NUMBER 46

High School Notes

(By Helen Strauss)

The wind blew last Friday, but it didn't prevent Carrizozo students from taking most of the honors in the Activity Day contests. Activity Day was a big success as far as Carrizozo was concerned for we won every trophy offered.

Saturday, April 14 will be another big day. The district Home Economics meeting will be held here. About 80 students and teachers from the various schools are expected to attend. Lunch will be served to them at noon. In the afternoon the girls will present a program at the H. S. auditorium. Everyone is invited to see it.

Miss Margaret O'Leughlin, head of the Home Ec department at State College and teacher trainer for vocational, was in town Thursday. While here she visited and inspected the local H. E. department and several homes.

Read the Magnolia Ad

On page 5 of the News will be found the first of a series of ads for the Magnolia Company, represented here by Mr. Prior at the Mal Pais service station.

You should "summerize" your car now. Removing the winter oils and greases is a protective measure. "Summerize" is a word coined by the Magnolia Petroleum Company describing the 7 point service to be found at Magnolia stations.

DANCE

The Country Club will give a big and very attractive dance at the Community hall Saturday night April 14. Sponsored by the golf club.—Committee.

Notice to Tax Payers

The second half 1933 taxes are now due. 5 per cent interest and costs will be added May 1st, 1934.

L. J. Adams,
Treasurer.

(By Dr. J. R. Barp)

Most people have moles. It is thought that nine people out of ten can boast of one or more of them. Most moles are harmless. But when a mole does go to the bad it goes all the way and turns into that most dangerous form of cancer called melanoma. Melanin is the skin pigment which gives us our tan or our freckles as the case may be and many moles are colored light brown, dark brown, or black according to the amount of melanin that is in them.

This month an article has appeared in the Journal of the American Medical Association about fifty patients who had been treated for moles that had become malignant. Ten of them were not seen again. Of the other forty, twenty six have died from the disease, the average survival after treatment being less than three years.

Moles may go to the bad at any time of life but they are most likely to do so during middle age. Usually they begin by growing larger and then grow darker. Occasionally the color changes before the size. It may be several months afterwards that the mole begins to ooze a little blood. When this happens the patient may become alarmed and go to a doctor. But by then much valuable time has been lost.

No one should ever attempt to remove moles themselves. To paint them with acids or to tie a thread around them is very likely to turn a quite harmless mole into a cancer. It is doubtful whether it is worthwhile to remove a harmless mole unless it is on the face, on the feet or, in some spot where it is likely to be rubbed and irritated. But if change in size or color is noticed a good surgeon should be consulted at once. He will probably want to use radium and X-rays as well as surgery in his attempt to stop the spread of malignancy.

Ancho Notes

ALLEN HIGHTOWER

A large crowd of pioneers and friends paused Monday afternoon to pay a final tribute to Mr. Hightower who succumbed Friday, April 6th, at 5:55 p. m. to a complication of heart and kidney trouble. He was born December 3rd., 1862 in Ruston, La.

For more than forty years Mr. Hightower had made his home in White Oaks and Ancho engaged in stock raising in that vicinity and despite his 71 years was very active.

He was married July 28th, 1895 to Maudie Cooper and to this union six children were born. One daughter, Dora, having preceded him in death. The following survive to mourn his death; Alvin and Bill Hightower of Oakland, California; Mrs. R. M. Jones, Tucumcari, N. M.; Bryan and Cooper Hightower of Ancho. One brother, Dick Hightower of Ruston, La. And seven grand children.

Services were held at 2 p. M. Monday from the First Baptist church of Carrizozo with Rev. Jordon officiating. Burial followed in the Cedarvale cemetery at White Oaks.

Active pallbearers were Messrs. Albert Ziegler, Herman Kelt, Henry Lutz, F. J. Sager, Paul Mayer and Les Harmon.

Mr. Hightower who was perhaps one of the best known and certainly among the well thought of pioneer stock of this country had been critically ill for several days. Thursday he suffered a relapse from which he failed to rally.

Born to Mr. and Mrs. Alex Frambraugh Thursday morning April 5th, a 7½ pound girl, whose name will be Alexia.

There will be a dance and pie supper at the school house Saturday night sponsored by the base ball boys. Let's all come out and give the boys a boost.

Mrs. Allen Kile visited her mother, Mrs. T. J. Straley of El Paso last week. Mrs. Kile reports her mother as much improved but by no means in condition to return home.

Mr. Wade of Jicarilla who has been sick is able to be out and about again.

Mr. and Mrs. R. M. Jones have returned to their home in Tucumcari. Mrs. Jones is the only surviving daughter of Mr. Allen Hightower.

One of Ancho's oldest buildings, the abandoned tile school house, burned to the ground Monday, April 9; cause of fire is unknown. The building was occupied as a store by Roberts Bros. of Corona. Their large stock of goods was an almost total loss.

Auto Accident Near Luna

Last Monday afternoon at Lell St. John was returning from Vaughn where he had been to take his mother-in-law home, he swerved his car to avoid running into a trailer left in the road near Luna. The car left the highway and turned over three times, and was badly wrecked, but Lell was unharmed. A passing motorist picked him up and brought him home. He had the car towed in Tuesday morning.

Mr. Porfirio Chavez, Jr., returned last Saturday from Hot Springs, where he had been visiting his parents.

Fire Chief Entertains

Mr. J. M. Beck, fire chief and the members of the fire department entertained the newly elected members of the city council at the Beck home last Monday evening with a hamburger supper. After an excellent supper prepared by Messrs. Mendenhall and Reed Dudley, (and to which all present did ample justice proving Mr. Mendenhall and Reed to be excellent cooks) cards, checkers and dominoes were played until a late hour.

According to Mrs. Oia C Jones Lincoln County School Superintendent, CWA has done a great deal for the schools in Lincoln County. Innumerable repairs and improvements have been made, such as: window screening, cistern repairs, kalsomining, building and painting outhouses, graveling school grounds, fencing, making walks and constructing sec-saws, swings and other playground equipment.

The funeral of Mr. Allen Hightower was held here Monday, from the Baptist church. Mr. Hightower was a well known and highly respected citizen of Ancho, and had many friends who mourn his passing. Interment was at White Oaks. Mr. Hightower's obituary will be found in Ancho notes.

Mr and Mrs. A. H. Kudner and seven guests are due to arrive here today by airplane from Kansas City.

Word was received at the sheriff's office here Tuesday to be on the lookout for a car containing Clyde Barrow and Bonnie Parker. All highways were guarded, but the couple failed to materialize.

Mrs. Nellie Branum entertained in honor of her niece, Miss Leslye Cooper, Thursday evening. It was a surprise birthday party, to which all the members of Leslye's class were invited, and a few outside friends, twenty-eight in number. Games were played; refreshments of punch and cake were served, including a large birthday cake which had a ring, thimble, wish bone, etc. inside. The honoree was the recipient of many dainty and beautiful presents.

HE WAS "AMERICA'S TROUBADOUR"

By ELMO SCOTT WATSON

IT WAS a Scotch political writer who, more than two centuries ago, said in substance: "I care not who makes a nation's laws if I have the making of its ballads," but it remained for an American to give real significance to that oft-quoted — and usually misquoted — saying. With but few exceptions, the fame of the hundreds of our lawmakers has scarcely survived their brief moment on the stage of history, but the fame of Stephen Foster has endured for nearly a century and seems likely to endure for centuries to come. For he was the man who wrote some of a nation's best-loved ballads and a new biography of him by John Tasker Howard, published by the Thomas Y. Crowell company, bears the appropriate title of "Stephen Foster, America's Troubadour."

Considering the place which Foster and his songs hold in the hearts of his countrymen, it is also appropriate that the birthday of the nation should also be his birthday. For he was born on July 4, 1826, the fiftieth anniversary of the signing of the Declaration of Independence, and at noon on that day he was ushered into the world to the tune of "Hail Columbia," "Yankee Doodle," "Hail to the Chief" and "The Star Spangled Banner," played by blaring bands, "while cannon with their noisy salutes shook the ground so heavily that some were afraid they would disturb the delicate, though accustomed, operation at the White Cottage" in Lawrenceville, Pa. (now a district in the city of Pittsburgh).

The reference to the "accustomed operation" is to the fact that the new member of the Foster family was the ninth child born to William B. and Eliza Foster and had Stephen been the first, rather than the ninth child his wife had borne him, William B. Foster might not have felt as free to absent himself from his home at noon on that 4th of July. But that does not necessarily mean that such events were too commonplace to keep William Foster at the side of his wife. For he was a prosperous merchant and trader, a leading citizen of the community on the banks of the Allegheny river and on that particular occasion an assistant to the mayor of Pittsburgh in the conduct of the Independence Day celebration—a good reason for his absence from the White Cottage.

