Commissioners Proceedings

Regular January A. D., 1936 Meeting of the Board of County Commissioners, Monday, January, 6th 1936.

The meeting was called to order at 10 o'clock a. m. January 6th 1936 by A. S. McCamant, Sheriff. Present: T. E. Kelley,

- Chairman Melvin Franks,
- Vice-Chairman Hilario Gomez,
- Member A. S. McCamant,
- Sheriff Ernest Key, Clerk.

Upon instructions by the Chairman the Clerk read part of the previous minutes of the board.

Before the Board came Mr. R. S. Martin and Mr. C. Casner of Ramon, New Mexico in the interest of a County Road from a point on the Capitan-Encinosa Road northeasterly across the County to intersect with the Roswell-Vaughn Highway at a point near Ramon. Came also Mr. L. M. Pickering of Capitan, New Mexico and presented a Petition to the Board of County Commissioners requesting said Board to cause a Survey to be made and acquiring of Right of Way and declaration of same as a County Road, a way beginning at a point at the Capitan-Encinosa Road in Township 7 South, Range 16 east, running thence northeasterly across Townships 5, 4, 3, and 2 South Ranges 16, 17, 18 and 19 East along the most feasible route to where same would intersect with the Roswell-Vaughn Highway at a point near Ramon. Said Petition bearing the names and signatures of 114 residents of said Capitan district.

After reading said Petition the following Resolution was had:

RESOLUTION

On motion of Melvin Franks, seconded by Hilario Gomez, made and carried, it is hereby Resolved by this Board that upon securing of Right of Way Easements for the road from the Capitan-Encinosa Road at the most feasible point, and the Surveying of same without cost to the county, this Board will designate same as a County Road and request any Federal Assistance possible on same.

Before the Board came J. M. Jolly and R. Jones Presenting a Petition requesting appointment of R. L. Scroggins as Constable in and for Precinct No. 13, Corona, with 189 signatures thereon.

Having heard read the Petition and discussing same, Mr. R. L. Scroggins was appointed by said Board of County Commissioners to the place of Constable in and for Precinct No. 13, Corona, to qualify according to law by giving bond and to hold said office until his successor is elected or appointed and qualifies. Came before the Board H. M. Maes of Lincoln, Precinct No. 1 and presented his resignation as Justice of the Peace which said resignation was duly accepted by the Board.

Before the Board came Mr. T. A. Spencer with a letter from Mr. Henry J. Kranz requesting said Board to construct a dip in a very bad crossing on a canyon near Spindle on the Capitan-Spindle road. After discussion it was Resolved that request be made upon the State Highway Department to repair this crossing as same was found to be on a designated State road.

Before the Board came W. J. Balow, Justice of the Peace in and for Precinct No. 16, Ancho requesting said Board to allow payment of a claim for holding inquest over body of Josefa Baca heretofore rejected which was after explained allowed by the Board.

Mr. Clint Smith, of the Public Health Service appeared before the Board requesting their cooperation in establishing Sanitary Toilet Pits in communities of Lincoln County. The Board agreed to give every assistance possible to this project to keep down the germ spreading flies.

The Board recessed at 12 o'clock M and Convened at 1 P. M.

Mr. A. S. McCamant came before the Board and presented the resignation of Jack McCamant, High Deputy Sheriff of Lincoln County, which said Resignation being duly accepted by the Sheriff, was also accepted by the Board of County Commissioners, as of December 31st 1936.

At 3 o'clock p. m. came on the matter of the Incorporation of the Village of Capitan. Letters were produced from the Project Administration and read by the Clerk. After full discussion of the matter the following Resolution was made.

RESOLUTION

WHEREAS, it has been suggested by Mr. Perry Sears, that the Board of County Commissioners pass a Resolution stating they will grant the Application and allow Incorporation of the Village of Capitan, if and when the P. W. A. by Edward H. Oakey, State Director, allows the Loan and Grant for which the Village of Capitan has applied; and;

WHEREAS, the Board of County Commissioners feel that it is to the best interests of all of the people of Capitan, that the Incorporation thereof be held in abeyance pending the approval of the Applications and Grant for the People of Capitan,

Now, therefore on Motion of Melvin Franks, seconded by Hilario Gomez and carried, it is hereby Resolved that the Incorporation of the Village of Capitan be held in abeyance as above set forth, pending the approval of application.

The Petition of T. A. McCamant for Position of High Deputy Sheriff was passed over by the Board at this time.

The Board took up the allowance of Claims against the County and disposed of same as to payment and ordered the Clerk to issue warrants on such as were allowed.

The Board of County Commissioners recessed at 5 o'clock P. M. until Tuesday, January 7, 1936.

Second Day of Regular January A. D. 1936 Term of Commissioners Court

The Board of County Commissioners convened at 9 o'clock a. m., Tuesday, January 7th 1936 with all officers present.

The Clerk was instructed to complete the reading of the Minutes which were read, corrected and approved.

Upon application of Mr. W. E. Kimbrell the Deputy Assessor for allowance to purchase stamps for mailing out the Assessors Schedules. The Board ordered an advance allowance of $50.00 for same, upon presentation of Claim signed by the Assessor and the Clerk was ordered to write warrant for such amount.

Mr. C. F. Phillips Many attend Box Supper

Mr. C. F. Phillips passed away last Sunday afternoon, January 12, just after one o'clock following a lingering illness. Mr. Phillips had suffered from heart trouble and complications for about seven years, but had only been bedfast for two months, during which time he bore his sufferings patiently and with Christian fortitude.

Mr. Phillips was born at Morgan Station, Ky., April 10, 1869. He moved with his parents to Montague County, Texas, in 1877; in 1878 he moved to Clay County where he grew to young manhood. Later he moved to Donley County, Texas. He was united in marriage with Miss May Lafferty on June 26, 1893, at Clarendon, Texas, where they lived until 1915. They have made their home in New Mexico the past two years.

Mr. Phillips joined the Methodist church at Rowe, Texas in 1902.

Funeral services were conducted at the Methodist church last Tuesday afternoon, with the pastor, Rev. J. A. Bell in charge assisted by Rev. L. D. Jordan.

Survivors are his widow, Mrs. May Phillips, and four daughters: Mrs. J. M. Melton, Tucumcari; Mrs. W. J. Evans, Carrizozo; Mrs. W. C. Perry, San Antonio, Texas; and Miss Margaret Phillips of Carrizozo to all of whom sympathy is extended.

Card of Thanks

We wish to thank our many friends in Carrizozo and vicinity for their acts of kindness and the many deeds of love which were bestowed upon us in the illness and death of our husband and father,

AAA Is Killed by Decision of the Supreme Court

SIX Justices of the United States Supreme court, including Chief Justice Hughes, joined in an opinion that killed the Agricultural Adjustment act. Three associate justices, Stone, Brandeis and Cardozo, dissented. The majority decision, read by Associate Justice Owen J. Roberts, held that the AAA was wholly unconstitutional because it invaded the rights of the states in seeking to control farm production. The whole system of processing taxes imposed to finance the program was swept into discard.

Not only are the processing taxes illegal but the court apparently declared the farm benefit contracts void and put up bars against any attempt of the federal government to regulate farm production by whatever means.

Senators and representatives who immediately began planning legislation to continue benefit payments to farmers and to balance agricultural output did not seem to grasp the full significance of this part of the decision. The court said that regulation of farm production is not within the scope of the federal government, and of its powers to accomplish this, nor can it purchase adherence to a control scheme by federal payments.

The decision destroyed not only the original AAA but also the amended act of the last session of congress.

The dissenting opinion held that the AAA was a legitimate employment of the power to tax for the general welfare. It attacked the theory that the preservation of our institutions is the exclusive concern of the Supreme court and suggested that under the majority decision the unemployment work relief act is unconstitutional.

President Roosevelt, Secretary of Agriculture Wallace, and other administration leaders had no immediate comment on the decision to make public, but the President called Attorney General Cummings and Mr. Wallace to conference. The administration and congress must do something to raise nearly half a billion dollars which the government has contracted to pay farmers and against which it now has no income, since the processing impost is outlawed. Disposition of about $200,000,000 accumulated under court orders that impounded processing tax collections must be determined.

AAA Administrator Chester Davis stopped all payments to farmers "until further notice," and the Treasury department ordered all collectors of internal revenue to desist from further efforts to collect processing taxes.

In his budget message President Roosevelt included revenue from processing taxes, so the Supreme court decision had the effect of throwing the 1937 budget still further out of balance by something like a billion dollars.

President's Message Is a Defiance of Opponents

SURROUNDED by klieg lights, microphones and movie cameras, President Roosevelt stood before the senate and house in night joint session and delivered what was nominally his annual message to the state of the nation. Actually it was not that at all, but a statement concerning the warfare and international disturbances on the other continents, followed by what the press generally considered an eloquent and militant political speech addressed to the people of the United States, who by the millions were listening in on their radios. Far from opinion of his message is perhaps worthless. Of course his supporters praised it highly, and his opponents were equally emphatic in derogation.

Democrats and Republicans alike commended the President's opening paragraph in which he boldly condemned the aggression of Italy and Japan, though without naming those nations; and there was little dissent from his assertion that the United States must maintain its neutrality while seeking to "discourage the use by belligerent nations of any and all American products calculated to facilitate the prosecution of a war in quantities over and above our normal exports to them in time of peace."

