Federal Aid Project

We have heard a great deal of late as to the relative merits of the overpass above town and of the underpass on Main street. It has been stated that several thousand dollars' worth of valuable property will have to be condemned and paid for in order to build an overpass, which will eventually become an eyesore and will take the highway entirely north of the town. While on the other hand, the old right-of-way can be used all the way; it is already paid for and can be connected with an underpass at Main street, which is already the required width. This also would throw the Highway into town and not around it. Some argue that as this is a federal aid project, no one can hope to change the course which has been mapped out, because the appropriation has been made strictly for the purpose designated. Parties who are informed say that nothing definite has been done. A delegation will go to Santa Fe this week in connection with this matter and we trust they will be successful in doing the thing which will bring the greatest benefit to the town.

Surprise Party for Lawsons

Friday afternoon the parsonage telephone rang, and announced that a committee would meet there at 8:00 to discuss certain church affairs.

Accordingly the house was lighted and the furnace regulated to receive the expected guests. As Mrs. Lawson touched the covers over little John, he sleepily said, "Mother, I hope the committee won't talk too loud so I can sleep."

Strange to say, for one time a committee arrived promptly on time and in full force. It was peculiar too, that there need be so large a committee. When the occupants stepped from the numbers of cars drawn up, forty to fifty could be counted, another odd thing about this committee was that each person carried a bundle, but as they filed into the dining room and deposited them on the table the secret was out—a house warming was in progress.

Little John aroused at last, remarked "It must be a talking party," not satisfied with this solution of the voices he heard he arose, dressed, and investigated, his little eyes losing desire for sleep for the evening.

The bundles were opened, and among the remembered, presents were a lovely set of dishes, bed spreads, table cloth, sherbet glasses, towels, pictures, vanity set, cretonne for sun porch curtains and other things, besides good things to eat.

It was interesting to watch, the gleam in the daughter's eyes as she handled the rose vanity set. Evidently she thought it would find its way to her room.

The crowd made merry with some new and fun-making games, Mr. Lawson wandered from room to room remarking he didn't know how to behave himself on such an occasion. He added that the people of Carrizozo had been so very kind to him lately, he was afraid he was in great danger of being badly spoiled. Mrs. Lawson lamented that she had not made the cookies she had planned to make that day, then she would have had something to offer her guests. But oh! that was a calculating committee. It had done some planning itself, coffee was made in a jiffy and the table heaped with various kinds of delicious sandwiches, where each one served himself. Later doughnuts in half bushel baskets were passed around.

The "committee" having finished its "business," left its best wishes behind, rejoicing that a kind Heavenly Father opened the way and made it possible for the Lawsons to purchase so lovely a home—A guest.

Mr. L. P. Hill of Ancho was a Carrizozo visitor yesterday.

NOTICE

To My Deputies and the Public in General:

At the last called meeting of our County Commissioners, about the first of this month, they ordered the local telephone office to discontinue and not accept any phone calls either sent to or from the sheriff's office on charged accounts.

Now people, it will be impossible for me to personally pay these calls and it will also be impossible for this office to give you people the quick service and protection we have been giving.

The commissioners did not tell us why they did this and I fully realize the disappointment that is coming to you people when you ride or drive 15 or 20 miles to notify me of a wrong that is being done in this County and then can't send the message and by the time it takes to get a letter to me, why it is too late for me to do any good, but I have got to go and investigate just the same; and I would like for the general public to know the facts before you criticize my office too severely, for we are getting it poured on us for not doing our duty.

When we took office there were three phones at our service. The first phone removed was in the sheriff's room, over the sheriff's office. Then they abolished the phone in the jail, so that messenger service was necessary; now long distance calls are not permitted.

A. S. McCamant, Sheriff.

"THE NAME IS SMITH"

Southwestern Briefs

By ELMO SCOTT WATSON

UNCLE SAM should ever call the roll of all his children, the chances are that more people would respond to "Smith" than any other family name. They'd outnumber the prolific Browns and Williamses by about two to one and the only slightly less prolific Joneses and Johnsons by about three to one.

Now, since Smith is such a very common name, it naturally follows that one who bears it has to be considerably above the average to lend distinction to it and to be outstanding among his fellowmen. The fact is that there have been plenty of just such men, as witness the fact that one standard encyclopedia of American biography contains the names of no less than 202 Smiths who have been famous enough to be included in its list of notables and another contains 230 such names.

From the earliest days of American history the Smiths have played an important part in making that history. For it was the doughty Capt. John Smith, an English adventurer, who led the little band of colonists to the shores of Virginia in 1607 and at Jamestown founded the first permanent English settlement in America, a settlement destined to grow into a colony that was to give a new nation its first President.

Although we think of Smith primarily as a soldier, the fact is that among his books was a treatise on seamanship that is a model of its kind. That was "A Sea-man's Grammar, or, An Accidence, The Path-way to Experience-necessary for all young sea-men, or those that desire to go to Sea," published in 1626. It was not only the first printed book on seamanship, naval gunnery and nautical terms published in England but it has also served as the backbone of practically every book on seamanship published in the last 300 years.

Just as a Smith was the founder and ruler of the first permanent English settlement in America, so it is appropriate that a Smith should be one of the 50 immortals who signed the Declaration of Independence and thus become one of the "Fathers of the Republic." He was James Smith, born in Ireland about 1720, then an emigrant to Pennsylvania where he grew up to become a leader in the agitation for freedom from British rule. He wrote an essay "On the Constitutional Power of Great Britain Over the Colonies in America" which is said to have given "the first strong impulse to the patriot cause in the colony of Pennsylvania."

America's official national anthem, as everybody knows, is "The Star-Spangled Banner." But there is another song, an unofficial "national hymn," which is sung on patriotic occasions quite as much as is Key's stirring composition and it was written by a Smith, Samuel Francis Smith was his name and of that name ever has been Chief Executive. But that doesn't mean that a Smith never has aspired to the Presidency. On the contrary, no less than four of them have.

Perhaps you think that Alfred Emanuel Smith, who won the Democratic nomination but lost the election in 1928, was the first and only one of the name who ever made a bid for occupancy of the White House. But he wasn't. Eighty-four years before New York's famous governor had shed his equally famous "Brown Derby" into the Presidential ring, a native of Vermont, was an active candidate for the high office.

He was Joseph Smith, founder of the Mormon religion in New York in 1830, who was driven by persecution first to Ohio, then to Missouri, and finally to Illinois, where the "City of Saints" was established at Nauvoo. Soon he had such a large following that both the Whigs and the Democrats began bidding for Mormon support and Smith began having delusions of grandeur as to his political power. In 1844 he took the bold step of condemning publicly both parties and announcing his candidacy for the Presidency of the United States.

SAMUEL FRANCIS SMITH

Several thousand of the saints went forth to preach the gospel of Mormonism and to elect one for their leader. But his ambition came to a tragic end on June 30 when he met a martyr's death in the jail at Carthage where he and his brother, Hyrum, were shot down by a mob of militia, who were there to protect them.

At the same time that Joseph Smith was casting an eye toward the White House another Smith was molding a new political party which would in the future nominate him for the Presidency. He was Gerritt Smith, a New Yorker destined for future fame as a philanthropist, but in those days an ardent abolitionist. He organized the Liberty party at Arcade, N. Y., in 1840, and in 1848 and again in 1852 was its candidate for President. He had three other claims to fame—as a backer of John Brown, whom he supplied with money for Brown's ill-fated attempt to free the slaves, as the man who, with Horace Greeley, at the close of the Civil war, signed the bill bond of Jefferson Davis, and as the man whose benefactions, during his lifetime, totaled close to $3,000,000.

The next Smith who aspired to be a President was one Green Clay Smith, a native of Kentucky who served in the Mexican war, was elected to the Kentucky legislature and at the outbreak of the Civil war became a colonel in the Union army in which he rose to the rank of brigadier general. Elected to congress while still in the field, he resigned from the army, and while serving in congress was appointed second territorial governor of Montana by President Johnson. After three years in that office he resigned to enter the Baptist ministry, and in 1876 he was the first candidate of the Prohibition party for President. This half a century before Alfred E. Smith was a "wet" candidate for that position, Green Clay Smith was a "dry" candidate, and both to the same result—defeat!

The same fate befell the only Smith who was ever a candidate for Vice President. He was William Smith, a native of North Carolina who emigrated to South Carolina at an early age, became a lawyer and served in various state offices and in the United States senate. In 1829 Smith received Georgia's seven electoral votes for Vice President, which was approximately 100 short of enough to elect him. Eight years later he tried again. This time he did a little better. He got 23 electoral votes but one of the only slightly less prolific Johnsons got the job—Richard M. Johnson of Kentucky. Twice Smith was offered the appointment of associate justice of the Supreme Court of the United States, but both times he declined, thereby depriving the Smith family of its two known chances of being represented in that august body.

Although he Smith has ever yet been President or Vice President, more than one has been an aid to Presidents by serving in their cabinets. They began away back in 1801 when Samuel Smith, a Pennsylvanian, was secretary of the navy for a short time under President Jefferson, serving without compensation. He was succeeded in that post by his brother, Robert Smith, who had a rather remarkable record—as a cabinet officer in that he held no less than three portfolios—secretary of the navy from 1802 to 1805 and attorney general from March to December, 1805; both under Jefferson, and secretary of state from 1800 to 1811 under Madison.

Next came Caleb Blood Smith of Indiana who was Lincoln's secretary of the interior from 1801 to 1803, then Hoke Smith of Georgia, who held the same portfolio under Cleveland from 1893 to 1895. Another member of the family, Charles Emory Smith, was postmaster-general under McKinley from 1898 to 1901 and held over in that position under Roosevelt until 1902.

An exploring trip through the many pages devoted to the Smiths in any encyclopedia of biography reveals any number of interesting men and women of this family name. There was Charles Henry Smith, the Georgian, who made his pen name of "Bill Arp" famous with his humorous stories of the Confederacy. There was that earlier humorist, Seba Smith, a Yankee from Maine, who, as "Major Jack Downing of Downingville" was self-appointed adviser to President Andrew Jackson, and aided in making some political history with his satirical letters.

