Senator Hatch

Introduces Bill to Enable Vets Dependents to Receive Certificates

Carl A. Hatch, United States Senator, has introduced a bill into congress which seeks to amend Section 3 of the Adjusted Compensation Payment Act of 1936 to permit dependents of deceased veterans, who had failed to make application for the adjusted service certificates before they died, to obtain a certificate.

"I have always felt," Senator Hatch said, "that the existing law was unfair to the dependents of deceased veterans. Under my bill the widow or other dependent would be entitled to receive a certificate, the face value of which would be the same as though the deceased veteran had filed his application on or before January 1, 1935, or at their option, received the cash."

Prude-Skinner

A pretty wedding was solemnized at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Prude of Mescalero last Saturday afternoon when their second daughter, Margie, became the bride of Harry Skinner, son of Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Skinner of Long Beach, Calif. The wedding was the culmination of a romance started when both young people were attending school last year at the New Mexico State College.

The beautiful living room was a bower of flowers and greenery for the occasion. Evergreens and roses were banked against the mantel and roses covered the improvised altar in front of the mantel where the ceremony took place.— Alamogordo News

By CCC Enrollees

Robert Fechner, Director of the Civilian Conservation Corps program, today made public a report from the Division of Grazing of the Department of the Interior calling attention to the grazing control work now being done by CCC men in ten western public domain states. During the current summer, the men from forty-five CCC camps will work on grazing rehabilitation projects under the work supervision of the Division of Grazing. The report, as submitted to the Director, follows:

"The 30 camps allocated to the Division of Grazing are carrying on a wide variety of projects throughout the ten western public domain states, the purposes of which are to aid the stockmen in obtaining an adequate water supply, to construct truck and stock trails, and to assist in the rehabilitation of vast areas of grazing lands by the improvement of range conditions.

"A survey of the accomplishments of the 30 camps reads like a tale of frontier days rather than a record of work under present day conditions. To complete some of these projects the enrollees have had to carry sand, cement, pipes, and other necessary equipment over mountain trails. Miles of telephone lines have been constructed in sections of the west which theretofore had not known this form of communication. Roads have been built where before there had been only cow paths. Water has been brought to this drought-stricken, denuded range country. It is pioneer work in rehabilitating the public domain, and it is pioneer work in terms of men. Thousands of young men have been given work under healthful conditions and opportunities for self-improvement fitting them for a wider field of usefulness in after life. They have proven themselves willing and courageous and have readily adapted themselves to their environment.

"The Division of Grazing, ECW, consists of three regions comprising the states of Utah, Colorado, Wyoming, California, Nevada, New Mexico, Arizona, Montana, Oregon and Idaho. The total acreage of unreserved public domain within the thirty-seven established grazing districts is 79,805,186, almost the entire allotment of 80,000,000 acres under the Taylor Grazing Law.

"Forty-five 30 camps have been allocated to the Division of Grazing in this territory and are functioning efficiently. Projects initiated and carried on from these camps are approved by local advisory boards consisting of stockmen of the communities. The first projects were those for which there were the most urgent needs, whether it was erosion control, water supply, trail construction, flood control, eradication of poisonous plants, rodent control or some other equally deserving project.

Lovely Lace Makes Lovely Brides

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

COMES now fashion's big moment to play up romance and the picturesque for the June bride to be calling, calling for lovely gowns for herself and her attendants that shall group into a "perfect picture" on her wedding day.

What bride is not a "vision of loveliness"? Her gown is so carefully selected and fitted, her veil is made just so—to tone perfectly to her individuality, in drapery, at the same time beguilingly over the head and down while the train must hang in just the right proportion and line with the dress.

Many a spring bride this 1930 found the expression of her dream of a vision of loveliness in a lace gown, and veil. With its importance in the current fashion picture generally it but follows in the natural sequence of events that lace should become first choice with brides. Now that the early brides have demonstrated how really lovely lace is for the wedding gown, June and midsummer brides-to-be have taken their cue and are enthusiastically planning their trousseaus in terms of beautiful lace.

Not only does the lace gown in itself enhance feminine charm to the utmost, but lace for the bride brings up the splendor and richness of former periods, when lace played so important a part in the costumes of historical and royal brides. The fact of the lure of lace for brides was dramatically brought out in a "Bride of Two Centuries" showing recently held in New York, in which fifteen period bridal costumes copied from those worn by prominent ladies in the last two hundred years was the feature. This bridal show was topped by the modern bridal party, done entirely in lace, in shades of azalea pink.

Which brings us to a very important subject—that of the fashion approval of color for the bride instead of the traditional all-white. A modern bride may wear lovely blush pink or ice blue or any tone or that of her fancy.

One of the attractions of a "lace wedding" is that lace offers every opportunity to work out fascinating color schemes, for this existing fabric for lace is not exclusive with the bride but the theme is carried out for bridesmaids as well. One of the newest gestures is that of lace dresses, with cunning lace capes for each bridesmaid. Brides, too, are looking into the future in the selection of the wedding gown, having in mind a dress that may be worn later to social events. This feature is admirably interpreted in the very chic and lovely gown in the illustration. Since the full long train is detachable at the waist, the dress alone becomes perfect for the cocktail or dinner hour. The sweep of the train, and the smooth silhouette of the gown cut on true princess lines are the more lovely because of the lace of fine plecion of which this bridal gown is designed. The dress with its narrow waist and tailored neckline, buttons all the way down the front. Tulle is used for the veil which falls in a be-guiling drape over the face and hangs quite long at the back.

HER SMART COAT

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

Mannish tailoring in suits and coats for grown-up ladies of fashion has its echo in boyish tailoring for the younger miss from toddlers to teenagers. The cunning little girl here pictured in the double-breasted flannel coat is ready for an outing in the park, in a coat her little brother would envy. Broad lapels and wide notched collar are becoming. Fitted slightly at the waist for chic the coat is roomy and comfortable. Six smart bone buttons, masculine and substantial, trim the high double-breasted closing. This little model is the very sort that little girls are teasing their mothers to buy for them.

