Register Yourself

Registration Boards have the task of transferring voters' names to the proper districts and they will use their best efforts to do so, but it is up to the voter to see that his name is on the proper registration book. Only two Saturdays are left in which to Register.

Men must register with the title "Mr." and their wives must register exactly the same as their husbands, substituting the prefix "Mrs." Unmarried women must use the prefix "Miss". Widows must use their husband's given names or initials followed by the explanation ("widow") in parenthesis. Divorced women who have had their maiden names restored may use them, but those who still use their husband's names must write the word ("Divorced") in parenthesis after the name.

The only sure way is to go next Saturday and Register yourself.

Republicans Unworkable Farm Program

Several of the 14 reactionary Republicans remaining in the United States Senate have journeyed West to consult Gov. Alf M. Landon. Yet none impressed the corps of newspaper correspondents at Estes Park, high up in Colorado, as being more anxious for inspirational enlightenment than Senator Robert D. Carey of Wyoming, who comes up for reelection this year. He did not at all conceal his determination to "draw out" the nominee on the coggy evasive farm plank adopted at Cleveland.

The senator emerged after nearly five hours with an "interpretation" of the candidate's views, which he expressed in the candidate's presence.

Senator Carey said the nominee is "against benefit payments to farmers as a permanent part of the nation's farm policy," as that would constitute regimentation." And he admitted there "had been no discussion of a substitute policy."

One wonders what could have taken up so much of their time, unless there were reminders from the senator that the double-barreled denunciation of the reciprocal trade agreement act, in both the farm and tariff planks of the platform, has embarrassed Mr. Harper Sibley, president of the United States Chamber of Commerce, and Mr. William W. Aldrich, chairman of the board of the Chase National Bank, both of whom have repeatedly endorsed this basic policy of the Roosevelt Administration. But one does not need to wonder as to the extent of the terrific task that confronts the nominee in making somewhat clearer to the electorate his conception of his party's agricultural program.

For the Republican platform declared for both benefit payments and bounties. It distinctly provides "the payment of reasonable benefits upon the domestically

New Manager at U & I Cafe

Mr. Lell St. John has taken over the management of the U & I Cafe formerly operated by Mr. Romero, and invites his friends to call and see him when in need of short orders, plate lunches and in fact anything to eat.

Mr. St. John is an experienced cook, having been employed at the Carrizozo Eating House as head chef, and having served in this capacity for many years.

consumed portion of such crops in order to make the tariff effective" and promises very definitely "to furnish government assistance in disposing of surpluses in foreign trade."

In his interpretive telegram to the Cleveland convention in which he insisted upon a return to the gold standard, Gov. Landon did not mention the long and wearisome farm plank. That gave rise to the assumption that he was willing to abide by its many vague and conflicting provisions. But meanwhile a few days before the Carey visit he had gone into conference with his principal agricultural adviser, the Curtis Publishing Company's associate editor, Earl W. Taylor. And Editor Taylor wrote in The Country Gentleman as recently as last April against "political manipulation of agriculture" and "all attempts at governmental subvention."

The truth is that in order to please those industrialists who seemingly have not yet learned what automatically happened to their ancient tariff theory when the United States became a creditor nation, the Old Guard platform drafters at Cleveland inserted the bait for still higher and restrictive duties on all competitive commodities, including those of the farm. To that they coupled a vigorous demand for collection of the war debts with a plaintive appeal to those very same debtor nations to buy our farm surpluses.

This obviously unworkable farm "program" the Republican Presidential nominee was sworn to execute, if elected, as a matter of "private honor and public faith." If the assertion of the Wyoming solon made in Gov. Landon's presence to about 50 newspaper correspondents has any meaning whatever, the governor has made a start. Senator Carey added that the Presidential candidate "seemed to be impressed with the possibilities of producing enough beet sugar in the West to meet the domestic demand." But would not that presuppose, in fact constitute evidence, that Gov. Landon would favor giving the sugar growers still more tariff protection than they now enjoy? And where would that get agriculture—and industry—in the proclaimed purpose to extend our foreign markets? And incidentally, does any one assume that Congress would be complaisant in meeting any of these terms?

WHAT FOODS TO BAR FROM DIET

Consider Those Affected by Certain Articles.

By EDITH M. BARBER

AT THE present moment, general rules for good nutrition are well established for the normal person. Every once in a while, however, you find a personal idiosyncrasy for one or more foods which demands that they be excluded temporarily or permanently from the diet.

There are a number of persons who are what is known as sensitive to certain foods and when they take them, even in small amounts, allergic conditions may be developed. The symptoms are hives, and nasal disturbances which are not unlike hay fever which is also caused by sensitiveness, in this case, to pollen.

A number of children are born with a sensitivity to such foods as eggs, whole grains and wheat and sometimes to beans and peas. There is an occasional reaction to milk. These conditions can be overcome in general by giving minute quantities at first and gradually increasing the amounts. It is quite common to find that strawberries and shellfish cause reactions. Sometimes this fact will be undiscovered until it shows after a nervous strain or disease. Often skin tests will show what food has suddenly become responsible for hives or a chronic cold. Usually the sensitivity clears up after other conditions are improved.

If there is a chronic condition which has been found impossible to correct, foods which are responsible must be replaced by others which will provide the same type of nourishment. If one member of the family is allergic, the meals for the family should be planned as far as possible with this consideration in mind.

The Household

By LYDIA LE BARON WALKER

BLANKETS, both heavy and light weight, are needed in mountain resorts, the former especially in northern camps, and in some shore places, where occupants come early in the season and remain late. Woolen blankets are warmest, although now cotton ones are given a wool-like texture. However, the wool is warmest because this is the inherent nature of the material. For blankets of less warmth, cotton ones are especially well-adapted to summer needs. A homemaker who sees that a summer place is suitably and inexpensively furnished, saves the old blankets from the winter home for the summer place. The weight of partially worn ones is good for this use.

A homemaker who enjoys knitting or crocheting can make beautiful warm and light-weight covers with crochet hook or knitting needles. These blankets or throws, as they are also called, are rapidly worked with very large needles and heavy wool yarn (the weight of German-town worsted), three-ply. Plain knitting stitch is used or double or treble crochet stitch, according to the craft.

Knitting Directions.

For a knit blanket 1 1/2 yards square, cast 135 stitches on long, large wooden needles. Knit 100. Bind off. Line with China silk or any light weight material preferred. Bind lining and knitted edges together with straight 2 1/2-inch wide strips of the lining material, or with satin ribbon 2 inches wide. The latter is recommended for durability, which spells saving. A good grade of silk muslin can be used for lining instead of the China silk. Self-tone blankets are daintiest, a pale pink, blue, or any color to suit the room may be used. Owing to the loose mesh, knit and crochet blankets require lining.