A part of the celebration was an "excellent dinner" at which 18 toasts (in honor of the Thirteen Original States) were given and William Foster "came second, as first vice president of the day, following the mayor, who drank to 'The United States of America.' Foster toasted 'The Independence of the United States' . . . 'acquired by the blood and valor of our venerable progenitors. To us they bequeathed the dear bought inheritance; to our care and protection they consigned it; and the most sacred obligations are upon us to transmit the glorious purchase, unfeathered by power, to our innocent and beloved offspring.' Was he thinking of his latest offspring, of whose coming by this time he must have known?"

Under the circumstances the newcomer in the Foster household perhaps should have been given a name in keeping with the importance of that day. For it was one of the most significant Independence days in our history in that it saw the death of two former Presidents—Thomas Jefferson and John Adams. A month later a relative, writing to the little boy's older sister, Charlotte Foster, asked "How does . . . the little Hero, for I prophesy he will be one, being born on so great and eventful a day. You certainly ought to call him Jefferson or Adams and no other name. . . . But his mother thought otherwise. She named him Stephen Collins for the son of a neighbor and childhood friend of hers, a little boy who had died just before her son was born."

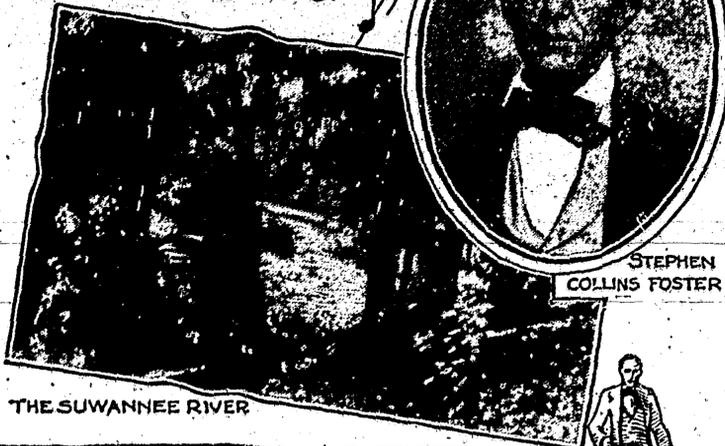

The youngest member of a large family, Stephen was both petted and spoiled, but he seems never to have been very well understood by the other Fosters. His aptitude for music came into evidence early. When he was two, he would place his sister's guitar on the floor and, bending over it, pick out harmonies from its strings. When he was seven he was taken into a music store by one of his brothers. There he saw a flageolet, picked it up and was playing a tune upon it before his brother realized what he was doing.

At the age of thirteen Stephen was taken by his older brother, William, to Towanda, Pa., so he could attend Athens academy at Tioga Point, not far away. But the boy was homesick at Athens and spent much of his time with his brother at Towanda, attending the Towanda academy as well as the one at Tioga Point. He was not a particularly apt student and about the only importance there is to this period in his career is that during this time he composed his first music, "The Tioga Waltz," arranged for four flutes and written for the commencement exercises at Athens, upon which occasion Stephen played the leading part himself, while three other students played the remaining parts.

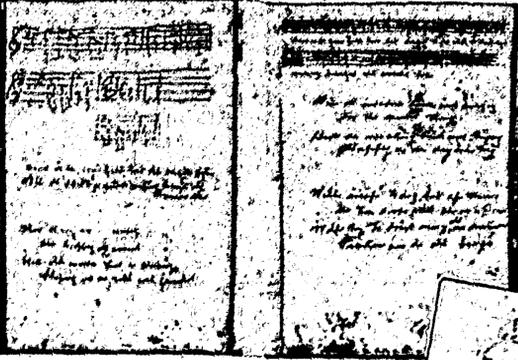

In 1841 Stephen entered Jefferson college at Canonsburg, Pa., 15 miles from his home at Pittsburgh, and stayed in this institution just seven days. Then, overcome by homesickness, he left college, after again to seek a formal education. A year later he composed the music for his first song "Open Thy Lattice, Love," a poem written by George F. Morris which had appeared in a supplement to the New Mirror. It was issued as a two-page song, without title page, with this heading on the first page

OPEN THY LATTICE LOVE
(Unposed for and dedicated

Miss Susan E. Fenland
Of Pittsburgh
by G. F. Morris
Lyrics from the New Mirror

Says his biographer: "Poor Stephen, the publisher failed to print his name correctly on his very first song!" Perhaps it was prophetic of the long life of misfortune that were to be his throughout his career. It was during this period that the first negro minstrel shows began to appear on the American scene and Pittsburgh seems to have enjoyed its share of them. Foster "found the songs of the current minstrel shows crude, vulgar ditties that struck the popular fancy, but which nevertheless were lyrics and songs that in spite of their vulgarity actually represented something genuinely American. Stephen made of this class of music a literature that is well worth preserving—he brought artistry and sincerity to a medium that before his entry had reeked of the alley and the barroom."

The gayest of them all is "O, Susanna" written when Stephen was a blithe young blade of nineteen. He had a half dozen boon companions, youths of his own age, who met regularly twice a week to sing at Stephen's home. They brought their banjos and guitars with them, and called themselves "Knights of the Square Table." It was for this group that Stephen wrote many of his finest and earliest songs, including "Louisiana Belle," "Uncle Ned" and "O, Susanna!" The latter was immediately taken up by all the minstrel shows, of which there were a great number then on the road. It also became the marching song and the campfire song of the Forty-niners on their way to the gold fields of California.

For "O, Susanna" Foster received $100, an amount which determined his career for him. "Imagine my delight in receiving $100 in cash!" he wrote later. "Though this song was not successful, yet the two $50 bills I received for it had the effect of starting me on my present vocation."

Of all the popular songs that had their birth on American soil in Foster's time, his were the only ones that lived. The others were sung for a year or two and forgotten. Curiously enough, Stephen imagined that his songs would be forgotten as quickly as the others. It never seemed to occur to him that they might have the seeds of immortality in them. Proof of this was to be found in his willingness, after receiving $1,000 in royalties for one of his songs in six years, to sell the copyright for $100 in the belief that its day was nearly spent and it would not be likely to bring in more than that. So he presented "O, Susanna!" and "Old Uncle Ned" to W. G. Peters, a friend of the family who was in the music publishing business and who proceeded to make $10,000 out of them.

Foster's indifference to what became of his songs led to their being copyrighted by other persons. Even in the case of "Old Folks at Home," a song which became world-famous and which Mr. Howard believes has been printed more often than either "Home, Sweet Home" or "Annie Laurie," he authorized, for a small consideration, the publication under the name of E. P. Christy, who headed the Christy minstrel.

Morrison Foster has related how his brother came to him with a letter from E. P. Christy asking the composer to write a song for him to sing before it was published. Morrison told Stephen not to do it unless Christy paid him. A form of agreement was drawn up and the paper was sent to Christy. Afterward, when the song had become closely associated with Christy's name and had been copyrighted with his name as author and composer, Stephen wrote to Christy to permit him to claim it as his own. He wrote humbly: "On receipt of your free consent to this proposition, I will, if you wish, willingly refund you the money which you paid me on that song, though it may have been sent me for other considerations than the one in question, and I promise in addition to write you an opening chorus in my best style, free of charge, and in any other way to advance your interests hereafter. I find I cannot write at all unless I write for public approbation and get credit for what I write."

Although Stephen had told Christy that he could accomplish little so long as "Old Folks at Home" stared him in the face with another man's name on it and although he expressed the hope that the singer would appreciate an author's feelings in the case, there is no record of a reply from Christy, and it was a long time before Foster's name appeared on the song. Although Morrison Foster said Stephen received $500 for the song, he confessed to a friend in New York that he got from $10 to $15 for his songs from Christy, but that he received two cents a copy for the 100,000 copies of the first edition which was soon exhausted. Adeline Patti and Christine Nilsson helped to make the song popular by singing it in their concerts.

The story has often been told of how the Suwannee river, a small stream in Florida which Stephen never saw, he even knew of, came to be immortalized in the "Old Folks at Home." His brother, Morrison Foster, told it first in his biography of Stephen—that the composer wanted the name of some southern river two syllables in length, rejecting both Pedee and Yazoo, which Morrison suggested. Then the latter took down an atlas and Suwannee was found. "That's it exactly," the brother reports Stephen as saying, and continues: "He left the office, as was his custom, abruptly, without saying another word, and I resumed my work."

Although Mr. Howard admits the ring of authenticity, he doubts the exactness of the account of the incident as here set down. "We know from Stephen's workbook," he says, "that Pedee was probably not Morrison's suggestion, but rather Stephen's first idea, one with which he was dissatisfied."