PASTEL TONES IN SUMMER TAILLEURS

Summer tailleurs are more fanciful than ever and synthetic fibers either are mixed with wool or replace wool entirely. Thisabout Brian has made a specialty of novel fabrics for this type of tailleur. His collection includes several rayon crepes with a woolen appearance and some rayon serges, either plain or checked. Some of his woolen fabrics show the same chic-effect produced with twisted rayon yarns that peek the surface.

There are now many crepes with a strongly textured, also a number of pastel-colored fine woolsens, spotted with brown or black rayon nubs or tufts. Some of these fabrics have a tweed-like appearance and are seen in very delicate pastel tones, including sweet pea colors.

Lace Dresses Continue to Be Tops at Paris Show

Lace dresses continue to be tops in Paris. They're shown in amazing variety and startling numbers by all the leading designers. To emphasize the importance of this material in the feminine costume, a ball was held recently at the Hotel George V at which only lace dresses were worn. Dull albino laces were much in evidence, particularly in dark shades such as midnight blue, purplish blue, garnet, espiant and a dark tone of tortoise shell brown.

Evening Sandals
Cutout sandals of gold or silver mostly with high heels are first in evening shoe fashions. It is considered very chic to wear these with very sheer pastel colored hose to either match or contrast with the dress instead of the perennial flesh colored ones.

Beaded Necklaces
Beaded necklaces as wide as collars and taking the place of collars are increasing in importance and desirability.

TALL TALES

As Told to:

FRANK E. HAGAN and ELMO SCOTT WATSON

Sagacious Serpent
"YES," said Madame Zulawa, the snake-charmer with the old Robinson circus, "Elmer was by far the most intelligent and most versatile serpent I ever had. He was a blacksnake, six feet of patience, pliability and perspicacity. I could call out any number and instantly he'd arrange himself in the form of that figure. His figure eight was a model of rounded symmetry. But all of this was before one horrible night."

Madame Zulawa covered her eyes as though to shut out some terrible sight. There was a tremor in her voice... then she went bravely on.

"Our circus train was crossing the high Sierra. Just as it was approaching the summit, Elmer slid out of his cage and started back over the tops of the cars. He was coming back to my car for his cup of warm coconut milk to help him get to sleep.

"Just as he stretched over the gap between two cars, there was the sound of iron snapping. The coupling between the two cars had broken under the strain of pulling the heavy cars up that steep grade. In another moment the rear half of the train would be speeding down the incline, gathering momentum until it jumped the rails at the first curve.

"Elmer knew that everything depended upon him. Quick as a flash he sank his teeth in the wooden top of the car ahead. At the same moment he wrapped his tail around an iron rod on the car behind. The strain on him was fearful, but he hung on grimly...

"Well... there isn't much more to tell. The whole train passed safely over the summit. But Elmer's days as a performing blacksnake were over. Go to the Cincinnati zoo today and you'll find him there in a cage labeled 'The Only Black Python in Captivity... 42 feet, 0 1/2 inches long.'"

Tenderfoot, Beware!

WHEN a tenderfoot disappears out West some old-timer is certain to shake his head sadly and say: "I reckon a roperite or a triperodo must of got him." Chances are, he's right.

The triperodo has only two legs, arranged like a telescope, so that it can raise or lower itself at will. Its head has a long muzzle with a mouth like a gun barrel. As it lurks among the brush, it raises and lowers itself on its telescope-legs to watch for approaching game.

When the triperodo sees a tenderfoot come bounding along the trail on horseback, it gets behind a boulder, lifts itself at just the right angle and points its muzzle at the unsuspecting tenderfoot. At the right moment it blows from its mouth a pellet of clay (it always keeps a supply of these quids in its left cheek) which shoots the taste right out of the tenderfoot's mouth. One week and three hours later he dies of starvation because he can't taste anything after he has been shot by the triperodo.

If the tenderfoot is lucky enough to get past the triperodo, the roperite may get him. It is a curious animal with a long rope-like beak which ends in a slip-noose. As the tenderfoot rides along the trail past the place where the roperite is lurking, it shoots out this natural larva, the noose tightens around the luckless Easterner's throat and he chokes to death on the bars of music that stick crosswise in it. It is estimated that a total of 4,163 tenderfeet have fallen victims to either the triperodo or the roperite in the West since the spring of 1837.

Land of the Sky Blue Water

BABE was Paul Bucayan's big blue ox. He was quite a sizable animal although not all lumberjacks agree as to just how big he was. Some say to was seven axe-handles between the eyes but others declare the figure should be 42 axe-handles and a plug of tobacco. However, all agree that Babe could pull anything that had two ends to it. Paul often used him to pull the links out of crooked logging roads.

Occasionally Babe would run away and be gone all day. Paul was the only one who could track him because his footprints were so far apart that an ordinary man couldn't see from one of them to the next one. They were pretty deep, too. Once a settler and his wife and baby fell into one of these footprints and the baby was finally climbed out and reported the accident.

The winter of the blue snow Babe went on one of these rambles and wandered all over the present state of Minnesota. When the snow melted the next spring the water filled his footprints and that's why Minnesota is now known as the Land of Ten Thousand Lakes—the "Land of the Sky Blue Water."

JUNGLE HUNTING EASY, BUT ZOO GETS HIM DOWN

Hans Nagel, curator of the Houston (Texas) zoo, says stalking wild animals in jungles is a tame job compared with that of keeping them in captivity.

From 1904 to 1912 Nagel roamed Africa in search of reptiles, beasts and rare fowls for zoos. And in those eight years he met with an accident only once—a lioness lacerated his leg.

But in wild life in cages—that's a different story, one that has meant hospitals and suffering to Nagel. He bears scars from head to foot. A boa constrictor once almost squeezed his life out. Caesar, the zoo lion, bit him through the shoulder. A stork dived from the top of the bird cage and knocked him unconscious. A kangaroo has kicked him to the ground and bitten his arm. (Nivel cats, lobo wolves, kinkajous and monkeys have gnashed his hands and arms. Bobcats and hyenas have attacked him. Elephants have trod on his feet. "Big Jim," largest of the zoo's alligators, sent Nagel to the hospital for 105 days when he sought to halt its escape.

