CARRIZOZO, NEW MEXICO, FRIDAY, OCT. 11, 1935

NUMBER 19

N. M. E. A. Golden Jubilee Convention

Oct. 30-31 and Nov. 1-2

Over 3,000 teachers, members of the N. M. E. A., will meet in Albuquerque, New Mexico, during the four days of the Golden Jubilee Convention of this organization, October 30-31 and Nov. 1-2, to discuss educational problems and policies for the ensuing year.

For the past two months, officers of the N. M. E. A. have been meeting from time to time with the Convention Committee, and have thus far laid out a most elaborate plan. Vernon O. Tolle, Executive Secretary of the Teachers' Association, is now busily engaged in preparing a special convention issue of The New Mexico School Review, which publication carries a detailed account of the program that Albuquerque's people are planning for the teachers of the State of New Mexico.

Speakers of national prominence are to be present at the Golden Jubilee Session. Problems referring to the educational world of New Mexico are to be discussed, and weighty decisions are to be taken. Of all sessions, this appears to be the most important one for every school teacher everywhere in New Mexico.

However, it will not all be routine business at this four-day Convention. Some of the best entertainment ever witnessed by anyone in New Mexico is scheduled, and is being prepared for the enjoyment of the membership of the N. M. E. A. Every hour of the day between meetings and after meetings, there will be something arranged so that the teachers will be entertained. The climax of the entire Convention is to be reached on Friday night, November 1st, when the President's Ball and Mardi Gras will be held in Carlisle Gymnasium at the University, and according to Bob Kason, Chairman of the Entertainment Committee. "It will be an occasion long remembered by everyone who attends. There will be two orchestras continuously supplying entertainment, plus acts of real professional merit."

School Notes

By Ola C. Jones, Co. School Supt.

Visits have been made to Lincoln, Ramon, and Lon this week.

At Lincoln, the following teachers are employed, John Black, principal, seventh and eighth grade teacher; Ofelia Miranda, fifth and sixth grade teacher; Hazel Luck, second, third and fourth grade teacher; and Lucia Montes, pre primer and first grade teacher. Departmental work in music and penmanship, spelling, and history is being carried out here. It would be well worth one's while to visit this school and get a glimpse of this splendid organization as well as the type of work being carried out there.

At Lon, J. H. Gilbert and Mrs. Lola Jones are the teachers. The county superintendent is having the whole school building completely remodeled, new cabinets, cupboards, and book cases built. A new cistern has just been completed as well as other additional improvements. The pupils and teachers are glad to have such splendid interest taken in their school plant.

At Ramon, Wyona Hall is teaching a good school. She has twenty-two pupils; most of them have a perfect attendance up to date, and this is an indication of the interest shown on the part of both teacher and pupil.

Splendid exhibits from Ruidoso, Lincoln, Ramon, Lon and Capitan are on display in the courthouse corridor just outside of the superintendent's office.

At Jicarilla, Mrs. Ufa Felts is the teacher. Here a marked improvement has been made in the appearance of the interior of the building. The whole community is extremely interested in the school. A live wire PTA is operating there. This organization is sponsoring the building up of a good playground; also the serving of hot lunches to the school children. These people are to be complimented on their splendid endeavors.

The Ruidoso PTA has arranged a very interesting year's study on "The Home as a Spiritual and Cultural Unit." It has some very interesting monthly programs planned. Its October program has as its subject, "Home Education." It will have four speakers on these topics, "Music in the Home," "Art in the Home," "Health Habits," and "Discipline." It meets the second Tuesday in each month, and hopes that any interested party will meet with it as many of these meetings as possible. The Ruidoso PTA entertained the teachers of the Ruidoso school last Friday night with a dinner at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Fred C. Rowell, Mrs. D. B. Morgan, President of the Association, and Mrs. Rowell were hostesses. Dinner was served at six, after which card games were enjoyed by the following members and their husbands: Mr. and Mrs. Joe Palmer, Mr. and Mrs. Stewart Oliver, Mr. and Mrs. Ezell Clerk, Mr. and Mrs. Jim Travis, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Bailey, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Culver, Mr. and Mrs. Allen Hart, Mr. and Mrs. Rooney, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Clark, Mr. and Mrs. D. B. Morgan, Mr. and Mrs. Rowe, Captain and Mrs. O. Brien, and Mr. R. V. Traylor. The PTA is planning to aid with the school building programs that are in progress at Ruidoso.

The Women's Club will meet October 26 at Fort Stanton.

Tax Revenue Sets Record

Sales Tax Collections Jumped from $184,693 To $189,232

Several revenue producing agencies of the state experienced one of their best months during September.

The gasoline tax collections set a new all time high record when $328,716 was collected. This is the first month that the collections have ever reached $300,000. The previous high total was collected in August, but was some $36,000 less than the September record.

The great increase in gasoline taxes is due to better collection methods inaugurated by John Bingham and to the great increase in tourist traffic.

The gas tax collected in September represents the August sales. August is the month of heaviest tourist traffic, which indicates a direct connection between tourist flow and the rise in gas tax receipts.

Sales tax collections also increased, jumping from $184,693 to $189,232.

The Corporation Commission reports a collection from common and contract carriers of $8,099 for the month.

During the last fiscal year the Commission collected a total of $78,431 from the above sources compared with $56,645 for the previous fiscal period.

League of Nations Council, Still Hoping for Peace, Moves to Curb Italy—American Legion Condemns All Un-American Isms.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD © Western Newspaper Union.

ITALY having rejected the peace plan proposed by the League of Nations committee of five, and Ethiopia having accepted it, the committee reported to the league council that its efforts to solve the problem were futile. The council thereupon held a public meeting and adopted unanimously the recommendation of its president, Enrique Ruiz Gutierrez of Argentina, that it proceed under article 15 of the covenant, drafting a report and recommendations for settlement of the Italo-Ethiopian imbroglio.

As they did once before, the Italian delegates walked out of the meeting, and a spokesman explained that this was because they "would not sit at the same table with Ethiopia." With other prominent Fascists, the Italian representatives repaired to the lobby bar, ordered drinks and rather ostentatiously consumed them and marched out.

In a secret session the council drafted its report and framed its recommendations; but it also asked the committee of five to reconstitute itself so it would be ready to take advantage of any opportunity for mediation that offered in the near future.

A feature of the council's session was an address by Capt. Anthony Eden, British minister for league affairs. Conversations in Rome between British Ambassador Sir Eric Drummond and Premier Mussolini had led some to think Great Britain was weakening, but Eden announced his government was "adamantly determined to abide by its policy" as previously declared. He said in part:

"In addressing my colleagues at the council on September 4 I expressed the view that it was our duty to use the machinery of the league that lay to our hands.

"Such is still my view. I therefore support without qualification the proposal of the president of the council, since we are now working under article XV, that the council should draw up a report of the recommendations provided for in paragraph IV of that article.

"No long as the council is engaged in drawing up a report of the recommendation the work of conciliation can continue and it is clear that an opportunity for such conciliation within the terms of the covenant should be missed."

Eden's attitude was supported by Peter Munch of Denmark and Maxim Litvinov of Russia.

On the whole, prospects for settlement of the African affair were very dim. It was reported that Mussolini had said to Count Charles de Chamberlain, French ambassador in Rome: "I will invade Ethiopia on the date I fixed a month ago."

Emperor Haile Selassie wired the league requesting that in view of the "increasingly provocative attitude of Italy" neutral observers be dispatched to Ethiopia to establish responsibility in case a clash occurs.

Great Britain informed Italy that her tremendous naval concentration in the Mediterranean was not ordered with any aggressive motive but because of the violent anti-English campaign carried on by the Fascist press of Italy. The meeting of the British warships at Gibraltar, Malta, Alexandria and the Suez canal continued, and Italy responded by rearranging her naval dispositions.

