a properly prepared liquid laxative like Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin will tell you a lot. A few weeks' time, and your bowels can be "as regular as clockwork."

WOMAN'S WEAKNESS

Mrs. Katie Hines of 2113 No. Main St., Pueblo, Colo., said: "I was annoyed with female complaints, had pain in back part of my head, and was quite nervous. I felt tired and worn out. Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin brought my health back to normal."

"Maybe not." "Gee, Babe!" Kit's voice held a note of distress. "You don't want to be an old maid!" "I won't be," she said, smiling faintly. "Not for a year or two. If she wouldn't keep thinking of Bruce. If there wasn't always an aching lump in her throat."

Barbara saw Uncle Stephen walking toward them down the beach, tall and erect in his bathing suit, tanned by week-ends with them at the shore. She saw Gay leave the chattering group and run to meet him. She saw Jamie racing toward him. She saw Kit, his face shining with shy excited pleasure, crowding Gay and Jamie aside. The children loved Uncle Stephen. She loved him, too. But she wanted to run away.

Barbara saw and loved his patience with the children. It was lovely to see them together, healthy and happy and brown and carefree. They wouldn't be here, of course, if it wasn't for Uncle Stephen. She could never be grateful again.

"I had a letter from the real estate agent," Stephen said. "Someone wants to buy it." "Oh, Uncle Stephen!" Barbara felt a strange lonely ache in her heart. She couldn't bear the thought of selling the gray-shingled house.

"No," she agreed with a little sigh. "We won't ever need it again." "It's rather a good offer," Stephen continued. "What do you want to do?" "Sell it, I guess. It would be hers no longer, the gray-shingled house she had loved. She wouldn't live there with Bruce. It might just as well be sold. "There'll be money," she added. "I can pay for the clothes."

to have. The dark lashes lifted. "The bed Father made for me, his paintings, my chest. Yes, I think I'd like to go."

"We can go next week." "All of us?" The question hurt Stephen a little. She didn't want to be alone with him. All summer she had clung to the children. Why? "If you like," he agreed. "Is it a good idea?" She nodded slowly, avoiding his eyes.

The Tears Didn't Show Through the Water That Streaked Her Face.

with her as she dove through a foaming breaker. "I won't" she cried, breathless, smiling. The tears didn't show through the water that streaked her face.

The moon rose out of the ocean, making a path of silver across the waves. It shone on the cottage veranda where Stephen sat with Barbara. "The summer is over," he said, breaking a long uneasy silence. "Have you been happy?"

"Do you always think first of them?" "I want you to think of yourself now," Stephen said gravely. "Don't consider the children."

There was something in his voice. What was he going to say? She sat very still, almost holding her breath. "Would you like to go to Europe?" he asked, wishing that he could see her eyes.

"All of us?" "Just you and I—and Kit, perhaps." "Oh!" The exclamation was a soft little sound. Startled? Frightened? Happy? Stephen could not tell. "Do I seem very old to you?" he asked.

Southwestern Briefs

Seventy-four cases of communicable diseases were reported to the Arizona state board of health during the week ended Sept. 16.

Twenty young attorneys were admitted to practice when they took their oaths at the Supreme Court in Arizona. They were the successful candidates who passed the state bar examinations in June.

University of Arizona enrollment for the first semester has passed the 1400 mark. Registration had been completed by 1363 students. This number exceeds by 200 the corresponding day's registration figure of last year.

Fulton E. Caldwell, 46-year-old ex-service man, charged with murder of his wife, Bessie May Caldwell, 35, sought to plead guilty before Superior Court Judge Richard Lamson in Prescott and asked that he be sentenced to die.

Miss Beas Householder, executive secretary of the Dona Ana County, New Mexico, Welfare Association for the past two years, left Las Cruces for Santa Fe, where she will succeed Mrs. Ladd Haystead in the state child welfare bureau.

Drilling of a new well in wildcat territory northeast of Artesia, N. M., has given indications that a new oil field may be developed. Van C. Welch of Artesia has spudded in a well at 1,000 feet to get a high grade oil running fifty barrels a day.

The recent repeal vote apparently opened the way to legal sale of medicinal liquor on doctor's prescriptions in New Mexico. Under the federal law, physicians are allowed to prescribe as much whisky or other liquor as they believe their patients need, in states which do not have laws in conflict with this federal statute.

