Mrs. Mattie Cooper

Saturday morning, October 20, at 8 o'clock, Mrs. Mattie Cooper, one of Lincoln county's best known and most highly respected pioneer women, died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Pick Warden, here. Mrs. Cooper had been in ill health for two years, but, due to her energetic disposition, and her desire to be useful, she had never given up to invalidism. Mrs. Cooper was the widow of the late James Cooper, who at one time was one of the leading stock men of the county. She was affectionately called "Granny" by many people, and will be greatly missed by everyone. Mattie Thompson was born in Shreveport, Louisiana, August 28, 1858. She moved to Texas with her parents when quite young. On December 8, 1877, she was married to James A. Cooper, and they continued to make Texas their home until 1885, when they came to New Mexico. They settled in the White Mountains and lived there two years; then moved to White Oaks, and went into the ranching business on a large scale. Over a period of forty years the Coopers were well-known figures in the business and social affairs of the county. Four children were born to this union, two girls, Mrs. Maude Warden and Mrs. Effie Wood, and two sons, George and Jimmie Cooper. Survivors are one daughter, Mrs. Warden; one son, Jimmie Cooper, fourteen grand-children and seven great-grand-children, to whom sympathy is extended.

Funeral services were conducted at the Methodist church Monday afternoon by Rev. Edgar Johnson, followed by interment in White Oaks cemetery.

Real Facts About the Sales Tax

Editor Lincoln County News: In last week's issue of The Outlook, the editor tried to make it appear as though the State law levied a larger tax than two cents on every dollar. Two cents on the dollar is all that any one is required to pay. Anyone can refuse to pay more. That would be:

On purchases up to 50c, 1 cent
On purchases over 50c to $1.00, 2 cents.

The law does not state that the merchant should charge 1 cent on every 10 cent purchase. As usual, the editor of the Outlook is wrong again. It seems that some merchants in Carrizozo charge 1 cent on every 10 cent purchase.

Birthday Party

Mrs. John E. Hall entertained sixteen little guests in honor of her little daughter, Jeanne's fifth birthday, last Friday afternoon at her home.

The color scheme was yellow and green, which was carried out in the birthday cake of green with yellow birthday candles placed on the lower level. Yellow tapers and yellow chrysanthemums were used freely to blend with other decorations.

Ribbons arranged in swirls to form a merry ground from the cake to the place cards was a most attractive feature for the little ones present.

Mr. Sweet Buried In California

The body of Arthur E. Sweet 69, former assistant general manager of the Southern Pacific Railroad Company in El Paso who died Saturday, will lie in state at the Peak-Hagedon Mortuary from 12 until 3 p. m. today so that friends, especially railroad men, who will be at work when services are held at 4 p. m., will have a chance to view the body. It was announced yesterday.

Rev. Wister R. Smith will officiate at the services. Members of El Paso Masonic Lodge No. 130 will officiate at the chapel following Rev. Smith's sermon. Pallbearers will be the following Southern Pacific officials: J. P. Nash, R. U. Lipscomb, F. M. Barger, J. M. Trefren, H. E. Stansbury and J. D. Mason.

Following the services, the body will be placed in the Masonic vault in Concordia Cemetery for a few hours, following which it will be placed on Mr. Sweet's private railroad car, which has been converted into a funeral car for the occasion, and taken to Glendale Calif., where it will be placed in a mausoleum in the Forest Lawn Memorial Park. —El Paso Times, Oct. 16.

Golf Tournament

The invitation golf tournament held at the Carrizozo Country Club on October 12, 13 and 14 was an entire success, although there were not so many attendants from outside towns as had been expected.

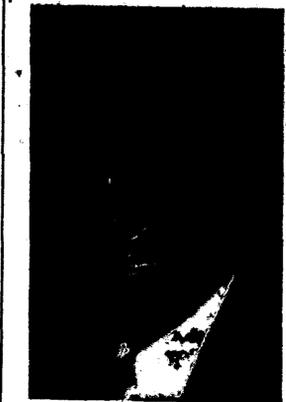

Dinner served at the Club house on Sunday by Mrs. Sweet of the Carrizozo Eating House was delicious and was enjoyed by local and visiting players alike.

One unusual feature of the tournament was a threesome played by some of the best players among the elderly men; Messrs. Finley of Carrizozo, Cox of Silver City and Fenger of Las Cruces were the participants. Mr. Cox won the prize, but all received the honors.

Prizes awarded in the various flights were three leather jackets, a knife, golf bags, etc. Leonard Sanchez won first prize, a beautiful traveling bag and hat.

P. T. A. Meeting

The regular monthly meeting of the P. T. A. will be held in the High School Auditorium Friday evening, November 2, at 7:30 o'clock.
 All parents and patrons of the school are urged to be present.

Labor Meeting

Of Labor Group will be held here Oct. 29.
 Principal Speakers: Mrs. J. A. Greene and Leon Schingleder.

LOCAL AND PERSONAL

Mr. Sam Nickels has traded his Buick to Mr. V. Reil for a Ford. Born, to Mr. and Mrs. Ed Dixon, Wednesday morning Oct. 24, a boy.

Mmes. George and Ernest Dingwall are visiting relatives in Comanche, Texas.

Jon Allen, little son of Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Hurley, has been quite ill for several days.

Some very fine onions are on display at the News office, which were grown by Paul Burton on his ranch near town.

Mr. and Mrs. F. A. English are enjoying a visit from their daughters, Mrs. Burton, of Roswell, and Mrs. Stokes, of Midland, Texas.

Mr. Clifford Hare was called to Las Cruces last week by the illness and death of his father, Dr. R. F. Hare. Dr. Hare passed away Friday afternoon, and was buried Sunday afternoon.

Mr. L. A. McCall, formerly of Carrizozo, but now a resident of El Paso, has been seriously ill of typhoid fever for several days. His friends here will be glad to learn that his condition shows improvement.

Mrs. B. D. Garner gave a dinner party at El Cibola hotel last Sunday honoring her son, Mr. James Garner, and bride, who were married in Santa Fe Thursday of last week by the Most Reverend R. A. Gerkin, Archbishop of Santa Fe.

Mrs. Mattie Cooper

Saturday morning, October 20, at 8 o'clock, Mrs. Mattie Cooper, one of Lincoln county's best known and most highly respected pioneer women, died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Pick Warden, here. Mrs. Cooper had been in ill health for two years, but, due to her energetic disposition, and her desire to be useful, she had never given up to invalidism. Mrs. Cooper was the widow of the late James Cooper, who at one time was one of the leading stock men of the county. She was affectionately called "Granny" by many people, and will be greatly missed by everyone. Mattie Thompson was born in Shreveport, Louisiana, August 28, 1858. She moved to Texas with her parents when quite young. On December 8, 1877, she was married to James A. Cooper, and they continued to make Texas their home until 1885, when they came to New Mexico. They settled in the White Mountains and lived there two years; then moved to White Oaks, and went into the ranching business on a large scale. Over a period of forty years the Coopers were well-known figures in the business and social affairs of the county. Four children were born to this union, two girls, Mrs. Maude Warden and Mrs. Effie Wood, and two sons, George and Jimmie Cooper. Survivors are one daughter, Mrs. Warden; one son, Jimmie Cooper, fourteen grand-children and seven great-grand-children, to whom sympathy is extended. Funeral services were conducted at the Methodist church Monday afternoon by Rev. Edgar Johnson, followed by interment in White Oaks cemetery.

Nogal News

October 23—Nogal has been enjoying some lovely weather the last week or so.
 Mr. Hust moved to the Helms place, which he recently purchased, Monday.
 Mr. LeBaron, of Las Cruces, is here seeing about rounding up his cattle for shipment.
 The State Young Democrats held a meeting at Nogal Hall Oct. 17.
 The people of Nogal are organizing a Christian Endeavor for every Sunday night at 7:30.
 Several from here attended the County Fair at Carrizozo Friday and Saturday.
 Mr. and Mrs. Jinks Graves, sons, and Mr. Buster Graves, all of Roswell, visited Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Graves Saturday and Sunday.

The Sunday School had an outdoor Sunday School Sunday, and lunch was spread after Sunday School. Everyone reported a nice time.
 Mrs. Floy Skinner has been ill for several days but is better at this writing.
 Mr. and Mrs. Murray Zumwalt and children left last week for Missouri for a visit with Mrs. Zumwalt's relatives.
 There will be a "Singing" held each Sunday afternoon at the home of Mrs. J. L. Graves.
 Mr. and Mrs. Benton Yates, of Captain, visited their daughter, Mrs. Joe Chappell, Sunday.
 I wish to announce that the play that was to be given at the school house Oct. 31, has been postponed. The date for the production will be announced later.

"Morgan, Morgan the Raider"

By ELMO SCOTT WATSON

IF YOU are a Northerner, you probably think of Gen. John Hunt Morgan as a fierce, bewhiskered leader of equally fierce, bewhiskered horsemen, a guerrilla, a highwayman and a horse-thief. That mental image is compounded of one, or all, of three items:

You remember the stories your grandfather told you of how he and his neighbors in Indiana or Ohio seized their squirrel rifles or muskets, back in the summer of 1863, and rushed forth to defend their home land from being ravaged by a party of "rebel raiders."

