Charles Albert Spence

The entire community was grieved last Monday morning when it became known that death had claimed Mr. Charles Spence, in an El Paso hospital at 1 o'clock that morning. Mr. Spence had been seriously ill since April, and in the hospital since April 8th, first at Santa Fe and later in El Paso. His illness dated several months back, following an automobile accident from which he never fully recovered.

At his bedside when death came were his wife, and daughter, Virginia.

Mr. Spence was partly reared in Carrizozo, and had made his home here until about nine years ago, when he moved to Santa Fe. He was sincerely esteemed and respected for his faithfulness to duty, loyalty to friends and devotion to his family.

Plan for Pan-American Hospital

This is an architect's drawing of the proposed Pan-American Post-Graduate hospital which will be constructed in New York at a cost of about $7,000,000 and which will be ready for occupancy in 1938. The New York institution will be the first of its kind in this country and will have on its staff students, physicians and surgeons from Latin-American nations.

Only Boulder Dam Is Higher Than This

Owyhee dam, main feature of the irrigation works of the new Owyhee federal reclamation project on the Oregon-Idaho border, is the second highest dam in the United States, second only to the great Boulder dam. It is 405 feet in height and creates a storage reservoir of 1,120,000 acre-feet capacity which will serve 112,000 acres of land. Boulder dam on the Colorado river is 530 feet high and has a power plant capable of developing 1,000,000 horsepower. One of the greatest engineering projects of its kind in the world, Boulder dam owes its inception to President Theodore Roosevelt in 1907.

Mine Roof Cave-Ins May Be Predicted by New Instrument

May Mean Prevention of Future Catastrophes

STATE COLLEGE, PA.—A new device to detect mine roof cave-ins and the type of disaster which occurred recently at Moose River, N. S., has been developed at the Pennsylvania State college here.

The frantic and spectacular rescue efforts which saved the lives of the two men at Moose River emphasize anew the hazard which roof collapse brings to mining operations and recalls the fact that 50 per cent of all deaths in well-kept commercial coal mines occur from this source.

Dr. H. Landsberg of the School of Mineral Industries has found that in all roof cave-ins so far studied a definite break occurs in the overhead rock strata several hours before the final cave-in takes place. The shale and dirt, he found, support the roof for some time after the supporting rock has gone beyond its breaking point.

Dejects Initial Break.

Secret of success of Doctor Landsberg's device is to detect the initial break, in time to warn the working miners. His instrument is called a convergence recorder. From its use can be made predictions much like those a weather man may make after reading the barometer.

The apparatus consists of two steel tubes which slide inside one another like the tubes on a trombone. The sliding tubes are kept apart by a spring and are placed in the mine so that one tube touches the roof and the other the floor of the shaft. A movement as small as 1/100 of an inch between roof and ceiling can be detected.

Predicts Time of Crash.

Following the initial break, Doctor Landsberg points out, the rates of convergence of the roof and floor increase rapidly until the entire mine roof collapses. By studying the rates of convergence, the exact time at which the internal rock structure was broken can be detected and the final cave-in predicted.

Further work is being done along this line by both Doctor Landsberg and the United States bureau of mines in an effort to establish a more definite relationship between the rates of convergence of the roof and floor of a mine, and the collapse of the roof structure.

Wives Talk Silently in Caucasus Village

TIFLIS, U. S. S. R.—An old-fashioned sign language, in which married women talk silently to their husbands, has been studied by Soviet scientists. It is an old Caucasian custom.

An expedition of the Tiflis Institute of Caucasian Studies found the gesture language surviving in isolated villages of Armenia, Georgia, and other sections, and has published a scientific account.

In this quick and silent language, a woman can represent a word or often a whole phrase by a single gesture. Married women use the system not only with their husbands, but in speaking with relatives and elderly male strangers.

Candidates Get Name From Old Roman Custom

AUSTIN, TEXAS.—Modern politicians inherit the name candidate from the old Romans. But most office seekers never heard of the costume that fits the title.

Office seekers were called candidati, meaning men in white, by the ancient Romans, says Dr. H. J. Leon of the University of Texas Department of Classical Languages. The nickname fitted in those days, because office seekers advertised themselves, wherever they went, by wearing wool togas made super-white by rubbing in fuller's chalk.

"This was undoubtedly a convenient and happy practice," comments Doctor Leon, "but there is no evidence that it did away with baby kissing."

Indians Have Spinach That Has No Sand!

WASHINGTON.—It turns out now that Indians in Arizona eat an Indian sort of spinach. They have been eating it for years, and liking it.

The plant grows plentiful around Wapachi National Monument in the Hopi Indian country. Hopis prepare and eat it, just like white man's spinach.

Animal Dictators Bully Associates Same as Humans Do

Study of Monkeys Shows How Leaders Dominate

IN A laboratory cage, two monkeys quarrel. One of them assumes command. That animal is boss. The other must dance to the tune he calls.

Why does the one become tyrant and the other slave? This is a problem that a psychologist has set out to solve. It is one having many implications for man in a world of dictators, political bosses, office tyrants and the myriad petty and glorified rulers of other men's lives.

Why is it that a man may be subdued and helpless in his home, but become a tyrannical slave-driver when he reaches his office desk? This is one of the universal human problems on which light is thrown by the study of monkeys now being conducted at Teachers' college, Columbia university, by Dr. A. H. Maslow.

Numbers Are Important.

The size of the group is very important in bringing out bullying behavior, Doctor Maslow has found. When three individuals are placed together, the situation is entirely different from what it is where there are but two or where there are four.

When Doctor Maslow's animals were paired, two by two, it soon became evident which were the most dominant monkeys in each conceivable combination of two. Then he introduced the third animal and the picture changed. Perhaps the newcomer was more dominant than either of the pair already in the cage and became over-lord. But would the other two be leagued against their common foe? No, indeed.

Strong Oppress Weak.

Always, among the rhesus monkeys, the strong are joined together against the weak, Doctor Maslow found. Here is a morsel of fact for the study of those interested in human conflicts. Kathryn, a playful, active monkey who apparently had within her the stuff that rulers are made of, but who, because of her small size, was always oppressed by any other single animal with whom she might be placed, turned this bit of monkey psychology to good account.

In the larger group, she who had always had to take all the abuse, suddenly turned on Whitey with extreme viciousness. The others joined her in the fight, and poor Whitey was bitten, beaten, and generally abused until he had to be removed from the cage to save his very life.

Meek Turn Dominant.

Thus Kathryn, the meek meek of the whole colony of monkeys, when pairs were considered, became the most vicious animal ever observed when an alliance made it possible. It seemed as if all her dammed-up resentment were coming out all at once when the social situation made it possible.

Termites Now Known in Every State in Union.

CHICAGO.—Termites, whose timber-ruining activities have caused a great deal of alarm in American cities, are now known to exist in every state in the Union, Prof. Alfred E. Emerson of the University of Chicago reports, in the current issue of Science. Vermont, Michigan, North Dakota, Wyoming and Montana are among northern states recently added to the termite list.

However, Professor Emerson adds—and emphasizes—this need not be cause for added alarm, or even for surprise. The winter-dwelling genus of termites are not invaders from the tropics, as has frequently been asserted. They are native to the temperate zone, and cannot even live in the tropics. Eye-all evidence strongly indicates that this particular group of termites has lived in much the same kind of climate for many millions of years.

Cases of accidental introduction of foreign termite species into houses and other man-made environments are on record, Professor Emerson states.

Level of Sea Sank Half Mile During the Ice Age

WASHINGTON.—Once early in the great Ice age, about a million years ago, the level of the sea was 3,000 feet lower than it is now and the missing water was piled high upon the continents as ice of great glaciers.

