Shooting at Cafe Last Sunday Night

About 12 o'clock last Sunday night John Solomon was shot and instantly killed in Roy's Cafe. A coronor's jury was called and a verdict was brought in holding Dan Lowden 33 an Oscura ranchman responsible for his death. Solomon who was 22 years old had only recently returned from Texas where he had been a peace officer.

Lowden was taken to jail and Assistant District Attorney C. V. Clayton of Tularosa came up last Monday to investigate the shooting. When arraigned, Lowden pleaded not guilty and was bound over to the district court after waiving his preliminary hearing. The Court fixed his bond at $10,000, which to date he has been unable to make. It is alleged that Lowden shot Solomon when the latter tried to remove him from the Cafe, for alleged loud and unseemly conduct. One shot struck Solomon in the left arm, which by the way was his gun arm, as three of the fingers had been shot from his right hand over a year ago. The other shot entered his back, ranging up through his heart, the bullet lodging just above the left breast. Four shots went wild, one going through the walls into the western Union office.

Roy Skinner, owner of the cafe was asleep in a back room, and members of the night shift witnessed only part of the affray.

Both men were married. Solomon is survived by his widow and an infant daughter. His funeral was held at White Oaks last Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock with the Rev. John L. Lawson in charge. Interment was in the White Oaks cemetery.

Capitan News

Miss Thelma Yates, one of the Capitan grade school teachers, gave her friends quite a surprise when she was quietly married to Mr. Joe Chappel last Saturday evening, by Rev. L. D. Jordan, in Carrizozo.

Rev. B. F. Harris, District Supt. of the church of the Nazarene was here over the week-end to hold the annual recall meeting. Rev. Askins was recalled for the ensuing year.

The Capitan Eighth Grade girls organized a Club called "The Girls Social Club." It has 12 members. Officers elected were: Betty Letcher, president; Bertha Askins Vice-president; Julia Coleman, secretary; Myrtle Hartley, treasurer.

Berton Minter, Jr., the youngest child of Mr. and Mrs. Bert Minter was buried Sunday afternoon. Cause of death, measles and pneumonia.

Born to Mr. and Mrs. D. E. Hickman, a son, Feb. 15, 1934

OBITUARY
Bert Minter Jr., youngest child of Mr. and Mrs. Bert Minter of Capitan departed this life Feb. 17, 1934 at the age of two years and 21 days. While his stay on this earth was short he won a place in the hearts of parents and friends that shall never be forgotten. He leaves to mourn his departure his father and mother two small sisters, grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Parker, and Mr. and Mrs. Peppers of Glencoe, other relatives and a host of friends. Burial was in the Glencoe cemetery.

CARD OF THANKS
We wish to use this means of expressing our appreciation to those who were so kind to us during the illness and death of our darling baby.
Mr and Mrs Bert Minter and relatives

Carrizozo Woman's Club

The Woman's Club held its February meeting at the home of Mrs. C. W. Young, with Mesdames Kelley, Richard, Luckey and Misses Tressie Davis, Haldene Stover and Grace Jones as assistants.

The meeting was called to order by the president the Club singing, "America the Beautiful." Very few responded to roll call with the name of her favorite author, possibly because each one felt too many authors were loved to single out one. The Club's Litany was read Mrs. Lemon leading. At the close of the business session, Miss Hazel Melas having charge of the program, presented the following: Piano Solo—Fantasia Impromptu in C Minor—Chopin, rendered by Mrs. Hendren with her usual exquisite technique Book Review—"Giants in the Earth"—Miss Nellie Shaver. This review and biography were interestingly given, biography claiming equal attention; showing as it did the unfoldment of the author's character after his arrival in America. Vocal Solo—"Smilin' Through"—Mrs. Gillette. We enjoyed another of Mrs. Gillette's pleasing songs.

Trends of Modern Poetry—Miss McGee. In this number we were shown that Poetry, as we knew it had put aside her glamorous, garments of inspiration and refinement and had taken a plunge into realism. A few modern examples were given for illustration; one, "Chicago," by Carl Sandberg, a coarse and almost brutal delineation of the characteristics of our great mid-western city; another, "At the Drapers," a touching little poem by Harding.

Following the program, delicious refreshments were served. Cherry pie was made with a tiny U. S. flag flaunting its folds above the ice cream, recalled the fact that this is the birth month of our Washington.

At our next meeting let us come prepared to give an Irish joke at roll call. There should be "lots of fun" in it.

Ancho Notes

The benefit dance given Saturday night for the purpose of raising funds to defray the expense of dental work in the school was well attended. Cake, pie and coffee was served free.

The Carrizozo All Stars won an exciting basket ball game from the Ancho All Stars at Carrizozo Friday night 31 to 23. The Ancho team was in the lead at the end of the third quarter 18 to 12, Carrizozo rallied desperately and soon took the lead during the fourth quarter and held it thru-out the remainder of the game. For Ancho, Carl Craig and Virgil Hall were the outstanding players. Detloff starred for the Carrizozo team.

Due to Rev. Sloan conducting church services Sunday afternoon Sunday School was held at 1:30 P. M. There was an extra large crowd for both Sunday School and Church. Everyone is cordially invited to attend Sunday School next Sunday at the usual hour, 10:00 o'clock, A. M.

The community was made sad Monday when news was received of the dead babe of Mr. and Mrs. John Straley. Funeral services were held Monday afternoon. Their many friends extend sympathy to the family in their bereavement.

Miss Florence Henley who has been visiting her Aunt, Mr. and Mrs. S. S. Pruett, has returned to El Paso.

Mr. Shelton of Corona, is relief agent this week on account of the illness of Mr. Frame.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Silvers of Durant were down for the funeral of the infant babe of Mr. and Mrs. John Straley.

Allen Kile was able to go back to work this week after an absence of three weeks. He has been in El Paso undergoing treatment.

Hansonberg News

Messrs. Wade and Lee Corp of Roswell were in Carrizozo last Monday to render their taxes. They were pleasant callers at the News office while in town.

Mesdames T. K. Martin, Mike Rysinger, Woods, and Miss Ruby Hefner were guests of Mrs. Agnes Hines, Thursday.

Mrs. Paul Wilson visited Mrs. J. C. Garrison last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Hefner and family were dinner guests of the Wilson family Sunday.

Nolan, Lawrence, Delbert, and J. W. Hefner have registered at the Hansonberg School.

Mr. and Mrs. Rysinger have as their guest Mr. Rysinger's mother of Texas.

Mrs. Ruby Agan visited Mrs. Frank Hefner a few days last week.

The play, "The Picture Girl," given at Hansonberg School Feb. 16, was well attended. Everyone reports it a success. The writer extends her thanks to those who so graciously gave their time and efforts. The Cast of the play was viz: Mr. and Mrs. Rysinger; Mr. and Mrs. T. K. Martin; Mrs. Woods, Mr. Henry Wilson; Miss. Velma Wilson, Miss. Ruby Hefner, Mrs. Agnes Hines, and W. C. Bingham. Sponsor, Mrs. D. F. Sawyer.

Mr. Roy Shafer invites every one to read his ad on page 8 of the News and to read the interesting article about the huge exposition Mr. Ford is to build this year at the World's Fair.

Miss Gwynn Clymer of Fairbanks, Arizona is spending a few days in Carrizozo.

Mrs. T. J. Straley has returned to her home at Ancho after some time spent at the Johnson hospital.

