Congressional Reflections

By Congressman Dennis Chavez

A legislative matter of deep importance to New Mexico and Texas looks as if it will become an accomplished fact within the near future. The boundary line of New Mexico and Texas, around Anthony, was not determined for a long, long while, and it was only after the Supreme Court of the United States finally determined the actual line that settlers knew whether they lived in New Mexico or Texas. Farmers who had obtained patents from the U. S. Government to their lands that they thought were in New Mexico found, after the decision of the Supreme Court, that they were actually residents of Texas and that there were clouds in their titles; and farmers who had obtained their titles from the State of Texas found themselves in New Mexico and that they did not have patents from the Government. Efforts have been made for a number of years to bring about relief and perfect the titles of said citizens, but to no avail. However, the matter has been persisted in and at the beginning of the session of the 73rd Congress, I introduced a bill (H. R. 5369), in the House of Representatives for this purpose and it is with pleasure that I can say that on April 5 the House passed the bill which directs the Secretary of the Interior to issue patents to those within New Mexico. The matter is now pending before the Senate where we expect action within a short time.

There are a great number of Governmental agencies and bureaus which were conceived and created since the beginning of the present Administration which because of their number and the shortness of time in which they were organized, their functions are not so clear to other than students of Governmental agencies. They are also referred to by initials which adds more to the confusion. I am going, therefore, to undertake to clarify this complication somewhat, in this limited space, which may enable readers to understand better the functions and objectives of some of these agencies. If, however, I do not refer to some particular one you are interested in, do not hesitate to write me and I shall be glad to furnish more detailed information. The Farm Credit Administration (FFCA or FCA) was the result of the consolidation of the following Government agencies into a single agency, Federal Farm Board, Federal Farm Loan Bureau, Regional Agricultural Corporations of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation.

Crop Production Loan Office, and Seed Loan Office of the Department of Agriculture, and also the functions of the Secretary of Agriculture under all provisions of law relating to the making of advances or loans to agricultural producers, including loans for the purpose of forming or increasing the capital stock of agricultural credit corporations. The Commodity Credit Corporation (CCC) was organized October 16, 1933 and the capital stock fixed at $3,000,000, and is owned jointly by the Secretary of Agriculture and the governor of the Farm Credit Administration for the use and benefit of the United States. Its affairs are managed by a board of eight directors, named in the Executive order under which the corporation was organized. This corporation has authority to buy, sell, and deal in agricultural and other commodities and to loan or borrow thereon; to assist in crop reduction and marketing programs; to store, handle, and process commodities of all kinds, and to do many other things in connection with existing relief plans.

Some of the other agencies are: Agricultural Adjustment Administration (AAA), the Federal Emergency Administration of public works (PWA), Consumer Advisory Board (CAB), Dairy Marketing Corporation (DMC), Federal Home Bank Board (FHLBB), Home Owners Loan Corporation (HOLC), Subsistence Homestead Division (SHD).

The visitors to my office this week have been Mr. Pearce Rodey and Mr. John J. Buchanan of Albuquerque. Senator Louis H. Field of Las Vegas, and Mr. Joe Jacques of Blanca. The 14,000,000 people living in those picturesque islands in the Pacific, which were ceded to the United States by the treaty of peace concluded between the United States and Spain on the 10th day of December 1898, will be given an opportunity to elect delegates to a constitutional convention for the purpose of formulating and drafting a constitution for the government of the Commonwealth of the Philippine Islands, subject to certain conditions and qualifications, under H. R. 8573, as passed the House of Representatives on Monday, March 19. Under this legislation, on the 4th day of July immediately following the expiration of a period of 10 years from the date of the inauguration of the new government, the President of the United States shall by proclamation withdraw all supervision, including all military reservations, and recognize the independence of the Philippine Islands and regard it as a separate and self-governing nation. The constitution shall be Republican in form and shall contain a bill of rights. It shall be drafted by the Philippine legislature and shall be submitted within two years to the President of the United States, who shall determine whether or not it conforms with the provision of this Bill. After the President of the United States has certified that the proposed

The National Recovery Administration (NRA) was created on June 16, 1933 and is designed to encourage national industrial recovery and to foster fair competition. This was created as the existence was recognized of a national emergency productive of widespread unemployment of industry, which burdens interstate and foreign commerce, affects the public welfare, and undermines the standards of living of the American people. The machinery for accomplishing the purposes for which this agency was created is through the submission of codes of fair competition by associations in different trades or industries which will lead to the elimination of unfair trade practices and which will relieve unemployment through the shortening of weekly working hours and increasing purchasing power through increased minimum wages. Such codes of fair competition are expected to be submitted voluntarily by trades or industries. After the approval of the codes they become the law under which all members of the trade or industry shall operate. The act which created this agency shall cease to be in effect and the agencies established thereunder shall cease to exist at the expiration of two years after the date of its enactment, or sooner if the President shall by proclamation or the Congress shall by joint resolution declare that the emergency recognized by the act has ended.

Pruit-Tully

The marriage of Miss Virginia Pruitt of Ruidoso to Mr. Kivas Tully of Alamogordo and Glenocoe, was solemnized here Sunday before Justice D. M. Baringer.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Pruitt of Picaecho, and is a teacher in the Ruidoso School.

The groom, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. V. Tully, of Glenocoe, has been connected with the Alamogordo News at various times for the past three years. Mr. and Mrs. Tully will make their home for the present at Ruidoso, where Mr. Tully will guide the destinies of the Ruidoso Herald through the summer season.—Alamogordo News.

constitution conforms with this Bill, the constitution has been submitted to the people of the Islands for their ratification or rejection. This measure is now in the Senate and if passed by that body, it will go to the White House where Executive approval has been assured.

Legislation establishing a "Agricultural Surplus Exchange Board" was also passed by the House on Monday, March 19. This Board is authorized to negotiate with foreign buyers with the view of exchanging American agricultural surpluses produced in the United States for silver coin or bullion. It is also authorized and directed to deposit the silver coin or bullion received in exchange for said products sold to foreign buyers with the Secretary of the Treasury who shall then issue silver certificates to be used by the Board to pay for these products and commodities. This Bill is not a monetary Bill, but only provides for the exchange of our agricultural farm products for silver coin or bullion. This legislation is now before the Senate for further study and disposition.

The Bill S. 2534, providing for a moratorium on construction charges owed to the United States by the Irrigation District in the country, some twenty-seven in all, was given approval by the House this week. The projects in New Mexico which this legislation effects are the Carlsbad Irrigation project in the Mesilla Valley at Las Cruces.