Stock of Federal Reserve Banks Owned by Members

Stock of the 12 federal reserve banks is owned entirely by the member banks of the system. It is acquired through purchase at the time of joining the system. The federal government has a considerable measure of authority in the regulation and supervision of the system by virtue of the President's power to appoint the board of governors. The board of governors in turn must approve the high officers of the individual federal reserve banks.

Household Questions

For the picnic lunch basket, roll out baking powder biscuit dough about one-quarter-inch thick, cut with pleiscut cutter, spread thickly with devilled ham, roll up and bake.

Umbrella plants should be liberally watered during the summer months. When shoots begin to grow out at base of plant, cut off to give plant shape, and water freely.

To make radish roses, trim down to an inch of the stem. Cut off root, then cut down from the tip so that the red part of radish stands out like petals. Put in ice water for an hour or two and petals will curl up.

Powdered horax added to the water when washing fine white flannel, helps to keep them soft.

A teaspoonful of baking powder added to potatoes while they are being mashed, will make them light and fluffy.

If table silver is placed in hot soap-suds immediately after being used, and dried, with a soft clean cloth, much of the work of polishing will be saved.

Heat a lemon thoroughly before squeezing and you will obtain nearly double the quantity of juice.

Strong soap suds and hot water will remove stains from pewter that has become discolored and dark.

Half a cupful of milk added to most soups just before serving, makes them creamy and delicious.

To prevent lilac suckers growing up around your lilac bush, cut a circular piece of linoleum about two feet wide, cut hole in middle for bush, slit linoleum from edge to center hole and place around bush.

Purchase seldom used spices in small packages, as it is more economical than buying large tins of their flavor when exposed to the air. © Associated Newspapers.—WNU Service.

Uncommon Sense

By JOHN BLAKE

© Bell Syndicate.—WNU Service.

Make up your mind that you will have more or less trouble as you journey through this world. You on Yourself will meet with many disappointments. People whom you trusted may turn out to be "bad actors." If they are, drop them from your acquaintanceship.

But don't under any circumstances begin to believe that you are misused, that there are conspiracies against you, or that you are not getting a "square deal."

Sometimes you won't get a "square deal." That may be no fault of yours. But don't worry about it. Drop the acquaintanceship of people who have proved themselves to be mean and tricky, and choose friends that you can trust.

There are plenty of these. Don't think for a moment that everybody is trying to get the best of you, that your boss is "exploiting" you, or that you haven't any chance to get ahead.

Your chances of getting ahead will be just about what you deserve. Today you, like everybody else, have plenty of opportunities to educate yourself.

But to do that it will be necessary to work, and to work hard. You will find people who will seek to crowd you out and get ahead of you.

You will come into contact with unscrupulous "office politicians." But that kind of people always work themselves out of jobs before long, for they are so busy with their little venomous plans that they will have no time to win any sort of success.

Don't work on the principle that this is an ideal world, and that everybody gets an even break. It is not that kind of a world. But its sourdness and selfishness are overrated.

Work out your own plans, and stick to them. Pay no more attention to a rascally office mate who is trying to "tunnel" you out of a job than you would to a tree root that tripped you up when you were taking an afternoon walk.

Be helpful and considerate to other people. If they repay you with backbiting, drop them, and find people who are a better sort.

Enough of these exist in your neck of the woods to help make life very pleasant for you.

Above all, do not whine. Take things as you find them. Use them for your own good. Take care of your health and your disposition.

And in the end you will find that you have been more or less the architect of your own fortune, and that you deserved the kind that you got.

Siamese Fish Able to Walk, U. S. Scientist Confirms

Most people still refuse to believe that fish in Siam can travel over dry land, though for years scientists have been discussing these freaks of nature. Recently, Dr. H. M. Smith, former assistant commissioner of the United States Fisheries, confirmed their observations by his own.

Once, while in Siam, he watched an anabas "walk" over dry land. The fish covered 300 feet in 30 minutes. On other occasions, usually at night, he saw these fish climb steep banks of canals and make their way overland to nearby ponds. They possess an organ above their gills which enables them to breathe air.

Net Demo Gains

With 200 precincts unreported in the Iowa primary last Monday to choose nominees for senator, congressmen, governor and other state offices, the Democratic vote was only 26,000 below the record primary enrollment of 1934 and the Republicans fell nearly 120,000 below their vote of two years ago.

The total Democratic vote Monday in 2,271 of the state's 2,442 precincts was 118,152, compared with 143,000 in 1934, while the combined vote on the Republican ticket, in the six-man race for the U. S. Senate, was 223,689, compared with the Republican total of 341,000 in 1934.

The official vote in the Ohio primary of May 12 as announced this week by Secretary of State George S. Myers showed a majority of voters favorable to the Democrats. President Roosevelt received 614,366 to 82,950 for Col. Henry Breckinridge. The only name on the Republican Presidential ballot was that of Stephen A. Day, who received 155,732, to 11,015 and 4,524 written in for Gov. Landon and Senator Borah, respectively.

For delegates at large to the national conventions, the Democratic ticket pledged to President Roosevelt led with 344,363, and the high man on the Republican slate received 295,942.

The combined vote for the Democratic nomination for governor was 540,921, and for the Republican 485,890, a Democratic lead of 54,531.

Information Service

Inauguration by the New Mexico Works Progress Administration of an information service, giving the people of New Mexico accurate and understandable reports of local and state wide activities of WPA, was announced today by Lea Rowland, state administrator, in a dispatch to the Lincoln County News.

"Activities of the WPA are public business and the general public is entitled to adequate and reliable information concerning the entire program," Rowland said, adding that many reports published heretofore have been mere tabulations of figures.

"The newly formed information service will provide the people of New Mexico very soon with regular and accurate accounts of the progress and plans of the WPA, clear and complete in every detail."