Julia Evalina Smith and her sister, Abigail H. Smith of Connecticut were active and early woman suffragists, Julia—becoming known throughout the country as one of the five "Glastonbury sisters," who resisted the payment of taxes because they were denied suffrage and submitted to the sale of their property by the town authorities rather than obey the law. That was nearly a century ago, in the days when woman's place was definitely "in the home," and long before there were "suffragettes."

Most of the present generation of Americans know F. Hopkinson Smith as a novelist and author of "Caleb West," "Colonel Carter of Carterville," "The Tides of Barnegat," etc., but how many know that he also won distinction as an artist and an engineer, and that, in the latter role, he was the man who built the foundation for the Statue of Liberty in New York harbor? And how many know that another man named Smith added the word "telegram" to the English language? He was Erasmus Peabody Smith, a New York journalist, educator, and jurist, who, through the Albany Evening Journal suggested the word "telegram" as a substitute for the cumbersome "telegraphic dispatch," current in those times.

The Smith family includes a number of great heroes and also some great rogues. Be it remembered that Joshua Hett Smith was one of the principals in the Arnold-Andre treason plot during the Revolution, and it was largely due to Smith's "falling down on the job" that the young British officer was captured and the plot exposed. John Smith, a United States senator from Ohio, was involved in the Burr conspiracy and an effort made to expel him from the senate for it missed by just one vote.

Down in the Texas Panhandle is a county named "Deaf Smith," a vast expanse of territory which perpetuates the fame of Erastus Smith, a native of New York, who lived in Mississippi as a boy, then went to Texas while it was still the Lone Star republic, and became one of the heroes of the Battle of San Jacinto. It was he who, upon the orders of Gen. Sam Houston, burned Vince's bridge, the only avenue of escape for the vanquished in that battle, whoever it might be, then dashed up on a foam-covered horse shouting, "I have cut down Vince's bridge. Now fight for your lives and remember the Alamo!"

There is no such memorial (at least there should be) for Jedadiah Strong Smith, a New Yorker who was much more deserving of the title of "The Pathfinder" than was Gen. John C. Fremont. A member of the famous Ashley-Henry expedition of 1823 and one of the founders of the Rocky Mountain Fur company, he was not only the first American to pass over what later became the Oregon Trail, but his wanderings and his trail-blazing exploits in the western wilderness made him truly one of the great explorers of his day.

High up in the pine-clad Black Hills of South Dakota stands a shaft of white stone which marks the place where Henry Weston Smith

"SOAPY" SMITH

("Preacher Smith" they called him), the Methodist circuit rider, was killed by a party of Sioux warriors in 1876 because he placed his duty, as he saw it, above personal safety. A native of Connecticut, "Preacher Smith" served in the Union army during the Civil war, then went West, and arrived in Cheyenne, Wyo., at the height of the Black Hills gold rush. He held the first church services ever held in the Hills and became an outstanding figure in its early history as the "Sky Pilot of Deadwood," a career cut short by his death at the hands of the Indians while on his way to preach in Crook City, ten miles away. Another memorial to him stands over his grave in Deadwood, a life-size statue of him carved from the red stone characteristic of that region.

Up in Alaska among the rocky cliffs overlooking Skagway is a unique memorial to another Smith. It is a rocky profile of heroic size, naturally shaped and painted white to resemble a skull and bearing the words "Soapy Smith's Skull." Thus does Skagway memorialize Jefferson Randolph Smith, his mayor and boss in the roaring days of the Klondike gold rush, and one of the most picturesquely villainous figures in frontier history. A native of Georgia, Smith was a gambler in various Colorado mining towns, a "con man" of the first water (his nickname of "Soapy" coming from one of his schemes of feeding the "suckers" with cakes of soap wrapped in $20 bills), and later the king of the Denver underworld.

When he went to Alaska he became the big man of Skagway, but his high-handed methods soon got him into trouble. There was talk of vigilante methods to rid the town of him, but Frank Reid, an engineer, saved them the trouble. "Soapy" tried to bluff Reid, but Reid couldn't be bluff. A bullet from his gun put an end to this most famous bad man of the last frontier.

Another Smith, but very different from Soapy's kind, lost his life in the wild days of the old frontier. He was Thomas J. Smith, known as "Green River Tom" Smith, a quiet, mild-spoken young man, but one of the bravest who ever upheld the law in the West. He first made a reputation for himself as marshal of the town of Kit Carson, Colo., when it was "end of steel" on the Kansas Pacific. Then he was called to the roaring cattle town of Abilene, Kan., which he "tamed"—not with six-shooters but with his fists. In eleven months Smith set a record in making it a law-abiding place which not even his successor, the famous Wild Bill Hickok, could match. But he met his death at last—murdered by two ranchmen whom he tried to arrest peacefully, and fell only because a cowardly deputy sheriff "ran out" on him.

One other Smith is deserving of mention before this article is concluded. He was John T. Smith, famous in the early days of Missouri as a duelist and land speculator, but the thing which most distinguished him was the way in which he lent distinction to that name. He realized that there are many John T. Smiths, so in order to make his different from the rest, he began signing himself John Smith T. and John Smith T. he was known to the day of his death.

As to other Smiths who lent distinction to the name—well, there are several hundred of them listed in the encyclopedia of biography to which the reader of this article is respectfully referred.

Eight thousand Jess Arizona families were on relief at the end of 1933 than there were four months earlier, as a result of the Civil Works Administration program.

President Roosevelt has named Felipe Sanchez y Baca of Tucuman United States marshal for New Mexico, succeeding Joe Tondre, Republican of Lunas, N. M.

A half a million legal size trout will be turned into Mormon Lake in April, it was announced in Phoenix by S. L. Lewis, state game commissioner. Last year 761,098 trout were planted in state streams.

Unless there is a special session of the legislature, developing new sources of revenue, New Mexico will be three million dollars short of its school needs next year, according to Mrs. Georgia J. Lusk, state superintendent.

The Osage Indians of Oklahoma have sought the cooperation of the Federal Government in stamping out narcotic and liquor traffic among Indians. Louis C. Mueller, chief special Indian agent in Gallup, N. M., has revealed.

John Morrow, former congressman of Raton, was offered the job as state treasurer by Gov. A. W. Hockenbush. The governor said Morrow was not a candidate for the place, but his appointment had been urged by a number of friends.

The state business barometer for Arizona for December eclipsed all records for the past two years, according to figures released by the state tax commission, showing a gain in sales of more than $2,000,000 over the month of November, 1933.

Captain Harry O. Tunis, field expediter for the public works administration in Arizona, New Mexico and Texas, has announced he expects bond contracts for approximately $2,500,000 in approved Arizona projects would be received soon from Washington for signature.

Conference on the flow of the San Juan river before any of its water was diverted for irrigation purposes is now being held by R. J. Tipton of the state engineer's office in Colorado and E. L. Barrows, former chief hydrographer of the New Mexico state engineer's office in Santa Fe.

Because the law prohibits New Mexico educational institutions from waiving tuition payments, the state will probably not be able to take advantage of a CWA project which would enable 360 students to earn $15 per month. Dr. J. F. Zimmerman, president of the State University, has announced.

A special committee of five has been appointed by the school boards of the Whitney and Trout Creek districts near Kingman, Ariz., to investigate the possibilities and the legal questions that would arise from the proposed consolidation of the two districts and the construction of a new centrally located schoolhouse.

Governor Henry Horner of Illinois received the official salute of nineteen guns in Phoenix recently when he visited there. As the visiting chief executive was welcomed formally to Arizona by Gov. B. B. McOuer at a state-house reception, an Arizona national guard field artillery company fired the salute from a cannon placed on the spacious lawn of the capitol.

The first piece of the meteor which flashed over Raton nearly a year ago, has been found. The landing place has been located near Passamonte, northeast of Springer, following long investigation. A piece of the meteor is now in the possession of Dr. Harvey M. Nislinger of the Colorado museum of natural history, through whose investigations the long-sought landing place of the meteor was located.

San Miguel County, New Mexico, for generations, considered the stronghold of the old guard Republicans, has spoken emphatically in favor of a reunion with the progressive element of the party. At a meeting of the Republican executive committee of the county in the court house recently, a resolution was passed unanimously declaring that it is imperative that dissensions in the party must be healed, and calling upon State Chairman Ed Safford to call a meeting of the state central committee to discuss ways and means of effecting a settlement and uniting all factions under the party standard.

Nearly $25,000 has been saved to the University of Arizona through President Roosevelt's executive order that federal appropriations for land grant colleges not be cut this year. Mrs. Isabella Greenway wired confirmation of the president's action.

Unless a considerable amount of snow falls in the mountains in northern New Mexico and southern Colorado within the next few weeks, the Rio Grande will suffer a tremendous decrease in flow under the last two years, according to information gathered in Santa Fe.

SPIDERS

The Ingenious Trapdoor Spider.

Prepared by National Geographic Society, Washington, D. C.—WNU Service.

ALTHOUGH the mere mention of spiders to most laymen gives them the "creeps," the insect has been the subject of interesting scientific study by entomologists.

For the spider enthusiast sojourning in the country, whether in the United States or in any other land of temperate climate, the dawn of a late mid-summer day in a marsh meadow holds promise of delight.

Like human fishermen, many spider species have found that a plane net of two dimensions is not only economical of weight and materials but ideal for landing a catch.

Suspended from a framework of stout base lines, and carefully spaced to permit freedom of movement in spinning, its threads form a wheel-like design of maximum strength.

The spider starts her geometrical web with perimeter lines connecting objects around a space large enough for her purpose.

By extending the sheet about the entrance to the tube and bringing the latter out of the ground, the spider developed the funnel web.

Spiders constitute a large clan of some 25,000 described species. Although most abundant and diversified in the Tropics, they range far into the Arctic regions.

Far up on Mount Everest, above the highest plant life, at an elevation of 22,000 feet, spiders have been found living among the wind-and-snow-swept rocks.

CONTROL DISEASE OF YOUNG CHICKS

Proper Handling Important in Fighting Diarrhea.