The House of Representatives on yesterday rejected the motion to change its position and adopt the Senate amendments to the Independent Offices Appropriation Bill. The House stood firm on its amendments allowing 75 per cent to the Spanish-American and World War veterans and restoring 10 per cent of the Federal employees. The bill has gone to the Senate where efforts will be made to have the Senate adopt the House amendments. If the Senate refuses to do this the Bill will most likely be sent to the Committees of the respective House to be re-drafted.

The Civil Works Administration has before it at the present time the applications from New Mexico, approved by the State Relief Committee, applications for funds with which to provide the payment of teachers salaries in counties where funds are not available. I learned during a conference that favorable action would be taken upon these applications within a day or so. The visitors to my office this week have been Miss Hazel McFarland of Logan, Mr. A. McClory of Albuquerque, Doctor F. H. Crall and his son Howard of Las Vegas and Mr. Harry S. Rowman of Santa Fe.

High School Notes

(By Helen Strauss)

The boys' Physical Education class entertained the assembly one day last week with boxing matches. The most interesting one, however, was between two blindfolded contestants.

Our weekly classes in penmanship have been discontinued. A number of the students have received certificates for excellent writing. The spelling classes are to be reduced in size and the number in the Five Star Speller's Club greatly increased.

Don't miss the Senior class play, "Safety First," which is to be presented Friday night. It is worth double the admission charge.

Our high school track team will go to Tularosa Saturday to participate in a meet there. We have high hopes for that team and want everyone of you who can to see the meet.

Card of Thanks

We wish to express our appreciation to our neighbors and friends for every act of kindness rendered during the illness and death of our father.

Silver Questions Important

The enthusiasm that followed the establishing of silver's value at 64 cents an ounce has suffered considerable abatement. Reason: The value of any money metal can be considered only in its relation to the value of gold—and, with gold at around $35.00 the value of silver is actually less than it used to be, in spite of the higher fixed price.

Many economists believe that international recovery will be delayed until gold and silver are related—so that when gold rises and falls, silver follows it. And it is a certainty that a genuine silver revival would mean much to the United States—in providing jobs, purchasing power, and industrial and social opportunity.

The last Parent Teacher's meeting for this year will be held Friday, April 27, at 8:00 P. M. The dental clinic sponsored by the P. T. A. is well under way. Parents are urged to have their children's teeth cared for.

Goofus Club

The ladies of the Goofus club were entertained by the gentlemen of the club, with a supper party at the Carrizozo Eating house last Wednesday evening. In the games played, Miss Treasie Davis won first prize, while Mrs. O. W. Bamberger captured second.

Next Wednesday evening the ladies are to entertain the gentlemen and this will be the last meeting of this season.

Chemically Treated wheat For Animal Food

There's one way to get rid of the wheat surplus—chemically treat it so that it is unfit for human use!

To most readers, that will seem very much like burning down the forests to lower the lumber supply. But it's the serious recommendation of the world wheat advisory commission, which met in Rome, and was attended by 35 representatives of 15 wheat producing countries. Low-quality wheat would be denatured and removed from the world market. It is said it could be made poisonous or unpalatable to humans, and still fit for animal feed.

If the recommendation is accepted by the interested powers, there will have to be extensive revision of the wheat export quotas, determined at the London conference last August, which control all the large exporting countries.

In the baseball game played at Corona last Sunday Carrizozo came out winner 6 to 2. A game is scheduled here for next Sunday, with the same teams battling for honors.

The Saturday Card club was entertained at the home of Mrs. Morgan Lovelace last Saturday, with Mrs. F. H. Johnson as hostess.

Mrs. Albert Ziegler and Mrs. Degits spent the first of the week in El Paso.

The High school play "Safety First" will be given at the High School auditorium tonight at 8 o'clock.

Mrs. Jimmie Lee and children spent last Friday in El Paso.

Mrs. Nellie Braum, Oscar Clouse, C. A. McCammon and little Barbara Jean Braum visited El Paso last Wednesday.

Miss Helen Frances Hupperts spent Saturday and Sunday in Alamogordo visiting Miss Wilma Beachamp.

Mr. Roy Shafer of the Carrizozo Auto company delivered Ford cars and trucks to the following parties within the last few days: Clint Braum, Carrizozo; J. H. Morrow, Corona; Fred Pfingsten, Lincoln; Nick Vega, Carrizozo; H. L. White, Dalhart; G. B. Andrews, Ruidoso and J. V. Taylor, Oesera.

Mr. Van Pelt of Alto was in town on business yesterday.

Governor Hockenull to Address Corona Students

Superintendent C. V. Koogler has secured Governor A. W. Hockenull as the principal speaker at the Corona Commencement exercises. It is anticipated that a large crowd will come to hear the governor's address to the students.

"Oh, Neal! Oh, how lovely! Oh—
"You can't afford it!" finished Neal mockingly, "of course I can! A man can't afford not to give presents to his wife every now and then. Besides, you're not to worry, it is all paid for. I had an unexpected check today—an account long overdue paid up. I attended to all our monthly bills, bang up, just like that! And still I had enough left over for this, too!"

The pendant was pretty with the "glittery" dress. In fact it was perfect. And as Anne, followed by Neal, swept into the Lassiter drawing room while the butler beside the silk portiere entrance announced, "Senator and Mrs. Conrad" both were swiftly conscious of the fact that Anne was unsurpassed in elegance by any other woman present. Senator Lassiter, who was talking with the French ambassador, detached himself immediately from her side, and hastened forward; while his mother, with less embarrassment but with equal cordiality, turned to greet them also.

"We are so very happy to have you with us—now let me see. I wish to be sure you meet every one here tonight. Have you met the Italian ambassador and Donna Martinelli? Madame Estavi is a friend already, I am sure—the speaker of the house and Mrs. Hastings, Senator and Mrs. Lee, Senator and Mrs. Stone."

The even, cultured voice flowed on. Two servants in purple livery entered, bearing silver trays, laden with frothy cocktails, and tiny savory sandwiches. Senator Lassiter offered his arm to the ambassador, and advanced, with her beside him, at the head of the procession which wound its way to the strains of music from an unseen organ through a second great drawing room, across a galleried hall, and into a long, paneled dining room flanked with great carved sideboards.