In working the crochet blanket, 4 stitches to the inch is recommended. Stitchery should be very loose. If triple crochet is used, and tension is loose the same number of rows as in the knit blanket should be approximately the same in crochet. However by making more or less rows the length can be whatever the worker wishes, but not less than 1 1/2 yards. Crocheted blankets are bound and lined as are the knit ones. Either type of throws are delightfully light and sufficiently warm.

The knit or crocheted blanket is light weight and warm and may be used on bed for a throw. (A) Note binding about blanket.

Keeping Up With Science

Stone Age Secrets Are Revealed by Musty Flint Dagger

Neolithic Men Kept Cows, Sheep and Horses

BERLIN. — Scientists poring over weapons in modern "crime laboratories" are able to extract many secrets that the layman, and certainly not the criminal himself, would ever imagine possible. But a group of German museum workers have "mined" a single weapon for information never before obtained about the way of people in northwestern Europe ten or fifteen thousand years ago.

The weapon is a flint dagger about eight inches long, dating from the earlier part of the New Stone age. It was found during the digging of a ditch through a moor in northern Germany. There is nothing remarkable about the weapon itself.

Scientists Turn Sleuths. Exceedingly remarkable, however, is the fact that this dagger was still in its leather sheath, with a long leather carrying strap still wrapped around it, just as the owner left or perhaps lost it, those many centuries ago. Also, part of the wooden handle was still in place, and between the wood and the stone a layer of cloth which had been inserted to improve the grip of the wood on the dagger.

A group of scientists immediately went to work, each identifying some special part of the find. The leather of the sheath was sheepskin; an outer sheath decorated with shallow cuts in a carved spruce-needle pattern, and an inner lining of softer sheepskin. The carrying strap was of cowhide.

Study of Cloth. The cloth fragment proved to be highly interesting. The warp was almost wholly decayed, through the action of the acid water. A tiny fragment, unidentifiable by ordinary methods, proved to be linen when subjected to a new type of ultra-violet analysis. The wool was a mixture of sheep wool, goat wool, horsehair and cow-hair.

Adding all these fragments together, it was possible to conclude that the people of this region, very early in the New Stone age, were herdsmen keeping sheep, goats, horses and cattle.

Children's Fear of Darkness Is Removed by Novel Training

NEW YORK. — The horrible fear that many little children suffer from when they must enter an unfamiliar dark room can, in many cases, be overcome by a method of training worked out by Dr. Francis B. Holmes of the Child Development Institute, Teachers college, Columbia university, here.

The scheme worked out by Doctor Holmes was one which enlisted the active co-operation of the child in doing something himself about the terrifying situation.

Learns by Play. In the case of the dark room fear, this is what was done to remove it in a group of nursery school children.

While the child was playing a game with the experimenter, the ball was rolled into the dark room and the child was sent in after it. When he refused to go into the dark room alone, the adult would go with him. At the same time the adult would encourage the child and tell him how to feel his way and how to search for the phosphorescent, glowing pendant which had been attached to the end of the long light cord.

Helium Suggested as Preventative of "Bends"

WASHINGTON. — Helium, now used to lift men into the air, may find a new use in treating those who go underground or under the sea and who, working under compressed air, contract caisson disease, it appears from recent investigations on helium's solubility in the blood, reported by Drs. J. A. Hawkins and C. W. Shilling of the experimental diving unit at the United States navy yard here.

The "bends," an excruciatingly painful malady which affects workers who are exposed to air at high pressure, is caused by the blood's taking up a great deal of nitrogen from the air.

Britain Will Help Citizens to Combat Poison Gas Attacks

Every English Home May Be Gas-Proof Dugout

GAS-ATTACK by air, the Fifth Horseman of the Apocalypse of modern war, is at last disturbing Great Britain, whose people hitherto have displayed characteristic native phlegm in the face of feverish preparations in continental cities for civilian protection during possible air raids. Every Englishman's house, traditionally his castle, may now have to become his gas-proof dugout.

Detailed suggestions for rendering rooms in ordinary dwellings gas-proof have been drawn up by a trained professional, C. E. Bower, who is styled Air Raid Precautions Officer to the Commissary of No. 1 District, St. John Ambulance Brigade.

To get his directions widest possible publicity, with graphic pictures of important details which might be overlooked if given only in print, they have been published in the Illustrated London News. An official booklet is announced for publication shortly, by the home office.

How to Fight Gas. The ordinary English urban or suburban villa presents a rather difficult problem. Its one floor, at ground level, lies within the expected "zone of saturation," if a gas raid comes. It has no basement, and there are numerous openings through which gas might enter—notably the open fireplaces which are features of almost every room in an ordinary English house.

Yet the problem can be solved, Mr. Bower declares. Select one or more rooms, enough to give each occupant 20 square feet of floor space, with a ceiling height of about nine feet. Putty all window joints, paste paper on the inside of the windows, and board up the outside. Finally, fasten a wet blanket inside the window. Do the same for the doors, and seal up the fireplace, and all other openings.

See that the room is always provisioned with food and water, and furnished with folding camp beds and bedding in addition to necessary chairs and tables. Have fire extinguishers and a first-aid kit available. Provide means for passing the time—books, radio, phonograph, playing cards.

Ancient Syrian God Found on Euphrates

NEW HAVEN, CONN.—The calm, bearded face of an ancient Syrian god—Hadad the Thunderer—and an elaborate temple built for his worship, have been discovered in ruins of Dura on the Euphrates.

Yale scientists, pronouncing latest buildings uncovered at Dura "sensational finds," said that the temple of Hadad contains a high altar built like a miniature Tower of Babel. The high altar, standing within a court, is about 17 feet square and 16 feet tall, and is approached by a flight of steps. An altar of burnt offerings in the principal sanctuary and the throne of the high-priest before it have been preserved through the centuries.

Hadad was a god of storms, whose name is familiar to Bible students because three kings in the Bible had names in which this heathen god's name formed a part. The discoveries at Dura include the headquarters of the governor or duke of the Euphrates frontier in Roman empire days. The vast complex of the building included offices, barracks for body-guard, and living quarters with elaborately painted walls and ceilings.

In one guard room, the archaeologists have found on the wall the opening lines of Virgil's Aeneid scrawled by a Roman soldier. A living-room has yielded a magnificent oval brooch of gold four inches across, ornamented in filigree and set with garnets and emeralds.

The palace of the hereditary mayors of the city, also revealed, contains over 40 rooms and two great courtyards.