The decade 1850 to 1860 was to be Stephen Foster's heyday. In 1850 he was married to Jane McDowell. In 1852 he wrote "Massa's in the Cold, Cold Ground"; began efforts to have himself acknowledged as the rightful author of "Old Folks at Home," and with his wife took that memorable steamboat trip to New Orleans, the rich fruit of which was to be the song, "My Old Kentucky Home," copyrighted in 1853. What claim the state of Kentucky may have upon this song Mr. Howard discusses at length. Stephen had cousins living in the beautiful mansion known as Federal Hall in Bardonia, and that he visited them there is certain. Beyond that Howard is not willing to go. The house was recently purchased by the state and made a Foster shrine. However, although he was to write literally hundreds more of songs, this marvelous piece, with its haunting "good-night" line, was never to be surpassed by Stephen.

Foster's newest biographer treats the subject of his marriage cautiously, declaring that Jane doubtless put up with a great deal of nonsense and that it would have required a saint to become the perfect wife for Stephen Foster. But it seems that Jane had some irritating ways, such as talking during concerts, which must have been exasperating indeed to her sensitive husband. Mr. Howard thinks it probable that she nagged him. They had a child, Marion, but the dreamy Stephen may not have been very good at family life. His efficient wife subsequently learned to make her own living as a telegrapher.

They lived for a few years with Stephen's family in Pittsburgh, then moved to New York where the composer yielded more and more to strong drink. Jane left him only because she had to earn her living, and when he died, she and Morrison hastened to New York together. Stephen Collins Foster died on January 13, 1864—still a young man—and he died almost unrecognized, a patient in a charity hospital. Believe in New York City. In the pocket of his clothes they found a small purse containing just 25 cents and a slip of paper with five penciled words on it. They were: "Dear friends and gentle hearts."

"No doubt this was to have been the title of an unwritten song, but whatever its intent, the phrase describes quite perfectly the dear friend and gentle heart who added 'Old Folks at Home' and a dozen other immortal songs to the world's spiritual riches."

Then, the end of the sad saga of "America's Troubadour."

"We would be glad to come any evening," said Anne with her accustomed frankness. "You are the first person who has asked us to dinner."

"What a neglect of opportunity!" murmured Mrs. Lassiter, "but it won't last long. Next winter we will have to speak for you months ahead. Meanwhile, I will get in touch with you again very shortly, Mrs. Conrad."

Mrs. Lee seemed as pleased as Anne herself at the invitation, and she told Anne something about the Lassiters as they drove away. Mrs. Lassiter was a very wealthy widow, it seemed, and acted as hostess for her son, who was unmarried, and the greatest "catch" in the senatorial circle. "You made quite an impression on him at the opening of congress. He asked who you were immediately after he saw you in the gallery, and has told several people he thought you were the prettiest woman there."

The promised dinner invitation was delivered by hand before Neal and Anne had finished their own supper that night. It was surmounted by a gold crest, over which was written in ink "In honor of the French Ambassador and Madame Marceau." Underneath, partly engraved and partly written, appeared the words:

Mrs. Lassiter requests the pleasure of Senator and Mrs. Conrad's company at dinner on Wednesday evening December 14th at eight o'clock.

214 Massachusetts Avenue, "Less than a week off!" exclaimed Anne. "Oh, Neal, what shall I wear?" Neal laughed. "What a question for a woman who has just got back from Paris! Your clothes are lovely, Anne, you know they are,—and you mustn't try to save them. When the ones you have now begin to get shabby you must have some more. I think that white velvet with the glittering trimming—rhinestones do you call it?—is about the best—and I guess you better wear the best."

"It is going to be hard, Neal, driving a car in evening clothes."

"I know—I do wish we could afford more help. Dora must stop doing the washing, that's certain. You must send it out, Anne, or get a woman to come in and help with it and to get supper the nights Dora goes out."

"We can't afford it," Anne objected. "But her objection was rather weak. It was all too obvious that neither she nor Dora could continue to work as hard as they had been doing without breaking down, if so many outside demands were to be made upon them."

"We have got to afford it," Neal retorted resolutely. "Thank goodness this is a short season! I'll be back in Hingham the fifth of March, digging away for dear life! No vacation for me this summer! My poor old clients will have to cough up enough for us to live on decently here, since the government won't, and next winter we will be doing things right. In the meantime, we will have to find some kind of temporary solution."

The solution presented itself in an unexpected, not to say startling, manner. When Anne returned from her round of calls the following afternoon ("Will I ever," she was saying to herself, "do anything in the afternoon again but call, call, call!"), she drew back in alarm before a maddened figure which was crouched on her front steps, in an attitude of the deepest dejection. At her startled exclamation, the figure unfolded itself and stood up—a gaunt, unkempt man, young but haggard, dressed in a shabby uniform.

"Good evening, marm," he said awkwardly, taking off his frayed cap, "sorry if ah frightened you. Don't need a man, do you?"

"Good gracious," exclaimed Anne, "I don't know. What kind of a man? What do you mean?"

"Well, ah meant my kind of a man," the intruder explained hopefully. "Ah been lookin' for work quite a spell. But ah can't seem to find none. Pears like the feller that stayed to home while we-all was to war collared all the jobs. Ah come up here to try to fix ma claim at the Veterans' bureau and ah ain't got ma claim and ah ain't got no money to go home with neither. Ah'm plumb broke. And ah got so dead beat, walkin' the streets, lookin' for some-thing to do, that ah finally set down here on your stoop. Ah ain't askin' for much . . . your hired girl wouldn't let me in. But she said ah could wait outside till you-all come home."

"Can you drive a car?" asked Anne without circumlocution. The haggard veteran grinned.

"Well, ah hein't had much experience with Rolla-Royces and them, lady, but a small car—"

"It is a small car," said Anne with surprising suddenness. "Are you willing to wash windows and tend a furnace and put on a white coat and open the door?"

"Ah'm willing to do anything," said the man with pathetic eagerness. "Are you-are you white? It is so dark I can't see. I've had my maid a long time and I don't know how she would feel about a colored man in the house," said Anne with slight confusion.

ah reckon. Ah come from the mountains, Kentucky—ah seen your hired girl. She's powerful pert lookin'. Ah'd be pleased to help her any ways ah could. Ah can cook a meal, too, real good."

"What's your name?" demanded Anne.

"Delancy. Mah first name's Hod—Horace."

"Well, Horace Delancy, if I get you the clothes you need and feed you, will you come to me for—thirty dollars a month? Until you have proved you are worth more? There's a little bit of a dark room in the rear of the basement. I'm ashamed to ask anyone to sleep in it, but if you—"

"Oh, marm," exclaimed Horace Delancy, "oh, lady!"

He pitched suddenly forward. Anne caught him, supported him. Neal swung suddenly into sight around the corner of the street and ran towards the house.

"This is our new chauffeur," said Anne calmly, "an answer to prayer. He just fainted away because, I expect—it's some time since he had a square meal; but he is going to be another household treasure just like Dora."

Horace Delancy, warm, fed, bathed, shaved, and clad in neat whipcord, drove Anne and Neal to their dinner at the Lassiters the following Wednesday evening.

"Well, Ah Meant My Kind of a Man," the Intruder Explained Hopefully.

It was—of course—a crazy thing to take a man off the street like that into one's house. Both Anne and Neal admitted it. But somehow, neither of them hesitated to do the "crazy thing" just the same; and Dora's harsh and suspicious comments were nullified by her kind and charitable actions. And she was repaid in kind. Horace Delancy had scarcely recovered from his faint when he assumed control of the furnace. The following morning he drove the children to school, Neal to the senate office building, and Anne to the Central market; and before evening he had washed every window in the house. It was not until Sunday, however, that his supreme opportunity came. Dora went out then, and he served his astonished benefactors, not the cold "pick-up" supper which is usually associated with a religious observance of the Sabbath, but a meal in which fried chicken, corn fritters, beaten biscuit, fruit salad, and Lady Baltimore cake were a few of the more substantial offerings.

Her release from the pressure of domestic duties immediately gave Anne an increased freedom of both action and spirit. On the swartful evening of the dinner she sang as she put the studs in Neal's dress shirt and laid it on the bed beside the white velvet dress with the "glittery" trimming. When Neal came home she had already bathed and was sitting clad in her silk slip before her dressing table, her hair hanging like a cloud of gold about her.

"Lorelei!" he whispered, laughing, and his arms slid down around her slim, pliant body, and tightened there. He lifted her up, and sat down himself, holding her closely to him. "Darling Anne! I do love you so! I don't say so often, I know, or show it as much as I might, and sometimes I know I seem preoccupied—indifferent—neglectful even—but—" He did not try to go on. Indeed there was no necessity that he should. Anne understood, and made her understanding sweetly clear. When at last he set her on her feet again, he began to fumble a little weakly, a little shamefacedly, in his pocket.

"It is a long time since I have given you a present—would this be pretty, do you think, with the 'glittery' dress?"