The exercise of strict care in handling young chicks is highly important in eradicating bacillary white diarrhea, states H. C. T. Gauger of the North Carolina State College poultry department.

Persons walking into brooder houses, rodents and other wild creatures, contaminated food, manure from diseased birds, and unsanitary houses all are responsible for spreading the disease germs.

"To wipe out the diarrhea, all diseased chicks should be killed and burned or buried," says Gauger. "All brooder houses should be cleaned every day until the chicks are seven days old and then once every four days thereafter.

To prevent the chicks from eating food that has fallen to the floor where germs may be lurking, the feeding pans should be placed upon wire frames at least one and one-half feet square and an inch and one-half above the floor.

Vitamins Destroyed by Cooking Poultry Rations

Cooking poultry rations destroys vitamins B and G and may result in illness or death of many young chicks, advises a writer in Successful Farming.

A ration made up of natural feeds and fed raw resulted in excellent growth of the chicks. But when a similar group of chicks was fed the same ration after it had been heated for hours at 220 degrees Fahrenheit, it developed polyneuritis.

Other tests showed that chicks developed pellagra when fed the same ration after it had been heated to 212 degrees Fahrenheit for 144 hours. Then this group of chicks was fed yeast which had been heated enough to destroy vitamin B but not enough to injure vitamin G.

In the Poultry Yard

Food hoppers should be kept perfectly dry at all times.

All grit or shell hoppers should be about one foot from the floor.

It is well known that geese live to an old age, especially in pairs and trios.

Merely a maintenance ration is insufficient to obtain a well-filled egg basket.

The turkey, an American bird, was carried to Europe in 1519 by a Spanish explorer.

Ducks, chickens and other poultry preserved by quick freezing and held in cold storage six months or more are scarcely to be distinguished from fresh killed birds in both appearance and taste.

The total annual value of the products of poultry in the United States is about $848,000,000.

Nearly 2,000,000,000 dozen eggs are sold in a year, with a value of $592,000,000. Exclusive of baby chicks, 254,000,000 birds are sold, with a value of $232,000,000.

Fowl paralysis did not respond to feeding treatment at the Iowa State agricultural experiment station. Neither the cause nor the cure for this chicken disease is known.

Out of a million eggs handled last year by dock workers at Brisbane, Australia, only one was broken.

African geese are popular because they grow large in two months' time. They are feathered in dark and light gray.

A 14-hour day of daylight and artificial light combined will keep the pullets thrifty by lengthening the daily feeding period. Morning or evening lights, or low-powered all-night lights, are satisfactory.

SYNOPSIS

At a dance, a visitor in the community, Neal Conrad, young lawyer, is impressed by Anne Chamberlain, pretty daughter of a shiftless farmer, perceiving her fine character.

As soon as she had the proper toilette, Clare gave a luncheon in his apartment to which the ambassador and the ambassador's came as "honorary guests."

Anne learned to ride—Clare had two horses so there was always one at her disposal. She learned to drive Clare's Mercedes. Neal had never thought she "would be able to manage" the Dodge, but now he saw that he had been mistaken.

"I don't dare kiss you, darling," he murmured, behind his enveloping handkerchief. "Sure to give this darned cold to you.—Clare's sent up word he's waiting for you. Have a good time."

"Neal has a cold," she said as they shook hands, "he couldn't risk going out, of course. But he insisted that I should come, just the same."

"Naturally, I should never have forgiven you if you hadn't." They were soon skimming out towards the Champs-Élysées. Today Clare was driving himself—it was a long time, Anne realized, since she had seen his discreet little chauffeur.

"There was real grief in her voice; but the next instant she tried to catch back the words." "Of course, I'm counting the days until I see Junior and Nancy. If I could only have had them here, too, it would have been quite perfect."

"Well, I can understand that the sort of existence you were leading when I came to your house last spring might pall a good deal now."

"And if it hadn't been for you," she said with eager gratitude, "I never would have had a glimpse, perhaps, of any other kind of existence! You persuaded Neal to give me this wonderful chance. I can't ever thank you enough."

"Don't try," he said lightly, "it hasn't been a dull summer for me, either, you know. Ah—here we are."

He helped her out of the motor, and they passed through the arched entrance of the Chateau de Madrid. In a moment, a garcon, who had waited on them before, and whose flashing smile gave them welcome, began bringing in tea and little cakes.

"Isn't that The Beautiful Blue Danube they're playing?" "Yes, The best waltz ever written, probably."

"Would—would you mind very much if we didn't finish it? If—if we didn't finish our tea?" "Aren't you well, Anne?" "Yes, but I—feel a little faint. I think I had better go home."

He spread out a light wrap she had brought with her, and motioned to her to sit down.

"Well," he questioned, still lightly, when looking a protest but uttering none, she had settled herself, "Have you actually realized at last that I am in love with you?"

"How could he?" she asked simply. "You mean, it would never occur to him that his best friend would try to approach—his wife?"

"You're probably right. Neal, with all his faults, is intrinsically honest. Also, he is not oversexed. Which makes it the easier for him to be honest."

"You shan't speak of Neal like that!" flashed Anne, "as if it were ridiculous to be honest and—decent!"

"It isn't ridiculous. But it's sometimes inadequate." "Listen, Anne," he went on, as she stared at him, apparently too stunned to answer, "I must ask you to believe that I haven't gone about this—with malice and forethought, so to speak. When I came to your house last spring, I pitied you, and admired you, and I wanted you to have a good time. That was the reason I persuaded Neal to bring you here, and the only reason. I hope very much that you will believe this."

"I do believe it," said Anne. "But I was very lonely. I'd been through a dreadful domestic experience." "And now you want me to do the same thing to Neal that your wife did to you?"

She had scored. But, after a moment's hesitation, he went on, still speaking calmly. "Since you put it so crudely, I suppose I do now. But I never dreamed it was going to come to that. To be perfectly frank, I didn't think you had it in you to attract me, in the sense of making me—want you."

Then, Abandoning All Restraint, He Kissed Her, Over and Over Again, on the Mouth.

Well, I was mistaken. But even so, I don't believe matters would have gone as far as this if I hadn't begun to see that—I attracted you, too."

"You don't," cried Anne. "Oh, how can you say such dreadful things! I never loved anyone but Neal, never in all my life! Why, I wouldn't even finish that dance with you because I suddenly remembered that the Beautiful Blue Danube was the very first waltz Neal and I ever had together. . . . I very nearly didn't come out with you today at all. I hesitated a long time. If Neal hadn't insisted . . ."

"Exactly. If you weren't in love with me you wouldn't be self-conscious about motoring with me or joking with me, or having me close to you in a dance. You wouldn't be here listening to me now, Anne. . . ."

In the deepening twilight he leaned suddenly towards her, and flung his arms about her. Then, abandoning all restraint, he kissed her, over and over again, on the mouth. The passion and violence of the embrace, without preliminary caresses, struck her like a blow. But with a sickening sense of self-horror she realized that she had made no determined effort to escape from it; that she had, for a moment, actually responded to it; realized also that Clare, still holding her, was speaking to her in a voice vibrant with triumph.

"You see," she whispered. "Anne, darling, won't you admit—for you do see that you love me. You wouldn't have kissed back if you didn't. I'll make everything very easy for you, about the children and all that. Neal wouldn't take them from you. He'll either find, when he gets home, that he's dead politically once and for all, as I rather suspect, or he'll throw himself into his career again, and forget about you, as he's done before. In either case, you'll be left to face that awful isolation and drudgery, and you know you can't do that. You know you want to stay here with me, in this beautiful bright city, where you've begun to live for the first time. Once we were married, every one would forget all about it, if we behaved ourselves."

GOOD JUDGMENT CALLED FOR IN RAISING CHILD

I know a family whose children I have watched grow to maturity. They had money; the children had not only a good nurse—but a fine nursery governess as well.

Yet these children are frail and white. None of them seem to have the healthy stamina to which they were entitled. What was wrong? I remember two things. They were insufficiently fed and were subjected to a rather heroic form of fresh-air treatment when little.

If the point is unprovable that too careful a diet and too much cold air will not undermine strength, it does prove, at least in this case, that they will not guarantee it either.

These children were sent out daily to play for long cold hours. They were warmly dressed, of course, and provided with things to keep them active and busy. But the neighbors used to shudder at the rigid regimen that took no account of the thermometer.

Their five o'clock nursery supper consisted of a light cereal and milk. It is never sensible to go to extremes with children, to make rigid rules that won't stretch on occasion and make concessions to common sense.

Fresh air is good, but time, place, kind and quantity do play an important part. It is the same with food. Care in diet is important but not the care that verges on starvation.

Good judgment works more miracles than unbendable codes.—Oliver Roberts Barton, in the New York World-Telegram.

"What more fame could a man desire than to be known as your husband?" inquired her husband gently. And, lo, she was comforted.

Congressional Reflections

By Congressman Dennis Chavez

New Mexico has been signally honored this week by the Administration in the nominations and subsequent confirmations by the Senate of two of its most esteemed citizens. On Thursday, Feb. 22, the Senate confirmed the nomination of the Honorable Felipe Sanchez Y Baca of Tucuman, to be United States marshal for the district of New Mexico. On Tuesday, February 20, the Senate confirmed the nomination of the Honorable Milton J. Helmick of Albuquerque, to be Judge of the United States Court for China, with headquarters at Shanghai. Judge Helmick was serving as Judge of the Second Judicial of Dist. New Mex. at the time of his nomination, and his selection from the many members of the judiciary throughout the United States demonstrates the high regard in which the Bench of New Mexico is held and is a compliment to the judges we have that are interpreting our laws in New Mexico.

The Senate on Thursday, Feb. 22, passed the Adams Bill, which is a companion bill to the Chavez bill in the House, and has for its purpose the granting of a moratorium to water users in the Federal Irrigation Districts. A meeting of the Committee on Irrigation and Reclamation in the House will be called at an early date for the purpose of considering this legislation and making a report to the House, and it is expected that little opposition will develop either in the Committee or on the Floor of the House to this meritorious and justified legislation.