Odor of New Cut Wood May Be Made Perfume

LONDON.—Perfumes of a rustic tang, bearing such rural names as "Odor of Earth," "New-Cut Wood," or perhaps going across the Channel into "Terre sillounee," are made a possibility by the discovery of special micro-organisms that are responsible for the characteristic scents of fresh-plowed fields in spring, of earth after strong rain in summer, or of freshly felled trees. The micro-organisms were discovered by Dr. A. Raistrick, working at the Rothamsted Experimental station at Harpenden.

What Irvin S. Cobb Thinks about

Halle's Private Treasury

SANTA MONICA, CALIF.—Had it not been a foreign dispatch, a fellow might have thought it referred to one of our own investment councillors, specializing in looking after widows' and orphans' funds, and having a neat line of European securities to dispose of, and prominent in welfare work and uplift movements in his home community—in short, a typical specimen of a subvariety that seemed to sort of peter out in the years immediately following 1923, some quitting by indictment and some just vanishing into space, taking with them the clients' remaining cash assets, if any.

But this happened to be a cablegram from Geneva stating that, when Emperor Halle and Farewell Selassie hurriedly departed from his capital, he so thoroughly cleaned out the bank of Ethiopia that all the invading Italians found in the vaults was a large throbbing vacuum.

How Mencken Can Write THIS campaign will live right up if Henry Mencken, the official human gumball of the writing craft, takes pen in hand to discuss the men and the issues. You don't have to agree with Hen. You may quarrel with his premises and dispute his conclusions.

But can he make the language pop like a bull-whip? When he gets excited he throbs like a maniac flumb, and cuts loose like an avenging angel. Expressing himself, he always picks words of the right shape and the right color.

Literary Garbage LET'S admit that southerners of the Col. Carter of Cartersville type were mainly the fat-fetched creations of overly-romantic fictionists. Let's admit the business of painting a largely imaginary aah-d-d-wah south was for many years crowded.

But why, in the revolt to debunk this sugary romance, should the land so generously spawn a crop of alleged realists who'd have the rest of the world believe the only part of the world worthy of being written about is almost exclusively peopled by loathsome degenerates of the "Tobacco Road" variety?

If one of these literary garbage collectors will but look about him, he'll find southerners who might make interesting copy and yet, excusing that they leave the sugar out of the corn bread and the lower case "r" out of the language, are pretty much like the run of their fellow Americans elsewhere.

Gas Station Service

AN OPEN letter to the gas-line companies: Dear gasses—Why must the customer have the windshield wiped—if he doesn't want the windshield wiped?

Maybe he's in a hurry. Maybe he fears the youth with the squirt gun will only mess up the windshield worse than ever. Maybe he's nervous and prefers a blurry outlook so he can't see how many close calls he's going to have from being knocked cold by lady motorists.

Even so, unless he fights like a tiger, he must endure the windshield wiping. I commend the politeness of your attendants, though deploring their frequent habit of apparently going somewhere about a quarter of a mile back of the station to make change. I admire your enterprise and your pumps are indeed works of art. Your highway signs so fill the grateful eye that we don't have to look at comparatively dull things, such as scenery. But my dear gasses, there comes a time when too much service becomes a nuisance.

Heroic First Aid Measures WHEN those three gallant men were imprisoned in that Moose river mine cave-in up in Canada, facing death in the darkness—one of them you'll remember, did die—and the rescuers finally bored a slender shaft through to their living tomb, almost the first thing sent down from above was some hot coffee with a slug of brandy in it.

Now the Rev. A. A. McLeod has formally protested to the government of Nova Scotia about putting in the brandy. So I've been sitting here all day trying to make up my mind, if I'd been buried in that freezing, slimy pit, which I'd prefer—to have 'em send along some spiked coffee right away or keep the mixture up on the surface and lower the Rev. A. A. McLeod with a pitcher of ice water.

Matron's Dress With Vestee

Pattern No. 1907-B

This dress designed with soft capelet sleeves and a contrasting vestee is one of those perennial styles. It is always a pleasure to show by popular request. They're so universally becoming to larger and more mature women, and so adaptable to conventional occasions.

The model shown is a clever street frock which takes into consideration the fitting problem encountered by many women whose tastes incline toward conservative rather than complicated dressmaking. The lines are studied to give slenderness without sacrificing a trim and neat appearance, exemplified in the beautiful pointed up bodice, especially graceful and smart. Sheer cotton, prints and chiffons are delightful for town or country.

Barbara Bell Pattern No. 1907-B is available for sizes; 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46, 48 and 50. Size 38 requires 4 1/2 yards of 39 inch material. Send 15 cents in coins.

Send for the Summer Pattern Book containing 100 Barbara Bell well-planned, easy-to-make patterns. Exclusive fashions for children, young women, and matrons. Send 15 cents for your copy.

Modest Grain

A farmer went with his son to the wheat-field to see if it was ready for the harvest.

"See, father," said the boy, "how straight these stems hold up their heads. They must be the best ones. Those that hang down their heads as if they were ashamed can't be good for much, I'm sure."

The farmer plucked a stalk of each kind and said: "Look here, my child. This stalk that stood up so straight in light-headed and almost good for nothing, while this that hung its head so modestly is full of the most beautiful grain."

Key to Man

The key to every man is his thought. Sturdy and defying though he look, he has a helm which he obeys, which is the idea after which all his facts are classified. He can only be reformed by showing him a new idea which commands his own.—Emerson.

"I WOULDN'T RISK MY LIFE ON ANY OTHER TIRE"

Says Louis Meyer—Only three time winner Indianapolis Race '28 '33 '36

EQUIP YOUR CAR WITH Firestone GUM-DIPPED TIRES for Greater Safety!

THERE is a reason why Louis Meyer won the 500-mile Indianapolis race this year—and why he is the only man ever to win this gruelling race three times. He always used Firestone Gum-Dipped Tires, and never experienced tire trouble of any kind.

Louis Meyer knows tire construction. He also knows that to drive for 500 consecutive miles over this hot brick track, negotiating the dangerous curves 800 times at the record-breaking average speed of 109 miles an hour, requires tires of super strength and greatest blowout protection, as a blowout on any one of the dangerous curves would likely mean instant death. By the Firestone patented Gum-Dipping process every cord in the tires on Louis Meyer's car was soaked and coated with liquid rubber, thereby preventing internal friction and heat. This is the secret of the extra strength and reserve safety built into Firestone Tires.

You of course will not drive 109 miles per hour, but at today's higher speeds you do need tires that will give you greatest blowout protection and will stop your car up to 25% quicker. Take no chances! Let your Firestone Auto Supply and Service Store or Firestone Dealer equip your car with Firestone Gum-Dipped Tires, the safest tires built. It costs so little to protect lives worth so much!

THE NEW Firestone STANDARD

Its exceptional quality and service at these low prices are made possible by large volume production in the world's most efficient tire factories. Made in all sizes for passenger cars, trucks, and buses.

