CARRIZOZO, NEW MEXICO, FRIDAY, AUG. 14, 1936

NUMBER 7

JOHN G. TEXTOR

John G. Textor, 79, died at the home of his son, R. J. Textor, 4001 Hastings Street, yesterday after a brief illness. Mr. Textor formerly operated a ranch near Carrizozo, but moved to Lafe, Arkansas in 1921, where he had since resided. He was in El Paso visiting his son and daughter, and had recently returned from Canutillo, where he had been visiting another daughter, Mrs. Katie Gillette.

Survivors include a son, W. G. Textor, Lafe, Ark., three daughters, Mrs. A. C. Thomas, Lafe, Ark., Mrs. Kate Gillette, Canutillo, Mrs. R. Hughes, El Paso, and a sister, Mrs. Catherine Heubner, Waterville, Ohio.

Funeral services were held in El Paso yesterday at 10 a. m. followed by interment in Restlawn cemetery.

REAL ESTATE DEALS

Some important real estate transfers were consummated at Nogal last week in which considerable money, many acres of land and several houses changed hands.

Mr. Bowen Zumwalt and sons, Floy and Myrt bought the Rich Hust ranch consisting of thirteen sections of land together with all the cattle.

Messrs. Floy Zumwalt and Sam Cox bought the Cozzens place on the Mesa.

Mr. Bowen Zumwalt sold his home at Nogal to Mr. Rich Hust, and bought the place owned by his son Myrt.

Turner-Keene

A wedding of much interest was solemnized August first when Miss Viola Keene became the bride of Mr. George Turner, both of Sanderson, Texas, the ceremony being performed by the Reverend Beasley at the Methodist parsonage of Del Rio, Texas. Witnessing the ceremony were Mr. and Mrs. P. L. Avant and Mrs. J. Riley-Dunman.

The bride was beautifully gowned in powder blue with a pink and blue corsage and white accessories. Mrs. Turner is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Keene, and is well and favorably known, having made her home here with her parents for the past year.

The groom is the son of Mrs. Alice Newton of Sanderson and is associated with his mother in the grocery and vegetable business.

Following a short wedding trip to Wichita Falls and other points Mr. and Mrs. Turner will return to Sanderson to make their home.

Hartley-Riggins

Mrs. Beulah Hartley and Mr. John Riggins of Capitan were married on July 26th. The wedding was quiet and was not announced until this week.

Mrs. Riggins is a charming and pleasant young business woman, and one of the most highly respected in Lincoln County. She is the efficient chief operator of the Capitan telephone exchange and has a host of friends.

The groom has resided in Capitan many years, and is also well known and respected. Congratulations and many good wishes are extended.

Gokey-Scharf

Mrs. Beula Gokey and Mr. Albert Scharf were united in marriage, Tuesday August 4th at Carlsbad, after which they visited Mrs. Scharf's brother, at Pecos two days, then took a motor trip to Las Vegas, Taos and Eagle's Nest, where they spent a week.

The wedding was not a surprise, as friends had surmised their intentions when they left.

Mrs. Scharf has been night operator at the telephone office for several years where her obliging attention to duty and her agreeable and pleasant manner toward patrons of the company has endeared her to a large circle of friends.

Mr. Scharf is a member of the firm of Norman and Scharf; is a successful and trustworthy business man.

Friends wish this popular couple a happy and prosperous life.

13,000 in CCC Camps Secured Jobs in June

A report that nearly 13,000 members of the Civilian Conservation Corps left to accept private jobs during June has just been made public by Robert Fechner, director, with the comment that this was largely attributed to "a general improvement in business conditions."

Explaining that the practical type of education given the young men also was responsible, Director Fechner said the 12,996 discharged to take private employment during the month was the largest group since the camps were reduced to a maximum of 350,000. Total discharges during the year ending June 30 were 145,531, a monthly average of more than 12,000.

"The increased emphasis which has been placed in recent months upon job training instruction in CCC camps," he added, "has opened the way for many members to find outside employment."

Dawsons Visit

Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Dawson were here from Los Angeles Wednesday, guests of Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Lemon. They left about noon yesterday.

Mr. Dawson was cashier of the old Exchange bank in 1912 to 1921, but has resided in California since that time.

Frank Montgomery Announces

Mr. Frank Montgomery of Ancho requests us to announce that he is a candidate for the nomination for sheriff of Lincoln county subject to the will of the Democratic convention.

Mr. Montgomery comes before the people of the county highly recommended and endorsed by his neighbors, and friends, all of whom have known him since he first purchased the Jones-Pennington ranch at Ancho 11 years ago, and has lived there constantly since. Mr. Montgomery has resided in the state thirteen years; has always been on the side of law and order. He has served as deputy sheriff one term; is honest, upright, and fearless in the performance of duty. He is progressive, and highly-respected; if nominated and elected promises an efficient, forceful, unswerving administration of duties of office and will require the same of his deputies.

Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Skinner of Carlsbad were here Wednesday to visit Mrs. Pinkie Skinner, Mr. Jim Greer and relatives at Nogal.

Mrs. Henry Hoffman and children spent Monday and Tuesday in El Paso.

Mrs. Ola C. Jones spent Monday and Tuesday in Santa Fe.

VOTE YOUR CHOICE.

Whoever is elected will be met at train and cared for from arrival until they leave. Also all expenses will be paid.

Large Turkey Crop

Capitan, N. M.
August 10, 1936

Capitan, N. M.—Indications are that the acorn crop on the Lincoln National Forest will be larger than it has in several years. This should point toward an abundance of fat game. The turkey crop this year appears to be larger than usual with each hen having a good hatch of young although the number of hens seen in this section is not so great.

Deer have been scarce in the foothills this summer but with an abundance of food should be in good condition.

Fishing on the Forest has not been exceptionally good this summer, however, there is more water this year than there has been for several seasons and there appears to be an abundance of small fry in the streams which indicates that the next few seasons should be different. Fishermen at the present time seem to be having the best luck high in the mountains.

Political Prophecy

There has hardly been an election of modern times when extra party manifestations have not appeared to make hurdles of the innocent game of political prophecy. Yet, with one exception, they have shown no effect whatever on the November result. When Theodore Roosevelt led his Bull Moose out of the Republican preserve, it presented the Presidency to Woodrow Wilson. Perhaps Wilson would have won in any event, for William Howard Taft was almost as great a disappointment in the Presidency as was Herbert Hoover in 1932. Insurrectionist Progressivism was rampant, particularly in the farm sections; the tariff bill of that day, precursor of the Smoot-Hawley monstrosity, which Taft had signed with apologies, made it probable that a large proportion of the Republicans who followed T. R. would have gone to Wilson, if these had been denied the detour afforded by the Bull Moose movement. That defection, however, made the thing sure for the Democrats. Here was a case unique in American political history—where there was an insurgent leader magnetic enough and popular enough to bring his followers along when he revolted against his party.

Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Skinner of Carlsbad were here Wednesday to visit Mrs. Pinkie Skinner, Mr. Jim Greer and relatives at Nogal.

Mrs. Henry Hoffman and children spent Monday and Tuesday in El Paso.

Mrs. Ola C. Jones spent Monday and Tuesday in Santa Fe.

FIRM INCORPORATED

Santa Fe, Aug. 10. (AP).—New companies with incorporation papers listed at the State Corporation Commission today included:

Engineers' Gold and Silver Mining Company, Carrizozo; authorized capital stock $1,500,000, beginning with $4500; incorporators C. E. Degner, J. H. Fulmer, Jr., J. B. Coon, W. M. Ervin and E. Degner.—El Paso Times.

Mr. Bernuski of Capitan was discharged from the Rathmann hospital Wednesday, much improved.

Mrs. Henry Morris of Ancho returned home Wednesday after receiving treatment at the Rathmann hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Dow entertained Tuesday night with a surprise birthday party for Jobie McPherson. Nineteen were present, and it was indeed a pleasant affair. Games and music were enjoyed until 11 o'clock. Refreshments were ice cream and two-kinds-of-cake. Jobie received a large assortment of gifts.

Mrs. Clara Dow returned home to El Paso Monday, accompanied by Esther, Ralph and Elizabeth Dow who came home Wednesday.

It strikes the editor of this paper that as a wedding month August has stolen the glory of June entirely.

Mrs. Sarah Hughes returned from Los Angeles Sunday night, where she had been visiting her daughter Mrs. Barrett, and her son, Will Hughes, since June 28.

