CARRIZOZO, NEW MEXICO, FRIDAY, OCT. 20, 1933

NUMBER 21

Fort Stanton First on List

Messrs. Herman Kelt and Perry Sears were in Santa Fe last week, where they interviewed the newly appointed Senator Carl A. Hatch, Congressman Dennis Chavez and Governor Hockenbuhl. Mr. Chavez assured them that Fort Stanton's program of repairs and improvements would have preference over any public works to be started in the entire state, $243,000 have been appropriated for this job.

In regard to the Capitán-Lincoln road, the right-of-way has been secured except for one short tract. It is expected, this work will be started shortly. Mr. Waite J. Keeney, state chief for the re-employment board is assisting in getting these projects under way. Messrs. Chavez and Hatch left together for Washington this week. They have a high regard for each other and will work in unison for whatever will redound to the good of the great commonwealth of New Mexico.

Buick Field Representative Visits Carrizozo

Carrizozo has been chosen as one of the towns in which every effort will be made to have a combined Buick and Pontiac dealership in the expansion program which is being pushed this fall preparatory to the 1934 selling season, according to Mr. N. S. Clifton, field representative of the Buick-Olds-Pontiac Sales company who visited here this week.

Mr. Clifton reports that a survey was made of all towns in which Buick and Pontiac has no representative to learn whether the volume of business would warrant such an establishment. He likewise reported that, unless a town had sufficient population, industry and wealth to enable a dealer to make money on his investment, no attempt was made to establish a dealer there because the factory only wanted dealers who could make money for themselves. It is likewise desirable to have service facilities at hand for the present owners of Buicks and Pontiacs in Carrizozo and the surrounding territory.

"We are on an up market which should mean opportunities for men of business experience and some capital to participate in the profits that will be made in the automobile industry in the next and following years," said Mr. Clifton. "It is not essential that a man should have been in the automobile industry previously to make a success of this business. It is specialized, in a sense, but not any more so than the ordinary business.

"Few people realize that a dealer in no other business receives the help in guiding him that the automobile factories provide. The factories provide a dealer with an estimate of the cost of a building or the rental he should pay for the potential sales in his territory, the number of new cars he should have on hand, how to recondition used cars, the maximum time he should keep any used car, how many salesmen he should have and how to lay out his show room. Courses are provided for training sales and service managers. These are but a few items of the business management guidance a dealer receives. I know of no other industry that has analyzed retail outlets, market potentialities and provides so many guiding tools as does the automobile industry. These guidances are not theoretical but based upon thousands of examples of dealers, experiences of which records are kept at the factories."

Rev. Father Mitchell Passed Away October 11

Many Carrizozo people will regret to learn of the death of the Rev. Father J. Francis Mitchell which occurred at a Las Vegas hospital, Wednesday morning, October 11, at an early hour. Father Mitchell had been in poor health for several months, but was only seriously ill for a few days. He was pastor of Santa Rita church here for two years, where he was held in high esteem. At the time of his death he was pastor at Mora.

Father Mitchell was born in Brooklyn, N. Y., and was 51 years of age. He attended college and seminary in Brooklyn, and was then appointed to the diocese of Los Angeles where he had charge of the Indian missions for 20 years. Fr. Mitchell was then appointed to the Santa Fe diocese; he was parish priest at Mora two years, then spent two years here, having returned to Mora about a year ago. He is survived by one brother who lives in Brooklyn.

Funeral services were held at the church of Our Lady of Sorrows, in Las Vegas Saturday morning at 9:30 followed by interment in Mt. Calvary cemetery.

The "Goofus Club" was organized last evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. O. Garrison, its motto being "Laugh a Lot." The purpose of the club is to make cheery the evenings of coming winter months. Michigan, the game to be played, does not tax the concentration to such an extent that conversation and jokes may not be indulged in—at least at discreet intervals, as the members are hoping for sociable and merry times when they gather at the respective homes.

The members are: Mr. and Mrs. Carl Jones, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Shafer, Mr. and Mrs. Ray Lemon, Mr. and Mrs. E. M. Barber, Mr. and Mrs. Don English, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Garrison, Misses Hansel Melas and Tressie Davis, Mesdames Jess Snyder, Bamburger and Mrs. W. O. Garrison. After the close of the games light refreshments were served; living up fully to its motto during the evening, the club sang: "Shall we Meet Again" and departed to meet with Mrs. Don English next week.

Don't forget to attend the big Halloween dance at community hall Saturday October 28th. Benefit Fire Department.

The Capitán Parent Teachers' association held its second meeting last week. Senator Coe spoke to the assembly on the "Value of P. T. A. Membership to Home, School and Community." Other interesting numbers were given by the students. During the social hour sandwiches were served to about one hundred and twenty people.

Mrs. R. W. Dozier and Miss Dorothy are in Carrizozo and will make this their home.

Mrs. R. E. Blaney will be hostess to the Carrizozo-bridge club tomorrow.

Miss Ruth Kelley is keeping books for her father at the Hardware and Sport shop. She has also added a music department.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Shafer and family will occupy the Snow residence from which the Young family recently moved.

Mrs. French has returned to Albuquerque and Mr. and Mrs. Young have leased the French home.