Anne, feeling as if she had been transplanted to one of Monte Cristo's banquets, hoped that she was successfully concealing the swimming sensation which almost overcame her as she seated herself between Senator Stone and Senor Estavi at the very end of the splendid table. She must, it seemed, reorganize her ideas about entertaining as completely as she had reorganized them about dress. But she resolved to do so swiftly and completely; and rousing herself, she heard the small black-bearded man with indefinable charm and distinction who was placed at her left asking hopefully, "Vous parlez-français, Madame?"

"Mais, oui," she answered breathlessly, her head clearing instantly, and launching into her newly acquired but fluent French she began to chatter pleasantly with the agreeable little Peruvian.

Senator Lassiter, appearing at her side apparently from nowhere in an incredibly short time after she had finished her coffee, in the drawing room, assured her that she would be much more comfortable on a deep brocade sofa at the front end of the room than in the small high chair on which she was then sitting; and shepherded her suavely and inconspicuously to a place a little apart from the other guests.

"How I wish," he murmured, throwing his handsome head back a little and speaking through half-closed lips "that once, just once, I could take a young and pretty woman out to dinner! But it is always my fate to have middle-aged, not to say elderly, ambassadors at my side—it is unthinkable that any man should, indulge in airy periffage with dowagers of rank!"

"Because they would resent it as an impertinence or because they offer no inducement to levity and indiscretion?" asked Anne, who was beginning to enjoy herself again.

"Both, my dear lady. You have no idea how virtuous I am when there is nothing about to tempt me. But in the presence of lovely young matrons with perfect complexions and a gift of repartee, I sometimes forget myself."

"But they, I suppose, always jog your memory?" said Anne demurely.

"Oh, no—not always. Sometimes they are forgetful too—How's your memory?" he inquired with a slight drawl.

"Excellent," said Anne, with emphasis.

But Senator Lassiter did not seem to be daunted; and when a little later she told him that she thought perhaps she and Neal should be leaving, he informed her, with even more of a drawl, that they could not go until after the guests of honor had departed.

"But they will go," he said, "exactly on the tick of ten-thirty. That is the law of the Medes and Persians. The work of it is, that after that you will be free to go, too; you will no doubt take advantage of your freedom; and I do not feel at all sure when I shall see you again."

"Neal and I have been asked to another dinner," said Anne. "In honor of the Hammels. The Standishes are giving it. I think, it is most awfully kind of them to invite us. But what I started to say was—perhaps you will be there and I might meet you then."

"I see," said Lassiter, suddenly grave. "Thank you. I shall be there." Anne had the sudden, uncomfortable feeling that she had made an appointment with him. With his usual intuition he guessed this, and with his usual smooth skillfulness restored her composure.

"And at many other festivities which you will attend," he said casually. "We are certain to move in interlocking circles, if not actually the same one, as I rather suspect may be the case. I hope you dance? I shall permit myself to look for you at the children's hospital ball."

He bowed slightly, in kind and superficial tribute. Near them a gilt clock chimed softly and struck the half hour. The ambassador, who was favoring Neal with a few formal remarks, instantly extended her hand in farewell, and sought the ambassador with her eye.

"What did I tell you!" laughed Lassiter softly. "Good-by—dear Lady De-light."

CHAPTER XI

Luncheons, teas, dinners, calls. Official receptions, charity balls, evening musicals, calls. Tuesday noons at the senate office building, Friday afternoons at the Congressional club, Calls, Calls, Calls.

Anne had been swept breathlessly into the swing of it, almost before she realized what had happened. She grew very thin and she slept badly. Her beauty took on a slightly haggard quality, and there were dark circles under her eyes, fainter color in her cheeks; but what she lost in freshness she gained, subtly, in sophistication and distinction.

And she loved it all; the overlapping engagements, the stiff, square, creased envelopes delivered by hand, the clanging telephone, the long cardboard flower boxes with their contents shrouded in moist oiled paper and tiny cards tucked in their corners, the cool home-comings when she left a heated ballroom just before dawn and felt the fresh breeze in her face as Horace drove her swiftly up New Hampshire avenue.

Anne was progressing with a rapidity which was sufficiently rare to be remarkable even in that capacity where so many others have been tested, and have proven beyond any possible question the fine adaptability of the fine American woman.

Nothing perhaps was more indicative of her advance in savoir-faire than the difference in the degree of composure with which she approached the White House. When she first drove under its white-pillared portico to deposit her card and Neal's on the small silver salver extended to her by the manservant in livery her fingers trembled so that she could hardly lay down the neatly folded bits of cardboard. The deference which doth "hedge in a king" and which—deny it though we may—seems to many of us to hedge in a President's also, rose before her in all its grandeur, terrifying her with its significance.

Her sense of awe persisted all the afternoon; and when Mrs. Hammel told her she should follow up this ceremony of card leaving, after a little interval, with a note to Miss Hopkinson; Mrs. Shaw's secretary, requesting to be received by the President's wife, her reluctance to take this bold step was as evident in her face as it was in her voice.

"Why, Mrs. Hammel, I couldn't! Surely I ought to wait for her to make the suggestion, if such a suggestion is ever to be made!"

"Certainly you ought not! Do you imagine that Mrs. Shaw spends her leisure moments glancing through the cards that are showered upon her and deciding whom to favor with an invitation? She never sees those cards. She has no leisure moments. But Miss Hopkinson, the grim old dragon—and a pretty good sort, too, when you get to know her!—has you all neatly docketed and knows whether you have done right by our Neil, and all that. So run along home, Goldlocks, and get your note written!"

News Review of Current Events the World Over

Irate Senate Rebukes Huey Long, Then Gags Him; Jobs and Wages Highest Since 1931; Senate Rejects Higher Normal Income Tax Rate.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD

HUEY P. LONG, the vituperative senator from Louisiana, was soundly spanked by the senate Thursday. Their patience exhausted, Democratic leaders united in administering a sound rebuke for his conduct on the floor. The proceedings were without recent precedence in the senate. Following the blistering remarks hurled at the Kingfish, the senate clamped upon him temporarily a parliamentary muzzle that reduced him to silence.

Senatorial veterans could not remember a similar occasion when a senator has been subjected to the humiliation of such a public chorus of disapproval from his colleagues. The Louisiana's behavior in the senate has disgraced him in the eyes of the nation, Senator Pat Harrison (Dem., Miss.), told Huey.