The remainder of the message, devoted to domestic affairs, was devoted chiefly to a belligerently worded defense of the New Deal measures of the administration, an attack on those who oppose them and a spirited passage in which Mr. Roosevelt defended and dared his critics to move for the repeal of those measures instead of "holding their breath in a cowardly cloak of generality." In only two paragraphs did the President dwell on the state of the nation. It is hard to say that after nearly three years of the New Deal national income is increasing, agriculture and industry are "returning to full activity," and "we approach a balance of the national budget." That last statement was greeted with mocking laughter from the Republican side of the chamber, and though the Democrats cheered loudly, Mr. Roosevelt himself smiled at his words.

One passage in the message was interpreted by some as a threat to close the lower courts to suits attacking the constitutionality of federal laws. The President told congress that its enactments require "protection until final adjudication by the highest tribunal," and added that congress "has the right and can find the means to protect its own prerogatives."

Altogether, the spectacle in the house chamber was extraordinary and unparalleled. All the senators and representatives were there, the latter being remarkably noisy. Eight members of the cabinet attended, and in the galleries sat Mrs. Roosevelt, the wives of cabinet members, diplomats and enough other privileged persons to fill the seats completely. Vice President Garner and Speaker Byrns jointly presided over the session.

The President's message was denounced by the American Liberty League as "the most dangerous speech that ever came from a President," and by former President Herbert Hoover as a message of "war on earth and ill will among men."

Senator Joseph T. Robinson, Democratic leader, struck back at the President's critics in a statement declaring that if the President had recited the Ten Commandments he would have been accused of having ulterior motives. He repeated the challenge of the President to his critics to repeal New Deal legislation.

Secretary of Labor Perkins Praises Year's Doings

SECRETARY of Labor Frances Perkins found in the developments of the last year much of benefit for the American workman. In her annual report she cited these five great advancements for labor: 1. Unemployment compensation, accomplished through the social security act. 2. Old-age security, brought about also by the social security act. 3. Establishment of boards for settling industrial disputes locally. 4. Greater co-operation between the states and the Labor department, through regional conferences. 5. Development of the United States employment service.

Even the large number of strikes during 1935 could be viewed with some satisfaction by her, for she said they were "due in part to the natural expectation of labor to share in the early fruits of business improvement."

For the future Miss Perkins envisioned a minimum wage law, a short work week of perhaps 40 hours, compensation insurance, and strict regulation of machinery to prevent industrial accidents.

Budget Message Shows Billion Dollar Deficit

IN HIS message to congress submitting his approved budget for the 1937 fiscal year, beginning July 1 next, President Roosevelt followed the double system of accounting his administration has always employed—one set of books for regular expenditures and income and another set for emergency spending and appropriations. He asserted that receipts from all sources in the next fiscal year will aggregate an estimated $5,634,000,000. Expenditures for all regular government departments are estimated at $3,649,000,000. So the "regular" budget will be in balance, with a surplus of $5,000,000.

But the message went on to say, after explaining that the regular government books will show fiscal affairs in the black, as to income and outgo, they will show red to the extent of $1,105,000,000 in works-relief spending, less the $3,000,000 "surplus," thus leaving the new appropriation for further works-relief open for at least two months.

That figure of $1,103,000,000 represents the President's estimate of unexpended balances on July 1 from the $4,580,000,000 and previous emergency appropriations. It does not take into account probable new appropriations for similar purposes yet to be determined.

Guffey Coal Act Again Is Declared Invalid

ONCE more the Guffey coal act has been declared unconstitutional, this time by Federal Judge John E. Barnes of Chicago. He granted to a local coal company a temporary injunction to restrain federal officials from collecting a portion of the taxes imposed under the law. The injunction is to remain in force pending a ruling by the United States Supreme court on similar suits brought by the Guffey Coal Company in West Virginia, D. C. and by the Guffey Coal Company in Louisiana, Ky.

Lindberghs Are Quietly Closing in Wales

GLOBELY guarded by police, Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh, and their son, Jon, are now established at Llandan, Wales, in the home of J. Llewellyn Morgan, kinsman by marriage of Mrs. Lindbergh. They had traveled by automobile from Liverpool, where they landed, and elaborate precautions were taken to protect them en route.

It was reported in Madrid that negotiations had been started on behalf of Colonel Lindbergh for the purchase of a small estate near Gerona, bordering on Spain's famous "Costa Brava" on the Mediterranean. It has also been rumored that the Lindberghs intend to return to the United States in a few months. The colonel himself is completely reticent about his plans.

What Ickes Thinks of Critics of New Deal

HAROLD L. ICKES, in his capacity of administrator of the PWA, went to Brooklyn to take part in the ceremony of breaking ground for the $12,733,000 Williamsburg-Clearance project, and took the opportunity to speak very harshly about those who oppose the New Deal, dubbing them "the coupon clipping gentry," "the Lord Flushbottoms of the club windows," and "reactionists" who "shout that enlightened progress is unconstitutional."

"The slum is but one vicious product of that old order whose passing we hope is at hand," Mr. Ickes said. "I refer to the old order of special privilege, the creator and upholder of a social system containing vicious contrasts of opulence and squalor that have shamed the democracy of our own times. Its day in America is facing the western sun, but the harsh cracklings of its senile prophets are still heard in opposition to every progressive proposal; predicting disaster for every humanitarian attempt to ameliorate the lot of the least fortunate of our people."

"There are those who take an almost sadistic delight in dashing the hopes of our underprivileged citizens by ill-advisedly proclaiming that the public housing program of PWA is a failure. The facts prove the contrary. Somewhere a housing program had to be started. The federal government took the initiative.

"We have 47 active projects on our demonstration program, all under construction. Eleven thousand persons are already enjoying the splendid modern accommodations of limited dividend housing projects financed by PWA, and the first federal developments will be occupied early in the spring."

Great Britain Sending More Men to Africa

JUST before Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden goes to Geneva to attend the January 20 meeting of the League of Nations council, the British government will decide on its proposals for extension of the sanctions against Italy to include oil, coal, iron and steel. But the cabinet is not waiting for this to prepare for eventualities. It has suddenly decided to strengthen greatly its armed forces in Africa and has taken over several liners for the Mediterranean troop transport service. The Seythia already has sailed with troops and guns, probably for Alexandria, Egypt, and others are to follow soon.

Halle Selassie Protests Use of Poison Gas

FROM his field headquarters in Dessay Emperor Haille Selassie sent to the League of Nations a vigorous protest against the war methods of the invading Italians. The emperor charged specifically that Italian flyers, in raising explosives on the southern army of his son-in-law, Ras Desta Demtu, near Dolo, used poison gas and destroyed a Swedish Red Cross ambulance laden with sick and wounded. A special meeting of the Swedish Red Cross was held in Stockholm to take action in this matter. The Italian government in Rome asserted the aerial bombardment was fully justified by the alleged beheading of two Italian aviators by the Ethiopians after the flyers had crashed at Daggah Bur in Ogaden. The communique also said it was well known that "Ethiopian chieftains take shelter under Red Cross signs when they see Italian airplanes."

New Tax Levies That Are Now in Effect

NEW tax levies of more than $500,000,000 a year went into effect on New Year's day, these being the result of delayed tax rates passed at the last session of congress. The heaviest is from the unemployment insurance and old age pensions act, which is expected to raise about $240,000,000 in taxes on industrial payrolls. Other new taxes include: Raising of individual returns, $50,000,000. Corporation tax boost, $40,000,000. Gift tax increase, $25,000,000. Intercorporate tax levy, $20,000,000.

Twelve Lost in Crash of British Air Liner

TWELVE persons, also of their passengers, perished when the Imperial Airways liner City of Khartoum crashed in the Mediterranean off Alexandria, Egypt. The only survivor was Pilot Vernon G. Wilson, who was taken from the water in a critical condition. Among the victims was one American, James C. Luke of Philadelphia, an oil engineer.

Southwestern Briefs

Fifty fires, the largest number in Flagstaff's history, were reported for 1935 by Fire Chief John Conrad.

Arizona income tax collections for 1935 amounted to $464,772.20, according to State Tax Director Emmet M. Barry.

Governor Moore has reappointed Dr. R. A. McCall, Phoenix, a member of the Arizona state medical board, to serve five years.

Enlistment quota set for the cavalry at Ft. Bliss has been filled, according to Sergeant Glen Simpson, recruiting officer here.

Indians, as inhabitants of New Mexico, will come within the meaning of the Social Security act, according to a recent ruling by Assistant Attorney General Modrall.

The New Mexico highway commission will call for bids on several hundred thousand dollars' worth of projects late this month, according to Grover Conroy, state highway engineer.

Herman E. Hendrix, state superintendent of public instruction, has appointed Arthur G. Snyder, Phoenix, as state supervisor of vocational agriculture in Arizona. He succeeds L. W. Otto, resigned.

Ralph Metz, Bismarck, Ariz., city engineer, has succeeded A. M. Boss as president of the Bisbee Kiwanis Club. B. W. Norton, fire chief, was elected vice president and C. H. Allen, secretary-treasurer.

Public Works Administration has announced a $105,454 loan and grant to Coolidge, Arizona, for construction of new high school facilities. The allotment included an outright grant of $47,454 and loan of $58,000.