The Arizona corporation commission directed the Southern Pacific Company and the Magna Arizona Railroad Company, respectively, to continue operations on the Phoenix-Winkelman branch and the Magna Company's line from Magna to Superior. Both companies had sought permission to abandon service.

New motor cars being hauled over the New Mexico state highways in caravans will have to be licensed. C. R. Sebastian, chief assistant state comptroller, asserted. The leading car in each caravan will have to have a regular annual license, according to the new rule. A flat rate of $5 will be charged for every other car in the caravan.

The state tax commission, in a statement, said sales tax revenue for July and August indicated the August retail sales volume in Arizona was about $500,000 greater than in July.

George (Machine Gun) Kelly, who has been staging a one-man crime wave in connection with the trial in Oklahoma City of seven defendants charged with kidnaping Charles F. Ulrich, millionaire oil man, is alleged by prison records to have begun his criminal career in New Mexico and to have served his first time in the state penitentiary at Santa Fe.

Mrs. Maud Ida Box

Mrs. Maud Ida Box wife, of R. H. Box passed away at Saint Mary's hospital, in Roswell, September 20, 1933 at 11:30 a.m.

Funeral services were held at Talmage Memorial chapel at 10 o'clock September 21, 1933 by Rev. H. C. Henderson of the Methodist Church, South. Music was provided by the choir of that church. Immediately following the service, the body was taken in the Talmage funeral coach to their ranch home near Alto. Services were held there at three o'clock by Mr. T. J. Grafton. The body was laid to rest in the family cemetery where they settled thirty-two years ago.

Mr. and Mrs. Box were married at Byrds, Texas in 1896, came to New Mexico in 1901 and have made New Mexico their home since that time.

Mrs. Box leaves to mourn her loss her husband, R. H. Box; two sons, Roma and Olaf and their families; one brother, M. C. West and wife, their two children and families.

—Contributed,

Last Saturday while visiting at the home of their aunt and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. Champ Ferguson, near Capitan, Myrtle Hartley and Paul Brazel set some traps for game. The next morning they went to see what luck they had. They found a large bob cat and two coyotes in their traps. The children were frightened, but gratified to find they had trapped something; Paul bravely shot the animals, which were unusually large specimens.

New Mexico's Economy Program

Santa Fe, October 11 — New Mexico's economy program, sponsored by the present administration, has placed the state in an enviable financial position, compared with other Rocky Mountain commonwealths.
Governmental expenses are lower in New Mexico at the present time than in any of the Rocky Mountain group of states for which figures are available. This condition was brought about only by closely watching all state expenditures and reducing costs of government wherever possible.

Figures for 1933 are not yet available, but on basis of tax rates and expenditures for 1932, considered from the viewpoint of state valuation, New Mexico tops the list.

The state tax rate in New Mexico in 1932 was 5 1/2 mills on an assessed valuation of $315,074,600. Wyoming's rate was 4 1/2 mills on an assessed valuation of $354,503,841, while Colorado's rate was 3 1/2 mills on a taxable valuation of $1,284,257,098, which is about four times the valuation in New Mexico.

Arizona's tax system is frequently compared with that of New Mexico in an attempt to show conditions are better than here. The facts do not bear out such a contention.

The report of the Arizona Tax Commission shows the state tax rate there was 12 mills for 1932 (more than twice New Mexico's rate) on a taxable valuation of $463,341,415.

For economy in government, Wyoming is the only state in the Rocky Mountain area, for which figures are available, which compares favorably with New Mexico. Yet even in Wyoming the portion of state expenses raised from property taxes is greater than here.

In the face of falling property values only the strictest economy in governmental expenditures prevented the state tax rate from increasing, as it has increased in Arizona during the last few years. In 1926 their rate was 6 7/8 mills, but it has steadily increased until it reached the 12 mills figure in 1932.

Sixteenth Century Map of the Pacific.

Prepared by National Geographic Society, Washington, D. C.—WNU Service.

MORE than 3,000 years ago Ptolemy, a Greek geographer, began the story of maps, with making the first maps, outlined estates along the Nile river. What would he think today if he walked into an automobile service station, railway station, tourists' bureau, or airplane office and could take his pick of maps that would show him the best route to almost anywhere in the world?

Probably the greatest spurt in the map-making industry has been made in the last few centuries, but in the great museums of the world there are many maps and charts that were crude but helpful forerunners of the efficient work of cartographers today.

