Men must register with the title "Mr." and their wives must register exactly the same as their husbands, substituting the prefix "Mrs." Unmarried women must use the prefix "Miss". Widows must use their husband's given names or initials followed by the explanation "widow" in parenthesis. The only sure way is to go next Saturday and Register yourself.

Most Important 20 Years

"More than a million farmers in the United States have special reason to note the date, July 17," said President Hugh L. Harrell of the Federal Land Bank of Wichita today. "It is the 20th anniversary of the actual beginning of effective cooperative financing for farmers."

"On July 17, 1916," Mr. Harrell continued, "President Wilson signed the Federal Farm Loan Act, establishing the 12 Federal land banks, which, since that time, have made safe, amortized, long time, low interest farm mortgage loans to the amount of nearly three billion dollars."

"This service, it is estimated, has been having its users, since the peak in the land bank lending was reached, about $55,000,000 a year, in interest charges alone. Of course the inauguration of this better plan for farm financing, resulted in lower rates and more favorable terms from all other important farm loan agencies, even while conditions were fairly good or nearly 'normal'. When distress conditions arrived, the presence, in the field, of the Federal land banks, became a life saver to the thousands whose mortgages were maturing and could not be refinanced excepting with aid of the Federal land banks."

"In still another way the land banks have given a very important service. After they had operated successfully for nearly 16 years, the almost complete breakdown of private credit facilities, in 1931-32, forced consideration of plans to extend cooperative financing to cover all of agriculture's credit needs. Thus it was, when finally in May 1933, the Farm Credit Act became a law, the Federal land bank set-up stood ready for use as a nucleus of the new complete provision for cooperative lending. The 12 Federal land bank districts and offices, and boards of directors and the 12 coinciding intermediate credit banks, thus, at once became the bases of operations and service for the new Farm Credit Administration. And in these districts, quickly were built the 12 production credit corporations with their some 500 production credit associations and the 12 banks for cooperatives, which even in the short time since have made close to a half million low interest rate loans, amounting to over $700,000,000, and adapted to the various other sound financing needs of agriculture."

"July 17 marks the close of two decades of America's most important history in farm financing. We will not soon forget them."

"In the working out of a great national program which seeks the primary good of the greater number, it is true that the toes of some people are being stepped on and are going to be stepped on. But these toes belong to the comparative few who seek to retain or regain position or riches or both by some short cut which is harmful to the greater good."

—President Roosevelt

Freedom Something More Than Being Let Alone

It is a far cry from the simple democracy of Thomas Jefferson to the complicated machinery of modern government. Could the method of democracy have remained unchanged in this more than a century, in the face of changed conditions?

The answer to that question was once discussed by Woodrow Wilson. He pointed out that "in the early days of simplicity which marked the beginnings of our Government," Jefferson had said that the best government consists in as little governing as possible. And there is still a sense, said Wilson, in which that is true: "It is still intolerable for the Government to interfere with our individual activities except where it is necessary to interfere with them in order to free them."

To this Wilson added: "But I feel confident that if Jefferson were living in our day he would see what we see: that the individual is caught in a great confused nexus of all sorts of complicated circumstances, and that to let them alone is to leave him helpless as against the obstacles with which he has to contend; and that therefore, law in our day must come to the assistance of the individual. It must come to his assistance to see that he gets fair play; that is all, but that is much."

"Freedom today is something more than being let alone. The program of a government of freedom must in these days be positive, not negative."

They like Codliver Oil

Pre-school youngsters from homes subsisting only by government aid are so undernourished that they welcome the daily spoonful given them in WPA nursery schools. And this is but one of the many health-building aids for underprivileged children, many of whom have lost one or both parents through divorce, desertion or death.

In 23 schools over the state 973 youngsters between the ages of two and five come to school at nine o'clock, just as do their older brothers and sisters. Their first hour is divided between outdoor play and the elements of primary education. For this latter the teachers had to make their own equipment and toys as the budget made no provision for them.

At 10 they line up for codliver oil, each eager mouth obediently opening as the smelly bottle comes down the line. This is followed by a tomato juice chaser. Scissors, crayons and paint brushes then satisfy childish impulses toward destruction and creation for the rest of the hour, after which an hour of outdoor play spurs already healthy appetites.

At noon a lunch, including some combination of cereal, soup, meat, fruit, and vegetables supplied by the Commodity Relief Distribution, sandwiches and milk, vanishes with greatest ease. The menus are planned by a special WPA consultant.

This delightful diversion is followed by an hour's nap. And they sleep. Curled up on benches, desks, tables, in one especially luxurious school on cots borrowed from the CCC, for sixty minutes they leave the world behind them. Waking up to a story hour, they finish the day with a last half hour of playground.