"This" when taken out of the satin box with a little spring that clicked, and unwound from layers of flat cotton and twisted tissue paper, proved to be a diamond pendant, hung on a slender platinum chain fastened with a diamond clasp. Anne lifted it out breathlessly, starry-eyed.

President's Veto of Appropriation Bill Overridden by Both Houses; Farley Forces Shakeup in Air Companies; "Brain Trust" to Be Investigated.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT'S leadership received its first important setback when the senate, following similar action by the house, overrode his veto of the independent offices appropriation bill carrying the veterans' and federal pay provisions. The vote in the senate was 63 to 27, or three more than the required two-thirds. In the house the vote was overwhelming, 310 to 72, a margin of 55 more than the necessary two-thirds.

The bill is now a law, and its passage is of high significance, as it throws the budget estimates out of kilter and adds greatly to the tax burden of the people. But of more importance is the evident fact that the President has lost his firm grip on congress. Fear of reprisals by war veteran voters in the coming elections proved a greater fear with many Democratic senators than the displeasure of the President.

Restoring two-thirds of a 15 percent pay cut voted for a million government employees, including military and naval personnel, in the economy act last summer, the bill also greatly liberalizes compensation and pensions to veterans of the World and Spanish-American wars.

The bill will cost the government an additional $210,000,000 annually. It eliminates retroactively as of February 1, 1934, one-third of the federal employees' pay cut and an additional third on July 1. The cost to the government under the provision will be $20,000,000 for the period from February 1 to July 1, and $190,000,000 annually thereafter.

While the President by executive order has restored many veterans to the compensation and hospitalization rolls, congress made mandatory awards estimated to cost the government about $24,000,000 annually and an additional $21,000,000 for the rest of the present fiscal year.

The increased amounts for government workers and veterans will come from the general revenues of the government.

AFTER weeks of exhausting negotiations the threatened strike in the automobile industry was averted when President Roosevelt secured an agreement between executives and labor leaders. Representation for all employees in dealing with management was established, and safeguards were extended to all unions against intimidation or interference.

"It is my hope," said the President, "that this system may develop into a kind of works council in industry in which all groups of employees, whatever may be their choice of organization or form of representation, may participate in joint conference with their employers."

He hailed this as basis for a more comprehensive, adequate and equitable system of relations than ever has existed in a large industry.

The agreement avoids the licensing of the automobile industry, which labor threatened to invoke if there was no agreement. The American Federation of Labor is not recognized as such by industry except when its affiliates have the necessary votes on the collective bargaining committee.

One of the provisions of the agreement was that the NRA should set up a board, responsible to the President, to sit in Detroit and pass upon all questions of representation, discharge, and discrimination. Decision of the board is to be final upon all concerned. Three men will serve on the board, one representing labor, one industry, the third being neutral.

WEARY from the strain of close application to the affairs of state, President Roosevelt departed for a short vacation aboard Vincent Astor's yacht. He headed for the warm climes of southern waters to fish and relax for a week. It was an unprecedented move for the Executive to leave Washington while congress is in session, but with the same spirit of a year ago when he set out on the same yacht before taking the Presidential reins, the President greeted his cronies aboard ship and waved his hat to a rousing farewell from the folks on the dock at Jacksonville, Fla., where he boarded the yacht.

With carefree happiness he posed for the photographers and joked the newspaper men. He chatted eagerly with his eldest son, James, who joined him here for the cruise.

For the next week or more, the President will be fishing and swimming, away from the heavy cares of office. He intends to return to Washington within the ten-day constitutional limit required for consideration of any legislation passed by congress.

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT Monday called on congress to pass legislation with "teeth in it" for the control of the nation's stock and commodity exchanges.

curtailed." His demand was made in a letter to Senator Duncan U. Fletcher (Dem., Fla.) and Representative Sam Rayburn (Dem., Texas), chairmen of the congressional committees which are handling the pending stock exchange bills.

Charging the exchanges with organizing one of the most determined lobbies which has fought any of his legislation, the President said that the country would not be satisfied unless the exchange control message is drastic. People generally, the President said, blame the speculation on exchanges for the 1929 artificial boom and the resulting slump.

IN THE foreword of his forthcoming new book, "On Our Way," President Roosevelt says if his administration "is a revolution, it is a peaceful one, achieved without violence, without the overthrow of the purpose of established law and without the denial of just treatment to any individual or class."

The proofs of the foreword, given out by the publishers, the John Day company, read:

"Some people have called our new policy 'fascism.' It is not fascism because its inspiration springs from the mass of the people themselves rather than from a class or a group or a marching army. Moreover, it is being achieved without a change in fundamental republican method. We have kept the faith with, and in, our traditional political institutions.

"Some people have called it 'communism'; it is not that, either. It is, not a driving regimentation founded upon the plans of a perpetuating dictatorship which subordinates the making of laws and the processes of the courts to the orders of the executives. Neither does it manifest itself in the total elimination of any class or in the abolition of private property.

"If it is a revolution, it is a peaceful one, achieved without violence, without the overthrow of the purposes of established law and without the denial of just treatment to any individual or class."

CHARGES made by Dr. William A. Wirt, superintendent of schools at Gary, Ind., that some of President Roosevelt's advisers wanted to lead the government into communism are to be investigated by a committee of the house of representatives. Doctor Wirt will be called before this committee to name the man or men who told him that President Roosevelt is merely the "Kerensky of this revolution" and that the radicals within the administration are seeking to foster a revolution by prolonging salary and destitution in this country.

Republican members of the house were determined that the inquiry will not be confined to the Wirt allegations alone, despite an apparent desire on the part of Democratic leaders to narrow the investigation's scope. Democratic members of the house were making an effort to confine the inquiry to the allegations made by the Gary educator alone. Under pressure from Republicans, however, it was agreed by the Democratic leaders that the men named by Doctor Wirt will have to be called.

The entire matter is being treated as a joke by members of the so-called "brain trust." They declare that Doctor Wirt has been made the victim of a practical joke by a mischievous member of the radical group. There were several different stories current as to the origin of the Wirt allegations, one version having it that the Gary educator mistook a newspaper man in New York for an official of the administration.

TWENTY-five thousand school children in German cities will be separated from their parents and sent to the country for a year by order of the Prussian state.

This is in line with the Nazi policy of "reconciliation of urban and rural population" which will be fostered by sending every town child to the country for a year. The 25,000 will compose the first trial batch. The year in the country will be financed partly by the state of Prussia and partly by school organizations.

BACK again at the scene of his triumphs and his failure, after being a fugitive for 13 months, Martin Inull, brother of Samuel Inull, is in Chicago to answer a charge of embezzlement from the treasury of the Middle West Utilities.

Inull arrived in Chicago—where he had lived for more than 40 years—an alien, technically excluded from the United States but paroled to Lieutenant Johnson until the charges against him are disposed of. His arrival ended a sensational trip from Toronto, with the most extraordinary entry of an alien into the United States ever recorded in the busy Detroit immigration office.

A PLAN for the complete freedom of the Philippines in 1945 or soon thereafter was written upon the statute books when President Roosevelt signed the McDuffie-McInnis bill. The Philippine legislature must accept the measure by October 1. Representatives from the islands present in Washington declared that it would be accepted by the legislature on May 1.

"This is a great day for you and for me," the President told President Manuel L. Quezon of the Philippine senate, adding that if invited he would attend the inaugural ceremonies at the new republic ten to twelve years hence.

THE number of individuals living on farms reached a record peak of 32,809,000 on January 1.

The bureau of agricultural economics, in a new study of farm population, attributed the increase principally to an excess of births over deaths, since more people left farms for cities, in 1933 in a continuation of the farm exodus of the past decade, than went from cities to farms. Persons who moved to farms last year were 351,000, while 1,178,000 moved away.

The farm-bound movement involved 1,544,000 persons in 1932 while those moving away numbered 1,011,000.

The bureau based its estimates on data gathered on 149,817 farms in all parts of the country.

MONTHS of political unrest in Estonia, Baltic nation of 1,121,000 inhabitants, have culminated in a dictatorship, according to advices from Tallinn, the capital.

Gen. Johan Laidoner, commander in chief of the Estonian army, and known as "Estonia's George Washington," has assumed supreme authority with the agreement of the president and parliament.

A COMPLETE shakeup in commercial air lines, using the return of the air mail to private lines as a bait, is being forced by Postmaster General Farley. Thirty officials in private aviation companies must be forced out of office, the whole air mail structure is to be rebuilt, and all the old companies carrying mails must reorganize if they wish to share in federal air-mail subsidies in the future.

Both Republican and Democratic members of congress assailed the new order, denouncing the terms as too drastic.