You recited at school a poem called "Kentucky Belle" by Constance Fenimore Woolson with those unforgettable lines: "Morgan, Morgan the Raider, and Morgan's terrible men, With bowie knife and pistol, are galloping up the glen."

Your childish eyes studied with fascinated interest the illustrations in some old book—probably Harper's Illustrated History of the Civil War and you saw for yourself how terrible Morgan and his "terrible men" looked.

If you are a Southerner, you probably think of Gen. John Hunt Morgan as a combination of Beau Sabreur and Prince Rupert, as the veritable symbol of the ante-bellum South in which all the women were lovely and all the men were modern knights errant, riding forth to brave and daring deeds on the backs of the finest horses in the world.

And, whether Northerner or Southerner, if you ever read "The Little Shepherd of Kingdom Come" by John Fox, Jr., you remember in it the glimpse of what seemed to be one of the most dashing, romantic figures in American history, this name Gen. John Hunt Morgan.

Somewhere between those two extremes lies the true picture of this man and it is that sort which Howard Swiggert, whose book "The Rebel Raider—A Biography of John Hunt Morgan" has just been published by the Bobbs-Merrill company, has tried to paint.

Both Northerners and Southerners as described at the beginning of this article will find much in Mr. Swiggert's book to confirm their views, but no one, except an extreme partisan, can seriously quarrel with his conclusions about Morgan nor doubt that this biography is as honest, as fair and as accurate a portrait of him as can be painted from the evidence available after the 70 years which have elapsed since he died.

In brief, this is the life story of John Hunt Morgan. Born in Huntsville, Ala., June 1, 1825, he grew up in Lexington, Ky., under the code of the young gallants of the Blue Grass aristocracy who learned the arts of riding, fencing, gunnery and how to scale a fortress—or a nunnery. A student at Transylvania college at the age of sixteen, he was twenty-one when he enlisted in the First Kentucky cavalry to serve in the Mexican war. He was at Buena Vista but saw little other fighting before he was mustered out the next year and returned to Lexington to engage in the manufacture of hemp and the general merchandising business left him by his grandfather. In 1848 he married Rebecca Gratz Bruce, named for her ancestress, Rebecca Gratz, whom Washington Irving described to Sir Walter Scott and who was the model for the character of "Rebecca" in "Ivanhoe."

In 1857 Morgan founded the Lexington Rifles, a militia company of the young bloods of that town. At the outbreak of the War Between the States, Kentucky as a state tried to remain neutral. But not so her high-spirited young men. Some of them joined the Union army and others the Confederate. Before the war was over she was to know to the fullest the horrors of a civil war with members of the same family arrayed against each other and once more to become a "Dark and Bloody Ground."

After the firing on Fort Sumter Morgan began drilling his Lexington Rifles in the armory in that city and all through the summer of 1861 continued to drill them under the suspicious eyes of Union troops stationed at Camp Dick Robinson which had been established near Lexington. Then, one moonlight night in September, some of the Lexington Rifles, eluding the vigilance of Union watchers, slipped away down the pike toward the Confederate camp of Gen. Simon Bolivar Buckner at Bowling Green.

Almost as romantic figures as Morgan himself were some of the men who rode with him. There were his five brothers, the youngest, Key Morgan, named for their famous relative who wrote "The Star Spangled Banner." There were "two others who symbolized the two sides of Morgan's nature: Basil Duke, long his second-in-command, chivalrous, generous, soldierly . . . and T. H. Hines, a scholar and wit, charming to his comrades, dangerous to his enemies, insolent to his captors, twenty-one when he joined the army—a year older than John Wilkes Booth, to whom he bore so extraordinary a physical resemblance that the vitality of the story that Booth was alive after '63 arose from people seeing Captain Hines and thinking it was Booth. Hines was perhaps the most recklessly competent man in the Confederacy, and the only mind at work in the conspiracies; his manner of war was secret service, plot, escape—the very antithesis of Duke." Then there was the English soldier of fortune, St. Leger Grenfell, "a man out of a book by G. A. Henty rather than life, an incredible figure who had been a Chasseur d'Afrique and became inspector-general, at sixty years of age, in Bragg's army"—and "that Ariel of the brigade, Ellsworth, the telegraph operator whose malicious military comedy was to cause havoc in Northern headquarters. His face had the tragic mask of the great comedian."

After joining Buckner's army, Morgan and his Lexington Rifles engaged in scouting and patrol work. In it he began that career of swift, sudden raids, gobbling up Yankee pickets and in every way possible harassing the Union lines, which laid the foundation for his reputation in the North of being a guerrilla leader. It was a reputation which northern propagandists sedulously promoted, even though he was a regularly commissioned officer in the Confederate army, first as colonel of the Second Kentucky cavalry and later as a brigadier-general, commanding a brigade of horsemen from that state.

By the spring of 1862 he was already on his way to fame in both the North and the South. At Shiloh he showed great courage under fire and when Beauregard fell back after that battle, it was Morgan's cavalry who covered his retreat. Then came his first great raid into Tennessee, during which he proved to the Federals that he was a tricky as well as a brave adversary. On more than one occasion he and his men succeeded in passing themselves off as Union cavalry and fooled not only northern sympathizers in that region but the men in blue as well.

His next raid took him into Kentucky, as a part of the movement made by Gen. Kirby Smith to threaten Cincinnati, a movement which had the state of Ohio in something of a panic for awhile. Lexington, Morgan's home town, was their first objective—"They rode north for the beloved blue-grass through green forests and beside the clear Tennessee waters. There was nothing like it again, the long column singing from end to end, delirious with the glowing September weather and the beauty of their beloved state. Duke was intoxicated with the romance of the rendezvous and wrote the 'Song of the Squadron' on the march." Thus, the romantic kind of warfare which fits so well into the southern version of the Morgan myth.

Another element of the same kind came the following winter. During the Christmas season Morgan was married again (Rebecca Gratz Bruce Morgan had died in 1861)—this time to Martha Ready, a young girl scarcely half his age. President Jefferson Davis himself came to Murfreesboro for the wedding and they were married by Leonidas Polk, the bishop-general, who wore his Episcopal robes over his lieutenant-general's uniform. Of this wedding, more later, for it marked a turning point in Morgan's career.

In 1863 came the great raid into Indiana and Ohio which has been the subject of so much legend and upon which his fame is principally based. It ended disastrously—with his capture near East Liverpool and the imprisonment of Morgan and his officers in the state penitentiary at Columbus from which he and six of his officers escaped a few months later. Making his way through the lines Morgan went to Richmond where he was given a great ovation and a new command.

But his next raid into Kentucky was not only a failure but brought down upon him suspicion of incompetence or worse. The star of John Hunt Morgan was waning fast and it set for ever on September 3, 1864, when he was killed by Union troopers in the garden of the Williams home in Greeneville, Tenn.

Dashing and romantic a figure as Morgan was and successful as he was in the short, swift raiding type of warfare, he may have been a magnificent fighter in battle but he was not a great soldier. Says his biographer: "A technical military book asserts that he permanently altered cavalry tactics and operations by giving up the saber and fighting his command as riflemen. The final judgment of the Confederate high command, however, was pretty much that of Braxton Bragg who said that, if he came back at all from one of his raids, it would be as usual after severe losses and with a demoralized command." For Morgan allowed himself to be surprised and defeated by the enemy too often to be considered a great soldier and the way in which he alienated his best lieutenants and eventually lost the confidence and respect of his men weakens any claim he may have to being a great commander.

Although he may have altered cavalry tactics, he seems to have been lacking in an understanding of the principles of strategy and unable to view the conflict in which he was fighting in its larger aspects. Some of his raids were not only futile but foolish and apparently based solely upon his vanity. In the early days of the war he experienced the thrill of riding in triumph at the head of his troopers into his home town of Lexington, there to be given a tremendous ovation. "After that he tried above almost anything else to make a triumphal entry into Lexington, coast what it might in military advantage."

But Morgan is not to be entirely blamed for the futility of his famous raid of '63 into Indiana and Ohio. According to the evidence presented in this book, he made this raid under direct orders from President Jefferson Davis as a part of the Copperhead conspiracy in the Old Northwest. It was, timed to correspond with Lee's advance into Pennsylvania and if, as Davis hoped, southern sympathizers rallied to the Stars and Bars as Lee crossed the Mason and Dixon line and Morgan crossed the Ohio, the North's support of Lincoln's prosecution of the war would collapse and there would be a demand for peace which the northern President dare not disregard. But Davis undoubtedly had been deceived as to the power of the Copperheads in the North and they did not rally to the Confederate flag as he had hoped.