Landon and Lowden Are In Accord on Agriculture

COMPLETE endorsement of the presidential candidacy of Gov. Alf M. Landon of Kansas was given by former Gov. Frank O. Lowden of Illinois following a conference in Topeka. Following the conference, the conferees formed Governor Lowden announced that he and Governor Landon were in "full accord" on the question of farm relief.

Frank O. Lowden

The Illinois farm leader revealed that he had discussed soil erosion, reciprocal treaties, conservation of farm population, government aid in marketing surplus crops, centralizing of federal power and reduction of federal expenditures with Gov. Landon. Mr. Lowden declared: "We are in accord on the important agricultural issues. I shall support him and campaign for his election."

Payment of cash federal bounties to soil-conserving farmers through a plan contemplating state administration was one of the farm principles advocated by Mr. Lowden which received the verbal support of Gov. Landon following the conference.

With the Republican presidential nominee at work on his acceptance speech, conferences with other leaders were scheduled. Important among these was the visit of George N. Peck, former AAA administrator who resigned his post following a break with Secretary of Agriculture Wallace and in now a New Deal critic. Also on the program was the visit of Col. Frank Knox, Governor Landon's running mate.

At Governor Landon's office a letter was made public from William Cabell Bruce, former Democratic senator from Maryland, saying that he was "bitterly disappointed" in President Roosevelt and "deeply gratified" at Governor Landon's nomination.

In the meantime members of the Kansas legislature had departed for their homes after submitting two constitutional amendments to the state's electorate. One of these would authorize state aid for the needy and the other would approve state participation in U. S. federal social security plan. Both amendments were recommended by Governor Landon.

Dr. S. Parkes Cadman Is Taken by Death

Dr. S. Parkes Cadman, who rose from the mines of England to international fame as a pulp orator, died in Plattsburg, N. Y., at the age of seventy-one.

Dr. Cadman was pastor of the Central Congregational church of Brooklyn and was a former president of the Federal Council of Churches.

In his youth, Dr. Cadman worked as a "pony boy" in a mine in Shropshire, England. At fourteen he began to read theology; at seventeen he joined the church and at eighteen preached his first sermon. He came to America in 1830 with less than $100 in his pocket. Through a bishop whom he had met in London he obtained his first pastorate.

In his later years, Dr. Cadman had for his congregation all the people of the North American continent. He was the first of the "radio pastors" and his Sunday afternoon sermons reached the ears of millions.

New Austro-German Pact Makes Diplomatic History

A NEW era in European diplomacy was heralded with the signing of a treaty between Germany and Austria re-establishing peace and normal relations between the two nations.

Since Italy has been acting in the role of big brother to Austria in the past two years it was regarded as a virtual certainty that Premier Mussolini had sanctioned the new pact. Observers pointed out that with Germany, Austria and Italy in accord and with Poland friendly to Hitler's aims, Europe now has a prospective alliance more powerful than the triple alliance of Germany, Italy and Austria-Hungary preceding the World War.

By the terms of the new Austro-German pact, the sovereignty of Austria is guaranteed, a friendly attitude by Austria toward Germany is promised, amnesty to Nazi agitators in Austria is given and freedom of Austrian Nazi now interned in Germany is permitted.

In sealing the Austro-German agreement Chancellor Kurt Schuschnigg of Austria wired a message of congratulations to Chancellor Hitler expressing his conviction that the agreement "would be to the advantage of the whole German people." In replying Hitler expressed the wish "that this agreement will re-establish the old traditional relations springing from racial unity and the centuries long common history" of the two peoples. It is understood that both Hitler and Schuschnigg will meet in the near future, probably at Hitler's summer home at Berchtesgaden.

In diplomatic circles the signing of the new pact was regarded as another shrewd coup by Chancellor Hitler and Premier Mussolini. The German and Italian dictators have thrust a dictatorially governed Fascist and Nazi wedge through central Europe from the North Sea to the Mediterranean.

In Paris, French officials were quoted as seeing in the new agreement an initial step toward German annexation of the Austrian republic without resorting to war. They declared their belief that Hitler's actual entry into Vienna is now only a question of time.

President Roosevelt Leaves for Nautical Vacation

AFTER dedicating New York's new $64,000,000 Triborough bridge, attending the wedding of Mrs. Ruth Bryan Owen, minister to Denmark, to Captain Boerge Rohde of the Danish court and spending two days at his Hyde Park home, President Roosevelt embarked on a nautical vacation in Maine and Canadian waters.