Steps for the return of the air mail to private lines were launched immediately by advertising for bids on 15 routes, comprising 17,826 miles. None of the companies which had their previous contracts canceled will be allowed to bid unless they completely reorganize and drop all officials suspected of fraud or collusion in past bidding. The new bids will be for three months only, but may be extended for another six months if necessary. They are intended to provide private flying of the mails pending the settlement of a permanent air mail policy by congress.

A new system for computing rates which are to be paid for carrying the mails was announced. The new rates will be based on the average load carried per mile over the route during the month.

AUSTRIA's new corporate constitution, as published in the official government gazette, gives the President powers similar to those possessed by the late Emperor Franz Josef when he ascended the throne after crushing a republican revolution in 1919. The president will rule through the constitution, but may change it whenever he thinks an emergency demands. The constitution will be based on the principle that all power emanates from God—in contrast to the present one, which says all power emanates from the people.

But the people, nevertheless, will be given an opportunity to express their opinion at the polls whenever the government thinks this advisable. Popular initiative, however, is barred and the people will not have constitutional rights to elect their own government. All legislation must be initiated by the government, which will be advised but not controlled by four consultative bodies.

These will be the state council of 40 to 50 members appointed by the president; the federal cultural council, consisting of representatives of churches, religious societies and schools; the federal economic council, chosen from business, industrial, agricultural and financial circles, and the provincial council, consisting of governors and finance ministers of the various provinces.

RETENTION of the restrictions imposed on immigration by the present laws was recommended by a committee of 45 men and women appointed several months ago by Secretary Perkins to study the problem.

Only minor relaxations were suggested. The committee urged proper provision for reuniting families separated by immigration and providing asylum for refugees from racial and political persecution within the immigration quotas.

Relentless war on aliens who commit crimes and on the racketeer and gangster was recommended. The committee proposed, however, that provision be made so illegal entrants who have proved themselves desirable citizens could legalize their residence. It opposed deportation of aliens brought to this country as children but who have never qualified for citizenship.

A PLAN for the complete freedom of the Philippines in 1945 or soon thereafter was written upon the statute books when President Roosevelt signed the McDuffie-McInnis bill. The Philippine legislature must accept the measure by October 1. Representatives from the islands present in Washington declared that it would be accepted by the legislature on May 1.

"This is a great day for you and for me," the President told President Manuel L. Quezon of the Philippine senate, adding that if invited he would attend the inaugural ceremonies at the new republic ten to twelve years hence.

The Hubbard Medal The Hubbard medal is an award conferred by the National Geographic society "in recognition of the services to mankind of those who labor to push back the horizons of geography." The medal takes its name from Gardner Greene Hubbard, the founder and first president of the society. Its exclusiveness is probably what gives the medal its chief distinction. It has been awarded only to Peary, Amundsen, Gilbert, Shackleton, Stefansson, Bartlett, Byrd, Lindbergh and Mrs. Lindbergh.

That Body of Yours

By JAMES W. BARTON, M. D.

Psoriasis Cured by Fat Free Diet

ONE of the skin ailments that discourages both parents and physician is psoriasis—white scaly patches like mortar on the skin which, when the scales are peeled off leave a bleeding surface.

Just what causes this ailment has never been discovered. By using arsenic internally (Fowler's solution) and ammoniated mercury on the scaly patches, most cases clear up in time, only to break out again perhaps in a few months.

That "nervousness" may be a factor is admitted by many skin specialists, as also is the possibility of some gland disturbance in the body.

Thus the manner in which the body processes handle some foods may be at fault, as leaving out certain foods from the diet has cleared up a number of cases.

Some research men have found that it is during the cold weather that this skin ailment gets worse, and point out that psoriasis does not exist in the tropics.

Dr. O. Grutz and M. Burger, Berlin, relate some of their studies which tend to show that the underlying cause of psoriasis is probably a disturbance in the way in which the body uses the fat foods—cream, butter, fat meat.

Psoriasis may be due to the blood vessels of the skin allowing too much fat to be poured out on the surface of the skin, or because the form in which the fat reaches the skin is so altered that irritation arises.

In any case it is the fats that cause the trouble, cutting down on the fats should be good treatment.

To prove this Doctors Grutz and Burger stopped all other forms of treatment in eleven cases, and simply omitted the fats in the diet.

What was the result? In four cases that had resisted all other forms of treatment, leaving out the fats in the diet resulted in a complete cure; in five cases considerable improvements were observed, and two cases still being treated, likewise show improvement.

High Blood Pressure

IT HAS been carefully estimated that one in every 1,000 people die annually as a result of diseases associated with high blood pressure, yet all physicians know that certain patients may live many years in good health, despite well marked high blood pressure.

Why is it possible for some individuals with very high blood pressure to live to a good age whereas others live but a few years after the high blood pressure is discovered?

Dr. Edward J. Slegitz, in Illinois Medical Journal, states that the cause of high blood pressure is anything which injures or irritates the muscle wall of the blood vessel and thus causes these muscular or elastic fibers to contract more than the normal amount.

Now there are a number of things which will injure or irritate the blood vessel, therefore the treatment depends upon just what is causing the trouble in each particular case. As some of the causes can be removed or their effects lessened, and others cannot, you can see that some cases are likely to live for a long time and others live but a few years.

For instance something may be simply irritating the blood vessels, and its muscular walls tighten in an effort to overcome it, just as waste material from the food in the intestine irritates or stimulates the muscular walls of the intestine to tighten and thus push this waste outward and downward.

In this case there is no real damage being done to the wall of the blood vessel and when the irritating substance is removed, and no more, or at least very little is present, the blood pressure comes back to normal or near to the normal point.

If however the blood vessel is so injured or damaged that the muscle or elastic tissue is replaced by hard fibrous tissue then the blood pressure will be high and must continue to remain high.

The thought then is that where the elastic tissue of the vessels is simply being irritated causing a sort of spasm, then by removal of this irritation the blood pressure should be reduced and the life span be about normal. Infection from teeth, tonsils, gall bladder or intestine may be the cause.

Gamma Sigma, social fraternity at New Mexico State College in Las Cruces which was recently granted a charter in Tau Kappa Epsilon, national organization, has been formally installed.

With the arrest of eighteen persons in Phoenix, Yuma, Tucson and Flagstaff, federal agents announced they have practically ended a state-wide "dope ring" after a four months campaign.

Milo Reno, president of the National Farm Holiday Association, spoke at Albuquerque recently. Reno also spoke at Clovis and Portales and Roy and Tucuman before coming to Albuquerque.

The Arizona State Banking Department, acting on a formal order by Superior Court Judge Henry C. Kelly of Yuma county, took possession of the Inermountain Building and Loan Association of Arizona.

Saying he could not see how schools could be kept open, Gov. A. W. Hockenhull announced the call of the twelfth session of the New Mexico Legislature, a special session to convene in Santa Fe April 9.

State Game Warden S. L. Lewis announced recently that the game commission had revoked the hunting, fishing and trapping license of R. L. Davis and Frank Davis, both of Bisbee, for illegal possession of deer meat.

Laundry owners of New Mexico met recently in Albuquerque to discuss the laundry code. O. E. Wilson of Des Moines, president of the National Laundry Owners' Association, interpreted the code approved by the association.

Favorable reaction to the suggestion that New Mexico carry its own fire insurance has been received, Governor Hockenhull has announced. The governor is considering including this provision in his call for the special session of the legislature.

Whether the Elephant Butte Irrigation district will lend its support to finance a $2,500,000 to $3,000,000 hydroelectric power development plant at Elephant Butte and Caballo dams was to be decided at a meeting of the district board of directors in Las Cruces, N. M.

Louis Miller, who as special representative of the National Comptroller of Currency was instrumental in bringing about the reorganization of the First National Bank at Albuquerque last fall, has been appointed an inspector for the Deposits Insurance Corporation, it was learned recently.

Ex-President Herbert Hoover, his secretary, E. Saxon, and Henry M. Robinson of Los Angeles, passed through Yuma recently, en route to Chandler. The party were traveling by automobile. Saxon said the former president's visit to Arizona was "only a pleasure trip" of only a few days.

The Arizona Highway Commission recently considered the awarding of three contracts for construction of box culverts on U. S. 89 and widening of one mile of U. S. 89 and 186 between Miami and Globe. The contracts involve an expenditure of $48,305.52, of which more than $25,000 will be spent in Maricopa county.

Florence M. Warner, state emergency relief administrator, has received authority to add six Arizona districts and communities to the eleven cities previously designated where work under the NRA will be centralized. The new areas and communities are the Hayden-Winkelman district, the Clifton-Morenci district, Flagstaff, Winslow, Yuma and the Superior-Ray district.

Gov. B. B. Moehr of Arizona is a pioneer physician of the state. An old-time friend, Mrs. Albert Becca, 70, of Tempe was critically ill, but refused to undergo an operation "until the governor can attend me." Governor Moehr dropped affairs of state. With a motorcycle escort he speeded to Tempe in twelve minutes and performed the operation, which was pronounced successful.