Broadcast by Children

Miss Elma Fresques, a teacher of the primary grades of the Arabella school took four of her second grade pupils to Roswell last Saturday and put on a 30 minute Radio program over K. G. F. L. The children sang both in English and Spanish. Last year they knew very little English, but this year finds their vocabulary much improved, due to Miss Fresques' interest and her method of teaching them to sing in both languages. Their program was a very pleasing surprise to all who heard it. Below will be found the program together with the names of the children who participated.

History in the MAKING

That is what is covered in our Weekly News-Review feature each week. It is an interpretation of the events of each week that are making the history of the nation and the world. It is prepared by Edward W. Pickard, one of the highly trained newspaper observers of the nation, and syndicated to a limited number of newspapers in the different states. It is the best feature of this character that goes to American readers from any source. You can make it the foundation of your discussion of world events with friends.

Testing a New Germ-Killing Serum

AN ALMOST unknown Italian physician, Dr. J. Andreatti, is seen here treating volunteer patients with his serum, with which he hopes to end the destruction wrought by tuberculosis. He believes the serum, which he keeps secret for the present, also will cure many other forms of disease by destroying the germs. The Italian government authorized his tests.

BEDTIME STORY FOR CHILDREN

By THORNTON W. BURGESS

PETER GOES HOME WITH A SAD HEART

PETER RABBIT held his breath. He didn't know that he was holding it, but he was. Perhaps you have done that same thing when you were very much excited. Most everybody does. Would Nimbleheels succeed in getting away from Hooty the Owl? Peter couldn't be sure, but it seemed that Hooty had barely missed the last time he struck. And Peter was sure that the jumps of Nimbleheels were growing shorter. The wonderful little jumper was growing tired, Peter felt and now he is taking him home for dinner. Poor little Nimbleheels. And it was my fault. It certainly was my fault. If I had not wanted to see him jump he would have been content to stay in the dear Old Briar Patch, and then this couldn't have happened. Peter turned toward the Briar Patch and hurried home, lipperty-lipperty-lip. He felt that the Green Meadows were not a safe place for him that night. And as he crept under his favorite bramble bush his heart was heavy with sadness. Life seemed a terrible thing. Somehow the moonlight no longer seemed so beautiful. Peter sighed heavily for he was very, very sad. Then he sighed again. "What's the matter with you? Have you a pain?" asked a thin, high squeaky voice that sounded most familiar. Peter jumped as if he had sat on a briar.

THROUGH A Woman's Eyes

By JEAN NEWTON

YOU TELL US, PROFESSOR!

"OUR histories seem to be little more than the elaborately recorded misbehavior of males." It's the men who make the trouble in the world; the women contribute the peace and order! That was the pronouncement of Professor Wheeler of Harvard recently before the American Association for the Advancement of Science. Oh, yes, Professor Wheeler is himself of the masculine gender! He is just broad-minded and modest, when in these words he attributes the world's troubles entirely to men:

"Throughout the ages the aggressiveness, curiosity, unstable intelligence, contentiousness and other anti-social tendencies which the male had inherited from his ancestors have kept society in a constant turmoil." But before we succumb entirely to the professor's blandishments, let him finish:

"But without him there would be no progress! If this were a woman's world, peace and order would reign, but society would make no advance! It is the restless, dominance impulses of the male that furnish the necessary stimulus to progress. Female societies are harmonious, but incapable of further development. They remain stationary!"

When a man admits the superiority of the "weaker sex" in any way, one might know there is a catch to it somewhere!

"Peace and order but no progress"—indeed! Well, professor, we don't mind that at all. In fact we're quite willing to stand by your estimate of the effect of the two sexes on the world. We're perfectly willing to accept peace and order for our part. Only we can't quite figure out what you mean by "progress" and "advancement." How can there be progress without order? The history of the world and its strife and turmoil and man-made wars tells the story. It was in the "peaceful intervals that the progress was made."

Very good, professor—you tell about the influence of women. We're perfectly willing to have it your way!

That there is evidence that playing cards were in use in Egypt in the time of Joseph and that they appeared among the Hebrews after their return from the Babylonian exile. The Chinese dictionary, "Ching-Tse-Tung" (1678) states that they were produced in China for the amusement of Suan-Ho's harem in the year 1120.

A Little Garden

By ANNE CAMPBELL

SHE has a little garden Upon her window sill. She waters it at evening When all the world is still; A narrow box of beauty That holds the humblest blooms. And yet it feeds a spirit That lives in little rooms.

There is no sweeping vista To bless her city eyes. The walls are thick around her. They shut away the skies. But souls that crave the woodlands Must have a bit of green, And so above her garden, The neighbors see her lean.

She has a little garden As lovely to her sight, As are the flowering acres That grow for your delight; And in the dewy twilight; When pale stars shine above, I know God gives her garden, The blessing of his love!

ANCIENT "HOARDERS"

All sorts of ancient beads cut to resemble an eye, found on the sites of old cities of Mesopotamia, are treasured by modern natives of the district as charms against every sickness and evil spell. It is difficult to obtain these charms, even at considerable price, says a returned traveler. Banded, semi-precious stones, such as agate and sardonyx, are prized as the most powerful. Natives of this region have been antique hoarders since ancient times.

Why the Sudden Change to Liquid Laxatives?

Doctors have always recognized the value of the laxative whose dose can be measured, and whose action can be thus regulated to suit individual need.

The public, too, is fast returning to the use of liquid laxatives. People have learned that a properly prepared liquid laxative brings a perfect movement without any discomfort at the time, or after.

The dose of a liquid laxative can be varied to suit the needs of the individual. The action can thus be regulated. It forms no habit; you need not take a "double dose" a day or two later. Nor will a mild liquid laxative irritate the kidneys.

The wrong cathartic may often do more harm than good.

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is a prescription, and is perfectly safe. Its laxative action is based on senna—a natural laxative. The bowels will not become dependent on this form of help. Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is at all druggists, Member N. R. A.

Peter Was Sure That the Jumps of Nimbleheels Were Growing Shorter.

sure of it. How could it be otherwise?

How Peter did wish that he hadn't asked Nimbleheels to show him how he could jump.

"It's all my fault," thought Peter. "If Hooty does catch Nimbleheels I shall blame myself as long as I live. Yes, I will. It is my fault, it is all my fault. They are getting nearer the Briar Patch, but I'm afraid they won't get there in time. Oh dear! Oh dear!"

For the time being Peter quite forgot that he himself was anything but safe sitting out there on the Green Meadows in the moonlight. His whole thought was for little Nimbleheels who was so bravely jumping for his life.

Every once in a while the sharp snap of Hooty's bill would reach Peter and send little snipers up and down his back. He had heard the snap of that bill before more than once, and never without shivering.

Presently a dark cloud passed over the moon just as Hooty made an unusually quick turn and struck more fiercely than ever at poor little Nimbleheels. A Black Shadow hid them for a minute or two, and though Peter strained his eyes he couldn't see what was happening. When Black Shadow had passed on and the Green Meadows were once more flooded with moonlight Peter stared eagerly at the spot where he had last seen Nimbleheels and Hooty. Neither was to be seen.

Hastily Peter looked this way and that way. Disappearing toward the Green Forest he saw what looked like a floating shadow. It wasn't a shadow, Peter had seen it too often to be fooled even for a minute. It was Hooty—the Owl. Peter's heart sank.