Most famous of all early maps are those in the atlas or "Geography" of Claudius Ptolemy, an eight-volume work dating from about 150 A. D.

Though lost to the world of learning through the Dark Ages, Ptolemy's books were later rediscovered. One of the oldest manuscript copies was found at Mount Athos, and a reproduction made in 1807 is on display in the Library of Congress at Washington, D. C. Six of his eight books consist of tables of latitude and longitude for about 8,000 places. In his remaining books Ptolemy discusses the stars, mathematical problems of geography, the length of days, the sun's course, and differences in time at different places.

With his books are maps of 26 countries and one map of the world. In his colossal task Ptolemy used all geographic lore that had accumulated to his time. Though crude and full of mistakes, it was the greatest step ever made in presenting world geography in scientific form.

His maps show how traders and adventurers had pushed the rim of the known world as far north as the Shetland and given size and shape to the British Isles. More of the Nile was shown and part of Africa below the equator. The Indian ocean got a new and more accurate mapping, based, no doubt, on notes brought by silk traders from the Far East.

Road Maps for Crusaders.

To meet the needs of the Crusaders, knocking down the highways of Europe and into Asia Minor, there developed a sort of pictorial road map. A good example in the British museum is a copy of a drawing by a St. Albans monk, Matthew Paris. Its crude pictures show the towns along the route from London to Jerusalem. The "map" of Palestine also shows the sea, with ships carrying crowds of people.

China, Persia, Egypt, all had their part in early map science; and the Arabs undoubtedly borrowed from Ptolemy. Yet it was the Arabs who, when Christian learning lagged in the Eighth and Ninth centuries, made the most important geographic advances.

Printing, which, like the compass, probably came to Europe from the East, had the same galvanic effect on map making as on some other arts. Ptolemy's "Geography," now translated, became so popular that it was to go through more than fifty editions. Columbus used it; despite its errors, or thanks to them, he accidentally found the New World, which discovery ultimately set all civilization to revising its maps.

For decades after the voyages of Columbus, Europe seethed with excitement and new ideas. When Charles V received letters from Cortez describing the splendors of Montezuma's court, with its golden dishes as big as carriage wheels, all Spain was agitated. When news broke that Pizarro had caught an Inca king and held him for ransom of a roomful of gold, equal to $15,000,000, excitement was almost unendurable. All nations that could build or borrow boats put to sea, and map making flourished.

As the world's true pattern took form, medieval maps with unexplored areas decorated by sea serpents, mermaids, wrecked galleons, and chubby angel faces blowing the winds, began to fade from use.

Mercator's Great Work.

Gerhard Kremer, known by his Latinized name of Mercator, was among the first to break with these old traditions. Famous mathematician and cartographer of Flanders, he drew a world chart in 1569 on the "Mercator Projection," which gave navigators a new and safer system for plotting their courses.

By this projection lines of latitude and longitude are mathematically spaced and drawn at right angles to each other. On this grid sailors have merely to rule a straight line as their course and sail to port. Because the earth is round, this does not give the shortest route between two points, but it does show the right "bearing."

In his time, Mercator helped to change map making from an art into a science. New and accurate instruments for measuring the ground were coming into use, and slowly they led the way to topographic surveys.

Mercator's son, Rumold, carried on his father's map trade. When Rumold died his brother-in-law, Judocus Hondius, took it over. The Hondius earth map of 1633, now in the British museum, traces Sir Francis Drake's course around the world.

Dutch map publishers led the world in the Seventeenth century and the French in the Eighteenth. A French scientist rolled a carriage wheel across the northern French plains to measure a degree arc of the meridian. In time came D'Anville, issuing a new map of China drawn by the Jesuits in 1718. Other good map makers arose in Germany, England, Austria and Switzerland.

No country is so well surveyed as Great Britain; no maps anywhere are comparable, for information and range of scale, with those of its ordnance survey.

Early American Maps.

Before the Revolution such maps of our country as existed were drawn mostly by those European powers who had colonies here. Among such were the early Spanish maps of Florida, the Southwest, and California; also Lewis Evans' map of the "Middle British Colonies in America," published in Philadelphia in 1753.