President Roosevelt

On the bridge dedication program with the President were Secretary of the Interior Ickes, Gov. Lehman of New York, Senator Wagner and Mayor Fiorello La Guardia of New York City. The bridge is the largest completed public works administration project in the East. It comprises four spans in its three and one-half miles of elevated ways and connects Manhattan, the Bronx and Queens, Long Island.

Before leaving to board the schooner Sewanna, President Roosevelt conferred with a group of eastern state representatives on the matter of flood control. Representatives of New York, Pennsylvania, Ohio, West Virginia and other states hit by disastrous floods early this year met with the President.

On the cruise of the Sewanna, a 50-foot schooner yacht, President Roosevelt will act as skipper and helmsman. Three of his four sons, James, Franklin Jr., and John are members of the crew. The cruise will carry the President along the Maine coast to Campobello Island, New Brunswick, where his mother has a summer home and off Nova Scotia where he expects to do some deep sea fishing; a destroyer, the presidential yacht Potomac and the schooner Liberty carrying newspaper men are trailing the Sewanna.

Before he returns to the White House, the President will pay a visit to Lord Tweedsmuir, governor-general of Canada at Ottawa, the Dominion's capital.

Ruth Bryan Owen Becomes Bride of Danish Officer

ROMANCE outmaneuvered diplomacy when Mrs. Ruth Bryan Owen, minister to Denmark, became the bride of Captain Boerge Rohde, gentleman-in-waiting to King Christian of Denmark. The wedding took place in St. James Chapel at Hyde Park, N. Y., in the presence of President Roosevelt who nominated Mrs. Owen as the country's first woman minister.

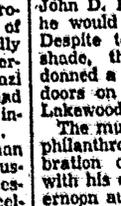

A few days after Mrs. Owen returned to the United States for the summer, the announcement of her engagement was made in Denmark by Captain Rohde's mother. A day or two later, Captain Rohde arrived in America and plans were made for an immediate wedding.

Rockefeller Celebrates His 77th Birthday

CUTTING a big cake to celebrate his ninety-seventh birthday, John D. Rockefeller predicted that he would live to be one hundred. Despite temperature of 92 in the shade, the famous nonagenarian donned a sun helmet and went outdoors on his summer estate near Lakewood, N. J.

The multimillionaire oil man and philanthropist did not let the celebration of his birthday interfere with his daily nap or his daily afternoon automobile ride.

Mr. Rockefeller long since has given up all forms of athletic activities, including golf, formerly his favorite pastime.

Promise of Rains and Cooler Weather for Drouth Areas

WITH a recession of the extremely high temperatures promised and the prospect of rains, some measure of relief was in sight for the sun-parched drouth areas of the Great Plains. Rains which fell in portions of the Northwest revived scattered areas. But for day after day a record-breaking heat wave had brought temperatures ranging from 90 to 114 from the Rocky Mountains to the Appalachians.

Twenty-three states, eight of them in the South, were listed as suffering in some degree from the drouth. Ten of them—North and South Dakota, Montana, Wyoming, Minnesota, Missouri, Tennessee, Oklahoma, Virginia and South Carolina—were already in a critical stage. Five others—Kentucky, Georgia, Alabama, North Carolina and West Virginia—were borderline cases. Eight others where the full severity of the drouth had not yet been felt were: Nebraska, Wisconsin, Iowa, Michigan, Illinois, Kansas, Indiana and Ohio.

The sweltering heat and drouth spread into Canada. The prairie provinces of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta—Canada's bread basket—had begun to suffer like their neighbors in the United States. Except for scattered local showers, there had been no rain from Ontario westward to the Canadian Rockies since June 10.

With the full extent of the damage in the "dust bowl" area of the Northwest not yet known, the federal government made plans to deal with a long-range disaster. President Roosevelt, taking personal command of the relief program in Washington, announced that he would make a personal tour of the drouth-stricken areas within the next few weeks.

The President announced that the federal government had prepared a comprehensive plan whereby 170,000 out of 204,000 farm families impoverished by the drouth in the Northwest would be given immediate cash assistance. He declared that he will make his trip after the relief program has had an opportunity to get under way.

Green-Lewis Rift Brings Labor Crisis

AS THE long-awaited campaign to unionize the nation's steel industry was under way, one of the most serious crises in the history of the American labor movement arose when strife broke out between William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor and John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers of America and head of the Committee for Industrial Organization, who has promoted the unionization drive in the steel industry.

Meeting in Washington, the executive council of the American Federation of Labor—considered the matter of suspending eight national and international unions on the ground that these eight unions have begun the formation of a rival, or dual labor federation.