Box Supper

Mr. and Mrs. Carl Jones extend a cordial invitation to all interested parties to attend a box supper to be given at El Cibola hotel next Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock. Each lady is requested to bring a box containing lunch for two. These boxes are to be auctioned off to the gentlemen in attendance, and each gentleman will have supper with the lady whose box he buys. The proceeds are to be turned over to the Methodist church. The auction sale will be preceded by a musical program; all are invited to come and help along a good cause and spend a delightful evening as well.

Mr. J. H. Hoffman and his little grand-daughter, Mildred celebrated their birthday together with a dinner at the Hoffman ranch near town on Oct. 12th.

They had a delightful time. It was Mildred's second birthday, and Mr. Hoffman's 85th. The guests hope they will enjoy many more such anniversaries together.

Polish Corridor

A Youthful Pole at Lunch.

Prepared by National Geographic Society, Washington, D. C.—WNU Service.

POLAND, youthful European republic, with its famous Corridor holding the limelight, has been considered in the light of a vanished past or a problematical future rather than of a vital and engrossing present.

Before world economic conditions clouded the issue Poland made substantial strides materializing the air castles its people had cherished for many decades.

On war-wanted territory stretching over the ancient forest area from marshland to mountains, Poland brought agriculture back beyond pre-war levels. Factories which it found destroyed or idle were rehabilitated. Railway mileage was increased and a uniform gauge adopted, so that rails bound Poland together instead of tearing it apart.

President Wilson championed Poland's aspiration for independence, and the United States government loaned funds for the purchase of food, clothing, and supplies which were essential in the early stages of national rehabilitation.

More densely populated than Pennsylvania, Poland is still an agricultural nation, and the consequent elasticity of its labor supply, the economic independence of its peasants, and the modesty of their needs give it social stability in spite of the rapid growth of urban and industrial life.

"Without the sea and the seaquest there is no Poland," has proved, a potent slogan. During the summer of 1932 at Gdynia, a city of more than 80,000, so new as to be shown only on the most recent maps, Poland celebrated its first "sea festival" near where General Haller, after fighting his way to the Baltic, dropped a ring in its waters to celebrate the union of land and sea.

Where a few years ago one waded in deep sand, dodging wind-shaken, weblike nets and upended boat-halves converted into shelters, or watching women bury potatoes in straw-lined sand pits for the winter, there are city streets and five-story buildings. Gdynia, with a port that can accommodate 50 vessels at a time, now handles more than 8,000,000 tons of exports and imports in a single year.

Nearby Danzig, eight times as populous and once one of the great ports of the Hanseatic league—which in its golden day virtually controlled the trade routes of northern Europe—far from being wiped out through this new rivalry, now handles 8,000,000 tons, four times the pre-war tonnage, and the largest traffic in its history. Among Baltic and North Sea ports, Danzig's tonnage is exceeded only by that of Hamburg, Bremen, Copenhagen and Stockholm. The Vistula river system drains most of Poland, and Vistula-bound traffic passes to or through Danzig before reaching the sea.

Gdynia its Naval Base. But it is Gdynia which gives significance to the "Polish Corridor" foreshadowed in the thirteenth of President Wilson's famous Fourteen Points. And the new railway from Upper Silesia to the Baltic, avoiding the free city of Danzig, assures Poland's economic freedom.

France has co-operated in financing the railway, and Swiss financiers extended a loan of $2,500,000 to the city of Gdynia.

A Polish naval base on Polish soil could have been foreseen, but politicians fourteen years ago never dreamed of Gdynia. Now there it is, one of the best-equipped ports on the Baltic, and Polish emigrants to North America embark there, direct from Polish soil. Instead of at other European ports which their predecessors once helped make prosperous.

Five-eighths of all Polish trade, moving through the ports of Danzig and Gdynia, creates a north and south traffic in the Polish Corridor seven times as heavy as the east and west commerce, although much trade is diverted across the corridor and through East Prussia and Lithuania, away from the heart of Poland.

Recently iron ore and cotton for Czechoslovakia entered through Gdynia, thus providing return loads for coal cars from the south. One ship from New Orleans unloaded 7,350 bales of American cotton in a single day. Naturally, the Poles hold the Polish Corridor to be essential to their very existence. The bulwark of the new port was cheered loud and long during his address at last summer's sea festival when he said: "Our ancestors did not come to this Polish shore either as guests or immigrants; they did not here establish themselves by the grace or through the protection of anyone; here we stand on our own soil, rooted in our own past, oftentimes heroic and victorious, sometimes cruel and bitter. Here we will remain and achieve our destiny."

Sheltered from Baltic storms by the sand spit of Hel, Gdynia, although an artificial port, is well protected and capable of almost unlimited expansion. A school for the merchant marine, a huge modern post office, through which all possible foreign mail is routed, and the shipping offices connected with Poland's growing fleet are prominent along the shore. Modern machinery is used in transshipping the exports, principally coal, lumber, zinc, bacon, eggs, sugar and butter, and the imports of foodstuffs, cotton, metals, and machines.

Lowicz is Colorful. To the photographer the Gdynia of today is less picturesque than the barren, breezy beach dotted with Kashiwa fisher folk, and the real treat for eye and lens is Lowicz, color capital of peasant Poland. No lens hunter was ever tempted by finer promises of photographic game than in Lowicz.