One result of the supposedly improved relations between England and Italy was the cancellation of the sailing of 10,000 more Italian troops to Libya, which colony borders on Egypt.

PREPARING for the imminent probability of war between Italy and Ethiopia, Secretary of State Cordell Hull established an office of arms and munitions control to carry out the provisions of the neutrality act and direct federal control of the munitions traffic.

The office is under the direction of R. Walton Moore, assistant secretary of state. Joseph C. Green is chief of the office and has as his assistant Charles W. Yost.

On recommendation of the board President Roosevelt proclaimed that hereafter manufacturers, importers and exporters of six categories of war implements must obtain licenses for exports and imports. The articles named include only weapons and other articles used in actual combat such as guns, war vessels, military aircraft and poison gas.

Secretary Roper told reporters that the munitions control board is studying the question of whether certain raw materials should also be classed with munitions.

AMERICAN Legionnaires in convention in St. Louis adopted with shouts of approval a resolution for active opposition to "Nazism, Fascism, Communism and other isms contrary to the principles enunciated in the Constitution." Hull cheering the delegates followed that up by asking the withdrawal of United States recognition of soviet Russia. The veterans commended recent legislation for national defense and called for a larger army, continuation of the officers' training camps, the C. M. T. C. and R. O. T. C. in schools, and for a navy equal to any in the world. They asked all nations to work for world peace, and approved the neutrality resolution of the last congress.

Cleveland, Ohio, was awarded the 1930 annual convention after four ballots. The national American Legion band championship was won by the Chicago Board of Trade post musicians. Franklin post was second, Omaha third, and Mineral Springs, Texas, fourth.

At their final session the veterans elected J. Ray Murphy of Ida Grove, Iowa, national commander, and passed a resolution demanding immediate cash payment of the soldiers' bonus. Vice commanders chosen were: Raymond A. Giles of Virginia, W. E. Whitlock of South Carolina, Whitney Godwin of Florida, Oscar Worthwine of Idaho, Lou Probst of Wyoming.

Mrs. Melville Muckleston of Chicago was elected president of the American Legion auxiliary.

SOFT coal miners were victorious in the negotiations for a new wage agreement, and resumption of work in the mines was promised for October 1. The men were out on strike for eight days. Operators yielded to the union demands when they learned that relief officials would aid the strikers.

AUBREY WILLIAMS, first assistant to Keller Administrator Harry Hopkins, said in an interview that the unemployment problem will not be solved by a business pick-up unless industry shares increased business with the workers. He asserted that the present gain in business has put few more people to work, and explained this fact by attributing it primarily to increased efficiency which permits employers to produce more goods than before with fewer employees.

Williams said there had been a drop in the number of people on relief, but he attributed this largely to a "hard-boiled" policy under which the rolls were combed of intelligible.

"As fast as they go from relief to jobs, we get as many new ones on relief who have exhausted their savings," he asserted. "We have become pretty darned hard boiled on relief."

"Even the National Industrial Conference board says there is more unemployment now than a year ago," he continued. "Business absorbs new business without increasing employment. They get a dividend out of it, but no new jobs are given. We are not feeling any benefit as far as most of our clients are concerned."

By executive order the President added $500,000,000 to the sum which Harry Hopkins has to spend as FWA administrator, making the total at his command $1,275,000,000.

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT cleaned up most of the official business on his desk and started on his vacation trip to San Diego, whence he will return through the Panama canal. Mrs. Roosevelt and a large party of officials accompanied him on the special train to the coast. At the last minute the President decided to speak to the mid-west farmers, and this address was delivered Saturday at Fremont, Neb. The program called for a set speech at Boulder dam, another in the Hollywood bowl at Los Angeles, and one at San Diego. In addition the Chief Executive talked to the gathered crowds at many of the operating steps made by the train.

REPUBLICAN national committee men met in Washington and began the serious preparation of the Presidential campaign. It was decided unanimously that the party efforts in the western states should be most vigorous and should begin immediately. Headquarters will soon be opened in Chicago with National Committeeman Harrison Spangler of Iowa in charge, and funds were allocated for its expenses.

The committee did not discuss candidates or the selection of a convention city. The latter will not be chosen until the winter meeting. At present Chicago, St. Louis and Kansas City are the leading contenders, with the last named in good position because of its new air conditioned convention hall.

It rumors that the Republicans would attempt to hold their convention after the Democratic convention next summer were discounted for the reason that the Democratic gathering will be merely a ratification meeting for the renomination of President Roosevelt, which can be held any time next summer or fall, whereas the Republicans wish to get their campaign under way early next summer.

GEN. HUGH JOHNSON will soon be out of a job again, for on October 15 he will be relieved from the position of works progress administrator for New York city. This is in accordance with a previous agreement with President Roosevelt. He is to be succeeded by Victor F. Bidder, publisher of the German language newspaper New Yorker Staats-Zeitung und Herold and the New York Journal of Commerce.

THOUSANDS of Catholics, from high prelates to lowly laymen, gathered in Cleveland for the seventh national Eucharistic congress. The most spectacular event of the week was the midnight pontifical low mass celebrated in the stadium by the light of a myriad of tapers. Nearly 150,000 devout men and women knelt silently in the dimness as Archbishop Amleto Giovanni Cicognani, apostolic delegate to the United States, performed the rite. Later the stadium was again filled for the reception of the benediction of Pope Pius XI, which was broadcast from Castel Gondolfo, Italy.

NORTH CHINA is due for another dose of Japanese medicine, according to a statement by Maj. Gen. Hayao Tada, commander of the Japanese forces there. He said the Japanese army plans to "extend relief" and to promote the welfare and happiness of the Chinese masses, and declared the army's policy is based on these points:

First—A thorough removal of anti-Japanese and anti-Japanese elements from north China is necessary. Second—In order to extend relief to the masses in north China, the finances of this area must be removed from the control of the Nanking government. Third—Sovietization must be prevented.

REICHSBISHOP LUDWIG MUELLER and his Christian church administration in Germany are about to be abandoned by Hitler and the government, a new church directorate will be established and a new national synod will be summoned. In this way the reichsfuehrer hopes to settle the bitter quarrel that has been raging among the Protestants of Germany. The plan was announced by Hans Kerrl, minister for church affairs, through his commissar, Doctor Stahp, to the Prussian confessional synod meeting in Berlin. Probably Bishop Mueller's successor will be Rev. Friedrich von Bodelschwingh, who was elected reichsbishop by the Orthodox protestant clergy two years ago and forced to resign by the government.

MEN and women from all ranks of life assembled in the Yankee stadium in New York, paying nearly $1,000,000 for their seats, and saw Joe Louis, Detroit negro, knock out Max Baer, former heavyweight champion, in the fourth round. The chocolate colored boxer was invincible, and Max was terribly outclassed. Louis plans to spend the winter and spring fighting in South America and Europe, after which he hopes to have a chance to show what he can do against the present titleholder, Jim Braddock. Judging by his past performances, he can do plenty.

LIEUT. FELIX WAITKUS, young Chicago and Wisconsin aviator, made a gallant effort to fly solo and nonstop from New York to Koonas, Lithuania, and failed, though he did get safely across the Atlantic ocean. Lost in fog and tired out, he made a forced landing on a rough field near Tallinn, Ireland. The machine was badly damaged but Waitkus was uninjured.

"I had been flying blind for a long time," he asserted. "I had bad visibility all over the Atlantic and when I reached the coast I ran into storms and fog."

"I tried at first to make Baldonnel airfield near Dublin and then headed for the Ballinrobe drome, but I couldn't find it. I was delighted to see land, for I was feeling very tired and my stock of gasoline was getting a bit low."