Morgan, pushing on through Ohio, found the populace celebrating the victories at Gettysburg and Vicksburg and most certainly not in a receptive mood toward him and his raiders. So he became the victim of Davis' mistake, although he must bear some of the responsibility of his failure because he allowed his men to get out of hand and their looting of the property of Southern sympathizers as well as Northern (a mistake that was later repeated in Kentucky and Tennessee) probably would have doomed the expedition to failure if nothing else had. However, Morgan's connection with the Copperhead conspiracy had one important result for him later. It aided him to escape from the Columbus penitentiary by means of bribery, and not by tunneling his way out under its walls as the familiar legend has it.

There are a number of factors in Morgan's failure as a military leader, according to this biographer. "It appears that during the months from April to July, 1863, there began in Morgan a subtle decay of will. He had to compromise with himself. . . . He seems to lack all balance of mind. He is one time too gay, another too depressed. . . . In July, 1864 . . . he was going to pieces rapidly. His mental instability was now close to mania. . . ."

His whole career followed the tragic pattern of those lives which never effectively emerge from the irrational and imaginative ideas of a child. . . . The great issues of the war became personalized for him so that, like a child, he thinks himself the center of it all. He is occupied with impossible fantasies, there is seldom assurance that he can hold to a decision. . . . There is no doubt of his vast attraction for both men and women, but gradually even these relations turn to conflict and antagonism, so that in the end his whole command turns away from the place where he is dying.

"After the war his body was brought back to Lexington to lie in the lot with the Morgans, the Hunts, the Dudleys and the Dukes. Morgan lies in the inner ring of standing stones next to his mother. The ring of stones is very close and curves slightly outward as though all the great clan had rallied close around him against his enemies."

"I mean—what's behind the new little lines around your eyes, and the tiredness in them, the lines under them that tell on you—of insomnia! What's robbing your face, Denis?"

"Primarily, the European war. With the upset to stability and the fear that we may become involved, payments are not coming in. Added to that, our expenses of maintenance are out of proportion to the size of our community. We still have enormous development costs to meet; our payroll is twenty thousand dollars a month. There is the interest to be met on the borrowed money with which I bought the ranch."

"Borrowed?" Mary couldn't help it. She had to ask the outright question. "I thought your million was given to you by—by some conscienceless nut—"

He looked at her quickly. "I didn't say that, did I?"

"I—I was thinking you did."

"As a matter of fact," he explained in a somewhat puzzled tone, "I might have had the money gratis; though I could swear I never mentioned it to a soul. I couldn't accept it, of course, except as a loan. What fun would there have been in the game—if I had had a million?"

"That's exactly what I thought!" It escaped involuntarily as a great wave of exuberance swept Mary. Money wasn't Denny's god!

"What do you mean?" he was demanding.

"I mean," she tried to extricate herself with frank truthfulness, "that we have another slant on life in common, Denny. But, you see, I couldn't understand what was making it so hard for you, thinking you had such a generous slant."

"But you've heard me worry about my payments."

"I—hadn't figured things out. I—never gave much thought to money matters, Denny."

"You wouldn't doubt me, would you, lady?" he teased.

She slipped a hand under his on the wheel. She believed him. Dear God! She believed him! She didn't even need corroboration from her father.

A few moments later she asked, "Can't you get more time on your payments?"

"I have. Mr. Brown has been more than generous. But there are still the payrolls to meet—with ever-dwindling income, and, so far as I can judge, no chance of a pick-up of economic conditions perhaps for years. But," with his never-failing optimism, "it'll come out all right eventually."

Mary suggested mischievously, "I'm sure our hostess of tonight would be glad to help you, Denny."

"I wish I could flatter myself that there was jealousy in your heart, young lady! Could I put it there by telling you that I'm sure she'd come to my rescue?"

"Shall you let her?" lightly. But if Denny did—if he did!

"I shall not."

"Why?"

"I don't want a million with a girl attached."

"Or vice versa?" asked Mary cryptically.

"Vice versa goes, too," his eyes meeting hers ardently.

A cold little shiver swept Mary. He would be like that. She could take a million dollars' worth of worry off Denny's shoulders right now—just by calling the project ours! He need not worry about payments, nor interest. What if she should suggest it?

How Denny would run! There was nothing for her to do but wait until he had won out. Years, perhaps, she must pretend just to drift, if she didn't want to lose him altogether!

He laughed, and opened the door for her.

"Mary, these are hard days for me. But I glory in them! And do you know what gives me courage to go on?"

His face, in the moonlight, was exalted, transported.

"What, Denny?"

"Your faith in me, Mary!"

"Oh!"

"You don't know you have it, sweet. But it's there. I see it in your eyes, in your smile, in the lift of your shining head! That's what gives zest to the battle. Fighting it—for you!"

His words, his attitude, making the golden wall between them more unaccountable! With a little cry Mary reached up and drew his face down to her, pressed her cheek against it for a moment, and ran inside.

A week later the engineers of the Paradise Valley Project arrived at their offices one morning to find a pink slip upon each desk.

A pink slip. The official notice of dismissal.

The project, then, had gone "flooey"! All work was suspended. The beautiful dream had petered out, according to prophecy.

CHAPTER XII

Good-by to Paradise Valley. The bottom had dropped out of the world. The engineers looked at each other. Some shrugged. Some protested. Some doubted their own eyes.

Mary Brown dug her nails into the palms of her clenched brown hands. Denis couldn't fall like this—couldn't fall!

And then Denis was there among them. Not Denis the dreamer, Denis the hard-headed business man. He was very white, very resolute, very determined. Now he was telling them tersely in substance what he previously had told Mary, adding: "We're down, but never out. I will finish this thing if it finishes me. My only way out now is the bonding plan, which merely means the borrowing of a large sum of money to carry us on, the bonds to be paid off as delayed payments from purchasers come in. I'm fighting to put over this issue—leaving immediately for my third session with the corporations' commission."

"In the meantime, these pink slips are dismissals only if you wish to consider them so. Call them suspensions, if you like. Stay here, if you can, and if work opens up again," he corrected himself, "when work opens up again, the jobs are yours. But there isn't a cent at present for engineers' salaries."

"However, there are a few jobs of maintenance that must go on. There must be night watchmen, janitors, et cetera. If any of you feel it not beneath your dignity to do such things temporarily, there will be laborers' wages."

Hilton Dorsey spoke. "There are details of engineering which must be looked after, Mr. Craig."

"They can't be looked after, Hill. Not for a while."

Casually, but with finality, Hill said then, "I'm still seeing to them, Denny."

"There won't be any salary available, perhaps for months."

Hill's nice boyish grin widened. His eyes warmed with affection. "I guess I can worry along a while, Denny."

"That touched, spiritual look, which Mary before had seen aroused by beauty, suffused Denis Craig's face. He made no reply."

"Guess there won't be any danger of the Greeks going unheralded, nor of buildings being carried off in the night, Craig," said Jim Moore.

Others spoke up similarly, and Denis Craig the eloquent, the spellbinder, opened his lips, closed them, opened them again to utter something that had to do with "thanking" and "loyalty" and hurried from the room.

Mary Brown had stood among the others silent, trying rather unsuccessfully to keep her heart-sickness from her eyes. The bottom may have dropped out of the world for the rest of the engineers: for her it had dropped out of heaven. How long would it be now?

Her buzzer sounded. She was summoned to Denis Craig's office.

Denis stood in the center of the room, looking not at all beaten. Looking like a Nordic god!

"Darling, you can't go away from here! Can't you be kind with me now? Overwhelmingly, gloriously mad? Can't you shut your eyes to reason and orthodoxy—and marry me today? Go up to the city with me—and marry me?"

"Denny!" To do that thing! To marry him today, just as Mary Brown, letting him discover the bally millions when she was his wife—his wife—why not? Why not?

Mary shut her eyes against the sweet vision.

"That would be madness, Denny!" she said lightly. It would, wouldn't it, to give the world a chance to say that the promoter had got out of a hole by marrying a rich girl?

"Wonderful madness. We'd move out to Hope of Heaven, And, honey, there are berries on the hills, and game in the canyon, to live upon. And she proverbial love—"

"Denny, don't!" How could she hold out against him?

"I can't do it, Denny!" Mary cried doggedly.

He looked at her keenly. "Why not?"

"I—I can't tell you."

His eyes narrowed. For a moment there was almost a cynical curve to his lips, almost disillusionment in his eyes.

"I—thought we had the same slant on life, Mary."

"There—might be a difference, a little difference," she faltered. Just the difference in slant on a mere million dollars—if that million belonged to Mary Brown.

But Mary's lips curved wistfully as she spoke, and her voice trembled—and Denis Craig recovered his unfeeling optimism. "All right, dear," with his old teasing tenderness. "If it still has to be proved to you, we'll prove it. We'll drift along. But, Mary—if you won't be wholly mad, be mad enough for this: stay on as telephone central until we're able to go ahead with the engineering—"

"As—as telephone central!" Mary giggled. She couldn't help it. It was so deliciously funny. Now here was adventure.

"Is it too severe a test of loyalty?" Denis was smiling.

"Look for your answer when you come back from the city!" Mary dashed at him. With that she ran from the office. Would she be Denny's telephone central? She'd be his scrub lady if it would keep her near him!