The State Department has made a favorable report to the Committee on Foreign Affairs on House Resolution 247, authorizing an appropriation of $60,000 to defray the expenses of the American Section, International Boundary Commission, United States and Mexico, in the conduct of an engineering investigation, study and report to the Secretary of State to determine the feasibility and best means of effecting the canalization of the Rio Grande from the Caballo Reservoir site in New Mexico to the international diversion dam near El Paso, Texas, in order to facilitate Federal control of the Channel of the Rio Grande and compliance by the United States with its obligation to deliver at said international diversion dam water to Mexico pursuant to the convention concluded May 21, 1906, providing for the equitable distribution of waters of the Rio Grande for irrigation purposes. The Committee will consider this bill soon and it is hoped that it will be passed speedily in order that this work may be started sometime within the very near future.

The Committee on Public Lands, is holding hearings daily on the Public Domain bill, sponsored by the Administration, authorizing Federal control of the public grazing lands. Considerable opposition among the members of the Committee from states having public lands to several features to the bill in its present

Know Your Facts

There has been considerable discussion this week of the possibility of making a proposed road from Columbus to Strauss a Civil Works project. We wish to state emphatically that this matter has never been brought to the attention of the State Civil Works Board; that no application is pending before that board and that the board has never considered this matter.

The Civil Works Administration does not build roads on contract. If you hear of a road being built on contract, you will know it is not a Civil Works project.

Enough money was made available under the original CWA program to provide work for three million of the twelve million unemployed. The United States Government hoped that the employment of 25 per cent of the unemployed would stimulate private industry to the point where such government re-employment measures would become unnecessary. It would seem better to give employment to 25 per cent, though 75 per cent were still unemployed, than to have the entire 100 per cent unemployed.—CWA Bulletin.

form has developed for it seems they desire to have the Government cede to the respective States the option and control of these lands.

The Library of Congress is one of the most interesting institutions in Washington, so that I am going to give my readers a few facts about it which I hope will be of value. The building was begun in 1855 and was completed in 1897 and its architecture is of the Italian Renaissance order. The exterior walls are of New Hampshire granite. Fifty masters of painting and sculpture worked together to make it a treasure house of the best contemporary American art. At to shelter one of the greatest libraries of the world. On the second floor are exhibited the original Declaration of Independence, the original Constitution of the United States and the Gutenberg Bible. The reading room is under the dome, which is 195 feet high. In the lantern of the dome is a female figure indicating Human Understanding, and on the collar surrounding the lantern, 150 feet in circumference, is the Evolution of Civilization, symbolic of the 12 nations and epochs which have contributed to the world's advance. The dome is beautifully decorated, and the series of statues in bronze by famous American sculptors at intervals on the balustrade encircling the rotunda make the scene impressive. The resources for research of this Library are unsurpassed in the Western Hemisphere; its service as a national library is unexcelled. Among the most recent important developments in service is the division of aeronautics, established through a benefaction of $140,000 from the Daniel Guggenheim Fund for Aeronautics, now supplemented by an annual congressional appropriation. Until very recently Congress alone provided the funds to meet all the Library's expenses, excepting one gift of $20,000 received in 1904. In 1925 the Library of Congress Trust Fund Board was created by Congress and authorized to receive and invest funds for permanent endowments. Notable among gifts are those of John D. Rockefeller, Jr., one of which was $450,000 for the acquisition in facsimile copies of source material for American history existing in the archives of foreign countries.

Why Get Up Nights?

Lax the Bladder With Juniper Oil, Buchu, Etc.

Drive out impurities and excess acids that cause irritation, burning and frequent desire. Juniper oil is pleasant to take in the form of BUKETS, the bladder laxative, also containing Buchu leaves, etc. Works on the bladder similar to castor oil on the bowels. Get a 25c box from any drug store. After four days if not relieved of "getting up nights" go back and get your money. If you are bothered with backache or leg pains caused from bladder disorders you are bound to feel better after this cleansing and you get your regular sleep. "Rolland's Drug Store says, BUKETS is a Best Seller."

Public Health Column (By Dr. J. R. Karp)

FATIGUE

There is a tiredness that comes from hard work faithfully accomplished or from wholesome exercise in the open air, a yawning lazy tiredness that stretches itself and lapses into sleep.

There is a second tiredness as corroding as the first is comforting. It springs not from health, but sickness. It is in fact of the very substance of disease. It comes untidely, perhaps at three o'clock in the afternoon. Then how the hours do lag until the office can be closed of the afternoon. It robs its victim of appetite for food or charity towards his family and friends; of all the spare time interests of life.

Any chronic infection will give rise to fatigue. The one most commonly responsible is tuberculosis. And in tuberculosis fatigue is often the earliest symptom. For weeks and even for months it may be only evidence to make the patient himself suspect that something is wrong. During these weeks the disease is spreading. The chances of cure, now good, now fair, are steadily slipping away. It is the greatest tragedy of that tragic affliction that so often the doctor is not consulted until the chance of full recovery has gone.

There are other causes of fatigue. If the X-rays show no damage in the lungs, your doctor will not be satisfied merely by saying: "Your fatigue does not come from tuberculosis". He will continue his search until he finds out what does cause the fatigue. It may be some other infection, it may be lack of some essential food, it may be some unnecessary emotional stress of which you yourself are unaware. Fatigue, like pain, is a danger signal. Your doctor knows that it cannot be safely disregarded. He will praise your judgment if you go to him while there is still time to avert disaster.

Chevrolet Factories to work full shifts

Detroit, Mich., Feb. 28.—A new all-time high in employment was achieved by the Chevrolet Motor Company for the week ending Feb 10 when direct company payrolls totaled 56,545 people. M. E. Coyle, general manager, announced here today.

The high mark prior to this year was 52,847 men and women employed in June, 1929, while last year at this time factory payrolls numbered only 32,079 people, Mr Coyle stated.

Plants are now headed toward capacity, with dealers making delivery of new 1934 models to consumers, and the rate at which orders are being received indicates capacity operations for some months to come, the Chevrolet head declared.

Much of the increase is due to the large number of men engaged solely in the building of the "knee-action" devices, which are coming off their own assembly line with increasing frequency from day to day.

"This one invention," said Mr Coyle, "has added several thousand men to our payrolls—men who could not have been given work had we not incorporated the new device in our 1934 cars."

At Flint, where four plants are maintained, payrolls were 15,725 men as compared with 11,100 a year ago. Bay City, where small parts are manufactured, 1,782 were on the payrolls, as against 1,081 last year.

At Saginaw, where Chevrolet operates the largest grey iron foundry in the world, two day shifts consisting of 4,660 men are pouring castings for the new mode's, as against 3,443 in Feb. of 1933.

Toledo, where transmissions are manufactured, had 2,571 men at work, with one man of the 1929 high.

These locations comprise mainly the manufacturing operations of the company, and account for 41,500 men on the payrolls. The remaining 15,000 employes are at work at assembly operations in cities out of this area, and at the commercial body plant at Indianapolis and the export packing plant at Bloomfield, N. J. Last year these outside plant payrolls accounted for only 7,000 men.

Mr. Coyle expressed confidence that the present rate at which orders are being received would enable the company to maintain its payrolls at a peak for a good share of the first half of the year.

Emergency Crop Loan Fund Provided

Farmers seeking loans from the $40,000,000 emergency crop loan fund recently provided by Congress will be directed in the near future where to apply in their respective communities, according to Wm. I. Myers, governor of the Farm Credit Administration. Rules and regulations covering such loans will soon be announced. Application forms are now being prepared.

It is required by the law that borrowers, as a condition to receiving an emergency loan, must furnish proof of cooperation with the Agriculture Adjustment Administration. Each applicant must obtain clearance through or furnish a certificate of cooperation with the Agriculture Adjustment Administration. The production control associations will make available lists of those who have signed acreage control contracts. Farmers who are on this list, if otherwise eligible to borrow, will be able to obtain loans.

County councils of the production control associations will certify to representatives of the Farm Credit Administration the names of any farmers who, while not signing acreage control contracts, are cooperating by not increasing their production contrary to the acreage control program.

Where county councils have not been set up, Farm Credit Administration representatives will be instructed to make no loans to farmers who are planning to increase production.

For the time being, states Governor Myers, the various regional emergency crop loan offices will handle the applications for loans from the $40,000,000 fund, and these offices will be under the immediate direction of the Emergency Crop Loan division.

Scientific Method of Planting Fish

A scientific study of the fishing waters of the northern part of the state, especially their carrying capacity, species best adapted to them, and nature and extent of the food supply, has been arranged by the state game department.

The study will be by experts from the U. S. bureau of fisheries, and will be without cost to the state. From a report of the studies the game department hopes to arrive at a more scientific method of planting fish in the trout streams in order to give sport-men of the state the fullest possible benefit for their money.

If it is found that some species do not flourish in certain waters, they will no longer be planted and other species more adaptable to the waters in question will be substituted.

New Mexico has Low Accident Rate

That CWA jobs in New Mexico are much safer than similar jobs in other states, was proven by figures compiled by J. K. Richardson, Safety Director for the New Mexico CWA. The frequency rate for New Mexico, which is to say, the number of lost time accidents per million man-hours employed, is approximately 20.0. This rate is quite low when compared with other states.

Congressional Reflections

By Congressman Dennis Chavez

New Mexico has been signally honored this week by the Administration in the nominations and subsequent confirmations by the Senate of two of its most esteemed citizens. On Thursday, Feb. 22, the Senate confirmed the nomination of the Honorable Felipe Sanchez Ybaca of Tucumcari, to be United States marshal for the district of New Mexico. On Tuesday, February 20, the Senate confirmed the nomination of the Honorable Milton J. Helmick of Albuquerque, to be Judge of the United States Court for China, with headquarters at Shanghai. Judge Helmick was serving as Judge of the Second Judicial of Dist. New Mex. at the time of his nomination, and his selection from the many members of the judiciary throughout the United States demonstrates the high regard in which the Bench of New Mexico is held and is a compliment to the judges we have that are interpreting our laws in New Mexico.