The Kingfish screamed his protests. He shouted that Senator Harrison was the kind of man who "would stick a knife in a friend's back and drink his blood." This brand of abuse brought Majority Leader Joseph T. Robinson (Dem., Ark.), Senator Bennett Clark (Dem., Mo.), and others to their feet and the senate rules were invoked to stop the mouth-of-the-yelling Long. He sat down and gulped in his chair.

The senate has fumed for days at the exorbitant Long put on his typical exhibitions, shouting to the galleries. Thursday found almost the entire body in a wrathful revolt against these displays of temperament which have been hampering the consideration of important bills.

THAT Maj. Gen. Benjamin D. Foulois, chief of the air corps, and others acted in "violation of the law" in connection with the proposed purchase of $7,500,000 worth of army airplanes, is the conclusion of a subcommittee of the house military affairs committee that has been investigating the matter. The subcommittee also found that Harry H. Woodring, assistant secretary of war, had attempted to assure competitive bidding for the airplanes and thereby comply with the law and the intent of congress.

The transaction in question dates back to the first of the year. Army officers, asking a public works allotment to buy airplanes, made arrangements to purchase them from special companies without competitive bids. Woodring, the committee decided, intervened and demanded competitive bids be sought. Specifications were drawn and proposals submitted to the industry for bids. But the army judge advocate general held the proposals did not assure competitive bidding.

The committee contended that in so far as it had been able to find, Woodring's every act was to assure free competition, yet his desires were thwarted. It mentioned, in addition to Foulois, Brig. Gen. Henry Couger Pratt, chief of the army air corps' procurements division. It said Foulois gave testimony before the Rogers committee and an appropriations subcommittee which seemed to conflict.

CONTINUED improvement in business activity during February and March and expansion of employment and pay rolls to the highest point since the latter half of 1931 were announced by the Commerce department in one of its most optimistic reports on business since 1930.

The average weekly wage was $19.31 in February, the highest since 1931. The hourly rate of 55.3 cents per hour was within 4.1 cents of February, 1933. The employment improvement was general throughout manufacturing industries. Seventy-seven of the 89 manufacturing industries reported increased employment in February and 79 reported higher total wages. When classified into 14 major groups only the food group did not make an employment or pay roll gain.

"SOAK the rich" forces were defeated Thursday when the senate rejected an amendment to the revenue bill by Senator La Follette, Wisconsin Republican, for a big increase in surtax rates.

The vote was 47 to 36. The party lineup showed 25 Democrats, 10 Republicans and one Farmer-Laborite for the amendment, with 30 Democrats and 17 Republicans against it.

Estimated to produce $185,000,000 additional revenue, the La Follette amendment called for a boost in the normal income tax rate from 4 to 6 per cent, with surtaxes graduated up to 71 per cent on net incomes in excess of $1,000,000.

TO PREVENT extreme demoralization in the industry and not to create an artificial shortage, is the intent of the production control proposals submitted to the dairy industry by the farm administration. Administrators asserted in an appeal for national support for the plan. The case for limiting milk supplies was presented in a series of articles prepared by the AAA.

Officials said it would be easier for them to let the dairy problem work itself out by natural processes, but it would mean starvation for the farmer.

They pointed out that the proposed plan would affect some 4,500,000 farm families, whose income had been cut in half during the depression and whose products had been selling at 40 per cent below prewar "parity."

It is proposed that dairymen limit their output to conform with sales quotas to be allotted under the program. For their co-operation they would be paid benefits, derived from collection of an estimated $165,000,000 in processing taxes, $15,000,000 of which would be earmarked for even distribution among three supplemental relief plans, involving tuberculosis eradication, purchase of surplus milk to feed undernourished city children and transfer of good cows to poor farms.

THE house of representatives got busy Wednesday, suspended its rules and granted quick approval to three important bills dealing with widely divergent subjects. They were:

The administration sugar bill—subject of heated controversy for months—which all through to final approval without even a record vote. It includes sugar as a basic commodity under the AAA, quotas domestic production of sugar beets and cane, and gives Secretary of Agriculture Wallace power to quota imports of Cuban and insular sugar.

The so-called Johnson bill, prohibiting foreign nations which are in default on private or national obligations in this country from floating their securities in the American market. The measure is the upshot of a senatorial investigation several years ago into the nature of foreign borrowings in the United States.

A resolution ordering a federal power commission inquiry into rates charged for electric energy by private power companies throughout the country.

IMMEDIATE comprehensive revision of the national railway labor act to expedite and enforce the settlement of disputes between the railroads and their employees and to safeguard the right of collective bargaining, was recommended by Joseph B. Eastman, federal co-ordinator of transportation, in a letter to Representative Sam Rayburn, chairman of the house interstate commerce committee.

His outstanding recommendations were these: The creation of a new national board of adjustment, divided into four independent parts, whose awards would be enforceable in the courts.

The substitution of a new national mediation board of three members for the present board of mediation of five members.

The inclusion of all companies which operate equipment or facilities or furnish service included within the definition of the terms "railroad" and "transportation" in the interstate commerce act.

Provisions similar to those in the temporary emergency railroad transportation act of last year, insuring "the complete divorce of railroad employees and managements in the choice of representatives to deal one with the other" and providing adequate means for the enforcement of these provisions.

The national adjustment board would be divided into four independent parts to adjust disputes.

A "COMMON sense recovery plan" was laid before the country Thursday by France's aged premier, Gaston Doumergue.

The program, which was officially approved by a special council of ministers at Elysee palace, is comparable in scope with Russia's five-year plan and America's NRA. It reflects, however, the typical distrust of experiments by the French peasant. It is marked by the same simplicity and absence of ballyhoo which has characterized all of "Gastoune's" actions since the dramatic February morning when he arrived in the Civil war littered capital.

The French program is based on the theory that if the government puts its own house in order and mends its own business, industry will recover by itself.

It all boils down to a question of restoring confidence, but the methods laid down for achieving this purpose are nothing short of revolutionary for France. The keystone in Doumergue's edifice of recovery is the leveling of government expenditures down to income, which means eliminating immediately the budget deficit of some $270,000,000.

GENERAL JOHNSON said at his first press conference in six weeks that he favored allowing the licensing provision of the National Recovery act to expire in June.

The general's attention was called to a report that the President favored extending the licensing arrangement, which had not yet been invoked in a single case, and he indicated that he would be at the service of the President for further discussion of the matter.

Inquiry in administration quarters concerning the recent report of the federal trade commission on the operation of the steel code led to the information that General Johnson would reply to this report shortly. The general is said to hold views diametrically opposed to those of the trade commission respecting the regulation and supervision of business by the government.