H. Lee Jones, newspaperman and former editor of New Mexico Magazine, will head the new department, Rowland announced.

Cattle Growers Association to Meet

The first quarterly executive board meeting of The New Mexico Cattle Growers Association will be held in the Court Room at Lovington, New Mexico, June 27. The morning session will be at 10 o'clock and the afternoon session at 2 o'clock.

With present prospects of good range conditions and a large calf crop the New Mexico cattlemen should be in a better position and mood to tackle other problems of vital interest to their industry such as National Forest, state and public land problems; reciprocal trade agreements; transportation and marketing problems; range conservation program under the Soil Conservation Act; and all other problems in which an organization of livestock men would be interested.

This will be an opportune time for the cattlemen of this section to take up their state and local problems and advise together on how best to go about solving their problems. The meeting is open to all cattlemen.

Frigidaire

When is cold not cold enough? This is a question which is being answered in a graphic manner at the special refrigeration showing now going on at the Carrizozo Hardware Company, local dealers for Frigidaire.

"There are a number of circumstances," said F. A. English, sales manager of the firm, "under which one may be fooled as to just how cool any object may be, and in the case of food refrigerators, how safe they may be. Most any temperature, a few degrees cooler than comfortable room temperature may seem very cool to the hand or arm, especially if one is working in a warm kitchen. Yet such a refrigerator temperature may be entirely unfit for proper food protection. Many people assume that if butter is reasonably hard, the temperature is cold enough for food keeping, yet it is a known fact that conditions warm enough to permit food spoilage, may still be cool enough to keep butter firm.

We are able to prove beyond any shadow of doubt that safety zone temperatures always in effect. This proof comes through the use of the food safety indicator, an accurate temperature measuring device. These are meters that can be read by anyone as easily as an automobile speedometer can be read. They tell any one the exact story as to the cost of maintaining proper temperatures and freezing plenty of ice rapidly."

Caution about Fires

Capitan, N. M.—The Capitan and White Mountain Districts of the Lincoln National Forest have been fortunate this year in having a total of only four fires since January 1. The fires have all been Class A or less than one-quarter acre apiece. During the past week the fire hazard has increased slightly, but the outlook is at fairly good.

The fires so far this year have been mostly man caused and visitors and residents on the forest are urged to be increasing careful, especially smokers, when on National Forest land.

Purchase Durant Plant

The Chevrolet Motor Company has purchased the former Durant plant at Oakland, Calif., says an announcement by M. E. Coy, president and general manager of Chevrolet.

"Our present assembly facilities at Oakland have proved inadequate to meet the demand for Chevrolet passenger cars and trucks," said Mr. Coyle. "We have, therefore, acquired this additional plant, which contains 315,000 square feet of floor space."

"By January 1, 1937, Chevrolet will have completed rearrangements in both Oakland plants and will then operate them as one unit.

"Both passenger car and truck capacity will be increased when the new plant goes into operation."

The former Durant plant built for assembly purposes, is well adapted to Chevrolet operations. It consists of a main building 600 feet long on Fourteenth street, and has three wings extending to the rear, one 6 feet deep and two 400 feet deep. The buildings, of modern construction, are two stories high, except for one wing. A two story office building faces Fourteenth street.

This purchase will increase number of Chevrolet assembly plants to seven and the number of Chevrolet manufacturing and assembly plants twenty-four.

Rural Housewives of World in Convention

RURAL housewives from many countries began their third triennial conference in Washington with Mrs. Alfred Watt of Canada presiding.

Mrs. Alfred Watt

Their first meeting was held in 1930 in Vienna, and the second in Stockholm three years later. Secretaries Hull and Wallace and Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, wife of the President, extended greetings to the visitors, but beyond that there were no set speeches and little formality.

English groups have stimulated a remunerative revival of quilting to supplement the family income.

Australian countrywomen maintain Canada homes for convalescents. Canada's Federated Women's Institute promotes clubs for rural youth and combats maternal and infant mortality.

By conducting evening classes for young girls Danish countrywomen have helped to check their migration to town to seek factory work.

The East Africa Women's league visits native women in prisons and hospitals and provides information to prospective white settlers.

Huge Deficiency Bill Passed by Senate

THE senate by a vote of 62 to 14 passed the deficiency bill carrying $2,375,000,000, of which some $1,425,000,000 is handed to the President to spend as he pleases for "relief and work relief."

Three Democratic senators voted against the bill—Byrd of Maryland, Buckley of Ohio, and Byrd of Virginia.

By a senate amendment, the bill authorizes the President to order a re-study of reports on the $200,000,000 Florida ship canal and allocate another $10,000,000 to carry on work upon it during the coming fiscal year.

New York's Wage Law Is Held Invalid

NEW YORK state's law providing minimum wages for women and minors was declared unconstitutional by the United States Supreme court on the ground that it conflicts with the fourteenth amendment by violating freedom of contract.

Zioncheck Nabbed for Test of His Sanity

MARION ZIONCHECK, the peculiar representative from Seattle, Wash., outdid all his previous performances in one day of wild deeds and landed in the Washington municipal hospital where his sanity was to be tested.

Civil War in A. F. of L. Expected Soon

NINE of the richest unions in the American Federation of Labor, having more than a million members, probably will be suspended soon by the federation's executive council, and at the next convention they will be expelled if the council can command the necessary two-thirds majority.

Green wants to continue to organize industry by skilled groups while Lewis would seek to unite all workers, skilled and unskilled, by industries into one big union.

The craft unionists, it was learned, intend to suspend the charters of the nine industrial unions at the July executive council session, a power granted the council under the A. F. of L. constitution.

Lewis' group of unions factions

400,000 miners, Sidney Hillman's Amalgamated Clothing Workers, David Dubinsky's International Ladies' Garment union, the oil workers, typographers, flat glass workers, hat, cap, and millinery workers, mine, mill, and smelter workers, and textile workers.

Liner Queen Mary Fails to Equal the Record

BRITAIN'S magnificent new liner Queen Mary was given an uproarious welcome at New York as she completed the first leg of her maiden transatlantic passage. The giant steamship behaved well in every way but fell short by 22 minutes of equalling the record set a year ago by the French liner Normandie.