"Hooty is going home to the Green Forest, so he must have caught Nimbleheels that last time," thought Peter sadly. "He caught little Nimbleheels

Distillery Grain to Aid Dairymen

Cattle Feeders May Be Able to Obtain Additional Supply Soon.

There will be a "new deal" in rations for many of the dairy cows when distillers' dried grains and brewers' dried grains will be available in greatly increased quantities.

Both these types of grains are looked upon with favor by dairy cattlemen. The largest outlet for them is in proprietary mixed feeds for dairy cattle.

Feeding tests with milk cows have shown that distillers' dried grains are equal to mixtures of wheat bran, cottonseed meal and linseed meal containing equal amounts of protein, and that distillers' grains from corn are more valuable than those from rye.

Dairy cattle feeders contemplating the purchase of one of these feeds should be guided by the cost of a pound of protein in that feed in a comparison with the cost in other available protein supplements commonly used for dairy cattle.

When made largely from corn, distillers' grains as a rule contain about 32 per cent protein. The fat, or oil content is high, being about 11 per cent, and the fiber content is low, ranging from about 10 to 12 per cent.

Brewers' dried grains contain from 22 to 25 per cent protein. The fat content is about 7 per cent and the fiber about 18 per cent.

Several other products from these and allied industries often are available in the form of malt sprouts, dried malt grains and yeast and vinegar grains.

Clover Seed Is Scarce; Other Crops Are Short

Producers of clover seed will meet with little competition from European producers this year, in spite of small domestic crops.

Demand for Horses

Receipts of horses and mules at public stock yards were 221,142 for the first eight months of 1933, as compared with 171,587 for the same period in 1932.

Agricultural Rakings

Thirty states now have farm protective committees.

Meat cures better if the animal has not been fed for 24 hours before killing.

At Cornell, a wheat which is practically identical with the wild wheat of Palestine has been made by crossing a cultivated wheat with a durum type.

Cotton growers in North Carolina will receive an average of $11.15 an acre for withholding land from production in 1934, say state college specialists.

Hundreds of New York farmers devote their spare time during the winter months to farm study courses.

Government estimates indicate three billion tons of soil are washed from fields and pastures in the United States each year.

The Saskatchewan government is making provision for the purchase of sodium arsenite for poisoning grasshoppers in the province.

Queen Anne's Lace By Frances Parkinson Keyes

SYNOPSIS

At a dance, a visitor in the community, Neal Curran, young lawyer, is impressed by Anne Chamberlain, a society daughter of a less famous, but no less distinguished, family.

"I was thinking that I hadn't done as well politically as I'd hoped. I expected to be governor of this state by now."

"Well, yea. I rather thought that was your plan. But after all—"

Hathaway tapped the arm of his chair with his fingers, gazing into the open fire as he did so.

"How about your wife? Was she interested in politics, too?"

"Anne? Neal's surprise was apparent in his voice. "Why, Anne would be interested, I guess, in anything I wanted to do. She—she's devoted to me."

"Yes, of course, I saw that. But I mean—has she been helping you actively and directly as well as passively and indirectly?"

"She's good without everything," Neal answered, coming swiftly to Anne's defense, under the impression that she was being attacked.

"But after you'd had a chance to forget about that bad time, you neglected her again?"

"I suppose I did—do. But—there's never been another woman."

"Good G—d! I should say not! What do you want—the Capitoline Venus?"

"No," roared Neal, angrily, "what are you driving at, anyway?"

"My dear fellow, please don't think I'm venturing to criticize your conduct. And as for criticizing your wife—well, I thought ten years ago she was one of the loveliest, as well as one of the most remarkable girls I'd ever met in my life."

"I've remembered her, pretty vividly, all this time. That's a little unusual for me. And I confess that seeing her tonight has been an acute disappointment."

"Well, I'm not disappointed in her. She suits me."

"Just wait a minute, can't you? I still think she's beautiful—and remarkable. Even more remarkable than I'd guessed. But I think she's tragic."

"Tragic!"

"Yes. How old is she? Under thirty? I thought so. Well, she looks over forty. She's stagnating, mentally as well as physically. She's submerged herself in your personality, and your career and your children until she's nothing but a washed-out drudge without a particle of individuality left."

"She's done it voluntarily, because she loved you—loves you. But she must know, even if you don't know, that she was capable of something a good deal bigger. With her looks and her mind, and her natural gifts as a hostess—Neal, you utter fool!"

"Even if you are my guest, and an old friend, I think you've gone about far enough in discussing my wife."

"Then suppose we discuss mine for a change?"

"Yours! I didn't know you were married!"

"I'm not. But I was."

"You mean you lost her? Clare—I'm darned sorry, I hadn't heard—"

"Yes, I lost her. But she didn't die. She found out she cared for some one else more than she did for me. I found it out, too."

"Oh—"

"Yes. Exactly. She was a poor girl when I married her, almost as poor as Anne. And she came from a home that wasn't much better. But she was pretty, devilishly pretty and ambitious—for herself. I fell for her, hard—and fast. I ought to have known better—Lord knows I've had experience enough—but I married her—"

"She began by almost ruining me financially. And she ended by almost ruining me diplomatically. Caesar's wife had nothing on that of a rising young secretary. I left that post in Rome, which I enjoyed so much, because I was given an indefinite leave of absence. When I went to Paris, I went without her."

Neal found himself more moved than he could have imagined. And not only moved—shattered. Clare had made no comparisons—aloud. But Neal saw those that he had made mentally, as clearly as if they had been engraved in flaming letters.

"So that's that. And seeing Anne—you don't mind if I call her Anne, do you?—here tonight brought it all back to me—because she's—she's so different. And you're so lucky—and playing against your luck!"

"What?" Neal managed to ask, "would you do, if you were I?"

Hathaway balanced the question. "Would anything very dreadful happen," he asked at length, "if you left those two corking kids with that pretty maid—she'd look after them all right, wouldn't she?—and took Anne on a vacation? I'm sailing next week on the France—why don't you see if you could get a stateroom on the same boat? And—spend the summer in Paris—and let me help give you both a good time!"

CHAPTER VIII

Neal had come down with a heavy cold which kept him confined to the hotel, but he insisted, since he was not really sick, and since there was so little time left, that Anne should not stay in with him, but should go, as they had both planned to do, and have tea with Clare at the Chateau de Madrid.

It was very warm for Paris, and Anne's beautifully dressed hair, shining like burnished gold, escaped from its net about the white nape of her neck and her white brow, and curled in little soft moist tendrils.

Her diaphanous negligee, pale orchid color, had slipped away from one white, rounded shoulder, and she raised a slim white hand and pulled it into place.

"I shan't be disappointed," she said, "if I don't go. There are some letters I ought to write and—"

"Nonsense!"

"And I shall have to dress."

"Since when," teased Neal, "has that been a burden to you? . . . though I must say you look very nice the way you are."

She flushed, deliciously. "I meant—it is so very warm. . . . I suppose that Clare might think it unappreciative if we both went back on him."

She disappeared into the bedroom, and a moment later Neal heard the sound of running water from the bathroom beyond. He smiled.

How happy she had been—all summer! It was nearly four months now since they had stood beside the gang-plank, watching it lifted, waving goodbye to Dora and Junior and Nancy, to Mr. and Mrs. Goldenberg and George and Mabel, who had all come to see them off, for it was a great day for these old friends as well as for themselves when Neal and Anne actually "went to Europe."