Rehabilitation

The Resettlement Administration through loans for stock, seed, feed, fertilizer, subsistence, and farm supplies is helping more than a half million farm families get back on their feet.

These loans are made to farmers of good character whose land is productive, but who do not have the seed, tools, animals, and other things necessary to raise a crop. Most of these people were self-supporting some years ago. But the depression in agriculture wiped out their capital and they cannot get started again without assistance.

During the first year of its activity, the Resettlement Administration aided some 500,000 farm families by its rehabilitation program.

Often the difficulties of these farmers are due to lack of skill in managing their farms. To make sure that the land is put to its best use, experts help the farmers who are receiving loans to make plans for running their farms. These plans are worked out by the farmer, the local county agent of the Department of Agriculture, and the county supervisor of the Resettlement Administration. The farmer must agree to abide by their conditions.

These Farmers are advised to raise food and feed for their own use. They are encouraged to grow more of their own supplies and to depend less on cash income. This is one way the advice of experts can help the farmers become self-supporting.

Lincoln County's Rural Rehabilitation has made loans to 81 farmers this year. The Farm and Home Supervisors report that every family shows decided enthusiasm in Improved Farm and Home Management by planning and striving to make the farm produce their home needs. Lincoln County farmers, contacted for Rural Rehabilitation office, are raising from 75 to 600 more chickens, 4 to 6 more hogs and 50 to 100 per cent more gardens, as well as improving living conditions by repairing houses and preserving more foods for winter use.

Mrs. A. at Corona has kept records since January 1st, her actual expense for the entire family to live on food, clothing and other expense, has been $100.00 for six months and the farm products used in that period would have cost more than $250.00 if bought.

Even though the supervisor is sometimes caught in running Canyon and spends the night in his or her car they seem to enjoy it, because they are working with very honorable, industrious, honest people that are encouraged again after a long drouth and depression.

Relief Jobs Decrease

The number of persons seeking relief jobs from the Works Progress Administration in New Mexico has decreased more than 2,000 in one month, State Administrator Lea Rowland announced this week.

A total of 2,249 employables who were on the eligible list were automatically dropped after they had not applied for work during the last three months. The eligibles totaled 22,714 on July 3, in comparison with 24,963 on June 3.

Private industry and agriculture reclaimed most of those formerly dependent on federal projects for subsistence, Rowland said.

New projects launched by WPA during June include schools or school improvements at Miera, Pacheco, East Pecos and Perico, Spring Creek, Mora, Ojo Caliente and Aztec; a high school at Santa Rosa, a school shop building at Estancia; street and park improvements in Albuquerque, playground and athletic field improvements in Madrid, construction of an athletic field at New Mexico Normal University, Las Vegas; flood control, acequia improvement and construction of National Guard stables, corrals and jumps at Santa Fe; sewers in Tucumcari, and road improvement between Lordsburg and Bonnie mine.

Danzig Crisis Worries Nations of Europe

WAR-WORRIED Europe shifted its anxiety from the Italo-Ethiopian sanctions problem to the newer and baffling question of what to do about the Free City of Danzig now seeking to free itself from the bonds of the League of Nations.

Adolf Hitler

The league disposed of the sanctions problem by voting to abolish them, thus to all practical intents and purposes removing Ethiopia from the family of sovereign states. Appearing personally before the league assembly, the refugee emperor, Haile Selassie, made a last moving bid for Ethiopia's freedom.

The "king of kings" denounced France and Great Britain without mentioning their names. To the generally expressed desire to reform the league, he said the weakness was not the league covenant itself, but a lack of international morality. The Negus' request for a loan of $50,000,000 to Ethiopia was voted down. Previously Haile had informed Capt. Anthony Eden, British foreign secretary, that he would return to Ethiopia immediately to join his loyal tribesmen and fight for Ethiopian independence.

With Mussolini given satisfaction, the Danzig situation brought into the foreground the figure of Adolf Hitler, chancellor of Nazi Germany. It was a Nazi follower of Hitler, Dr. Arthur Greiser, president of the Danzig senate, who demanded independence for the former German city now surrounded by Polish territory and who denounced the league and Sean Lester, league high commissioner for the port.

Observers were of the opinion that Greiser was acting under orders from Chancellor Hitler. In view of Germany's expansionist program and its rearmament, they feel that Danzig will be the next Nazi objective now that the Rhineland is remilitarized. By the elimination of Commissioner Lester or by the curtailment of his authority over the international affairs of the city, it is believed the Nazi would be in a position to crush the opposition party and pave the way for annexation of Danzig by Germany. In the event of a Nazi putch on Danzig, it was believed that Britain and France would co-operate in opposing it.

July 4th Celebrations Cost 346 Lives in U. S.

A TOLL of 346 lives was exacted in the celebration of the Fourth of July throughout the United States. Booming cannon crackers played a comparatively innocent part in the slaughter, for only 11 lives were lost in accidents due to fire-crackers.

But if the nation heeded warnings about the danger of fireworks, it forgot the menace of motoring accidents, for 203 people in 30 states were killed as the result of accidents on streets and highways. Ninety persons were drowned in 30 states. Miscellaneous tragedies accounted for 37 additional fatalities in 15 states.

Not since 1931 has the celebration of America's patriotic holiday claimed so many victims. In that year the death toll from accidents reached 433.

Roosevelt and Landon Return to Their Decks

THE Presidential candidates of both the Democratic and the Republican parties returned to their decks in their respective capitals following absences.

President Roosevelt came back to Washington after a three-day pilgrimage to Virginia. Included on his program was the dedication of the Shenandoah National park, his Fourth of July address from the portico of Thomas Jefferson's home at Monticello and his visit to Williamsburg, capital of the Old Dominion from 1699 to 1779. In his address at Jefferson's home, the President called on the nation to rekindle the "sacred fire" of "true freedom" which had lighted the "golden age" of American history. He declared the present emergencies require the same leadership as that displayed by the founder of the Democratic party.

Gov. Alf M. Landon returned to Topeka, Kan., after a vacation in the Colorado mountains, for the reconvening of the state legislature and for the acceptance speech at the Republican notification ceremonies July 23. National significance was attached to the meeting of the Kansas legislature because of the fact that it would have to deal with old-age pensions, unemployment insurance and general social welfare legislation and that an amendment to the state constitution was in prospect. Discussions of the farm problem and conferences with Governor Landon's political advisers were on the program. The Republican standard bearer was not expected to return to Colorado until after the notification ceremonies.

In the meantime, great activity was apparent in opposing campaign headquarters.

President Roosevelt summoned Democratic National Chairman James A. Farley to Washington for a conference on the political campaign. It was expected that the question of Mr. Farley's retirement from the cabinet about which there has been considerable rumor lately, would be decided. The Democrats have established national headquarters at the Biltmore hotel in New York and it is from here Chairman Farley will direct the campaign.