To be chosen from the ever-moving ranks of women in spotless kerchiefs, rainbow skirts billowing wide over heavy petticoats and high-laced boots might be an honor, however awkwardly phrased by the eager photographer, but to accept the invitation would be to subject oneself to the jolting which familiar friends can make most embarrassing in the presence of strangers.

There is no lack of cordially on Sunday as the bright parade leaves the abbey church. The broad-faced women of the fields gaily smile into the lens so long as they can keep moving and hence not reveal any individual vanity concerning their unquestioned attraction.

Beautifully by splendid parks and gardens, furnished with wide avenues and broken by large squares, across which the massive piles of Warszawa (Warsaw) rise in solemn dignity, the Polish capital always seems a dull background for the irrepressible Polish spirit; yet one can still say, as did Napoleon, "Warsaw is always amusing."

Never does one forget the quick cadences and exotic musical intervals of a gypsy band in a gay restaurant not far from Theater square, but even the most agile measures seem to lag behind the spirited conversation and joyous repartee which enliven Warsaw's restaurants. The aristocratic country life, reminding one of plantation days in our own South, is now rare, but stolid Warsaw is still enlivened by the personal charm of the cultured Pole.

Until one has seen the Polish theater he does not realize the variety and beauty of the modern stage. Poland's romantic poets and dramatists of eighty years ago, such as Adam Mickiewicz, Zygmunt Krasiński, and Juliusz Slowacki, either wrote in exile or were subject to a stifling conservatism.

Interest in America. True, to the Poles themselves even strictly censored dramas were packed with thrills, for behind innocuous allegories they sensed the rebellion of the Polish spirit against oppression. But with the coming of freedom Polish drama developed a catholicity of interest and dramatic method unsurpassed in modern Europe. "Street Scene," "Broadway," and "Anna Christie" have all been admirably presented in Poland, and there is a keen interest in all things American.

Partly this is due to the presence of many Poles in America, but much of it dates back to the days of our Revolution, in which the Poles took a keen interest and in some cases a personal part. Today one can telephone to Poland from any city in the United States, but in the days of the Thirteen Colonies the American Revolution was physically far away and England ruled the seas.

Poland not only observed the Washington Bicentennial in Poland, but also on May 4 Polish national holiday and anniversary of the premature Constitution of 1791, praised by Edmund Burke, Poland issued a 50-grozy stamp picturing Washington in the center between Kosciuszko and Pulaski.

CHAPTER XIV—Continued

"It will be splendid for Kit," she said and Stephen knew that he had judged correctly. She didn't want to be entirely alone with him. Had he misunderstood her impulse? "I do love you, Uncle Stephen!" that night beside the lily pond? But she had no interest in boys. She had discouraged them all summer, had seemed to be content with the children and him. The children and him. That, of course, was the source of his anxieties and doubts.

"Barbara," he said.
"Yes?"

Her arm was around his neck. He felt her hair, silky and soft, brushing against his cheek. Barbara's hair would have felt like that—the Barbara he had loved. Why did he think of her when the younger Barbara was there beside him, close and warm and fragrant? Was it her mother he loved? It troubled him to realize that he couldn't be quite sure.

"You mustn't do this for me," he said gravely. "Or for the children. You must think of yourself."
But it didn't matter about her. Bruce had gone. The silver flute was silent, lost perhaps. It would never play again. "I love you, pretty gypsy girl with the roses in your hair." Bruce was lost, the lovely things they had planned . . .

"We'll count the stars through our skylight and every morning for breakfast I'll sing you a brand-new song."
"Bruce! A new one every day?"
"And a special one for Sundays."

—And heart-shaped gates to keep away
The world and all its cares
From one small table, dear,
And two small chairs. . . .

The gates hadn't been strong enough. Bruce was gone. It hadn't been her fault or his. It was something that had happened. Uncle Stephen loved her. He had done so much for the children. She could never be grateful enough.

"I want to," she said with a little catch in her voice. "I do love you, Uncle Stephen!"

"Darling!" He drew her down from the arm of the chair, held her close in his arms. Doubts and uncertainties vanished while she lay there against his heart. He thought of taking her to Europe. They would revisit the village in southern France. There, with this younger Barbara, he would find the romance he had missed. She loved him, he was sure of that. She seemed content to lie against his heart.

"Darling," he said huskily. "You are dearer to me than anything in the world."

"I love you, Uncle Stephen," she said with a soft little quivering sigh.
Stephen did not hear the sigh. It did not seem odd to him that she called him "Uncle Stephen." His lips were against her hair, soft and silky and faintly scented.

CHAPTER XV

The car rolled smoothly along the Cape Cod road. Gay and Jamie, bouncing with excitement, sat on the front seat with Thomas. Stephen sat on the back seat between Barbara and Kit. They were excited, too. But they were very quiet. Stephen knew by their eyes, by their hands slipped into his, what it meant to them to be going home.

It had been raining when they left Boston. Half way out the cape the clouds shrouded themselves away, leaving patches of clear blue sky. When they reached Hyannis, the sun was shining and the sky was blue all over, as blue as a robin's egg.

"Doesn't it smell lovely?" Barbara said smiling her April smile.
"Mmm!" Kit agreed, a flush in his thin dark cheeks, his hazel eyes very bright. "I had forgotten. It smells exactly like home."