John L. Lewis announced that he would not respond to a summons of the executive council to answer charges that he had violated the federation's policy by trying to organize 500,000 steel workers into one big industrial union instead of into several unions divided by crafts.

Threat of Farm Strike Worries French Nation

WITH the threat of a farm strike hanging ominously over France, riots in French cities and street clashes between the leftists supporting the popular front socialist regime of Premier Leon Blum and rightists who oppose it added to the unrest. The government made anxious efforts to dissuade farm workers from going on a strike for higher pay and better wages.

On five farms near Paris striking farm hands had actually occupied the land. While this was a localized situation, it was fraught with dangerous possibilities because the area affected not only provides most of the French capital's fresh vegetable supply but is an important wheat growing region as well.

Due to heavy rains and hot weather the wheat has ripened at an abnormally rapid rate. Should a widespread strike of farm hands occur that delayed the wheat cutting only a few days, experts were of the opinion that the entire crop of the region would be lost.

Fifteen Jap Army Officers Are Put to Death

FIFTEEN Japanese army officers who were leaders in last February's bloody rebellion in which four high-ranking government officials met assassination, were executed by a firing squad in Tokyo.

Two other officers condemned to death were not shot, and no explanation was made by the war office. They were Captain Yoshiaki Nakamura and Captain Asachi Isobe. Unofficial observers believed their lives were temporarily spared so that they might testify in trials of other men accused of complicity in the uprising of February 26 which pushed Japan close to the brink of civil war.

Easy to Knit and Easy to Wear

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

IT IS a foregone conclusion among women of varied activities that knitted clothes are the logical sort to wear at play or at work. This conviction in regard to the practical wearability of things knitted has come about from actual experience, and not from mere theory. And so the clicking of needles goes merrily on, more so than ever this season.

There is added inspiration, too, in the knowledge that knit or crocheted yarns have been brought to such high state of perfection through modern processing that one is cheered with the assurance of dependable washability both as to shrinkage and to color fastness. Thus a new confidence has been created in the minds of the practical minded to the extent that knitted apparel has come to be recognized as staple wear rather than in the category of fleeting moods or fads.

As to the knitted items pictured they are new and they are practical, just such as you will appreciate wearing during week-end and vacation hours. The sunhat halter as shown in the upper left of the group will give you all the exposure and freedom you need in beach and summer sports clothes. You can combine it with knitted bathing trunk or gorbardine shorts or wear it with a linen skirt.

Out in the garden on a warm summer day with gay flowers about and skies that are blue it will be the frivolous dainty type of a blouse you will be wanting to fit in with the joyous landscape. Centered in the picture is a pretty blouse that is so simple and easy to crochet you can make it in a jiffy. It is cool because it is lacy. Choose yellow for the color of the mercerized crochet cotton so that it will match the sunshine of a perfect summer day. This cunning model has practically no sleeves and is held together by a drawstring about the neckline in peasant fashion.

To the left below a cheer blouse is shown knitted of mercerized crochet cotton. It is the sort that will add the feminine touch to your mannishly tailored suit or will carry through smartly with your summer linen skirts. The raven and rows of tiny ruffles at each side above the waistline is something new. You will like this styling immensely and so will your friends for it is out of the ordinary. The sleeves puffed just above the elbow are also a smart and very new feature. The neck is high, giving that close-to-the-throat line which fashion decrees this season. This high neck effect fills the opening of a classic lapped suit jacket to perfect satisfaction.

Cool and lovely in its dainty coloring is the dress pictured to the right. The majority of dresses are knitted but this one is crocheted of soft washable knit-crochec. The work goes rapidly as the stitch is a very open lacy one. A dress of this type should go into every trunk that is vacation bound, for it packs, washes and wears beautifully. The soft rolled collar and the cord and tassel fastenings are style details that give "class" that is recognized at a glance.

Of course you have taken note of the crownless garden hats which the girls in the sweaters are wearing. You can make one yourself and at trifling cost—just one of those big farmer straw hats with the crown cut out and the brim slashed up the back, rounding the corners. Finish all edges with a wide bias-cut binding of gay gingham and add ties of the same.

STAR-PRINT CREPE

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

Attractively studded with the symbol of the Lone Star state, this star print crepe cocktail dress is a special design in honor of the Centennial now being held there. The closely positioned buttons, the tunical silhouette, the fanciful slit hemline, the widened puffed shoulders and the turnover collar effect are all contributing style details. Free-flowing, allowing ease of movement, this smart-looking dress is ideal for semi-formal wear.