The Queen Mary averaged 20.18 knots on a measured course of 3,168 nautical miles, between Cherbourg breakwater and Ambrose light, completing the journey between those two points in 4 days 12 hours 24 minutes.

Business Men Oppose New Guffey Coal Bill

BOTH the United States Chamber of Commerce and the National Association of Manufacturers is firmly opposed to the new Guffey-Vinson coal control bill designed to replace the act declared invalid by the United States Supreme court.

Harper Elbley, president of the chamber, and James A. Emery, general counsel for the manufacturers' association, recalled, in almost identical language, that the most widely discredited phase of the defunct NIRA was price fixing through codes.

"It is time," Mr. Emery said, "that we began to analyze these stop-gaps drafted hurriedly in an attempt to make permanent law of the things that are beyond control of congress and of the federal government's things which must, in the end, be harmful to the nation as a whole."

Pope, on His Birthday, Denounces Communism

CATHOLICS the world over celebrated the seventy-ninth birthday of Pope Pius XI, and the pontiff himself marked the day by attending a solemn mass in St. Peter's in the presence of 40,000 pilgrims who went to Rome especially for the occasion.

It was evident to all observers the pope's age is beginning to tell on him and that he found the long ceremony very much of a strain.

That the pope's health is causing some concern also in Vatican circles was shown by the fact that the plans that were originally made for the pope to bless the crowd gathered in St. Peter's square from the outer balcony of the Basilica were abandoned at the last minute.

Japanese Find Excuse for Action in China

THERE was every reason to believe that Japan had found, or manufactured, excuses for further encroachments in northern China, and that serious conflict between the two nations would ensue unless China were submissive. The Japanese alleged that a bridge on the railway line between Tientsin and Tientsin was destroyed and that there was an attempt to wreck a troop train.

Yakichiro Suma, Japanese consul general in Nankin, declared publicly that China must choose either "mutual interdependence with Japan or war with Japan," and he said he had informed Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek, Chinese dictator, of this viewpoint.

The Japanese military command, meanwhile, disclosed frankly some of their demands upon China. These included:

- 1. Privilege of building railroads, military and civilian air bases and army barracks. 2. Establishment of regular air service between China and Japan. 3. An economic, political and military position for Japan in China.

Garden Homes Planned by Housing Administrator

STEWART McDONALD, federal housing administrator, outlined to newspaper men a new program which provides for the construction of "garden homes" outside of large cities that will aid in the gradual movement of industrial workers from urban and suburban areas to small plots several miles out in the country.

Emphasizing that "this is not anything in the way of a benevolent proposition" and that no grants of federal funds were involved, Mr. McDonald said it would be accomplished through a broadening of FHA regulations to permit government insurance of mortgages on such property.

"The President believes that whenever possible people should be on an acre to two acres of ground with trees, gardens and shrubbery," he said. "This plan has been made possible by inventions and improvements in the last ten-years. Now we have good roads, electricity, water facilities, and other conveniences for those areas in between the city and the country. Such a program was not possible during the last building boom."

Raymond Moley's Warning to the Administration

RAYMOND MOLEY, who used to be considered the chief of the "brain trust," fears that his friend President Roosevelt may be destroyed politically by the radicals within the Democratic party who at the same time would "destroy moderation and destroy the very system which he attempted to improve."

In a speech before the National Economy League in New York, Doctor Moley said he saw confronting the Roosevelt administration these dangers:

1. That federal relief agencies will be turned into political machines to perpetuate the rule of state and local politicians.

2. The tendency, "all too prevalent in this congress, to engage in muck-raking, marauding expeditions which destroy the liberty of all of the people while they seek to restrain the abuses of a few. These organs of public castigation... may be means of furthering individual political ambitions, they may be build-ups for those with Presidential aspirations, but so far as the public interest is concerned they are simply sound and fury."

3. The tendency "of those in charge of the New Deal to over-emphasize adherence to the belief in the philosophy of the movement and to minimize the importance of competent technical administration."

Doctor Moley defended capitalism; declared that already there has been a wide distribution of wealth in this country, and warned the average man that he eventually must pay the mounting bills for relief—that he is the "missionary being fattened for a cannibalistic feast."

Germany Celebrates Her Revived Navy

WITH three days of maneuvers, reviews and ceremonies, Germany celebrated the revival of her navy, and closed the big event by dedicating at Kiel the huge monument to the men and ships that went down in the Battle of Jutland, Reichsmarschall Hitler was aboard the dispatch boat Grille and from its topmast flew the old flag of the Kaiser.

In the maneuvers the new navy, about fifty battleships, cruisers, destroyers and submarines repelled an "enemy" attack on Kiel harbor. New submarines and speedboats, first units of the fleet being built under the Anglo-German treaty which wiped away the Versailles treaty limitations of the reich navy to 100,000 tons, were shown publicly for the first time.

Hitler, himself, did not speak during the ceremonies of the monument dedication. Instead he listened to Admiral Raeder, Vice Admiral Wolf, and Admiral von Prother, who was chief of staff during the Jutland fight. The latter two, both veterans of that fight, paid tribute to the English as well as the German heroes of the engagement.

Serious Labor Troubles in Many States

FACTORIES and farms in 15 states, in all parts of the Union, were affected by labor-troubles which intermediaries were trying in vain to settle. Leaders of organized labor claimed that from 50,000 to 45,000 strikers already were out, but employers challenged the union claims that the strikes were effective.

Workers in six plants of Remington Rand, Inc. were out on strike after union leaders ordered "a walkout at Syracuse, N. Y. They said 6,000 workers in the company's New York, Ohio and Connecticut plants were involved. Company officials asserted there were 4,200 affected.

Six thousand barbers in lower Manhattan, New York, were ordered to join a 3,000 strikers in a strike which had spread over a wide area.

Keeping Up With Science By Science Service

Married People Are Healthier and Live Longer, Study Shows

NEW YORK.—If you want to live long and be healthy, get married.