The new Flagstaff, Ariz., training school building, costing approximately $40,000, has received the approval of school authorities. The structure, of native stone, contains fourteen class rooms and a spacious auditorium.

Checking transactions by three Prescott, Arizona, banks during 1935 exceeded by more than two and one-half million dollars that for 1934 and beat 1933's total by more than seven million dollars, according to recent figures.

Plans for a $15,000 lime hydrating plant have been announced by W. A. Thigpen, Grants, New Mexico, merchant. The plant will be located in Grants in a building, which is being remodeled in preparation for the installation of the machinery.

Miss Ruth Thaxton, who has been teaching in Keenesburg, Colo., has accepted the position of teacher of mathematics at the Springer, N. M., high school, filling the vacancy of Miss D. Higbee, who resigned to take a government position at Albuquerque.

Dr. J. Rosalyn Egan, New Mexico state health director, in a recent report, said that New Mexico was first in low unit cost and third in production in the Rocky Mountain and Pacific regions in sanitation work, construction and installation of privy units.

Judge Marlin T. Phelps ruled recently that Arizona newspapers must pay a sales tax on advertisements. His decision was made in favor of the Arizona tax commission in a suit brought by Girard Brothers, northern Arizona publishers, and the Scottsdale Publishing Company.

New Mexico WPA Administrator Lea Rowland has announced that a compilation to show persons at work in the WPA payroll, administrative costs and other figures now is in progress. An administrative budget of about $56,000 monthly had to be reduced to about $40,000, he said.

Veterans' administrative approval of rehabilitating the Fort Bayard hospital near Silver City, N. M., has been announced, according to Representative John J. Dempsey. The congressman said the improvements would include paving the dirt road around the institution, a new heating plant and a recreation room.

Biological survey hunters killed 1,254 coyotes the first nine months of 1935. At the same time last year 1,270 were killed. Jerris W. Lee, secretary of the Arizona Wool Growers' Association, said the wild dog packs which formerly roved through the Salt River valley, taking huge tolls in night raids on sheep, are decreasing.

D. C. George, Arizona state entomologist, has announced that 251 men are working in the Tucson area to eliminate the wild cotton plant, host to the native cotton boll weevil. It grows in large numbers on the Catalina mountains, Santa Rita mountains and Tortilla hills. The workers have covered 35,480 acres in the Tortilla area and have destroyed 46,358 plants.

Faster and more convenient mail service out of Grants, New Mexico, to the DeVargas community is now available. Mail is now sent to DeVargas by way of El Morro, where formerly the mail was sent all the way around to Ttehadco and then back up to DeVargas from the south. The new mail route gives the DeVargas community a direct connection with the main line of the Santa Fe railroad and will mean a great increase in the speed and convenience of their mail service.

University of Arizona regents have awarded a contract to M. M. Sundt of Tucson for construction of the remaining buildings in the institution's $316,000 building program. The contract includes a new science building, auditorium, administration building, infirmary, and N. O. T. C. stables. He already has a contract for construction of the women's building. The regents were notified that $187,900 additional has been appropriated to the university building program by the public works administration. Part of the loan will be needed to cover contracts let.

POULTRY FACTS

FINDS SANITATION PARASITE CONTROL

Rigid Hygiene Urged Rather Than Medicine

By H. C. Gauger, Extension Poultry Specialist, North Carolina State College, Raleigh. Seventy per cent of the fowls examined in the state college poultry disease laboratory are infested with one or more kinds of intestinal parasites.

Such parasites are liable to impair the health and efficiency of any poultry flock unless the poultryman takes active steps to control them. The solution of the parasite problem lies more in rigid hygiene and sanitation rather than in medicinal treatment of the birds.

Unless the premises are kept clean, the birds will become re-infested at frequent intervals and any medicinal treatment would have to be repeated again and again.

Eggs from the tape worms pass out in the droppings from the birds. When the chickens eat these insects, the young tape worms which have hatched out attack the intestinal linings of the birds and lay more eggs to develop into worms.

There are times, however, when deworming medicine should be given the birds. Capsules can be given. They are more effective than powder mixed with the feed.

Internal parasites harm the fowls in many ways. They absorb food needed by the birds. They injure the intestinal linings and prevent the normal assimilation of digested food by the birds. The poisonous products of the parasites are also harmful.

Year-Round Raising of Turkeys, Michigan Plan

Turkey raising would be placed on the same production basis as chicken growing under a research program being worked out by the Michigan Agricultural Experiment station.

Late summer-hatched poulters now are in the rearing pens as part of the station's experiment to determine whether it is practicable and profitable to raise winter turkeys for spring marketing. If the project proves a success, it may pave the way for placing turkey production on a year-round production basis the same as chicken raising.

Previous experiments have shown that consumer demand for turkeys can be expanded and advanced into late summer and early fall. In the past farmers have depended almost entirely upon the Thanksgiving, Christmas and New Year's markets to absorb the turkey crop.

Good and Cheap Housing

There are several well recognized principles to be considered in the construction of poultry houses, regardless of size of flock, location or other factors, among them being adequate ventilation, dry quarters, light and airy interior, convenience of cleaning and general care and ease of disinfecting. Economy of construction is an important factor if profits are to be made, and this element should be given first consideration in all discussion of construction and maintenance. While sizes and plans will vary according to local requirements and conditions, a more or less standard unit type of construction has been found to serve under all conditions. As cleanliness and sanitation are cardinal principles in successful poultry raising, much thought and discussion should be given to the interior fittings and accessories.

Large and Small Eggs

According to the Missouri agricultural experiment station there is apparently a natural tendency for the domestic hen to lay large eggs during the regular breeding season, while smaller eggs are laid during the summer months. Dr. D. C. Warren of the Kansas State Agricultural college has shown that high temperatures cause the birds to produce smaller eggs. At the Missouri station it was shown that the first egg laid in a clutch is usually the largest egg in that particular clutch.

Milk-Fed Poultry

The term "milk-fed" as applied to dressed poultry for the market, according to a poultry authority in the Rural New Yorker, denotes special fattening for two or three weeks upon a liquid or semi-liquid ration which should contain milk but which may not if meat scrap is substituted. Poultry to be so fattened is kept in confinement during the feeding. Such specially fattened poultry is superior in quality and should bring a correspondingly better price.

When Pullets Are Failure

When the new pullets are more or less of a failure owing to poor quality breeding stock, faulty management, or disease or parasites then the best procedure may be to sell the pullets and keep the hens which have proven satisfactory from the standpoint of livability and egg production. Such hens often prove as profitable during their second year as the first, whereas inferior pullets are a gamble. Generally the best procedure would be a compromise—keep the best hens—Farm Journal.

Scientists Believe Ice Layer in Air Storm Cause

French scientists who have been conducting experiments in east Greenland, say there is a layer of ice in the air over the polar regions. This ice ceiling (congealed atmosphere a million times finer than water) is situated approximately 60 miles above the earth.

The discovery was made when electrical impulses from an electric sounding machine were reflected back. Time of the impulses in transit was recorded and computations made which gave the height of the ice layer. This ice is believed to be the cause of the storms at sea.—Pathfinder Magazine.

Don't Entrust Your Own or Your Family's Well-Being to Unknown Preparations

BEFORE you take any preparation you don't know all about, for the relief of headaches; or the pains of rheumatism, neuritis or neuralgia, ask your doctor what he thinks about it—in comparison with Genuine Bayer Aspirin.

We say this because, before the discovery of Bayer Aspirin, most so-called "pain" remedies were advised against by physicians as being bad for the stomach; or, often, for the heart. And the discovery of Bayer Aspirin largely changed medical practice.

Countless thousands of people who have taken Bayer Aspirin year in and out without ill effect, have proved that the medical findings about its safety were correct.

Remember this: Genuine Bayer Aspirin is rated among the safest methods yet discovered for the relief of headaches and all common pains... and safe for the average person to take regularly.

You can get real Bayer Aspirin at any drug store—simply by never asking for it by the name "aspirin" alone, but always saying BAYER ASPIRIN when you buy.

SYNOPSIS

At a gathering in the village of Liberty, Maine, Jim Saladine listens to the history of the neighboring Hostile Valley, and the mysterious, enticing "Huldy," wife of Will Ferrin. Interested, he drives to the Valley for a day's fishing, and to see the glamorous Huldy Ferrin. "Old Marm" Pierce and her nineteen-year-old granddaughter Jenny live in the Valley. Since childhood Jenny has deeply loved young Will Ferrin, older than she, and who regards her as still a child. Will leaves to take employment in nearby Augusta. His father's death brings Will back to the Valley, but he returns to Augusta, still unconscious of Jenny's womanhood, and love. Bart Carey, something of a ne'er-do-well, is attracted by Jenny. The girl repulses him definitely. Learning that Will is coming home, Jenny, exulting, sets his long-empty house "to rights," and has dinner ready for him. He comes—bringing his wife, Huldy. The girl's world collapses. Huldy becomes the subject of unfavorable gossip in the Valley. Entering his home unlooked for, Will finds seemingly damning evidence of his wife's unfaithfulness as a man he knows is Beth Humphreys breaks from the house. Will overtakes him and chokes him to death, although Humphreys shatters his leg with a bullet. At Marm Pierce's house, the leg is amputated. Jenny goes to break the news to Huldy. Huldy makes a mock of Jenny's sympathy, declaring she had no use for "half a man," and is leaving. Will is legally exonerated, and with a home-made artificial leg carries on, hiring a helper, Zeke Dace. Months later Huldy comes back. Will accepts her presence at her sight. Two years go by. Zeke and Bart Carey engage in a fist fight, the trouble arising, as all know, over Huldy. Saladine comes to the Valley. Bad roads cause him to stop at Ferrin's farm, where he meets Huldy. Saladine, caught in heavy rain, takes refuge at Marm Pierce's. Bart Carey arrives, carrying Huldy, whom he claims has fallen from a ledge, and seemingly is dead. Marm Pierce declares her dead, but while Huldy and Jenny are alone, the woman, with her last breath, asserts Will killed her. Horrified, Jenny decides to tell no one of the accusation. She goes to the Ferrin farm to notify Will.