She went back to her map. She'd finish the thing. A few of the boys were at work. But by noon desks were closed, blue-prints, estimates and plans were filed away, drafting tables were bare. There would be no more progress reports.

The married engineers had gone home to tell their wives that moving day had come again. Mary could vision these home-comings.

Assassination of King Alexander and Louis Barthou Alarms All Europe—Spanish Revolt Suppressed—CCC Will Be Continued.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD

© by Western Newspaper Union

TWO men of great importance in the maintenance of peace in Europe were removed from the scene by the bullets of the assassin, Petrus Kalemien, who slew King Alexander of Yugoslavia and Louis Barthou, French foreign minister, in Marseilles, "Another Sarajevo" was the question in every mind, and, indeed, there was some slight danger that the crime would start another great war. Alexander was just beginning a "good" visit in France, which was closely tied up with Barthou's plan for an accord between France and Italy, and Barthou was soon to go to Rome to further the scheme. Yugoslavia is allied to France but is not at all friendly to Italy, and Alexander hated Mussolini personally, believing that the duke gave moral support to the rebellious Croats. But the king did not want war and was willing to help along the proposed accord if it was not inimical to his country.

If trouble does follow after the assassinations it probably will start with revolution in Yugoslavia. Only by assuming and exercising dictatorial powers was Alexander able to keep peace in the hope of peace that comprises the Kingdom of the Serbs, Croats and Slovenes, otherwise Yugoslavia, and it is not certain that there is anyone else there who can do it. Civil war might tempt some other nation to intervene and grab part of the realm, and in that case a general conflict might be precipitated.

Alexander's eldest son Peter, who was in school in England, was promptly proclaimed king and, being only eleven years old, will rule under a regency of three men who were named in the political will of the murdered monarch. Whether these three can hold the kingdom intact is a question. Only the Serbs are really loyal to the royal house, though all the people had admired the strength and bravery of Alexander, whose life had been attempted four times before.

The death of Alexander was held especially important to Germany by the statesmen of that country, for they had looked to him to curb to a considerable extent the alleged ambitions of Mussolini. He was considered a close friend of the reich and a potential ally.

France was not only worried by the possibility of trouble in the Balkans, but also deeply mourned the death of Barthou, one of her ablest statesmen and, indeed, one of the ablest in Europe. He had been working assiduously on his pet scheme of a security pact for eastern Europe; and, although Germany had scored him for trying to build a diplomatic and economic ring about the reich, last June he personally negotiated an accord between France and Germany that was believed to give assurance of peace.

Petrus Kalemien, the assassin, who was quickly killed by the French police, was found to have been traveling on a forged Czech passport. Two men who accompanied him on his mission of death were captured near the Swiss border and another was being hunted down in Fontainebleau forest. Where they came from and what organization was back of the assassinations had not been learned at this writing. The police thought they belonged to a secret Macedonian revolutionary society.

CIVIL war in Spain was precipitated by the radical elements, starting with a 24-hour general strike which was declared by the Socialists and Communists in answer to the formation of a conservative government by Premier Alejandro Lerroux under the domination of reactionary Catholics.

Within a few hours bloody conflicts broke out in many regions, and Catalonia, the northeast corner of the country, decided this was the time to establish itself as an independent republic. Luls Companys, president of the state, announced: "Catalonia is breaking off relations with the rest of Spain. I demand complete discipline from everyone." He called on Gen. Domingo Batet, commander of the garrison at Barcelona, to swear allegiance to the new regime, but that wily soldier spurned for time, and before an hour had passed he received orders from Madrid to declare a state of siege. His troops battled with the Catalans, and soon had Companys and his fellow leaders copped up in the presidential palace. Reinforcements for the government forces arrived swiftly by land, sea and air.

Then the artillery opened up, and after the palace had been thoroughly shelled, Companys and his colleagues surrendered and were marched to a prison ship in Barcelona harbor. The revolution was over and the new Catalan republic went out of existence. It was rumored the collapse was partly due to a dispute between Companys and former Premier Manuel Azana, a co-leader in the revolt. Azana was found in hiding and arrested.

Surrender of Companys did not end the fighting in northern Spain, for the revolutionists in various regions continued their desperate efforts, but the government considered the revolt really had been suppressed. There was no telling how many had been killed or wounded, but certainly the casualty lists were terribly long.

GEN. DOUGLAS MAC ARTHUR, chief of staff and now in command of the G. H. Q. combat air force and also of the ground forces, is planning to develop a fighting fleet of super battle planes. The first step will be the organization of the G. H. Q. air force of at least 1,000 planes, grouped in five "wings" based on both coasts and in the Middle West. This would bring the army corps up to about 2,800 planes, making an aerial fighting fleet approximately the equal of any in the world.

GOV. GIFFORD PINCHOT of Pennsylvania has in the past been in sympathy with much of President Roosevelt's program, but he has now definitely broken away by coming out in favor of the re-election of Senator David A. Reed, anti-New Deal Republican whose defeat would be most welcome to the administration. Immediately after Pinchot announced his stand in a speech at Wilkes-Barre, Postmaster General Farley conferred with Mr. Roosevelt and then, as chairman of the Democratic National committee, gave out a stinging attack on Pinchot. In it he referred to Senator Reed as "perhaps the most outstanding foe of the President's policies," who, if elected, would "do everything in his power to hamper the President's program and to make a misdeal out of the New Deal."

It is said that the Pennsylvania Democrats are importuning the President to take a hand personally, and perhaps make a speech in the state, in an effort to win over rock-ribbed Pennsylvania and retire Senator Reed in a defeat which could also be construed as a slap at Pinchot and Andrew W. Mellon.

GOVERNMENT crop benefit checks for more than $352,000,000 have been paid to farmers participating in the production adjustment program, according to figures compiled by the AAA. Some $75,000,000 additional is scheduled for payment under programs now in effect, nearly 90 per cent of it before the end of this year. Thus, the farmers' stake in the AAA approximates $1,000,000,000.

Payments already made or to be made before January are included in the estimate of the bureau of agricultural economics which places 1934 cash farm income at about $3,000,000,000 compared to $5,000,000,000 last year and $4,333,000,000 in 1932.

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT has made it plain that the Civilian Conservation Corps, one of the least criticized features of his recovery program, is to be continued indefinitely. He wrote to Robert Fechner, director of the corps, saying: "I have been greatly interested and encouraged by the fine report from your visits to CCC camps in many parts of the country.

"This kind of work must go on. I believe that the nation feels that the work of these young men is so thoroughly justified and, in addition, the benefits to the men themselves are so clear that the actual annual cost will be met without much opposition or much complaint."

Mr. Fechner had reported to the President that the cost of the CCC during its eighteen months of operation had amounted to $443,000,000.

THERE is an interesting report circulating in Wisconsin, especially in Madison. It is to the effect that President Glenn Frank of the University of Wisconsin is looking toward the Republican Presidential nomination in 1936 and that this idea explains his refusal to permit Lloyd K. Garrison to remain in Washington as head of the national labor relations board.

The Madison Capital Times said it understood Doctor Frank feels the Republican party is in need of a "liberal" candidate, yet not a "dangerous" liberal, and believes he is in a position to qualify.

USE of the taxpayers' money for the government operation of factories in competition with private enterprise was condemned by the board of directors of the National Association of Manufacturers, which acted on petitions received from seventeen large trade associations. The manufacturers assert that such government experimentation merely results in depriving employees in private industry of their jobs, creating unemployment at one point and unemployment at another.

"Entrance of the government into the manufacturing business, in competition with its own citizens," says the manufacturers' statement, "even to supply relief for the unemployed, constitutes an extravagant use of the taxpayers' money in further experiments."

"Where those in distress cannot be provided with either public or private work for which they could be paid, then public funds may legitimately be used to provide relief of actual need on a subsistence basis. But to furnish necessities required through government operated factories is the wrong way to do the right thing."

CONFERRING with the full membership of the new national industrial recovery board headed by S. Clay Williams, President Roosevelt let it be known that he was far from satisfied with NRA enforcement in the past and asked the board to devise more vigorous and effective methods.

Price-fixing and production control were discussed but not at length and with the general understanding that, although price-fixing policies of the Johnson regime would be reversed on paper, no sweeping action would be taken to upset existing codes and any action at all would come slowly.

ATTORNEY GENERAL CUMMINGS has called a national conference to discuss crime which is to open in Washington December 8 and continue three days. President Roosevelt is to address the first session in Constitution hall. The conference will be invited to give broad and practical consideration to the problem of crime in these principal aspects:

- 1. Causes and prevention of crime.
2. Investigation, detection, and apprehension of crime and criminals.
3. Criminal courts and prosecution.
4. Detection, parole, probation, and pardon.

THE voice of Hauptmann is the voice I heard in the cemetery that night when the $50,000 ransom was paid," said Col. Charles A. Lindbergh to the grand jury in Trenton, N. J., after he had listened to the suspect in the kidnaping and murder case. The grand jury accepted this as clinching testimony and returned an indictment against Bruno Hauptmann, charging murder.