The very morning after their arrival in Paris, while they were at breakfast, Clare, who had not left them until nearly midnight, reappeared, and mapped out their program. Before they did a single thing Anne must be reclothed. He would accompany them to a dressmaker's—a petite maison not too expensive but very recherche, and worthy of being entrusted with this task.

"And I expect," he said frankly, "that the job will have to be done from the skin up. You don't look to me as if you had on the right things underneath. Nobody has waltzlines any more; on the contrary, every one has legs."

"You don't expect me to go with Anne to the dressmaker's?" protested Neal, aghast.

"Of course. Both of us. Husband and interested friend. They'd think she didn't have any male relatives to pay the bills if she went alone."

And Clare was right about this as he was about everything else—Neal found himself welcomed with open arms. He enjoyed the welcome—at the first three or four establishments—then it began to pall on him, and he suggested that Clare and Anne should go without him, while he went around to the American Express to see if, by any chance, anyone from Belford had registered there. But he paid the bills without a murmur, in a glow of satisfaction, as he saw Anne transformed almost before his eyes. Presently she looked no more than her age again; then she began to look a good deal less than her age.

Moist Mash Treat for Hens

Hens appreciate an occasional treat in the form of moist mash and it is probable that the judicious use of a moist crumbly mash once a day will result in a slightly higher egg yield than can be obtained by an entirely dry mash system of feeding.

The best practice in the use of the moist mash seems to be to moisten the regular dry-mash mixture with water or milk, giving about what the hens will glean up in 20 minutes. Soaked or germinated oats may be included with this.

Half-Pound Feed Per Egg

A hen requires about one-half pound of feed to produce an egg, according to New York State college poultrymen.

They found that hens of six breeds in an egg-laying contest produced an average of 199.4 eggs and used 84.2 pounds of feed. The rations fed the hens consisted of corn meal, wheat middlings, bran, oats, alfalfa meal, dried milk, meat scraps, and a small amount of cod liver oil and salt. When wet mash was fed it consisted of one part of water and fed on dry mash.

POULTRY

EXPERTS AT ODDS ON PULLETS, HENS

Tests Show Older Birds Are the Best Breeders.

There is a vast variety and difference of opinion as to the use of the more mature pullets as breeders or the use of hens for this purpose.

Ohio's experiment station seems to have found a difference in the mortality of pullets from pullet matings and pullets from hen matings greatly in favor of the latter. These Ohio findings of excessive mortality, running as high as 60 per cent with pullets from pullets, pullet breeders not selected or culled, a promiscuous breeding flock, would not, in the majority of cases, agree with the practices of poultrymen in general.

However, this test did not attempt to prove that there are no flocks throughout the country which have and will produce layers from pullet-bred pullets which layers in the first year will show a much lower mortality and will produce eggs in profitable quantities.

Many poultrymen hold to the belief that pullets, in perfect health and full egg-lay are far more desirable as breeders than hens that are run down from heavy yields and, therefore, more susceptible to disease. On the other hand some poultrymen believe that hens that have successfully passed a year of heavy yielding are more desirable for reproduction purposes.

Breeding pens will soon be arranged for spring reproduction purposes and some of these pens will become the tests for proof of success or failure both as to the use of young or old birds.

Depreciation, Labor and Mortality, Cost of Eggs

The three big items in the cost of producing the $12,000,000 worth of more of eggs that Illinois farmers sell every year are feed, depreciation, which includes mortality, and labor, according to records which twenty poultrymen kept during the past year in co-operation with the extension service of the College of Agriculture, University of Illinois.

Any flock owner who cuts down on these items therefore will be going a long way toward getting a wider margin of net return out of the cash that he receives for his eggs, it is pointed out by H. H. Alp, poultry extension specialist of the college.

"Probably the best opportunity to reduce feed cost is to improve the average egg production of each hen in the flock, as the good layers eat but little more feed than the mediocre layers. Too many flocks carry about 20 per cent defaulters—hens that start laying and then quit—and it is this class of birds which runs up the feed cost of a dozen eggs."

Fresh Eggs Are Best

Needless to say, eggs intended for hatching should be set as soon as possible after they are laid. Not alone because the new-laid egg hatches earlier than the egg which is kept a couple of weeks, but because the longer an egg is held the more evaporation takes place, which subtracts its vitality. Furthermore, in holding eggs there is always the danger of unfavorable influences. For instance, if the eggs are stored in too low a temperature the chilling is likely to injure them. If they are stored where it is too warm, the development of the germ is apt to start and later die. A temperature of from 60 to 65 degrees has been found to be the best. Eggs should not be held over two weeks.

Moisture in Henhouse

Moisture in the henhouse is not in itself a bad thing, for it appears that poultry can be as comfortable in a damp as in a dry atmosphere, provided the temperature is uniform and comfortable for the birds. Nevertheless, no one likes a damp poultry house, because the temperature, under practical conditions, usually varies considerably, and a low temperature with a damp atmosphere is a poor combination.—Wallace Farmer.

Hens appreciate an occasional treat in the form of moist mash and it is probable that the judicious use of a moist crumbly mash once a day will result in a slightly higher egg yield than can be obtained by an entirely dry mash system of feeding.

INSECT CONVERSATION

Ferret out your insect pests with a radio microphone! It can be done, according to an Oslo (Norway) professor, who has devised a special microphone that will make insect noises audible to the human ear by amplification through a loud speaker.

Insects "converse" in notes so high that the human ear cannot hear them, but the super-sensitive electronic tube can do so and amplify them to audibility. There is a theory in some quarters that bees actually "broadcast" to one another on short waves even beyond the ultras, thus accounting for the fact that reconnoitering bees are shortly followed in "bee line" toward a source of honey by the bees of a hive in spite of the fact that the acouter may be far out of sight of ordinary hearing.

Congressional Reflections

By Congressman Dennis Chavez

Message from the Senate to the House of Representatives this week announces that the Senate had agreed to the report of the committee of conferees on the disagreeing votes of the two houses on amendments of the House to the legislation providing for loans to farmers for crop production and harvesting during the year 1934, and making an additional appropriation to carry out the purposes of the Federal Emergency Relief Act of 1933 for the continuation of the Civil Works program.

The findings of the Senate Special Committee on Investigation of Air Mail and Ocean Mail Contracts have been startling and have brought forth many interesting and unexpected occurrences. The sudden annulling of all domestic air mail contracts by the Postmaster General, and the subsequent arrest and sentence of William P. MacCracken, Jr., a member of President Hoover's "Little Cabinet", past Secretary and Keeper of Ethics of the American Bar Association, have shocked official Washington and brought considerable speculation as to which will occur next.

The House of Representatives has before it for consideration the Revenue (tax) Bill and all phases of this important legislation is being discussed at length in the House. The Ways and Means Committee had devoted some four or five months to the holding of hearings and considering this legislation before it was presented to the House.

President Roosevelt has sent to the Senate the nomination of Hon. Felipe Sanchez Y Baca of Tucuman, New Mexico, for Marshal for the New Mexico District. It is expected that he will be confirmed in the very near future.

recognition as "Sioux Indians of Lumber River in the State of North Carolina." These Indians are designated and recognized by the State of North Carolina as Cherokees, but no official recognition has been given them by the Federal Government. In Bulletin, No. 30, part I, of the Bureau of American Ethnology, the following statement occurs as to these Indians:

"The theory of descent from Raleigh's lost colony of Croatan may be regarded as baseless, but the name itself serves as a convenient label for a people who combine in themselves the blood of the wanted native tribes, the early colonists or forest rangers, the runaway slaves or other Negroes, and probably also of stray seamen of Latin races from coasting vessels in the West Indian or Brazilian trade". The Interior Department will not recognize them as Cherokee and it is contended—that if any other name is attached to them it will practically make null and void all the State of North Carolina has done for them. It is a very interesting fight and the outcome will be watched with a great deal of interest."