John Hamilton, national chairman of the Republican party, opened national headquarters in Chicago. He addressed 2,000 banqueters at a dinner in his honor and declared that the reaction of voters in recent days has been disheartening to the Roosevelt administration. Since the Cleveland convention, he said, the Democrats had offered the Republicans the "sincere flattery of imitation."

Pope Pius Orders World Censorship of Movies

A WORLD censorship on movies was ordered by Pope Pius, in an encyclical letter addressed directly to the bishops and archbishops of the Roman Catholic church in the United States.

The pope also ordered bishops throughout the world to obtain from their communicants annually renewable pledges "to abstain from witnessing bad films."

The encyclical of his holiness was addressed to the American bishops because they originally took the lead in movie censorship. He invited bishops of the entire world to follow their example.

To carry out the plan of censorship, the pontiff directed that a permanent national movie reviewing office be established in each country. He urged the exchange of information between the various offices for making the censorship effective. He urged bishops to appeal to Catholics connected with motion picture productions to use their influence in accordance with their faith and ideals.

Labor Leaguers Begin Drive for Steel's Unionization

WITH labor organizers spreading throughout the nation's steel mills in a drive to enroll 500,000 workers into one big union, the National Labor Relations Board reopened a fight in the courts to force steel companies to accept the National Labor Relations act as a means of keeping peace.

The board announced it had petitioned the Federal Circuit Court of Appeals at New Orleans in a new effort to enforce the act.

Meanwhile the full resources of the $5,000,000,000 steel industry were marshaled against the unionization drive. Observers pointed out that the situation was fraught with grave possibilities of industrial warfare. Principal steel companies who have banded together in a militant effort to maintain the open shop warned employees not to be "misled" into affiliation with the amalgamated Iron, Steel and Tin Workers Union, which forms the basis of organized labor's drive.

John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers and head of the committee for industrial organization, in a radio address broadcast from Chicago entitled "Industrial Democracy in Steel," sought the support not only of union labor, but of the public generally in his crusade.

Recovery of Business Holds in First Half

CONTINUING business recovery during the first six months of 1936 fulfilled the hopes of optimistic prognosticators and surpassed the expectations of conservative forecasters.

All the leading trade barometers registered fair business weather at the close of the first half of the year. The production of automobiles reached 2,400,000 units in the first six months of 1936, the best for the period since 1929.

Improvement was further reflected by the steel industry, the operations of which rose from 49.2 per cent of capacity at the start of the year to 71.2 per cent at the end of June. The output of electricity climbed steadily to reach an all time peak in June.

The steady recovery of the railroads was indicated by carloadings which worked up to approach their best levels since 1931. The figures for the first six months of 1936 were substantially better than those for the similar period of 1935.

A strong upsurge of home building gave impetus to the construction industry although it still remained at subnormal levels.

Another barometer of improved conditions was the stock market which extended the gains it made in 1935 and reached the highest ground it has held since 1931.

Gen. McCarl Criticizes New Deal on Retiring

RETIRING from the post of Comptroller General, J. R. McCarl announced that following the expiration of his term of office he would aid in the government reorganization study undertaken by the senate committee headed by Senator Byrd of Virginia.

Gen. McCarl criticized New Deal emergency agencies as "loosely and extravagantly set up" and as "tax consuming in the extreme."

He declared that a systematic reorganization of both regular and emergency agencies would improve government administration and reduce the cost to taxpayers.

Following Mr. McCarl's automatic retirement, R. N. Elliott, associate comptroller, took over his duties.

Justice Bailey Decides Rail Pensions Are Legal

DESPITE his previous decision declaring unconstitutional the tax on railroads to permit pensions, Justice Jennings Bailey of the District of Columbia Supreme Court ruled in an oral opinion that the railroad retirement board could pay pensions to railroad workers.

The justice declared that his previous decision on the validity of the rail pension laws could not be construed to mean that the retirement act itself was unconstitutional. He ruled that the government could proceed to collect from rail workers a sum amounting to 3 1/2 per cent of their salaries and could use the money to pay retirement pensions to the workers when they reach sixty-five years of age or have worked 40 years.

He also ruled that the railroad retirement board could proceed to collect information on which to allot the pensions, provided it did so at its own expense and by recompensing the railroads for any clerical work involved.

Drouth Crisis Brings Government Aid

FEARs that drouth may irretrievably destroy farm crops in North and South Dakota, eastern Montana and Wyoming prompted President Roosevelt to marshal $500,000,000 in relief funds to combat the damage and to develop further plans for fighting drouth.

Secretary of Agriculture Henry W. Wallace, who left Washington for a personal survey of the stricken areas, declared that from all reports conditions had become as serious as they were in 1934, due to lack of sorely needed rains.

The secretary declared that unless rains descend in the scorched regions the government will buy 30,000,000 head of cattle. In St. Paul, Minn., the governors of the five drouth-stricken northwestern states met with Federal Works Progress Administrator Harry L. Hopkins and administrators from the various states. Mr. Hopkins ordered relief jobs made immediately available for from 25,000 to 50,000 farmers who have seen their sole source of livelihood destroyed. The jobs were to be made available on water conservation projects, farm-to-market roads, rural schools and recreational projects.

President Roosevelt, in Washington, appointed a special committee composed of Secretary Wallace, Budget Director Daniel Bell, Aubrey Williams, Assistant Works Progress Administrator and Dr. Rexford G. Tugwell, resettlement administrator. They will work in co-operation with a committee of Department of Agriculture officials. The President instructed Budget Director Bell to study government appropriations to determine what funds are available.

Beach Togs Tell New Fabric Trends

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

IT IS not enough that beach outfits and active sports clothes be stylish and pleasing to the eye. It is not enough that they be merely practical and utilitarian. To qualify 100 per cent to the good your sun, sand and surf and your general outdoor play-around togs must be every whit as practical as they are chic and eye-appealing.

The cunning bathing and beach outfit of gay print shown to the right in the picture is just that—thoroughly as practical as it is charming to look upon. Its claim to practicality is due to the fact that the sanforized-shrunk cotton of which it is made carries the promise of non-shrinkage no matter how often it may happen to be water soaked. This very modern way of processing cottons and linens so that they cannot shrink insures your bathing wardrobe all season long, which, of course, means no-end satisfaction in the final analysis of clothes logic.

Practical from another point of view, too, is this charming beach and swim ensemble, in that it is one of the very new and good-looking halter bathing suits with wrap-around skirt to tie on when you go meandering down the beach as fair maidens are wont to do.