This picture was presented to the National Academy of Sciences recently by Prof. Francis P. Shepard, University of Illinois geologist, as a result of his investigations of great river-cut canyons of the sea floor, some of them 10,000 feet below the ocean's surface or about twice the depth of famous Grand canyon in Arizona.

One explanation of how they were formed is that the coasts of the world were raised up above their present position during the glacial period. Professor Shepard considers such a gigantic movement in relatively recent times as "scarcely creditable."

Instead he told the academicians that it is much more reasonable that the sea level changed due to the withdrawal of water from the ocean to form the great sheets of ice that covered the land and that rivers cut the underwater canyons now being discovered.

No Need to Suffer "Morning Sickness"

"Morning sickness"—is caused by an acid condition. To avoid it, acid must be offset by alkalis—such as magnesia.

Why Physicians Recommend Milnesia Wafers

These mint-flavored, candy-like wafers are pure milk of magnesia in solid form—the most pleasant way to take it. Each wafer is approximately equal to a full adult dose of liquid milk of magnesia. Chewed thoroughly, then swallowed, they correct acidity in the mouth and throughout the digestive system and insure quick, complete elimination of the waste matters that cause gas, headaches, bloated feelings and a dozen other discomforts.

Milnesia Wafers come in bottles of 20 and 45, at 35c and 60c, respectively, and in convenient tins for your handbag containing 12 at 20c. Each wafer is approximately one adult dose of milk of magnesia. All good drug stores sell and recommend them. Start using these delicious, effective anti-acid, gently laxative wafers today.

Professional samples sent free to registered physicians or dentists if request is made on professional letterhead. Select Products, Inc., 4402 23rd St., Long Island City, N. Y.

PHOSPHORUS AND CALCIUM NEEDED

Both Elements Frequently Found in Same Foods.

By EDITH M. BARBER

TODAY the question of phosphorus is before us. Fortunately, calcium and phosphorus are often found in the same foods. For the formation of bone and teeth one is as necessary as the other. Every cell in the body contains phosphorus, and even after growth is completed we must keep on supplying enough to replace what is used daily. Nerve tissue also demands phosphorus, and, with calcium, it has an important role to play in regulating the acid-alkaline content of the blood. Milk and milk products, eggs, whole cereals, such vegetables as lentils and dried beans, are the most important sources of this mineral, which is so necessary to the maintenance of life. A number of other vegetables and fruits, however, supply us with worthwhile amounts, but should not be depended upon entirely for this supply.

It has been found that many American families in which milk is not used liberally are not getting an adequate amount of this mineral, which is needed in an infinitesimal amount by weight. In order, however, to get an adequate supply, milk and eggs, whole cereals, vegetables and fruits are necessary.

You see that it is practically possible to check your diet for calcium and phosphorus at the same time.

Baked Mashed Carrots

3 cups mashed, cooked carrots
2 beaten eggs
1 tablespoon butter
1 tablespoon chopped parsley
Salt and pepper to taste
Mix the ingredients well together, turn into individual buttered molds and bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees Fahrenheit) for 15 to 20 minutes.

Milk Toast

6 slices bread, toasted
2 tablespoons butter
2 cups milk
1/2 teaspoon salt
Pepper
Butter toast and arrange in soup plates. Heat milk, season, and pour over buttered toast. Serve at once.

Crab Salad

2 cups shredded crabmeat (cooked or canned)
1 cup diced celery or cucumber
1/2 cup mayonnaise
Lettuce
2 tomatoes
Mix the crabmeat and celery or cucumber with the mayonnaise. Line a salad bowl with lettuce and in this put the salad. Skin the tomatoes, cut in eighths, and use as garnish. Preparation time, ten minutes.

Baked Eggs

Break eggs into buttered or greased dishes. Cover with white sauce, to each cup of which has been added one-fourth cup grated cheese, paprika, seasoning and the yolks of two eggs. Cover with grated cheese and bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees Fahrenheit) until firm, about twenty minutes.

Deviled Corn

3 tablespoons butter
2 tablespoons flour
1 cup meat stock or milk
2 cups corn
1/2 teaspoon mixed mustard
1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
1/2 teaspoon paprika
1 teaspoon salt
1/4 cup bread crumbs
Melt butter, add flour and when smooth, add stock or milk—bouillon cubes or gravy will make stock. Cook until smooth and thick, add corn, seasonings and half the crumbs. Pour into baking dish, cover with crumbs mixed with butter and bake twenty minutes in a moderate oven (375 degrees Fahrenheit).

Sweet Potato Puff

5 to 6 medium-sized sweet potatoes
2 eggs
2 tablespoons melted butter
2 tablespoons hot milk
1 teaspoon salt
Boil the sweet potatoes. When tender drain, peel and press through a ricer. Beat the yolks and whites of the eggs separately. To the sweet potato add the yolks, butter, milk and salt. Beat well. Then fold in the well-beaten whites. Pile the mixture lightly into a greased baking dish and bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees F.) for 45 minutes, or until light and fluffy and brown on the top.

Unusual Colors

A new color scheme for a bedroom is pictured in a recent issue of "House and Garden." Walls are a cool tone of silvery gray. Furniture is white lacquer. The floor is covered with a cerise carpet and the doors, woodwork and molding are painted in a blue-violet tone that has an atmospheric quality and is reminiscent of the color of the Texas "Bluebonnet."

Measuring Tip

A half tablespoonful or half teaspoonful of any dry ingredient or solid fat is always measured as follows: Fill the spoon full. If it is a dry ingredient, level it off, then measure it lengthwise of the spoon into halves, scraping off the unused half. If a solid fat is being measured, first pack it down into the spoon, then level it off and proceed as directed.

Making Wall Attractive

An attractive stone wall seen recently was painted white two-thirds of the way up. The upper third was left in its natural brick color and ivy, growing over the wall, introduced a third pleasing color.

When Painting Chimney

When painting a brick chimney to improve its appearance, an interesting effect can sometimes be obtained by painting occasional bricks in different colors.

quality. By the way this word cricket is not affiliated in its derivation with the cricket which sings on the hearth or adds its melodious chirping to autumn evenings. The cricket which is a home furnishing may be a low four-legged footstool, or it may be shaped like a miniature bench. The two names cricket and footstool would seem to be synonymous but the footstool is more comprehensive than the cricket.

A hassock is another sort of footstool deriving its name from a grass which grows in large tufts. Its original footstool form was as a grass mat or kneeling cushion, and the name hassock still remains as the right one for kneeling-benches or cushions, furnishing pews. In homes the hassock is a carpet or textile covered cushion filled with hair, excelsior, or other soft materials so closely packed that the shape of the hassock remains unimpaired by use.

New Notion

Recently a varnish product has been placed on the market which is applied to furniture by the simple expedient of wiping it on with a cloth. It dries rapidly with a very high gloss and is much more durable and permanent than any type of furniture polish. It can be used over any finish where varnish proves satisfactory.

Crickets

There is a wide difference between the choice styles of ottomans to the humble cricket, which is the most insignificant of footstools. But this does not interfere with its comfort-giving

Three Examples of Footstools; the Ottoman, the Hassock, and the Cricket.

Pat Scanlan's Triple Play

THE grandfather of James P. McGrath of Evanston, Ill., was T. D. Scanlan, one of the pioneers who laid the first transatlantic cable out of Hearts Content, Newfoundland. He was also the father of Jim's uncle, Patrick Scanlan.

Pat Scanlan, and now we're getting down to cases, was one of the most powerful swimmers and fishermen Canada or New England has seen. Often he plunged into lakes and swam them with a surveyor's chain in his mouth. And while doing this, Pat always had time to select the likeliest fishing pools.

His finest fishing is family history, handed down to Jim McGrath. It happened in upper New York state and Jim is positive it's true because Pat yelled so loudly it shook the McGrath house, down in Brooklyn.