The Senate on Thursday, Feb. 22, passed the Adams Bill, which is a companion bill to the Chavez bill in the House, and has for its purpose the granting of a moratorium to water users in the Federal Irrigation Districts. A meeting of the Committee on Irrigation and Reclamation in the House will be called at an early date for the purpose of considering this legislation and making a report to the House, and it is expected that little opposition will develop either in the Committee or on the Floor of the House to this meritorious and justified legislation.

The State Department has made a favorable report to the Committee on Foreign Affairs on House Resolution 247, authorizing an appropriation of $60,000 to defray the expenses of the American Section, International Boundary Commission, United States and Mexico, in the conduct of an engineering investigation, study and report to the Secretary of State to determine the feasibility and best means of effecting the canalization of the Rio Grande from the Caballo Reservoir site in New Mexico to the international diversion dam near El Paso, Texas, in order to facilitate Federal control of the Channel of the Rio Grande and compliance by the United States with its obligation to deliver at said international diversion dam water to Mexico pursuant to the convention concluded May 21, 1906, providing for the equitable distribution of waters of the Rio Grande for irrigation purposes. The Committee will consider this bill soon and it is hoped that it will be passed speedily in order that this work may be started sometime within the very near future.

The Committee on Public Lands, is holding hearings daily on the Public Domain bill, sponsored by the Administration, authorizing Federal control of the public grazing lands. Considerable opposition among the members of the Committee from states having public lands to several features to the bill in its present

Know Your Facts

There has been considerable discussion this week of the possibility of making a proposed road from Columbus to Strauss a Civil Works project. We wish to state emphatically that this matter has never been brought to the attention of the State Civil Works Board; that no application is pending before that board and that the board has never considered this matter.

The Civil Works Administration does not build roads on contract. If you hear of a road being built on contract, you will know it is not a Civil Works project.

Enough money was made available under the original CWA program to provide work for three million of the twelve million unemployed. The United States Government hoped that the employment of 25 per cent of the unemployed would stimulate private industry to the point where such government re-employment measures would become unnecessary. It would seem better to give employment to 25 per cent, though 75 per cent were still unemployed, than to have the entire 100 per cent unemployed.—CWA Bulletin.

Form has developed for it seems they desire to have the Government cede to the respective States the option and control of these lands.

The Library of Congress is one of the most interesting institutions in Washington, so that I am going to give my readers a few facts about it which I hope will be of value. The building was begun in 1886 and was completed in 1897 and its architecture is of the Italian Renaissance order. The exterior walls are of New Hampshire granite. Fifty masters of painting and sculpture worked together to make it a treasure house of the best contemporary American art. At its shelter one of the greatest libraries of the world. On the second floor are exhibited the original Declaration of Independence, the original Constitution of the United States and the Gutenberg Bible. The reading room is under the dome, which is 195 feet high. In the lantern of the dome is a female figure indicating Human Understanding, and on the collar surrounding the lantern, 150 feet in circumference, is the Evolution of Civilization, symbolic of the 12 nations and epochs which have contributed to the world's advance. The dome is beautifully decorated, and the series of statues in bronze by famous American sculptors at intervals on the balustrade encircling the rotunda make this scene impressive. The resources for research of this Library are unsurpassed in the Western Hemisphere; its service as a national library is unexcelled. Among the most recent important developments in service is the division of aeronautics, established through a benefaction of $140,000 from the Daniel Guggenheim Fund for Aeronautics, now supplemented by an annual congressional appropriation. Until very recently Congress alone provided the funds to meet all the Library's expenses, excepting one gift of $20,000 received in 1904. In 1925 the Library of Congress Trust Fund Board was created by Congress and authorized to receive and invest funds for permanent endowments. Notable among gifts are those of John D. Rockefeller, Jr., one of which was $450,000 for the acquisition in facsimile copies of source material for American history existing in the archives of foreign countries.

Honorable John Millis, Superintendent of Public Schools, Albuquerque, was a visitor to my office this week.

Chevrolet Factories to work full shifts

Detroit, Mich., Feb. 28.—A new all-time high in employment was achieved by the Chevrolet Motor Company for the week ending Feb. 10 when direct company payrolls totaled 56,545 people. M. E. Coyle, general manager, announced here today.

The high mark prior to this year was 52,847 men and women employed in June, 1929, while last year at this time factory payrolls numbered only 32,079 people, Mr. Coyle stated.

Plants are now headed toward capacity, with dealers making delivery of new 1934 models to consumers, and the rate at which orders are being received indicates capacity operations for some months to come, the Chevrolet head declared.

Much of the increase is due to the large number of men engaged solely in the building of the "knee-action" device, which are coming off their own assembly line with increasing frequency from day to day.

"This one invention," said Mr. Coyle, "has added several thousand men to our payrolls—men who could not have been given work had we not incorporated the new device in our 1934 cars."

At Flint, where four plants are maintained, payrolls were 15,725 men as compared with 11,100 a year ago. Big City, where small parts are manufactured, 1,782 were on the payrolls as against 1,081 last year.

At Saginaw, where Chevrolet operates the largest grey iron foundry in the world, two day shifts consisting of 4,660 men are pouring castings for the new mode S, as against 3,443 in Feb. of 1933.

Toledo, where transmissions are manufactured, had 2,571 men at work, with one man of the 1929 high.

These locations comprise mainly the manufacturing operations of the company, and account for 41,500 men on the payrolls. The remaining 15,000 employees are at work at assembly operations in cities out of this area, and at the commercial body plant at Indianapolis and the export packing plant at Bloomfield, N. J. Last year these outside plant payrolls accounted for only 7,000 men.

Mr. Coyle expressed confidence that the present rate at which orders are being received would enable the company to maintain its payrolls at a peak for a good share of the first half of the year.

Emergency Crop Loan Fund Provided

Farmers seeking loans from the $40,000,000 emergency crop loan fund recently provided by Congress will be directed in the near future where to apply in their respective communities, according to Wm. I. Myers, governor of the Farm Credit Administration. Rules and regulations covering such loans will soon be announced. Application forms are now being prepared.

It is required by the law that borrowers, as a condition to receiving an emergency loan, must furnish proof of cooperation with the Agriculture Adjustment Administration. Each applicant must obtain clearance through or furnish a certificate of cooperation with the Agriculture Adjustment Administration. The production control associations will make available lists of those who have signed acreage control contracts. Farmers who are on this list, if otherwise eligible to borrow, will be able to obtain loans.

County councils of the production control associations will certify to representatives of the Farm Credit Administration the names of any farmers who, while not signing acreage control contracts, are cooperating by not increasing their production contrary to the acreage control program.

Where county councils have not been set up, Farm Credit Administration representatives will be instructed to make no loans to farmers who are planning to increase production.

For the time being, states Governor Myers, the various regional emergency crop loan offices will handle the applications for loans from the $40,000,000 fund, and these offices will be under the immediate direction of the Emergency Crop Loan division.

Scientific Method of Planting Fish

A scientific study of the fishing waters of the northern part of the state, especially their carrying capacity, species best adapted to them, and nature and extent of the food supply, has been arranged by the state game department.

The study will be by experts from the U. S. bureau of fisheries, and will be without cost to the state. From a report of the studies the game department hopes to arrive at a more scientific method of planting fish in the trout streams in order to give sport-men of the state the fullest possible benefit for their money.

If it is found that some species do not flourish in certain waters, they will no longer be planted and other species more adaptable to the waters in question will be substituted.

New Mexico has Low Accident Rate

That CWA jobs in New Mexico are much safer than similar jobs in other states, was proven by figures compiled by J. K. Richardson, Safety Director for the New Mexico CWA. The frequency rate for New Mexico, which is to say, the number of lost time accidents per million man-hours employed, is approximately 20.0. This rate is quite low when compared with other states.

HOW NIMBLEHEELS GOT AWAY

PETER RABBIT was all a-shake. It was partly excitement, partly fear, and partly hope. You remember how he had gone back to the dear Old Briar Patch without a doubt in his mind that little Nimbleheels had been caught and carried away to the Green Forest by Hooty the Owl. You remember how sad Peter was and how he had sighed and sighed again, and how a thin, high, squeaky voice had asked if he was in pain.

That voice made Peter jump. It sounded exactly like the voice of little Nimbleheels. If Peter hadn't been absolutely sure that by this time Nimbleheels must be in the stomach of Hooty the Owl he would have said that this was the voice of Nimbleheels. But how could it be? It couldn't. His ears must have fooled him or else—"Who are you?" whispered Peter. "Are you a ghost?"

"I should say not!" exclaimed the same thin, high, squeaky voice indignantly. "There is no ghost about me! For goodness sake, what is the matter with you, Peter Rabbit?" Out in front of Peter hopped Nimbleheels. Peter backed away hurriedly. "Go away," said he. "This isn't you. It can't be. You were caught by Hooty the Owl and carried away for his dinner. You can't be in his stomach, and here, too, so this can't be you. Go away, please."

Very Cautiously Peter Reached Out and Touched Nimbleheels.

"Pinch yourself and wake up, Peter," squeaked Nimbleheels. Then he began to laugh with all his might. Peter frowned.

"I don't see anything to laugh at," said he rather crossly, for he still couldn't believe what his eyes saw.

Nimbleheels kept right on laughing until he was quite out of breath. "I may not be myself," said he, "but I'm quite sure I'm not anybody else. As for Hooty the Owl, if his stomach feels any fuller on my account I'm willing to make him the same kind of a meal every day. Go over and ask him. I'd like to know what he says."

"Early to bed and early to rise," says stepping Stella, "and the neighbors would have nothing to talk about."

First Vessel to Founder in Panama Canal

THIS Dutch freighter Erlon has the distinction of being the first vessel to founder in the Panama canal. She went down in Gatun lake about half a mile south of the lock after having developed a dangerous list that led her commander to try to beach her. The crew was rescued by Panama canal launchers.

Just touch me, Peter. You'll find I'm real enough."

Very cautiously Peter reached out and touched Nimbleheels. Then his face cleared and he began to laugh himself. "I never was more sure of anything in all my life than I was that you had been caught and carried away by Hooty," said he when he could stop laughing long enough. "You asked what was the matter with me. I was sighing on your account, Nimbleheels. I was sighing because my heart was so sad at the thought that you had been killed and that I should never, never see you again. When you spoke I thought my ears must be playing tricks on me. I certainly did. How did you get away?"