The readers of this column will recall that I devoted a paragraph not long ago to the new Supreme Court Building now being constructed on "Capitol Hill." The purpose of this is two fold for it will relieve the monotony of continual references to legislative matters and provide information which I trust will be a stimulant to further study. The reference "Capitol Hill" is used for sitting at the end of Pennsylvania Ave., upon a high hill is the Capitol building, in which is located the House Chambers, the Senate Chambers and the Supreme Court, as well as numerous Committees of the House and Senate and offices of the ranking members of these Committees. The Speakers offices and Vice-President have their offices in the Capitol Adjoining the Capitol building on the southeast side by an underground passage are the two large House Office buildings, in which are located the offices of the four hundred and thirty-five representatives, and the different committees of the House of Representatives. Joining the Capitol on the northeast side by an underground electric railway is the Senate Office Building in which is found the Senators' offices and Senate committee rooms. Directly across the Capitol grounds and opposite the Senate chambers is located the New Supreme Court Building which is being constructed at present. Directly opposite the House Chamber across the Capitol grounds and adjacent to the Supreme Court building is the Library of Congress, the world's largest and most elaborate building devoted wholly to library uses.

LOCAL AND PERSONAL

Those from here who accepted the invitation of the Alamogordo Lodge to attend the meeting last Monday night were: Messrs. A. L. Burke, Louis Burke, W. J. Langston, Calvin Carl, Herman Kelt, Clint Braum, L. W. McClintock, John Harkney, Albert Roberts, E. L. Mendenhall, Jim Tom, Louis Adams, G. T. McQuillen, Jim Diwidis, and Otto Prehm and A. E. Kent of Ocura.

Mr. and Mrs. Calvin Carl visited El Paso last Monday.

Easter Sunday comes on April 1st this year.

Wayne Van Schoyck, Jr. of White Oaks attended the Lyric theater here Sunday night.

Mrs. Riley McPherson and her guest, Mrs. Myrtle Stedel were White Oaks visitors last Monday.

Camp Baca, CCC Camp in the Capitan mountains was awarded first prize among the winter camps of this state and Arizona. The award was given on camp organization, camp conditions and appearance and the work being done. Captain Gough is the army commandant and Mr. C. K. Caron is superintendent of forest service. There are about fifty of these camps in the two states.

Messrs. Mosley and Forger have opened a Homestead Bureau with headquarters in Carrizozo. They are sending out information to homeseekers who are anxious to come to the Southwest to locate especially to those desiring to locate in this part of the state. Opportunities are very good around here as the soil is fertile, pure water is obtainable, the climate is healthful, schools are good, representative churches are established; and transportation facilities are excellent.

Orders were received from Santa Fe Sunday to continue the CWA work in Lincoln County one more week, after which all activities are to cease for a while. Last week was to have been the last, but later instructions were received.

Be Wise—Advertise—in The News.

Applicants for the appointment of postmaster at Carrizozo, were Mrs. Haley and Messrs. Herman Kelt and Harry Miller. Mr. Kelt went to Roswell last Saturday to take the examination, while Mr. Miller and Mrs. Haley went to Alamogordo to take the examination.

The Mountain Boomers are scheduled to play for a dance at Curry's hall in Duran, March 3d. Marvin Roberts and Brooks Lewis spent the past week end in El Paso.

FORD TO BUILD HUGE EXPOSITION AT THE 1934 CHICAGO WORLD'S FAIR

A GREAT Ford Exposition, portraying the tremendous part the arts, sciences and virtually every other industry plays in the manufacture of today's motor cars, is planned by the Ford Motor Company for the 1934 World's Fair.

The Ford Exposition will be housed in a giant building 360 feet long to be built in the heart of the fair grounds on an 11-acre plot bordering Lake Michigan and flanking the main fair boulevard. Construction of the building will start Mar. 1. In the dominant central building will be housed Henry Ford's "Drama of Transportation," depicting the development of wheeled vehicles from the chariots of ancient Egyptian kings to modern motor cars. Every model of Ford car made since 1902 will be included.

In the smaller building to the left will be housed some of the priceless historic exhibits from the Edison Institute at Dearborn, Mich., including the one-story brick workshop, complete with the original tools, where Mr. Ford in 1893 built with his own hands his first motor car. This first car will be displayed inside the shop.

The main exposition building will display an imposing array of exhibits, most of them in action, show how steel, aluminum and other metals, soy beans, corn, wool, cotton and other farm products and the products of varied industries are converted into car parts. The building also will house displays of cars and a big movie theater. Along the east side will be an open-air balcony equipped with chairs and lounges where hundreds may relax.

Across the drive fronting the lake will be a big Ford Park, beautifully landscaped and also fitted with seats and other comforts for fair crowds.

Bloody Riots in Paris Drive Out Daladier, and Doumergue Becomes Premier—Devaluation of Dollar Brings Flood of Gold.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD

FRANCE seemingly narrowly escaped a civil war. Following two days of bloody rioting in Paris and other cities, Premier Daladier and his cabinet capitulated and the reins of government were put in the hands of Gaston Doumergue, the seventy-one-year-old former President who was in retirement on his country's estate. His re-appearance on the political stage was in response to the pleadings of President Lebrun and many other patriots who were convinced that he alone could restore the country to quiet. It was conditioned on pledges that both chambers of parliament would support him unreservedly and that the president would give him an executive order dissolving the parliament and calling new elections, to be used if he considered it necessary. So the "iron man" of France, as he has been dubbed, returned to Paris with plans for a small cabinet made up of former premiers and party leaders and with power to make himself the virtual dictator of the country.

Gaston Doumergue

War veterans, monarchists, Communists and other elements joined in the violent demonstrations that forced out the Daladier regime. All joined in opposition to the government, though no one of the groups was in accord with any others in other respects. The mobs were furious and fought desperately with the police and the troops that Daladier had brought into the capital. The rioters, operating mainly in the Place de la Concorde and the region about the Palais Bourbon where the chamber of deputies sits, were raked by machine gun fire, snored by mounted troops and clubbed and shot by the infantry and police. But they returned to the fray time after time and would not cede the struggle until Daladier resigned. The number of dead was estimated at fifty, and more than a thousand persons were wounded. After the battles were over the boulevards in the center of Paris presented a scene of desolation and destruction unequalled there since days of the commune in 1871.

Nationalist elements resented especially the removal by Daladier of Jean Chiappe as prefect of police, feeling that he was being made a scapegoat in the Bayonne bond scandal. The Communists and Socialists accused Chiappe of fomenting the rioting, but the "right" elements said the "leftists" were determined to get the Corcaean out of the way because they knew he would block the presidential coup d'etat they were planning. The Royalists were in the mix-up hopeful, as always, that they might be able to restore the monarchy and put on the throne the due de Guise, head of the Bourbon house of Orleans, who lives in exile in Brussels. Naturally the pretender shares in that hope, but he was quoted as deploring the bloodshed.