Home. . . . Barbara watched the houses skimming by, the low New England houses, the apple trees, the fence rails. It would no longer be home. The gray-shingled house at the end of the journey was to be sold. They would never come to Provincetown again. It would be easier if they didn't. Coming back was too sad.

Home was "Thornhedge" now, always and forever. Perhaps, after a while, she wouldn't mind, so dreadfully. Perhaps she would be able to remember Bruce without this queer lonely feeling in her heart. When she was an old lady, perhaps. She sighed wearily. There were so many years to be lived before she would be an old lady who could remember, without pain, the far-away heartaches of youth.

Stephen heard the sigh. He glanced at her, sideways. He could not see her eyes, only the curve of her cheeks and the brown hair blowing in ringlets under her smart little hat. But there was something forlorn in her position, in the hand which he did not hold lying palm upward in her lap. He shouldn't have let her come. There were sad things to remember. Better not to go back. It hurt him when she was unhappy. He pressed her hand

In a comforting way and wisely said nothing.

Barbara was grateful to him for not asking questions. He was kind and understanding. She loved him with all her heart—as she had loved Father, as she loved the children. Not as she loved Bruce. That was different. That couldn't happen again. She hoped Uncle Stephen would never know. But she couldn't look at him. Her lips were trembling so.

Gay and Jamie discovered familiar landmarks.

"There's the road to Long Nook!" Jamie shouted.

"Remember how Bruce used to take us swimming? Gay bounced half-way around on the wide front seat. "All of us piled in his awful old car."

"It was a nice car," Kit observed, stoutly loyal to Bruce.

A lovely car, Barbara thought. She wished she might ride in it again, swooping up and down the stretch of road that was like a roller-coaster. The road to Long Nook! It was Indian summer when she saw it last, late Indian summer, sunny and hazy and golden. Her birthday. There had been sandwiches and candy with hickory nuts. She remembered it all so clearly, the clouds hiding the sky, the hut that had sheltered them from the storm.

"Sing to me, Bruce. I'm frightened." "I'll tell you a story instead." "That will be nice."

"Once there was a gypsy boy who loved very dearly a little gypsy girl. . . . What was she thinking? Stephen wondered, sitting beside him so very quiet and still. Would he ever know all of her thoughts? There were times when he felt close to her and times when he felt shut out. He had no part, now, in her thoughts. What was she remembering? Her hand slipped away from him. He made no attempt to hold it.

He had no part in her thoughts. Her hand had, unconsciously, slipped away. Every inch of the road, every tree, every house was associated with Bruce. There were the Corn Hill houses with their gaunt pointed roofs. There, after a while, was the Truro church, square and white, its steeple pricking the foliage of the trees. There was the place in the road where they had met the goose. She wondered if it had been killed and eaten. It was very precious, that goose.

There was Provincetown. They would be there very soon. Barbara's hands held each other closely. It was sad to be coming back.

"There's Manuel's boat in the harbor!" Jamie exclaimed. "Look, 'Chips,' old man! Maybe he'll take us fishing." The Ariel, too, was there, Mr. Loring's sloop, as beautiful as a dream. They could not look at that.

"It's just the same!" Kit marveled. Stephen laughed.
"Why shouldn't it be?" he asked. "Places seldom change in a year."

It seemed longer than that, Barbara thought. So many things had happened. But there was Miss Abble's low white house with the dahlias ready to bloom. There was Jake Probie on his dray still wearing the same hat.

And there, at last, was the gray-shingled house with the willow trees and the rose vine over the door.

"We're here," Kit said in a husky voice.

Barbara smiled mistily at him. She couldn't speak because of the lump in her throat.

Stephen saw her swallow, saw the tears on her lashes. He thought that, just at first, she might like to be alone.

"Get the key from the real estate agent," he said to Thomas. "Kit will show you. Take Gay and Jamie with you."

Thomas and the children had gone to the real estate agent. Stephen and Barbara were alone.

"It looks forlorn this way," she said, wanting him to love the house as she loved it. "It's nice when there aren't so many weeds."

"It's charming," Stephen said, watching Barbara. He knew that the house was dear to her. He had not known how dear.

Barbara peeped into the house through the windows.
"There's the old piano," she said, as though she was surprised to find it there. "It was always out of tune."

There were tears in her voice, tears misting her lashes. She smiled an April smile.

Stephen's heart swelled with tenderness.

"Darling," he said, finding, pressing her hand.

She led him beneath the arbor to the studio.

"We sat here so often," she said, pausing on the steps. She lifted the door latch. "It's open!" she said looking at Stephen in wondering surprise.

They entered the studio.
"Someone is living here!" Barbara glanced around the room. "Now, who do you suppose?"

There were signs of an occupant, a cot made up in the corner, books, a pipe, an old stove, a battered guitar.
"How in the world—" Stephen did not complete the question. Barbara had slipped down to the floor. She was holding the guitar against her breast, rocking it as though it were a child. "Barbara," he said, wondering, surprised.

CAP AND BELLS

HER OWN DIFFICULTIES

The teacher was having her trials and finally wrote the mother: "Your son is the brightest boy in my class, but he is also the most mischievous. What shall I do?"

The reply came duly: "Do as you please. I am having my own troubles with his father."—Royal Arcanum Bulletin.

Twin Souls

"When the judge ruled that B Jones had to pay alimony, how did he feel about it?"