Another story of achievement in the way of combining the practical with the highly chic and attractive in sports clothes is told in the new weight-controlling ensemble that allows one to lounge about the house, play ping-pong and go about home duties while accomplishing the magic of shelving the extra poundage one longs to discard preparatory to getting one's self into shape for that svelte like appearance in one's bathing and beach suit. This miracle-working avoidpouls reducer is pictured in the foreground. A smart gym gob suit it is, made of an exceedingly good-looking crepe-texture rubber that keeps the pores of the body open and encourages a healthy perspiration. When that happens you can start making your swimming dates for to your glee and satisfaction the pounds will begin to roll-off until normal weight is reached. These crepe-textured rubber gym gobs are styled in three comfortable pieces—slacks, shorts and shirt.

Big news and no doubt about it, is the beach and swimming cut in the new and startling front page newspaper print cotton. See it pictured to the left in the group. Prints this season are noted for novelty and certainly this newspaper-print cotton captures first honors in that respect. The fitted halter top which is lined with white wool jersey for extra comfort and proper contour, buttons at the front to the waistband of the one-piece wool-lined skirt and maillot. The separate cape has an attached hood and is lined with terry cloth throughout.

Very smart beach outfits of white pique are among the season's latest models. A stylish ensemble includes shorts, worn under a one-piece tunic that fastens all the way down the front (may be left open at will) with pique-covered buttons. A big floppy white fabric hat is worn.

Another interesting item is the hat made of pique that is nothing more than a brim which ties at the back. It is without crown and can be untied and flattened out to be washed and ironed.

CHIC FOR SUMMER

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

According to the modern way of thinking a costume is only as smart, and correct and goodlooking as the accessories worn with it. In other words it is the accessories that make the costume and this is the challenge that fashionables must meet these times. In the matter of observing the little niceties of accessory details the lady in the picture is costumed to perfection. Her exquisitely ladylike straw hat is an exponent of smartest millinery fashion. The fur that borders the sleeves of her jewel-clasped crepe frock carries a convincing message in regard to the importance of "summer fun" in the mode. Her long simple slip-on suede gloves are eminently correct. As to the handsome bag she carries it is the accent supreme of chic.

Polka Dots in Style

Mannish little polka dotted silk cravats and belts are worn with soft frocks and polka dot-skirts walk out with sports coats.

FEATHERS IN STYLE FOR HAT TRIMMING

Feathers are becoming more and more important as trimming for hats, according to Erik Braagaard, the young Danish milliner whose recently established Paris house has had unusual success.

Braagaard even makes entire hats and headresses of feathers. He takes a single yellow bird of paradise and curves it cleverly about the head holding it in position with double bands of black velvet that cross the back of the head. This hat designer is building crowns higher and higher for morning and sports wear. The conical or thimble crowns, likewise are featured on some of the afternoon hats while others are trimmed with bunches of fruit or flowers.

Late Offerings of Prints

Copy Design of Wall Paper Some of the new prints look like wallpaper designs. Vertical stripes of flowers, massed together, are printed on pastel colored backgrounds. Other materials are printed with enormous sprays of flowers or vines in conventional wallpaper patterns. One house has applied a leaf and vine design in black organdy on a dinner dress of white organdy. The veins in the black organdy leaves are etched in shiny black beads.

Bracelets Combine Both Real Beauty and Utility

Since costume jewelry has come rushing back into style, there are all sorts of new bracelets on the market. For evening wear there are wide bands of gold or silver set with large, square precious stones. The largest center stone opens up to reveal a miniature powder compact and puff, while the stones on either side open to show paste rouge and eye shadow. The clasps of the new bracelets are small lipsticks.

Tall Tales

As Told to:

FRANK E. HAGAN and ELMO SCOTT WATSON

ESCAPE IN SIBERIA SIR HORACE PLUNKETT of England, or "Hod" Plunkett as the cowboys in western Nebraska and eastern Wyoming in the early days knew him, had some thrilling adventures on the American frontier, but his narrowest escape from death was in Siberia.

One day his horse went lame near a Russian village. Being in a hurry to reach St. Petersburg, he left his horse there and hired another one, hitched to a sleigh. In the midst of a dark, dismal forest, he heard a howl and saw a huge timber wolf pursuing him.

Sir Horace lashed his horse into a mad gallop, but the wolf gained on him at every jump. Just as the fierce beast sprang at him, Sir Horace dropped down into the bottom of the sleigh. The wolf shot clear over him and lighted on the horse's hindquarters.

The terrified horse kept on running even after it was half eaten up. Then Sir Horace sprang up. His whip gave the wolf a terrific cut. With a howl the beast sprang forward just as the horse died and fell out of the harness which dropped on the wolf.

Sir Horace then grabbed up the reins. By lashing at the wolf constantly with his whip he kept it going forward at a terrific pace. A few moments later it raced into a town and came to a plunging halt in front of an inn. Out dashed a group of Russians who killed the wolf and, as Sir Horace stepped out of the sleigh, pressed forward to congratulate him upon his escape.

THE HUMILIATED TEETH

IN SALT LAKE CITY, baseball bugs still refer to Joe Jenkins, their old catcher, as the man who always wore a mask, not because Joe used a mask when catching, but the contraption he wore other times was a little net hung under his chin. It acted as catcher, too—whenever Joe's lower plate of 10 shiny, false teeth, worked loose.

Without dreaming of being insulting, Joe laid the plate aside in a restaurant one night and went right on eating. It happened the teeth were on edge; they were so humiliated by his act they rolled to the floor and hid there.

Next day, filled with remorse, the teeth began to hunt Joe. It was a long search, filled with heart breaks. Once the teeth almost caught up with Joe while he was gulping milk toast, missing by snapping distance only.

One afternoon, Salt Lake opposed the Portland Beavers. The Utah team was three runs behind, ninth inning, two out and the bases filled. Joe'd been in an awful slump and was benched.

At this moment, fortunately for Salt Lake, something resembling a wide smile crawled up the players' bench and hit Jenkins where he carried his eating tobacco. Whooping wildly, Joe leaped seven feet in the air. With his right hand he snapped the prodigal lower plate into his mouth; with the left he reached down for his bat. Joe slammed a home run over the left field fence, winning the game for Salt Lake by a score of 6 to 5.

A RESOURCEFUL COCK

"THE picture in my living room," said Humming Bird Stevenson of Columbia, Tenn., "is not a reproduction of a freak of nature but a lifelike portrait of Blinky, my one-eyed rooster."

"That smear on the right side of his head is a glass eye. I know it's bloodshot. I painted it that way to make the other cocks overconfident. His neck is a triple corkscrew—that's because Blinky, in feinting to overcome the handicap of a single eye, almost wrung his own neck."

"The greatest pitting he won was when a couple of city fellows came to Columbia with their fighting birds and cleaned up."