CHAPTER VIII

When Jenny, thus departing, left Saladine and Marm Pierce alone, the old woman seemed for a moment almost embarrassed. She looked at Jim with her small bright eyes.

"I'll boil up a cup of tea," she decided. "It's past dinner time, and I'm hungry. How you could eat a bit your own self!" She filled the kettle at the pump in the sink and clapped it on the stove. Bread from the pantry, jam, butter from the cellar, and a bit of salt pork and some cold boiled potatoes to slice and fry in the sweet fat.

"Jenny's a fine girl," Saladine suggested presently. "It's a wonder she ain't married."

Marm Pierce looked at him with eyes suddenly shrewd. "You said Huldy Ferrin showed you the path down to the brook," she remembered. "Go back to the house when you left her, did she?"

"I don't know," he replied. "I looked up, from down below, and saw her still there."

"Jenny told me," she said, "that you claimed somebody had fished down brook ahead of you."

"I saw tracks in the trail," he asserted.

Rain began to drive against the window, against the glass panel in the door. She said: "Well, everything's ready. You can set down!"

He perceived in her the pent garb of a lovely old woman who too seldom has an audience; and while they ate, he encouraged her, skillfully, to speech. Marm Pierce, at first guardedly and then warming to her theme, told him about Jenny and Will. Once she was well started, he listened without interruption, ending in what she said the explanation of much that he had seen today.

"She didn't know the meaning of it, first off," the old woman concluded. "Didn't know what was happening to her. She wasn't but a girl then." And added: "But Jenny's grown to be a woman now."

She broke off, seemed to listen; and he asked softly: "Hear something?"

"Nothing, likely," she said after a moment. "Seemed like I heard some one in the barn. Like as not it was that no-good brother of mine."

And she talked on and on; and rose at last and began to scrape the dishes clean and pile them in a pan in the sink. She chucked the fire, noisily. Here it was warm and all secure; but outside the rain pressed down upon the Valley.

Then suddenly the old woman replaced the lid on the stove with a clatter, and crossed as quiet as a mouse, to the shed door. Jim came to her side.

"Seemed like I did hear some one," she whispered.

He touched the latch and swung the shed door wide, to reveal—nothing.

"Don't see anything!" he said doubtfully.

But Marm Pierce pointed to the floor. Here were wet, muddy traces where booted feet had stood, where soaked garments had dripped upon the boards.

"It's that Will," Marm Pierce decided suddenly. "His!—I know!—prying around!" She shut the door with a slam.

"I would think you'd be narrow, you and Jenny, living here alone," he suggested.

"The Valley gets some folks," she agreed. "Folks that don't know how to be alone without being lonely. You've got to know how to be company for yourself, to get along around here!" And she added with a wry chuckle: "Just the same, I'm full as well pleased to have you 'round."

"You mean—on account of your brother?"

"Land, no!" she said scornfully. "No, I don't pay no heed to him. He comes and goes. But I'd as soon have a man in the house right now, for all that!"

He watched her curiously, but before she could answer his unspoken question, there was a step on the porch outside the door; and they turned to see Bart appear. He leaned a steel rod beside the door before he came in. He had changed into dry clothes, coat and overalls.

"Where's Will?" Marm Pierce demanded.

"He wa'n't 'round," Bart explained. "Nor Zeke either. I figured they'd heard about Huldy and come over here." He looked around. "Where's Jenny?" he asked.

"Gone to fetch Huldy's clothes," Marm Pierce told him. "It's a wonder you didn't meet her!"

Bart shook his head, Saladine saw a broad leather belt about his waist, with a ball can attached, and to which a holster hung.

"Hullo," he said. "You pack a gun?"

"Sure," Bart assented, and produced it. Saladine took the weapon in his hands. It was an old model, the front sight gone, of heavy caliber; and when Jim, holding back the hammer, gingerly tried the trigger, he found that the pull was feather light.

"I always carry it when I go fishing," Bart explained. "You never know when you'll run into a mouse down here in the woods, or a wildcat."

Marm Pierce was in the dining room, and Bart lowered his tones. "That's the gun Seth shot Will Ferrin with," he said.

Marm Pierce returned, and Jim handed the weapon back to Bart. "Can you hit anything with it?" he asked.

"If I've got time to take aim," Bart replied.

The old woman was putting on an oilskin coat. "Bart, you see anybody fishing down brook this morning?" she inquired. "I hear there was tracks along the bank."

"Win likely went that way," Bart reminded her. "I noticed tracks my own self, when I come down along. Figured it was him."

Marm Pierce pulled an oilskin hat over her white hair. "I get strangled for air, when I stay indoors the whole day," she declared, and went out. As she closed the door, they heard something alither and fall, and saw her stoop down.

"Knocked your rod over, Bart," she called.

"Can't hurt that rod," he assured her cheerfully. She stepped down off the porch and disappeared toward the barn.

"I met Will Ferrin, and Marm Pierce, and Zeke Dace, this morning," Saladine said. "I was on my way to your place, till I run into the washout; so I backed up and left my car in Will's yard."

"I see it there a while ago," Bart assented.

"Zeke looked like a sick man, to me," Saladine suggested.

Bart grinned as though abashed. "He's falled a lot," he said. "But he was an able man, two years ago. He worked me over, proper, one day. The Valley will whittle's man down." And he added: "Some, like Marm Pierce and Jenny here, they're always the same, and Will's always the same, or would be if it wa'n't for Huldy. She's—twisted him, turned him wrong ways." His brow clouded. "I wouldn't blame him for anything he was to do. If I was Will, I'd have. . . ." He changed this. "If she was mine, I'd have known how to handle her!"

Rain, rain, rain; the lash of whips against this little house, the pelt of bullets.

"I never did see a place where it could rain as hard," Bart declared. "Wonder where Granny went," he said, half to himself.

Saladine made no reply. The wind was increasing; there was a hiss of rain drops in the chimney behind the stove.

Bart looked thoughtfully at the door into the dining room; and said huskily, with a nod toward the other room: "You see her this morning, you said. What did you think of her?"

"She was a queer one," Saladine confessed.

Bart leaned forward with a deep interest. "Saladine," he said. "How would she come to fall?"

"Got dizzy, maybe? Or tripped over something?"

"She wa'n't the sort to get dizzy," Bart protested. "And—the ledge is all smooth, and it's good footing there."

"You mean to say she jumped?"

Bart grasped almost in derision. "She look to you like one that would kill herself, did she?" he demanded.

Those deep scratches on his cheek where a branch had raked him were black against the brown of his skin.

"No," Saladine admitted. "No, she didn't."

"Then put a name on it," Bart whispered. "If she didn't fall, and didn't jump. . . ."

But Saladine was always inclined to think twice before he spoke, and there was matter enough for thought here today. He shook his head, silently.

Bart—though they were quite alone—whispered: "There ain't a soul around here would blame Will!"

But Saladine stared silently at the stove, and Bart did not repeat his sinister suggestion; and a little after, Marm Pierce came briskly in.

"Well, you've let the fire go out, between you!" she said sharply. This was almost true. She whisked off a lid of the stove and thrust a billet in, scolding them impartially. She hung up her coat and hat. "Wet to the-knees, I am. Got to go change."

She left them, departing through the dining room; and Bart's glance flicked after her through the open door, as though his eyes were drawn irresistibly that way. Then the two men sat alone a while, till Saladine heard a familiar sound, remotely, coming near. He rose and moved to the door, Bart at his shoulder.

"It's Will Ferrin," Saladine remarked. "And Jenny, in my car." And Bart said in a low, surprised tone: "So 'tist I didn't know but Will would've got out of the country by now!"

Saladine, to avoid reply, opened the door and stepped out on the porch. Then Will and Jenny, Will with an old suitcase in his hand, alighted from the car and came toward them here.

When Huldy, with that black accusation on her lips, died, Jenny was at first left desperate; till quick loyalty brought her strength again, and resolution too. Marm Pierce, seeing without understanding the girl's deep distress, as soon as they were alone asked gently:

"Jenny, you all right? I'm troubled about you."

"Seeing her die upset me," Jenny whispered. "That was all, Granny."

Marm Pierce, only half convinced, yet forebore to question further. "Well, she's dead," she said. She touched Jenny's arm reassuringly. "Child, she's dead; and Will, he'll be coming soon. Nought now to keep him away from you. . . ."

Jenny's pulse failed and the blood drained from her lips. "Don't, Granny," she protested softly. "With her laying there. Not now." And she urged: "We'd ought to dress her in dry clothes. Will, he hadn't ought to see her so."