"Chagrined."
"And how did his wife feel about it?"

"She grinned."—Pathfinder Magazine.

Summer Experience

Blinks—What caused the accident? Jinks—An unwelcome passenger we picked up.

Blinks—I thought you said you never gave hitch-hikers a lift.

Jinks—I don't, this was a 'bumble bee' that joined us through an open window.

Shade

"Was there any shade in the desert?"

"Yes, but I couldn't get in it."
"Why not?"
"Have you ever tried to sit in your own shadow?"

The System

"You advertise that you make suits while customers wait. Is that so?"

"Yes, you order a suit, pay a deposit, and go home and wait until it is ready."—Vari Hem.

BROADMINDED

She was determined to be married, and he was equally determined to remain single.

"It's no good, my dear," he said. "I'm too hard up. Why, I couldn't even keep a mouse."
"Of course you could," was her reply. "I love the little things."—The Tattler.

Not in His Line

The company director shook his head.

"My dear man," he said, "there are hundreds of ways of making money, but only one that's honest."

The company promoter looked puzzled.

"What's that?" he asked.
"Ah," smiled the other, "I thought you wouldn't know!"

OTHERS WITH HIM

Summer Man—Why do you put our wedding-off another year?
Summer Maid—You've no complaint. I have put two other fellows off until next year too.

Unterrified

"A number of your fellow townsmen are waiting to see you," said the secretary.

"I'm glad of that," said Senator Sorghum. "I want them to see that hard as this job is becoming I'm still industrious and unscared."

A Fellow-Feeling

Sunday School Teacher—Why was it that David said he would rather be a doorkeeper in the house of the Lord?

A Quicker Way To Ease Headaches

A Discovery that's Bringing Fast Relief to Millions

Now comes amazingly quick relief from headaches, rheumatism, neuralgia, neuritis, neuralgia. . . the fastest safe relief. It is said, yet undiscovered.

These results are due to a scientific discovery by which a Bayer Aspirin tablet begins to dissolve, or disintegrate, in the amazing space of two seconds after touching moisture. And hence to start "taking hold" of pain a few minutes after taking.

The illustration of the glass, here, tells the story. A Bayer Tablet starts to disintegrate almost instantly you swallow it. And thus is ready to go to work almost instantly.

When you buy, though, see that you get the Genuine BAYER Aspirin. For Bayer Aspirin's quick relief always say "BAYER Aspirin."

7th Annual Lincoln Co. Fair and Track Meet

The Seventh Fair and Meet is now over. Below are some of the outstanding features of this last event.

By far the largest number of school students and teachers attended this Meet that have attended any event. Two hundred and seventeen registered for the Meet. Hundreds of others were on hand to see the contests.

The agricultural exhibit and the school exhibit surpassed any other exhibits that have been shown here.

The best of feeling prevailed all through the events. Excellent time and records were made at the meet and it is believed that a number of boys and girls will compete at the State Meet in the Spring. Prof. C. V. Koogler handled the field like the master he is.

Corona ran wild on the field, Ancho and Ruidoso following in order.

Corona won the boys' trophy; Captain, the girls'. J. V. Taylor and Bert Pfingsten tied in the polo bending race. R. A. Crenshaw, on L. N. Bell's blue horse, ran off with the quarter-mile race.

Receipts and expenses should be close to the following figures:
Fair events $450.00
Program ada 44 00
Donations by business men 300 00

Total $794.00
Total expense 300 00

Net $494.00

Final figures may make some changes in the above. They will be published in due time.

No Deficit for Fiscal Year

Santa Fe, Oct. 18.—The economy program of the democratic administration is now being backed by a tightening up of tax collections from all minor sources which are well able to pay.

The latest move is being made by the state treasurer to obtain collections of taxes from private railway car companies who have allowed their payments to become delinquent for several years.

Last week the treasurer's office, after repeated warnings had failed to bring in delinquent taxes, issued distraint warrants against several cars operating over the railroads through the state.

As a result, several cars were tied up and prohibited to move until taxes had been paid. More than $5,000 was obtained by this means. Other car companies, learning of the treasurer's action, wired asking the amount of taxes they owed. Checks from these companies have been coming in almost daily.

Many thousands of dollars will be collected from these companies as a result of the drastic action of the treasurer. The private cars are used to ship produce of the companies owning them and are not owned by the railroads themselves. It is such action on part of the administration which enabled the state to close its last fiscal year without a deficit for the first time in recent years.

Lincoln County Tuberculosis Association

Rev. L. D. Jordan was chosen president of the newly organized Lincoln County Tuberculosis Association, which held its first meeting Monday evening. Miss Ruth Kyden, County Health Nurse, was elected secretary-treasurer.

The Lincoln County Association will handle the sale of Christmas seals issued by the National Tuberculosis Association this year. Proceeds from the seal sale will be used for a state-wide health survey which will determine the prevalence of tuberculosis in the state.

Members of the executive committee who will assist in the seal sale are: Mrs. Ola C. Jones, T. E. Kelley, Mrs. C. W. Young, Mrs. Edna Carl, C. C. Carl, D. U. Groce, Mrs. Oscar Snow, E. M. Barber, Mrs. B. S. Burns, Miss Ella Brickley, Fr. Jas. A. Brady. Members of the executive board in other communities in the county are: A. M. Freeman, Hondo; R. S. Fagan, Fort Stanton and Captain; Mrs. L. E. Cummins, Captain; Mrs. Elay Perry, Glenwood. Mrs. Louise Coe, Mrs. A. L. Boyce, Ruidoso; Miss Roberts, Corona, and Mrs. Allen Kille, Arco, have been selected as members of the committee, but their acceptances have not yet been received.