Figures showing that the married state, whether blissful or not, is at least a healthy one are reported in the current issue of the Metropolitan Life Insurance company's Statistical Bulletin.

"Marriage, apparently, is conducive to long life and good health," the report states. "At any rate, married men and women live longer than do single persons, and married people register lower death rates from nearly all the important causes of death than do bachelors or spinsters."

Results of Study. "We would expect these findings to emerge from any statistical study of mortality according to conjugal condition, for married persons constitute a selected group. The lame, the halt, and the blind do not marry, as a rule. Nevertheless, the differences between the respective death rates of wedded and single persons are so large that this factor of selection can be only a partial explanation of them."

"It would seem that the relatively staid and regular course of married life is more conducive to health than are the comparatively free and easy ways of the unmarried."

Bachelors' Death Rate. "Among males over fifteen years of age, the standardized death rate for bachelors is 1,218.2 per 100,000 as compared with 855.0 for married men."

"Among females the standardized death rate of spinsters is 1,052.1, as against 850.0 for the married of all ages."

The death rates for influenza, pneumonia, tuberculosis, chronic heart disease, kidney disease, apoplexy, ulcer of the stomach, alcoholism and suicide are appreciably higher among the single than the married, showing that ways of life among the single are not so healthy.

Windshield Filter May Be "Crutch" for Color-Blind Drivers

SEATTLE.—A simple and "infallible" help for the color-blind automobile driver who gets into difficulties because he cannot distinguish between green and red traffic lights is suggested by Thomas Ross of the University of Washington here. In a report to the current issue of Science, Mr. Ross describes a contrivance that can be fitted to the windshield of the color-blind driver's car.

The device consists of small pieces of special glass which can filter out either red or green light. With the red filter placed above the green one, the driver will know that when he sees a light through the top piece of glass he is seeing a red light.

When he sees the light through the bottom piece in this arrangement it is a green light. The device is improved by placing a prism over each filter in such a way that the traffic signal will be visible through both filters at the same time.

Device Is Practical. This idea has worked in actual trials, Mr. Ross reports. It could be adapted to persons suffering from other types of color-blindness besides the red-green kind.

A variation of the red and green filters is also suggested. One of the color filters, says Mr. Ross, might be perforated and parts of the other set in it like polka dots.

"Thus, if the red filter were perforated and the openings were filled with the green material, a red traffic light or other red object viewed through the resulting filter would appear bright with dark spots. A green object, on the other hand, would appear dark with bright spots."

Hairpin Goes Traveling; Reaches Woman's Appendix

FLINT, MICH.—A hairpin here has really carved out a career for itself.

It wandered so far that it probably will be mentioned in the pages of a medical journal one of these days. Strange to the doctors is how the hairpin happened to end its travels in a woman's appendix.

"That is an amazing thing," said Dr. J. C. MacGregor, who removed the appendix after it had ruptured. He has never seen a report of such a large object getting into an appendix. It is not unusual to find tiny objects of foreign matter in unoperated appendices. The woman recovered.

Nordic Type Least Numerous in U. S. Scientist Reveals

Nine Different Kinds of Americans Studied

WHAT is an American? Not a "pure Nordic," typically, said Prof. E. A. Hooton, of Harvard university, answering his own question before the New Haven meeting of the American Association of Physical Anthropologists. Of three good-sized samples of the American population, taken from diverse social and geographic backgrounds, the pure Nordic type averages out by long odds the least numerous—only 2.25 per cent of the total.

The largest groups, in the nine physical types into which Professor Hooton analyzed the American population, are Nordic mixed with something else—Nordic-Mediterranean and Nordic-Alpine. The first of these two types have long heads and darkish coloration; the second have round heads and medium coloration—never either pure blonds or pure brunettes.

Types Classified. Other physical types added by the Harvard anthropologist to the Nordic-Alpine-Mediterranean racial triad of popular conversation and writing are the Danic, a round-headed, medium-colored, narrow-nosed people, mostly Teutonic in modern distribution, and the East Baltic, also round-headed, but blond and wide-nosed. He also recognized as a definite physical racial type the long-headed, red-haired, blue or gray-eyed Kelts.

Professor Hooton took his population samples in three different ways: from a considerable number of prisons, from "ordinary citizen" groups in Boston and Nashville, and from a group of rather highly educated persons who visited the Century of Progress in Chicago.

No Racial Superiority. Especially interesting, in his estimation, is the fact that the racial percentage in each group, whether jail-bird, man-in-the-street or highway, was just about the same as the percentage in the whole population. That is, a really scientific analysis cannot discern any such thing as racial criminality or racial superiority.

This does not mean that there is no correlation between racial type and tendencies in activities, whether criminal or lawful. Thus, criminal Kelts tend to sex offenses and to crimes involving violence, while criminal Nordics are "experts," specializing in forgery and fraud, but not going in very much for murder.

Meandering Revenue Program. THE members of the senate finance committee—poor things!—seem to be going forward with the new revenue program the same way a land crab makes headway—by traveling backward. At last accounts they were so snarled up in figures and language that any minute the rescue party was expected to rush in with bush-hooks and chop them loose.

However, out of the epileptic seizure into which these unfortunate patriots have been enmeshed, one concrete fact has emerged. There will be a slight exemption of dues on the profits of corporations making less than $15,000 a year. This will be a great boon for trunk stores down by the depot, brokerage firms handling second-hand railroad tunnels and dealers in Brazilian butterfies.

New Socialist Argument. THE trouble with being a socialist is that, no matter what you start to debate, you always wind up on the Tom Mooney case. Or at least, such was the situation until recently. Now, for any socialist argument on any subject from German measles to the Great Wall of China, there is a new climax.

The tenants of a Bronx apartment house, mostly radicals, held a meeting, and, in accordance with the best radical traditions, drew up resolutions demanding that the management do this and that. Having read the fiery protest, the superintendent addressed the gathering:

"Now about not letting nobody hang out washing in the hallways—that's reasonable. I start beginning that reform right away. "Und as to keeping garbages off the front fire escape—well, vy nodit? "But, say, vy do you suckers expect me do about the Scottsboro boys?"