WOMEN ADD COLOR; DON GAY GALLUSES

Not satisfied with copying men's suits, both as to material and styling, the women are now wearing suspenders. They have discovered that galluses not only furnish an added chance to introduce color and swank to the accessory theme, but these dashing skirt "holder-uppers" are exceedingly practical. In the narrow width sizes, chosen to form a daring contrast with the suit and blouse, suspenders present a smart appearance as they flash out from behind an unbuttoned jacket.

The whole idea, designers claim, is not just another fashion whim but springs directly out of style requirements set by the present trends in women's apparel; mannish suits, hence suspenders! Clipping onto the skirt, suspenders hold this garment in line properly, preventing it from acquiring that ungainly "sat-in" look.

Swim Suits Are Dark and Snug-Fitting This Season

Wine-and-white is the prize color combination for swim suits this season. Navy-and-white comes next, and then black, in lustrous suits of elastic satin.

Most of the newest suits have a dressmaker look. They are closely fitted, complete with uplift brassiere top, halter necks and sun-backs.

The great-open-spaces fad, which left the tummy bare to the sun's rays, is doing a graceful retreat. Neglige Ensemble In making a silk nightgown, buy enough silk to include a little bed jacket to match it. This can be over or waist length and slip on below the nightgown for breakfasts in bed.

What Irvin S. Cobb Thinks about

War Debt Hangovers

SANTA MONICA, CALIF.— In summarizing governmental finance for the fiscal year, Secretary Morgenthau doesn't even list the thirteen thousand millions of dollars owed to us by defaulting foreign nations.

But Americans at large won't forget. If you doubt this, wait till one of these debt countries gets in a fresh jam and turns to Uncle Sam for succor—and, brother, you can spell that last word the other way and still be right.

We didn't know what we were getting into when we stuck around too long after the fighting ended in 1918. Makes me think of a colored labor battalion who went on the loose at Brest on Armistice day.

A hardboiled top sergeant rounded them up: "Get to work on dem freight piles," he commanded.

"But de mess all done over," declared a spokesman. "And us boys only enlisted fur de duration of de war."

"Lissen," barked the sergeant, "de war may be over, lak you specifies, but fur sich ez you de duration ain't hardly started."

Woes of French Hotels

IF, OVER the woes of the French resort hotels, anybody catches me shedding a tear, it'll come out of an eyedropper and not from the heart. I'm thinking particularly of the romantic and couflut-Riviera, which, under the surface, is just as romantic as an adding machine and couflut as a cash register.

There, where E. Phillips Oppenheim once deluged it "op" and the Yankee cuckers rushed in ready for their skinning—and never disappointed—is the original home of the debt short-change and the mastodontic overcharge. There I've seen many a mistake made in the bill and never yet one in favor of the customer.

Influenza Complications

SINCE the last bedside bulletin, so many souls have inquired, that I am offering a supplemental report on the work of the wrecking crew.

First I cracked an ear drum. (Cries of "Whoo?"?) Then this clinging California influenza moved slightly south by west within your correspondent's area. So now I've fallen into the hands of a throat specialist.

A fine fellow—but easily satisfied in the matter of entertainment. His idea of a sprightly conversation is to hold down my tongue with a spoon and have me say "ah." What I claim is, when you've heard one "Ah," you've heard 'em all. But he fairly hangs on my words. There's a gleam in his eye I don't like. He's beginning to crave my tonsils.

Taking Political Sides

TODAY some entirely fair-minded patriot who is smuggled up close to the throne or hopes so to be, proclaims: "Landon is as synthetic as a rubber duck. Roosevelt is the only hope of an imperiled people. What price a constitution when we can have frankfurters?"

Tomorrow another gentleman, who likewise is as unbiased as a spiffence, bursts forth with something like this: "Re-elect Roosevelt and your country forever is wrecked. Landon alone can save our threatened institutions. A real statesman. He eats in the kitchen and hates to wear neckties."

Meanwhile, Mr. Roosevelt remains calm and seemingly confident. Governor Landon remains calm and seemingly hopeful.

The Two Opposing Camps

ON THE Republican side there temporarily is a lull. Incredible though it sounds, Col. Theodore Roosevelt, Jr., is not getting ready to run for anything. Later reports may change this.

Organizing the speaking bureau for the Democrats, Chairman Rayburn does not list among the chosen orators the name of his most distinguished fellow Texan. In vaudeville it breeds a laugh when the second half of the sketch makes the wrong answers, but politics is something else again. Can it be that Uncle Jack Garner has become the Gracie Allen of his sex? Only they do let Gracie talk!

A writer who isn't taking sides wonders at length whether the homespun suspender-wearing qualities of Gov. Landon can overbalance the melodious and limpid lines of President Roosevelt. For this problem the appropriate musical accompaniment would seem to be: "Poet and Peasant."