"With the help of a friendly Black Shadow," replied Nimbleheels. "But for that I might be just where you thought I was. I was getting very tired, and two or three times Hooty almost caught me. Then just as I jumped that Black Shadow swept over us and Hooty couldn't see where I landed. I jumped twice more before the Black Shadow passed over, and by that time I was safe. Then I hurried over here to the dear Old Briar Patch to wait for you. You were very wise not to move when you sat out there in the moonlight, Peter Rabbit. I never could have sat like that right in plain sight. I never could have, possibly."

"That was nothing," replied Peter modestly. "I learned when I was very young that there are times to run and times to freeze and sit tight. This was one of those times. Tell me, Nimbleheels, doesn't such a long tale bother you?"

SOLDIER BOY!

By ANNE CAMPBELL

SOLDIER Boy, are the days too long?

Is the sun too bright on your narrow walls?
Are you weary now of the robin's song,
And the wind's soft voice as the evening falls?
The lightest breath is too hard to bear

When a little life is so filled with care.

Soldier Boy, you are ten years old,
And your boyish soul has a cross to hold.

Soldier Boy, it's a bitter fight,
But your smile is valiant for those who come

Hoping to make your day more bright
With a gift to add to your meager sum.

You have a dally bout with pain,
And the years will drag till you run again.

With Health's quicksilver in your feet,
And a cry of joy for the friends you meet!

Soldier Boy, I would gladly give
My heart's firm beat and the strength of my hands,

If it would mean your right to live,
And scamper with joy on the summer sands.

Soldier Boy, it's an eagle's flight
To the lovely land where there is no night.

And the wings of your spirit are firm and true,
As onward and upward they carry you!

Find Improvement in Farm Machines

Committee Compares Outfits of 20 Years Ago With Those of Today

Prepared by Agricultural Extension Service, Ohio State University—WNU Service.

Although cultivators, walking plows, harrows and other of the less complex farm machines were found to be greatly improved, greatest progress in farm machinery manufacture was noted in the corn picker, ensilage cutter, three-horse-power engine, and the tractor plow.

A committee of agricultural college engineers, comparing the farm machine today with that of 20 years ago, released this information following measurements of the efficiency, durability, and operating costs of farm machines.

As reported by Prof. G. W. McCuen of the department of agricultural engineering, one of the committee, the quality value of the ensilage cutter and corn picker is more than twice that of the machines sold to do the same work 20 years ago.

Improvements in quality values as reported by the committee are 70 per cent for the grain binder and 65 per cent for the cultivator. The grain drill was improved 40 per cent, farm engines 100 per cent, disk harrows 90 per cent, mowers 70 per cent, corn pickers 100 per cent, corn planters 65 per cent, tractor plows 90 per cent, gang plows 50 per cent, and two-horse walking plows 85 per cent.

Spraying machines were improved 75 per cent, ensilage cutters 115 per cent, feed grinders 75 per cent, cream separators 45 per cent, sulky rakes 35 per cent, and manure spreaders 80 per cent.

The committee was requested to make tests by the American Society of Agricultural Engineers.

Allowed to Seed Grasses for Erosion Prevention

A program for seeding grasses and legumes for erosion prevention and soil improvement on acreage retired from production of wheat, cotton, tobacco and corn in connection with the agricultural adjustment administration's acreage reduction program has been given the administration's approval. Officials of the administration feel that it is highly desirable that growers protect the soil of these contracted acres from erosion and maintain their fertility.

To encourage such a program on the part of growers, the Agricultural Adjustment administration, through its replacement crops section has co-operated with the division of forage crops and diseases of the United States Department of Agriculture, in the preparation of information to enable farmers to make successful seedings.

Grazing Injures Pastures

Early grazing in the spring and close grazing during the dry period of summer have proved to be quite disastrous to pastures under observation of D. R. Dodd, soils specialist in southeastern Ohio. Such grazing has had greater effect than any other factor in the annual forage produced. The pasture improvement experiments carried on in the hill counties the past season indicate that potassium is an unprofitable fertilizer if used alone and shows a return only when combined with both nitrogen and phosphorus. Pasture treatment has shown marked influence in food control, the untreated pastures allowing fully twice as much run-off, and the water from such untreated pasture carried more silt away.

Testing Dairy Feed

By adapting the "guinea pig" method so commonly used in studying animal diseases, the United States Department of Agriculture has discovered that feeding dairy feeds to rabbits indicates the effect the same feeds will have on cattle. Use of rabbits, which is much cheaper, speeds up results to a rate nearly ten times that when cattle are used, as the rabbits breed so much faster. The department began the rabbit feeding tests in 1931. In these experiments 20 rabbits were used for each type of feed. The scientists found that the rabbits behaved almost exactly the same as dairy cattle under the same conditions.

Cannot Abolish Fairs

County fairs cannot be abolished by county commissioners refusing to make appropriations, Attorney General John W. Bricker has ruled in an opinion to the prosecutor of DeLancey county. He points out that the Ohio laws provide for an appropriation to the county commissioners in order to encourage agricultural fairs, and that as long as the agricultural society exists the commissioners must provide some appropriation.—Ohio Farmer.

Fears 1934 Grasshoppers

A new and worse outbreak of grasshoppers in 1934 threatens the Northwest, A. G. Ruggles, Minnesota state entomologist, has warned. He said that recent surveys made in North Dakota, Montana and Saskatchewan have shown the presence of large numbers of "hoppers resembling the old 'Rocky Mountain' variety which devastated farm crops in pioneer days. It has not been grasshoppers of this variety that have done the damage in the Northwest in the past few years.

HAVE VISION OF FLYING AT 554 MILES AN HOUR

An airplane capable of flying 554 miles an hour, using existing engines, could be built today by applying known aerodynamic principles to its design and construction, according to John Stack of the national advisory committee for aeronautics. This is 131 miles an hour faster than the present speed record.

What such a high-speed plane would be like is described by Mr. Stack in the first issue of the Journal of the Aeronautical Sciences, reprinted in the Literary Digest. It would differ only slightly in form from the transport planes used on transcontinental airways.

The wings of the hypothetical plane would span 23.1 feet; the fuselage would be 40 inches in diameter. The plane would have completely retractable landing gear or would be catapulted like the early Wright planes, and could land on its fuselage. The engine and pilot would be completely enclosed, vision for the pilot being provided by windows or indirectly by mirrors. The wings would be centered on the fuselage.

A model of this plane has been tested in wind-tunnels and bears out Mr. Stack's calculations. The plane would have a landing speed of 103 miles an hour—a dangerous speed, but one which could perhaps be cut with proper auxiliary devices. The same kind of plane, equipped with 3,000 horse-power engines and new types of propellers, could fly at a computed speed of 600 miles an hour, or nearly 90 per cent of the speed of sound.

Why Doctors Favor a Liquid Laxative

A doctor will tell you that the careless use of strong laxatives may do more harm than good. Harsh laxatives often drain the system; weaken the bowel muscles, and even affect the liver and kidneys.

Fortunately, the public is fast returning to laxatives in liquid form. The dose of a liquid laxative can be measured. The action can thus be regulated to suit individual need. It forms no habit; you needn't take a "double dose" a day or two later.

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin gently helps the average person's bowels back to regularity. Why not try it? Some pill or tablet may be more convenient to carry. But there is little "convenience" in any cathartic which is taken so frequently, you must carry it with you, wherever you go.

Its very taste tells you Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is wholesome. A delightful taste, and delightful action. Safe for expectant mothers, and children. All druggists, ready for use, in big bottles. Member N. R. A.

Is This Too Good for Your Cough?

Circumcision may be a better help than you need. It combines seven major helps in one—the best helps known to science. It is made for quick relief, for safety.

Mild coughs often yield to lesser helps. No one can tell. No one knows which factor will do most for any certain cough. So careful people, more and more, are using Circumcision for any cough that starts.

The cost is a little more than a single help. But your druggist guarantees it, so it costs nothing if it fails to bring you quick relief. Coughs are danger signals. For safety's sake, deal with them in the best way known. (adv.)

Bloody Socialist Revolt in Austria Imperiling All Europe; Senate Sentences MacCracken to Jail; Permanent PWA Program Taking Shape.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD

IS AUSTRIA again to be the starting point of a great European war? That was the question that was worrying all the nations of the world as the civil warfare between the Austrian government and the Socialists proceeded. On the side lines watching events closely and biding their time, were Nazi Germany, Fascist Italy, France just recovering from its own internal row, and the rather frightened members of the little entente. Great Britain, determined that Germany and Austria shall not be united, was warning Hitler to keep his hands off. Soviet Russia would like to put a finger in the pie but is fully occupied with the threat of war with Japan.

Vice Chancellor Emil Fey and Prince Ernst von Starhemberg of Austria were determined that the Socialists should be driven out or exterminated and the country made wholly Fascist, and Chancellor Dollfuss was going along with them. The revolt of the Socialists was evidently carefully planned and the rebels were well armed and capably led. But at this writing they had won no victory of moment and their strongholds in Vienna, mainly the huge communal apartment buildings, had been smashed by the government artillery. In Linz, Graz, Steyr and other centers the results were the same. After several days of fighting, in which two or three thousand persons were killed and many more wounded, Dollfuss gave the Socialists five hours in which to lay down their arms on promise of pardon except for the chief leaders. This brought insufficient response, and the government troops went into action again in the suburbs to which the rebels had been driven. The latter met the attack stoutly, especially in the section just across the great Reichsbrücke where they were occupying big buildings and trenches. Major Fey was in charge of the operations in and about Vienna, and Prince von Starhemberg was in command at Linz and Steyr.

Though the German government was not openly mixing in the mess, the official Nazi newspapers were egging on the Austrian Socialists. Hitler and his comrades claim that a majority of the Austrian voters are Nazis and prophesy that the time is near when Dollfuss will fall and the Austrian Nazis will be in control. The whole tone of comment in the German press expressed sympathy with the "mild" workers of Austria, and the League of Nations and its members were warned not to interfere in the struggle.