You see, Pat was fishing in this lake he had seen while nibbling a surveying chain. It was near dusk and he was casting three hooks near the shore for fish he sometimes in shallow water when it's getting dark.

Pat cast and hooked a trout. He played the fish a short time, then gave a determined jerk to establish who was boss. As Pat jerked he snared a muskrat on the second hook. That was too much so he whooped and threw the double catch high in air, casting trout, muskrat and line back toward the water with a mighty "swoosh."

And when Pat heaved the line toward the water he caught a hummingbird on the third hook. He always claimed it was the only unassisted triple play of that particular season.

The End of the Philly-Loo

IT IS a well-known fact that the Philly-loo bird is extinct but accounts of the death of the last survivor vary. Larry Flint, a Pennsylvania newspaper man says he saw the tragedy while visiting in Wyoming.

"The Philly-loo was ferociously fond of the holes in doughnuts. His method of eating them was unique; he backed up to them, slipped his tail through them, then slicked the appendage around in front and fed himself.

"An old-timer out there, knowing of this peculiarity, sought out the last surviving Philly-loo and laid several doughnut holes down in front of the bird. In order to eat the hole, the Philly-loo had to move his tail around into the proper juxtaposition. This brought about his end."

But F. F. Fuller of the Rhamp (N. D.) Review has another version of the story. He says that he and another editor had the job of hunting down the last survivors of the race to serve at a banquet for some visiting newspaper men. Near a mountain in the Bad Lands they flushed a covey of the birds and started chasing them.

"The Philly-loos began circling the mountain," relates Mr. Fuller. "As they did so each bird grabbed the tail of the bird ahead and as they mounted upward and the circle narrowed, they swallowed to take up the slack. They kept circling, and swallowing until each bird had completely swallowed the bird ahead, and they entirely disappeared from before our eyes. All that is left are a few tracks circling the mountain that look just like those made by an automobile driven by a one-armed driver. I've never seen a Philly-loo bird since that time."

Winner by a Nose

LOTS of fellows who work in a metropolis were born in the great open spaces, and invariably they retain their hankering for the hinterlands.

Lewis W. Hunt, city editor of the Chicago Daily News, is no exception. And sometimes when the boys are having a chinning match he is unable to conceal his liking for the bad lands of Montana from whence he came.

So when a party from Kansas asserted that in his country it became so dry it was necessary to run water from the well through a wringer, and to throw gravel on the barn to delude the cows into thinking rain was falling, so they'd come out, Luke asserted himself.

"It's cold we relish in Montana," declared Hunt. "One winter in my home town the mercury sank so low that boiling hot coffee froze in a solid stream en route from pot to cup. "And that was the year," he concluded, "that the man in our town with the longest nose froze his proboscis; a friend recommended the only possible relief would be to rub snow on it. The long-nosed man rubbed snow on the part of his nose he could reach and threw snowballs at the rest. In nine days he was entirely recovered."

Insane Monarchs Europe had more insane monarchs in power during the last half of the Eighteenth century than in any other similar period in its history. During this time nine of them mounted the thrones of seven countries. An interesting one was Abdul Hamid I, who reigned over Turkey from 1774 to 1789, writes Alan B. Cox, New York city, in Collier's Weekly. Before he was made sultan, Abdul had been locked in a cage for 43 years.

You want to indulge in new styles and fancies, of course; but first and foremost as the backbone of any sensibly planned wardrobe comes this utilitarian coverall.

Note especially the sleeve treatment—the wide eyelets and bow knots. Unusual aren't they? And you'll approve the smart adjustable belt which can be tied or buttoned as shown. The front panel buttons at the shoulder and contributes a most appealing feature. ### DAYLIGHT SAVING PLAN OUTLINED BY OLD BEN FRANKLIN Blame Benjamin Franklin if your alarm-clock raps its gloomy ravello before dawn this summer. For he it was who originated the daylight saving time idea, which robs the citizens of many states of their last hour of beauty sleep.

On March 20, 1784, Franklin awakened at 6 a. m. in Paris, blinked at the bright sun, decided it was silly for people to sleep "until noon," burn candles at night.

So he wrote a letter to a Paris newspaper, humorously chiding Parisians for their sloth, and outlining a daylight saving plan.

"Every morning," he wrote, "as soon as the sun rises, let all the bells in every church be set tinging.

"If that is not sufficient, let cannon be fired in every street to wake the sluggish effectually."—Literary Digest.

Absolutely Alone

It would do the world good if every man in it would compel himself occasionally to be absolutely alone. Most of the world's progress has come out of such loneliness.—Bruce Barton.

Household Questions

When serving a steak smothered in onions, squeeze the juice of a lemon over it before serving and you will find the flavor greatly improved.

If the bottoms of legs of furniture are waxed they will not scratch polished floors when moved around on them.

If liquid in which olives are bottled is thrown away when bottle is opened, olives may be kept indefinitely if olive oil is poured over them after they are put back into bottle.

A paste made of scouring powder moistened with ammonia will remove unsightly stains on brass trays. Apply paste, remove when dry, then polish tray.

To remove a fresh grease spot on a rug, cover the spot with blotting paper, then press with a hot iron. Cover the spot with magnesia, let it remain for 24 hours, then brush off.

If you rinse a plate with cold water before breaking eggs on it, add to them a pinch of salt and then stand where there is a current of air, you will have no difficulty in beating them to a froth.

Salt should never be added to stews, soups and boiled meats until after they are cooked. If put in at first it toughens the fiber of the meat and takes out the juices.

Keep a small pair of scissors in the drawer with your knives. Scissors will trim the edges of pie crust much more quickly and more neatly than a knife. Also they are very convenient for preparing bread sandwiches.

Never serve food in a dish that is too large for amount of food served. It detracts from the appearance of your table.

Mrs. C. O. Hayes and children visited Mrs. Bernie Glover Wednesday afternoon.

Mr. Webb Weathersbee and Mr. Dellie Dragoo were dinner guests in the J. P. Patrick home Wednesday.

Mr. Turner from Wichita Falls, Texas has returned to his home near Bingham.

Mrs. P. H. Wrye and son, Paul Harvey transacted business in Socorro Thursday.

Mr. Harold Dean and Mr. Jno. Cooper made a business trip to Carrizozo Thursday.

Our meeting came to a close Sunday night in which four new members were added to our Congregation.

The Bingham Wildcats met the 8C boys of Carrizozo here on the Bingham field Sunday afternoon. As the 8C camp has a very good team this was a good game. The score was 16 to 12 in Bingham's favor.

Immediately after the game with Carrizozo the Bingham Wildcats met the Rayo team. The score with Rayo was 23 to 19 in Rayo's favor. Had our men had a rest between games we think we would have had another game to our favor.

Rayo has a good team, all good sports, and we hope to have another game with them soon.

The Bingham Wildcats will play the Carrizozo team here on the evening of June 7. We expect this to be a good game as this team has beat us once this year. We don't think they can do it the second time.

We wish to extend a welcome to all the people to come to the dance given here every Saturday night and then the ball games on Sunday afternoon.

Municipal Bankruptcy Act Held Invalid

FIVE justices of the United States Supreme court held invalid the municipal bankruptcy act of 1934, declaring it to be an unwarranted invasion of state sovereignty. Four justices dissented, these being Chief Justice Hughes and Justices Stone, Brandeis and Cardozo. The majority opinion was written by Justice James C. McReynolds. The case was brought by bondholders of a water improvement district in Texas.

The municipal bankruptcy act was designed to permit cities and other political subdivisions which found themselves in financial straits to effect a composition, with the approval of two-thirds of the bondholders or other creditors, whereby the indebtedness could be readjusted, scaled down, or, as Mr. Justice McReynolds put it, "repudiated."

Frank Lowden May Be Republican Nominee

FRANK O. LOWDEN of Illinois will be the choice of the Republican convention for President if he will accept the nomination.