A town may change the routing of a federal aid highway through its incorporated limits if the Supreme Court ruled recently in the case of Lee Tomlin and Jennie Tomlin vs. the Town of Las Cruces. Tomlin had sought an injunction against the board of trustees changing the routing of U. S. 89 to take it away from his place of business. The lower court dismissed the suit and the Supreme Court upheld the action of the lower court.

Gov. B. B. Moehr recently sought the aid of ten western governors in endorsing the bill introduced in Congress by Senator Henry F. Ashurst for a 10 cent per pound tax on all imports of copper. The telegram further requested that the state officials aid in passage of the Ashurst bill authorizing the Reconstruction Finance Corporation to purchase all surplus copper now available in the country and impound it for military purposes.

Gov. B. B. Moehr is not going to give up his fight over the Colorado river water and power rights, and will keep his soldiers in the field as official observers of work on the Parker diversion dam being constructed by the Metropolitan water district of southern California. "More than one million acre feet of water are involved and an unlimited amount of power rights, all of importance to Arizona," the executive explained. "The fight is not with southern California nor with the metropolitan water district; nor the government."

Holders of farm mortgages which are being refinanced by the Federal Land Bank of Wichita are showing prompt willingness to accept Federal Farm Mortgage Corporation bonds now being used by the bank instead of cash in paying off farmers' creditors, according to L. E. Call, president of the land bank.

Large holders, such as insurance companies and farm mortgage corporations, have of their own signified to the bank their willingness to accept these bonds in the refinancing of their farm mortgages in Colorado, Kansas, New Mexico, and Oklahoma. Amounts of less than $100 due the borrowers' creditors and such debts as taxes are still being disbursed in cash. These institutions and others are displaying a readiness to accept, in lieu of cash, these bonds guaranteed both as to principal and interest by the United States government," reports Mr. Call. They are long term bonds bearing 3 1/2 per cent interest and are free from all taxes except surtaxes and estate, inheritance, and gift taxes. Complete instructions as to the procedure to be followed by both the farmer to be refinanced and his creditors will be supplied by the Federal Land Bank, Wichita, Kansas, upon request.

Reduction in its rate of interest from 4 to 3 1/2 per cent on merchant discount loans to farmers' cooperative associations in Colorado, Kansas, New Mexico, and Oklahoma has been announced by the Wichita Bank for Cooperatives. The rate of interest on facility loans to farmers' marketing and purchasing cooperatives remains unchanged at 4 1/2 per cent.

Merchandising, or working capital, loans are those made to farmers' cooperative associations to aid them in more efficiently marketing their products. Repayment usually is required at the end of the marketing season.

Although Mr. Evans has been identified with the biggest in cattle business, he saw early the importance of smaller cattle men in the problems of the industry and he urges the support by all cattle men, of the local Production Credit Associations, not only as a service but as a means of bringing cattle men together so that they learn the features of their financing problems which are common to all. "It is only through understanding these problems," he says, "and getting a complete picture of the industry, its costs, its extent, and its hazards that all cattle men will learn the cooperation and control which must be exercised if the cattle business is to be made sound and kept that way."

LOCAL AND PERSONAL

Judge A. H. Hudspeth of Santa Fe was in town last Saturday.
Mr. Walter Riggs of Tularosa has been employed by the I-X ranch, and has moved to the Finley ranch to live.

Senator Louise Coe of Glencoe, and Representative Marie Cavanaugh of Fort Stanton are in Santa Fe attending the special meeting of the legislature.

The next meeting of the music drama study club will be held April 19th at the home of Miss Brickley. The last meeting was in Fort Stanton. A most enjoyable afternoon was spent at the pleasant home of Mrs. Hendren.
Representative J. V. Taylor of the I-X ranch has gone to Santa Fe to attend the special meeting of the state legislature. Mrs. Taylor accompanied him.

The county commissioners are meeting this week with the Board of Equalization. They will be in session two or three weeks.

Seniors from the Carrizozo High school went to the Carlsbad cavern last Saturday Governor's Day. About 1400 students and teachers from this state, Texas, Oklahoma and from Juarez, Mexico visited the cavern on that date.

Mr. and Mrs. Patterson and Mrs. Patterson's mother Mrs. Freshaw, spent Easter Sunday at the White Sands.

LOST—One dark blue kid glove edged in white about the H. S. building. Please return to his office. Apr. 13 2t.

The home of Mr. George Coe of Glencoe was completely burned Sunday, March 31st with only the adobe walls left standing. Mr. Coe is one of the last survivors of the Lincoln County War and had many relics and records of early days in this county which were destroyed along with furniture and heirlooms. The house was built fifty years ago. It is supposed a defective flue was the cause of the fire.

Necessity for Economy

Santa Fe, April 6—Necessity for economy in all branches of government has caused Governor A. W. Hockenberry to exclude provision for a direct primary law in his call for the special session of the legislature.

The governor, in making his decision, pointed out that estimates place the cost of a primary election as high as $50,000. If a separate registration should be needed for the primary, the cost would amount by about $40,000.

the approximate cost of registration in regular election years.
However, the governor plans to make a provision for enacting into law the party's platform pledge regarding primary elections and pre-election conventions, which is all the party pledged.

The platform pledge reads: "We pledge the party to legislation regulating the holding of primary elections and pre-election conventions at which all state county officers are nominated."

The governor, in making his announcement, stated he hoped economic conditions would improve to such an extent that a direct primary for nominating all state and county officials, will soon be economically practicable.

Report on Activity Day

—GRADES—

One of our worst sand storms raged last Friday, but it didn't seem to dampen the ardor with which competing schools tried for prizes in the various events; track, curricular, forensic, music, etc. Teachers and students alike faced the sand and chilly wind smilingly.

A basket dinner was served at community hall at noon.

Following are honors by points:

BEDTIME STORY FOR CHILDREN

By THORNTON W. BURGESS

THE TENDER HEART OF FARMER BROWN'S BOY

WHEN Nimble Heels the Jumping Mouse so unexpectedly jumped up inside the trousers' leg of Farmer Brown's boy he probably was more frightened than Farmer Brown's boy himself, and that is saying considerable.

"I'm So Sorry," Mumbled Farmer Brown's Boy as He Stroked the Little Brown Mouse.

alive on his knee and his first thought was of a Snake. Farmer Brown's boy does not like Snakes. If he had done any real thinking he would have known that it couldn't be a Snake, for a Snake would have felt very different.

"Oh!" cried Farmer Brown's boy. "I'm afraid that that was Danny Meadow Mouse and that I've killed him." Farmer Brown's boy sat down in the grass, and with his free hand carefully rolled up his trousers' leg until he could take hold of little Nimble Heels.

killed you and I wouldn't have done that for the world," he cried. There were tears in the eyes of Farmer Brown's boy, as he stroked the soft little body with one finger. A leg moved and then kicked feebly. Into the eyes of Farmer Brown's boy crept a look of hope.

"I'm so sorry," murmured Farmer Brown's boy as he stroked the little brown mouse. "I'm so sorry. I guess now I'd better take you home so as to be sure you quite recover." And so it was that Nimble Heels began a long journey.

CHOICE THINGS TO EAT

A QUICK hot bouillon may be made by using a teaspoonful of the prepared vegetable paste, dissolved in a cupful of hot water. Any other flavor may be added if desired—a slice of lemon or a bit of onion extract.

Tomato Canape

Cut bread one-fourth inch thick and make into rounds with a cookie cutter. Spread with butter and then with mayonnaise; on this put a slice of peeled tomato the same size, spread with mayonnaise, edge the tomato with a ring of chopped chives inside a ring of chopped egg white and the rice of yolks to all the center. Top with a stuffed olive or a sprig of parsley.

Cider Punch

Boat up a glass of apple jelly to a froth, add a cupful of boiling water and a quart of cider. Flavor with nutmeg. Fill glasses with shaved ice and pour over this the punch.

Oyster Cocktail in Grapefruit Shells

Put two tablespoonfuls of butter, a tablespoonful of chili sauce, a dash of pepprika and tabasco into a small glass with one-half dozen oysters for each cocktail. Set into the shell of half a grapefruit, surround with ice on the plate and serve. Horseradish is well liked and may be substituted for the chili sauce.

Almond Paste

Take half a pound of blanched and ground almonds, the yolks of two eggs, the juice of half a lemon and a few drops of almond flavoring. Mix together well, knead with the hands until smooth and pliable and will mold without splitting. Use as filling for dates or prunes, or made into balls and rolled in chocolate, grated.

MEADOWS OF MEMORY

By ANNE CAMPBELL

A CROSS the meadows of my memory A collie dog comes running. The buttercups are growing happily. The quail are sunning. A meadow lark is whistling from the fence—

A rail fence spravling— And I can hear through thickets green and dense, The crickets calling.