The words "Hey doctor. Over here, doctor" were spoken by the man who got the ransom money from Lindbergh's intermediary, Dr. John F. Condon. They were spoken in the cemetery where the payment was made. Lindbergh heard them and remembered the voice.

Although the case is invariably referred to as the "Lindbergh kidnaping," the grand jury returned no kidnap indictment. Kidnapers may only be sentenced to life terms. Murderers face the electric chair.

DELEGATES to the American Federation of Labor convention in San Francisco adopted unanimously and with cheers a resolution proposing adoption of a six-hour day and five-day week for all workers, private and government.

A committee appointed to investigate possibilities and merit of shorter work periods reported favorably.

William Green, president of A. F. of L., made an impassioned speech in favor of shorter work periods during which he said the federation can be expected to mobilize its economic strength to make a concerted drive on industry and owners of industry for adoption of a six-hour day and five-day week and that legislation by congress would be sought at the forthcoming session so that there will be enforcement of this economic reform, not to make less work for those already employed but to create work opportunities for more people.

Resolutions as adopted provide for no reduction in wages to result from shorter work periods.

John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers, won a victory when the convention voted unanimously for the organization of workers into single unions embracing whole industries, as distinguished from craft unions limited to particular trades. The executive council was instructed to issue charters or the creation of national and international unions in the automotive, cement, aluminum and other mass production industries.

Southwestern Briefs

The twelfth annual eastern New Mexico state fair was held at Roswell recently.

Arizona's migratory waterfowl hunting season has officially opened, and ends January 13.

Thomas M. Sullivan was appointed Phoenix, Ariz., city manager at a recent special meeting of the city commission.

A new high in registration at Arizona University has been reached this year with the enrollment of 2,275 students for the fall semester.

A conference of forestry representatives and the Arizona Wool Growers and Arizona Cattle Growers' Associations was held at Phoenix Oct. 13.

The board of regents of the New Mexico state industrial school for boys picked I. C. Floorabohm of Springer as superintendent to succeed Jaffa Miller.

For the first time Flagstaff, Ariz., will have a direct mail route to Kanab, Utah. Establishment of a new star mail line by the United States postal department has been ordered.

Residents of Maricopa county, Arizona, paid sales taxes amounting to $41,186.76 on purchases made in August, according to a report issued by the state sales tax department.

Farmers participating in the corn-hog control plan have received about 100 million dollars in benefit checks or 75 per cent of the first installment, according to the AAA report. New Mexico received $590,225.

Figures released show that the government has already purchased 370,000 head of cattle in New Mexico under the drought program. For those cattle the stockmen of the state have paid a total of $4,802,000.

Cocconino, Navajo and Apache counties have been added to the state emergency drought relief area by the government relief administration. They were the only counties in Arizona not designated as emergency districts.

The copper industry of Arizona, which produces more than 40 per cent of the nation's output, will be emphasized by the Disbee Volturo 40 and 8, American Legion, at the national Legion convention at Miami, Fla., October 22.

Ivan Shockley, called the Sunshine Kid from the Sunshine State by Chicago newspapers, is meeting much success at the Century of Progress exposition, according to Miles Carmen Espinosa, supervisor of hostesses at the New Mexico state exhibit.

A sum of $58,000 will be spent in New Mexico for the construction of new civilian conservation corps fourth period camps and the conversion of summer camps into barracks, according to announcement made at eighth corps area headquarters.

A leather tanning project has been opened for the Greenville, N. M., farmers, and in some special cases to school boys. An expert tanner and leather worker will supervise the work which will be done without cost to those who are taking the course.

The University of Arizona will offer an extension course in Nogales this fall in mental hygiene. The course will be taught by Dr. Walker, head of the U. of A. psychology department, and though one of the newest courses in the psychological field, it is considered one of the best.

Enrollment for the fall quarter in the Eastern New Mexico Junior College at Portales, N. M., reached 240 at the end of the registration period, according to the announcement of Dean Floyd D. Golden. Sixty per cent of the student body are freshmen and 40 per cent are sophomores.

A new building to house state workers will be built in Santa Fe without cost to New Mexico. Federal relief workers have spread out from the small office of the bureau of child welfare until they occupy the entire senate chambers of the capitol. The federal employees will be housed in the new building.

More than 10,000 visitors registered in Carlsbad Caverns during the month of September this year. Those visitors were from practically every state in the Union, Texas having the largest number from any one state with 4,961. New Mexico visitors were next with 4,051, followed closely by California with 1,018.

Selected on the basis of exceptional scholarships, personality, and social welfare ability, Marion Moore, Jerome, and Jean McNatt, Casa Grande, are among twenty-eight students from four states who have been awarded scholarships by the federal government to the University of Southern California school of social welfare.

They hunt big game on Santa Fe's main street now. Someone, sometime in the night, stalked a mounted elk's head in a window display on the plaza. In the quiet of the dark, akin to the stillness of wooded dells, two shots rang out—two holes appeared in a plate glass window and two bullets lodged in the large head.

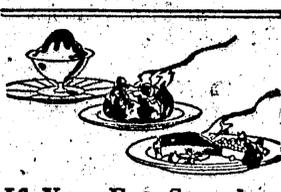

The upper watershed of the Gila river in New Mexico and Arizona will be the site of one of the largest and most comprehensive land conservation projects ever undertaken in this country. Officials of the soil erosion service have announced the program involving a completely co-ordinated program of erosion control, flood prevention and range management will be started immediately. With the approval of Secretary Ickes, an allotment of one-fourth-million-dollars has been made by H. H. Bennett, director of soil erosion service.

Oysters Eaten in Eighth Century Before Christ

Let us not leap to conclusions. The discovery of the shell remains of an oyster banquet that was probably held in a village near Sparta in the Eighth century before Christ proves only that oysters were being eaten by men at that time—not that the Spartans discovered the edibility of the oyster.

The hero who, in fear and trembling, first swallowed an oyster and wondered if he was poisoned, probably lived long before Sparta was even contemplated. He may have been a shipwrecked Tyrian sailor; he may have been some hungry bench-comber even before the men of the Eastern Mediterranean launched ships. Perhaps he was a cave-dweller who watched a seabird carry a clam aloft and drop it on a rock to smash its shell. We shall never know, but we can continue to be thankful to him whenever the 8 months come around and we seat ourselves before a steaming stew.—Detroit News.

Can You Prove Your Oil is Better than the Others?

We Can and Do!

This Machine Shows Why this New Oil Cuts Motor Wear and Saves You Money!

YOU, as a buyer of Motor Oil, should ask that question—and demand facts! Here is Continental's answer: In the demonstration pictured below, the film strength and oiliness of every well known motor oil in America have been shown to be increased by the addition of a drop of Germ Essence.

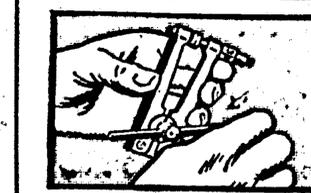

Demonstrations before at least two hundred thousand motor-minded men have proved that "Any oil would be better oil if Germ Processed!" But there is only one oil made by the patented Germ Process—New and Improved Conoco Germ Processed Motor Oil! Use this oil of proved strength in your car! It saves you money by giving greater motor protection and lower oil consumption. It gives you the comfortable feeling that you know your car is protected by the safest, finest motor oil made!

1 Assembled instrument. Split bearings and shaft, lubricated with competitive oil, are clamped between "jaws" of instrument. With set-screw, extreme pressure is applied.

2 Crank is now used to turn shaft. Oil film ruptures and bearings "seize." Shaft extremely hard to turn. You can even hear the metal-to-metal contact!

3 Drop of Germ Essence is added to oil in bearing. Same pressure applied. Shaft can now be turned easily. Smooth, quiet movement—no seizing—no sound. Proof that Germ Processing increases oiliness and film strength of any oil!

Rocky Mountain Motorists Should Read This Story

Continental backs claims with facts. To prove that New and Improved Conoco Germ Processed Motor Oil gives you lower oil consumption as well as greater motor protection, we drove six brand new cars to destruction, testing this oil against five other nationally known oils. Any Conoco station will give you a booklet that tells the story of this convincing test. It will pay you in money saved to read it. Drive in and ask for a copy—or try this oil!

The Republican chairwoman says her county candidates are "so good looking" if it looks they are running on, the Democrats will have a walk away.

Let the welkin ring with democratic fence-riding oratory on behalf of the republican platform. It'll take more than that to mis convert the voters of Lincoln county.

We suppose Mr. Neal is acting as attorney for the defense, as he spent most of his time Monday night explaining why his client changed his political allegiance so often. No one ever has to explain for Mr. Chavez, because he remains a straight democrat. campaign in, and campaign out

Beauty is only skin deep, while it takes brains to run a county office. The Democrats have both

All we have to say about the "Chavez Relative Relief Association" is: We hope there are enough of them to elect Dennis Chavez United States Senator

The Lincoln County News is for Mr. Chavez because he is a friend to the country newspapers, and will oppose the Tugwell bill and other legislation detrimental to country papers.