"In the grand finale, Blinky was matched against the city champion, an Allen round-head, and I bet all I could beg, borrow or steal at odds of 5 to 1. The odds were easy to get, for word was passed to the city slickers that poor Blinky was a one-eyed cock."

"Blinky never showed better pitman-ship. Wherever the round-head struck my pride sideslipped and put his glass eye in front of the gaffs. After that the round-head's needles were too dull to mend a pair of open-work stockings and the match was in the bag."

Home of Seabirds

Venice has been called the "Queen of the Adriatic" and the "Serene Seaport," but its oldest name was the "Sea-Birds' Home." Long before the Huns swept down on Italy there was a small population, the aboriginal Venetians, occupying the estuary, of whom Cassiodorus, secretary of Theodorice the Great, has left us a picture. The Huns drove refugees from Padua, Aquileia and other mainland cities to the lagoons to found a republic among the sea birds.

CHAPTER XI—Continued

In a flash I had fired and had drawn his fire, for, before I could think, a bullet had flicked the sleeve of my pistol-arm.

This showed me, once for all, that so far as snap shots were concerned, I stood no chance whatever against such a man. As I whipped to one side, I made up my mind that I must not fire again until I knew for certain that my bullet was going to kill. In a word, if I was to win, I must come to close quarters with Pharaoh, if not to grips.

I had now come back to the table, and an instant later I was crouching beneath the archway, with my pistol on the carpet before me and my empty hands outstretched upon either side. I had not long to wait.

When I did not return his fire, I fancy the man was uncertain whether or not I was dead. He, therefore, sought the spot from which I had fired and, finding nobody there, turned and came to the table exactly as I had done.

And exactly as I had done, he began to edge his way round it. . . . The slack of his trousers brushed my hand.

In a flash I had him by the ankles and, ripping his feet from beneath him had brought him down on his side. Then I snatched up my pistol, thrust it into his stomach and pressed the trigger—in vain.

The magazine was empty. Slowly to the last, Ruch had never troubled to replenish his clip.

Pharaoh had fallen to his right and so on his pistol-arm. While this was taking his weight, he could not aim, and though in a flash he had swung his weight to the left, in that instant my fingers had caught the wrist of his pistol-hand. For a moment he fought for his freedom; then he let himself fall on his back; but now my wits were working and before it could reach his pocket, I had hold of his other wrist.

And to that instant the room was flooded with light. . . . For a moment I thought that someone had entered the chamber. And then I guessed that Pharaoh had turned the switches when first he came into the room, that the switchboard itself might report the repair of the damage which he had done.

So for the first time that night I saw my enemy's face.

I think he must have known that I was his assailant, but the light of me seemed to send him out of his mind. He fought no more as a serpent, but like the madman he looked, his face convulsed with passion and his eyes starting out of his head.

At last, to my relief, the tempest blew itself out, and he lay back, spent and panting, to take his rest; but, before I could think of moving, he had lifted his head once more and was staring into my eyes.

I looked back, grimly enough. He did not struggle; he simply gazed upon me, as though he would brand my image upon his memory. Then the yellow spat in my face.

So a madman made a madman. If he resisted, I know not, but I used him as a lay figure from that time on.

I dashed his hand on the magazine plinth of the table, to break his wrist, and when his pistol had fallen I brought his hands together and got to my knees. And then I was clear of the table and had jerked him up to his feet.

I let his broken wrist go, whipped out his second pistol and pitched it across the room.

Then I seized his throat with both hands, turned him back to the table, bent him across its corner and broke his back on the oak.

Sitting on the bench by the fireplace, I wiped my face and my hands on Helena's black silk scarf. This had been wrong and creased, and I had no doubt that Pharaoh had used it to gag her, before he had carried her off.

Now that the business was over, I found it hard to believe. I looked at my watch.

The time was twenty minutes past twelve. Not an hour had gone by since Pharaoh had talked from the ramparts and Dewdrop had read his message to Ruch and Bugle and me. And now they were all four dead, but I was alive.

The reflection brought me up to my feet.

Alive, if you please; but I was shut in a chamber from which I could see no way out. . . .

For twenty minutes I sought that secret door. I shouted and beat upon the woodwork, using Helena's name—all in vain.

Helena was locked in the turret—my hand in my pocket fingered her master key; which I had taken from

Pharaoh, but the turret, he doubt, had increasing apprehension of the opening of Helena's eyes—to the truth, of course, that it was I and not Bugle that had stood in the secret chamber and had listened to all she said—it had never occurred to me that, if only I held my tongue, neither she nor anyone else need ever suspect that I had entered the castle that Friday night. Yet, before my cousin had spoken a word, I saw that, if I was careful, my secret would keep itself.

He found me finishing breakfast in his room at The Reaping Hook. "Well, you have missed something," he said. "Let that be your punishment for deceiving three simple souls. Not that I blame you—this time. My lady had no right to treat you like that. I told her as much in the coupe. But she wouldn't listen to me. But that's by the way. You've missed—in a way we've all of us missed the most astounding show that ever was seen. Lady Helena saw a good bit—more than enough, I'm afraid." He threw himself into a chair. "Upon my soul, I don't know where to begin."

"What do you know?" I said. "I feel sure," said my cousin, "that you will be glad to hear that your failure to arrive at the castle knocked the three of us flat. We couldn't assimilate the fact that simple, honest John Spencer had laid himself out to deceive us—and done it so devilish well. You certainly got your own back. Lady Helena was wild. I'd never have believed it of him," she raged.

"Well, now that she was safe in the castle, I was only too glad of an excuse to get out, and so I announced that Barley and I would seek you without delay. She insisted that we should take Sabre and gave the dog his orders before we left. It's right you should know that she was extremely worried."

My cousin paused, to frown on his finger-tips.

"I hope, in the merciful course of time, to forget the way we employed the next two hours. We used Sabre exactly according to the instructions on the box. Should the dog display emotion, release him at once. Remain exactly where you were when he left you, until he returns. Then take hold of his collar and he will lead you to John."

I began to shake with laughter. "Quite so," said Geoffrey. "Quite so. After about an hour the dog displayed emotion and was released. After another hour Barley and I displayed much more emotion and withdrew to survey the mouth of the entrance drive. . . ."

"We hadn't been there ten minutes when we heard the Carolina coming—coming from the castle all out. By the use of our torches we stopped her, to find that she was manned by a flying squad. Watchmen, porters, grooms—all of them armed to the teeth. They were going to compass Yorick, traveling east; and the coupe was coming after, to travel west. The Countess Helena had been kidnapped. Yorick was plunged into darkness and my lady was gone. Let down in a sheet from the ramparts. Her handkerchief had been found on the drawbridge and Sabre had been found in the moat."