Messrs. T. A. Spencer and J. V. Taylor are quite busy making preparations for the Rodeo and Carnival to be held tomorrow and Sunday.

Mr. Perry Sears attended the Democratic Convention in Santa Fe Monday.

The Household

By LYDIA LE BARON WALKER

IT IS a good idea to go around with a screw driver and tighten screws frequently. It is amazing how many minor repairs can be avoided by doing just this very thing. Mechanical devices for labor saving are apt to have a screw or two somewhere in their mechanism, and unless these screws are kept tightened, trouble is brewing. Accidents also can be avoided by going the round of the house with the screw driver, and using it as needed.

One of the kitchen utensils that must have the screws in firmly is the coffee percolator handle. If one loses its grip, the person using the percolator, may get badly scalded. Be sure the screws in electric cord end-pieces are secure. I know of one woman who had a rather serious accident when the screws came out of the cord she was using with the electric flatiron. So don't forget to make good use of the screw driver on such screws.

Soap Screws

When a screw has to be renewed, or when the old one comes out and must be put back again, there is a little trick that will make the job easier. Sopp the screw! Press the screw down into soap, and give it a little twist. Or, holding the head of the screw, just beyond the edge of the cake of soap, turn the screw around on the top of the cake, pressing the thread down enough to get it soaped. Now use the screw wherever it is wanted, and you will find that it is much easier to turn, and also it fits more securely. This is good, especially, when the screw has been used in the hole before, and is a bit loose. Screws should be very firm and tightly fitted.

There is no illumination for a dining table that is comparable to candle light. The tapers should be high enough not to intercept the vision of those looking across the table or else the candles should have shades. It is assumed in these instances, that the candles are near the center of the table. Candles that are not high, and are minus shades, can be placed nearer the edge of the table, and be satisfactory.

Number of Candles

It should be remembered that four candles are the correct number. Never use three, for three candles are too closely associated with church significances with a sad trend, to make the number suggest gaiety, and merry meals are good for the digestion. When the table is small, or where the candles are for decoration merely, and not for the sole illumination, two candles are satisfactory.

During the summer when draughts of air are wanted, candles, even the best of them, will drip when at other times they will not and the wax gets on the table. It is not the easiest thing in the world to get the wax out. If the candles are colored, the dye has been known to stain the tablecloth or centerpiece.

Candlestick Dollies

To avoid this little annoyance, let me suggest using candlestick dollies. These can be as simple as circles or squares of dull finish damask table oilcloth to match the tablecloth in color. They will be inconspicuous, and are recommended for summertime cottage use, or for dining nooks in city homes, or for eating porch meals.

Those who prefer better candlestick dollies, can make them of linen embroidered in self tones, white, or contrasting colors, with scalloped edges. Or the dollies can be plain linen, lace edged. Unless the candles are of deep or brilliant dyes, these dollies are entirely sufficient. For more precaution the circle or square of imitation damask oilcloth can be put beneath the candlestick dollies.

Paint Domes White

White and light tints do not absorb and hold heat the way darker shades do. Astronomical domes are painted white to minimize the increase in temperature in the daytime. This is done so that the scientific instruments may be maintained at a temperature as constant as possible.

Keeps Heat Out

Tests made by the Bureau of Standards show that the use of aluminum paint on the tops of automobiles, ice wagons and other vehicles reduces by about 90 per cent the amount of heat admitted through the top.

MILK ESSENTIAL IN EVERY DIET

Nutrition Value Is Now Generally Recognized.

By EDITH M. BARBER

IT is a habit of the day to sigh for the bountifulness of a bygone time when foods were cheap and plentiful. While one and all we should appreciate lower prices for foods of all kinds, most of us would not exchange the variety, convenience, and safety which are provided today by modern methods of handling, preserving, and transporting them.

It is a satisfaction to know that most foods now available are of consistently good quality. Of all staple foods which must be used daily none is of more importance than milk, which provides so generously for the most important of the nutritional needs. With the knowledge, which is recognized as absolute by physicians, that children must have milk to grow and develop normally, it is one of the greatest responsibilities of the time to see that the milk which is provided for them is safe. It must, of course, come up to certain standards of quality so that the proper amounts of nutrients are supplied.

The first thought, however, should be that the milk is low enough in bacteria-count to be safe. While certified milk, produced under the aegis of cleanly conditions, is theoretically the best milk, it is expensive and beyond the price which most persons can afford to pay. It seems unnecessary in any case when safe milk can be procured at a moderate price in the forms of pasteurized, evaporated, and dried milks.

Sweetened evaporated milk is known as condensed milk and is used more largely to take the place of cream than of milk. Modern pasteurizing-plant demand, in the first place, that the milk brought to them be clean and of good quality. They help rather than hinder the enforcement of farm-milk inspection by city or state. The process of pasteurizing reduces the bacteria-count. The manufacturers who dry or evaporate (or condense) milk are also supplied from the farms with high-quality milk, and through their processes of preparing it in concentrated form for market it is pasteurized or sterilized.

Dried milk has had the moisture removed and is put up in cans ready to heat into four times its volume of water. It has the same food value as pasteurized milk, which has usually lost nothing but part of its vitamin C content. Even when raw milk is used vitamin C must be supplied by other foods, such as tomatoes or oranges. Under the new processes of preparing dried milk its flavor is changed very little, and if chilled after heating into water it can be used for table beverage.

In the process of making it is sterilized, and for that reason is absolutely free from bacteria. The high temperature used caramelizes the milk-sugar and gives a characteristic flavor to the milk. This process, however, seems to affect none of the nutritive qualities except the vitamin C, which must be furnished in liberal quantities by other foods even when fresh milk is used. An equal amount of water added to evaporated milk will make the food value slightly above that of most market milk. It may take the place of fresh milk in any recipe.

While evaporated milk is used for cooking and for infant-feeding, it does not as a rule furnish a table-beverage in the same sense that fresh milk does. It does, however, make a delicious drink when it is mixed with fruit-juices or with chocolate sirup and frapped with ice in a shaker. The fact that evaporated milk will whip if directions are followed, makes it possible to use it instead of cream in gelatin desserts, and for that reason is most useful where whipped cream is at a premium.

Cream of Tomato Soup

- 2 cups canned tomatoes
- 1 teaspoon sugar
- 2 slices onion
- 3 cloves
- 1 bay-leaf
- 1-2 teaspoons salt
- Pepper
- 1-4 teaspoon soda
- 1-2 tablespoons butter
- 2 tablespoons flour
- 3-4 cup evaporated milk
- 3-4 cup water
- 1-2 cup grated cheese

Cook tomatoes and seasoning together 10 minutes, and strain. Add soda and stir until dissolved. Melt the butter, add the flour, and stir until thick and smooth. Add the tomato mixture; repeat, but do not allow to boil. Serve at once with grated cheese and crackers, or croutons or toasted bread sticks.

Chocolate-Walnut Drops

- 1-2 pound sweet chocolate
- 1-2 cup condensed milk
- 1 cup dates
- 1-2 cup walnut-meats

Melt the chocolate with the milk in a double boiler. Remove from the fire, stir until smooth, and add the walnuts and dates. Drop by teaspoonfuls on a greased baking-sheet and bake for 20 minutes in a slow oven (275 degrees F.) until firm. This amount will make 24 cakes.

"Dried Up" Wells Made to Produce More Petroleum

Chemist Patents Process for Raising Oil Yield

WASHINGTON. — Spent or "dried up" oil wells would be made to ooze forth more black gold, according to a "process for increasing the productivity of wells" recently patented here (patent No. 2,038,720) by Melvin De Groot, of St. Louis.

Such simple chemicals as hydrochloric acid and sodium fluoride, powerful roach killer, when properly emulsified and injected into the well would do the trick, claims the inventor.

The "sick" oil well when given a dose of this medicine would again yield oil trapped in the earth beyond the reach of man.

Wells Not All Dry.

Not all oil wells that stop producing are really dry, that is, their supply of oil is not completely exhausted. The stoppage of output may be caused by the building up of solid deposits of wax or of inorganic salts, such as cause water hardness, in the channels or pores of the oil-bearing rock.

Naturally, when pores and channels are clogged oil will not flow and the well's output eventually declines to the point where it is not practical to work the well, although there may still be much oil present.

The inventor's mixture of hydrochloric acid and sodium fluoride is intended to regenerate the productivity of such wells. It has the property of dissolving out the mineral deposits which clog the pores and channels.