ACTING under the power delegated to him by President Roosevelt under an executive order, National Recovery Administrator Johnson approved an amendment to the bituminous coal code imposing a five-day week of 35 hours and revising its wage scale upward, figured on a $5 base with differentials, on the entire bituminous coal industry. The amendment is subject to a hearing on April 9.

Authoritative sources in Washington agreed that the operators would accept the amendment, at least until after the hearing and that the threat of a strike is avoided at least until after that hearing by the action of the NRA head.

John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers, issued a statement praising the action of the administration and promising the co-operation of the union.

THE liberal Spanish republic has discarded one of the major pillars upon which it was built. Marshaled by the nominally moderate Radical party that once was violently anti-clerical, the cortes in an uproarious session put 7,600 clergymen back on the payroll of the state for life.

For three hours before passage of the law, which directly violates article 26 of the republican constitution, Premier Alejandro Lerroux's supporters and the shrunken left opposition hurled insults and waved fists at each other. Left filibusters were ready with some 300 amendments, but the gag rule was voted before a single one was proposed.

SAMUEL INSULL, fugitive utility magnate, has learned that Uncle Sam has long arms. He thought himself safe aboard the chartered freighter, on which he escaped from Greece, anchored at Istanbul, but Uncle Sam's long arm tagged him and he was arrested by the Turkish authorities. The council of ministers immediately ordered his extradition to the United States. Two eminent Turkish lawyers on behalf of Insull filed an appeal with the supreme court of Turkey against the extradition order. But the appeal was denied.

Unless the former utility magnate is able to perform some new wonder, his year and a half flight almost halfway around the world has been brought to an end.

ROME witnessed one of the most magnificent Easters in its long history as the capital of Catholic Christendom. To the usual imposing Easter ceremonies in St. Peter's cathedral were added this year, by special will of Pope Pius, the solemn liturgical rites canonizing Don Giovanni Bosco, humble Turin priest.

Easter also ended the holy year proclaimed by the pontiff in commemoration of the nineteenth century of the crucifixion. Eighty thousand people pressed inside St. Peter's for the canonization ceremonies and the pontifical mass afterwards, and nearly 300,000 more were estimated to have crowded into St. Peter's square. Among the crowds were 108,000 on pilgrimages from many different countries.

THE Civil Works administration has gone out of existence, and this relief organization became the works division of the Federal Emergency Relief administration.

Under this title it will use some $600,000,000 remaining from its recent grant of $850,000,000 for the year 1935 to provide relief for states, which are in turn to pass the money along to cities and counties.

For a month district agents have been working to perfect the machinery for the change.

Meanwhile, administration officials made it clear that industry was not expected to take up the whole slack of unemployment, absorbing the former CWA workers, in a day.

REPRESENTATIVES of the flour milling industry decided to operate without a code of fair competition. Their rejection of the NRA and AAA marks the first refusal of an entire industry to accept the administration's recovery plans. The decision to go ahead without NRA affiliation came after nearly nine months of fruitless negotiations with the NRA and AAA officials.

Government officials were represented as considering a legal test if the millers do not reopen negotiations. There was some talk that the millers might be put under a license. "The millers contend that the code offered would have brought ruin to the industry and would have forced up prices of flour beyond the ability of consumers to pay."

TO THE NTH DEGREE

New Hospital Patient—Say, doctor, I asked that nurse to put a hot water bottle at my feet and she stuck up her nose and walked away.

Doctor—What else could you expect? That was the head nurse. Patient—Oh, do they specialize that much? Then get me the foot nurse.—Capper's Weekly.

Didn't Want to Miss It Sister—Freddy, don't you think you'd better go to bed now? Little Brother—No, I want to stick around and see your friend explode first.

Sister's Boy Friend—Good gracious! Whatever can the child mean? Little Brother—I heard Minnie tell mamma you were about ready to pop!

Worked A peasant bought a barometer, and a fortnight later the instrument maker from whom he bought it passed the door.

Instrument Maker—Well, are you satisfied with the barometer? Peasant—Rather! I have had it a fortnight, and we have had fine weather all the time.—Pearson's.

Numerically Speaking A little boy was balancing himself on his head when an old lady who knew him came by.

"Aren't you too young to do that?" she asked. "You're only six." "It's all right, missis," replied the boy without losing his balance. "I'm nine while I'm upside down."

BUSINESSLIKE

Mrs. Stonehammer—Johnny Bonechisel says he considers our daughter worth her weight in clam shells. Mr. B.—That's fine I'll hold him off a few weeks while we fatten her up.

Fixating Time Lecturer (who has spoken for two hours)—I shall not keep you much longer. I am afraid I have spoken at rather great length. There is no clock in the room, and I must apologize for not having a watch with me. A Voice—There's a calendar behind you, mister!—Exchange.

Manysidedness "Every story has two sides," said the fair-minded man. "Yes," replied Senator Sorghum. "At least two. The number of sides a story has depends largely on how many political parties happen to be in the field."—Washington Star.

Anatomical Problem "Bobbie, I am going to spank you as sure as anything," said Bobbie's mother. "You can't. I'm sittin' on it," said Bobbie.—Chicago News.

Radio Scene Program Director—Who are all those women in the waiting room? Office Boy—They are the mothers of the Harmony sisters.

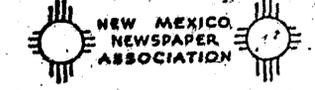

Brides Are Stronger Bride—I made this pudding all by myself. Hubby—Fine! But who helped you lift it out of the oven?

Confidence in Democratic Leadership Shown

Results of the recent city elections confirm the belief of democratic leaders that the people of the state have confidence in democratic leadership.

In Gallup, the democratic candidates were elected by a three to one majority. This victory is highly significant because Gallup is normally republican.

Two democratic candidates were elected and three defeated by small majorities. The usual republican majority in Santa Fe ranges between 1,200 and 1,500 votes.

Two years ago a democrat was elected mayor of Santa Fe for the second time in the city's history. His election was brought about by a strong element of the republican party which threw its support to the democrats.

LOCAL AND PERSONAL

Mrs. Paul Mayer has returned from a few days spent with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Gilmore of Tularosa.

A big box supper was held at the Bonnell ranch last Saturday, the proceeds of which were for the new church which is just being completed at Glencoe. Those who attended enjoyed an old fashioned square dance.

Mr. and Mrs. John A. Messer of Corona have moved to Alamogordo, where they have leased a service station.