That was the confident prediction of a political observer who is usually well informed and close to sources of national party news. He declared there was a steadily growing demand from many parts of the Union for the nomination of the former governor of Illinois, who always has been popular with farmers and whose qualities of statesmanship are recognized generally throughout the country. Mr. Lowden is vigorous and hale, and he is always actively interested in the welfare of his state and nation, especially in the problems of the agriculturist.

Frank O. Lowden

Landon Has Large Block of Delegates

GOV. ALF LONDON captured nearly all the New Jersey delegates to the national convention, defeating Senator Borah about 4 to 1 in the popular vote. This victory gave the Kansan a total of more than 200 votes to start with at Cleveland, and his manager, John Hamilton, claimed he would have at least 500 of the 601 votes necessary to nominate and would win on the second or third ballot.

James A. Farley, postmaster general and also Democratic national chairman, told the Michigan Democratic convention he believed the Republican Presidential nominee will be "the governor of a typical prairie state" and that his election, if he won, would be a "perilous experiment." Farley criticized the man he did not name as devoid of experience in national affairs, and predicted that if he is the Republican standard bearer "even Kansas" will not be in the Roosevelt doubtful column.

Plan to Continue Rail Co-ordinator's Office

THE office of transportation co-ordinator, held by Joseph B. Eastman, is due to expire on June 10, but Senator Wheeler of Montana had ready for introduction a resolution extending it for two years, and President Roosevelt was on record as approving some of its activities.

It was reported to Washington that rail-way management and labor, both of which have opposed some of Eastman's doings in the past, might unite in an effort to block extension of the office, but Eastman said he had heard "nothing substantial" on that line.

Eastman announced last February he would exercise his powers to compel railroads in 11 cities to carry out formal publications as economy and efficiency moves. He withheld the orders at the suggestion of President Roosevelt, however, to permit rail management and labor to agree on some plan of protection for employees thrown out of work in such consolidations.

Bonus Baby Bonds Will Be Mailed June 15

ON JUNE 15 the bonus baby bonds will be mailed to 45,000 post offices from Washington and from the eleven federal reserve centers. Final plans for delivering the bonds to the veterans were announced by Postmaster General Farley, who predicted that payment on a great majority of them would be made within one week.

Mail carriers have been given instructions to "go out of their way" wherever necessary with a view to effecting delivery, Farley said. The head packets must be delivered to the veterans in person, and not to another person at the veteran's address. "If it is impossible to locate the veteran to whom the bonds are addressed," Farley continued, "they will be held for 30 days at the post office of destination before being returned to the respective federal reserve centers and thence to the Treasury department."

The bonds will be in $50 denominations with accompanying checks to cover the odd amounts. To collect cash, the veteran must have his bonds certified through his local post office.

Post offices in 241 cities have been designated as paying centers for their districts, and 69 large city offices have been empowered to pay on bonds issued outside their own districts.

Congress Hopes It Can Adjourn June 6

DEMOCRATIC and Republican leaders in congress sought unitedly to get through the necessary business so that the law makers might adjourn on June 6. The house had finished its work and was waiting for the senate to act on the relief and tax measures. The committees had so revised those bills that it was thought opposition would be greatly lessened.

Senator Harrison's finance committee contrived a tax bill estimated to produce $320,000,000 in new permanent revenue, which is $40,000,000 more than the President asked for. Tentatively the committee agreed to levy a processing tax of one-half cent per pound on sugar, which would yield $50,000,000, and to retain a provision of the house bill designed to induce liquidation of corporations and bring in $33,000,000 in additional income taxes. There was a prospect of adding still another $40,000,000 to the permanent revenue by removing the existing $40,000 estate tax exemption on estates of $100,000 or more.

This would make a total of $360,000,000 in new permanent revenue, $40,000,000 more than that of the house bill, but the senate bill also included $100,000,000 in temporary revenue from the so-called "windfall" provision to confiscate unpaid and refunded processing taxes, and retained the $163,000,000 now produced by the excess profits and capital stock taxes.

Leon Blum Is the Idol of the French Reds

LEON BLUM, elderly and rather fragile leader of the French Socialists, will soon be premier of his country, and he is going to have a hard time living up to the expectations of all the leftists, who are making a national hero of him. The other day hundreds of thousands of French reds and pinks marched behind Blum or stood cheering on the sidewalks, and pictures of the leader were carried in the ranks or sold by hawkers in the crowds. This was on the occasion of the traditional memorial ceremony in Pere Lachaise cemetery for the Marxist martyrs of the Paris Commune in 1871.

Blum is said to be watching closely his publicity in the United States since his speech in which he intimated a desire to agree with Washington on the elimination of war debt discussions. He is hoping to be able to obtain loans from New York bankers. The Johnson law is naturally an insurmountable obstacle to France's obtaining any kind of credit in America, but as the Paris Midi pointed out Blum went out of his way to declare that France has not forgotten the war debt and fully expects to bring it up for discussion some time in the future.

Socialists Gain Control of Belgian Parliament

SOCIALISTS of Belgium, like those of France, won a considerable victory in the parliamentary elections, holding a larger number of seats than any other group. Emile Vandervelde, their seventy-year-old leader, was thus in position to succeed Paul Van Zeeland as premier.

The new party of Redists, whose political emblem is a cardboard broom, symbolizing determination to "sweep bankers and politico-financiers out of office," recorded sensational successes, winning 31 seats, mainly at the expense of conservative Catholics.

Official standings, subject possibly to slight revision, gave: Socialists, 70; Catholics, 68; Liberals, 23; Redists, 21; Flemish Nationalists, 16; Communists, 9.

Norman Thomas Nominated by the Socialists

FOR the third time Norman Thomas is the Presidential nominee of the Socialist party. He was selected at the national convention in Cleveland, Ohio, and George Nelson of Wisconsin was put in second place on the ticket. There was a great demonstration after the vote was taken, but it was not joined in by the right wing leaders from several eastern states who were angered by the seating of a leftist delegation from New York. The dissatisfied ones threatened to form another party. The convention duly turned down a proposal from Earl Browder, general secretary of the Communist party, for a "united front" in the 1936 campaign.

Italy Celebrates Entry Into World War

ITALIANS celebrated the annual entry of their country's entrance into the World War with imposing ceremonies that included the promotion of more than half a million boys and girls in the organizations of young Fascists. Premier Mussolini presided over the "graduation," and after reviewing a great military parade, the Duce told the shouting crowds:

"The spectacle of the force of youth exhibited this morning on the anniversary of our intervention in the World War, the first phase of the Fascist revolution, has been magnificent and a warning at the same time. We are preparing the young armies of tomorrow for defense of the empire. Since they are animated by the Fascist spirit they will be invincible. This is the law of the revolution. This is the supreme will of the whole Italian people."

While his conqueror was thus engaged, Haile Selassie, deposed emperor of Ethiopia, was embarking at Haifa, Palestine, for England, on the British destroyer Capetown.

Dr. Townsend Disgusted With Inquiry

FOR two days Dr. Francis B. Townsend replied mildly to the questions of the house committee investigating the activities of the organization behind the old age pension movement which he had started.

Then the Californian lost his patience suddenly, refused to answer any more "non-sensical" queries, spoke of "thickheaded congressmen," denounced the committee for its "unfriendly attitude" and asserted the administration was a "hostile force" behind the inquiry. He declared he would form a third party after the November elections.

Finally Doctor Townsend told the committee: "I am retiring from this sort of inquisition and I do not propose to come back except under arrest. And I do refuse absolutely to make any further statement regarding this movement to this committee."

Escorted by Gerald K. Smith, former adherent of Huey Long, and another man, the Californian fled from Washington to Baltimore. The committee decided to ask the house to censure him for contempt.