Acids Make Opening.

Not only that, but injected into the well, the chemicals eat out new openings in the rock making it more porous.

The hydrochloric acid in the mixture dissolves out the calcareous or limestone-like deposits. At the same time some of the acid reacts with the sodium fluoride to liberate the powerful hydrofluoric acid which dissolves away the clogging silica deposit—most difficult to dissolve clogging mineral.

New Magnesium Pellets May Help Save Wild Ducks

WASHINGTON.—Magnesium added to the lead used in duck shot may give wild ducks a chance for their lives if the hunter misses, the U. S. Biological Survey has announced. Paradoxically, the widespread use of this new type of ammunition would result in increasing the number of ducks.

Lead pellets of the kind now used get two chances of the ducks, Survey scientists explain. The first is the hunter's honest chance to knock down a bird when he fires. The second—puts no ducks in anybody's pot, but only kills the poor fowl by slow lead poisoning.

Havec Is Wrought.

Shotgun pellets falling thick into hunted-over marshes where wild ducks feed are shoveled up as the ducks grub in the mud for food. They are retained in the gizzard like small pebbles, and as they are slowly rubbed down some of the lead dissolves and finds its way into the blood stream.

Among these is a paralysis of legs and wings, so that if the poison does not kill the birds outright they either die of exposure or fall easy victims to predatory animals and birds.

Steepest Railroad Is Located in Oregon

RIPPLE, ORE.—What is believed to be the world's steepest standard-gauge railroad is located near here. It is 3,421 feet in length, starting up on a 28 per cent grade, continuing on a 79 per cent and cutting down to 50 per cent as it nears the top of the incline.

The railroad brings logs from a 300,000,000-foot stand of timber lying on the high mountain ridges, and delivers them at the foot of the canyon.

The stand of Douglas fir and West Coast hemlock to be cut is very valuable, covering a great space, so the matter of its removal is an important one, involving as it does the lowering of logs 1,500 to 2,500 feet down the narrow and precipitous side of the canyon of the Salmonberry river, and getting them to the railroad at a convenient point.

Bridal Veils Used in Ancient Times to Scare Demons

Greeks of Old Followed Quaint Marriage Rites

THE ancient custom of veiling a bride was once a trick to mislead mischievous demons. Thus Prof. Ludwig Deubner of the Berlin university explains bridal veils, which in ancient times were more enveloping and mysterious than the airy veil of a modern June bride.

Fear of demons, it appears, plagued the ancient Greeks in a fashion reminiscent of the fairy-tale fear of the wicked fairy who always turned up for trouble at weddings and christenings.

Brides' Disguises.

Describing lengths to which wedding parties would go to foil demons, Prof. Deubner said that brides in Sparta were dressed in men's clothing. The Spartan maid, dressed like a man and with her hair shorn, was shut up in a dark room to await her bridegroom's arrival and a dramatic rescue.

Other ancient peoples tried other confusing practices. On the island of Kos, near Asia Minor, it was the bridegroom who dressed up. He wore women's clothes.

Prof. Deubner finds evidence that Greek marriage customs are related to customs of other Indo-Germanic Aryan peoples, and some can still be found surviving in parts of Greece.

Parents Made Matches.

Describing ancient Greek weddings, Prof. Deubner stated that as marriages were arranged by the parents, the couple-to-be were not consulted and often became acquainted only after they were wed.

The popular month for weddings corresponded to late January and early February in our calendar. The bride sacrificed her hair, her girdle, and her toys at the altar of Artemis.

Corresponding to a modern church wedding was a sacrifice rite to the goddess Hera. During the wedding banquet the bridegroom removed the bride's veil. Wedding gifts went by a name meaning unwilling, because they were received after the removal of the veil.

Guests accompanied the couple to their home and threw old shoes to ward off evil. The groom lifted his bride from the cart in which they rode, and she—like ancient German brides—walked thrice around the hearth-fire in token of her entrance to a new family.

24 American Cities Escaped Typhoid Deaths During 1935

CHICAGO. — Twenty-four large cities have a place on the honor roll of the American Medical Association, having had no deaths from typhoid fever during the year 1935.

These cities are: Bridgeport, Conn.; Cambridge, Mass.; Elizabeth, N. J.; Erie, Pa.; Fort Wayne, Ind.; Grand Rapids, Mich.; Jacksonville, Fla.; Jersey City, N. J.; Long Beach, Calif.; Milwaukee, Wis.; Newark, N. J.; New Bedford, Mass.; New Haven, Conn.; Omaha, Neb.; Paterson, N. J.; Peoria, Ill.; San Diego, Calif.; Scranton, Pa.; Somerville, Mass.; Springfield, Mass.; Tacoma, Wash.; Trenton, N. J.; Wichita, Kas., and Youngstown, Ohio.

Eight of these cities—five of them in New England—had no deaths either from typhoid or diphtheria in 1935. They are: Bridgeport, Cambridge, Erie, New Bedford, New Haven, Scranton, Springfield and Tacoma.

Death Rate Declines.

The total of typhoid deaths for the 93 large cities annually surveyed by the American Medical Association was notably less in 1935 than in 1934, 385 as against 470.

At the other end of the scale are seven cities with high death rates from typhoid. In the order of high mortality from the disease, they are: El Paso, Texas, New Orleans; Nashville, Tenn.; Tampa, Fla. Norfolk, Va.; Knoxville and Memphis, Tenn.

Research in Soybeans Brings Federal Medal

WASHINGTON.—Expeditions bringing back to the United States over 2,000 distinct varieties of soybeans, as well as numerous other useful and ornamental plants, won for P. H. Dorsett, veteran scientist of the U. S. Department of Agriculture, the Meyer Medal for Distinguished Service in Plant Introduction.

Presentation was made by Dr. David Fairchild, on behalf of the council of the American Genetic Association, at the plant introduction station of the U. S. Department of Agriculture at Bell, Md.

Mr. Dorsett's expeditions have taken him to China, Brazil, and the West Indies. It was from his Chinese collections of over 6,000 seed samples that the 2,000 soybean varieties were isolated. Some of these are already in wide use.

ROOSTER CROW

THE Gooding tavern in Greenfield, Ind., has long since disappeared but it deserves to be remembered as the birthplace of a party symbol that is still in use after nearly a century.

Back in the thirties it was owned by Joseph Chapman, an ardent Democrat, who had the habit of imitating a rooster when exulting over victories by his party. So when his political enemies won, they taunted him by shouting: "Now crow, Chapman, crow!"

In 1840 Chapman was a candidate for the state legislature from Hancock county. In that year Democratic prospects were far from bright. The country still remembered the panic of 1837 and blamed President Van Buren for it. Moreover, the "singing Whigs" were making a powerful appeal to the voters with their shouts of "Tippecanoe and Tyler, Too!" and their log cabin and hard cider symbols.

In the midst of the campaign George Pattison, editor of the Indianapolis Constitution, wrote a letter to William Sebastian of Greenfield in which he said: "I have been informed by a Democrat that in one part of your county 30 Van Buren men have turned for Harrison. You must stir up the Democracy. See Chapman, tell him not to do as he did heretofore. He used to create unnecessary alarm; he must crow; we have much to crow over."

This letter accidentally fell into the hands of the Whigs and was published in an Indianapolis paper with a view to ridiculing the Democrats. But it proved to be a boomerang for the Whigs. "Crow, Chapman, crow!" became the slogan of the Indiana Democrats and spread all over the country.

When the Indiana Sentinel was launched in 1841 it carried at the top of its front page the picture of a proud rooster and under it was the slogan "Crow, Chapman, crow!" Other Democratic newspapers began carrying the same picture and slogan and soon the rooster, crowing proudly whether in victory or defeat, became the accepted symbol of the Democratic party. Despite the later popularity of the donkey, it is still a favorite symbol—thanks to John Chapman of Greenfield, Ind., who taught his fellow-Democrats how to crow.

WINNING WITH BUCKEYES

WHEN Martin Van Buren, bosom friend and successor to fiery Andrew Jackson, undertook to succeed himself in the White House in the race of 1840 something new in political history was the result.

Van Buren not only was defeated. He insured the election of Gen. William Henry Harrison of Ohio and he endowed Ohio with the name of the Buckeye state, which flourishes today.

It all came about when the cry was taken up by Van Buren's campaigners that Harrison was more perfectly fitted to live in a log cabin and drink hard cider than to go to Washington as the nation's head.