You may quarrel with the Townsendites' bookkeeping, with their way of handling the contributed dime of thousands of trusting oldsters, with their failure to explain where they're going to get the billions to pay those gaudy pensions or how the provisions of the distribution are to be enforced, but at least the leaders are too proud to endanger their social positions by being caught, chit-chatting with a lot of congressmen.

Dog, Research Hero, Honored by Monument. LENINGRAD.—In honor of the dog, so often the hero and invaluable aid of medical research, a bronze monument will be erected on the territory of the All-Union Institute of Experimental Medicine here.

The monument to the Dog, as it is to be called, will be erected at the suggestion of Academician L. Pavlov, whose famous discoveries in physiology were made by means of studies with dogs.

what Irvin S. Cobb thinks about:

A Political Bystander. HOLLYWOOD, CALIF.—If I were a Republican orator, I'd say the Democrats wouldn't need a keynoter at their convention when a hog-caller would be more suitable. If, on the other hand, I were a Democratic silver-tongue, I'd say the Republicans needed no campaign committee, whereas a set of pallbearers would be highly appropriate.

As a Republican spellbinder, I'd proclaim we were giving Puerto Rico four years in which gradually to cut loose from us, because, should the Democratic outfit win in November, by the end of those four years the Puerto Ricans will be used to having some independence and will be used to having none at all. As a Democratic champion, I'd come right back by pointing out that, since Puerto Rico would starve to death anyhow under a Republican administration, congress mercifully was taking steps to let the people down there get accustomed, by degrees, to the starvation process.

As an innocent bystander, though, about all I can say is that, once the nominations have been made, it's a safe prediction that this summer will be fair and warmer.

The news from Lhasa should give encouragement to the poor unhappy congressional committeemen who are prominently connected with the Townsend plan who'll condescend to talk to them.

You may quarrel with the Townsendites' bookkeeping, with their way of handling the contributed dime of thousands of trusting oldsters, with their failure to explain where they're going to get the billions to pay those gaudy pensions or how the provisions of the distribution are to be enforced, but at least the leaders are too proud to endanger their social positions by being caught, chit-chatting with a lot of congressmen.

Dog, Research Hero, Honored by Monument. LENINGRAD.—In honor of the dog, so often the hero and invaluable aid of medical research, a bronze monument will be erected on the territory of the All-Union Institute of Experimental Medicine here.

The monument to the Dog, as it is to be called, will be erected at the suggestion of Academician L. Pavlov, whose famous discoveries in physiology were made by means of studies with dogs.

The monument is to be a bronze image of a sitting dog on a pedestal. Bas-reliefs on all four sides of the pedestal will depict separate moments from the life of the dog at Pavlov's laboratory.

"Now, look here, old fellow," said Geoffrey, "I'm not going to take any sides till I know where I am. I want to hear your story from first to last. Don't leave out any details. This show's bung full of detail, and details count."

"I plucked at the grass. 'I don't know that I care to tell you.' 'Take your time,' said Geoffrey. 'But we don't leave here till you do.' 'I don't know that I want to leave here.'"

"No more do I," said Geoffrey. "It's a very attractive spot, and I'm glad of a change."

I lay back and stared at the sky. I felt a curious detachment from all that ten hours ago had been my life. Looking back, I seemed to be looking across some unbridgeable depth.

I think the truth is that my interest in Helena Yorick had suddenly died, and since that had filled my being, for the moment my life was empty as never before. I did not regret the lady—I was neither happy nor sad. I simply had no material upon which my emotions could work. The bitterness I had shown Geoffrey was that of a savage critic—not of an injured man. I was impersonal.

So much for the state of mind which my abrupt disillusion had brought about. Helena Yorick had deceived me. Nell had looked into my eyes and fooled me to the top of my bent. The utterly impossible had happened. The ideal I had carved out of marble had crumbled away.

There was only one thing to be done—the game must go on and from now I would play my own hand.

I sat up and looked at my cousin. "I suppose I may as well tell you," I said.

"I suppose so," said Geoffrey, yawning.

"Where shall I start?"

"From where I left you at Villach, just over a week ago."

A full half hour went by before I had done.

"I've got to digest this," he said. "I shan't be long."

While he strolled, I lay flat once more and stared at the sky, and though I would gladly have stopped them, my thoughts rapped back to the antics which I had lately performed.

Helena Yorick had piped, and I had danced. That was as much as it came to. But I had trusted the piper, and the piper had played me false.

My cousin was standing before me, regarding his watch.

"From what you tell me," he said, "the countryside appears to be littered with cars; our immediate vicinity, however, seems to have been neglected. We must, therefore, wait for Barley. He's a job of work to do and he won't be here for another hour and a half. Still, that'll give us time to settle two or three points. And between you and me, it's as well that you had that sleep, for unless I'm much mistaken, you won't have time for sleep for the next few hours."

With regard to the promise Lady Helena gave to Pharaoh, . . . if you didn't seem overwrought, I like to believe that your reason would have told you that from every point of view that promise was no more binding than a bucket of Glauber's salt. For one thing, it was exacted—she promised under duress. For another, let's quote his own words. "Because you have scruples you are weighted clean out of this race. I am not so embarrassed—I never am." He makes that arresting statement, and then within five minutes he has the blasted effrontery to prove it up to the hilt. No wonder he left the room quickly; he was probably worried to death that Dewdrop would burst out laughing before he could get him outside. If you must have another reason, Pharaoh let you both go because he was stuck. As long as you two sat there, he could not move. More. The warden's suspicions were aroused and the house was full of your men; his only chance was to take up the role he asked for—the role of the Countess's guest.

"So much for the promise to Pharaoh. Now for the Count. He must, of course, be held till Pharaoh is dead. Barley's attending to that. Last night, at the Reaping Hook, he very properly held his tongue, but he knew just as well as you what a valuable prize you'd made. Like guest, like host, you know. In fact, to be honest, we'd been hoping to make it ourselves. You mustn't think we've been idle. We've watched and listened and learned a whole of a lot. And the Count's removal stood very high on our list. Well, as I say, Barley's attending to that. That's the job he's on now—stunting the Count."