Russia Will Maintain Big Far Eastern Fleet

CONVERSATIONS between Great Britain and Russia now going on in London will have to do only with naval armaments in European waters, for the Soviet government has announced that it cannot consider limitation of its far eastern fleet while there is no similar agreement binding Japan.

Speaking for the government, Karl Radek said in the newspaper Izvestia that the Soviet union has been striving to conclude a separate agreement with Japan, but thus far the efforts have been fruitless.

Japan Has New Leader in North China

JAPANESE penetration in North China is now being managed by a Buddhist scholar, Major General Matsuro, who replaces Gen. Kenji Doihara. The new man will co-operate with the commander of the North China garrison in placing the thousands of reinforcements that have been arriving at Tientsin.

According to the Chicago, one of Matsuro's duties will be to prepare the way for a return to Peiping of Henry Pu-Yi, now Emperor Kang Teh of Manchukuo, to reoccupy China's dragon throne. They assert the Japanese plan to establish his rulership over all of North China and Manchukuo.

Austria Now Has Three National Leaders

BENITO MUSSOLINI advised Prince von Starbemburg of Austria not to start any domestic trouble because he was ousted from the cabinet by Chancellor Schuschnigg, and when the prince returned to Vienna the cabinet fixed things up neatly by decreeing that the country should have three chieftains. Schuschnigg, the unofficial dictator, becomes national leader of the fatherland front; Eduard Bear von Barenfeld, the new vice chancellor, is national commander of the front militia; and Starbemburg continues as sports leader and head of the Northern-Block Protective association.

Gov. Lehman Won't Run for Re-Election

HERBERT H. LEHMAN announced suddenly in Albany that he would not be a candidate for a third term as governor of New York, saying: "I feel the time has come when I may ask release from the cares and responsibilities of the governorship." But leaders of the Democratic party, including President Roosevelt, National Chairman James A. Farley and Senators Wagner and Copeland undertook to persuade Mr. Lehman to run for a third term.

Gov. Lehman said he had agreed that his retirement would be a loss to the state and the party and that he would be "drafted."

The immediate political result of the governor's surprise action was that New York again became a doubtful state for the Presidential campaign, in the minds of many politicians.

BECOMING BEACH-BROKEN

IT IS truly said that here in dear old Columbia, the Jim of the Ocean, Opportunity knocks once at every man's Door and everything turns out great after that, unless the Poor Rummy-happens to be in the back part of the House at the time.

Certain it is that if you will grab and strip almost any Great Executive seated at a Mahogany Desk, you find on his person the lingering evidence of Stone-Brutes, Callouses, Knifecuts, Dog Bites, Chiggers and immediate contact with a Strap having a Buckle at one end. In other words the Important Personages who sit in elevated Splendor and rule the World by Phono evolved from ornery kids living in small towns. Most of them started out with a Village Curse or two and what was supposed to be a Handicap turned out to be the principal Boost.

The various Forms assumed by a little country Tadpole before it becomes the majestic City Bull Frog have excited the interest of Many who write for a Living, but Howells and Tarkington never told the Half of it. Every self-made Rufus puts on a Drama as he moves in Spectacular Fashion from the Spring Wagon to the Rolls-Royce and it is only fair to add that usually the Comedy Interest predominates.

All of this Blah leads up to a Consideration of the Case of Ben Flicker, who started from Nowhere and can now distinguish between real Russian Caviar and the kind that is blasted away from Sturgeon found in Chesapeake Bay.

HE FINDS HIMSELF THINKING

If you could have taken a Peek at little Benny, trotting along the Board Sidewalks of Bascom Center during the Puff-Sleeve Period, and ahead up his Sandy Locks, the honest Freckles and the Ostrich Neck, you would have said: "Here is a Lad who will go on and on, working for Two Dollars a Day, until at last he will have Money enough to permit him to Join the Odd Fellows."

That would have been a reasonable Horoscope and that is how it started to work out. Benny completed his Education when he could spell most of the Long Words in the Back Part of the Sixth Reader, and went to work in the only Factory which had dared to open up in Bascom Center. He bought a pair of Overalls and proceeded to get them as soiled as possible and for several Years was just one of the Hands. He was merely an Ant in a Hill or a Bee in a Hive or a Minnow in a Creek, whichever way you care to look at it. The only difference between him and the other Slaves on the Pay-Roll was that after working Hours he sometimes read Books instead of going to the Billiard Hall and several times caught himself in the Act of Thinking.

Along about the time that Ice Cream began to be used in Soda Water, he scrubbed himself all over one Morning and got a Close Shave and went out and got Married. The Young Lady who took the Long Chance was called Tessie, that being her Real Name, and her Parents would have been all right if Ma had known how to keep House and Pa had not been a Hack-ly.

Benny bought a House from the Building and Loan Association.

You know about the other Ben flying the Kite and Newton being hit by the Apple and Watt getting interested in a Tea Kettle. Well, one day it happened that Benny was tinkering with some of the Machinery and the Bean happened to be working and it occurred to him that if the large Dingee coming up under a Cog Action could be thrown into a lateral Gearway by substituting an Automatic Approach for the hand-controlled Lever, the Capacity would be doubled and the Labor of Cat Man would be saved. ## THE DISGUSTINGLY RICH

Benny made some Sketches and sent them in and got a Patent and built a small Model and began Production at the rear of a Blacksmith shop. In order to insure future Success he took Pains to make his Start even more humble and inconspicuous than that of Henry Ford.

Of course the Requel is just as hard to guess as the Plot of a Movie. It turned out that 8,000 Factories in various parts of the World wanted to use the invention and in order to do so they had to pay Benny so much per Day per Machine, which as a scheme for getting collateral has an Edge on all of the other standard Grafts, such as Bootlegging, Beauty Doctoring or getting real Money for Pop-Corn.

All the People in the Universe began throwing Coins Money at Benny and Tessie and every time they took in another $10,000 the quaint old Birthplace began to smell worse to them. They had no much of the Needful that they were disgustingly Rich and the Going was so easy that Benny had practically no Business Hours, so they suddenly realized, to their Horror, that they belonged to that disreputable Section of Society known as the Idle Rich. So they began using a lot of Perfumery and subscribed for Magazines telling about the Dileas of the night-blooming Spenders.

They knew that they would have to follow Precedents and get in with the Gang. They had two Youngsters and Tessie had the natural inclinations of a Mother and shuddered at the idea of turning them over to Hired Help, but what could she do? Likewise, Benny was a kind of an old-fashioned Hube Husband and he was saddened by the thought that he would have to avoid being too friendly with the Wife or else it would cause Talk. They saw a Hard Life ahead of them. But they could not resist the inevitable Urge to move up to Headquarters and pull the Loud Noise. So the two Prairie Chickens got ready to be a couple of Golden Pheasants.

ACTING LIKE THE BEST PEOPLE

Next we discover Elizabeth (nee Tessie) trying to Coze herself into the Belle that she enjoyed blowing Smoke through the Nose and letting the World know what Nature had done for her below the Knees. She no longer attempted to keep Tab on Benjamin. They occupied separate Apartments, with a Long Walk in between.

Benjamin Flicker, soon to be known in the Public Prints as B. Sturtevant Flicker, had joined a Bridge Club where he was Meal Ticket for a lot of Boys who wore Tortoise-Shell Glasses and Spats and had seen Better Days. One Reason for his punk Playing was that he had to smoke Cigars which made him dizzy. He had been brought up on Lottie Lees and he had no Chance with a Super Coronas. But he was a game Bird and took his Punishment.

In the meantime the Offspring were staked out at a select Private School which was laboriously training them to be ashamed of their uncouth parentage.