What a boomerang that proved to be!

The only background for the attack was that when the hero of Tippecanoe retired from battle he selected a site overlooking the Ohio river in the southwestern part of the state, built a double log house and finished it with shining white clapboards.

Ohioans naturally resented the slur on their habits of living, including the charge of tippling. Miniature log cabins, symbolic of pioneer life and the vigor which pushed civilization westward from the more effete east, made their appearance throughout the state.

These cabins were reproduced from buckeye logs. So were the canes carried by thousands of marchers who participated in parades to advance the candidacy of Harrison. The cabins were mounted on wagons and within each was a horny-handed frontiersman, quaffing hard cider.

Van Buren was not neglected while this was going on. He was attacked by the Ohioans as a snob with a penchant for European customs.

By the time the "Buckeye" parades popularized and spread east of the Alleghenies, Van Buren's managers realized their mistake and tried in vain to stem the tide. It was too late. Gen. Harrison won the election, hands down, and Ohio has been known ever since as the Buckeye State.

These comments, of course, are provoked by the Lemke Independent candidacy. This represents an attempt to politically capitalize the inflation sentiment that exists among a group which would take a short cut to the redistribution of wealth, the perils of which New Dealers and Old Dealers alike have pointed out.

It has a certain kinship with the Townsend plan, for of course there is not enough money in the land to finance $200-a-month pensions for the aged. The statisticians have figured out that the ultimate cost of an ordinary suit of clothes under the transaction-tax system offered by the Townsend planners who implement their program would amount to considerably more than the monthly pension.

It is also related to the project endorsed by Mr. Landon, through his representation at the conference of Governors a few years ago. This conference memorialized President Roosevelt to pay off the Fourth Liberty Loan with flat greenbacks, instead of by a new bond issue.

The Lemke enterprise is not likely to get very far, even with such backing as he may have obtained at the recent convention of Townsendites at Cleveland. Among the followers of the Doctor and of Father Coughlin are many adherents of the two old political parties, perhaps in about equal number. If they divide—as they probably will—in equal proportion either as to defection from or adhesion to their normal allegiances, it cannot seriously affect the election.

"Soul" is the subject of the Lesson-Sermon which will be read in all Churches and Societies of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, August 16th.

The Golden Text is: "Bless the Lord, O my soul, and forget not his benefits; who forgiveth all thine iniquities; who healeth all thy diseases." [Ps. 103, 2, 3]

Among the citations which comprise the Lesson-Sermon is the following from the Bible: "The Lord is my light and my salvation; whom shall I fear? the Lord is the strength of my life; of whom shall I be afraid?" [Ps. 27:1]

The Lesson-Sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "The sinless joy,—the perfect harmony and immortality of Life possessing unlimited divine beauty and goodness without a single bodily pleasure or pain,—constitute the only veritable, indestructible man, whose being is spiritual."

Notwithstanding the many devices now in use that place extra demand on the electrical system, we have remarkably few cases of rundown batteries nowadays. This undoubtedly is because a battery that is gradually getting weaker from over use, gives the driver a warning; that is, he notices when he uses the starter that the battery does not spin his engine with its usual vigor. This is a signal for the driver to use the manual control on the instrument board to step up the charging rate, or to conserve the current by turning off some of his electrical accessories.

The primary purpose of the generator and battery are for ignition, starting and lighting. Ignition requires only 1 1/2 amperes; head lights, 9; starting 375 to 400. Obviously, prolonged use of the starter is a great drain on the battery, but in normal use its current consumption is quickly made up by the generator.

Next to the starter, the heaviest load placed on the battery is to supply one of the smallest of accessories, the cigar lighter, which draws 15 amperes. The radio uses 7 to 8 amperes, almost as much as the headlights. A windshield defroster also uses 8 amperes, and a car heater 2 1/2 more. A spot light draws 4.75 amperes. There are still other accessories drawing more or less current, such as fog-lamps, cooling fans, fender markers, headlight beam indicators and, of course, electric clocks the last named using virtually no current.

The total current used by all these accessories is much greater than the capacity of the electrical system; however, those that draw heaviest current, the starter and cigar lighter, are used only briefly and others are seldom used all at the same time.

Mrs. Perry Sears of Capitan was an attendant at the Lyric theatre Saturday night.

Mr. Marvin Roberts, popular mechanic at the Carrizozo Auto Company is taking a week's vacation at his ranch home.

All administrative employees of the Works Progress Administration in New Mexico are being required to certify that they are not candidates for office or campaign leaders for any candidate, it was announced this week by WPA headquarters. Forms issued for that purpose will also be required of applicants for employment.

Relief workers are not required to sign the statements.

The main paragraph states, "I am not a candidate for any state, district, county or municipal office, in any primary, general or special election, (requiring full time and to which a salary attaches) nor am I now serving as a campaign manager or assistant thereto for any such candidate, or as a member of any campaign committee organized to promote the political interest of any candidate for such office."

To: W. J. Sandfer, Katie Sandfer, Frank Rozzle, Rozzle, his wife, and To Whom it may Concern, Greeting:

You and each of you are hereby notified that the Board of County Commissioners of the County of Lincoln, State of New Mexico, as Plaintiff, has filed its petition against you in the above entitled court, wherein said petition and cause are now pending, praying for the appointment of three disinterested freeholders, as Commissioners, as by law provided, to assess the damages which you, and each of you, may severally sustain by reason and in consequence of the condemnation and appropriation of your land, particularly described in plaintiff's said petition, as a right of way for a public road, and praying that said lands described in said petition be condemned and appropriated for said public use, and that judgment may be entered against you, and each of you, therefor.

YOU ARE FURTHER NOTIFIED that plaintiff will, on the 16th day of September, 1936, at the hour of 10 o'clock in the forenoon of said day, or as soon thereafter as counsel may be heard, at the Court House in Carrizozo, County of Lincoln, State of New Mexico, present said petition to the Court for the appointment of three disinterested freeholders, residents of Lincoln County, New Mexico, as commissioners, as provided by law, to assess the damages which you, and each of you, may sustain by reason of and in consequence of said condemnation and appropriation of your said lands for said public use as aforesaid.

YOU ARE FURTHER NOTIFIED to be present at said time and place for the purpose of taking any steps you may deem necessary in order to protect your interests in the premises.

WITNESS THE HONORABLE JAMES B. MCGHEE, Judge of the Fifth Judicial District of the State of New Mexico, sitting for and at the request of the Honorable Numa C. Frenger, Judge of the Third Judicial District of the State of New Mexico, this 22nd day of July, A. D., 1936.

These comments, of course, are provoked by the Lemke Independent candidacy. This represents an attempt to politically capitalize the inflation sentiment that exists among a group which would take a short cut to the redistribution of wealth, the perils of which New Dealers and Old Dealers alike have pointed out.

It has a certain kinship with the Townsend plan, for of course there is not enough money in the land to finance $200-a-month pensions for the aged. The statisticians have figured out that the ultimate cost of an ordinary suit of clothes under the transaction-tax system offered by the Townsend planners who implement their program would amount to considerably more than the monthly pension.

It is also related to the project endorsed by Mr. Landon, through his representation at the conference of Governors a few years ago. This conference memorialized President Roosevelt to pay off the Fourth Liberty Loan with fiat greenbacks, instead of by a new bond issue.

H. O. Loan Corporation Legion Meeting at Clovis

Residents of Lincoln County received a total of $3,381 from the Home Owners' Loan Corporation during the three year period of refinancing operations which terminated June 13, 1936, according to the final figures furnished by G. E. Cook, State Director for the National Emergency Council. This sum represented 3 loans.

A total of 2,462 distressed home owners in New Mexico were extended aid in the sum of $5,134,546. Of this money it is estimated that $451,000 went toward the payment of taxes and assessments, the estimated average of tax and assessment payments per loan in New Mexico being $183.

According to the 1930 United States Census reports there were 30,716 of owned non-farm homes in New Mexico. The Home Owners' Loan Corporation refinanced mortgages on 8.0 percent of this number.

The total number of loans made in all states, Puerto Rico, Hawaii and Alaska was $1,021,817, involving the sum of $3,092,870,784, making the average loan $3,027.

More than 98 percent of all money involved went for the refinancing of distressed homes by means of long-term replacement mortgages which are to be amortized fully over the term of the loan in small monthly payments. The balance of the money advanced went for the restoration and conditioning of properties.