DEVALUATION of the dollar, and the purchase of gold at $35 a fine ounce caused a turmoil in the world's money markets and an immediate result was a great flow of gold from Europe to the United States. The pound sterling and the franc made gains, but not big enough to suit President Roosevelt and his monetary advisers. Later both the pound and franc declined again, and the confusion was made greater. The French were alarmed by the drain on their gold and expressed intense resentment against the American policy, charging that the administration was making deliberate efforts to embarrass France.

For the time being the administration was prevented from driving the dollar down to its projected parity points in foreign exchanges by the rising tide of American dollars flowing back to this country. But most of its financial experts were confident that the 69.00 cents value would be made to prevail after a reasonable time to allow for the shakedown. As for the $35 an ounce for gold, it is the opinion of Prof. George F. Warren, chief adviser of the experiment that is under way, that the figure must be raised if prices of commodities are to be put up materially. Frank E. Gannett, the Rochester newspaper publisher, after a visit to the White House and talking with both the President and Professor Warren, said in his Rochester Times-Union that he had been convinced by those conversations "that we shall continue to raise the price of gold" and that the $35 figure probably would succeed only in preventing prices from slipping.

By the President's devaluation stroke a treasury deficit of $1,900,000,000 was transformed overnight into a surplus of $973,710,037.

IT WAS authoritatively stated in Washington that the President believes that excessive interest rates on all classes of debts should be reduced as an important step toward reduction of the debt structure. His viewpoint applies to foreign debts owed to United States citizens, to private debts and to those of industry. He was said to be of the opinion that reduction of interest would make payment more probable, and that fixed charges also could be cut down.

Bills before the senate, which have house approval already, would enable corporations and municipalities or other political subdivisions of states to scale down the principal and interest of their debts through an agreement with the majority of their creditors. Legislation is already in effect which enables the individual to rearrange his debt and interest rates through a pact with the majority of those he owes and to give similar help to railroads. There have been complaints that these laws have not been particularly effective and that they need strengthening. The President, in letting it be known that he thought the debtor was paying too much on obligations contracted in better times, did not say what he believed was a fair rate nor did he specify particular charges that he regarded as too high.

NRA and the steel industry came into sharp conflict, and the NRA to a certain extent backed down. Executives of all the leading steel companies met and considered the claim of the national labor board to authority given by the President to conduct elections for employee representatives when a "substantial" number request that action. To this the steel men took exception. They issued a statement saying the industry intends "to resist all attacks" upon company unions and that it holds that the present plan of employee representation complies with the NRA. The statement, however, declared the steel industry "is co-operating wholeheartedly with the President in his efforts for national recovery and subscribes fully to the principle of collective bargaining as provided in section 7 (a) of the national recovery act."

The NRA had given out a press statement implying that all company unions are dominated by employers. This drew sharp criticism, and the statement was retracted. Administrator Johnson and NRA Counsel Donald Hechberg upheld the right of the labor board as stated above. They asserted, however, that the executive order which said that representatives elected by a majority of workers "have been thereby designated to represent all the employees," does not abridge the rights of labor minorities to conduct negotiations with employers.

SAMUEL INSULL, who was due to be ousted from Greece on February 1, was permitted to remain for a time because of ill health, but the government at Athens then informed him unofficially that he must leave before February 13, two physicians having reported he was able to travel without danger to his life. The fugitive immediately began packing up, but at this writing it was not known where he would go in his effort to avoid extradition.

TWENTY-TWO days after he was kidnaped, Edward G. Bremer, banker of St. Paul, Minn., was set free in Rochester, Minn., and made his way home, nervous and with wounds on his head inflicted when he was "snatched," but otherwise unharmed. His father, Adolf Bremer, wealthy brewer, had paid the $200,000 demanded by the kidnapers, in $10 and $5 bills, through an intermediary. During his captivity Bremer was kept in a dark room and under constant guard. State and federal law enforcement agencies were conducting an intensive hunt for the abductors of Bremer, who probably numbered ten or more. It was believed the victim was held in either Sioux City or Kansas City.

Verns Sankley, notorious kidnaper who was captured recently in Chicago and taken to Sioux Falls, S. D., for safe keeping until his trial in a federal court, committed suicide in his cell by hanging, using a loop made of neckties. He had admitted the abduction of Charles Boettcher of Denver and Haskell Bohn of St. Paul.

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT called congressional leaders late conference and with them formulated bills designed to bring the stock markets of the country under federal control. The measures were then introduced in both house and senate. They deal with short selling, marginal trading, specialists, pool operations and manip-

BACKED by the President, a federal grand jury investigation was going on in Washington that promised to uncover a $10,000,000 scandal in the War department. Two lawyers prominently connected in the past with the American Legion were said to be involved. It was asserted that automobile manufacturers had been asked for a fee of $50,000 in return for War department contracts for trucks running into millions.

The house naval committee made an inquiry into airplane and engine contracts that, it was predicted, would lead to changes in the Navy department's system of audits.

WILLIAM P. MCCRACKEN, who was assistant secretary of commerce for aeronautics in the Hoover administration, and three air line officials got into a jam with the senate committee that is investigating air mail contracts. All four of them were cited to appear before the senate to show cause why they should not be punished for contempt. McCracken practices law in Washington. The others are L. H. Brittin, vice president of Northwest Airways; Harris M. Hanshue, president of Western Air Express, and Gilbert Givvin, Hankline's secretary. McCracken has been under technical arrest but this was vacated.

Chairman Black's report to the senate showed that Brittin admitted that he had removed from McCracken's office and destroyed subpoenaed correspondence; and also that Givvin, on order from Hanshue, had removed confidential papers since recovered by the committee.

Senator Black also told the senate that testimony before the committee showed post office contracts had been awarded "collusively and fraudulently" and that former Postmaster General Brown and McCracken participated in a "secret meeting" held in a room adjacent to Brown's Post Office department office at which the country was divided into certain mail routes and contracts were distributed among "particular" operating companies.

IN A unanimous opinion the Supreme Court of the United States held that all persons accused of violating the late national prohibition laws and whose cases had not been finally adjudicated by December 5 last, when the Eighteenth amendment was repealed should be set free. The opinion held that repeal canceled the power of prosecution.

According to the Department of Justice, there were 9,676 prohibition cases, with about 13,000 defendants, pending in federal courts.

WITH little debate the senate passed the bill introduced by Senator Hiram Johnson of California which is designed to prevent the floating in America of private loans to countries now defaulting on past debts. Before passing it, the senators amended the measure so that it would not hamper the President's new scheme to grant to foreign nations loans with which to buy American goods. A proviso was written in declaring that loans to foreign defaulters could still be made by government owned corporations.

As it now stands, however, the bill puts in the hands of the administration its most powerful weapon for forcing payment of defaulted war debts. No defaulting nation may float any private loan in this country, and any American aiding in the illegal flotation of a private loan to a defaulter would be liable to five years in jail and $10,000 in fines.

According to Chairman Jesse Jones of the RFC, the President's plan calls for the creation of a trading bank which will partially underwrite extension of credits to foreign purchasers of American goods. The bank would be entirely owned by the government, so the arrangement would actually be a partial government guarantee of payment to the American producer. The bank would be a division of the RFC.

ONLY one representative voted "no" when the House of representatives passed on the bill to appropriate $950,000,000 for continuation of CWA and direct relief activities. The lone opponent was Representative George B. Terrill of Texas, Democrat. The money is to be used by the federal emergency relief administration for keeping up the federal dole to the idle for another year and for continuing the Civil Works administration until the early part of May. About 600 millions is to be used for the former purpose; it was said, and about 450 for the CWA.