Those of you who study the Rotogravure Section and have seen the Snap-Shot of Mr. and Mrs. B. Sturtevant Flicker and their Impeccable Guests on the Beach. Somewhere in Florida, will be interested to know that they now have 100 Pairs of White Shoes, 15 Warrore Trunks, a Gold Cocktail Shaker and Neurasthenia. The smart little Luncheon staged by Tessie are highly spoken of by all those who are partial to Free Food and any Caddy on the East Coast will tell you that Benny can play any Club in his Bag except the Woods and the Irons. DR. JAMES W. BARTON Talks About

Lunch for Office Workers

A YOUNG man whom I had examined regularly during his student days at the university met me in a restaurant one day and I noticed that he was extremely overweight. He said he couldn't explain his overweight. I told him that he had likely stopped all exercise and simply ate all he desired. "Well," he replied, "I eat no lunch whatever."

I asked him what he was doing in the restaurant at the noon hour, and he hunched his shoulders and said that he just ate a couple of chocolate eclairs and drank a couple of glasses of milk each day at lunch time; really no lunch.

Just think what two chocolate eclairs and two glasses of milk amount to in heat units or calories as they are called.

The milk would be about 150 calories, per glass, or 300 in all. A chocolate eclair should have a couple of tablespoonfuls of whipped cream and each tablespoonful equals 100 calories. Thus with the chocolate on the outside, the dough or cake part, and the whipped cream inside there would be about 500 calories in the two eclairs. That is 500 calories which was not even a lunch for this overweight man. The total number of calories needed by this man was about 2,400 a day.

Now what should the average office worker—man or woman—eat for lunch of the food available at the various restaurants or cafeterias?

It is taken for granted that these office workers have to use their brains during the afternoon, and too much food would make them sleepy for an hour or more after lunch; a "big" meal should therefore not be eaten.

Weakness at 4 P. M.

However, as office workers they have likely taken a light breakfast and are hungry by the time the usual lunch hour—12:30 to 1:30—arrives. If they don't eat a fair lunch, then at four o'clock in the afternoon they feel weak. Some take a cup of tea, a banana, an orange, or a chocolate bar to carry them along till the evening meal, but the majority get along without any food between lunch and the evening meal.

This means that many are weak and tired when they eat the evening meal and digestion is poor or slow. Others eat such a big meal, that they are "sunk" for the evening and sit around and go to bed.

Now if a fair-sized breakfast is eaten a light lunch is quite in order, but if only a roll or slice of bread and tea or coffee is eaten, a good lunch is necessary to maintain strength, prevent the "all gone" feeling about 4 p. m., and have the proper appetite for, and active digestion of, the evening meal.

It would be wise therefore if a sandwich containing meat or egg were eaten at noon, as this protein form of food is readily digested, burns itself and other foods up rapidly to give heat and energy, and is nature's greatest builder or repairer of worn tissues.

If, in addition to the meat or egg sandwich, raw fruit were eaten one day and raw vegetable together with milk, water, tea or coffee, the next day, it should be the ideal lunch for the average office worker who is neither too fat nor too thin.

Diet for Underweight

What about lunch for the underweight office worker?

In addition to the meat or egg sandwich, the underweight office worker should have a vegetable salad daily with mayonnaise dressing, a slice of bread and butter, and a glass of milk, cocoa, tea or coffee. In fact these underweights might do well to take a glass of milk or a banana or piece of candy at 4 p. m. also.

As the overweight office worker always has a good appetite, a "filling" lunch, poor in calories or heat-units, should be taken. In addition to the meat or egg sandwich (the meat or egg might be taken in another form of course) there should be some "clear" soup and a large helping of green vegetables such as lettuce, cabbage, asparagus, radishes, celery, using vinegar instead of an oil or rich dressing. A little fruit might finish the repast. The large helping of green vegetables gives a "satisfied" feeling and is of course very low in heat units.

For the average office worker, the cafeteria or restaurant lunch should be built around a meat or egg sandwich with fruit one day and vegetables the next; for the thin and fat ones the above additions or suggestions might well be followed.

Removing Thyroid Gland

When the thyroid gland in the neck manufactures so much juice that it makes the heart beat too rapidly all the time, surgeons now remove this gland entirely so as to slow down the heart rate and save the patient's life.

While not considered as dangerous an operation as it was a few years ago, it nevertheless has the dangers which attend any operation, injury to important vessels in the throat, infection, bleeding, and suffocation. Dr. G. H. Pratt, New York, reports 18 cases of heart disease in which this operation was performed to save the patient from death.

CHAPTER VIII—Continued

I wondered how Helena was faring. I had handed her over to Rachel, herself again; but we had arranged no meeting and she had not so much as spoken, except to bid me good night and advise me to bar my door.

I began to see the secret of Pharaoh's success. Once it was known that to call his bluff was fatal, the man could win game after game with the calm of ease. This knowledge had become his bulwark—"Crags Pharaoh and die." His defense was attack—always. So long as life was worth living, it was not worth crossing Pharaoh; no matter how high the reward. Some one was knocking—tapping, but not on the door.

As I started up, the sound ceased. It had come from the direction of the bathroom. "Perhaps," I waited. The tapping began again.

For a moment I stood still, listening. And then I will prove the panning-close to the bathroom door. The sound came from behind the woodwork.

In vain I sought for some handle, while little bursts of tapping demanded an answer that I was not ready to give.

Suddenly I thought of the bathroom. This, like the bedroom, was paneled, and there, sure enough, a key was declaring a cupboard sunk in the wall. The moment I opened this, I knew that some one beneath it was knocking upon its floor.

I saw the bolts of a trap which was sunk in the floor of the cupboard six feet from the door.

In an instant I had it open, there was a curling staircase of polished oak and Helena, wrapped in a dressing gown, sitting on one of the stairs. Beside her was standing Sabre, fairly smugly excited and ready to leap. The sight of him made me wonder where he had been—I had not set eyes on the dog for more than two hours.

"Thank God," says Helena. "I thought you must be asleep. And now take Sabre, my dear, and tell him to watch your door. And then come down."

The watch was soon set, for Sabre was very wise, and thirty seconds later I entered my lady's room.

She pointed to a table, standing close to the hearth, laid for one only, but bearing enough for three.

"Open the wine, my darling. I'll cut the chicken up."

"We mustn't eat much," I whispered. "If we do, they'll know I've been here."

"Let them know," said Helena, quickly. "What do I care? What does it matter, John? What does anything matter now?"

I shook my head.

"This matters, Nell. Compared with this, the forester's cottage and all was a Sunday School show. Don't think I'm proud. I'm not. I'm only too glad of a good excuse to be here. You see, I'm a man, and I love you—from throat to foot. But no one must ever know it. If we stood on the steps of a scaffold, I'd say the same."

I saw her fingers tighten about the stem of her glass.

"You're right," she said. "I'm getting my values wrong. Never mind. Sabre can cover your tracks. I'll leave a plate on the floor and they'll think I gave him a meal."

Absurdly enough, this arrangement comforted me. The fragments of property that remained were scarcely worth taking up, all the same.

So we broke our fast together and stared her glass.

For five minutes we smoked in silence, regarding the leaping flames. I threw down my cigarette and got to my feet.

"Interlude," I said quietly. "And now, if you please, my darling, I want you to go to bed. We've got a hard day coming and we've left a hard day behind. It's no good our talking to night. I shall be on the smparts at nine, but I hope that you won't appear till eleven o'clock."

She did not seem to hear me, but after a moment or two she rose to her feet.

"John," she said, "do you love me?" I caught her hand and put it up to my lips.

"You know that I love you," I said, "far more than life."

"I wonder," she said, "that's terribly easy to say."

"Why, Nell, what's the matter?" I whispered.

She shook her beautiful head.