It is estimated that $228,453,000 of the Home Owners' Loan Corporation advances went to the tax offices of the nation, with the national average tax payment per loan being $224.

This is the stage of the campaign where third party movements loom large and portentous. Later on, ordinarily they fade and dribble away and election day usually finds those chiefly interested wondering why there had been any concern over what is apparently the most evanescent manifestation of politics.

Messrs. C. E. Porter of Corona and Frank Montgomery of Ancho were in town on business Tuesday.

Mrs. Matthews of White Oaks, who is ill at the Rathmann hospital shows slight improvement today.

Mrs. T. P. Laramie of Lincoln, Mrs. W. S. Peters of Capitán, Mrs. H. L. Merrill and Mrs. T. J. Burleson of Fort Stanton, represented the James A. Hipp Post 57 of Capitán at the State Legion and auxiliary meeting at Clovis. Mr. W. S. Peters was the delegate for the Legionaires. All returned pepped up for more active work for one of the grandest organizations in the U. S. A. today; one organization which is actually working for a better America. Though one hears the sun side of a convention, stressed more, one finds by attending that there is an active business meeting going on and much business accomplished. The Governor of New Mexico, Senator Chaves, Senator Hatch and Congressman Dempsey were among the prominent speakers.

Mrs. T. P. Larmie was made President of the sixth district succeeding Mrs. Jim Travis. Mr. Jim Travis was made District Commander. We are proud of our James A. Hipp-Post. In the short time it has been organized every member is an active worker, and we have cause to be, as we are the Baby Post and the auxiliary is one of the Baby units. Ex-service men should become more Legion conscious and their wives should insist that they enlist in one of the Legion Posts. Everyone of us are fighting a great war today; war on Red propaganda, and you that know the horror of war are better trained to wage this battle. Visit your nearest Post, or organize one. Contributed.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Snow and children and Walter Fulmer will leave tomorrow for Lubbock and Falls, Texas where they will be joined by Dr. Clyde Snow and family and all will go to the Texas Centennial. Miss Vena Louise Snow who has been visiting relatives here the last three weeks will accompany them to Lubbock.

Olympic Games Formally Opened in Berlin

WITH spectacular ceremony the Olympic Games were officially opened in Berlin when a graceful runner bearing the Olympic flame that had been started from Greece dashed into the stadium, lowered the silver torch before Reichstuehrer Hitler and kindled the sacred fire in a great cresset. Then came the formal parade of the athletes of fifty nations, nattily uniformed and marching with precision while guns boomed and bands blared. Some of the foreign groups gave the Hitler salute as they passed by the chancellor. Others did not. Among the latter were the Americans, who placed their straw hats on their left breasts and marched by with eyes right. Nor was the American flag dipped before the fuhrer, the explanation being that this was done only before the President. The American contingent was greeted by an outburst of whistling which the knowing declared meant "the raspberry." But on the whole the affair was decidedly successful.

In the first day's contests the United States started things with a rush. Jesse Owens, Ohio State's colored star, broke the Olympic and world records in winning his heat in the 100-meter dash; and Johnson, who is from California, set a new Olympic record of 2.03 meters. In some other events the Americans did well, and in yet others they were eliminated.

In the 100 meter finals Owens won and Micallef of Chicago was second. Helen Stephens of Missouri, in winning two heats of the women's 100 meter event, broke the world record both times. By a vote of 36 to 27 Tokio won the Olympic games for 1940, Finland being the losing bidder. The Americans, South America and the British empire were virtually solid for Japan, which offered a transportation subsidy of about $45,000 to offset costs of traveling in the Far East. The Finns urged that the games be returned to a Spartan simplicity.

Lewis and Alites Absent

When A. F. of L. Council Meets JOHN L. LEWIS, head of the United Mine Workers, and his 11 associates on the Committee for Industrial Organization, made good their promise not to be present when the executive council of the American Federation of Labor met to try them on charges of "insurrection." The council members were plainly angered by this defiance and it was predicted they would proceed to find the defendants guilty "in absentia" and to suspend the unions in the Lewis group. This would be the greatest split in the ranks of American organized labor since the federation was formed fifty years ago. It would mean the loss of about one-third of the federation's membership.

Previous to the meeting of the council President William Green in an impassioned speech accused Lewis and his followers of substituting "jungle law" for democracy in their efforts to organize the steel industry. He said he was prepared to make any personal sacrifice, even to resigning his office, to bring about peace and "bind up the wounds."

Col. Roosevelt Willing to Run for Governor

NEW YORK Republicans are to nominate a candidate for governor at their party convention in September, and Col. Theodore Roosevelt has said in a letter that was made public that he is willing to accept that honor if the party so desires.

Colonel Roosevelt, now forty-eight years old, was the Republican candidate for governor in 1924 and was defeated by Alfred E. Smith. Since then he has been governor of Puerto Rico and governor-general of the Philippines.

Puerto Rico Nationalists Are Found Guilty

PEDRO ALBIZU CAMPOS, leader of the Puerto Rico Nationalist party, and seven of his associates were found guilty of San Juan of a conspiracy to overthrow the United States government in the island by force and were sentenced by Federal Judge R. A. Cooper to prison terms ranging from two to six years. In the first trial of these men the jury had disagreed. The defense attorneys gave notice of appeal.

The case originated in a clash between Nationalists and police last October in which several persons were slain. Following this, Col. E. Francis Riggs, chief of insular police, was murdered, presumably in revenge for the killing of Nationalists in the October fight.

New Locarno Pact May Give Europe Security

WHILE the nations of Europe were worrying over the Spanish rebellion and the danger that it might bring about open rupture among the Fascist and anti-Fascist governments of the continent, steps were taken to assure peace. Germany and Italy accepted the invitation of Great Britain, France and Belgium to participate in a conference this fall from which it is hoped another and better Locarno pact will emerge.

No date for the conference has been set, but it was expected to be held either just before or soon after the meeting of the league of nations assembly in Geneva in September.

Zioncheck Does Not Seek Re-election to Congress

HEREAFTER Washington will have to get along without the excitement provided by the antics of Marion A. Zioncheck of Seattle, Wash. That eccentric-to put it mildly—gentleman has announced that he is not a candidate for re-election, because of his mother's ill health, and says he wants to be America's forgotten man. Zioncheck has settled down to private law practice.

Progress of Revolution in Spanish Republic

GEN. FRANCISCO FRANCO'S rebel forces in Spain, according to late reports, were pressing the government troops seriously and winning some bloody encounters. This despite the claims of Madrid that the Fascists had been checked. The rebel columns advancing on the capital from the south were reported to be threatening communications between Madrid and the eastern coast at Valencia and Alicante, chief sources of the government's food supplies. Leaders of the insurgents claimed they held Huelva, important seaport, and all the territory between Seville and the Portuguese border.

The government, now a red dictatorship, has taken possession of all church property and assumed control of all industry and agriculture. It also has confiscated the merchant marine to form a defense fleet. The loyalists were encouraged by victories in and around San Sebastian.

Fascist Italy has been accused of aiding the Spanish rebels, and it is ascertained a number of Italian bombing planes were sent to them in Morocco. The leftist French government naturally is in sympathy with the Madrid government and Frenchmen, unarmed, have been given permission to cross the border to aid in putting down the rebellion. German and Russian sympathies, also, are ranged on opposite sides, and all this caused fears that a general war might result. France called on all other nations to preserve neutrality, and Spain warned Italy and Germany to keep hands off.

Day by day the struggle in Spain became bloodier and more ruthless. Summary executions of prisoners were common on both sides and these deaths were probably as numerous as those in battle. The government planes showered bombs on the rebel strongholds, virtually destroying many towns; and the Fascist bombers engaged in desperate fights with loyal warships.

President Roosevelt's Vacation Is Ended

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT ended his 437 mile cruise when his yacht docked at Campobello island, New Brunswick, where he has a summer home.

Mr. Roosevelt remained at Campobello only two days and then took a special train to Quebec, where he visited with Lord Tweedsmuir, governor general of Canada. Immediately after this meeting, Mr. Roosevelt took train for his summer residence in Hyde Park, N. Y., and there began mapping the plans for his campaign for re-election. Half a dozen leaders of the Democratic party, including National Chairman James A. Farley, were summoned into conference with their chief. The President also obtained from Secretary Wallace and Chester Davis a report on drought conditions and relief needs.