Southwestern Briefs

Clarence L. Lasater has been appointed livestock inspector in St. Johns, Ariz., district. He started work Oct. 1.

The City Council of Roswell decided to apply to the public works board for a loan of $75,000, with which to construct a new city hall.

The Arizona State Tax Commission has announced sales tax collections for August reached $74,385.92, nearly $7,000 more than July collections.

Bids aggregating $540,894.20 for three construction projects on U. S. Highways 60 and 66 have been received by the Arizona State Highway Department.

George H. Todd, former Phoenix city manager, on telegraphic instructions from the Post Office Department Sept. 30th, became acting Phoenix postmaster, succeeding Col. James H. McClintock.

At the end of the present fiscal year, Highway U. S. 66 will be oil-surfaced across the entire state of Arizona, with the exception of eighty miles, it was announced, lately by representatives of the highway department.

The national recovery administration highway program in Arizona got under way in earnest when the State Highway Commission awarded contracts totaling $810,009 on six highway and bridge projects expected to employ more than 300 men.

Within a few weeks, the Santa Fe will have completed installation of approximately 100 miles of new rail in its territory west of Albuquerque, it was reported last week. Track was laid between Cajon and Summit and on the Los Angeles division between San Bernardino and Colton.

Gov. B. B. McCreary of Arizona disclosed recently he has under consideration an order that wherever possible male employees of the state be discharged to make way for women. This contemplated action is a result of failure of the federal government to make provision for employment of women in many portions of its national recovery program.

The total amount of applications for government 4 per cent money for various public works in New Mexico totals $1,500,000, "with more to come." The applications are for water supplies in towns and cities, for irrigation projects and for the building of schools, libraries and mess halls. The biggest amount was asked by the Bernardo conservatory district below Belen, which is for $650,000.

New Mexico poor will get four carloads of salted pork furnished by Uncle Sam, Miss Margaret Reeves, state child welfare director, announced. It will be distributed through the county relief agencies. The first car went to Albuquerque, and the 30,000 pounds of pork it carries will be allotted to Bernalillo and six nearby counties. The other cars probably will be sent to Clovis, Raton and Las Cruces.

Articles of incorporation for establishment of the first distillery in Arizona, following repeal of the eighteenth amendment, anticipated for the latter part of this year, were filed last week with the State Corporation Commission. The articles were filed for the "Straight American Distillery" of Douglas. Incorporators are L. R. Hoard, El Paso; Alexander Baird, Jr., Douglas; and L. C. Shattuck, Bisbee. Capital stock, $100,000.

Clarence Lynch, Phoenix, Ariz., attorney, and George Kaplan, Denver, both representatives of the International Labor Defense Association, in taking up to uphold striking miners rights, and five national miners union leaders, were imprisoned in the stockade of the military camp Tuesday night, Oct. 4th. William Dietrich of Denver was among these five. McKinley county, scene of strikes and labor unrest in the coal mines, is under martial law. Col. G. G. Sage, who led the raids in which the men were arrested, said they told the strikers to "arm yourselves and hold a mass meeting tomorrow regardless of the tin horns."

Gov. A. W. Rockwell, New Mexico's ninth chief executive since statehood, is a farmer, banker and lawyer of mild unassuming manner who has won the reputation of being a man of dependable decision and a conscientious leader. The 56-year-old governor who took his oath of office a few hours after the sudden death of Gov. Arthur Seligman, was born in Polk, Mo., in 1877, and has been a resident of New Mexico since 1904. He is a devotee of golf, playing regularly during favorable weather; likes to hunt and seldom misses a few days with his gun at the opening of the quail season. Like his predecessor, Governor Seligman, the governor is a bank president, having dropped his law practice six years ago to become president of the Clovis National bank. But his legal profession and banking activities have never stopped him from active work on his wheat farms in Curry county.

Fort Huachuca's new $50,000 movie palace opened its doors recently. A dedicatory program featured the first night's performance, with Col. R. S. Knox, commanding officer of Fort Huachuca, delivering the principal address.

Isabella Selmes Greenway, Democrat, was elected to Arizona's congressional seat, vacated last March by Lewis W. Douglas, now director of the federal budget. Dillworth Sumpter, Socialist, was second in the race, with H. E. Wilkinson, Republican, last.

EYES OF YOUTH KEPT TO RIGHT

Character Formation Basis of Old "Readers."

It is amusing to go back and see the kind of reading matter that the schoolchildren of our granddaddies' time used to eat up. Most of the stories were picked because they taught some lesson in the formation of character. A good sample of this kind is found in the famous old MacGuffey's Third Reader. It is called "Stick to Your Bush." This is the way it went:

One day when I was a lad, a party of boys and girls from our school was going into the country to pick berries. I got my basket, and was going out of the gate when my father called me back. He took hold of my hand and said very kindly to me: "Harry, my boy, what are you going for—to pick berries, or to play?"