The many friends of Tom Brown, a former Carrizozo High School boy will be glad to hear that he is now a graduated radio operator with the U. S. Government Air Service and is stationed at Rockwell Field, San Diego, Calif. He recently made a trip from New York City to San Francisco via the Panama Canal (hence to San Diego by plane. He is expected home in a short time on a 45 day furlough. Carrizozo should be proud of this Lincoln county boy who is making good.—Contributed.

Home Ec. Conference

The Home Economics Conference of District VI was held in Carrizozo on Saturday, April 14. Corona, Tularosa, Carrizozo, Capitan and Vaughn are included in this district. About seventy representatives met from the various schools in which Vocational Home Economics is taught. Vaughn was unable to attend the conference this year.

The Home Economics Teachers meeting was scheduled to meet from 9:30 to 12:30. This group included Miss Mildred Jameson, Corona, Miss Tressie Davis Carrizozo, Miss Freddie Lee Bradford, Tularosa, and Miss Jayne Bromell of Capitan, who was District Chairman. Several visitors were also present. Miss Jameson will be district chairman next year.

While the teacher's meeting was in session the Carrizozo club entertained the visiting clubs with dancing and games in Community Hall.

A delicious luncheon was served by the Carrizozo club and Miss Davis to the visitors, teachers and Home Economics club members. Purple and white Fleur-de-lis and purple lilacs decorated the tables. Following the luncheon a short club business meeting was held. It was voted that for next year the district chairman will be Leslye Cooper and the district secretary will be Mary Pickett Warden. Both are Carrizozo girls.

A club program was enjoyed after the election of officers in the high school auditorium. Each club contributed to the program.

The District Meeting will be held in Tularosa next spring.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Ed Queen of White Oaks was the scene last Sunday of a bridge party. Seven tables played, men's high score was won by Mr. Clyde Collier and the high score for the women was won by Mrs. Betty Walker.

BLESSING THE PETS

St. Anthony the Great is the saint of domestic animals and pets. His feast day was celebrated in Italy recently. Thousands of people flocked to the churches, carrying, leading, and even pushing their pets to receive the blessings of the priests. Horses, mules, sheep, oxen, dogs, cats, suckling pigs, and even white mice and canaries mingled in the square outside St. Anthony's church in Rome, where all day long the priests were kept busy blessing the animals and sprinkling them with holy water. Many a hardy carter, who stopped to uncouple his horses and lead them to church, went back to his work, rejoicing in the strength, zeal and service of his faithful animals.—Tit-Bits Magazine.

Why Liquid Laxatives are Back in Favor

The public is fast returning to the use of liquid laxatives. People have learned that the right dose of a properly prepared liquid laxative will bring a perfect movement without any discomfort at the time, or after.

The dose of a liquid laxative can be varied to suit the needs of the individual. The action can thus be regulated. A child is easily given the right dose. And mild liquid laxatives do not irritate the kidneys.

Doctors are generally agreed that senna is a natural laxative. It does not drain the system like the cathartics that leave you so thirsty. Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is a liquid laxative which relies on senna for its laxative action. It gently helps the average person's bowels back to regularity.

You can always get Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin at any drug store, ready for use. Member N. E. A.

BEDTIME STORY FOR CHILDREN

FARMER BROWN'S BOY AND NIMBLE AS FRIENDS

OF ALL the timid people I know of, none is more timid than Nimble Heels, the Jumping Mouse. But a funny thing about very timid people is that often they get over fear easier and more quickly than some who are supposed to be very much braver. It was so with Nimble Heels. Now, wouldn't you suppose that after being almost killed by a great giant who he never had seen before, Nimble Heels would have been frightened almost to death, and remained so? At first he was frightened. Of course. He would have been a funny fellow if he hadn't been.

But it didn't take Nimble Heels long to find out that those hands of Farmer Brown's boy were very gentle hands. Somehow, after a little he liked to be stroked by them. Then he was wrapped in something soft. It was the handkerchief of Farmer Brown's boy. In this he made the longest journey he had ever dreamed of. Clear across the Green Meadows, up the Long Lane, across the farm yard to Farmer Brown's house. There Farmer Brown's boy placed him in the suggest of snug little cages with soft moss for a bed, and left him to himself. Nimble Heels still felt a little weak, so he buried himself in the soft moss and went to sleep. It was night and quite dark when finally he awoke. At first he couldn't imagine where he was. Then he remembered, and all of a sudden he was all shivery with fear. It was still, very, very still, so at last he found courage to creep out and examine the place where he was. It didn't take him long to discover that he was a prisoner, and a perfect panic of fear swept over him.

The next day, when Farmer Brown's boy came to look at him and see how he was getting along, Nimble Heels wouldn't poke so much as the tip of his nose out from under the moss. Very carefully Farmer Brown's boy uncovered him. When he saw that Nimble Heels was all right he covered him over as he was before and left him. After a while Nimble Heels poked his head out to see what had become of Farmer Brown's boy. No one was to be seen, but there was the most tempting pile of seeds and grain. Nimble Heels suddenly felt hungry.

After that he understood that Farmer Brown's boy would not harm him, but was his protector, and at once they became the best of friends. Always Nimble Heels was sure of finding something especially nice to eat in one of Farmer Brown's boy's pockets. He was safe. He was safer, perhaps, than ever before in all his life. But he was a prisoner. Not even safety could make up for loss of freedom. Nimble Heels began to pine and lose his appetite. Then it was that Farmer Brown's boy showed that he had an understanding heart and was

In truth a friend worth having. He took Nimble Heels in his pocket and started down the Long Lane. Out on the Green Meadows he went straight to the very place where Nimble Heels had jumped up his trousers-leg. There he took Nimble Heels from his pocket. Making sure that no enemies were near, he set Nimble Heels down in the grass. From sheer joy in being free once more, Nimble Heels jumped once, twice, three times. And if only he had looked back to see he would have seen the most surprised boy ever. "Whew! That little chap is some jumper!" exclaimed Farmer Brown's boy, admiringly. It was the first time he had ever seen Nimble Heels jump. © T. W. Burgess.—WNU Service.

SERVE BANANAS

BANANAS make delightful salads, fruit cocktails, desserts, ices, and may be served as a vegetable. Bananas should be thoroughly ripe if used fresh. Those a bit green will cook nicely and be wholesome.

Baked Bananas.