Marm Pierce nodded. Jenny's thoughts were plunging now. There was in her a blind desperate hunger to see Will, to comfort him, to assure him of her loyalty and silence and deep understanding and forgiveness too. She wished on any count to see him, to be with him now. Yet it was some time before she devised that errand, involving Huldy's clothes.

Even when she proposed this errand, Marm Pierce at first demurred; but longing to be with Will, Jenny would not be restrained. In a sort of breathless rush, she overbore her grandmother's remonstrances, and so was away. She took by habit the path toward the woods; and her lips shaped unspoken words of tenderness and comforting. But when she came to the dark border of the wood, the girl paused, shrinking, reluctant to pinge into the shadows. This path would take her by the foot of the ledge, by the very spot where Huldy a while ago had fallen to her death; and Jenny could not endure the prospect. So she retraced her way and turned aside toward Carey's. And halfway up the hill she saw ahead of her a figure, tremendous in the dim rain; familiar, beloved, Will, coming toward her. She stood, weak and shaken by the sight of him; yet when he came near, lest he might think she stared at him, she took one step forward to meet him steadily.

Will looked down at her for a long moment in silence. He said at last, heavily:

"Jenny, where you going in this rain?"

"To find you, Will," she told him.

"I'm on my way to Bart's," he explained. "To see if maybe Huldy's there!"

Jenny felt her spine chill. "She's not there, Will," she said. "She's at our house."

He frowned in a deep bewilderment. "Your house?"

"Will," she told him gravely, "Huldy's dead!"

The man stood huge above her; wind whipped his hat brim, rain lashed his cheek and struck his face and filled his eyes. He wiped his eyes with his hand, shook the water off his hand, wiped it on the side of his coat. A storm, visibly, swept across his countenance and left a shadow there.

Yet she thought he was not surprised; and she spoke quickly, to spare him need of speech. "She fell off the ledge down back of your house," she said. "Bart found her, and fetched her over to our place, case Granny could do her any good. But she died."

He asked, after a long moment, dumbly: "Bart know how she come to fall?"

Jenny steeled her tones, made them all reassurance. "No one will ever know that, Will," she said; and she added: "We did all could be done!"

"I guess you would," he agreed. "Even for Huldy, I been out hunting her. I didn't know where she'd gone. Her and Zeke."

The girl's pulse lifted. "Zeke? Where's he?"

"He was always around where Huldy was," Will confessed, humbly. "I dunno where he's got to, now." And he asked: "Wa'n't he with her?"

She looked at him intently, bravely, searching his countenance. "No, Will," she said. "Not that anyone knows."

His shoulders bowed as though under a crushing load; and after a moment he said heavily: "Well, I'll go on over."

But Jenny checked him. "I have to get some clothes to dress her," she said gently. "You'd best come back to the house with me, show me her things."

He accepted this without speech; and he and Jenny climbed the steep grade side by side. In Will's barnyard Jenny saw a car standing, and so remembered Saladine. "That man, he's over 't' the house," she told Will. "I guess he wouldn't mind if we drove his car over. He'll want it, and that way we can keep Huldy's things dry."

"Over there is hot!" Will echoed, with haunted eyes. "Last time I see Huldy," he said, "she was taking him off down to the ledge. Said she'd show him the brook trail."

And his brow furrowed. "I want to talk to him," he said, ominously. "He left her on the ledge," Jenny urged. "He never see her, after."

They went indoors. "Now you get some dry clothes onto you," she bade him. "I'll pack the things we'll need for her. Where are they, Will?"

He looked at her in a sort of shame. "In there," he said, and pointed through the dining-room door to the bedroom beyond. "That's hers. I mostly sleep up attic." He opened a door beside the stove, and she heard him climb the narrow stairs.

Mediterranean Cork-Oak Provides Stopper Supply

Cork stoppers are cut out of the corky layer of the bark of the cork tree or cork oak of the Mediterranean. Spain and Portugal chiefly supply the world with cork.

The cork tree is not of great size, generally 20 to 30 feet high, the trunk often three feet in diameter, much branched, with ovate-oblong, evergreen leaves. The tree is usually twenty to twenty-five years old before it yields a gathering of cork, and attains an age of one hundred and fifty years. About every eight to ten years a crop is taken from the tree.

Besides being used for stoppers, cork is much used for floats of nets, life-belts, etc., and because of its impermeability to water, and being a slow conductor of heat, inner soles of shoes are made of it. The cork tree, occasionally planted in England, has been found to do well in certain parts of the United States.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

Federal Emergency Administration Of Public Works

The New Year will find a comprehensive construction program in swing in New Mexico under the impetus of the Federal Government's Public Works Administration program. Two towns, Deming and Las Cruces, will start work in January on municipal natural gas systems. The government is providing the finances for these projects by way of grants and loans secured by revenue bonds. In addition to providing unemployment relief, these gas systems are expected to be of great benefit to the communities served and the indebtedness is expected to be self-liquidating. Other self-liquidating loans secured by revenue bonds are being made for water works improvements in Hot Springs, Mountainair and Springer. At Wagon Mound the Village is acquiring the now privately-owned water system and, by aid of a loan and grant from the government, will rehabilitate the entire system.

New Mexico's educational system will gain most from the Public Works Administration program, with Albuquerque getting the lion's share for its city schools. Nearly one-half million dollars will be expended to provide needed additional facilities for Albuquerque's expanding school population. Other school projects will be under construction in Jal, Carlsbad, Capitan, Clovis, Raton, and Las Vegas. Three of New Mexico's normal schools, Silver City, Portales, and Las Vegas, will also acquire new buildings as a result of PWA's effort to stimulate activities in the building trades. Counties also are taking advantage of the government's grants to construct court houses and new edifices will be erected at Clovis, Raton, and Las Vegas.

The foregoing list of projects appears to present a formidable attack upon the problem of unemployment of skilled workmen, yet in addition, other projects are nearly ready to be placed under construction in the war against unemployment; among these being the new Supreme Court Building for the State of New Mexico in Santa Fe, and two other new buildings in Santa Fe for the Asylum for the Deaf and Dumb. An allotment is available for a home Economics Building for the A. & M. College at Las Cruces, and recent allotments have been made for school projects at Hatch, Hope, Artesia, Malaga and Duran. The town of Hagerman will undertake certain improvements to its water works system and the Government is studying plans for the installation of a waterworks system in the Village of Mosquero.

Public Works Administration projects are constructed by the owner, under contract, under the administrative supervision of the State Director, Edward H. Oakley.

Under the direction of Mr. Oakley, numerous applications have been submitted to Washington for approval and allotment, and good results have been obtained for New Mexico. Besides the allotments already obtained, major application are still pending for the $2,750,000 Jemez water project for Albuquerque, the $750,000 building program for the University of New Mexico, the Albuquerque Auditorium, hospital

Plans for Gallup and Silver City, a city hall for Santa Fe, sewer and water systems, as well as other projects which may be eligible for allotment if additional money should be made available for the Public Works Administration program.

All of the Public Works Administration projects are of a permanent nature and in addition to supplying jobs for skilled and semi-skilled workmen throughout the State, many benefits will be enjoyed for a long period of years by the present and future generations of New Mexico as a result of the public improvements undertaken under this current program. With most of the contractors of this territory swamped with work, 1936 promises to be a banner year for the building trade in New Mexico and in some circles it is felt that the State of New Mexico is now on the threshold of an increasingly era of construction activities.

Ford Building at Texas Centennial

The Ford Motor Company will enter the Texas Centennial Exposition when it opens at Dallas in June with a building and exhibit investment of $2,250,000. Announcement of the Ford Exposition program was made from Dearborn, Michigan, after a conference between Henry Ford, Edsel Ford, Nathan Adams, Chairman of the Exposition directorate, and Paul M. Massmann, director of Exposition exhibits.

Plans for a $1,200,000 Ford Building for the Exposition have been drawn by Albert Kahn, New York architect.

Work is to start on or before February 15, with completion date set for May 1.

Safety Work Praised

An earnest appeal to police and motoring authorities throughout the world to make an intensive study of the remarkable automobile safety campaign waged for the past year by Police Commissioner Lewis Valentine, of New York City, was made recently by John D. Collins, sales manager of the Tidewater Oil Company.

"A safety campaign that saves one life is worth while," said Mr. Collins, "but a campaign that saves hundreds of lives is something that should command the immediate attention of everybody." Commissioner Valentine has quietly but efficiently gone about the business of reducing automobile accidents in New York and he has done a splendid job of it. By posters, newspaper interviews, radio programs, special schooling of policemen, providing of safe play grounds, moving trucks mounting wrecked cars with gruesome wax figures of accident victims, and in other ways he has this year reduced automobile accidents in the metropolitan district 18 per cent below last year, while the average for the rest of the country, including New York State, has gone up 15 per cent."

Last year's record of automobile deaths and injuries in this country was the highest in history and constitutes a national disgrace.

The automobile industry, motoring authorities everywhere, police and public spirited bodies of various kinds are studying the problem and doing what they can. But the situation—except in New York City—is growing worse. Commissioner Valentine has worked out a recipe for safety which seems to be working. If it can work there it can work in other places. Let's apply it and reduce the appalling number of auto accidents and deaths.