What has been called the most important map in United States history is that drawn by Dr. John Mitchell, showing the French and British dominions in North America. After Cornwallis yielded at Yorktown and British diplomats met the Americans at Paris to frame the treaties of 1782-83, this map was used. Of it John Adams wrote: "We had before us a variety of maps; but it was the Mitchell map upon which was marked out the whole boundary lines of the United States."

During the first half of the Sixteenth century such Spanish explorers as Cabeza de Vaca, Coronado, De Soto, and others had made crude maps of their routes; so had the French, voyaging the Great Lakes and canoeing down the Mississippi. William Clark, of the Lewis and Clark expedition, in 1804-6, made a map showing their route to Oregon and the north boundary of Louisiana, then in the upper Missouri basin. Later came Zebulon Pike, the Santa Fe traders and the beaver trappers from St. Louis—Bonnaville, Walker, Fremont, and others—all shown on Frank Bond's "Routes of the Principal Explorers," published by the United States land office in 1907.

No ship can enter port safely without a chart that shows buoys, lights, shoals, channel depths, and prominent objects ashore to steer by. The United States coast and geodetic survey has been making such charts for 116 years.

After the Civil war, mapping of the United States, particularly of the great West, began in earnest, directed by the newly created United States geological survey. Long before that, to aid settlers, the government land office had done much mapping, often under contract and not always accurate.

Because the United States is so vast, no private firm or person could afford to survey and map its whole area. For more than 50 years the geological survey has been working to complete the topographic mapping of the Union. Of its total area of more than 3,000,000 square miles, about one-half is now surveyed and the results published in nearly 3,800 topographic maps.

Covered Bridge Era Passing

Requirements of Modern Transportation Doom Picturesque Old Structures So Long Landmarks in Vermont; Many Date From Revolution.

Well in the foreground of the rugged scenic beauty of Vermont are the covered bridges, which lead many roadways over turbulent streams and link the Green mountain past with modern transportation. Thousands of motorists who have passed through the state will remember the rumble from floor planks which echoed into the roofed spans, as they passed from sunshine into gloom, then out again into the sunlight. These quaint structures often served as landmarks, some dating back to days of the Revolutionary war.

Previous to 1927 there were between 500 and 600 bridges of the covered type in Vermont. The flood of that year, however, destroyed more than half of them. Today there are only 240 remaining. Approximately fifty have been replaced with modern structures during the last six years.

The Vermont department of highways, being aware not only of the picturesque appeal of these ancient structures, but of the sentiment attached to them, has shaped a policy to retain as many as practical from an engineering standpoint. However, increasing volumes of travel and mounting traffic speed have necessitated the removal of some of these spans, especially those on main-line highways.

Almost all of the covered bridges have exceptionally strong trusses, but the floor systems are usually too weak for heavy motor traffic. It has been reported in state-wide surveys. Often times new floor systems may be installed without great expenditure. It has been found, but the chief locations of serious disintegration are at the ends of the structures, where wood supports have been in contact with earth. In a number of cases, it has been discovered, that disintegration has progressed to such an extent that the bridges must be rebuilt. These structures are, of course, very old and as time goes on more and more of them will become unsound.

The principal reason stressed for the replacing with modern, open structures is the guarding of traffic safety. The old bridges were built during times when traffic was light and slow. In almost every instance they were constructed at right angles to the streams which they crossed, with the result that dangerous, sharp-angle turns existed at each end of the structures. This, together with the fact they were narrow and often low-arched, made many unable to meet the requirements of modern travel.

Pride in these covered bridges has become deep-rooted in the state, however, and when safety requirements are fulfilled the spans are not replaced unless the expense connected with necessary repairs or maintenance becomes prohibitive or location or design cause traffic hazards which cannot be remedied.

An important move toward the preservation of the bridges was made by the Vermont legislative assembly this year, when a law was enacted which specified that the state might pay two-thirds the cost of maintenance on state aid roads.

Although there is distinctive attractiveness to the covered bridges, traffic experts now declare that their days are numbered. According to unofficial figures motor travel in Vermont this year has established a new peak, and an increasing interest has been evinced by motor vacationists throughout the nation to tour the Green mountain territory. With these facts in mind, road builders have asserted that in order to meet ever-mounting traffic conditions, main-line covered bridges will have to be replaced in the future. Yet there will be a great many on secondary and town roads which will continue to support traffic and which will be preserved as long as possible. However, as no covered wooden bridges are now being built, there will come a day when these types of structures will become extinct, as far as Vermont is concerned.