GEN. DOUGLAS MACARTHUR, retiring chief of staff, in his final report recommended a five-year plan for making the American army into an instrument of speed, fighting ability and destructive power unsurpassed elsewhere.

Quality rather than quantity, he said, was needed, and he proposed that all implements of war be modernized and that the technical training of the officers be intensified.

"Beyond all doubt, Gen. MacArthur any major war of the future will see every belligerent nation highly organized for the single purpose of victory, the attainment of which will require integration and intensification of individual and collective effort."

"It will be a nation at war rather than a nation in arms. Of this vast machine the fighting forces will be only the cutting edge; their mandatory characteristics will be speed in movement, power in fire and shock action, and the utmost in professional skill and leadership."

"Their armaments will necessarily be of the most efficient types obtainable and the transportation, supply and maintenance systems supporting them will be required to function perfectly and continuously. Economic and industrial resources will have to insure the adequacy of munitions supply and the sustenance of the whole civil population. In these latter fields the great proportion of the employable population will find its war duty."

Timber in New Mexico and Arizona, valued at $75,000,000, will be endangered unless proper control methods are taken against the porcupine, according to Walter P. Taylor of the U. Gnawing the bark from the tree trunks, the porcupine causes the timber to die, Dr. Taylor asserted.

The number is approximately in approximate figures to 300 men and 250 women students. Sixty per cent of the funds to be used during the current year will have come from federal sources, it was said.

POULTRY FACTS

CULLING WILL FIT FLOCK FOR WINTER

Only Good Layers Should Be Kept for Profit.

By H. H. App, Poultry Extension Specialist, University of Illinois—WNU Service.

A favorable fall and winter outlook for egg prices promises added benefits from the careful and thorough culling of the laying flock this fall to get rid of the non-layers and other "boarders."

Good layers not only will produce more eggs for the favorable markets that are now in prospect but also will pay better returns on the feed they eat. Since the average hen uses six to seven pounds of feed a month, non-layers can soon "eat their heads off."

How close to cull the flock depends upon its size, average production, number of pullets available for replacements and other factors. In a high-producing flock the culling can be done very closely, since the percentage of non-layers will be small. On the other hand the producer who has only a limited number of pullets coming along may wish to cull rather lightly in order to avoid depleting his flock.

Marking pullets during the culling process this fall is a desirable practice, since it will be a simple matter to distinguish the old hens next year. At least half of the flock should be pullets. They lay well during the fall and winter when egg prices are the highest.

When the flock is being culled, the kind of hens that are laying and that should be saved, are those which usually have big, bright red, glossy combs and full, smooth wattles. The abdomen is of good size and the pelvic bones on either side of the vent are well spread and pliable. Bleaching of the yellow color on the neck and shanks is another indication of a good layer in the yellow-skinned breeds. Early molters which lose their feathers in midsummer generally are poor layers, while those which molt in the fall usually are the money-makers.

Worm-Infested Turkeys

May Be Easily Detected

It is probable that all turkeys that have not been "dormed" are infested more or less with tapeworms and roundworms by the time they reach market size, and usually much before that time. Birds that are badly infested will never grow into first-class fowls; others will vary in degree of finish in measure with the degree of infestation. It is highly important that attention be given if good results are to be had from the expenditure for costly feed, says a writer in the Missouri Farmer.

The best way to determine the degree of worm infestation is to visit the roosting place early in the morning and examine the droppings while fresh. If turkeys are badly infested with tapeworms, bloody droppings will be numerous and frequently handfuls of ejected tapeworms will be found. Roundworms will be discovered in the droppings, together with the worm eggs which are round and white and often cover the droppings like frosting. Other than having an unthrifty appearance, birds heavily infested with worms can scarcely be identified. One way to find a suspect is to feel of the breast bone and compare it with the other birds. If one bird shows a well-rounded breast while another does not, one may well suspect the thinner bird is infested, at least more heavily than the fatter one.

Avoid Moldy Feed

Even though feed hoppers on range are protected from rain, the feed often becomes wet or damp and, as a result, molds. Wet or damp feed attracts flies, probably because of the talk and animal protein it contains, and a favorable place is thus created for maggots to feed. From such a source trouble can arise—the mold can cause pneumonia and the maggots can cause limberneck. Wet or damp feed should be removed at once so that chicks or poulters cannot have access to it.

In the Poultry Yard

The care of pullets during the summer months largely determines next year's profits.

Some enemies of the hen, like the common poultry mite, are so small that they would run about 30 to an inch.

At least nine different species of lice, several species of mites, and at least two species of fleas attack the hen.

Turkey farming on a large scale is the latest occupation provided for convicts in Sing Sing prison.

Feeding wet mash to the poultry flock during hot weather induces greater feed consumption and tends, therefore, to ward off summer slumps in egg production.

It is difficult to distinguish between typhoid and cholera. Sometimes only a microscopic examination of the blood and tissues will make the diagnosis certain.

CONSUMPTION OF FATS
The total factory consumption of all animal and vegetable fats and oils in this country last year amounted to 3,255,553,000 pounds. More than one-third, 1,375,416,000 pounds went into soap manufacture. Compounds and vegetable shortenings came next, and paint and varnish third. As might be expected, the largest single item was cottonseed oil, 1,083,959,000 pounds. Next in order of large items were: Edible tallow, 585,896,000 pounds; coconut oil, 549,515,000; lard, 219,746,000; palm oil, 208,547,000.

Hobo, Tramp, Bum— They Are Different

Very Distinct Class Lines Drawn Among These Groups.

To the average man the words hobo, tramp and bum are synonymous terms, used to designate a type of foot-loose, homeless specimen of the genus hobo. They are terms of derogation and opprobrium.

Not so! Before calling a hobo a tramp, or either man a bum, be sure you say it with a smile. For there are very distinct class lines drawn among these groups of unskilled and itinerant workers.

A hobo is a hard worker of the migratory type. He is possessed of a keen sense of his own importance and value to the world that would suffer without his services. The wheat fields of the Southwest, the timberlands to the Northwest, the fruit lands in various parts of the country could not show a profit without the presence of the hobo at strategic moments. To displace him to the economic scheme of things would be to keep on hand well fed and employed the whole year around, thousands of men whose services are only required a few weeks or months a year. Another distinction: The hobo travels on wheels, although the ticket office is not always a part of his traveling experience.

The tramp, on the other hand, migrates according to whim or chance. And he walks always. Having nowhere in mind to get, he gets there at his leisure. If he works, as he does now and then, it is because of necessity and not through any sense of personal responsibility to society at large. In the mind of the self-respecting hobo, the tramp is distinctly an inferior.

The bum is looked down upon and despised, both by the hobo and tramp. The bum travels nowhere, does nothing and is nobody. He is a parasite of the city, begging, borrowing, stealing, loafing. Clip this out and paste it in your book of etiquette. You may need it sometimes to save yourself from one of those embarrassing moments, warns the Kickerbocker Press.

Indian Summer

Indian summer usually begins some time in October, but it may not begin until November. According to the United States weather bureau it is not a definite period occurring regularly each autumn, and is not based on accurate meteorological data. Indian summer varies greatly in duration. It may occur once or several times during the fall and early winter, or it may not occur at all, and if it does it may last a day or two or several weeks. And in some years there are more than one of these periods of hazy, tranquil days.

Find Out

From Your Doctor if the "Pain" Remedy You Take Is Safe.

Don't Entrust Your Own or Your Family's Well-Being to Unknown Preparations

BEFORE you take any preparation you don't know all about, for the relief of headaches or the pains of rheumatism, neuritis or neuralgia, ask your doctor what he thinks about it—in comparison with Genuine Bayer Aspirin.