Strip the skin from the firm yellow fruit, scrape the banana to remove the strings which give an acid flavor to the fruit. Cut into halves lengthwise, place in a buttered dish and sprinkle with sugar. Pour over six tablespoonfuls of water and bake in a moderate oven until translucent. For six bananas, use six teaspoonfuls of sugar (brown is best), with a pinch of salt.

Bananas Baked in Lemon Juice. Cut four large bananas into halves lengthwise and put into a baking dish. Peel two large oranges and divide into sections. Add the sections to the top of the bananas. Sift one-half cupful of sugar over the oranges and add one-half cupful of lemon juice with any of the juice left from the oranges. Bake 20 minutes. Serve hot or cold. Very nice with cold meats.

Banana Fritters.

Remove the skins from eight bananas and cut into halves lengthwise, then into quarters. Sprinkle with powdered sugar, one-half tablespoonful of lemon juice and one-half tablespoonful of grated orange rind. Cover and let stand half an hour. Then dip into the following batter and fry in deep fat. Drain on brown paper. Sprinkle with powdered sugar and serve. For the batter—mix and sift one

Whose Fault?

When a Child Won't Study

"Kept after school!" And it isn't the child's fault, or the teacher's. His mother is to blame. How can a boy get his lessons when his senses are dulled day after day by dosing with sedating patentives? When a child's bowels are stagnant they need help of course. But not some drastic drug to upset the stomach, perhaps weaken the entire system, or form the laxative habit. On the right, parents will find a happy solution of this problem: Here's a boy who gets good marks, has time and energy for play. He is never ill, hardly ever has so much as a cold. When he does show any symptoms of being sluggish, his mother knows just what to do. She gives him a little California Syrup of Figs—and that is all. It's a natural, fruity laxative that is agreeable to take, and its gentle laxative action comes from senna. Parents are urged to use just the right, pure California Syrup of Figs. Be sure bottle says "California".

That Body of Yours

By

JAMES W. BARTON, M. D.

Dangers of Underweight

WHILE most individuals whose weight is not within normal limits, are carrying too much weight, with the ailments which so often accompany it, nevertheless there are a number of underweights who have considerable physical distress and do not realize that underweight is the cause of this distress.

When a meal is eaten the underweight individual immediately becomes conscious of this meal; it feels heavy. Any change of position of the body increases this sense of weight and in some cases actually causes pain.

Usually the stomach hangs down too low, as there is no fat to help support it, thus it cannot empty its contents into the small intestine so readily. With some of the food remaining in the stomach when the next meal is eaten, indigestion with gas pressure pains may follow.

Naturally with the weight of meals causing discomfort, and the slowness of the emptying of the stomach causing further discomfort and pain, the individual is inclined to eat even less food than he needs and continues to lose weight.

A few years ago operations were performed to hold up the stomach or other organs that were hanging too low in the abdomen. Operations are not as frequent now as more scientific methods are being used to fatten up these very thin individuals.

They are encouraged to eat the more concentrated foods such as butter, cream, fat meat, eggs, and to sit down and rest for a few minutes after each meal.

Comfortable abdominal belts are worn which permit natural breathing, yet hold up the abdomen and its contents. This removes the "draggy" feeling, and so helps the stomach and intestine that when they squeeze or contract their contents, these contents are carried along their course without having any high hills to climb.

In order that all the food will be out of the stomach before the next meal is eaten, these thin individuals whenever possible, lie on the right side for fifteen minutes just before lunch and before dinner. By lying on the right side, any food in the stomach will flow down into the small intestine, leaving the stomach clear and ready for the next meal.

There are severe cases where the stomach or other organs may have to be fastened up by operation.

The Research Worker

IT IS certainly gratifying to the medical profession and to all others who give the matter thought, to see grateful patients recognize the difficulties of research workers and endeavor to give them some financial aid.

Thus, in England, a group of asthma sufferers have completed an organization to aid research physicians who are doing work on the cause and relief of asthma.

H. G. Wells, the author, has invited his fellow sufferers with diabetes to follow the example of the asthma sufferers, and help all workers and institutions spending their time on diabetes.

He points out that, thanks to a regulated diet and to insulin, they are living active, happy lives, while a few years ago many "would have been uncomfortable and dying slowly or already dead but for the work of a small group of experimenters and practitioners who have brought this particular maladjustment or disease under control." Mr. Wells says that diabetes, now financially able to do so, should not only help these research workers but help also those diabetics who are not well enough off to get the diet and insulin treatment. In other words diabetics in good or fair circumstances should tax themselves for the benefit of all diabetics.

When we remember the years devoted to the dietetic control of diabetes by Joslin of Boston and others, then the work done by Banting and Best, discoverers of insulin, in Toronto, under the most trying circumstances, with the final refining process of insulin developed by Collip, we can get some idea of the patience and perseverance of practitioners and research men.

As you know, if these men were paid for the lives saved, it would run into many millions of dollars, aside from the happiness achieved and suffering relieved.

All that research men ask, in fact, they do not ask for anything; all they would like is that they be supplied with a place and equipment with which to work, and enough to live on, and they are willing to give themselves to the relief of the ills of humanity. In fact, many of them are doing this without proper equipment, and without resources to actually support themselves.

You'll agree that Mr. Wells has done a good piece of work in calling the attention of his fellow sufferers to the need of helping the cause of all diabetics.

For Ever-Popular Canapes

Delicacies Accepted as Almost Indispensable Part of the Pre-Dinner Hour Offer Little Difficulties in Their Preparation.

Canapes—only a few years ago we were asking each other how to pronounce the word, and now they are an accepted part of every woman's food program. They add entertainment as well as savor to the half hour before dinner and everyone enjoys looking at a tray of attractive canapes, as well as eating them.

They take time to make, and disappear in a moment, but I think they repay us for our effort when we see our guests appreciate them so much. I find that the easiest way to make them is to cut the crusts from the loaf of bread and to spread it lengthwise with flavored butter. Perhaps I will use ketchup or pimento butter for the first slice, anchovy butter for the next, watercress or parsley butter for the third, and cheese for the fourth. This gives a contrast of color as well as flavor. I then cut these large slices into finger lengths, squares, diamonds and rounds, or occasionally with fancy cutters into more interesting shapes. I arrange them on a damp cloth and then garnish each one with a different combination of contrasting garnishes.