Reports originating in Paris said 75,000 Italian troops had been massed at strategic points along the Austrian frontier and that they and the Fascist frontier guard were ready for any emergency. The Italian government officials said this troop movement had been going on for some time and was only part of a fundamental change in Italian military policy.

London correspondents dug up a story, from an Austrian source, to the effect that the Austrian Socialists had been fighting from Czechoslovakia, either from the Czech government direct or with its connivance. A railroad from Prague to the south runs through a part of Austria, and the story goes that trains loaded with arms and ammunition consigned to some place in Czechoslovakia were emptied of their cargoes somewhere between Gemundt and Pressburg.

It is also alleged that arms have been shipped up the Danube from Pressburg to Vienna or nearby points and smuggled ashore. Czechoslovakia doesn't at all like the idea of being surrounded by Fascist countries and has been encouraging democratic movements against both the German and Austrian dictatorships. Prague is full of refugee Socialists.

TEN days in jail was the sentence pronounced by the senate on William P. MacCracken for having tampered with correspondents in his files after the files had already been subpoenaed by the special committee investigating air-mail contracts. The same punishment was awarded L. H. Britton, vice president of Northwest Airways. Two other defendants were acquitted. MacCracken already had been fined $100 by the District Supreme Court for obstructing a writ of habeas corpus before actually being arrested. He was given time by the senate to perfect an appeal from its verdict.

The army went ahead rapidly in its preparations for carrying the air mails after the cancellation of contracts by Postmaster General Farley. Headquarters for this service were opened in Washington and put under the command of Brig. Gen. Oscar Westover by Gen. Douglas MacArthur, chief of staff. Col. Charles A. Lindbergh's telegram to the President protesting against the summary cancellation of contracts led Postmaster General Farley to make public his report to Chairman Black's investigating committee justifying his action. In this Farley made sensational charges that the government had been defrauded to the extent of $46,800,000 in the letting and operation of air-mail contracts. He asserted that his predecessor, Walter F. Brown, had joined in and directed a conspiracy by which competition was smothered and all contracts were awarded by secret agreement to certain favored air lines.

SECRETARIES JONES, WALLACE, Dern and Perkins were named by the President as a committee to draw up definite plans for his permanent public works program. This is intended to effect great economic and social changes and will cost probably more than half a billion dollars yearly. Mr. Roosevelt and his advisers take it for granted that even after business has achieved recovery there will be from three to five billion persons still unemployed and that they must be cared for by something like the Civil Works administration.

This new project as now conceived includes these major undertakings: Methodical development of waterways, water power, flood control, soil erosion prevention, reforestation, and other public works. On these works employment would be furnished in the manner of the present CCC and OWA.

Decentralization of industry through establishment of small industries in rural regions to enable people to make a living partly by farming and partly by factory employment. A start in this direction is now being made in the substance homesteads, for which twenty-five millions of recovery funds have been allocated.

Government purchase of submarginal lands unfit for cultivation, which would be added to the public domain and devoted to forest development. For this purpose twenty-five millions already have been allotted.

THE Civil Works administration obtained from congress an appropriation of $50,000,000 for its immediate uses and its workers, numbering 3,800,000 persons, received their pay. But at the same time Administrator Harry Hopkins began the task of cutting down the forces, ordering reductions of from 50 to 90 per cent. He directed that work cease on all federal civil projects not on federal or other public property. By Hopkins' plan of cutting down the total number of employees about 10 per cent a week, the CWA army will be virtually out of existence by May 1.

The largest force affected by the nonpublic property order is in the public health service. Hopkins ordered it to stop malaria control efforts employing 29,770 men, rural sanitation using 32,017 and the sealing of mines by 6,571 workers to prevent water-cidality in the Ohio valley.

COL. HORATIO B. HACKETT of Chicago was appointed director of the housing division of the Public Works administration by Secretary of the Interior Ickes. He succeeds Robert D. Kohn, a New York architect, who has held the position for the last nine months.

Selection of Colonel Hackett, a member of the Chicago architectural firm of Holabird & Root, was regarded in Washington as a move to speed up the federal housing corporation. Given $100,000,000 of public works money for low cost housing developments, it has spent very little.

PREMIER TSALDARIS of Greece doesn't accept the verdict of several government physicians, that Samuel Insull is well enough to stand deportation without danger to his life. Tsaldaris said it would be "murder" to compel the fugitive American to travel in his present physical condition, so he will be permitted to remain in Greece until his health improves. As Insull is seventy-four years old and has clever advisers in Athens, his extradition may not be obtained for a long time if ever.

MELVIN A. TRAYLOR, president of the First National bank of Chicago and one of the country's leading financiers, died at his home of pneumonia after fighting the disease bravely for several weeks. Mr. Traylor was born in a log cabin in Kentucky 65 years ago and made his way to leadership in business by sheer ability. He also became prominent enough in politics to be considered favorably for the Democratic nomination for President in 1932. Chicago and the country sustained a considerable loss in his death.

JAPAN'S new ambassador to Washington, Hiroshi Satou, presented his credentials to President Roosevelt, and the two gentlemen exchanged assurances of friendship and mutual confidence between their countries.

Satou said he was sure that "whatever question, either political or economic, may arise between our two countries, can and will be amicably composed in a spirit of friendship and mutual confidence—the spirit that has characterized our relations ever since Japan made, at the instance of the United States, her formal entry into the family of nations."

"I share fully," the President said in reply, "the view which you have expressed that all questions which may arise between our two countries will be resolved in a spirit of friendship and mutual confidence. You will find this government devoted now as in the past to the principle of maintaining peace in the Pacific region as elsewhere and ready to co-operate cordially and sympathetically with your government in all of the many lines of endeavor which are possible in pursuance of and toward making prevail that principle. It is our constant desire that, by co-operation, all the countries of the Pacific region may continue to enjoy peace and may attain conditions of abiding prosperity."

INDEPENDENTS and INSURGENTS in congress have long advocated an amendment of the Constitution providing for direct election of the President, and at last the first step toward this change has been taken. Senator George W. Norris' resolution proposing the amendment was approved by the senate judiciary committee, with only Senator Stephens of Mississippi voting in the negative.

Should the amendment be written into the federal Constitution it would abolish the present system by which citizens vote for Presidential electors instead of for the candidates themselves. Under the amendment the names of Presidential and Vice Presidential candidates would be written on the ballots and the votes cast directly for them.

The amendment would also do away with the present system by which a state's whole electoral vote (equal to its representation in both houses of congress) is cast for the candidate receiving a plurality of votes cast within the state. Instead a state's electoral vote would be prorated according to the proportion of the entire vote which each candidate received.

GOVERNORS of all the states have received from the administration a draft of a model state recovery law which would make all national codes of fair competition automatically effective within the states. It would remove the threatening possibility of a constitutional barrier to the enforcement of those codes among concerns that do not deal in interstate commerce.

The model law would authorize the state governor to consent to the utilization of state and local officers by the President of the United States "in effectuating the policies of the national industrial recovery act." A violation of a code would be made a misdemeanor in the state with a penalty of $500 a day for each offense and for each day the violation continues. Where a license under the NRA is required, a person doing business without one would be liable to a fine of $500 or six months' imprisonment or both for each day of the violation. These state penalties are copied after those in the national recovery act.

The state law pronounces the existence of a statewide emergency and declares its own termination on June 10, 1935, unless the President shall by earlier proclamation have proclaimed the emergency ended.

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT having decided that the civilian conservation corps shall be maintained at full strength until March 31, 1935, orders to this effect have been sent to the commanding generals of all army areas. There will be two enrollment periods of six months each, the total number of men to be 300,000. Additional local experienced men will be enlisted in some of the states, in the eighth and ninth corps areas in the extreme West.

The President already has announced that he will ask congress for an appropriation of from $275,000,000 to $300,000,000 for this corps.

REPRESENTATIVES of business groups in Washington said they were fairly well satisfied with the new revenue bill which was brought before the house, though there were some objectionable provisions which they hoped might be removed by the senate finance committee later. The bill now represents a compromise between the recommendations of the Hill subcommittee and the suggestions of the Treasury department. The chief changes are those with respect to depreciation, consolidated returns and corporate reorganizations. The bill does not reduce depreciation allowances as did the subcommittee recommendations. Nor does it abolish consolidated returns for affiliated corporations. While it imposes an extra tax on corporation earnings when consolidated returns are filed, this is not so objectionable as the entire elimination of the privilege.

While the upper surtax brackets have been scaled up somewhat they do not increase greatly the tax applying to a person who has an earned income credit. The tax burden is increased somewhat on a person with out earned income, but with corporation dividends and government bonds not subject to normal taxes which are reached by commencing surtaxes above a single 4 per cent normal tax instead of above normal rates aggregating 5 per cent.

BEAUTY TALKS

By MARJORIE DUNCAN

EYEBROW GROOMING

HERE is a letter from one of my young readers which is in itself an excellent beauty lesson:

"The other day I decided to try an experiment on my brows. Sitting before my dressing table which has a triple mirror, I blanched out my own brow line with soap and then with an eyebrow pencil drew different brows, some deeply arched, some short, some elongated to see what varied expressions could be achieved. The result was amazing. But after trying a half dozen different styles I decided that after all nature was a better artist than 'yours truly.' I do find, however, that your advice about keeping the brows neat and groomed has helped me. I have been using the brush more and the tweezers less, as you suggested, and the result is certainly worth the effort. Always after powdering I brush first the wrong way and then the right and I merely pluck the little hairs that are 'out of march.' I use the eyelash grower and darkener on my brows as well as my lashes. Well, this letter may seem pointless, but its object is to tell you that I now have a pair of perfectly behaved eyebrows, thanks to your suggestions."

There you have several timely hints on making brows beautiful. The days of torture and plucking to a fine line are over. But the tweezers still have its place on every modern woman's dressing table. It is used less frequently yet to greater advantage. Neat brows add their bit of good grooming to the "finished" face so much in evidence in our smart world of today.

Like children, brows can be trained. If your brows are too unruly and a great many of the little individual hairs are "wild," which means out of place, go to a reputable beauty salon and have them shaped and tweezed. Then just as soon as you get home, start your brushing campaign. Learn to brush your brows as you do your hair.