It is beyond the understanding of the average Southerner how a person born and reared in the Southland, who boasts he never voted for a Republican in his life, can become a "fence-rider." A political speaker who was here two years ago said a fence-rider was a "mug-wump," and defined a "mug-wump" as a bird who sat with his "mug" on one side of the fence and his "wump" on the other. Lawyer Neil took especial pains to let the crowd know last Monday night that his "mug" was on the Roosevelt side of the fence.

Why Chavez and Hatch?

Everybody in Lincoln county should support Dennis Chavez for U. S. Senator. He and Senator Hatch were the ones who kept Fort Stanton from being "scrapped" as it were, and the hospital consolidated with the Fort Bayard hospital. When Congressman Chavez and Senator Hatch came to Lincoln county, Mr. Perry Sears took them to Fort Stanton for a personal inspection, and after looking the place over, seeing the excellence and beauty of location, realizing the value of our life-giving climate, and the wonders being accomplished for our marines, they recommended—not the abolishment of Fort Stanton—but the appropriation of funds to modernize, improve and enlarge this famous and valuable piece of government property. $375,000.00 are now being expended in Lincoln county upon recommendation of Dennis Chavez, ably assisted by Senator Hatch. They recommended additional appropriations for a nurses' home, and other needed construction.

It was Congressman Chavez who prevented the CCC camp near Capitan from being moved. Messrs Chavez and Hatch were sponsors of the Caballo Dam project on the Rio Grande. These gentlemen should be elected because they are able, honest, fearless, and loyal to the great common people.

LINCOLN COUNTY NEWS

You Can't Make an Omelet Without Eggs! —By Talburt.

Wash. Daily News

From the Editor of The American Boy

During the coming year, the boys of America will get a half-fare rate in adventure and fun! The American Boy—Youth's Companion, the nation's leading magazine for boys, formerly $2.00 a year, now costs $1.00. A three-year subscription previously cost $3.50 now costs only $2.00

Griffith Ogden Ellis, editor of The American Boy, brings boys the hearty assurance that the new prices will in no way affect the editorial contents of the magazine. It will be as large, as beautifully printed, as full of high spirited adventure as ever.

The American Boy's leadership has been no accident," Mr. Ellis states. "We publish the magazine on the firm belief that boys deserve a magazine as good as any publication for grown-ups. So we use the best illustrators obtainable—well known artists who work for the biggest magazines. We send our staff writers all over the country digging up interesting facts of science, interviewing world-famous explorers, talking to coaches and athletes.

"We encourage and assist our writers to go everywhere for material—to Haiti, Africa the South Seas, China and bring back adventures for American boys. We hire experts on hobbies and boys problems to advise boys and young men. These steps account for our position as the quality magazine for boys and we shall continue to take them."

Twelve issues of fun and excitement for $1.00! Three years or $2.00! Spread the news among your friends—and send your own subscription direct to The American Boy, 7430 Second Blvd., Detroit, Mich. Service on your subscription will start with the issue you specify.

October 12, 1934

Mr. Vassar Thompson,
Captain, Lincoln County, N. M.

Dear Mr. Thompson:

You want to help the program of President Franklin D. Roosevelt succeed. Of that I am sure. As a party worker, you have a great responsibility on November sixth, and I feel sure in writing you at this time, that you will not shirk the duty that is yours. If President Roosevelt's program for economic recovery and return of prosperity is to succeed, he must have Congress sympathetic to it. He must have friends on guard from the top to the bottom. Your work at the polls on November sixth must be the answer to the critics of the Roosevelt administration.

This year, New Mexico will elect two United States Senators. In Hon. Carl A. Hatch and Hon. Dennis Chavez, you have two men who will do their best to aid President Roosevelt in future stages of the Recovery Program. Also, by electing Hon. Clyde Tingley as your Governor, New Mexico will have a combination of leaders in Washington and in Santa Fe who can cooperate in the best interest of the State and of the Nation. I know that each voter interested in his own welfare as well as that of the entire State will make every effort to put across Hatch, Chavez, and Tingley.

If the people of all political parties will join in electing Hon. J. J. Dempsey to the House of Representatives, I know he will cooperate with the National Administration in the best interest of the people of the entire State. The President needs a Democratic Congress for the important work ahead, and with Hon. Carl A. Hatch and Hon. Dennis Chavez in the Senate, and Congressman Dempsey in the House, New Mexico would be ably represented in Washington. Please do your best to get out every friendly voter on election day.

Of course, this is a State, and not a National Election, and the responsibility of the campaign rests with the State and Local Organizations. If there have been minor differences of opinion, I am sure they will be forgotten, and everyone will work with the State Leaders in the interest of all. By working shoulder to shoulder with real team work, I am satisfied we can achieve a great victory.

With best wishes and deep appreciation of what you have already done,
I am,
Sincerely,
JAMES A. FARLEY,

P. S.—Friends of the administration in Washington will be gratified for all your efforts.

"There are three kinds of Christian Workers," said someone with a vivid imagination—"canal barges, sailing ships, and Atlantic liners." This description was then furnished.

"The canal barge needs to be dragged to the work. Often they do wonderfully well, but on the whole one volunteer is worth three pressed men.

"The sailing ship makes fine going so long as wind and tide are with them, but when things get hard, when the winds are contrary, when the work is discouraging, they turn tail and sail away.

"But give me the Atlantic liner type of worker, the man who can fight his way through wind and tempest, because within there burns the hot throb of the mighty furnace of the love of Christ."—Onward.

LOCAL AND PERSONAL

Mr. and Mrs. Titsworth were here Monday night to attend the Republican Rally.

Mr. G. T. McQuillen attended the A. G. Barnes Circus in Roswell last Saturday.

Little Jane Gallacher is convalescing nicely and will soon be able to be dismissed from the hospital.

Miss Ruth Kelley came up from El Paso last Friday, and spent Saturday and Sunday with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. T. E. Kelley.

Mr. S. Schulman and party arrived last Saturday from Garden City, Kansas, to be on hand for the bear season. They will be guests of Mr. Wm Gallacher.

Eighteen truck loads of CCC boys passed through here Tuesday from Durango, Colorado, en route to High Rolls, N. M., to spend the winter.

Mrs. Lucas is in charge of the Lincoln county canning plant located in the basement of Community Hall. To date 3,000 cans of apples have been canned and labeled.

Friends of Mrs. Fred Neighbour will be sorry to learn that her condition is indeed serious. She is still in the Johnson hospital, and no hopes are promised for her improvement.

Willingham-Lewis

Mr. Brooks Lewis, of Carrizozo, and Miss Evelyn Willingham, of Corona, were quietly married last Sunday afternoon at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Snyder by the Rev. L. D. Jordan. Witnesses were Messrs Marvin Roberts and Dee Leonard.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. R. Willingham, of Corona, and is an attractive young lady. She has been attending school here. The groom is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Rex Lewis, Sr., and is employed by his father on the ranch.

Their many friends extend wishes for a happy and prosperous life.

Buried at Angus

The funeral of Mr. Earl Rountree was conducted at Capitan last Sunday afternoon, followed by interment in the Angus cemetery.

Mr. Rountree was a Mason and an Eastern Star. The Masons had charge of the rites at the grave.

He was an ex-service man, and death claimed him at the Veterans' hospital, in Albuquerque, where he was being treated for heart trouble. He is survived by his widow and two children, to whom everyone extends sympathy in their bereavement.

Grover F. Pruett

Grover Francis Pruett, age 43 who has been employed by the Highway department here for some time, was taken to an El Paso hospital Thursday night where he passed away Friday night of double pneumonia.

Mr. Pruett is survived by his widow, Mrs. Maggie Sue Pruett; three daughters, Frances, Jane and Ants Pruett; four sons, Harry, Clarence, Bruce and Charles Pruett, all of Carrizozo; his father, S. J. Pruett, Sr., of Pastura, N. M.; three sisters, Mrs. Clara Fryar, of Mexic-II, Calif., Mrs. S. E. Paxton, of Roy, N. M., and Mrs. C. W. Davidson, of Milford, Utah, and three brothers, James A. and Marion Pruett, of Pastura, and S. J. Pruett, Jr., of Ancho.

FOR A GOLD STAR MOTHER

By ANNE CAMPBELL

THE first point of the star is Memory. The recollection of his baby ways. Upon the road to yesterday we see The shining candor of his infant gaze: The touch of velvet cheek, the clinging hands, The cunning accent making sweet demands.

Service to him, the next point of the star. The days and nights were busy in his care. There is no rest where little babies are. For mothers who are happiest to share The beating of their hearts with their small sons, They concentrate their lives on these dear ones.

Love is the third point of the star of gold. In blest affection, all the stars converge. Only a mother knows how hearts can hold. So much of love; it is her life's chief urge. Her love will follow him across the world, And past the gates where his lone flag is furled.

The fourth point of the star is sorrow. The star is falling. . . . Shadowed is its light. Only a mother's faith holds, valiantly, Against the coming of the final night. Now hurtling into space the gold star goes, Its cargo all the heartbreak mother knows.