"She was lying down on her bed when a gag was clapped over her mouth. Pharaoh, of course; but alone. She put up a fight, but he very soon had his way. He bound her wrists and ankles and took her master key. Then he carried her down her private staircase and into a secret room—the antechamber, in fact, to the cellar where lies the gold.

"I'm afraid there's no doubt that she suffered; but except that Pharaoh put it across her, she simply leaves that bit out. But he must have been pretty ruthless, for in the end she opened the secret panel concealing the cellar steps.

"Well, Pharaoh and Dewdrop went down to view the gold; but Rush and Bugle remained in the chamber on guard. I ought to have said that her hands and her feet had been freed. Still, she hadn't much chance, for they kept a touch on her face.

"I shall never understand why Pharaoh employed two such wash-outs as Bugle and Rush. The first thing those two bright lads did was, between them, to drop the torch. By the time they'd found it again their prisoner was gone. The door to the secret room is a secret door. It cannot be opened from within. It was, therefore, standing open. In a flash my lady was out and had shut the door.

"Well, though she was safe, she wasn't clear of the wood. She was locked in a staircase-turret, and Rush had her master key. She called from the embrasures, but, as the castle was empty, there weren't any ears to hear. Then, after a while she found Babro standing beside her, licking her hand."

"I felt that such a statement demanded some sort of expression of disbelief. "But you said—" "You shut your face," said Geoffrey. "Truth is stranger than fiction—every time. The door to the turret was open and so were the doors to her room. But her room had been used. The thieves had escaped by the chimney, entered her room by the fireplace, cleaned themselves up in her bathroom and disappeared."

"The obvious thing to do was to search the castle forthwith. I ought to have said that long before I got back, the switchboard had been repaired and the lights had come on, and while my lady was talking, the staff which had been scattered was trickling back. Florin and I induced some sort of order before beginning the search.

"We began with my lady's bedroom. One look at the hearth was enough. There was soot all over the place. But nothing and nobody else. We left the watchmen there and my lady and Florin and I went down to the secret room. It was empty now, we knew, for Pharaoh and company were gone; but the door to the cellar was open and my lady wanted it shut."

He took a deep breath. "I'll tell you what we found. We found Pharaoh, Dewdrop and Rush—all three of them dead."

"Go on," said I, incredulously. "Fact," said my cousin, shortly. "I'm glad you weren't there to see it. It was a dreadful sight. Bugle had done the three in and then cleared out. I fancy there'd been some scrap. Pharaoh's back was broken; he had no wound.

"And here's my interpretation of this astounding find. "In Pharaoh's absence Bugle and Rush between them let Lady Helena go. Warrantably fearful of the consequences of what they had done, Rush and Bugle quarrelled, and Bugle killed Rush. Afraid to face Pharaoh—such a dereliction of duty meant almost certain death—Bugle decided to kill him and Dewdrop, too. And so he did. Then he escaped by the chimney, with Lady Helena's master key. This let him out of the castle by the way by which he came in. Why he waited to let her out, I cannot conceive. Possibly some twinge of conscience—you never know. That's one of the points which we shall never clear up."

"Then everything's over," said I. "The terror is laid," said Geoffrey. "Bugle remains, of course. But I've much doubt if we shall see Bugle again."

Thoughtfully I regarded my napkin. Was it five or six days before a corpse rose to the surface of the water in which it lay?

"Then everything's over," I repeated. "Except the interment," said Geoffrey, "which is fixed for tomorrow evening, as soon as it's decently dark. As you seem to have had a night off, I think you might help with that."

Six days had gone by, and my precious secret was safe. This was hardly surprising. Only two beings knew that I had approached the castle that terrible night; and of these, the one was a dog and the other was dead. I had not used Barley's pistol; I had cleaned my cousin's knife; my filthy garments lay hid in the Plumeage woods. Nobody knew that in my defence was Helena's master key.

But another secret was safe. On the Sunday night Pharaoh, Dewdrop and Rush had been laid in a common grave, not far from the mouth of the tunnel that ran from the moat. Though nobody knew it but I, Bugle had not been there. For some unac-countable reason the moat still withheld its dead. My cousin was painting Plumeage. Twice a day he visited Yorick; but I was not invited and would not go up unasked. Neither would I go to Plumeage—although I longed to see her—because I was sure that Helena sat with my cousin and watched him at work.

I had made up my mind to leave Annabel and to go and stay at Innsbruck which was a city I knew. My cousin was to follow with Barley in four days' time.