I felt that it was time to say something.

"But how," I began. . . . "Don't interrupt," said my cousin. "Listen to me. Well, I let the Carolina go, deciding that Barley and I would do better on foot. I sent him east and ran west—yes, ran, with my heart in my mouth. The idea was to find the Rolls. . . . If the Rolls had not gone."

"I found her at a quarter to one, up a little track—and very near cried with relief. You see, that meant that my lady was yet in the park."

"I rushed off and stopped the coupe, which was lapping for the twentieth time, told the chauffeur to go on patrolling, but to send me reinforcements and tell everybody he met. Then I went back to lay my ambush. I soon had plenty of men and I did the job well. Pharaoh simply hadn't an earthly. Though he didn't know it, that trap had become the scaffold on which he and his little friends were going to die."

"At a quarter to two a wallah comes pelting with a message—very nearly killed him, of course. But by the time he'd said his piece he was nearer death than before. The Countess Helena's compliments, and will Mr. Bohun come back to the castle at once."

My cousin covered his face. "I don't think I've ever felt such a blasted fool. But blasted. . . ."

"Well, I took the Rolls and drove back—to hear Lady Helena's tale."

Although I had come to regard with increasing apprehension the opening of Helena's eyes—to the truth, of course, that it was I and not Bugle that had stood in the secret chamber and had listened to all she said—it had never occurred to me that, if only I held my tongue, neither she nor anyone else need ever suspect that I had entered the castle that Friday night. ## Ancient Indians of Peru Used Cone as a Sun Dial

A giant sun dial was used by the Incas to measure their seasons—the "Inti-huataana," or "place where the sun was tied." The shadow cast by the cone on the stone platform beneath formed the basis of the ancient Indian method of reckoning time.

The Inti-huataana in varying forms is found in many of the dead cities which have been unearthed in Peru. Cuzco, ancient capital of the Incas, is an archeological center.

The outstanding characteristic of Cuzco is its walls made of huge stones, cut and fitted together in some mysterious manner without the use of sharp instruments, mortar or cement. Other ruins include stone seats, remnants of baths, archways and staircases; the famous Rodadero, a steep, naturally grooved rock used by the Incas as a toboggan slide long before the Spaniards arrived; and the "Throne of the Incas," a rounded-off rock with steps cut into it on either side—the vantage point from which, it is said, the Inca and his engineers directed the construction of the fortress of Sacsahuaman.

HOW ARE YOU TODAY

DR. JAMES W. BARTON Talks About

Safety in Reducing Weight

A YOUNG woman weighing 150 pounds consulted a physician as to the best method of getting rid of twenty pounds. At first glance she appeared to be well, as do most stout individuals, but there was a lack of color in the face and the eyes had a "tired" appearance.

Further, the physician noted that the excess weight on her body was about the hips, abdomen and shoulders, and that her hands, wrists, feet and ankles were small and slender. This showed that her overweight was mostly due to a lack of juice from the small pituitary gland lying at the base of the brain.

As was his custom, the physician began to make a routine examination and found that the temperature was below normal and the haemoglobin was only 60 per cent instead of 85 to 95 as in normal healthy women. He stopped the examination and advised the patient to see her family physician and get "built up" physically before he began any weight reduction treatment. She admitted that she had eaten meat only once and eggs only once during the previous two months.

The point, of course, is that while reducing overweight is wise from a health standpoint, the patient should be thoroughly overhauled by his or her family physician before weight reduction begins.

Planning the Campaign Dr. W. A. L. Styles in an article, "The Campaign Against Corpulence," Hygiene Magazine, says:

"In the ambition to shed weight, men and women have never paused to consider the advisability of misdirected endeavor. As a consequence death has been the end result of numerous treatments for obesity (overweight). Before launching an anti-fat offensive, every prospective patient should undergo a thorough physical examination of the hands of a reputable physician.

"Merely because discretion (or common sense) has not been combined with determination (and many of our fat friends are determined in their wish to lose weight) failure crowns many efforts to regain normal weight. The reducing of weight should come second to improvement in physical condition as a goal in the campaign against corpulence."

The two outstanding suggestions, in Doctor Styles' article are (a) to eat nothing between meals and (b) to leave the table while still hungry. These two suggestions are not only simple but quite safe, and safety whilst reducing should never be forgotten.

Physicians now have so many overweight patients seeking a safe method of reducing weight that they outline diets which will maintain strength and yet reduce weight if faithfully followed. "Proper diet to which is added exercise suited to individual needs brings dividends in the form of health; whereas wrong diet and faulty exercise, particularly when aggravated by faulty treatment by medicine—opium salts, thyroid or pituitary extract in the wrong type of cases—may wreck health and bring on premature death."

So widespread is the desire to reduce weight that all sorts of short cuts are being tried often with disastrous results. The 10-day diet, the use of pituitary and thyroid extracts in non-suitable cases, the use of the new drug dinitrophenol, using large doses of opium salts or proprietary medicines containing opium salts are all responsible for many cases of chronic illness and also many deaths.

Fighting Noise

When London, New York and Paris decide that measures must be taken to make these large cities less noisy, there must be some reason for it.

Everyone recognizes that there must be some street noises as foods and other supplies must be moved from place to place, automobiles must transport people for business or pleasure, street cars and busses are likewise needed, factories must manufacture necessities, and various other noises are really "necessary" noises.

However, everyone must recognize also that while all the above are necessary noises, the amount or degree of noise now created is not necessary; that a large percentage of it is really unnecessary.

Noise, whether we realize it or not, causes us to tighten or tense the whole body; it is one of nature's old, old ways of preparing our muscles to attack or resist an enemy. This tenseness tires us just as if we were attacking or resisting an enemy. And much of the noise is unnecessary.

Other cities, large and small, are investigating the noise situation, not to learn its effects upon the population because that is unfortunately only too well understood, but with the definite purpose of getting rid of unnecessary noise.

Household Questions

Cut out old canes in raspberry bushes when they are through bearing fruit. These canes will never bear fruit again.

A pinch of baking soda added to the water in which a fowl is cooked will make it more tender.

Oil or oily substances should never be used on waxed floors. They soften the wax, sink into wood and eventually darken it.

A cup of peanut butter mixed with half a cup of mayonnaise and one finely chopped raw onion makes a good sandwich spread.

Cloths saturated with polishing liquids if stored away in a closet often cause spontaneous combustion. Keep these cloths in a covered tin container.

Lingerie must be tinted occasionally to preserve its dainty appearance. A faded blue garment will tint a delicate orchid with the aid of a pink dye, a pale yellow will shade into a delicate green if dipped in blue dye and a pink dye will change the yellow to a shell pink. Be sure to use small quantities of the dye for these pastel shades.