"Nothing's the matter. I only wondered. . . . You see, I love you—blindly. There's nothing else in my world. Reputation, Xorick, Valentine—compared with you they're so many little words. And I naturally can't help wondering whether you love me as much. It doesn't matter, you know. I neither ask nor expect it. But sometimes I wonder, my darling, whether you do."

"Give me your hands," I said, "your beautiful hands." She dropped her cigarette and gave me her other hand. "And now your eyes." She lifted her gaze to mine. "I can't define the word 'love,' but when you look troubled, Nell, it tears my heart. Pharaoh's getting at you through me—we both know that. Well, I can't spare the day I met you, but I wish to God that he'd got me at Annabel, Nell—that day when he had fogged his arm, and he hit the interior window."

Her arms were about my neck, and her breath on my lips.

"No, no. Take it back. Don't say such terrible things. Oh, John, my precious, my darling." For a moment she clung to me desperately. Then she snatched a note from her pocket and thrust it into my hand. "You say you love me. Then take this note to your cousin and save me from something that frightens me more than death. You can go by the footbridge and tunnel—that key I gave to Florin was Valentine's master key. But you must go before it's light. If you've been coming back it won't matter—because you'll be coming back."

"But, Nell, how can I? I'm on parole, my darling. We've passed our word."

"How could I help it? I was fainting. For more than a minute my head had been going round. And who have I passed it to? To a fiend—a butcher, that's trying to smash my life. And how am I breaking my word? Listen. This note's to warn your cousin that Valentine must not return. We never told Barley to keep him, so when he comes to they'll naturally let him go."

"It's taking action, Nell. You swore you wouldn't do that."

"If you love me, you'll do it, John. Call it breaking my word, if you please, and think the less of me for it—but do as I say, I haven't mentioned Pharaoh."

I Saw Her Fingers Tighten About the Stem of Her Glass.

rach. I haven't breathed a word of the plight we're in. But if it comes out that I laid hands on my brother—well, I'll just be ruined for life. Open the note and read it. Here—give it to me."

She seized it and tore it open. "Listen to this:

"Keep Valentine with you. Use any violence you like. He must not return to the castle, and no one on earth must know that he is with you. Don't fail me."

"But why write to Geoffrey, Nell? I could tell Barley to tell him, and—"

"No, no. You don't understand. It's too serious for that. I don't think you know what I've done in abducting the Count. You must give this note to your cousin—into his hands."

"But, Nell, that's out of the question. Geoffrey won't be back till seven o'clock."

"What does that matter, John? We're free till noon." She stuffed the sheet into its envelop and thrust this again upon me. "Take it, I beg and pray you, and give it into his hand. You talk of my reputation, in this affair far more than my name is at stake. If they knew what I'd done, my own servants would use me as a leper; they all took the oath that I took, and it's never been broken, John, since Xorick was built. I had to do it, John—you know that I had; but if anyone ever finds out, there's an end of me."

"Pharaoh knows, my darling."

"What can he prove? Nothing. But if Valentine and he get together, I haven't a chance. And Pharaoh would be on to Mona within the hour."

"All right," I said, "I'll take it. But—"

"Thank God, my darling." She threw herself into my arms. "Now I do know that you love me. Don't think I don't know what I'm asking."

She brushed my cheek with her lips and threw back her head. "Ask what you like of me after—I'll give it with all my heart. We'll live or die together—just as you say. But we're going to live—I know it."

"God help me," said I. "I'll do it. But why I must wait for Geoffrey—why I must stand and watch while he reads your note—"

"To bring me back his promise. Under all I know that he's read it, I shan't know a moment's peace. Oh, John, my dear, I've got so much to carry."

"Very well, my beauty. I'll go at once."

I hastened back to my bedroom and dressed as fast as I could. Gingerly feeling my wound, I remembered Helena's promise to send a horse for me to the mouth of the entrance drive. She had, of course, no idea that Dewdrop had stabbed me so deep. Perhaps if I stood in my stirrups—

Before I left the chamber, I drew the bolts of the door. Then I took Sabre and made for the polished stair.

Twenty minutes later I fought my way out of the bushes that were masking the tunnel's mouth.

Something at least I was spared, for Geoffrey drove up in the inn five minutes before his time.

"Well, I'm amused," he said. "And where the deuce have you been?" "I'll tell you later," said I, and put the note into his hand. "And now come out of that car. I've got to get back."

"Get back where?" said Geoffrey. "I'll tell you later," said I. "You read that note."

My cousin stared. Then he drew out the sheet of paper and read the message: it bore. When he had done, he looked me full in the eye.

"You shouldn't have opened it, should you?"

It was my turn to stare.

"As a matter of fact, I didn't. She sealed it before I came down—in. Then she broke it open and read it to me herself."

Geoffrey fingered his chin.

"Well, you can't go like this," he said, getting out of the car. "I mean—"

"Geoffrey," I said, "believe me, I must get back. I'll get into touch again as soon as ever I can, but, however strange you find it, I can't wait now."

"Only one moment," said Geoffrey, taking my arm.

Despite my protests he haled me up the steps and into the inn.

In the hall I planted my foot.

"Look here, Geoffrey," I said. "I don't want to have a row, but I've got to get back to her without one instant's delay. I wouldn't have dreamed of coming, but she couldn't send a servant and—well, there was no other way. I'd have left the note with Barley, but she wouldn't have that. She's got to know that you've got it and have promised to do as she says."

"Oh, well, here goes," said Geoffrey, and hit me under the jaw as hard as he could.

CHAPTER IX

The Fragrant Valley

When I came to my senses, I was lying on the floor of a car that was travelling fast. My wrists and my ankles were bound and my mouth was gagged. Barley was seated above me, watching my face.

As I tried to sit up, he pushed me back on the pillows which made my bed.

"Lie quiet a bit, sir," he said, "and you'll soon be as right as rain."

To this day I do not know why I did not go out of my mind.

They say that I fought like a madman, but that was because I was mad. Barley had to throw himself on me, to keep me down. And then at last I fainted.

I do not think Barley knew it, for my senses had hardly left me before they returned; but I think that discretion came with them, for then I saw that to struggle and fight was hopeless. And so, to feign resignation, I lay quite still where I was and shut my eyes.

And that was my undoing, for after a moment or two I fell asleep.

Though the car sped on, I knew nothing, and I never knew when it stopped. I was lifted out, still sleeping, and though my bonds were loosened, I never stirred.

And while I slept, Lady Helena Xorick was playing her part.

The song of a brook woke me, and I propped myself on an elbow to gather my wits.

The next instant I was afoot and was staring wildly about me. . . . The wooded peak of a mountain looked placidly back—and a pride of beeches was smiling and a chapter of gray-green rocks was casting its stately shadow upon the most vivid of swards.

It was half-past four. I had slept for more than nine hours.

The dial of my watch grew misty. I felt the tears beginning to leave my eyes. One of them fell upon the dial. So I stood for a moment.

Then I flung myself down and buried my face in the grass.

"Come, come, old fellow," said Geoffrey, "you mustn't take it so ill."

I made no answer. I dared not trust my voice.

"You'd have done the same," said my cousin. "John, I couldn't ignore such a hint."

I sat up and dabbed the tears from my face.

"Hint? What hint?" Geoffrey raised his eyebrows.

"I don't know what she read you," he said. "But I don't think she read you that."

As he spoke, he gave me a paper—Helena's note.

Mr. Bohun: Keep John with you. Use any violence you like. He must not return to the castle, and no one on earth must know that he is with you. Don't fail me.

Helena Xorick.

"No," I said, "you're quite right. She didn't read that." I laughed shortly.