And so I was sitting at Annabel, cursing life and regarding my half-packed trunks with at listless stare, when the host of the inn came bustling with a note in his hand.

Dear John, "Your cousin tells me that you are leaving tonight. Before you go, will you be so good as to show me where young Florin lies? I would not ask you this favour, but I was fond of young Florin, and you are the only being who knows the site of his grave, and so, if it will suit you, I will call for you today at a quarter to three. Please will you tell the bearer 'yes' or 'no'." HELENA.

I went down to the door of The Resaping Hook, to speak to the groom. "Tell her ladyship 'yes,'" I said.

As the coupe stole into the forecourt, I descended the steps of the inn.

Helena smiled and nodded and I took off my hat.

"Will you drive, please?" "With a pounding heart, I took my seat by her side, perceived the glow of her presence, discovered her faint perfume.

The spot to which we were going lay 12 miles off, and, after leaving the car, we must walk half a mile through the forest to come to the doil. He sure.

"I shall never understand why Pharaoh employed two such wash-outs as Bugle and Rush. The first thing those two bright lads did was, between them, to drop the torch. By the time they'd found it again their prisoner was gone. The door to the secret room is a secret door. It cannot be opened from within. It was, therefore, standing open. posed at big things together—you and I. We've eaten of strange, sweet fruits—like two children, hand in hand. And now we're back where we were—where we were when you came to Plumeage and I told you about the gold. We can go farther back; perhaps we have. But I'd like to stop there, if you can. I mean, one can always be friends. "I can stop there," I said thickly. "That's right," said Helena gently. "I thought you could."

For a moment she looked at the palms of her little hands, as though to consult those pretty pages before proceeding with a discourse that was making my heart feel cold.

Then— "When I say friends, I mean it, I'll always have a feeling that I can depend upon you. I shan't attempt to, you know. But I shall be glad of the feeling. You know. When things go wrong, it makes a world of difference if you can say to yourself 'If So-and-so were here, they would understand.'"

"You can count on me," I said. "You let me come to know you as—as I'll never know anyone else."

"Will it help you, John?" "I don't know. I'll write and tell you."

"That's right. And I'll always answer. You see, my dear, we must never meet again. We've looked at glory together—and turned away. It wasn't our fault, you know. We rather... rushed our fences. But down in that valley of shadow we gave each other judgment... and the judgments were good."

I could not speak. I sat as though turned to stone. My heart in my breast was ice. The blow which had fallen already, had fallen again. I had nothing to lose, and had lost it. "From him that hath not shall be taken away even that which he hath."

"I—I don't know that mine was," I said desperately.

"I'm afraid it was," said Helena. "I put my love above honor—and you mustn't do that. And in any event mine was. You took my love and you put it back in its place. I don't say you weren't right to do it, because you were. But there are some flowers, my dear, that you can't transplant. I mean—if you move them, they die."

Blow upon blow. Couldn't she see that the thing she was striking was dead? Everything and everyone was dead. Young Florin and Pharaoh and Dewdrop and Bugle—and Rush—and now her love. And I had killed them—not Bugle, of course, nor young Florin. But everything else.

"That's all right," I heard myself saying. "I'm glad... it's dead."

There was a long, long silence. By the time it was over I had myself in hand.

At length— "Poor Bugle," said Helena slowly. "He did me a very good turn."

"By dropping the torch," said I. "I suppose he dropped it," she said. "But Rush was bullying me, and sometimes I think that Bugle was going to stop him. I don't know, of course. When it fell, I just flew for the door. And in any event he waited to set me free."

"A twinge of conscience," said I. Helena shrugged her shoulders. "He needn't have done it," she said. And then again, "Poor Bugle. I'll always remember him kindly. I think he was the best of the lot."

"I think you're right," said I. "I had a weakness for Bugle, to tell you the truth. Of course Rush showed him off."

"I know, I know. But he had a spark of feeling. More than a spark, I think. Very few men, placed as he was, would have troubled to let me out."

"What will you do," I said, "about the loss of your master key?" "Change the locks, I suppose. It's a hideous waste of money; but if Bugle's tempted, you know, there are plenty of crooks who'd pay a long price for that key."

I dared not pursue the matter: to do so would be to sail too close to the wind. I decided that Bugle must show another spark of feeling by returning her master key. I would post it to her.

There was another silence. With her eyes on young Florin's grave, Helena spoke again. "That wasn't the only reason why I wanted to see you before you went. I want your help in a matter..."

"Your cousin is painting my picture—he's nearly done. It is the most lovely portrait... And as he won't hear of a fee, I want to make him a present."