"To pick berries," I answered. "Then, Harry," said he, "I want to tell you one thing. It is this: when you find a good bush, don't leave it and try to find a better one. The other boys and girls will run about, picking one or two berries here and one or two there, and getting very few in the end. If you do as they do you will come back with an almost empty basket. If you want to get berries, stick to your bush!"

I went with the party, and we had a fine time; but it was just as my father had said. No sooner had one of the boys found a good bush than he called to his companions, and they would leave their places and run off to see what he had found.

But I remembered my father's words, and I stuck to my bush. When I had done with one I went to another, and finished that; and then I took another. When night came, I had a large basketful of nice berries, more than all the others put together; and I was not half so tired as they were.

I went home very happy that night, and when father looked at my basketful of ripe berries, he said, "Well done, Harry! You see it was just as I told you. It is always best to stick to your bush."

Not long after that, my father died, and I had to make my own way in the world as best I could. But I never forgot the lesson taught me by that day's berry picking. I always stuck to my bush.

When I had a good place and was getting on well, I was not willing to leave it and spend days or weeks in trying to find a better place. When other young men said, "Come with us, and we will find you something better to do," I shook my head, and stuck to my bush.

After a while my employers took me into partnership with them in their business. The habit of sticking to my business led to my success. I owe all I have to the lesson my father taught me when he said, "Stick to your bush."—Pathfinder Magazine.

Silver Has High Place in Realm of Industry

Silver, because of its cheaper price, has a wide industrial use. Some 40,000,000 ounces of silver are annually distributed by government agencies and private refiners to manufacturers. The present low price has given it a decided impetus in this field.

Much silver is reclaimed today which formerly was lost in scrap heaps. It is estimated that $5,000,000 worth is saved annually by extracting particles from the sweepings of factories where it is used, by filtering the water used in cleaning where silver compounds are manipulated, and most of all from the discarded film which comes from the motion picture industry.

This reclaimed silver, as well as the new product, goes back to industry. Because silver resists the action of acetic acid it is used to line food containers and stills, condensers, taps and faucets in dairies, fruit juice and brewing trades. It also resists caustic alkalis and, therefore, is used to line great vats in their manufacture. The uses of silver today are so varied that the list might be extended almost indefinitely.

May Egyptians Claim Laurels of Columbus?

The Abbe Moreux, director of the Bourges observatory, and author of a work on "The Mysterious Science of the Pharaohs," has come out with a theory that, centuries before Columbus, Egyptians discovered America.

Otherwise, how did it happen that when Columbus arrived, he found the Indians calling the constellations of heavenly bodies by names corresponding to those now known to have been bestowed upon them by the ancient Egyptians?

Again, as the Abbe Moreux informs us in Le Petit Parisien, "a savant, Moustafa Ibrahim Bey, has just demonstrated that certain geographical names in America are derived from ancient Egyptians, where, for example, 'Mississippi' means 'Father of Waters.'"

Still again, "In Mexico we find pyramids, hieroglyphs, and sculptures in which the human beings, especially in their mode of hair-dressing, exactly resemble those shown in ancient Egyptian paintings."

But would an expedition analogous to that of Columbus have been possible in the days of the Pharaohs? According to Ibrahim Bey, Rameses II had a ship 280 cubits long built by Phoenicians, and we know that the ancient Egyptians perfectly understood the use of sails. In the seventh century, B. C., "Egyptians circumnavigated Africa." Those mariners, thinks the Abbe Moreux, may later have risked a voyage to America.

Thus the company of pre-Columbian discoverers of America increases, and to Norsemen and negroes these subjects of ancient Pharaohs are, if not a universally plausible addition, at least entertaining.—Literary Digest.

"Thank Goodness, Jim," COLD WEATHER NEVER DELAYS US! Ann: "Betty would be late on our first air trip, but as usual when it gets cold, it's to be expected." Jim: "You mean that temperature actually has an effect on her promptness?" Ann: "Yes, she is very prompt ordinarily—it's a case of car trouble in cold weather. Bill doesn't see that the difficulty is in his choice of gas and oil." Jim: "Well, Ann, you couldn't expect everybody to buy Conoco, could you?" Ann: "If everyone knew how Conoco oil and gasoline protect both you and your motor against the difficulties of cold weather driving they would!" Jim: "Guess I'd better get Bill on the phone and see what the delay is!" Ann: "Please do!" CONOCO at the sign of the Red Triangle Full motor protection, especially in cold motor starting, can be found only in Conoco Green Processed (Paraffin Base) Motor Oil because the protective oiliness, called "The Hidden Quiet" stays up in your motor and never drains away. Tired.. Nervous Wife Wins Back Pop! HER raw nerves were soothed. She banished that "dead tired" feeling. Won new youthful color—restful nights, active days—all because she rid her system of bowdlered wastes that were sapping her vitality. NOW Tablets (Nature's Remedy)—the mild, safe, all-vegetable laxative—recoiled the transformation. Try it for constipation, biliousness, headache, dizziness, colds. See how refreshed you feel. At all drug stores. 25 cents. TUMS Quick relief for acid indigestion, heartburn, gas, bloating.