Skyscraper Found to Have Its Disadvantages

The aimless way in which skyscrapers have been crowded together, not only in New York, but in other cities, is causing much congestion. For that reason, in the opinion of Flavel Shurtleff, secretary of the national conference on city planning, the skyscraper is having the fight of its life to justify the enormous cost with which it has burdened the taxpayers for traffic facilities.

"Skyscrapers have been generally accepted on this side of the Atlantic as both necessary and desirable," writes Mr. Shurtleff in Progress Magazine. "Theoretically, the height of buildings is immaterial, except that height is deprecated when it creates excessive bulk in relation to the traffic capacity of the area."

"Even in Texas, where land is so abundant and cheap that ten acres are allotted to one steer for pasture, at least four cities boast homemade sky lines, which are assumed to be the hallmark of metropolitan distinction. Houston's skyline includes five buildings of more than twenty stories in height, housing thousands of tenants on less ground than would suffice to nourish one steer elsewhere in the state."

Inspiration to All in Really Spiritual Life

Something was said in my meditations a few weeks ago of the art of living, of which so many people know so little, a writer in the Indianapolis News comments. It is one of the greatest of the arts, and also one of the most difficult. Strong, clean, pure, beautiful and self-denying living is a supreme work of art and, as such, an inspiration to all who come, and especially those who live within the sphere of its influence. Delight as we may, and should, in a superb literary style, it is after all, the superb life—and it may be superb, no matter how humble—that exerts the greater influence. Is this also "the gift of God"? Very obviously not. Such a life is the expression of character, and character is the fruit of self-culture, self-renunciation and self-discipline. Its cost of production, measured in pain, sacrifice, suffering and hard work, is enormous and yet so great is the result—character—as to be worth all its costs. Perhaps there are few of us who have not known people who lived nobly, seriously and yet joyously, unaware of their own goodness. We have also known people who were selfish, flighty, without dignity, devoid of any sense of responsibility for the outcome of their own life or the lives of others. The first class is made up of serious artists in the difficult art of living. In the second class are the botchers—and there are many of them. The most hopeless folk are those who would and do divorce beauty and morality and hold that they are natural enemies. Such misguided and misguided souls know little or nothing of "the beauty of holiness."

High School Notes

During the past few weeks we have had so many good talks on the Century of Progress Exposition that we are beginning to feel as if we had been there. Last week Mrs. Snyder and Mrs. Blaney talked to us about their visits there. We all found these talks very interesting.

On the first Tuesday of each month we ask some representative of the churches to address the assembly. This month our speaker was Mrs. Queen of White Oaks. The students seemed well pleased with her talk and we hope to hear from her again.

Tuesday Ruth Kelley, assisted by Jane Kimbrell, Leslye Cooper and Thelma Shaver presented a musical program.

The Freshman program on Thursday took the form of an amusing initiation.

It seems to be our bad luck that examinations should come in the week preceding the county fair. Everyone is busy with studies and preparations for the Fair.

Chevrolet Manufactured

571,781 Units

Production of Chevrolet cars and trucks in September practically trebled that of last September, the company in the month just ended having turned 59,357 new units as against 20,995 in the comparable month of 1932. W. S. Knudsen, president and general manager announced today.

For the first nine months of this year Chevrolet manufactured 571,781 units, or 45 per cent more than in the full twelve months of last year, Mr. Knudsen said. In fact, last year's total production was exceeded this year by the cars and trucks built during the six months ended September 30, Mr. Knudsen stated.

Output in September of this year was the largest for that month since 1929, and was exceeded by only a few Septembers in the 21 years the company has been in business, Mr. Knudsen announced.

He stated that more than 90 per cent of the September total was shipped to dealers located in the United States.

Assembly operations at the company's eight domestic plants have continued into October at a rate which will insure the current month's production exceeding last October by a higher margin than has been scored in any month so far this year, the Chevrolet President said.

Instinct is the term applied to an inherited tendency to perform a specific action in a particular way whenever a situation arises. Intuition, on the other hand, implies the faculty of knowing something beforehand, whether it be mystical, intellectual or moral.

Uncovering Herculaneum
Ruins of Herculaneum, buried during the eruption of Vesuvius in 79 A. D., were discovered in 1719 when the ruler of Naples began digging a water reservoir at the site of the old city.