The butterflies are wheeling in the sun. The locust trees are sending Their perfume to a child—a lonely one—

Whose day is ending. When in the West the banners of the night Display their beauty. A little girl will take her bedtime flight—

A tiresome duty.

My room still stands within my memory. I see each low brown rafter. Then I remember—though I long to be Where childish laughter Made every hour of living a refrain, Serene and glowing—

The house is tumbled down, and in the lane The weeds are growing.

WIDE CHANGES MADE IN NAMES

Many Show Odd Departures From the Original.

It does not seem probable that there will be any tourist rush for Mendicant Ridge or Starved Creek these days, but if anyone should be curious about these strange appellations he may find complete enlightenment in "Uncle Sam's Handbook on Geographic Names."

One of the most ironic cases of evolution in nomenclature was found at Breteche creek, Wyoming. This stream, flowing into the Shoshone river, was named for Paul Breteche, an early settler of French ancestry.

Likewise our weakness for Americanization of names has made "Ozark" out of the French "Aux Arce" and "Key West" out of the Spanish "Cayo Huesaco."

With a finality that admits of no dispute the board has taken the occasional "h" out of "Behring." The Behring sea was named for Capt. Ivanovich Behring, whose explorations in 1741 gave the world its first knowledge of Alaska.

be further bewildered by the 122 different ways of spelling Lake Winnebagoes if they will recognize the authority of Uncle Sam's experts. Tracking down these picturesque names to their original source appears to be a great sport. But after nearly half a century the geographic board appears to be surfeited by this type of local color.

Two things I wanted

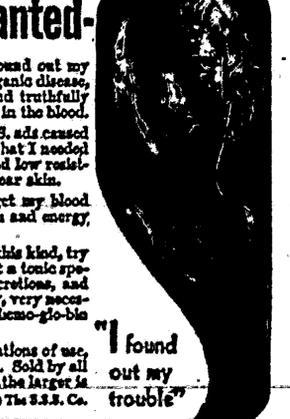

...and it was all so simple when I found out my trouble. My physician said I had no organic disease, but I did have what is so commonly and truthfully called a low percentage of hemo-glo-bin in the blood.

The reasonableness of one of the S.S.S. ads caused me to think that S.S.S. Tonic was just what I needed for my let-down feeling, pimply skin and low resistance. I wanted more strength and a clear skin.

"It didn't take S.S.S. very long to get my blood back up to normal—and as my strength and energy returned my skin cleared up."

If your condition suggests a tonic of this kind, try S.S.S. It is not just a so-called tonic but a tonic specially designed to stimulate gastric secretions, and also having the mineral elements so very necessary in rebuilding the oxygen-carrying hemo-glo-bin of the blood.

S.S.S. value has been proven by generations of use, as well as by modern scientific appraisal. Sold by all drug stores, in two convenient sizes—the large is more economical.

Stratosphere Balloon

Major Kepner and Captain Stevens Talk It Over.

Prepared by National Geographic Society, Washington, D. C.—W. H. R. Service.

WORK on the world's largest free balloon which will be used in the National Geographic Society-United States Army Air Corps stratosphere flights is well under way at the Goodyear-Zeppelin corporation's plant at Akron, Ohio. The balloon makers will use two-and-a-third acres of cotton fabric impregnated with rubber in constructing the bag, and it will have a capacity of 3,000,000 cubic feet of gas.

When the balloon rises from the earth, only partly inflated, it will be shaped like a gigantic exclamation point with the round gondola representing the period. As the gondola leaves the ground, the top of the bag will be 205 feet above it—approximately the height of a 27-story office building. When the bag becomes spherical in the thin air of the stratosphere, it will be large enough to enclose an 11-story building of normal height and of equal width.

The ascent, in which it is hoped to reach the highest point to which it is practicable for a balloon to lift a man, will be made in the United States. The purpose of the flight is to clear problems of the upper air that are still puzzling to science. It is estimated that it will rise to a height of more than 15 miles above sea level.

The first ascent will be made in June by Capt. Albert W. Stevens, noted aerial observer and photographer of the army air corps, who conceived the project, and Maj. William Kepner, balloon expert of the army air corps. If this flight is successful, the same balloonists will make a second ascent in September, in order to check observations under similar conditions.

Scientists to Give Aid.
To advise in regard to the scientific plans and equipment, and to direct studies of the data collected, Dr. Gilbert Grosvenor, president of the National Geographic Society, has formed a committee of outstanding American scientists. Its members are:

Dr. Lyman J. Briggs, director United States bureau of standards, chairman; Dr. F. V. Coville, United States Department of Agriculture; Gen. Oscar Westover, assistant chief, United States Army Air Corps; Capt. R. S. Patton, director, United States coast and geodetic survey; Dr. W. E. G. Swann, Bartol Research Foundation, Franklin Institute, Swarthmore, Pa.; Dr. Floyd K. Richtmyer, department of physics, Cornell University, and member research council, American Association for the Advancement of Science; Dr. Charles E. K. Mees, director research laboratory, Eastman Kodak Company; Dr. Charles F. Marvin, chief of United States weather bureau, and Dr. John Oliver La Gorce, National Geographic Society.

The huge balloon to be used in the ascents will have a gas capacity five times that of the bag in which Commander Settle established his 11-mile record last November; and nearly three-and-a-half times that of the Soviet balloon which in September rose nearly 12 miles above the earth.

The exact point at which the balloon will take to the air has not been selected, but it will probably be in the northern great plains region. Such a choice, it is pointed out, will give ample room for drift, to the northeast, east, or southeast and a landing in open country, so that the bag can be salvaged.

The completed plans for the flights are due to the efforts of Captain Stevens, who has gathered data during the past eleven months directed toward the use in stratosphere flights of the largest balloon which it is practicable to construct, and an ascent to the highest point to which it is believed possible for man to rise in a gas bag, with hope of a safe landing. The mere attainment of altitude, however, is not a primary object of the ascents. It is desired to reach the greatest attainable height above the earth in order that conditions there can be observed.

Stevens Has Experience.
Captain Stevens has penetrated the lower levels of the stratosphere by airplane on numerous occasions and also has served as observer on a number of army balloon ascensions. During his high altitude flying he has collected much scientific data. In a flight over Dayton, Ohio, in October, 1928, he reached an altitude of 50,150 feet and obtained the only complete record of thermometer readings ever made in America, showing on the same day the "temperature gradient" in the region from the earth to the stratosphere. Other such records of temperatures, from the earth to an altitude of approximately 80,000 feet, is one of the objectives of the 1934 ascents. Such data will be extremely valuable in weather studies.

Another project of importance will be the trapping of samples of stratosphere air at several levels. These specimens will be analyzed and studied later in physical and chemical laboratories.

The preliminary "agenda" for scientific data to be collected during the ascent contains 14 other items varying from high-level photography and the ascertainment of the electrical condition of the air at various levels, to cosmic ray studies and efforts to determine ozone concentration. The mysterious ozone layer of the upper air which some scientists assert is all that saves life on the earth from destruction by ultra-short light rays, is thought to lie far above the highest point that can be reached by a manned balloon. It is hoped, however, that evidences of an increasing ozone content of the air can be detected 15 miles up.

In order to house the many instruments and automatic recording devices that will be taken aloft, the balloon will have attached to it a spherical gondola of light metal, eight feet four inches in diameter. This diameter is one foot and a third greater than that of the gondolas used by Professor Piccard and Commander Settle, and will provide a cubic capacity more than twice as great.

The instruments, many of them designed and modified by Captain Stevens as a result of trials during high altitude flights, will be largely automatic, leaving observer and pilot free to take up the many activities in the gondola that will require attention. A number of tiny cameras, using motion-picture film, will automatically and tirelessly "read" dials and clock faces simultaneously at frequent intervals.

Kepner's Fine Record.
Maj. William E. Kepner, who will pilot the stratosphere balloon, is one of the outstanding balloon pilots of the United States Army. He served in the World War in the infantry and was decorated by both the American and French armies for exceptional services. He holds four medals: Legion of Honor, Croix de Guerre with Palm, Distinguished Service Cross, and Good Conduct Medal, United States Marine Corps. He has been an officer of the air corps since 1920, and holds the aeronautical ratings of airplane pilot, airplane observer, airship pilot and balloon pilot and observer.

He was winner of both the national and the international balloon races in 1923, receiving the Litchfield trophy and the King Albert of Belgium trophy. He was a classmate of Commander Rosendahl of the Los Angeles, and of Commander Settle, for three years at Lakehurst. Major Kepner holds a naval certificate as rigid airship pilot. He served on the Los Angeles as assistant navigator and received training from the German Zeppelin crew. He commanded the RS-1 semi-rigid airship in 1927-1928, and was the first to pilot an all metal airship in 1929.