Resettlement Administration Rehabilitation Division

Applications are now being taken at the local office, Lutz Building, Carrizozo, for loans to Lincoln County farmers. The nature of the loans are for monies used in purchasing necessary equipment, livestock, feed, seed, running expenses or anything necessary within reason to help farmers reestablish themselves on a self supporting basis. Inspection and supervision of the loans are continued throughout the life of the loan. Loans are usually liquidated in one year but in some instances are longer. Applications are qualified by a local county committee before any plans for loans are made up. Any farmers interested in making application should get in touch with the committeeman in their community or else write the above office, Carrizozo. They are urged to do so immediately and save delay later. Committeemen throughout the county are, F. A. English, Carrizozo; O. B. Shook, Alto; Wilbur Coe, Glencoe; L. P. Hall, Ancho, and Ben Roberts, Corona.

Spiller Car Wrecked In Head-On Collision

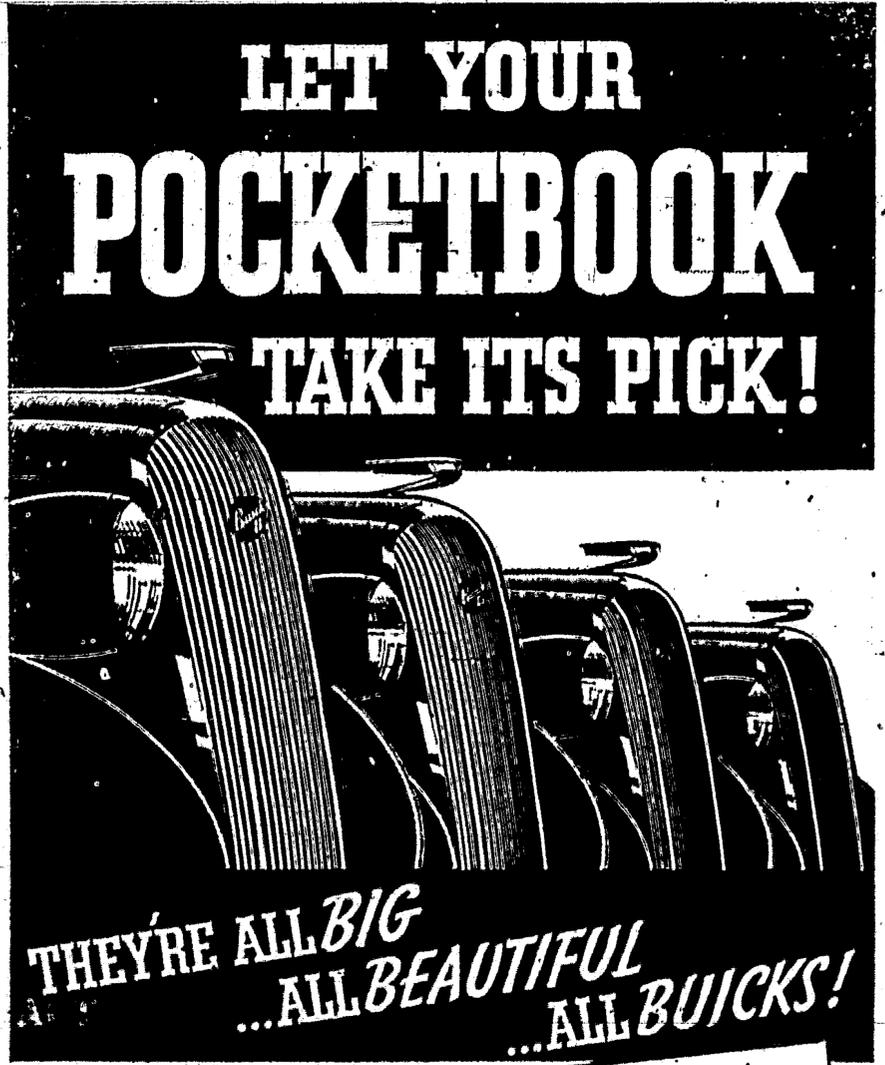

The Pontiac car of T. J. Spiller was considerably damaged in a head-on collision about eight miles west of Tucumcari on Tuesday morning of this week. The accident occurred while Mr. Spiller was driving to Tucumcari and met a car coming this way. The accident was a result of slick, icy roads that prevented the cars from getting out of the "tracks" in order to pass each other.

The other car in the accident was driven by Col. Rogers Rossow of Culver Military Academy, and was occupied by Mr. Rossow and wife. Mr. and Mrs. Spiller and a lady from Newkirk were in

THERE was a time when the price tag told the main story about a car's quality. Low price, low quality—high price, high quality.

But Buick has changed that. For example, the sleek Buick Special at $765* factory list has the same basic Buick quality as the lordly Limited at more than twice the price!

It has the same more efficient type of valve-in-head straight-eight engine. The same smooth, lash-free torque-tube drive. The same tiptoe hydraulics, solid steel "Turret Top" roof, "Knee-Action" gliding ride.

The difference is in size and capacity and finish. All Buicks are big in power and ability, beautiful inside and out, Buicks to the innermost fibre.

Bring your pocketbook here and let it choose from four cars that range in price from $765 factory list to $1945*.

*YOU CAN AFFORD THE NEW BUICK $765 to $1945 are the list prices at Flint, Mich., subject to change without notice. Standard and special accessories groups on all models at extra cost. A David of the Window Sill

By JOSEPH APPELGATE
© McClure Newspaper Syndicate
WNU Service.

LIANS, the window cleaner, had the neck of a grizzly and the features of a bruiser. His lumbering gait was that of a clumsy beast rather than an agile man as at home as a pigeon upon a narrow sill forty stories above Broadway. He was as gentle as a Great Dane and as trustful as a child.

No thought ever entered his mind connecting his pretty little wife with the frequent visits of Ole Anderson, his friend.

It was Hans who brought the revelation to Hilda that Ole was in love with her; but Hans remained unaware of it. On this night Hans returned home in a rage. A catch on his life belt had broken. For one horrible moment he had started falling. Then, the other end of the life belt did his work and held him, legs dangling. His cries, heard by office workers, brought about his rescue.

He strode out of the dining room and slammed the door behind him. Hilda shuddered. She visualized it all. The snap of the catch, the fall, the split second of indescribable horror, the heroic guard pin holding fast!

She sobbed and made a cuddling gesture toward Ole. In a second his arms were about her and presently she was smiling her thanks through her tears. And Ole, knowing much about women but little about this woman, bent and kissed her fiercely upon her upturned, cherry-ripe lips!

Hilda was too astonished to struggle, too fond of her husband's friend to rebuke him. But she was guiltily aware that these kisses were different. Then the door of the bedroom opened and Hans entered to find her in Ole's arms.

"She faints. She is sick," Ole said, bending over her as she quick-wittedly feigned unconsciousness.

Hans lifted her tenderly in his great arms and bore her into the bedroom, crooning to her with a sound that suggested the purring of a lion.

"Would you marry me if Hans—if Hans—if you were a widow?" Ole asked one night just before Hans came home.

She shuddered. "Don't speak of such things. I don't want Hans dead."

The next morning Ole was at work on the window sill from which Hans had tumbled. Soon his tiny saw had eaten into both of the guard pins on the sill where Hans was due to work within an hour! He looked at his watch. Three o'clock. He would knock off work and wait. The superintendent would excuse him if he reported he was dizzy. Then he would go to the street and wait until the time when Hans—

Ole received his excuse and wandered in nearby streets thinking how well he had done his work, how certainly the afternoon shadows would make unlikely the discovery of the weakened pins. He looked again at his watch. It was now four. Four o'clock! It must have happened. As he approached the corner he could see the open top of an ambulance above a dense crowd gathered about something on the pavement.

A man was speaking. "I was standing right here when it happened. I saw a shadow and dodged. I thought it was a newspaper falling. And he crashed here!" The man had repeated the story twenty times.

Ole turned back. The way was clear now. He would go to Hilda right away, to be there when the news reached her.

Hilda opened the door to his ring. But when he kissed her he thought that she shrank from his embrace.

Suddenly there came a knock at the door. It paralyzed him into instant action. To know what the knock meant. To know if it would be a policeman—he flung open the door. Hans stepped over the threshold!

"I heard your voices so I didn't get out the key," he said, kissing Hilda. "How are you, Ole? You quit early, hey? Well, it was a bad day. A poor fellow on the new building opposite dropped from the thirteenth story. 'An iron worker.' A pause. Suddenly he embraced Hilda again and kissed her tenderly. "It might have been me, Hilda. You know what I found, you two people? I'll tell you. I found that both of the guard pins had been filed, almost through on the window sill I was to work on just before quitting time. And if I could get the man who did that—"

He held up that hairy paw and as it worked convulsively Ole somehow remembered a hand he had seen in an advertisement in the subway train. The hand was used to illustrate the futility of criminal living!

Animal Judgment
A writer in the National Geographic Magazine expresses the opinion that the display of plumage is purely instinctive in the male bird in the presence of the female during the mating season. He cites an instance which would seem to establish this view.

Doctor Friedman, at Cornell University, some years ago was engaged in a study of cowbirds. A mounted specimen of a female cowbird was placed in a large cage in which was kept a captive male bird. The specimen was not well mounted, nevertheless, she appeared so captivating to the male bird that time and again he manifested toward the counterfeit all the ardor that he would have bestowed upon a live bird. Frequent experiments of this kind have demonstrated that the male bird during the mating season cannot differentiate between the living and the stuffed specimen.—Peterborough, Province, Canada.