ODDEN L. MILLS, who, whether or not you like him, is one of the most forceful leaders of the Republican party, has often been spoken of as a possible or even probable candidate for the G. O. P. Presidential nomination in 1936. But the New Yorker has now removed himself from that category. While in California to see Herbert Hoover and others, Mr. Mills told the press: "I most certainly have no intention of becoming a candidate. Nor will I mix in local or factional politics."

Approved Recipe for Cream Sauce

Mixture Requires Care in Preparation; Choice in Flavors.

A somewhat discouraged housewife addressed this question to an authority on matters culinary. "Why is it that whenever I make a cream sauce it always becomes lumpy?" and is thus advised:

"I can answer that by giving you the simple method which I use myself for cream sauce. I melt the butter, remove it from the fire, and sift in the flour and seasoning. When this is absolutely smooth, I pour in gradually, stirring, as I do so, about half the amount of cold milk called for in the recipe. I then put the saucepan back over the fire and stir the mixture until it is smooth. I add the rest of the milk and continue stirring until the mixture is smooth and thick. I then let it boil about two minutes, stirring occasionally so as to prevent it sticking. In case I make more than two cups of white sauce at one time I heat the milk in order to save time and the labor of stirring for a long time. It seems to me that two minutes' boiling is long enough to produce a good flavor—that is to say, to get rid of the raw flavor which uncooked flour has. If you have plenty of time you may cook the sauce in the top of a double boiler over the direct heat, and after it thickens set it over hot water and cook ten minutes. Be sure to keep it covered during this period.

"Many other sauces may be made by this foundation method. If a bit of onion is cooked with the butter and a well seasoned stock is added instead of the milk, you will have a brown sauce which is appropriate for serving with meats. If you use water instead of milk, and flavor the sauce with lemon juice, and extra butter, you will have a very good fish sauce. If you use tomato pulp, which has been cooked with onions, a bay leaf and a few cloves and then strain you will have a very good tomato sauce. If you use three-quarters water and one-quarter vinegar, and season with mustard and a liberal amount of sugar, you will have a sauce which is particularly good to serve with ham. Ham fat may be used instead of butter.

"To go back to our original recipe for white sauce, you may make it richer and more colorful by stirring a little of the white sauce mixture into an egg yolk or two and returning this to the original mixture to beat well and to heat. If you add to this a little lemon juice you will have a good imitation of hollandaise sauce. Another delicious variation of this same sauce may be made by using half cream and half milk, as well as the egg yolk. To the plain white sauce you may add minced cooked onions or grated cheese, or a little anchovy or sardine paste. These sauces go particularly well with poached or hard-boiled eggs."

- Tomato Sauce: 1 teaspoon chopped onion; 1 bay leaf; 2 tablespoons flour; 1/4 cup water; 1 cup tomato (stewed or strained); Pepper; 1 teaspoon salt.

Cook the onion and bay leaf in melted butter until golden brown. Remove from the fire, add the flour, and stir until smooth. Add the water, tomato and seasoning. Boil three minutes, stirring constantly. Strain and serve with cooked meats or fish. Sugar may be added with the seasoning.

Whose Fault?

"Kept after school!" And it isn't the child's fault, or the teacher's. His mother is to blame. How can a boy get his lessons when his senses are dulled day after day by dosing with sickening purgatives? When a child's bowels are stagnant they need help, of course. But not some drastic drug to upset the stomach, perhaps weaken the entire system, or form the laxative habit. On the right, parents will find a happy solution of this problem: Here's a boy who gets good marks, has time and energy for play. He is never ill, hardly ever has so much as a cold. When he does show symptoms of being sluggish, his mother knows just what to do. She gives him a little California Syrup of Figs—and that is all. It's a natural, fruit laxative that is agreeable to take, and its gentle laxative action comes from senna. Parents are tired to see that pure California Syrup of Figs. Be sure bottle says "California."

BEAUTY TALKS

By

MARJORIE DUNCAN

CARE OF HANDS AND ARMS

IT WOULD be a very simple matter for every woman who uses a good skin food on face and neck (and every woman should, you know) to massage hands and arms too with a little of the cream. Notice the hands and arms of operators in beauty salons who give facial treatments—soft and smooth, aren't they? It is the constant contact with cream that does it.

Try this treatment. At night before retiring, wash hands and arms thoroughly with a good nail brush, bland soap and warm water. Rinse very thoroughly in warm and then in cold water. Dry with a soft towel. Next massage with a good-skin food or warm olive oil. Or you can make a cream at home, using equal portions of olive oil, cocoa butter and lanolin. Melt the cocoa butter and lanolin in order to measure. Then pour the three ingredients into a clean container and stir to a creamy consistency.

When massaging the arms use a firm, rotary motion. Pay special attention to the elbows, massaging the left elbow with thumb and third finger of right hand and vice versa.

Leave a little of the cream on overnight to further soften the skin. Wear long cotton gloves, or cut the sleeves out of an old flannel nightgown, or use a clean, old pair of white stockings. This will avoid soiling bedclothes and at the same time give you full benefit of the creaming.

In the morning, pat quite briskly with a pad of cotton moistened with iced skin tonic, or use a little witch hazel for the purpose.

Massage the hands with the cream too, working round and round and then firmly downward as though putting on a new pair of gloves.

For bleaching the hands, dimming tan or freckles or removing fruit juice stains, keep a half lemon handy. This is excellent for discolored elbows too. Rub the lemon over entire hand and arm, or dig nails into it. Do this before massaging with cream and immediately after follow with the massage to counteract any drying effect of the lemon juice. Remember to wear gloves for household tasks as well as outdoors and to avoid harsh soaps and powders for washing dishes, scrubbing, etc.

For very quick action, if hands have been neglected and you wish them to look lovely at short notice, many readers have reported excellent results from the use of a ready-prepared hand jelly and whitener combination.

HOME MANICURE

PALE hands, pink-tipped, nails diligently cared for, add immeasurably to feminine charm, grace and good grooming.

Of course, it is best to have a weekly, or twice monthly manicure by a professional. This done, it is a very simple matter to keep the nails in perfect condition. Only a minute a day will be necessary to run an emery board over the outer edge, to push back the cuticle, with a soft towel after washing the hands (this should be a habit) and to apply a bit of cuticle oil or nourishing cream along the nail bed. This decreases any danger of hangnails and makes it unnecessary to have the cuticle cut frequently.

After massaging with the softening cream or oil, an orange wood stick should be used around the base of the nail to keep the cuticle shapely and free.

If you find it necessary to give yourself a complete manicure at home you will need: a file, emery board, orange wood stick, cotton, cuticle remover, polish, nail white if you wish, cuticle scissors and buffer. First, remove any remaining polish with a small piece of cotton moistened in the remover. Then file and shape the nails. Remember that the shape of the nails should conform with the shape of the fingers, slightly pointed for tapering fingers; rounded for the stubby fingertips; oval for the average. File from the sides to the center of the nail. Now use the emery board, rough side first and finish with fine side to insure a perfect finish.

Many of the finer beauty parlors then buff the nails with dry polish. This step may be included if you wish. The next step is soaking fingertips in hot, soapy water and softening the cuticle. Dry fingers thoroughly, each fingertip separately and gently push back the cuticle. If flesh under nail tip is badly discolored use a bleach. Equal parts of hydrogen peroxide, lemon juice and ammonia. Or powdered pumice and peroxide to make a paste for very stubborn discolorations. Work this back and forth with pointed edge of orange wood stick, wrapped in cotton.