Smaller Scale Projects in New PWA Program

EMPHASIS is placed on smaller scale projects to be completed speedily, in the third building program of the public works administration, which was opened by the allotment of $22,742,034 by President Roosevelt. It includes 352 projects in 37 states, and the largest of these is a courthouse for New York city to cost the government $4,635,000. The average allotment is only $64,323.

Secretary Tackles, PWA administrator, said that, in addition to 45 per cent donation, PWA will lend $2,142,000 to help communities defray their 55 per cent share of the cost. President Roosevelt has ordered that all projects "be commenced by October 1, 1938, reach a peak by the end of the year and be completed by October 1, 1937."

Frank Knox Notified of His Nomination

FACING an enthusiastic crowd that completely filled the big Chicago stadium, Col. Frank Knox received from Senator Steiwer of Oregon the official notification of his nomination for the vice presidency by the Republican party. National Chairman John Hamilton introduced the senator, who spoke briefly but forcefully and with his customary eloquence. As Colonel Knox stepped forward to deliver his speech of acceptance he was greeted by a roar of applause that continued for many minutes. His fellow citizens were glad to express their gratification for the honor done him, and the thousands from outside Chicago were no less warm in their appreciation of the candidate. In the streets surrounding the stadium was another vast throng of people who, unable to get into the building, listened to the proceedings as broadcast by a loud-speaker system.

Unlike Governor Landon, Colonel Knox devoted much of his address to the alleged failures of the Roosevelt administration which, he said, had the most glorious opportunity in the history of the nation but ignored its responsibility, failed in its job and defaulted in its obligations.

"From the day that it took office," he declared, "it embarked on a series of hysterical experiments on the economic life of a burdened people. At a time when universal co-operation was a necessity it initiated a campaign of abuse and vilification of business men. At a time when the credit of the country should have been strengthened it inaugurated a policy of credit adulteration and currency experiment that demoralized foreign trade and frightened domestic finance. It set up a system of regimentation of industry that reduced production and prevented re-employment. By coercion of congress it forced the passage of reform measures so recklessly drawn that they hamstrung the revival of enterprise and paralyzed the renewal of investment. It installed a regimentation of agriculture that destroyed food and reduced foreign markets and increased the cost of living and multiplied the expense of relief.

"At a time when private industry was struggling desperately for a new start it set up governmental enterprise to compete with private business. At a time when the burden of taxation was already hard to bear it embarked on a policy of squandering public funds and increasing the weight of taxes. At a time when united effort and mutual good-will would have completed recovery it promoted sectional hatred and class strife. At a time when returning business confidence was ending depression it began a campaign to terrorize business and subjugate the banks. At a time when confidence in the character of government was vital it established a spoils system.

"No one can define the New Deal or even describe it. But we know what it means. It means federal control over local business, over local bank credit, over local wages, over local conditions of work. It leads to federal regimentation of the labor, the business, and the home of every American citizen. It leads to price-fixing and production control by federal authority. It leads inevitably to the extinction of the small business man, to the end of free enterprise in America."

Government Crop Report Shows Drouth Damage

THE WEEKLY crop report and weather summary of the Department of Agriculture revealed that the drouth and high temperature were playing havoc with the corn crop in most of the leading producing states. In some sections there will not even be fodder and over a much larger area no grain will be obtained this year. There were good rains, however, in parts of the central and eastern areas and improvement was noted there in both corn and pasturage.

The present drouth in Iowa, the department said, has caused greater damage to corn than that of 1934. The summary reported almost complete destruction of the crop in two southern and two western tiers of counties.

Fashion Back to Femininity Trend

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

tailored to the brink of perfection during the practical hours and for sports? Decidedly so, if you would be smartly in fashion. However, it is an entirely different story which the mode is telling "what to wear" at festive midsummer events that take place amidst glamorous settings. Comes then into the style scene as lacy and lovely and sheer costumes-beautiful as are graced a fashion picture.

The lavish use of nets, laces, organzas, marquisettes, tulles and similar materials of filmy texture and transparency quite exceeds anything of its kind seen for many a year. In the daytime they are tailored and for the night hours and for garden party wear these entrancing sheers are made up as pretty-pretty as genius and imagination can possibly create them.

The trio of dainty costumes in the picture most eloquently carries the message of lovely ladies clad in beguilingly feminine array such as is gracing the midsummer landscape with romance and the pleasurable. The first impression one gets from this group, aside from the beauty of the sheer materials, is that of big hats, cunning puff sleeves and hemlines that are generously and gracefully wide. Since first impressions usually ring true, we learn important facts in regard to the correct silhouette for 1938 midsummer garden party and glance frocks.

The winsome dress pictured to the left is of a very fine crossbar net. Style points to note are the fancifully picketed hemline with like-pointed ruffings on the voluminous puffed sleeves, the flower ruche about the throat, also the huge-brimmed hat that is made of the seltaine net (stiffly starched) as the gown. Here also we see the return of the parasol.

Garden party dresses when they are as fanciful and airy as the one to the right in the picture make one think of a fairy-story princess, stepping lightly across her garden. The dress is pure white, in organza most beautifully embroidered to knee-depth about the hemline of the skirt and on the sleeves. The gown is simply cut, its graceful lines taking on an added touch of the exquisite in that a double row of bincho lace borders the wide skirt working up into a deep point in the front in combination with the embroidery. The treatment of the puffed sleeves is fittingly quaint.

Lovers of beautiful lace will adore the gown shown centered in foreground. It is one of the loveliest from among most lovely dresses brought over on the maiden voyage of the royal steamship Queen Mary and shown at the display of exclusive British fashion creations recently presented here in America. It adds to its interest to know that it was one of four Reville creations approved for the royal garden party of King Edward VIII at Buckingham palace. The gown is of exquisitely fine lustrous cellophane lace. The girde is of forget-me-nots, matching the crown of the hat in the same color. It would seem next to impossible to imagine anything prettier than this fantasy of lace and flowers which is done all in delicate blues.

In the present back-to-femininity trend, the garden party dress has its important place, especially when in the instances cited in this group it is just as perfect for country club or roof dancing on summer evenings.

"PAX" SILK PRINTS

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

Prints continue to hold sway in the world of fashion. The lure of them is stronger than ever. Shown in the picture is one of the very interesting and unique "pax" (pax being the Latin word for peace) silk prints designed by a member of the board of directors of the international league for peace. These really handsome silk prints are available to women who are interested in adopting the peace-in-fashion movement. The dress pictured is of a blue and white silk sheer with the word pax so skillfully used as a motif it becomes a part of the patterning. The wide white-bordered cape-bertha is pleated and shirred in accord with the latest styling trend.

FROSTED JEWELRY LEADS THE VOGUE

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

Summer's newest jewelry is "white and frosty." Rings, bracelets and necklaces that look as icy as a cool drink are being worn at fashionable summer resorts. Crystalline and opaque whites are frequently combined. Crystalline alone adds a glamorous note to costumes in the new smoky pastels, opaque white is good with copper-brown, and with the south-sea batik prints or flowered challis. Choker necklaces are staging a come-back. Large frosty rings are frequently worn to match. To set off the rings, nails are adopting shades of smoky red polish. Massive courtier rings with multi-colored stones are also smart, and require bright nail lacquer such as robin red or coral to give the hands the proper balance.

For moments when the urge to be feminine has you in its grip, try yielding to the rage for flower jewelry. Fabric flowers, raffia flowers, carved flower motifs, are used—even the real thing straight from the florist. Any flower goes, from daisies to forget-me-nots. Some of the necklaces tie demurely at the back of the neck with a ribbon.

New Mode in Smart Sports Dresses for Daytime Wear

Smart dresses for daytime wear during the summer include grand new sports and spectator sports outfits. Moynaux has scored with a new design made for his private clients, who include several Americans known for their elegance. A suit of beige woolen has a most interesting belt which is made of natural tree bark and is fastened with a sheaf of dried grass. Another successful number is a dress of navy and white linen tweed with the skirt of wide, flat pleats. It is worn under a navy redingote.

Presidential Straw Votes.

BOHEMIAN GROVE, CALIF. —Every baby, as I've always heard, is born with a soft spot in its head, and once in a while there's one who never gets over it, but grows up and, in presidential years, goes around taking straw votes on railroad trains in order, definitely to find out which ticket will be elected.