Captain Stevens has made innumerable high altitude photographs, some of them, by the use of infra-red rays, showing mountain peaks more than 300 miles from the camera. Two of his photographs, of extraordinary interest to geographers and astronomers, are unique. One taken from a plane 21,000 feet over central Argentina is the first photograph ever made showing laterally the curvature of the earth. The other, made at an altitude of 28,000 feet over southern Maine, in August, 1932, is the only photograph which shows the advancing front of the moon's shadow on the earth during an eclipse of the sun.

Zuider Zee New Yaelmeer
When the Dutch minister of public works recently inaugurated the dam across the Zuider Zee between North Holland and Friesland, the name Zuider Zee ceased officially to exist, and Holland gained in reclaimed land an area equal to her largest province. Geographers: The dam transferring the old Dutch sea into a lake. It is 20 miles long. The dam begins at Wieringen, island, where the ex-crown prince of Germany lived for some years in the blacksmith's house. The also famous island of Marken lies in the new lake, which is to be called "Yaelmeer." The work begun in 1920 is finished, and plans are being made for a railway on the dam.

SALOTE OF TONGA WORTHY QUEEN OF SOUTH SEA ISLE

King George a year ago made Queen Salote of Tonga a dame commander of the Order of the British Empire.

Although the world in general knew little about the last of the Polynesian monarchs, says the Detroit News, yet her portrait is in the hands of millions. In other words, her likeness appears on Tonga's current postage stamp, thus making the queen known in practically every country to the world.

Since she was seventeen, Queen Salote has occupied the much-carved, scarlet damask throne in the white clapboard palace at Nukunolofo, the seat of her government. Literally she the world's biggest queen. Standing six feet three inches in her bare feet and tipping the scales over the 300-pound mark, she is easily the outstanding woman in her kingdom, which is probably as large in area as the combined boroughs of New York city.

The only man who ever presumes to measure up to her is her husband, Uillama Tugl, himself a graduate of Newington college, Sydney, Australia, and the premier—by her own appointment—of Tonga.

Queen Salote succeeded her father, King George Tubou II, grandson and heir of Tonga's iron man, King George Tubou I, who ruled for almost fifty years. George Tubou I it was who in 1845 wrested control of Tonga from a group of warring chiefs and gave the conquered islands not only a flag but a royal family, with himself as king.

Unlike her parent, whose champagne suppers and string of race horses won him fame for extravagance, Queen Salote has always striven to be a model queen. To set a good and housewifely example to the women of her kingdom, she stays in the palace attending to the needs of the three princelings while her premier-consort runs the government.

Although she is well educated herself and is planning to send her three children to college, she prefers the simple life of the Friendly Islands. Like Tonga itself, she is a throwback to the days when the whole South seas were subdivided into independent island kingdoms ruled by corpulent bronze kings and queens.

Thousands have Ended their Bowel Worries by taking this advice!

Can constipation safely be relieved? "Yes!" say medical men. "Yes!" say the many thousands who have followed their advice and know.

You are not likely to cure your constipation with salts, pills, tablets or any of the habit-forming cathartics. But you can safely relieve this condition by gentle regulation with a suitable liquid laxative.

THE LIQUID TEST:

First: select a properly prepared liquid laxative. Second: take the dose you find suited to your system. Third: gradually reduce the dose until bowels are moving of their own accord.

Simple, isn't it? And it works! The right liquid laxative brings thorough bowel action without using force. An approved liquid laxative (one which is most widely used for both adults and children) is Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin—it is a doctor's prescription, and perfectly safe. Its laxative action is based on senna, a natural laxative; the dose can be measured, and the action thus regulated to suit your individual need.

If there are children in your household, don't give them any laxative, but use a healthful, helpful preparation like Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. Its very taste will tell you it is wholesome, and agreeable to the stomach. Delightful taste, and delightful action; there is no discomfort at the time, or after. Ask your druggist for Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, all ready to take.

A Frank Statement Concerning Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin

We believe the use of pills and tablets containing mineral drugs is rapidly giving way to gentle regulation of the bowels with a liquid laxative.

We believe Dr. Caldwell's original prescription of fresh herbs, pure pepsin, and senna is the ideal family laxative.

And we know it is a safe preparation for children and expectant mothers because it does not cause bowel strain or irritate the kidneys.

CONOCO INTRODUCES A Remarkable new MOTOR OIL

Its lower consumption and greater protection to motors proved by the most convincing test ever made!

THIS new oil has a tremendously increased "film strength"—and a penetrative oiliness to always protect your motor. The "Hidden Quart" never leaves a dry spot or a bearing without lubrication—it resists dilution—and eliminates much trouble caused by carbon and sludge.

The process which gives these exclusive new features is protected by recent U. S. patents. Conoco refines a high quality paraffin base oil and then adds the extra oiliness that is absolutely necessary to obtain the protection and low consumption every motorist should demand.

New and Improved Conoco Germ Processed Motor Oil excels in the most convincing test ever made, under the supervision of the AAA Contest Board.

IN presenting New and Improved Conoco Germ Processed Motor Oil you are furnished facts of performance. You will at once be convinced of the direct value of this new oil. A test so dramatic, so honest, that it will go down in history!

This test was held at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway. The Contest Board of the American Automobile Association supervised all details, thus assuring an unbiased opinion. Six new regular stock cars were delivered direct to them. They tested and measured each to obtain an equal condition in all.

Six brands of motor oil, of the same S. A. E. grade, were used. Five of them, all purchased by the AAA on the open market, were nationally known, widely recognized leaders. The other one was New and Improved Conoco Germ Processed Motor Oil. All cars were then carefully broken in for 2500 miles. Five quarts, a new and complete fill, were put in each car and the crankcases sealed. Then the real battle for supremacy began. The cars were driven for as long as the motors continued to operate.

Here are the results: Oil No. 4 quit at 1713.2 miles; Oil No. 6 quit at 1764.4 miles; Oil No. 5 wrecked the motor at 1815.9; Oil No. 1 ceased its lubricative protection at 2266.8 miles; and Oil No. 3 at 3318.8 miles.

New and Improved Conoco Germ Processed Motor Oil carried on to a total 4729 miles! Over three thousand miles farther than the first oil to go out, and over fourteen hundred miles farther than the final oil of the five!

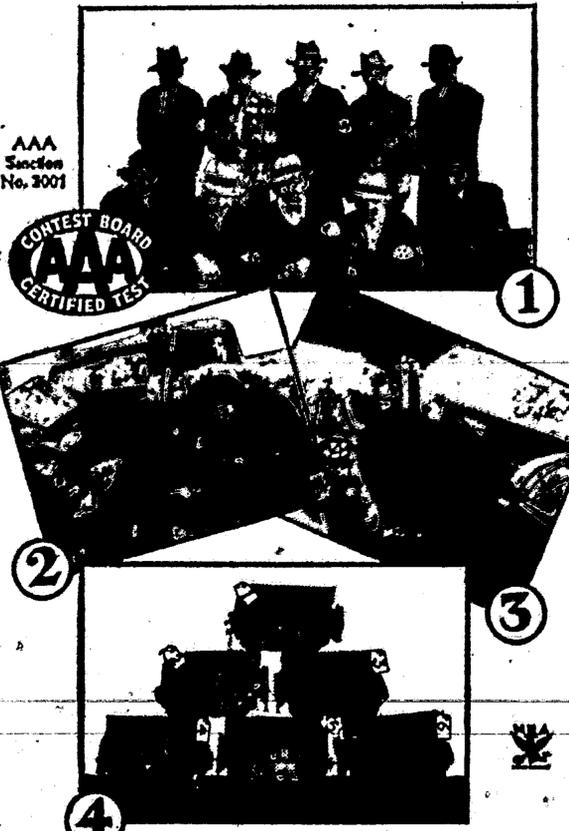

It is the Germ Processing principle, only used by Conoco, that won the test. This "Hidden Quart" that lubricates all parts at all times—that stays up in your motor and never drains away. Drive into a Conoco Station or Dealer for a fill. You are getting the most in lubrication value that money can buy.

Warning TO NEW CAR OWNERS...

Some car manufacturers are using new types of bearings which will stand greater pressure and temperature, resulting from increased power and speed. New and Improved Conoco Germ Processed Motor Oil has been specifically tested on these new bearings. The results show that it gives them greater protection against damage than any other straight mineral oil now on the market.

Protect your new car by using the motor oil you can be sure of.

- 1 The Representative of the Contest Board of the AAA who supervised every detail of the test.
- 2 Five quarts of each brand of oil were carefully put in the cars by AAA officials.
- 3 The official sealing of crankcases after the fill of five quarts was put in.
- 4 These were new motors before the test. They were wrecked to prove to you how to protect yours.