Only the fifth point keeps the star from wheeling. Forever lost in midnight's empty space; But still upon the sky a faint light stealing. Shows it upheld within its lawful place. Serene upon the heavens see it ride, A gold star swinging by its fifth point—PRIDE!

HOW TO SHOOT

By Bob Nichols

Shooting Editor, Field and Stream

GOOD eyesight is a great aid in becoming a good wingshot. But on the other hand, poor eyesight need not necessarily hinder you to any marked extent in becoming a good shot. Some excellent shots I have known are men who wear spectacles. Since all of the information I give you has been gleaned from personal experience, not from hearsay, I take the liberty of becoming personal and telling you that from early boyhood I have worn spectacles. Although I cannot see well enough without my glasses to read ordinary newspaper type, yet on the skeet field I break just as good scores without my glasses as when wearing them. In fact, without the "specs" I do even a little better, striking an average.

Slightly incredible as this may seem, there is a trick in it, and I'll tell you what it is. Shooting skeet one knows exactly where his target is coming from. One also knows within three seconds just when it will flash into view. And you know exactly its line of flight. The fact is, one does not need particularly keen eyesight to shoot well. But to see all the game that gets in front of you in the field—this does require all the eyesight you can muster. Thus, with two gunners of equal shooting skill, the one with the keenest eyesight will in all probability get the most shots in the field and will, on that account, kill the most game.

Naturally, what I say here does not apply to skill in rifle shooting, because with the single-bullet gun and iron sights the man with the keener eyes is always the better shot.

Knowing that I shoot the shotgun a little better without spectacles, I frequently hunt in the field without wearing them. But on such occasions I like to hunt alone. I use my ears and do not want a distracting sound of a companion rustling through the brush. Many a rabbit and grouse I have killed where, but for my ears, I would never have seen them to get a shot. Alone, I always hunt very slowly, so that I can catch quickly any sound other than my own. But even so, I imagine many a rabbit gets up within easy shooting distance of me that I never see. The secondary reason why I do not like to wear spectacles afield is that they are a nuisance in rain or fog. But going without them is somewhat dangerous in this respect: you may be hit in the eye by switching brush with painful and even serious consequences. Without your "specs" on your eyes are slow in their protective reflexes.

The primary reason why I prefer to shoot without glasses is, as I have said, that I shoot better without them. For it is true in shotgun shooting, that if you see well enough to distinguish your target, you can see well enough to hit it with a load of shot. All shotgun shooting should be done with the eyes at what I used to refer to as "wide vision." Since then, one of my oculist friends has given me the correct term for this. He calls it keeping the eyesight at "universal focus." In other words, keep your eyes focused on no particular object. This is particularly applicable in skeet shooting. But it applies in the field, too. Keep your eyes wide open. See everything clearly in your field of vision. When the target or bird flashes out do not strain your eyesight in intense concentration of focus on it. Maintain your sight at universal focus. In this way you will be alertly aware of the target, aware of the line and speed of its flight, and also aware of your gun without concentrating too much of your attention on it.

Failure to keep the eyes at universal focus is largely responsible, in my opinion, for most shooters declaring that they cannot shoot with both eyes open. Certainly you can't shoot with both eyes open if you are trying to look intently at your gun barrel from breech to muzzle, and at the same time are trying to see the flying target! It just can't be done. Even the crack aerial rifle and pistol shots could not make their astounding records with this kind of alternating eye attention. I am convinced that all good shots on moving or flying targets, regardless of whether they shoot with shotgun, rifle, or pistol, use this universal eye focus in their shooting. If you can acquire this trick—and you certainly can—you just can't help becoming a much better shot.

Victoria Falls Statue in Honor of Livingstone. Near the mighty falls which he discovered in 1855, says the Detroit News, David Livingstone will finally be honored by a statue which is erected where the spray of Victoria Falls will fall upon it forever. He is pictured with a walking stick and Bible just as he disappeared into the African wilds and was found again by Stanley, whom he greeted calmly, as if they were meeting in a drawing room, with the historic "I am David Livingstone."

Mystery and superstition have hung over these African falls from time immemorial. Livingstone had much trouble persuading his African followers to accompany him.

Now the Cape to Cairo railroad crosses the river less than half a mile below the falls, and is rapidly dispelling the old fears, though some of them still linger among the natives.

Little Girl Allure

PATTERN 9086

This little frock is so cute it would add to the charm of a Shirley Temple—nothing more could be said for a frock! It is the essence of little-girl allure with its dropped-shoulder yoke, its cunning little collar and big buttons running down to that devastating point. The sleeves are short and puffy—exactly as they should be, and the box pleats are there so that its wearer can run fast as well as look pretty. It has well-fitting bloomers, as do all right-minded frocks for little girls in this year of grace!

Pattern 9086 may be ordered only in sizes 2, 4, 6, 8 and 10. Size 4 requires 2 1/2 yards 36-inch fabric and 3/4 yard contrasting.

Send FIFTEEN CENTS in coins or stamps (coins preferred) for this pattern. Be sure to write plainly your NAME, ADDRESS, the STYLE NUMBER and SIZE.

Send your order to The Sewing Circle Pattern Department, 232 West 18th Street, New York, N. Y.

BEDTIME STORY FOR CHILDREN

By THORNTON W. BURGESS

A GREAT COMMOTION

A GREAT commotion had broken out in the Old Orchard. Instantly Skimmer the Swallow flew over to see what it was all about and Peter Rabbit followed, lipperty lipperty-lip, as fast as his legs could take him. He was just in time to see Chatterer the Red Squirrel dodging around the trunk of a tree, first on one side, then on the other, to avoid the sharp bills of the angry feathered folk who had discovered him trying to rob a nest of its young.

It Was Their Nest.

Peter chuckled. "Chatterer is getting just what is due him," he muttered. "It reminds me of a time I got into a Yellow Jacket's nest. My, but those birds are mad!"

Chatterer continued to dodge from side to side of the tree while the birds darted down at him, all screaming at the top of their voices. Finally Chatterer saw his chance to run for the old stone wall. Only one bird was quick enough to catch up with him, and that one was such a tiny fellow that he seemed hardly bigger than a big insect. "It was Hummer, the Hummingbird."

Hummer followed Chatterer clear to the old stone wall. A moment later Peter heard a humming noise just over his head and looked up to see Hummer alight on a twig, where he squeaked excitedly for a few minutes, for his voice is pinging but a little squeak. Often Peter had seen Hummer darting from flower to flower and holding him self still in mid air as he thrust his long bill into the heart of a flower to get the tiny insects there and the sweet juices he is so fond of. But this was the first time Peter had ever seen him sitting still. "He was such a nifty of a thing that it was hard to realize he was a bird. His back was a bright shining green. His wings and tail were brownish with a purplish tinge. Underneath he was whitish. But it was his throat on which Peter fixed his eyes. It was a wonderful ruby red which glistened and shone in the sun like a jewel.

Hummer lifted one wing and with his long needle-like bill smoothed the feathers under it. Then he darted out into the air, his wings moving so fast that Peter couldn't see them at all. But if he couldn't see them he could hear them. You see, they moved so fast that they made a sound very like the humming of Bumble the Bee. It is because of this that he is called the Hummingbird.

In a few minutes he was back again and almost at once was joined by Mrs. Hummer. She was dressed very much like him but did not have the beautiful ruby throat. She stopped only a minute or two and then darted over to what looked for all the world like a tiny cup of moss. It was their nest.

QUESTION BOX

By ED WYNN... The Perfect Fool

Dear Mr. Wynn: I just received a letter from my nephew, who lives in England. He writes me that his wife is suffering with "water on the brain." Can you tell me what that means? Sincerely, U. TELMEE.

Answer: When a woman has "water on the brain" it simply means she has a notion (an ocean) in her head.

Dear Mr. Wynn: I live in a boarding house. I pay $20 a week but the food they serve is not fit for a pig to eat. What shall I do? Truly yours, I. BETTY KNOWS.

Answer: If the food is really not fit for a pig, just sleep there and get your meals some other place.

Dear Mr. Wynn: My birthday was January 4. My girl sent me a pair of gloves for a present but they are too large for me. What shall I do? Truly yours, A. B. SEEDER.

Answer: Just pour about a half ounce of Scotch whisky on them. If it's the kind of Scotch they're selling now, a half ounce will make them tight.

Dear Mr. Wynn: My wife returns home next Saturday from the hospital bringing with her our triplets just five weeks old. I am surprising my wife, as I have just had a nursery fitted out for our new babies. It is a beautiful room and I would like to have a suitable name painted on the door instead of "Nursery." What do you suggest? Yours truly, POP. PAH.

Answer: Three babies, five weeks old, in one room? If I were you I would call it the "Bawl-room."

Dear Mr. Wynn: I got a job last Monday in a department store in the shoe department. At the end of the first week I was discharged. Can you tell me why? I swear to you I didn't do anything. Sincerely, I. STAUL.

Answer: That's why you were discharged.

Dear Mr. Wynn: I just moved into a new neighborhood. This morning I passed one of my new neighbors and bowed to her, but she did not return the bow. What would you do in a case like that? Yours truly, SHEEZA KATT.