Skeletons in Armor Suits Are Found on Battle Site

Skeletons fully arrayed in medieval armor have been found in excavations in the vicinity of Venice, all in a perfect state of preservation. Workers engaged on excavations for the new great canal which is under construction in the picturesque district surrounding 'S'ra, came across what undoubtedly must have been the scene of a great battle in the days of the ancient Venetian republic.

One of the many skeletons in armor was found to have a sword still between the ribs. Presumably the man fell in battle and has lain undisturbed all these centuries. Quantities of ancient weapons and armor also were found, together with beautifully modeled vases which, when the centuries's old dirt had been washed away, were found to be painted by hand with designs and figures, the colors being perfectly preserved.

Just do what hospitals do, and the doctors insist on. Use a good liquid laxative, and aid Nature to restore clocklike regularity without strain or ill effect.

A liquid can always be taken in gradually reduced doses. Reduced dosage is the real secret of relief from constipation.

Ask a doctor about this. Ask your druggist how very popular Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin has become. It gives the right kind of help, and right amount of help. Taking a little less each time, gives the bowels a chance to act of their own accord, until they are moving regularly and thoroughly without need of help at all.

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin contains senna and cascara—both natural laxatives that form no habit. The action is gentle, but sure. It will relieve any sluggishness or bilious condition due to constipation without upset.

Why Physicians Recommend Milnesia Waters

These mint-flavored, candy-like waters are pure milk of magnesia in solid form—much pleasanter to take than liquid. Each wafer is approximately equal to a full adult dose of liquid milk of magnesia.

Chewed thoroughly, then swallowed, they correct acidity in the mouth and throughout the digestive system, and insure regular, complete elimination without pain or effort.

Milnesia Waters come in bottles of 20 and 45, at 35c and 60c respectively, and in convenient tins for your handbag containing 12 at 20c. Each wafer is approximately one adult dose of milk of magnesia. All good drug stores sell and recommend them.

Start using these delicious, effective anti-acid, gently laxative waters today. Professional samples sent free to registered physicians or dentists if request is made on professional letterhead. Sole Products, Inc., 4402 23rd St., Long Island City, N. Y.

TRY THIS TRICK

MAGIC NUMBERS

THIS is a mystic prediction. The magician writes something on a slip of paper which he seals in an envelope. A person is asked to write a number of three figures—all figures different. For instance, 103.

The magician does not see the number. He merely tells the person to reverse it and subtract the smaller from the larger. Example: 103, reversed, is 301. The subtraction leaves 198.

That, too, is kept from the wizard. He says to reverse the result and add. And 198, reversed, is 891. The two, added, produce 1089. The envelope is opened. On the paper is the number 1089.

Whatever the original number used, the final total will be 1089. That is the secret of the trick. One point: always mention that a zero must be placed in front if the subtraction brings a two-figure number. Thus, 99 (which sometimes arrives) is treated as 099. Reversed, it is 900.

BEDTIME STORY FOR CHILDREN

By THORNTON W. BURGESS

THE HUNTER IS DISAPPOINTED

HOW he knew he was safe, Light-foot the liger couldn't have told you. He just knew it, that was all. He couldn't understand a word said by the man in whose yard he found himself when he climbed the bank after his long swim across the Big River, but he didn't have to understand words to know that he had found a friend. So he allowed the man to gently drive him over to an open shed where there was a pile of soft hay, and there he lay down, so tired that it seemed to him he couldn't move another step. It was only a few minutes later that the hunter who had followed Light-foot across the river reached the bank and scrambled out of his boat. Light-foot's friend was calling just at the top of the bank. Of course the hunter saw him at once.

"Hello, friend!" cried the hunter. "Did you see a deer pass this way a few minutes ago? He swam across the river, and if I know anything about it he's too tired to travel far now. I've been hunting that fellow several days, and if I have any luck at all I ought to get him this time."

"I'm afraid you won't have any luck at all," said Light-foot's friend. "You see, I don't allow any hunting on my land."

The hunter looked surprised, and then his surprise gave way to anger. "You mean," said he, "that you intend to get that deer yourself?"

Light-foot's friend shook his head. "No," said he. "I don't mean anything of the kind. I mean that that deer is not to be killed if I can prevent it, and while he is on my land, I think I can. The best thing for you to do, my friend, is to get into your boat and row back where you came from. Are those your bounds barking over there?"

"No," replied the hunter promptly. "I know the law just as well as you do, and it is against the law to hunt deer with dogs. I don't even know who owns those two hounds over there."

"That may be true," replied Light-foot's friend. "I don't doubt it is true. But you are willing to take advantage of the fact that some one else's dogs have broken the law. You know that those dogs had driven that deer into the Big River, and you promptly took advantage of the fact to try to reach that deer before he could get across. You are not hunting for the pleasure of hunting but just to kill. You don't know the meaning of justice or fairness. Now get off my land! Get back into your boat and off my land as quickly as you can! That deer is not very far from here and so tired that he cannot move. Just as long as he will stay here, he will be safe, and I hope he will stay until this miserable hunting season is ended. Now go!"

Muttering angrily, the hunter got back into his boat and pushed off. But he didn't row back across the Big River.

MOTHER'S COOK BOOK

FRUIT SOUPS

COCKTAILS are more popular as a fruit beginner for the dinner than soups, though in Europe the soups are enjoyed by prince and peasant, summer or winter; chilled with shaved ice they make a most nourishing dish. With fruit soups the nourishment depends upon the ingredients used, as with other soups. Fruits, raisins, figs, bananas, peaches and papaws have more food value in themselves, though lacking in other things. With the addition of stock, milk and egg, the food value is increased. Dried or canned fruits are used as well as the fresh fruits.

Strawberry and Orange Soup.

Sprinkle a pint of strawberries with sugar and let stand on ice for one hour. Make a sirup of one and one-half quarts of water and a pound of sugar, cook for ten minutes, add a quart of fresh berries with the juice of one lemon. Mash and strain, adding a cupful of orange juice with the berries, which have been iced. Serve cold.

Apple and Rice Soup.

Core and slice eight unpeeled apples. Cook them with one-half cupful of rice until both are soft, using two quarts of boiling water. Put through a sieve, add pieces and one-half cupful of orange juice or grapefruit marmalade. Serve hot.

A very appetizing salad may be made by stuffing well plumped and stewed prunes with cream cheese and finely minced celery. Serve on lettuce with a spoonful of french dressing, or any other kind preferred.

Prune and Peach Soup.

Take one-third of a pound of dried prunes and two-thirds of a pound of dried peaches, soak overnight in the morning add a pint of cold water and cook to the boiling point, then add two tablespoonfuls of sage; cook until the sage is clear. Add a cupful of cherry, cranberry or other tart juice and serve either hot or cold.

The Philippines Look to the Future

A recent air view of Manila, capital of the Philippine Islands. Shown in the insets are President Manuel Quezon, making his inaugural address, and a peasant girl, typical of the agricultural regions.

By WILLIAM O. UTLEY
INDPENDENCE of the Philippines was not assured when President Roosevelt signed the new Islands' constitution, prepared under the Tydings-McDuffie act, and turned it over to a committee of islanders last spring. Although the act, lustily welcomed by Filipinos as the achievement of victory in their never-ending campaign for independence, provides that all bonds between the United States and the tropical possessions in the south Pacific shall be severed once and for all on July 4, 1946, after the islands have had ten years of practice in governing themselves, the feeling is growing that before those ten years have passed the Philippines will be ready, even anxious, to amend the agreement into something which will leave them more certain safety from dangers which are becoming more apparent day by day.

Indeed, since the return of Vice President Garner and the large delegation of senators and congressmen who visited the islands to attend the inauguration of President Manuel Quezon, one question which has constantly presented itself to them is: Do the Filipinos actually want independence?
 And the answer seems to be: Yes—and no. The desire of the "common man"—the picker of coconuts, the worker of the rice fields—is, as it has been for decades—INDEPENDENCE! "Independence" is set in capitals and followed by an exclamation point because to the Filipinos of that level it is a cry, a political slogan, taught to him for many years by the politicians of Manila. It is a catchword that represents to him democracy, freedom in a vague sense that it is something a little better than the power for his now. It never occurs to him that independence is possibly the thing that will prevent his enjoying "freedom" in the centuries to come.

For grave dangers confront an independent Philippines commonwealth that could easily destroy the very liberty the common man associates with independence. They are both political and economic, both internal and external.

Fear Japanese Invasion.
 The most imminent danger, as the average American sees it, is the menace of expanding Japanese imperialism in the Far East, ready to grab what it can in its need for room for a swelling population and for raw materials to feed its growing and efficient industries. The Philippines are 10,000 miles from the capital of the United States, but only 300 miles from Asia.

Most serious of the problems to the Filipino is the economic collapse that threatens when free trade with the United States is cut off. The Tydings-McDuffie act provides that in the fifth year of the ten-year period before complete independence is granted, Philippine export products will have to bear a 5 per cent duty, which will be graduated each year until it becomes 25 per cent in the tenth year. Since 80 per cent of Philippine exports now go to the United States, the dwindling of the American market will be felt in five years. There are plenty of reliable economists who hold that the economic breakdown will come before 1945, unless the act is amended.