"You'd have seen through it, of course; mine out of ten people would. But you must remember that I'm no ordinary fool. Besides, I trusted her blindly—trusted and loved her blindly. So you see it was awfully easy to have me on." I laughed again. "It's rather like fooling a dog or a baby child. A dog, I think. Your dog. You've decided to have him destroyed—so you take him out for a walk and stop at the vet's. He doesn't know. He doesn't care where you go, so long as he can go with you—be with his god. He loves you blindly, you see. He's not the faintest idea that you're going to do him in. You can speak to the vet. In his presence—I want this dog destroyed! You're perfectly safe. He'll lick your hand while you're speaking, if only you'll give him the chance."

But—if that—dog's—eyes—were opened. . . . If when you were gone and he was standing, waiting, with his eager nose to the threshold, straining his ears for some signal of your return—if then by some magic that dog was made aware of the truth. . . .

Pleat, Tailor and Tuck Smart Silks

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

EVERY day in every way women who recognize the importance of selecting materials for the fashioning of their costumes that can be "put to the test and not found wanting," are turning to handsome dependable silks that are really and truly pure silks for the solution of their fabric problems.

The fact that a lavish amount of pleating, tucking, shirring and meticulous tailoring is involved in the styling of this season's smartest apparel is proving an added incentive to insist on silk of the better sort that may be relied upon to yield successfully to these varied and sometimes intricate manipulations.

Three outstandingly important fashion trends are presented in the illustration, each of which demonstrates the chic and charm of silk weaves in the current mode. For the perfectly stunning jacket suit the designer handles black and white printed silk crepe as tailor-perfect as if it were wool. The broad-bound edges of the jacket interpret a highly significant styling detail. As to the white organdy frill, it is a "last word" in accessory chic. Watch for these frilly-frilly effects; they are coming along at a fast and furious pace.

The other standing figure reveals Miss 1930 wearing a navy blue silk sheer with a pleated tunic, for silk must know that the pleated tunic is a top-notch fashion for spring and summer. Men's wear buttons go marching down the front of the tunic pictured. Short puffed sleeves follow the latest dictate of the mode. Note that these are designed to give shoulder emphasis.

as all the newest fashions would have it. A tiny boutonniere and a yellow chambray belt stress the new vogue.

As to this matter of tunics, from all indications they are about to stampede the fashion picture. If in doubt, choose a tunic frock is timely advice, for it is to be tunics by day and tunics by night according to reports from style centers. Some tunics are straight and narrow, while other tunics flare about the knees like a bell or a lampshade. Many evening frocks adopt pleated skirts with tunic tops.

Another big fashion feature is the blouse that is all-over pleated like the one shown in the picture. This blouse is of bright green pleated silk chiffon. It is worn with a black silk taffeta suit. Note the pleated frill about the throat. This is a favorite new neckline silhouette. And again please to observe that the sleeves are short and puffed in latest manner. The smartest flower turbans are topsy-turvy in front. The one topping lady's prettily coiffed head is made of purple silk violets. Purple, green and black is the color scheme of this costume which goes to show how striking the new color alliances are this season.

The new and fashionable bolero costumes bring blouses into the very foreground of the fashion scene. With black bolero two-piece dresses or suits the outstanding color idea is to wear as bright a blouse as the new silk prints can afford or if not a print then let your blouse be of a high-color pleated silk sheer. Anyway, go the limit in matter of daring color for your blouse.

NEW COTTON LOOKS LIKE SILK OR WOOL

Cotton that looks like silk, cotton that looks like wool, cotton as sheer as the gauziest chiffons, cotton velvets, cotton tweeds and cotton laces—all these will march to the fabric parade.

Cord laces will be the tops in spring and summer swank, shown in tailored sports clothes for resort wear now and all-round use later.

Pecanut weaves also are slated for high success in natural neutral tones, both in cotton and linen, with bright accessories.

Embroidery, which has been creeping back into the style picture, achieves rampant recognition in the new cotton fabrics. Embroidered surfaces are all over the place, both in soft, home-spun type of cotton fabrics for sports wear, and in the organdies and mousselines for evening.

Dark Blue Is Gaining in Popularity for Summer

The increasing popularity of very dark blue (called midnight blue by certain houses and raven blue by others) is hailed with enthusiasm by those who find black too somber. Another characteristic is the growing influence of purplish tones which are affecting the new reds and the new blues, although not yet prevalent in decided purple or violet.

Gray, while not prominent as a plain color, has a strong influence over blues, giving them a glaucous shade. This influence is seen also in greens, which have the appearance of resecta green and verdigris. A new shade which is strongly sponsored for summer is burnt straw or toast.

Make Gloves and Shoes

Match, Is Paris Decree
Gloves and shoes are supposed to match one another these days. One Paris bootmaker shows pumps which are cut completely in half, one side being of suede and the other of kid skin. These shoes can be obtained in almost any shade and are matched by gloves which are fastened with backs of suede and palms of kid skin.

PRINT COATS

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

A plain coat topped a print frock is not new but a print coat topped a plain frock is latest news from fashion town. The model pictured typifies the new mode. In this instance the redingote is of black and white print lined with black linen dress. The short sleeves proclaim a popular vogue for the summer. Bright silk print coats with monotonous silk dresses, also jackets of gay floral silks that contrast plain skirts will be made a big feature during the coming months.

Book Buttons
Book buttons lend a "highbrow" air to several new mid-season frocks. They are tiny, closed volumes of black enamel whose leaves are edged with gold.

Ju-Jitsu is not, as most people imagine, Japanese wrestling. It is merely their art of self-defense. Japanese wrestling is sumotari, a form of athletics in which every ounce of weight counts. It is the national sport, and very popular indeed; Sumo stars receive fees in excess of those commanded by successful baseball players. They are immensely powerful, but also very fat, and look like huge balls of blubber.

Recent Bride Honored With Delightful Party

Mrs. W. L. Crawford and Mrs. R. A. Crawford entertained at the home of the latter with a delightful party on Wednesday in honor of Mrs. James Dale, a recent bride.

Pink and white roses beautifully adorned the entertaining suite.

On arriving each guest was presented with an index card on which to write a recipe which were afterward presented to the bride.

During the afternoon the following program was rendered:

Piano solo—Miss Ruth Crawford; Reading, Mrs. Lee Worthington; Vocal solo, Mrs. W. L. Crawford; Reading, Miss Laura Katherine Crawford.

In the center of the library table was a map of Texas. A silver ship with a ribbon attached marked Greenville. The guests accompanied the honoree on a voyage from Greenville to her new home which ended in the dining room.

The large dining table had for a center piece a beautifully lighted ship anchored at Ancho, New Mexico. Pink tapers in crystal candle sticks and crystal bowls of pink and white flowers further enhanced the table. Many lovely gifts on and around the table spoke of the love and esteem in which Mrs. Dale is held.

Refreshment plates of ice cream moulded in the form of brides and angel food squares were served. A large number of Mrs. Dale's friends enjoyed the hospitality of the afternoon.

Mrs. Dale will be remembered as Miss Mary Crawford, who with her husband, is visiting relatives here for a few days. —Greenville Texas Times.

Woman's Club Entertains

On Tuesday, June 2, at the Community Hall, the Carrizozo Woman's Club closed its sixteenth year of successful organization with a buffet supper honoring the members, husbands and friends.

Mrs. Boughner assisted by the following hostesses, Mesdames Lemon, Richard, Smoot, Branum, Snyder, Watson, Clouse, Burns, Beck, Hall and Misses Shaver, Spencer and Boughner, planned a most unique entertainment in the form of a birthday party. Each month of the year was appropriately represented in noval table decorations and entertainment.

Mrs. Blaney, the Club's first president, very graciously presided as toastmistress introducing each month with its horoscope. January responded with Jingle Bells; February had a clever Club game; March an Irish joke; April a surprise musical selection; May a duet, "You're As Welcome As the Flowers in May"; June a farical wedding; July the Hula Hula dance; August the Parade of the Wooden Soldiers; September "In School Days"; Oct. fortunes; Nov. reading "Watermelon Time"; Dec.