We say this because, before the discovery of Bayer Aspirin, most so-called "pain" remedies were advised against by physicians as being bad for the stomach; or, often, for the heart. And the discovery of Bayer Aspirin largely changed medical practice.

Countless thousands of people who have taken Bayer Aspirin year in and out without ill effect, have proved that the medical findings about its safety were correct.

Remember this: Genuine Bayer Aspirin is rated among the safest methods yet discovered for the relief of headaches and all common pains... and safe for the average person to take regularly.

You can get real Bayer Aspirin at any drug store—simply by never asking for it by the name "aspirin" alone, but always saying BAYER ASPIRIN when you buy.

Along the Severn

Scenes on the Severn River.

Prepared by the National Geographic Society, Washington, D. C.—WNU Service.

TOWN after town, each with an interesting history, is threaded along the Severn river, which disposes with the Thames, the title of England's longest stream.

The first town on the infant river is Llanidloes, and here one sees the first and one of the quietest of the old market halls which will be encountered in a pilgrimage along the Severn, and one, moreover, which still treasures its curfew bell.

Although the market hall is sadly in the way of modern traffic, making the approach from the upper Severn bridge to the main street narrow and dangerous, the adjacent streets are of ample width and pleasant with avenues of trees. On market days, no doubt, the traffic is congested enough, for Llanidloes cattle and sheep markets are still important local events.

Farther down the valley, on the outskirts of Newtown, a large wooden hall by the roadside attracts attention. It is too large for the needs of a town of some 5,000 inhabitants and too far from the center of the town for everyday use. There is only one notice board to be seen, and that says, "Choirs only this way." Obviously, for choral festivals.

Even a small town like this can hope for the honor of staging the national festival, the Elsteddfod. Sometimes, as in this instance, it means providing a hall capable of accommodating a audience larger than the entire population of the town which builds it; but it is done. The ceremony of the crowning of the bard takes place on an open hillside, for no building could accommodate the immense concourse of patriots who gather for that event.

Robert Owen Was Born in Newtown

The most famous son of Newtown was Robert Owen, pioneer of co-operative stores. Born in 1771, he was also a pioneer, from the masters' side, of more humane factory legislation, at a time when the industrial revolution was at its most ruthless stage. He spent some time in the United States and worked to promote Anglo-American friendship. His birthplace has been pulled down, but the bank which now occupies the site provided compensation by forming a memorial museum and library, including a reproduction of the room in which Owen was born.

Newtown has also the most important woolen mills in North Wales. Yorkshire has captured the bulk of this trade, and most Welsh wool is now sent there in its raw state.

Montgomery, the capital of the county of the same name, through which the Severn flows in Wales, lies a short distance away from the river, almost forgotten by the rush of modern life, dreaming peacefully of its troubled history. Its neighbor, Welshpool, takes the busy current of the present-day traffic.

Not far from the bustle of Welshpool the Red Castle of Powis overlooks the town. Its grounds are peaceful and the tame deer gaze with mild curiosity at visitors. This castle was one of the storm centers of Wales for centuries, and Sir Walter Scott has a fine description of its banquetting hall in his novel, "The Betrothed."

Where Old Parr Lived.

On the hillside near Middleton is Old Parr's cottage, where Thomas Parr lived in the reign of ten kings and queens of England. At the age of 162 he was taken to London to be exhibited to the king, Charles I, but died a few months later. The doctors, after a post-mortem examination, attributed his untimely death to this removal, for they reported: "In short, his inward parts appeared so healthy that if he had not changed his diet and air, he might perhaps have lived a good while longer." He continued his work as a farmer till he was 150 years old. He was buried in Westminster Abbey.

A few varieties of a type familiar since the days of the ancient Britons, are still used by local fishermen. These oval boats are very light to carry, but clumsy to handle in the water. They are composed of a frame of wicker work covered with skins or, nowadays, with oilcloth.

The Severn still yields salmon to its fishermen, but not in such abundance as in days gone by, when an apprentice's indentures often contained a clause to prevent his master economizing by feeding him on fresh salmon more often than twice a week!

From Welshpool to Shrewsbury the country is very flat, so the Severn is here remarkable for nothing except its windings. Its first important tributary, the Vyrnwy, joins it as it enters England, in Shropshire. Near the junction is a village so subject to floods that it was called locally "Melverley, God help 'em."

Shrewsbury Is Very Ancient.

In one of the loops made by the Severn several miles further down stands Shrewsbury, a town full of varied interest. There has been a settlement here at least since the gacking of the Roman city of Uriconium, six miles to the southeast in 534. Pengwern, as it was called, was for some time the capital of the kings of Powis, before the castle at Welshpool was built. The Saxons called the town Scrobbesbyrig, which time has hallowed into the present Shrewsbury.

When the Normans came they recognized what an ideal spot it was for defense, surrounded on all sides by the river except where a steep rock closed the gap. The Conqueror entrusted the building of the castle to his kinsman, Roger de Montgomery, and this building has been restored recently and presented to the town out of the profits made by Shrewsbury's famous flower show.

Shrewsbury, like Banbury, it also noted for its cakes, and one shop owes its fame to the mention of its name by a minor poet. In "The Ingoldby Legends" the story is told of a local bluebeard. The heroine gets past the ferocious dog who guards the chamber of horrors by feeding him on the contents of her basket. "She has given him a Shrewsbury cake of Pallas's own make," and the successor of that worthy confectioner still finds that line his own best advertisement.

In the stirring days of border warfare, Shrewsbury held the responsible office of the northern warden of the marches, with Ludlow, on the tributary Teme, taking equal responsibility at the southern end.

Besides its border warfare, Shrewsbury witnessed one critical fight in English history, the battle which is familiar to all lovers from Shakespeare's description of it in "Henry IV." The turning point in this conflict was the death of Hotspur, which Falstaff himself claimed to have compassed after a duel lasting "a long hour by Shrewsbury clock."

Home of Two Famous Men.

Shrewsbury's most famous son, Darwin, began another kind of battle—a battle of ideas—with his theory of evolution; and, although the battle ground is changing, the fight he commenced still goes on. A statue to his memory stands in front of the old grammar school, now the public library.

Near the Old Market hall stands a statue to another famous son of Shropshire, Lord Clive, who helped to lay the foundations of British rule over India.

The old Roman road, Watling street, crossed the Severn a few miles lower down, near Wroxeter, and turned southward, toward South Wales, another branch running northward toward Chester. Just behind Wroxeter are the ruins of the important Roman city, Uriconium, or Viroconium. The excavations prove it to have been of considerable size, larger than Pompeii, though not as rich in treasures.

Although no coins later than the fourth century have been found among the ruins, it is generally thought that it long survived the withdrawal of the Roman garrison and was only sacked and burned during the Saxon advance up the Severn, which commenced A. D. 577.

South and west of Wroxeter rises the long slope of Wenlock Edge, celebrated in song, with the delightful ruins of Wenlock Abbey nestling beneath it. To the east of Wroxeter, the Wrekin, 1,335 feet high, gains by its solitude a dignity to which its height alone would not entitle it. Remains of a British camp can be clearly traced on its summit, and the panorama it commands is a fine one.

On the west the Severn winds like a silver thread through the landscape, with Wenlock Edge and the Welsh mountains beyond. On the other side much of the fair county of Shropshire can be seen, marred in some places by the smoke from its coal and iron fields, but overlooking fine old mansions like Lilleshall hall.

Among the villages well worth a visit special mention should be made of Tong. Its church has been aptly called the "Village Westminster" on account of the variety and splendor of its monuments. It is also the village which Dickens admitted he had in mind when writing the closing scenes of "The Old Curiosity Shop" and in the churchyard is the grave of the original of Little Nell, so the townfolk say.