I have the garnishes ready—thin slices of pickles, green peppers and pimentos, or slices of anchovies, stuffed olives and hard-cooked eggs, yolks of egg whites and strained egg yolks, tiny (capers) birdseye onions and lobster claws. I take just a few moments to arrange these garnishes in simple designs. On the finger-length strips I may put an overlapping row of stuffed olives, or the same around the edge of a round. The strips of green pepper can be crossed or arranged in a simple design—the egg slices put in the center, the egg-whites, well seasoned, used as an edging, the egg yolks to sprinkle in the center or around the edges. Just the least change of arrangement will make every canape individual. Sometimes I use with these a simple canape—just spread with butter and sprinkled with chutney or some other mixed pickle.

There is also another sort of canape which makes a good first course at the table. Either bread, toast or fried bread is used as its foundation and it is spread first with a flavored butter and then covered with slices of tomato, cucumber and hard-boiled egg, and garnished with mayonnaise, stuffed olives sliced, or sliced ripe olives or truffles. A hot mushroom canape is also delicious. This is made by sautéing the mushrooms, arranging them on the bread and covering with a mushroom, and a slice of grilled tomato may be put under the mushroom. Sometimes a more elaborate canape such as salmon eggs, for which I am giving the recipe, is used. Another interesting combination is made of latticed anchovy fillets or cheese spread. You may like to use small baked tomatoes on toast and cover them with a cheese sauce. A stuffed egg garnished attractively is another suggestion. Stuffed raw tomatoes or slices of green pepper stuffed with cheese, garnished with pimentos, is another savory choice. Frozen cheese cut into squares, served on a slice of tomato or a bed of shredded lettuce is another suitable appetizer. Crab or lobster salad on a bed of cucumbers is another suggestion for a cold canape. This should be served on buttered bread and garnished with green peppers or capers.

We certainly have gone much further in our canape preparation than the dictionary—"A slice or piece of bread fried in butter or oil, on which anchovies, mushrooms, etc., are served."

Asparagus with poached eggs
Lettuce and tomato salad
Ice cream with crushed strawberries

Coffee

For the quick meal today, I am suggesting an asparagus debauch, which any devotee of this vegetable likes to have as soon as it gets within a reasonable price. It makes a delicious main dish served around poached eggs on toast. It should be dressed with brown butter and grated cheese or with hollandaise sauce which goes so well with both eggs and asparagus. With this a mixed tomato and cucumber salad with a french dressing will go well. For dessert we might have ice cream with crushed strawberries or fresh pineapple.

To go back to the beginning of the meal, if the night is warm, a chilled clam or tomato juice cocktail will be refreshing.

Homing Terms.
Five terns were taken from the bird rookery on the tip of the Florida peninsula and carried by a roundabout steamer route to a position off Cape Hatteras, where they were given their freedom. Five days from the date of capture three of them were back on the nesting grounds, according to Science, where they were identified by the metal bands with which their legs had been encircled before they were taken on their long voyage. The straight-line distance from Cape Hatteras to Bird Key is about 850 miles; by coastline flight the distance is 1,061 miles. This latter is greater than the record flight for trained pigeons, 1,010 miles.

Electricity in Human Body a Potent Force

That human beings are really electric batteries, discharging sometimes as much as a half a volt of current, is suggested by Prof. Fred Vlies of France. By attaching electrodes, worn by different people, to a delicate recording apparatus, he was able to get the voltage emitted by each, and to note the personal changes in electrical characteristics. A person in perfect health generates the most current, but even that falls off in gloomy weather; while ill health is always indicated in the same way.

Dr. George Crile of the Cleveland Clinic, in a speech bearing no relation to Professor Vlies' findings, advances the theory, backed by experiments of his own, that the working of the mind is an electrical process, and that current for this is generated by 4,000,000,000,000 individual dynamos hitherto known merely as cells. The living brains of both man and animals, he has found, emit short-wave and infra-red radiations.—Pathfinder Magazine.

The Deadly Gas

When starting the spring and summer driving pay particular attention to the exhaust pipe on your car. Out of that pipe comes a deadly gas generated by the engine—carbon monoxide. Unless the mechanism is in perfect condition the gas may not be carried out into the open air where it dissipates, but may leak up into the car.

Quantities of carbon monoxide are present in three out of five motor vehicles now moving on highways. Though the fumes are not concentrated highly in the majority of vehicles, they are sufficiently strong in 7 per cent, to cause collapse and greatly to increase the probability of fatal accidents and asphyxial deaths.

Traffic experts have been analyzing causes of highway accidents now classified as "drove off roadway," "poor judgment," or "inattention." They believe that such cases drivers may have been dazed or overcome by carbon monoxide.

Defects in exhaust facilities contribute to this hazard, says Albert W. Whitney, Associate Gen. Mgr., National Bureau of Casualty and Surety Underwriters. Short or split exhaust pipes, leaking flexible exhaust tubes, defective manifold gaskets or leaking mufflers and connections, are highly dangerous. Defective floor boards, openings around pedals or in dash board, and poor engine efficiency, are contributory factors.

Motorists can control the hazard by observing the following: 1. Stop engine in parked closed car, (especially in garage,) or ventilate freely. 2. Inspect car regularly and replace at once defective manifold gaskets, particularly flexible exhaust tubes which wear out rapidly. 3. Ventilate moving vehicle from front. 3. Install seamless exhaust pipes, or have seam facing ground. Pipe should discharge at rear side opposite driver. 5. Avoid following too closely a car with smoking exhaust.

Oil and Gas Leases

Revival of interest in New Mexico oil and gas leases was demonstrated at the last public auction sale conducted by the state land office. Sixteen tracts of land were sold for approximately $17,000, the greatest amount of money derived from a sale of oil and gas leases in several years.

Frank Vesely, state land commissioner, believes that the oil and gas lease business of the state is clearly on the upgrade.

"Letters we have received from all over the country are encouraging," Mr. Vesely stated. "Prospects of considerable activity in oil development in the state during the coming year are good."

Mr. Vesely stated that for the first three months of 1934 the receipts of the land office were $125,000 more than for the corresponding period for 1933. The 1933 figures were considerably higher than for 1932, he said.

Free chance on bike with each 5-cent purchase of candy at Branum's.

New Mexico has spent or obligated 87.6 per cent of the federal funds allotted for highway construction in this state, according to records compiled by the highway department.

Only a few states in the nation have made a better showing.

The New Mexico allotment was $6,189,138. Of this amount $5,438,194 have been expended obligated through contracts. It is expected that the entire federal grant will be obligated before the close of the fiscal year. One purpose of the federal government in making the grant was to give employment to large numbers of people through quick expenditure of the money.