One reason why hangnails form so soon after a manicure is the fact that very often the cuticle removers used are quite drying. The soap and water soaking also swells the cuticle. Faulty manicuring may be the cause of the hangnails. Make it a point to massage a little olive oil or cream into the cuticle and nail base every night for a few minutes and I am sure you will not be troubled by the hangnails.

NO CORPSE IN TOMB OF CZAR

Old Tale Regarding Russian Ruler Revived.

An empty coffin—Czar Alexander I—was the sensation of Leningrad, where, searching for jewels, Soviet officials broke into the imperial tombs at the citadel of Sts. Peter and Paul, recently, and found plenty of dead potentates, but no Alexander I.

Is it possible that Alexander, whose official death at Taganrog in the Crimea in 1825 was attended with curious circumstances, merely absconded? Stories, now suddenly revived, say that he did. Having murdered his father, Alexander nursed a bad conscience, and was reported to have talked of abdication.

Eleven years after Alexander's official death, according to M. Octave Aubry, a handsome old man riding a superb horse appeared in Krasno-Ufimsk in the Perm region. He said he was Fedor Kousmitch, but would tell nothing more about himself, so he went to jail as a vagrant and caught a flogging.

Then came the Grand Duke Michael, making a great row. Fedor asked only to be sent to Siberia. The request was granted, and he at first worked in a state distillery near Tomsk. "There," said M. Aubry in La Figaro, "he was looked upon as a saint."

Five years later, this Fedor appeared in a Cossack village, where he taught little children, instructed the farmers, prayed with the sick. People thought him a nobleman who had taken a vow of asceticism. The archbishop of Irkutsk came to visit him. One day, a soldier came. "That is the czar!" he cried. "That is our father, Alexander Pavlovitch!" A pupil of Fedor's went to Russia, saw portraits of Alexander I, and, on her return, exclaimed, "Little father, you look just like the Emperor Alexander!" A woman, Madame Balakhine, told of having seen among Fedor's papers the marriage certificate of Alexander and the Empress Elizabeth, Prince Bariathinsky asserts in "The Mystery of Alexander" that Fedor received a visit from the empress shortly before his death, which occurred in 1804.

Was Fedor Kousmitch Alexander I? "We must not forget that some pretty stiff yarns came out of Russia," said M. Aubry, "and yet several members of the imperial family were so nearly convinced that Nicholas II ordered the coffin opened, countermanding the order only when the Grand Duke Vladimir insisted."—Literary Digest.

THE TWINS SPRING A SURPRISE ON WASHDAY

No More Spotted, Streaked Clothes

—since they started using Oxydol!

"When my daughter said she thought she would give that new Oxydol a try, I prophesied a line full of spotted and streaked clothes. The directions for using it sounded too good to be true. But I had to change my mind! The work was so light and the clothes so white that we decided Oxydol was our soap for good!"

THE amazing new discovery of the world's most famous soap experts, the makers of Ivory—this new and improved Oxydol does these things no other soap can do or has ever done:

- (1) Soaks clothes clean in 15 minutes. Without boiling, without back-breaking rubbing. Hence—cuts washing time 25% to 40% in tub or machine, saving hours of labor.
- (2) Gets clothes 4 to 5 shades WHITER, by scientific Tintometer test, than other soaps. Whiter in ONE washing than ANY other soap can get them in TWO TO FOUR washings!
- (3) Yet, due to the special mild protective elements it contains, it neither fades nor injures color or fabric. Even cotton prints and children's dainty frocks are safe. And—it's so kind to hands that you're amazed at its power to clean clothes!

Thick 3-inch Suds in Any Water
Oxydol is specially fitted to water conditions in each district where it's sold. The Oxydol you get here already contains just the right amount of water-softener to fit the water you use. You can see the results in the suds. Oxydol multiplies 500 TIMES in suds! Makes rich 3-inch suds in any water, hard or soft!

And Oxydol is economical. By actual test, a regular 25c package will do the work of 8 to 10 cakes of bar soap or 2 to 3 times as much flakes!

In honor of their 23rd anniversary, Mr and Mrs. Ray Lemon were given a surprise party last Friday night. The Gbofus club initiating it, felt more of their friends should be asked, so quite a crowd, including relatives from White Oaks, came suddenly upon them unannounced. It was an enjoyable evening; old time games livened the hours, and substantial refreshments of pickles, hamburgers, buns and coffee, brought by the guests were served. Many wishes of happy returns of the occasion were expressed to this popular couple as the crowd bade their adieus for the night.

Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Massey and son of Roswell are visiting Mr. Riley McPherson and family.

Mrs. Nellie Branum and Mrs. Oscar Clouse went to El Paso last Tuesday where Mrs. Branum visited her little grand daughter, Louise Ellen Ayars.

High School Notes

Last Saturday the Corona H. S. boys came down and played our High School boys. We are sorry to state that we lost. In spite of our efforts, they won. However, we hope to do well in the tournament.

Last Monday an especially interesting address was given at our assembly by Mr. A. L. Burke. He spoke on the qualities of Lincoln, and enlightened us concerning one of our greatest Americans. The speech was really educational and inspiring.

The English IV class gave a very interesting program in honor of the Father of our country, Washington.

The Junior class play is scheduled to be given on Wednesday, 28. We predict that it will be very interesting as the Juniors have set their minds on making it so.

Lonesome

A boy or girl away at college, your parents living in another city, relatives and good friends in nearby or distant towns — would you like to talk with them more frequently? Make them happy with a telephone call. You'll thrill to hear their voices, too, and it's next best to seeing them.

Why not call them tonight?

OUR RACE

We are running a race. The girls beat last week. But we think the boys are going to win the race this time. The girls are the tigers and the boys are the lions. We went to California last week. We are going to Chicago this week and to Carlsbad cavern next week. We must all come to school clean if we want to win.

KEEPING CLEAN

We wash our hands and necks and ears and faces every day. We take a bath twice a week and brush our teeth three times every day.

We do not put our fingers or our pencils in our mouths. We want to be clean and strong. A clean mouth helps us to keep well. We want to keep well and strong.

HOT CANDY

Once a fox, some bees, a squirrel and a wolf made some candy. The squirrel picked the hot candy. He dropped it on the fox's foot. The fox jumped up and down, then he stepped on a bee. The bee stung him on the nose. The wolf laughed so hard that he sat down in the hot candy. Then they all laughed at Mr. Wolf.

ACCEPT NOTHING LESS THAN A V-8

OUT PERFORMS ANY OTHER MOTOR

Old fashioned, high pressure tires were good in their day but balloon tires are better. Just so the old "straight" type motors are giving way to the efficient V-type design.

In the high priced field the V-type engine has been the accepted design for many years. Nothing is as good. The Ford V-8 is the only car you can get under $2,000. with a V-type 8 cylinder engine. It is the most economical car to operate ever built by Ford.

Get the best for your money. Accept nothing less than a V 8

Clear Vision

How to provide an effective system of ventilation in the enclosed models has been the problem of engineers. Ford has solved it in the new V 8 for 1934. No unsightly up or down bars or "wings" to obstruct the vision. The controlling device is hidden. The window ventilators are built in all front door and rear quarter windows. The window is raised in the regular way. Then, a simple turn of the handle slides the glass back to the ventilating position. A ride in the new Ford is convincing of this safety and comfort advantage.