Gall turned and looked at her, sleeping. Even in her sleep Ariel's face wore a faintly discontented look, and she sighed impatiently, scornfully—Ariel to the end.

Then it was morning, and there was no more time for dreams. The house was astir in the foggy dawn. Gall appeared in the kitchen, rosy and touselled, just before Phil went.

"You'll be back early, Phil dearest?" "Oh, Lord, I'll be here by ten!"

"Mrs. Bates wants to know if you'd rather have chicken or lettuce sandwiches, Gall!"

"The boy for the trunks is here, Gall."

"There's someone we forgot, after all!" This was Phil, departing.

"Oh, good heavens, Phil, what? May-be I could telephone."

"The Formaldelyes!" Phil called over his shoulder.

"Gall—look at the roses."

"Gall—Miss Wells wants to bring her mother upstairs to see you in your wedding dress. She says her mother might have a stroke if she—"

"Listen, all the food goes here, see?—in this closet. Just stack it there, and while we're at church Mrs. Wiggin and Betsey are going to sort everything out."

"Wiff-waff, if you would eat it, and let me wash the bowl!"

"Here are the cakes from Lou. Will you look at the top-layer cake?"

"Well, she wanted to come downstairs, too, the darling, and see what was going on, and help get her Aunt Gall married."

"Oh, look, fruit punch, two pails of it. Oh, that's marvelous! Look—two pails of it. Two pails of fruit punch, Lily, so that's all right!"

"Give me the baby," Ariel said. She got holding the soft little drowsy armful.

"You look real cute with a baby, Miss Aurelston!" said Lily's mother.

"Mamma, will you lay off?" Lily demanded patiently. But Ariel only laughed. She was her sweetest, her gentlest self, on this busy morning. She had seemed to keep rather near Gall, and when the clock had paced as far as eleven o'clock, and Gall outwardly calm, inwardly madly agitated, went upstairs for the actual donning of the wedding dress, Ariel went, too, still carrying the sleeping baby.

The bedroom was a scene of mad confusion; Mary Keats was on her knees, finishing the packing, and holding everything up for Gall's approval before she laid it away.

The white silk gown slipped over her head; she was all in white. They who loved her thought they had never seen Gall look so lovely as she did now. Square-shouldered, straight, steady-eyed, she looked at herself in the old dim mirror that had reflected all the moods of her girlhood, and laughed contentedly.

"Somehow I can't feel that I'm getting married!"

The others struggled away. Lily taking her baby. Ariel was alone with her sister. Suddenly she came close, and encircled the sweetness and whiteness and glory that were Gall with her slender arms.

"Just one thing, Gall, I'm going on to Chicago tomorrow to meet Van, and I'm going—I'm going to be different, Gall. I'm going to make a go of it, do you understand? I'll be the nicest woman in the country club, I'll have a little girl baby that Van will adore, I'll study French and keep house—honest I will, Gall!"

It was complete surrender. Gall caught her little sister to her in the first real embrace they had known since Ariel had come back. Both their faces were wet.

Then Gall had to wipe her cheeks carefully and powder them again, and go downstairs to join the others, and to walk, around the corner and across the tree-shaded street to Saint Mark's.

There were persons on the sidewalk—kindly persons who said, "Good luck, Miss Lawrence!" There were more clustered about the church steps, and she walked between them at her brother's side.

They were all there: old friends, old neighbors, library acquaintances. She felt their love about her like a protecting great wall as she went slowly up the aisle and saw Dick waiting.

The boys had been shepherded into a pew, and Lily, flushed and weary, was sitting there with little Gall restless and hot in her arms; Sam looked oddly grown-up in his new suit, standing beside Dick, and Dick looked—just Dick, big and lean and happily and kind, stooping down a little beside the shorter Sam, watching Gall, catching her eye as she looked at him. And at the sight of him Gall forgot everything else except that after this packed and hurried and extraordinarily emotional morning she was really getting married.

Afterward, when they were home again and the congratulatory crowds were surging about them, Dick went to the foot of the stairs to meet her as she came down hurried and coated for the trip. Tears and laughter had been so mingled on her wedding day that he thought she looked more like a blue-eyed child than ever: bewildered, grateful, touched, happy.

"When we used to play round the old ranch together, twenty years ago, we didn't see this coming at the end, did we, Gall?" Dick said, as he caught her hand for the run to the waiting motor car.

"At the end?" she echoed, with a swift, checked, laughing glance. "Dick, Dick, this is only the beginning! Don't forget that I'm one of the Lucky Lawrences!"

Greatest Problem of Progressive Democracy

"In these past years I have sought to understand the trials and the great difficulties under which such a large number of our people labor. I have tried to visualize the insecurities that beset the lives of millions of our families. It is true, as shown not by the figures alone, but by the spirit of the great mass of Americans in every part of the country, that we have come through stormy seas into fair weather. Patience is receiving its reward. It is true that we who are entrusted with the responsibilities of government have labored toward this end, but the greatest factor of the improvement has been the courage of the American people themselves.

"We have taken many steps to protect the family and the individual against many of the natural vicissitudes of life. We have moved forward to give greater security to the unemployed and to the aged. We have sought sound means to our end. Years ago, President Wilson told me a story. He said that the greatest problem that the head of a progressive democracy had to face was not the criticism of reactionaries nor the attacks of those who would set up another form of government, but rather to reconcile and unite progressive liberals themselves.

"The overwhelming majority of liberals all seek the same end, the same ultimate objectives, but because many of them see far beyond the end of their own noses, they are very apt to want to reach that goal by different roads. People who do not want to move forward in the improvement of civilization are content to stand in one spot and these people find it easy to remain united in demanding inaction.

"Liberals, therefore, in order to make their efforts successful, must find common ground and a common road, each making some concession as to form and method in order that all may obtain the substance of what all desire."—President Roosevelt at Los Angeles, Oct. 1, 1935.

CCC Enrolees Promoted

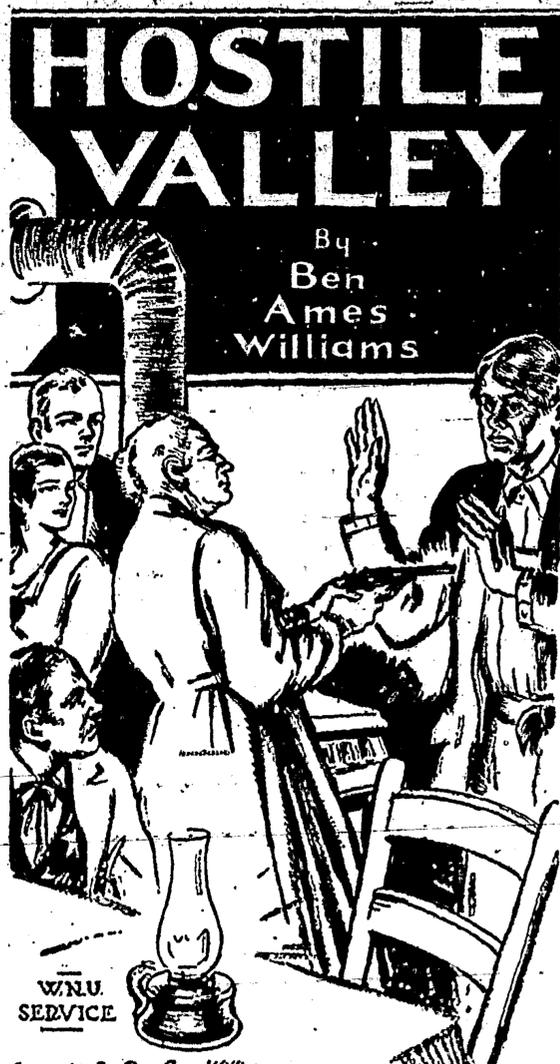

Albuquerque: Regional Forester Frank C. W. Pooler today listed 14 CCC boys who have been outstanding in their work and their leadership and who have received promotions in the Forest Service CCC Camps of New Mexico. Positions to which the enrolees have been promoted include those of foreman, clerk, and blacksmith with salaries ranging from $1200 to $1680 per year.