He is a kindred spirit to the other fellow, who, to settle the whole issue right now and avoid crowding at the polls in November, offers to bet you a cool thousand that his man beats your man, and then, before leaving, tries to borrow five dollars from somebody so he can get his laundry out of hock.

Having met both types within the ten days before coming here and being fearful that both species is going to multiply rapidly during the ensuing three months, I'm thinking seriously of taking the veil until after the campaign ends. Politics certainly does breed its ticks.

The Little Red School House. YES, in my early days we also had the little red schoolhouse. Maybe the reason we liked it then was that it got its red tone from the paint on the outside and not from the teaching staff on the inside.

Likewise, in those unprogressive times, we thought the youth of the land should be taught to cherish the American flag for something besides private hissing purposes. Hopelessly old fashioned, eh, what?

The Dictator Business. IT LOOKS as though, when the battle dust lifts from that distracted country, Spain will have a dictator, dictators being fashionable.

It seems to be comparatively easy to make a success of it, too. Just follow a formula: Make it a blasphemous violation of the first commandment for anyone to assign you second place. Be sure all sentences personally uttered begin with the capital letter "I" and end with the pronoun "me."

Convince yourself that, in order ever to behold any human being who is your equal in moral and mental stature, you must carry about with you a full-length mirror.

Never permit yourself to be photographed in your nightshirt, but always in full uniform. On arising, lock the jaws and clench the fists and leave 'em that way all day.

And—this is very important—have a dependable police force and somebody to pick on, preferably somebody without any friends.

Political Claim-Alls. SHRINKING JEEMS FARLEY announces the Democrats will carry every division of the Union, although privately he is said to be a little bit doubtful of two very backward counties in Vermont. While generously conceding the central part of Mississippi and the western end of Kentucky to the enemy, diffident John Hamilton is sure the Republicans will sweep everything else.

Congressman Lemke, most modest of the claimers, is certain he'll win in 40 states. Really, he doesn't need that many, but 40's a nice even number. If the shy Dr. Townsend also should run, he counts on 50,000,000 votes in this country, besides clean-cut majorities in Sweden, New South Wales and the Island of Yap.

Oxen Versus Onions. WITH no aim to set up as a specialist in human behavior, I think I've stumbled on a significant, timely discovery. I found in a scientific work this statement: "Each living growth has to begin in a single microscopic cell. Moreover, every future thing of either animal or vegetable kingdom contains in that first cell a fixed number of even more infinitesimal bodies called chromosomes. In the ox, the guinea pig, the man and the onion, the number is the same invariably."

I contend this natural-kinship in classification may explain why, in campaign years, some of us are bellowing oxen, some are docile guinea pigs and most of the rest of us are just plain onions.

Mormons Made Own Sugar. Cut off from the states and harassed by Indians, the Mormons undertook the production of their own sugar. Beet sugar machinery was purchased in Liverpool, shipped to New Orleans, then up the river. Fifty-two ox teams in 1852 finally hauled the equipment from Leavenworth to Utah and 500 bushels of beet seed arrived. This was the inception of the beet sugar industry of Utah.

SYNOPSIS

Job Braddon, young and fantastically successful broker of Chicago, is infatuated with Agnes Gleneth, beautiful daughter of a retired manufacturer. Rodney, a doctor, in love with Agnes, visits his brother, Job. Job plans work at Rochester. Job suggests that he make a try for Agnes before leaving. In Rod there is a deeper, obstinate decency and much sterner restraints than in Job. Agnes believes to be happy, a girl must bind herself entirely to a man and have adorable babies.

To be happy, a man required a girl; indeed, men declared this and sought a mate more openly, more frankly. Men's voices, at such seekings, betrayed them, as Rodney Braddon's just had done.

"The Deep Sea," her father had dubbed him in contrast to his brother. The Devil (with women) and the Deep Sea! Well, the Deep Sea had phoned from his brother's, the Devil's office, and was on his way to her.

Agnes never thought of making special preparation for him; and he wouldn't have liked it. She kept on the cornflower blue knitted dress which became her slenderness and which deepened, by lighter shade, the blue of her eyes, and which "went" with her straw-colored hair. The cold wind of the morning had whipped a pink glow into her clear smooth skin.

She procured her own little coupe and drove alone through the snow to the station to meet Rodney.

He, if he could, would have turned back. He sat by himself in the train, going over and over what he had done and what he had set out further to do, and his purpose appeared to him not only hopeless but fantastic. Yet he had spoken the words to her that told he was coming and which implied more. He had no retreat.

Did Jud honestly believe that he had a chance? Or had Jud goaded him to this in the belief that, by speaking to Agnes, however hopelessly, he would be the better for it—the better for putting an end to his impossible dreams?

Standing on the car steps as the train slowed, he passed her. He swung down carelessly, slipping in the snow. When he straightened, she was beside him.

"Little Agnes!" he said, the syllables escaping him. If she caught his exclamation, what difference? He had come to say to her much more.

She felt it. She asked him after he was settled beside her and she was driving him home: "You haven't had lunch, Rod?" "I never thought of it," he admitted.

The snow had begun to blow so blindingly that it became almost an adventure to follow the familiar road to the house. It shut in Rodney Braddon and Agnes Gleneth together, away from contact or sight from all others, increasing the tension of their intimacy, though during the drive, Rodney said scarcely a word, and he did not touch her.

In the house he made no attempt to touch her. They went into the pleasant, easy "east room," which on ordinary days overlooked the lake. Now the snow swirling at the wide windows shut them in, as it had when they were in the car.

Rodney appreciated this, and he turned to her, gratefully. "You'll let me tell you what I shouldn't."

"If you want to, Rod."

"You know the trouble with me. I love you. . . . You sit there, will you? And I'll stand here. I'll not annoy you more than I must. I've said I love you. I've had medical training. I know what love is, or is supposed to be. But it's not that with the when I think of you. I suppose every hopeless fool denies it. He tries to make himself out better than he is."

"You couldn't, Rod," she said gently. "She was seated where he asked her to be, and watching him, looking up at him, so tall and troubled before her; and a little ungainly, as always, in his brown ready-made clothes.

He was more carefully molded than Job, except in his brow, his chin and his hands. Perhaps especially in his hands, so lean and strong and capable. Her eyes came to rest on his hands, restrained close beside him as his brother's never would have been at such a moment.

How this man fought the appeal of physical sensation! And why did he do it so?

Because he was capable of a feeling, beyond his brother's; far beyond any other man she knew.

Agnes recognized this now, if not with her mind, with her stirred instincts, which aroused their needling excitements through her.

"Money means nothing to you, I know, Agnes," he said. "The fact that I've none; that's not my trouble. It's me and my life— isn't it?" "Your life?" "The fact that you never could live it."

She said, without thinking, "Why not?" for she did not willfully intend to lead him on; but never, with any man who had made love to her, had she found herself so confused by feeling.

"There'd be nothing in it for you but being my wife."

"What would that be like, Rodney?" Now, why had she said that? Did she want him to break the restraint he held upon himself?

"Being my wife? Do you want me to tell you?"

"Can you, Rod?" "Can I?" He was gazing at her so that her eyes fell before his, fell to his hands, which he was keeping controlled beside him. "I can tell you all about it—what it will be every hour of the day—and night," he said, so that she hardly heard him.

"I thought for a time, Agnes," he went on, "of taking up another line, for you. I mean, with the idea that it might just possibly increase my chance with you. Not to make more money, but to make myself different, for you. But I couldn't be different."

"Not you, Rod?" "No; it'd be no use. There's only one job I can care to do. You know what it is. It's—to find out what makes one person live and another die. What brings one child health and strength and happiness, and what condemns another to be a cripple or to pain or wretchedness for life. What does it? Not God, not Divins judgment and punishment. We don't believe in travesties like that any longer. And it's not the sins of the fathers, in most cases, either. It's some condition we can discover and correct. It's some secret of biological balance that we can uncover. It's simply a problem of biology that I've got to work at as long as I'm any good. I couldn't turn to anything else if I tried to. It's the one thing that matters to me—except you."

"I've been trying to put you two together. I mean to imagine you together—my life, as I live it, and you. I can do it in my dreams. Oh, I love you so much; and I can see I'll never have you. . . . Don't mistake me in how I imagined you in my dreams, dear; oh, my dear. You were there waiting for me; that was all. You always were there for me at end of day. Wherever I was, whatever I was doing, I was going back to you. No; I'll tell it all to you. Some day, I dreamed, we'd have a little girl like you. A very little girl with blue eyes and hair like fax as yours used to be."