"And now for you. I'm not going to labor the point, because you seem so sure, but I suppose you realize that you were—evacuated in order to save your life. I mean, you can't really believe that Pharaoh, if he can help it, is going to let you live."

"I haven't really thought about it,"

said I. "He's certainly tried to kill me and if he gets the chance I imagine he'll try again."

"Don't imagine," said Geoffrey. "Believe. Believe that he'll go on trying for the rest of his life. Your death-warrant was signed that morning at Annabel, 10 days ago. As long as you're useful, he'll use you—he's sure of that. He meant to squeeze the Countess through you. But when he had got what he wanted, you were to die."

"And that brings us to her ladyship. This appears to be delicate ground, so I won't say much. But, if you please, ask yourself this. Why didn't she leave with you last night, as she did five nights ago? A possible answer is that she may have thought you'd prove mulish—jib at breaking her promise to the rottenest swine that ever took a girl by the throat. But the great probability is that she wanted to do a deal. She meant to see Pharaoh and ask him the price of your life. Thanks to Helena Yorick's efforts, you're still alive, though why she should bother about you is more than I can conceive."

"Now this is what I propose. As soon as Barley returns we make at once for Plumage, and close down Bugle—not Rush. Rush is ripe for secession; rats leave a sinking ship. He may have something to tell us. If not, we proceed to the castle—complete with Rush. We use the tunnel and footbridge and Rush can unlock the doors. Then we get hold of the warden and put him wise. From him we can learn—"

And there he stopped dead, with his eyes on the foliage behind me and his pipe halfway to his mouth.

As I turned to follow his gaze, Sabre leaped out of the beechwood and over the brook.

marry—get hold of that. But I want to show you your trouble, because—well, I owe you something and perhaps one day I'll save you from making the same mistake.

"You're an idealist, John. That's one of the reasons why you appealed to me. I love idealists, I'm one myself. But idealists must live—and what is still more important, they've got to let live. An idealist must be human—must keep his feet on the ground. If not, he becomes a nuisance. —he carries his joke too far. You can't see that just now; you can't translate what I say; but I think you'll be able to one day, and then you'll remember my words."

"You can't get as far as my motive—that's what you said. What you really mean is that you cannot see my motive, because you are looking too high; but my motive is natural and human and belongs to the earth. It's a pity you 'can't get as far' for the motive counts."

"You see, if I had deceived you—and, of course, I don't deny that I did, I laid myself out to deceive you. I used every art that I knew—well, if I had deceived you with any shameful object . . . let's say to smooth my path to some other man, then your estimate would be true, for by using our understanding to let you down I should have committed a sin which not even an angel from heaven could ever forgive. But we both of us know that what I did I did because I loved you. And when you come down to earth, as I think you will, you'll see that that makes a difference. And something more you'll see, when you lower your eyes. You'll see what it cost me to do it. I debased our lovely coinage to save your life."

"Some people would call you a fool, but I know better than that. You see, I know you so well. You're so very simple and downright, and honesty is your god. That worship and your unbridled idealism are, as it were, the jennets through which you see. And so what I did looks monstrous. . . . It's because of that that I'm neither angry nor hurt—only thankful. If you had weighed me and had dared to find me wanting. . . ."

Something was stirring within me. The challenge had stabbed some emotion that was not dead.

"Finish the sentence," I said. "That's just what I've done."

For a moment she regarded me curiously.

Then—

"No, you haven't," she said. "You think you have, but you haven't. If you could speak my language, you'd understand what I mean. But that's by the way. As I said just now, I am—thankful that this has happened. . . . To be honest, I know it might happen. I saw its shadow while I was writing that note. And I very nearly added: 'Don't let him know I've done this.' And then I thought 'No,' because that was a coward's way. I wasn't prepared to deceive you to save myself."

With a sudden air of pleasure she looked about.

"And now where's your cousin?" she said. "I fancy the game's nearly over. But I'd like him to hear my news and then we can settle the best way to go in and win."

As once before, the three of us sat on the turf, and Helena Yorick was speaking with my cousin's eyes on her face. But mine were upon the ground.

"If I had to give my story a title, I should call it 'How Pharaoh was hoist with his own petard.' But that would not be strictly correct, because, as you'll hear, it was the infallible Dewdrop that let him down."

"As John has told you, I saw him out of Yorick just about twenty past three. Then I went straight to bed, and after a little I managed to get to sleep. At half-past six I was awakened by the most awful din. Sabre was barking like mad and the alarm of the castle was going all out. Then I heard men running and voices, and I'd hardly got my dressing gown round me before old Florin was speaking and knocking upon my door."

"Well, you'll never guess what had happened. A watchman had found blood on the terrace—a trail of blood that led him up to John's room."

She paused there and turned to me. "I'd no idea that Dewdrop had stabbed you to death."

I said nothing and at once she resumed her tale.

"The moment I heard the news I saw the infinite value of holding my tongue. I knew whose blood it was and why it was there, but I felt that left to itself, that blood would cry out with an eloquence which I could never approach. Dewdrop had stirred up a regular hornet's nest; it seemed to me more than likely that with a very little direction—the hornets would turn their attention to Pharaoh and him."

"I told the warden to rouse you and, if he could get no answer, to break down the door. Very wisely, you'd left this unbarred—I shouldn't have thought of that. Of course, your room was empty, but I went in myself and looked carefully around. You see, I was sure that you must have stashed the wound and I wanted to see if you'd left any traces of this. But, again, you'd been very careful. And so I was free to give the hornets a tip."

"I turned to the warden."

"Where does this trail lead to?"

"Poor Florin stoned."

"But it leads to this chamber," he said.

"Nonsense," said I. "It leads from here. Some hut has been taken away. Spencer and he has been taken away."

The truth of the fiction was obvious. The hornets saw it at once. Four or five servants rushed off to study the end of the trail.

"Who was aware," I demanded, "that Mr. Spencer was to be lodged in this room?"