The promoting of enrolees to fill vacancies in foreman positions in the CCC Camps, Mr. Pooler said, is in accordance with the expressed wish of the President that one fourth of new appointments be filled in this way.

Many of the boys when they enroll are totally untrained but take advantage of the opportunities which the camps offer in training. After a few months work under instruction of the skilled Forest Service foremen many are able to win promotions or find outside jobs.

Some Distance Apart

It is quite apparent to this newspaper that when Republican National Chairman Fletcher and the farmers talk and think about 'upholding the Constitution', they have conflicting objectives in mind. The aims of Mr. Fletcher and his group do not correspond in any sense to the aims of the farmers and common people of this land. They are as far apart as the Poles.

PATTERN 9339

Our stylist had leisure hours in mind when she designed this graceful afternoon frock for the woman of larger proportions. The soft jabot cascades down the bodice in graceful folds, concealing those extra pounds and curves! The bodice gathers in front to a double-pointed yoke, another slenderizing feature with its diagonal lines. Medium-length sleeves puff, then hug the forearm below the elbow. Golden Phantoms

FASCINATING TALES OF LOST MINES

By Edith L. Watson

INTO THIN AIR

WHAT became of the buckskin bags full of gold that George A. Jackson buried in the corner of his cabin? Jackson has been dead for many years, and if anyone else who knows the secret is alive, he has kept his knowledge carefully hidden.

Jackson himself was a man of prominence. It was he who, on December 31, 1858, went up Clear Creek alone (his two companions had gone after a band of elk), found hot springs, camped at the place and a few days later panned gold in a tin cup and made the first gold discovery of importance in Colorado. The place was the present town of Idaho Springs, where mines still operate and gold is still to be taken from the ground.

It was this man who went to Middle park in 1867 to prospect for more of the precious metal. He and his companion on the trip found gold in Buffalo park, but they also found unfriendly Indians and little or no water, so they drifted north along the top of the range. Four or five miles from Rabbit Ear peak they found gold again in a little creek, and by traveling upstream they came to a bar that held considerable value.

This was what they wanted. After doing some work at the location they went to Georgetown and organized a party of ten men, returning to the bar in the spring of 1869.

Now they built a cabin and a corral, for ten men needed something in the way of comfort and convenience if they were to devote their time to taking out gold. They worked pretty steadily, but Jackson took a little time out for whiskey, and carved his name on a tree at the corner of the cabin.

After a while $10,000 in gold dust, packed in buckskin bags, lay hidden below the earth in a corner of the cabin. That meant a thousand dollars apiece—not very much as fortunes went, but still a neat start.

And then Colorow and a hundred, lively Utes decided to discourage the white men. They dropped in on an unfriendly call, and when they departed three men lay dead and the rest did not drag their feet as they headed for Georgetown. In fact, the seven who survived, with the exception of Jackson, seemed to feel that the peaceful East held a lure that surpassed that of the golden phantom, and shortly they left Colorado.

Jackson, being somewhat accustomed to such turns of luck, had no idea of leaving the gold in that deserted cabin. He told a friend about the cache, and the two started out to get it, but heavy snow turned them back and they were forced to delay the trip. The next spring, they planned, would see them at the cabin, digging up the gold. But that winter Jackson pulled his gun barrel out of a wagon, and the accidental discharge of the weapon caused his death.

Fortunately, his friend knew the location of the cache. He shared the knowledge with another man, and spring saw them up in the wild country where Jackson had found the gold. On Walton creek, near where the old Steamboat road crossed, they found the cabin and the corral. They also found the tree with Jackson's name carved on it. This was the place, without a doubt.

And so they dug in the corner of the cabin, among the rubbish which remained as souvenirs of the ten energetic miners. They dug in the other corners, too, and in the corral, and outside, and by the tree.

Gold does not vanish into thin air—unless some one aids it in its disappearing act. But who had been there since Colorow and his band?

Just another mystery to add to the many strange happenings which make dramatic the history of the West!

GOLD TO THROW AWAY

FOUR men stood on the heights above Salt river, and looked down, a thousand feet below them, to where the water flowed between the bluffs. One began picking up stones and throwing them into the space below. The larger they were, the better splash they made.

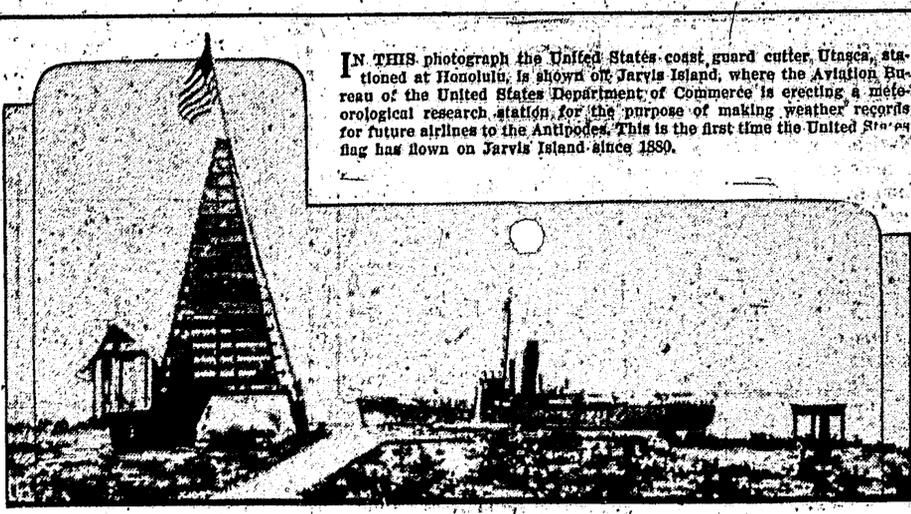

A good-sized rock lay near the edge of the chasm. What a splash it would make! The playful one tried to push it, but it was too heavy, and one of his friends went to his aid. At last they dislodged it, and it rolled over the bluff; it fell down into the river below, and the mighty splash it made caused the water to dash madly away from it for a moment. Then it disappeared, but forever below the ripples in that inaccessible canyon.

As it had rolled and slid toward the edge of the bluff, the rock looked yellow. As it hurtled downward the sun caught it, and it gleamed. The four men watched it until it vanished. Then they turned toward each other. Every face wore a number of tangled emotions.

They had learned, too late, that the "rock" was gold!

Value Set on Man's Life By early Teutonic custom or law, wergild was the money equivalent of a man's life. It was a price which, when paid to the relatives of a man murdered or killed accidentally, absolved the culprit.

Bedtime Story for Children

By THORNTON W. BURGESS

LIGHTFOOT BECOMES UNCERTAIN

LIGHTFOOT the Deer traveled on through the Green Forest straight ahead in the direction from which the Merry Little Breezes were blowing. Every few steps he would raise his delicate nose and test all the scents that the Merry Little Breezes were bringing. As long as he kept the Merry Little Breezes blowing in his face he could be sure whether or not there was danger ahead of him. You see, the Merry Little Breezes delight in carrying all sorts of scents, and Lightfoot's Duster had simply passed that way going to some other part of the Green Forest.

So Lightfoot knew that he had nothing to fear in that direction so long as the Merry Little Breezes brought him none of the dreaded man-scent, and he knew that he could trust the Merry Little Breezes to bring him that scent if there should be a man anywhere in that direction. The Merry Little Breezes are Lightfoot's best friends. But Lightfoot didn't want to keep going in that direction all day. It would take him far away from that part of the Green Forest with which he was familiar and which he called home. It might in-time take him out of the Green Forest, and that wouldn't do at all. So after a while Lightfoot became uncertain. He didn't know just what to do. You see, he couldn't tell whether or not that hunter with the terrible gun was still following him.