Straggly hairs above the bridge of the nose should be removed. Too thick brows should be thinned down. Occasionally, though cases are rare, brows grow too far down over the outer corner of the eyes and therefore plucking to shorten is necessary. More often the brows are too short and clever use of an eyebrow pencil gives a more elongated and flattering appearance.

Look at your forehead. Others will think it should be as smooth and clear as Paris marble. Remember that the forehead is part of the face. Remember that the new hats are revealing the forehead as well as the rest of the face.

SANITARY BEAUTY PARLORS

ON A recent lecture tour I had occasion to drop in at a strange beauty parlor in a strange city one rainy day. One of the women waiting ahead of me had a worried expression on her face. After several minutes she evidently gathered enough courage to speak to me, vying the subject of her annoyance, the unsanitary measures of the establishment. I had already noticed that a single comb and scissors were being used by the hair-cutting department, that towels were not changed between mannequins. The fact that I was about to walk out myself added to my companion's courage and out we both walked.

She explained that she had never been to the shop before, had just dropped in because of the rain and suggested the beauty salon she usually patronized.

When we reached her shop I had a very pleasant surprise. The difference between the two parlors was so marked. No wonder the first had annoyed my new acquaintance. Such sparkling cleanliness, sanitary measures observed to the letter, manager's supervisory, consult with patron, see that everything clicked smoothly, even a few usherettes to receive clients cordially and direct them to a comfortable waiting room.

The walls, ceilings and floors of this salon were immaculate and not a sign of snipped hair anywhere. Clippers, tweezers, scissors, and all other articles are sterilized as well as the combs and brushes. Individual cotton pads are used instead of powder puffs. The neck duster of the unsanitary salon is taboo.

Not only is every sanitary precaution taken in this model salon, and happily, there are many of them throughout the country, but in addition every comfort is provided for the customer. A dye test is given by a specialist in hair dyeing; a test curl for the permanent waving expert; there's a separate "daylight" room where a customer may choose in privacy a transformation to match her own hair. Visions of the old-fashioned community drinking cup and family hair brush make us shudder. Don't be severely shocked by unsanitary beauty parlors. Do what we did; walk out and choose a model salon to patronize.

If you use mascara or eye-liner it is better to use too little than too much. Too little seldom offends.

SIMPLE POINTS FOR FIRST AID

Well to Remember in Case of Emergencies.

The man, woman or child who knows a few simple facts about first aid, and is prepared for those emergencies which confront everyone at some time, often can avert serious consequences—even save a life. National First Aid week is to be observed throughout the country, March 11 to 17, for the purpose of assisting people to prepare for these emergencies.

The first rule of first aid is to keep cool.

First aid's greatest service is in the treatment of minor wounds—like cuts, abrasions, scratches, and burns. These injuries are, usually not serious in themselves, but may often lead to infections which cause unnecessary suffering and loss of legs, arms, or even lives. Every time the skin is broken an antiseptic should be applied at once and the wound covered with sterilized gauze. In industries which keep careful records of their accidents, it has been shown that infected injuries cost more than twice as much as those which are not infected. A burn should be protected at once from the air, by means of an ointment. Severe bleeding requires somewhat different treatment. Lose no time. If the blood is bright red and spurting, an artery is cut. Pressure must be placed on the severed artery between the wound and the heart. This checks loss of blood until a doctor can arrive. If the blood is dark and flows steadily, a vein is cut. A sterilized gauze pad bandaged tightly over the wound usually will hold the blood in check. Be sure to call a doctor as soon as the blood flow is stopped.

People often become unconscious or dizzy. There are many different causes for these conditions. If the skin is red and hot, cool the patient, elevate the head, but never give stimulants; he is already over stimulated. If the skin is pale and clammy, warm the patient and lower the head. In either case loosen tight clothing and keep the patient quiet. Never try to make an unconscious person drink. The fluid may enter the lungs.

In cases of near drowning, severe electric shock, and many other types of unconsciousness, breathing often stops. But that does not mean that the person is dead. A life often can be saved by artificial respiration. The records of the United States bureau of mines show hundreds of lives saved that way. While artificial respiration is not hard to learn, it is difficult to explain briefly. Standard first aid manuals, or physicians and other persons who know how to make a person breathe until he is able to start his own breathing again, can teach this interesting first aid lesson.

Broken bones are classed as either simple fractures or compound fractures. In a compound fracture the bone has pierced through the flesh and caused a wound. Such a case must be treated very carefully. If the wound has caused arterial hemorrhage (bright, spurting blood) of course the blood-flow must be checked at once. If the doctor will not arrive in a few minutes, gently apply an antiseptic to the wound and the end of the bone. Then cover lightly with sterilized gauze. A person with a broken bone should not be moved unless emergency splints are applied. This is easy to learn from a first aid guide book.

More accidents and injuries occur in the home and in automobiles than at work or in any other kind of human activity, so it is especially important to have first aid supplies at home and in the car. They also should be available at work, in sports, and elsewhere.

It can be seen from these simple rules of first aid, that the necessary materials are an antiseptic, sterilized gauze and a burn treatment. Other first aid materials usually can be made up on the spot. Adhesive tape is always handy for fastening wound dressings or splints in place.

First aid does not replace the doctor. It is important because a doctor is not always present, and it is usually, desirable to do something before he can arrive. First aid is one of these three means of reducing accidents and preventing serious consequences from unavoidable injuries:

First—Play safe to prevent accidents.
Second—First aid.
Third—Be sure that necessary medical attention is secured promptly.

Accidents will happen. Many of us learn through pain and discomfort that an umbrella is not a parachute. But if sunny success is proving it for himself, the next best thing to prevention is to meet him at the landing field with the right combination of first aid knowledge, gauze and forbearance.

Your physician or druggist can give complete first aid advice, and indicate where first aid manuals can be secured.

In Agreement
"What is your idea of the policies of the administration?"

"I am not an obstinate man," answered Senator Sorghum. "I have had various impressions of expediency, but after mature consideration I am glad to assure my constituents that the administration's policies agree in all particulars with my own."

You cannot have red lips, rosy cheeks, energy and cheerfulness if your blood is in a run-down condition. Lack of hemoglobin, the red coloring of the blood, may also indicate a weakened condition of the body . . . loss of strength . . . poor appetite.

S.S.S. is not just a so-called tonic but a tonic specially designed to stimulate gastric secretions, and also having the mineral elements so very, very necessary in restoring a low hemoglobin content. If your condition suggests a blood tonic of this kind, try S.S.S. Things of Interest About Lincoln County

From time to time we will publish short articles concerning Lincoln county, and the different lines of business represented here, we have this week

THE JOHNSON HOSPITAL

It is doubtful whether any town in New Mexico, even with a population four or five times greater than Carrizozo, can boast of a better equipped and operated hospital than the one owned and operated by Dr. F. H. Johnson in Carrizozo.

The building itself is exceptionally well adapted for hospital usages. An automatic oil burning steam heating system makes it possible to maintain an even temperature regardless of outside weather conditions. No expense has been spared by the Doctor to make both the building and the equipment measure up to all hospital requirements. To his already, otherwise complete, equipment he has recently added, at great expense, an oxygen tent of the latest and most approved design. So that at present the hospital is equipped with every appliance and apparatus essential to the best hospital service.

All appliances found in the larger cities are to be found in the Johnson Hospital. To the big X-Ray and Fluoroscope acquired a few years ago Dr. Johnson has added a complete clinical laboratory for blood tests often necessary in a hospital; the latest and best blood transfusion apparatus; a transilluminator; which, though complicated to the layman, is simply an electric eye which enables the physician to see the mysterious insides of his patients.

Anti-venims, vaccines and serums are there in readiness in complete assortment for prevention and cure.

But greater than the hospital and equipment is Dr. Johnson himself.

Dr. Johnson has been in Carrizozo since 1914 except for two years. Part of that time he spent as attending surgeon in the Service Hospital, San Diego Cal., and as Ship Surgeon on a U. S. revenue cutter in the Western Pacific and Alaskan waters. Dr. Johnson keeps abreast of the best medical and surgical practices by constant study as well as post-graduate work in the eastern hospitals every year or so.

And the n there is "Bennie," Mrs. Ray Jensen, if you please, but "Bennie" to the patients. "Bennie" is a more recent arrival in Carrizozo, having only been here a year. In that year she has endeared herself to all, especially to those who have received her ministrations. Before coming to Carrizozo she spent four years in general hospital work with Phelps Dodge and Co., Nacagari, Mexico. She spent two years as Supervisor of the Nursery in Hollywood Hospital, Hollywood, Cal., and two years as Head Nurse of Tubercular and Contagious ward in the City and County Hospital, El Paso Texas.

And Comfort! Any patient would rather convalesce on a cot with a Beauty Rest mattress than languish on a cot not so equipped.

Children Secure Glasses

The Lincoln County Chapter of Red Cross gave $50 toward a fund to buy glasses for the school children of the county. This amount was doubled by the state, making a total of $100. Thus fifteen children have been benefited. Much credit is due to those who so generously supported the last Red Cross Drive.

Many thanks, friends, you have helped many children.

ACCEPT NOTHING LESS THAN A V-8

OUT PERFORMS ANY OTHER MOTOR

Old fashioned, high pressure tires were good in their day but balloon tires are better. Just so, the old "straight" type motors are giving way to the efficient V-type design.

In the high priced field the V-type engine has been the accepted design for many years. Nothing is so good. The Ford V-8 is the only car you can get under $2,000 with a V-type 8-cylinder engine. It is the most economical car to operate ever built by Ford.

Get the best for your money. Accept nothing less than a V-8.

Clear Vision

How to provide an effective system of ventilation in the enclosed models has been the problem of engineers. Ford has solved it in the new V-8 for 1934.

No unsightly up or down bars or "wings" to obstruct the vision. The controlling device is hidden. The window ventilators are built in all front door and rear quarter windows. The window is raised in the regular way. Then, a simple turn of the handle slides the glass back to the ventilating position. A ride in the new Ford is convincing of this safety and comfort advantage.