Not are these the only problems. Certain acts of the new government, most recently the curtailment by President Quezon of the powers of the speaker of the assembly, have been pointed to by many as indications of impending dictatorship. The recent passage of a bill which would appropriate one-third of all the money available for appropriation to the building and maintenance of an army of 19,000, with a 500,000 reserve, has been hailed in some quarters as a step toward military fascism, especially since the reserve army will require complete military training.

citizens. Further danger to the existing government is seen coming from the fields far beyond the cities, in the form of uprisings of the agrarian population, which has been reduced to a pitiable penance, and which may find itself unable to secure a living if the principal market for Philippine raw products is destroyed. Most disastrous revolutions begin not in empty heads, but empty stomachs.

First of the problems to be discussed officially in the United States will be the economic one, for President Roosevelt is expected to call a trade conference some time this year. Something may be done at that time to effect a revision of the tariff schedule which may be more favorable toward the islands.

As it is, various estimates have it that the first duty to be imposed—only 5 per cent—will wipe out from 37 to 63 per cent of the four-fifths of all Philippine exports which go to the United States.
 Take sugar, for instance. Under the Jones-Caplan act, the islands' sugar quota is 1,045,000 short tons, and it enables the industry to make a good profit. But sugar exporters are loud in their insistence that with even a 5 per cent tax they cannot compete with Cuban sugar in the American market.
Our Own Trade Suffers.
 The rule works both ways, too. The Philippines buy 80 per cent of all textiles exported by the United States. If tariff walls prevent the export of Philippine goods to America, it is hardly to be expected that the islands will protect our textile exports. All of the business will go to Japan. Japan has made terrific inroads on our textile business; in 1932 we sold 81 per cent of the textiles imported by the islands; in 1933, 74 per cent; in 1934, 43 per cent, and in late 1935 only 23 per cent. There is no doubt that the Philippine government would set up tariff barriers against textiles and other goods imported from foreign countries, if we were willing to make equivalent concessions. It must be remembered that we also sell the islands dairy products, canned fish, wheat flour and manufactured products—in fact, the Philippines are our ninth best customer. Under the Tydings-McDuffie act we stand to lose virtually all of that trade.

Many of the Philippine raw materials which now come into the United States duty free are profitable to this country, for they must be processed here and therefore keep many industries going. Philippine sugar is refined here; copra is pressed into coconut oil; cigars are taxed and distributed; hemp fiber is made into rope and twine and distributed.

Source of War Needs.
 One of the most important sources of war materials is the Philippines. Copra furnishes coconut oil to make the glycerine that goes into high explosives, and the shell makes fine charcoal that is necessary in gas masks. Hardwood and hemp are necessities in building and maintaining a navy. The islands also have plenty of good iron, chromite and manganese. It is inevitable that in a war in the Pacific, Japan would seize the islands in no time if they were independent of the United States.

There are many able students of Philippine affairs who will have you believe that Japan is already taking over the islands, anyway, although in the peaceable ways of commerce and industrial development instead of military tactics. Be that as it may, there are still only about 25,000 Japanese in the islands, at the most, out of a total population of 13,055,220; there are approximately 71,000 Chinese, 7,700 Americans and 5,400 Spaniards. Japanese make up only .00151 per cent of the total population of the Philippines; yet in Hawaii, where there is far less warlike about them, Japanese outnumber any other nationality.

Some 85 per cent of the Japanese in the archipelago live in a colony of the province of Davao on the island of Mindanao, where they dominate the growing of abaca, from which hemp is produced. There is a large minority and industry are rapidly taking advantage of the richest soil of the islands to assume the leadership of the hemp industry, which the Philippines alone possess.

The Japanese have improved roads in the hemp country, introduced mass-production methods, and installed machinery to strip the hemp fiber from the trunk of the abaca plant. They have introduced co-operative marketing direct to the shipper. Contrast this with the Filipino native who chops down a plant, carries home the trunk and strips off the fiber by hand—a back-breaking job, dries it in the sun, shares it with his landlord and gets a poor price for what is left, and it is easy to see why the Japanese colony controls 25 per cent of the total hemp production.

Japs Control Retail Trade.
 The same superior business methods have enabled the Japanese to corner a large and ever-increasing share of the retail trade in the cities of the archipelago. One estimate, probably high, puts 40 per cent of all the retail business of the islands under Japanese control, with Americans and Filipinos holding 33 per cent and the Chinese 25 per cent or less.

Inability to compete with Japanese industry is but one of the things that has made of the Filipino farmer a peon. Another is the evil of the apportionment of land. Much of the land in the islands consists of a few great units held by the Roman Catholic church, which refuses to sell it, and by a handful of wealthy Filipinos. For this reason, a large share of the farmers are tenants, share-croppers who have no opportunity to acquire their own land, and are often exploited by the land owners. Even the Filipino who does own the small strip of land he works is often a share-cropper. He obtains seed loans at the almost unbelievable interest rates of 10 to 20 per cent, compounded every month, and by the time he has repaid enough in crops to cover his debt he is lucky to have enough to provide for himself and his family.

Political campaigns have taught this peon to believe that the answer to the ills from which he suffers is independence, and his hot desires for his rights have often provoked him to actual acts against the government in Manila. An example was last May's uprising of many thousands of Sakdal peasants in the areas where landlordism exerts its tightest grip. They marched upon the capital city and formed a ring around it—and they were dispersed only after 60 of them had been killed.

Build Army for Defense.
 Undoubtedly one of the reasons for the large army the Quezon government is building is the danger of further agrarian uprisings. However, the chief reason is the need for defense of the islands against invasion. It is admitted that an army of 10,000, with 500,000 reserves, would not be sufficient to save the islands from conquest by one of the major powers, but Quezon points out that it is a big enough army to make such a conquest so expensive that it would not be worth the trouble.
 The army is going to be so expensive that it might seriously embarrass the government financially. The $8,000,000 annually required to support it (a figure which would be twice as much) is one-fourth the total national income. Since the army is to be created under the direction of Gen. Douglas MacArthur, former chief of staff of the United States army, it may be expected to function efficiently, however.

As it has been pointed out, there is much ground for the contention that the Philippines actually do not want independence because they don't know what independence means.
 When and if the Philippine people decide that they had better not give up the protecting wing of the United States for their dream of independence, the problem resolves itself into this: Do we want the islands back? That will be determined perhaps not so much by our desire to retain our ninth largest customer abroad as by our general Far Eastern policy.

Relief Is Influence in Direction of One's Life

The forces that impel action reside in a temperament. The ideals and convictions that guide it are hidden in the mind and heart. A man moves lowly or swiftly, he does his work lowly or swiftly, according to the energy that is in him. But the direction of his life, this way or that way, follows the unseen influence of what he admires and loves and believes in. Henry Van Dyke.

Inebriate Youth Should Have Been Tossed Anchor

He is what, for lack of a better name, is sometimes called a young man about town. On the morning after he is chafing for support to a lamp post.
 An individual connected with the street cleaning department walks up to a hydrant, dragging a length of hose behind him, and, fitting a wrench to the cap, proceeds to unscrew it.
 "Don't—please don't!" cries the youth anchored to the lamp post.
 "Don't do what?" asked the functionary, halting in astonishment.
 "Don't wind up this street, any tighter. She's splinpin' round too fast as it is!"—Bystander.

Man Still Is Rated As "Forest Enemy No. One"

Man still ranks as "Forest Enemy No. 1." More than half the fires in national forests this year, reports the Forest Service, were caused by man. The number of these fires was 5,777, as compared to 5,282 last year, and to an annual average of 4,001 over the 1931-34 period.

These fires were started by brush burners, by residents on land newly acquired by the forest service—many of whom still believe that an annual "burning-over" is good for the woods—and by campers, hunters, recreationalists, and tourists who have made greater use of national forest facilities this year than ever before.

Basketball Notes

(Bradley Smith)

The Carrizozo Grizzlies went to Vaughn last Friday where they enjoyed a walk-away which resulted in 37 to 11 in favor of the Grizzlies. The fame of this team is spreading. They are undefeated to date, and so far are district champions. Elliott and Greer make their goals with unerring accuracy and with the support and team work of the remainder of the team rout all opposition and leave their opponents bewildered and out-classed.

The Grizzlies also have another victory chalked up in their favor after taking the Cloudercroft five in an exciting rough and fast game played at Community hall last Saturday night. The second string played the first three quarters and those fellows really showed that they had basketball in them. Cloudercroft brought a player along who did some expert shooting and his team mates were all there when it came to the offensive. The first string went in at the beginning of the 4th quarter and then the Cloudercroft team played like demons, but the grizzlies evened up the score easily, winning with a final score of 18 to 16.

The Grizzlies are in the Pecos Valley this week-end, playing Roswell there, Carlsbad on their home court and Hope at Artesia. All these are strong, winning teams this year, with Carlsbad considered the best of the three, but that knowledge causes our players no uneasiness. Next week's paper will give results of the victories.

On Monday, January 20th. Dr. Scholl's representative from Chicago will be in Carrizozo at Prehm's. Those who are suffering from painful bunions, soft corns, weak or fallen arches, excessive perspiration or any foot ailment whatever can be relieved by use of the proper Scholl remedy. You will be lucky if you secure the services of this expert, who rarely visits the small towns.

Go to Prehm's Bargain House Monday Jan. 20th and have your feet pedo-graphed.

The official board of the Methodist church is to be congratulated upon securing so valuable a home for their pastor.