Every once in a while he would stop in a thicket of young trees or behind a tangle of fallen trees uprooted by the wind. There he would stand facing the direction from which he had come and watch and listen for some sign that the hunter was still following. But after a few minutes of this he would grow uneasy and then bound away in the direction from which the Merry Little Breezes were blowing so as to be sure of not running into danger.

"If only I could know if that hunter is still following I would know better what to do," thought Lightfoot. "I've got to find out!"

Every Once in a While He Would Stop in a Thicket of Young Trees.

nose is so wonderful that even though those scents be very, very faint he can catch them and tell just what they are.

Lightfoot uses his nose very much as you and I use our eyes. It tells him the things he wants to know. He knew that Reddy Fox had been along ahead of him although he didn't get so much as a glimpse of Reddy's red coat. Once he caught just the faintest of scents which caused him to stop abruptly and test the air more carefully than ever. It was the scent of Duster Bear. It was so very faint that Lightfoot knew Duster was not near, so he went ahead again, but even more carefully than before. After a little he couldn't smell Duster at all so he knew then that

BURNING LEAVES

By ANNE CAMPBELL

IT SEEMS as if the whole lot summer grieves When we are burning leaves. So melancholy is the smoky scent Of this fall sacrament. It was a few short weeks ago they hung In lively green, and hung Their shade upon the heedless passers-by. And challenged the blue sky.

Now in a wooden basket, drab and brown, They are pulled down; They who in such high place were, shimmering Since early spring. There is in burning leaves a sense of loss, As in no loss The match, and watch them perish in a breath. This, then, is Death! Copyright.—WNU Service.

QUESTION BOX by ED WYNN, The Perfect Fool

Dear Mr. Wynn: I am a woman forty-three years of age and the only offer of marriage I have ever had was last night. I met a fellow at a party and he was drunk. He proposed marriage to me. He seems all right but I told him to sober up and then ask me to marry him. Did I do right?

Sincerely, L. M. HOMELEY. Answer: Yes and no. He may not want you when he's sober.

Dear Mr. Wynn: Some time ago I wrote you for an answer for the following example: "If coal is $10 a ton how many tons would I get for $50? Your answer said I would get four tons. Why did you say that, when it isn't right?" Yours truly, CON. GUE MER.

Answer: You asked me if coal was $10 a ton and you gave the coal man $50 how many tons would you get? I said you'd get four tons. I know it isn't right, BUT that's what you'd get.

Dear Mr. Wynn: Do chestnuts have legs? Yours truly, I. M. WORRIED.

Answer: No, my dear friend, chestnuts do not have legs. You must have swallowed a worm.

Dear Mr. Wynn: I am interested in the "Little Theatre Movement." I have interested some rich men and they are building a very odd theater. There will be no rows of seats, only boxes. In other words every person who comes to see our plays will be in a box. Can you suggest a fitting name for our odd theater? Truly yours, OPPER E. HOUSE.

Answer: As the "Little Theatre"

MOTHER'S COOK BOOK

UNUSUAL DISHES

WE ALL like to serve occasionally something a bit different and out of the ordinary, but for the daily diet the common foods simply served will enjoy the best.

Golden Coconut Shortcake.

Allow two slices of sponge cake for each serving. Prepare orange sauce by using one cup of orange juice thickened with corn starch, adding a bit of sugar and butter. Cover each slice of the cake with the sauce in sandwich fashion, cover with thinly sliced oranges and top with freshly grated and sweetened coconut.

Maple Junket.

Dissolve one junket tablet in a tablespoon of cold water, add to a pint of lukewarm milk a little almond flavoring and a half cup of maple syrup. Serve with the top of the sherbet glasses sprinkled with grated maple sugar or sprinkle with finely shredded almonds.

Stuffed Tomato Salad.

Scoop out the centers of six ripe

even sized tomatoes. Chop the centers and add one cup of cooked rice, four tablespoons of cheese grated, one hard cooked egg, two tablespoons of pliminto and one small onion, all minced; season with salt, a little lemon juice and any other desired seasoning. Fill the tomato cups and chill. Serve on lettuce with salad dressing.

Pot of Gold Dessert.

Mix one-half cup of sugar with one-fourth cup of cornstarch, add a bit of salt and a cupful of rich milk, one cup of orange juice and when cooked until smooth and thick in a double boiler add two tablespoons of butter and the well beaten yolks of two eggs. Let cook until smooth. Serve molded in individual molds, with whipped cream.

Small slim pickles may be cut into very thin slices, without cutting way to the stem end of the pickle, then spread out the slices in the form of a fan and use as garnish for sandwiches or the sandwich plate. © Western Newspaper Union.

First Copper House Is Completed

THIS copper house has just been erected at Bethesda, Md., by a subsidiary of one of the big copper corporations and is open to the public for inspection. The new dwelling is the first of its kind in this country. Hardwood floors are built over a fire-proof sub-floor, and inside walls are plastered on metal lath. The house is completely air-conditioned. The cost of these houses depends on size and design, with present designs ranging upwards from $4,500.

Electricity for a Million Farms

Shown in the inset is Morris L. Cooke, director of the new Rural Electrification authority, and around him are illustrated some of the tasks REA hopes electricity will soon be doing on a million more farms—"mothering" chicks, lightening household work and filling silos.

By WILLIAM C. UTLEY
ELECTRIC light for a million farm homes. A whole new set of hired hands who never get tired and who work for very little wages for each of these farms.

Emancipation from backbreaking tasks for a million farmers' wives. These are the ambitions of the newly formed rural electrification authority which has been created by the federal government to extend to farms throughout the nation the benefits which are being enjoyed by only 734,000 out of 4,000,000 of them today.

But the ambitions, if they are realized, will have consequences reaching far beyond their own limits. For bringing electric power to a million farms will create thousands of jobs in city factories. Manufacturers of light bulbs, washing machines, refrigerators, irons, radios and other appliances will have to keep their factories humming to keep pace with the demands of Mrs. Farmer. And Mr. Farmer will want motors, milking machines, cream separators and other electrical "hired hands." Before either of these demands can be satisfied lines will have to be built and wiring completed.

Farmers will be able to buy these appliances for the government has extended the Electric Home and Farm Authority to a national scope. The EHFA has enabled farmers in the Tennessee valley to buy appliances on easy payments financed by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation.

The government, under this scheme, arranges for manufacturers to sell standard quality equipment to consumers at low prices. The purchaser has to make a cash down payment, but the EHFA remits the remainder of the cost to the dealer in cash. Appliances may be purchased from recognized dealers in any communities where the power company co-operates by reducing prices for current. What charges remain after the down payment are spread out over three or four years and are added each month to the customer's bills for electricity. The payments are turned over to the EHFA as they are made.

$100,000,000 for Jobs.

The Rural Electrification authority, under the direction of Morris L. Cooke, has been assigned $100,000,000 to use in the next year or two. Even a vast sum like that would not go very far if it were used in constructing lines to farms which are now a comparatively long way from the lines of any power company or municipal plant.

But there are some 5,000,000 farms in America today which are without electricity. In its campaign to electrify 1,000,000 farms, the REA, according to director Cooke, will attempt to bring service only to those in areas where no new generating plants will be necessary, where lines can be built economically from a source of power which already is working.

The REA, however, will not even investigate the applications of farms where there is service in the immediate neighborhood. It will be interested in projects where new sectional lines can be built to electrify whole farm areas, but not where a mere extension of an already existing line is asked for a farmer who lives close to it. Such cases as these it will leave for the local power company to develop.