"It wasn't strange, Rod. Don't think I misunderstand. Kiss me, Rod."

"When I go, I will, if you'll let me. I couldn't bear it now. I see how you feel—sorry for me. It's plain I can never have you. I won't make you say it. I know. I always knew. That's why the dreams began; but they'll be gone now, too. That's best. I suppose."

Ten minutes later, Rodney left; and she knew better than to try to detain him. "I'm driving you back to the station," she said.

"No. Let me leave you here. . . . You can send me, if you will, with Simmons; but you—let me kiss you now."

Never with such tenderness, never with so much strength restrained, had a man's hands clasped her. His arm did not encircle her. His hands upon her shoulders, he drew her to him; she lifted her lips and kissed him. Once; that was all; he did not try to repeat it.

"Again, Rodney," she whispered, reaching up, stretching on tiptoes to offer herself once more.

"You don't repeat—death," he denied her. . . .

Agnes moved about the empty house, gazing out at the snow.

She could do no differently about Rodney; she did not love him. She felt for him with a keen pity which had no equal in her meetings with men; but she did not desire him. Was love—desire? Was that the decisive sensation in your life?

Was admiration for a man, sympathy for him, caring for him, nothing in comparison? Did no qualities in you or in him count, unless you desired him?

Flames were leaping and snapping from maple logs freshly laid on the huge stone hearth of the hall; and the green glass eyes in the pair of jaguar heads on the wall opposite gleamed their reflection of the dancing fire.

Five years ago her father had shot the jaguars in Brazil; having suddenly found need to cease to be a manufacturer of electrical equipment and to become, instead, a hunter set upon traversing tropical jungles to kill something dangerous and savage. Among other trophies, he had brought these back, installed them here, and dubbed them "Hansel and Gretel."

This house, which had never been as happy as the home on Easter Lane, had descended undeniably after that. Of course the jaguar heads had nothing to do with the descent; they were simply a symbol of what had happened.

What had happened in this house? Rodna, the little Swedish maid, appeared. She was a lady's maid shared by Agnes and her mother; a slender, small-boned, golden-haired, bright-cheeked, impulsive type of Swede. She was overemotional, indeed; but discreet. Rodna, if any one, knew what had happened in this great important house; for Agnes suspected that her mother, in her despairing helplessness to regain what was slipping away, sometimes "talked to" Rodna. Rodna, to a soul would Rodna repeat a word of it.

"Mother's returned?" Agnes asked her.

"Oh, yes! Mr. Braddon just phoned." Agnes started. Rod? Was he returning?

"Mr. Judson Braddon," Rodna said. "What did he say?"

"He is coming out. He did not inquire whether or not you would be in, Miss Agnes; he said to tell you he was coming out. He will drive."

Twenty miles through this snow! thought Agnes. Job would.

"Also Mr. Gleneth has returned to the city. He will be home on his train."

Mother! thought Agnes. "Do you require me, Miss Agnes?"

"No. Look after Mother, Rodna."

"Oh, I will!"

The two girls gazed at each other, both knowing. There was no sense whatever in Agnes' pretending before Rodna. "She mustn't use rouge, Rodna. Don't let her. It—it doesn't become her; and it won't do her any good!"

Lying in the deep, warm water in her bath of palely tinted porcelain, Agnes shut her eyes and saw, not Rod on his train travelling away from her, but Job forcing his car toward her through the snow. She could see him strain and laugh and swear when he skidded, but come on, on, on to her, whatever tried to hold him. Even in her imaginings, he stirred her. Come on, Job! Oh, come on!

"Rod—dear, dreaming Rod. I'd like to love you! I would; but I don't." And he hadn't so much as let her say it.

It wasn't the fact that Job was making money, and Rod nearly none, that widened the difference between them. For Rod was right about it; money did not rule desire.

Money might be one of the factors that destroyed it. Money—or at least the epoch of their marriage in which the most money had come—was separating her mother and father.

Before a mirror on the other side of that wall between their rooms, her mother frantically was trying to make herself more attractive to Father, and to look younger. . . . But Rodna would watch the rouge. Rodna would not let Mother look ridiculous to Father when he came home—ridiculous to Father, who used to kiss her when they hugged Agnes between them in the big bed of the house where Mother had been a bride.

Oh, what was love?

At last Father came. Baskerville, the huge bear hound, had affectionately knocked his hat off, and he carried it crumpled. Cravath, the butler, had opened the door.

"D evening, Cravath. . . . Hello, Light One!"

That meant her and no one else. Always, as long as she could remember, it had been Father's greeting. Light One! Dark One! His two daughters—his two babies, once. Beatrice always had been dark, like Mama; Agnes light, like himself.

"Dark One! Light One! Dark One! Light One!" he used to accent in rhythm as he tossed and caught his children in turn before he kissed them—Dark One! Light One!—and shooed them away.

He bent and kissed Agnes now, careful to keep his snowiness from her dress. "Hello, Light One!" he repeated. "How's Dark One?" "Oh, she's fine, Father!" "How're the busters?" "Father, they're wonderful!" "Good. Where's your mother? In?" "Yes, Father; she's in."

"Good."

Cravath had taken his things and disappeared, leaving father and daughter alone before the fire. Agnes liked to have him linger with her, but the thought of her mother, waiting for him, tortured her. There had been a time when, if she had not met him at the door, he would have leaped up the stairs, two steps at a time, to find what was the matter.

Now he stood, back to the fire, without impatience. He had been away for a week in New York City; and his daughter, swept as she was with affection for him, and with pride in him, and with gladness in all her memories, could not down disturbing doubts. What had he "done" in New York during seven days—and evenings and nights?

He was full of feeling; and how good-looking he was! You could not possibly think of him as a grandfather.

He was now within two years of fifty, and he didn't appear forty. He honestly didn't.

His hair was as youthful as Agnes' own. He differed from her, however, in having a crinkle in it which made it take tousling well. (Always, in those mornings when she had run into his and Mother's room, he had been tousled. Now she had not seen him so. But had some woman in New York? The idea would not dawn. It wouldn't!)

Father and daughter shared the same blueness of eye and straightness of nose. Indeed, in the fullness of her lips and the turn of her good little chin, Agnes was a delicate refinement of him; but even allowing for women's proportions, she was smaller. He was six feet straight, distinctly more than average height; Agnes, for that comfortable countryside north of Chicago where women are tall, was rather under the average, and also, for her height, lighter than her father, though no ounce of "weight" appeared on him. He saw to that, with squash and riding.

Uncommon Sense

By JOHN BLAKE

© Bell Syndicate.—WNU Service.

"I am writing this on a hot day—a very hot day. The thermometer on my porch Don't Watch the Informants me that it is a hundred degrees Fahrenheit. I could believe that it is very much hotter than that. The people that pass my door have taken off their coats—if they are men.

The women, who refuse to be beaten even if they can't really keep cool, are wearing filmy raiment, but they don't pant the way men do.

But while I admit that I am inconvenienced, and wish I could be in Alaska and lean against an ice floe like a polar bear, I know that if I stop thinking about the weather and go to work I will soon lose myself in my job.

A little way down the street is a fire-engine house. The firemen have rigged a pipe up in front of the building and from its mouth spouts a continuous man-made geyser. All the children in the neighborhood, and they make as much noise as all the children in town, are stripped to their little buffs and are shouting joyfully as they bend down their backs and let the spray from the pipe run over them.

But in the suburban town where I live, and in the great city which is not far away, men and women are doing their regular work. If a fire should break out in another part of the town, the firemen who are now watching the children enjoy their shower baths would mount their ladder trucks and man their engines, and be off with a blare of sirens to do their appointed job.

If they decided they didn't want to get any hotter and stayed where they were perhaps the town might be consumed.

Men and women can do in a pinch what they have to do, whether the temperature is up or down.

When the need arises, especially the need to help others out of danger, their courage crops out and they all become heroes for the time being.

And I, who have nothing to do for the present but pound a typewriting machine would do well to forget the fact that it is uncomfortable, and stop breathing hard and making continuous trips to the refrigerator for ice cubes to fill my glass.

Rain or snow, cold or hot, one is easier in his mind if he forgets the discomforts that are bound to come, and to continue with his work.

And the more indispensable work he has to do, the more easily he will withstand the steaming streets and the torrid skies. As long as it is not humanly possible to change the weather, the only intelligent thing to do is to forget about it.