Read the "Ads" but don't ignore medical opinion if you want to —keep bowels regular and comfortable —make constipated spells rare as colds —avoid danger of bowel strain A doctor will tell you that the careless choice of laxatives is a common cause of chronic constipation. Any hospital offers evidence of the harm done by harsh laxatives that drain the system, weaken the bowel muscles, and even affect the liver and kidneys. Fortunately, the public is fast returning to laxatives in liquid form. Can Constipation be Corrected? "Yes!" say medical men. "Yes!" say thousands who have followed this sensible medical advice: 1. Select a good liquid laxative. 2. Take the dose that you find suited to your system. 3. Gradually reduce the dose until bowels are moving regularly without assistance. Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin has the average person's bowels as regular as clockwork in a few weeks' time. Why not try it? Some will object that it is more "convenient" to carry. But there is no "convenience" in any cathartic that's taken so frequently, you must carry it wherever you go! Why Doctors give a liquid laxative The habitual use of irritating salts, or powerful drugs in the highly concentrated form of pills and tablets is risky. The properly prepared liquid laxative will bring a perfect movement without discomfort or injury. You need not take a "double dose" a day or two later. The public can always get Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin at any drugstore.

Watch your Kidneys Don't Neglect Kidneys and Bladder Irregularities NEED promptly bladder irregularities, getting up at night and nagging backache. What is the "Right" Laxative? In buying any laxative, read the label. If it contains one doubtful drug, don't take it. Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is a prescription preparation in which there are no mineral drugs. By using it, you avoid danger of strain. You can keep the bowels regular, and comfortable. You can make those constipated spells as rare as colds. How many dimes and quarters are spent on "popular" laxatives? How quickly they count up, as you use more and more of these habit-forming help! A bottle of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin would save you money—and bring you real relief.

Glencoe P. T. A. Meeting

The second meeting of the Glencoe P. T. A. was called promptly at 2:30 p. m. Monday, October 16, by president, Mrs. Ely Perry. After a short business meeting a very interesting program was sponsored by Mrs. Werner.

Our county nurse, Miss Ryden, gave a lecture on care of the teeth, which was followed by a very informal discussion concerning dental work to be done in the schools in the near future.

Mrs. Eresman of Hondo attended the meeting in representation of the Glencoe Women's Club, also, to our happy surprise, Mrs. Ola C. Jones, County Superintendent of schools, accompanied by Irene Fisher, Field Secretary of New Mexico Tuberculosis Association of Albuquerque attended the meeting.

Miss Fisher gave a most convincing talk on why we should spend our money on Tuberculosis Association Christmas seals instead of ordering them from some out of county or state firm, where we will reap no further benefit from it. The large number of members present agreed with Miss Fisher and offered their assistance in helping their community, county and state.

After the program everyone had a pleasant visit while delicious refreshments were served by Mrs. M. Miller, Mrs. Henry Hale, and Mrs. P. G. Hale.

Rev. John L. Lawson left Wednesday morning for Carlsbad to attend the Methodist conference. Bishop Hay will preside. He will be assisted by Bishop McMurray. The appointments will be read next Sunday morning.

High School Notes

(By Helen Strauss)

Last Thursday instead of the Freshman program which was announced we were greeted by a pleasant surprise in the form of an excellent talk by Mr. Gutknecht, who is a judge in the boys' court of Chicago.

The Freshmen presented their program Monday. It consisted of two highly entertaining readings and cowboy songs.

All of our High School exhibits won blue ribbons at the Fair. To say that we are very proud of this hardly expresses our feelings.

While Carrizozo failed to take many honors in the Track Meet we may well be proud of the showing made by our boys and girls. We're backing everyone of them yet!

The Post Graduates had prepared such a lengthy program this week that a part of it in the form of tap dancing by Helen Frances Huppertz accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Meudenhall was presented Tuesday.

Wednesday the entire school enjoyed a few violin selections by Mr. Alden, of El Paso. This was a rare treat indeed and we hope to hear him often.

"You can always tell a Freshman by his high and mighty air; You can always tell a Sophomore by the way he combs his hair;

You can always tell a Junior by his Dignity and such;

You can always tell a Senior but you can not tell him much."

Isn't that the truth?

Father Brady is recovering from his illness of the past two weeks and hopes to be able to deliver his lecture next Monday at the Lyric.

People want to buy Buicks and Pontiacs

Do you want to Sell them?

PONTIAC is the fastest-selling Straight Eight in the world today—and the leading car in its entire price class. Buyers all over the United States are turning to Pontiac in numbers that assure a good substantial market in any territory where a capable dealership is established.

Buick is outselling all other rights priced above $1,000, combined! Buick, for years, has been the most popular car in the medium-price field—it is a car backed by a 29-year reputation for value second to none in the whole automobile field.

We want a good business man to sell and service these two popular cars right here in this city! This is a real opportunity for the right man to establish himself in a pleasant and profitable business with a reasonable amount of capital.

Previous automotive experience is not essential—the man we want may be engaged in any line of business. We ask only that he have a reputation for fair and honest dealing among his friends and neighbors... an ability to sell and organize the sales abilities of others... and a strong desire to build up a live and aggressive Buick-Pontiac dealership. And, naturally, we want a man who has the ability to render the type of service that will help every Buick and Pontiac owner to get the most pleasure, satisfaction and economy out of his car.

If you have reason to believe that you are the man we want, write or wire us at once for complete information. We shall be glad to tell you all about the Buick-Pontiac franchise. Address—