As an example of a case that is eligible to get REA help, take that of a group of neighboring farmers who want electric service. There is a plant in a city a few miles away, but the power company has refused to build lines out to them for the very good reason that the potential business does not seem to warrant it. Power companies, despite the feelings of cranks and unreasonable people, are not in business "for their health." Feeling that this is a fair attitude of the company, the farmers, who want electricity and are willing to pay for it, band themselves together in a little co-operative group, go to the company officials and offer to buy power to be delivered at the nearest point on the company line.

Here's One Difficulty.

The farmers themselves will build lines to their farms. To finance the construction they will borrow the money from the REA, who, theoretically, investigates the group from every angle to make sure that the loan is a sound one.

"There is nothing very complicated about this," says Mr. Cooke. "It is not like launching a great new power project involving millions. This whole operation will not exceed $20,000."

Ah, but only part of the story has been told. The REA plans for these co-operative groups suggest that the farmers shall buy power from the company at wholesale rates, to be fixed by negotiation or by the state's public service commission. This does not "set" very well with many of the utility companies who have farm customers.

Why not? Is the natural question, glancing at the case only superficially. These farmers who are co-operating have paid for the installation of the line; are they not entitled to some sort of extra consideration for what they have done?

It so happens that the other farmers, who are already receiving current from the same power company at retail rates will, in effect, have paid for their lines, too. Why shouldn't they get wholesale rates? Actually, they have not, or have paid only in part.

Here is the way it works, although this must be taken as a hypothetical case, for all power companies do not have the same agreements with their farm customers.

Who Pays for the Line?

Let us say that the cost of a line built out to a farm is $500. The farmer, supplied for the sake of example by a middle western utility company which has been outstanding for its rural electrification work, is given 60 months in which to pay for the cost of the line. He "pays" for it by guaranteeing to use a monthly minimum of electricity equal in cost to one-eighth of the cost of the line, which in this case would be $10, until the 60 months are up.

If he actually uses less than $10 worth of "juice" during a month, his bill is $10 just the same. But he is entitled to all of the benefits every month that $10 worth of electricity will bring to him, so he might just as well use it up. It's like going to a metropolitan theater restaurant where there is a minimum charge of $2.50 a head; you can eat just a sandwich if you want to, but your bill is $2.50 just the same; if you're hungry, you might as well eat a full dinner, for it isn't going to cost you any more. And farmers today are really hungry for the benefits of electric power to ease their daily tasks.

"If you take away my electricity, you can just take the farm, too," is the way Farmer Gus Swanson, of Fountain county, Indiana, puts it.

Actually, a farmer buying power from a utility company on such an agreement is paying for the cost of his line only if he fails to use $10 worth of electricity each month. If his bill is $10, he gets back dollar for dollar in electric power.

But if such a customer has a cousin or a friend over in the next county who is a member of one of the REA co-operative groups and is getting power at a lower rate, power company officials would have about as much chance explaining the reason for that to him as they would have of making him understand the Einstein theory. He would insist that he was paying for his line as surely as his cousin, only in a different way.

The Women Want It.

This, then, is one of the obstacles that confront the REA ambitions. They are ambitious, however, that are worth struggling to attain.

Ask any farmer's wife. The worker in the city puts in 40 hours of labor every week; she works 64 hours. If she has a large family she probably works longer than that. If she has a small baby, she works even longer. He gets paid; she doesn't.

If she hasn't electricity to assist her she has to do everything the hard way—the thing way that puts lines in her face long before she should have them. Yet housework isn't all she has to do. About 20 per cent of her time is taken up with actual farm work. Eighty-nine out of a hundred farm wives manage the hen houses. Sixty-six out of a hundred make butter. Do you think their lives wouldn't be "heaven" if they only had vacuum cleaners, washing machines, electric irons, and—the possession usually dearest to the heart of an "electrified" farm housewife—electric refrigerators?

In the state of Wisconsin it has been found that the farmer spends an average of $250 a year on his passenger automobile. In a census of more than half the farms of the country five years ago it was found that, on the farms counted, there were 1.18 passenger automobiles per farm. That would indicate that the farmer is able to pay for modern comforts if he wants them badly enough. It must be remembered that these were passenger cars, not farm trucks.

The REA wonders why, if there are cars on 3,050,000 farms, it can't put electricity on a large share of them. It has been said that the average farm income is $300 a year. But the REA will of necessity not be looking to electrify the average farm, but the one that is above average, for it is the above-average farm, as a rule, that is located near power service.

Bathrooms Are Luxuries.

One survey made by the government showed that 85 per cent of all the farms of the land have neither bathtub nor shower. Yet more than half the farms have an automobile! The reason for this antiquated bathroom equipment is the difficulty in pumping enough water to provide for modern equipment. Seventy per cent of farm women today have to carry water from a well or spring. If this could be done with electricity the situation would be much different.

To supply all the American farms with modern bathroom equipment, the manufacturers of the country would have to work without stopping for seven years. It has been estimated

This is perhaps the most elemental of all needs for electricity on the farm. There are others. Four out of ten farms are still lighting with kerosene lamps; there are perhaps 6 or 7 per cent which either use candles or go without any artificial light at all. Shades of Lincoln studying by the light of the fireplace! We'd hardly think that was necessary at all today.

Of course the REA is not going to correct these conditions on all farms, or even on half of them.

"There are farms in neighborhoods too sparsely settled to afford power," says Mr. Cooke. "There are farmers too poor to pay for it. After all, there are plenty of people in the cities who do not use electric power yet. If we can bring wires into the homes and barns of 1,000,000 farms within the next year or two, we think that is not too much to hope for and we think that will be a useful job."

With $100,000,000 of government funds to spend, maybe REA can do it. If so—and if you'll forgive the pun—more power to REA.

Guard Against Fleas

Fleas will breed in carpets, cracks in the floor or any other suitable place where the eggs may drop. It takes only 17 days from the time an egg is laid to produce a flea in good biting condition. The insects are renowned in scientific circles as the carrier of many diseases. The dog flea sometimes carries eggs of a tapeworm, which when swallowed causes worms in dogs. Occasionally tapeworms in children are caused by dog fleas accidentally getting into the mouths of the children.

To guard against flea infestation of dwellings animal pets should be frequently dusted with any insect powder made from dried pyrethrum flowers. This is harmless to animals and human beings. If a house becomes infested the rug, cracks to floor and other likely breeding places should be sprayed thoroughly with any of the liquid spray insecticides.

YOUTH, FACED BY NEW PROBLEMS, NEEDS GUIDANCE

"Boys and girls of the present day are most emphatically all right. They are faced, however, with certain problems which did not perplex their fathers and mothers." It is to these problems and situations that Dr. Reginald Fitz turns his attention in "Young People and Their Parents," an article in Hygiene in which he makes some revealing comparisons and contrasts of conditions at the beginning of the century and at the present time.

Each generation at some time finds itself midway between old age and youth, irked on the one hand by the conservatism of its elders and on the other by the radicalism of its youngsters.

Of especial significance among the changes in attitude is the relation of the family doctor to young people. People naturally continue to be born to grow sick and to die, but the medical problems of the average family are radically different from those of the early part of the century.

At times the physician must even play the part of schoolmaster. He conducts annual physical examinations on school children, examines their eyes, teeth and ears, and makes sure that they are properly fed. He does what he can to prevent the appearance of infectious diseases, keeps accurate records of physical development and sees to it that the program of the individual child who is growing too rapidly or too slowly or who is in any way abnormal is modified appropriately. By virtue of his peculiar human relationships the family medical adviser feels at heart a strong sense of responsibility to the nation, which he can fulfill only by doing his best to direct the minds and bodies of young people in the proper direction.