Answer: That should be a warning to you. She may be the kind of a neighbor who never returns anything. © the Associated Newspapers WNU Service.

Take two cups of flour, four teaspoons of baking powder, one-half teaspoon of salt, one tablespoon of sugar, two tablespoons of shortening, one egg and two-thirds of a cup of milk, one-third cup of sliced dates, four tablespoons of peanut butter and one egg yolk. Sift the dry ingredients, work in the shortening with a fork until well blended, add milk and well beaten egg to form a soft dough. Roll out on a floured board and cut small rounds. Spread one with peanut butter, place one or two slices of dates and cover with another round. Press the edges together to enclose the butter and dates. Brush with egg diluted with a little milk or water and bake in a hot oven. If preferred cut the round larger and put the butter and date on one-half and fold over, pinching the edges together.

Mocha Frosting. Take one-fourth cup of butter, one tablespoon of cocoa, two cups of confectioner's sugar and three to four tablespoons of strong coffee infusion. Cream the butter, add the

WRIGLEYS' SPEARMINT

THE TO QUALITY MINT

For Sheriff

A. S. McCamant, a sturdy fighter in the interest of law and order. A man who has become the dread of the outlaws and the petty thieves who ran rife in Lincoln county not so long ago.

For Commissioners

Hilario Gomez, First District. Melvin Franks, Second District. T. E. Kelley, Third District. These three men have been faithful to the last degree in conserving the financial resources of the county. They have served under most trying circumstances in helping to put the federal road program through.

For Probate Judge

Manuel Corona, a careful, painstaking, upright citizen, who takes the duties of office seriously. He has served most competently the past two years.

For Superintendent

Ola C. Jones, a gracious, talented woman who is constantly on the job. She has done much for the schools the past two years and will do much more the next two. She was born and reared in Lincoln county. Her opponent has been here only 5 or 6 years.

For Representative

L. P. Hall, the democratic candidate for Representative, is a farmer, and is acquainted with conditions confronting the common people, of whom he is champion. He is a man of broad sympathies, sound principles and the courage to contend for his convictions.

For Surveyor

In L. E. Hunt, the democrats present as their candidate for county surveyor a young man of sterling worth and impeccable character. Mr. Hunt is a civil engineer of ability, and has made an enviable record in the discharge of the duties of this office during the past two years.

For Assessor

L. H. (Larry) Dow than whom no one better qualified can be found. He has been deputy in the office for years. Is strictly honest and young, and the duties of office will not be burdensome.

For County Clerk

Otho Lowe, an experienced book-keeper, with banking experience, who has hundreds of friends in the county who know his abilities and trust him.

For County Treasurer

Throughout the length and breadth of the State no more capable county official can be found than Louis J. Adams. His innate honesty and business acumen made him the choice of the people two years ago, and will do the same this year. He has never qualified for solo jig dancing, but he can handle the tax records honestly and efficiently without any juggling.

The Republican Rally

The Republican Rally and Dance sponsored by the Young People's Republican Club at Baca's Hall last night, went off with a bang a la true Republican style. * * * About 10 o'clock a number of our county candidates arrived, * * * and as each was introduced by Chairman Don English, they took the stand and made short talks to their attentive listeners. Old-timer Nels Bonnell pulled off his coat and the good-natured assemblage sensing that a big fight was in the brewing, cleared the center of the floor and held their breath. Los Roucheros burst out with "Turkey in the Straw" and Nels gave us an exhibition of a jig dance as ever was witnessed in Lincoln County for several years. —Carrizozo Outlook, Oct. 19.

Jose O. Garcia

Jose O. Garcia, democratic candidate for state auditor, was born at Velarde, Rio Arriba county, a short distance from the site of the first settlement by permanent colonizers in what is now the United States.

Mr. Garcia attended grade school in Velarde, and after finishing the educational course offered there, he went to Albuquerque where he attended Menaul School.

During the early days of his career, he engaged extensively in business where he was known for his application to business and a sterling honesty. From 1906 to 1910 he was associated with a mercantile establishment in Taos, and from 1911 until 1916 he engaged in business at Chamita.

More recently he has been employed with the state, filling the position of bookkeeper in the highway department. At the present time he is in the auditing department of the state comptroller's office, where his duties have admirably fitted him for the position he now seeks.

Mr. Garcia has maintained his residence at Velarde since his birth. He owns and operates a farm where he spends as much time as his duties will permit.

State Land Commissioner

The people of New Mexico need no introduction to Frank Vesely, Democratic candidate for Commissioner of State Lands a position he has held for the last two years. Mr. Vesely has given the state the benefit of his wide training in business and in various public offices, all of which he has filled with honor to himself and credit to the state.

Under his able leadership, the land office, which administers some 13,000,000 acres of land held in trust by the state for the benefit of the public schools, and the various public institutions, has increased receipts materially and has at the same time reduced operating costs to a minimum.

When Mr. Vesely took office, he found that a large amount of public school lands were not leased, although part of this land was being used. He immediately took steps to remedy this situation, with the result that 600,000 acres of the heretofore unleased lands are now returning revenue to the state. In dollars and cents this means $18,000 a year to New Mexico.

His administration of land office affairs has been so fair and impartial that republicans and democrats alike are urging his return to office.

Jicarilla News

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Mullenix and daughter, Opaline, returned recently from a visit with relatives and friends in Texas.

The Erwin school now has 14 pupils enrolled. They are doing some nice work.

Paul and George Mullenix and Miss Orilla Bonnell were visitors at the Carrizozo Fair last week.

Cal Lewis and Bob Freeland were business visitors in Carrizozo Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. A. O. Parker spent last Friday with their daughter, Bernice, who is employed in Carrizozo.

Mrs. Spence and little granddaughter, Billy Ray Bilbo, left last week for San Antonio, where they will spend the winter with relatives.

A number in our community have their licenses and are looking for a big buck and a favorable shot.

Mr. and Mrs. Bill Nix and daughter and Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Payne visited in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Cal Lewis last Thursday.

Mr. and Mrs. Bill Nix and family and Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Payne and family went to Roswell last Saturday to see the circus.

Hon. Robt. Valdez

New Mexico Democrats are fortunate in their candidate for Corporation Commissioner.

Mr. Valdez is a young man of sterling integrity, untiring energy and outstanding ability.

Lincoln county voters will have an opportunity to get acquainted with Mr. Valdez tonight, at the Community Hall, where he, Senator Hatch and others will discuss the issues of the campaign.

J. J. Dempsey

The democratic candidate for congress comes of a family well known for its battles in behalf of labor. Mr. Dempsey himself rose from the ranks of labor to become vice-president of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company.

When the president needed a trusted man for state NRA director, he chose Mr. Dempsey. Since the creation of this office, it has been so capably administered that it stands alone in the United States as the only such department which has not been subjected to newspaper criticism because of its decisions.

State Highway running through the village of San Patricio, according to the location of said highway as it existed on October, 1923; thence west along the center of said highway 100 feet, more or less, to the southeast corner of said Zenaida S. Mackey tract; thence north along the east line of said Mackey tract to the place of beginning, and which said premises are occupied by Cecil Massey and Julia Massey, defendants herein, with filling station and residence located thereon; the court having decreed plaintiff's said lien a first and prior lien on said premises and superior to any right, title or claim of the defendants, and each and all of them; and Whereas, in said decree said court foreclosed the mortgage of the defendant, O. M. Sparks, upon his cross-complaint, for the sum of $379.36, with interest thereon at 6% per annum from the 20th day of June 1923, and ten per cent on said amount for attorney's fees, and for which judgment was rendered against the defendants, Cecil Massey and Julia A. Massey, the mortgage lien of said O. M. Sparks having been declared subsequent and inferior to the lien of said plaintiff, Samuel Butler, and which said judgment of the said O. M. Sparks, at the date of sale hereinafter mentioned, will amount to the sum of $482.98, with costs incurred on the cross-complaint; and, Whereas, in said decree the court ordered that said described real estate be sold, and that the proceeds of such sale be applied in the first place to the satisfaction of the said judgment and costs of the said Samuel Butler, and if a surplus should remain the same to be applied to the payment of the said judgment of said O. M. Sparks; and, Whereas, in said decree the said court appointed the undersigned, Jack Hanny, Special Master, and directed that he advertise and sell said property as provided by law and the decree of the court;

Therefore, pursuant to said judgments and decrees of the court and order of sale in the premises, and the power vested in me as Special Master, I will, on the 22nd day of November, 1924, at the front door of the court house, in the Town of Carrizozo, Lincoln County, New Mexico, at the Hour of 2 o'clock, P. M., sell the above described real estate and premises, at public vendue, to the highest bidder, for cash, for the purposes aforesaid, provided the plaintiff, or the said O. M. Sparks may be bidders at such sale, and if the highest bidder, or bidder, the purchase price may be credited in payment of their said judgments in the order aforesaid.

Witness my hand on this the 22nd day of October, 1924.

JACK HANNY,
Special Master.

OCT. 26; Nov. 2-14.