"Well, I've got a cup at Yorick, an old gold cup, with a curious history. Years ago, in the sixteenth century, the Yorick of that day was painted. A young painter came from Vienna, a man called Latz. Had he lived, he would have been famous, for the picture is terribly good. Your cousin picked it out in an instant as being the best of the lot. Well, when the painter had finished, the count was so pleased with his work that he called for wine and drank the young man's health, and when he had drained the cup he called for gold. I suppose his treasurer brought it. Then he filled the cup with gold pieces and gave the painter the lot. I hope it was adequate payment. In those days it probably was. The next morning the painter left Yorick to make his way home. On his lonely ride to Salzburg the poor man was robbed and murdered—his body was found by the road. Now the thieves didn't break up the cup, but six months later they tried to sell it at Innsbruck where Yorick then had a hotel. But, as it happened, they took it to the very goldsmith that Yorick himself employed. The moment he saw the arms, he knew that the cup had been stolen, and, to cut a long story short, the thieves were taken and hanged and the cup came back to the castle because the poor painter was dead."

"I must bring old Florin," said Helena. "I think it would help him a little."

Helena sat herself down with her back to the rippling brook. "I'd like to stay friends," she said. "I know you're going away, and I think you're right. But I'd like to think that though our moments are over, we still were friends."

"If you please," said I, dully, and sat down a little apart. "I've so much to thank you for."

"I don't know that you have. But that's neither here nor there. We're

Commissioners Proceedings

Regular July 1936 Meeting Of The Board Of County Commissioners Of Lincoln County, New Mexico.
Meeting was called to order, Monday, July 6th 1936 at 10 o'clock A. M. by Tom McCamant, Deputy Sheriff.

Present: T. E. Kelley, Chairman Melvin Franks, Vice-Chairman Hilario Gomez, Member Tom McCamant, Deputy Sheriff Ernest Key, Clerk.

The minutes of previous meetings were read by the Clerk and corrected and approved by the Board.

The Board instructed the Clerk to bring all budget items down to date and list all claims available to try and see if the budget was sufficient to pay all of said claims. After careful estimates the Clerk reported that the Court Funds were overdrawn, and that apparently the Salary and General County Budgets would also be overdrawn.

The Board recessed at 12 o'clock M. until 1 o'clock P. M.
The Board convened at 1 o'clock P. M., pursuant to recess.

It appearing to the Board that there would possibly be overdrafts in the General County Fund and in the Salary Fund, on Motion of Melvin Franks, seconded by Hilario Gomez and carried it was Resolved that Proper requests be made upon the State Tax Commission for a Transfer of one Budget item to another to take care of such emergency overdrafts.

The Clerk reporting to the Board that in his opinion sufficient funds are anticipated in collection for the 25th fiscal year and it appearing to said Board that the Budget in General County should be increased for the said 25th fiscal year, on Motion of Melvin Franks, seconded by Hilario Gomez and Carried, it was resolved by the board that proper Request be made upon the State Tax Commission to increase the General County Budget for the 25th Fiscal year on anticipated collections.

It having been brought to the attention of the Board of County Commissioners that a Judgment was rendered against said Board in the Matter of Frank English, doing business under name and Style of the Carrizozo Trading Company of Carrizozo, vs. Board of County Commissioners of Lincoln County, by the District Court in Cause No. 4253, and it appearing to said Board that there are in the hands of the County Treasurer in the 1928 and Prior Tax collections the sum of $284.47; so saved by the Treasurer for such emergencies. Therefore on Motion of Hilario Gomez and passed, Resolution was made requesting the State Tax Commission of the State of New Mexico to secure proper authority for transfer of said monies into the 1932-1933 Court House and Jail Repair Funds in order to pay the Judgment of Court so rendered, and the Clerk was instructed to send Certified copies to said State Tax Commission for such request.

The Justice of Peace Reports of S. W. Land, Justice of the Peace in Precinct No. 10, Ruidoso, and of Elerdo Chavez, Justice of the Peace in Precinct No. 14, Carrizozo, were approved by the Board.

There being no further business of like nature at this time the Board took up the business of Minutes of Accounts allowed and after approving such accounts as were allowed instructed the Clerk to pay all such where in funds are available, in General County, Salary, Road, Court House & Jail Repair, Indigent and Health Funds.

There being No Further business before the Board on said day the Board on Motion recessed at 5:30 o'clock P. M., subject to call. Board of County Commissioners Lincoln County, New Mexico. By: T. E. Kelley, Chairman.

HOW

CONGRESS MANUFACTURES LAWS FOR THIS NATION.

Just how are our national laws made? That is a question every American should be vitally interested in and should be able to answer in order to vote more intelligently. Although few people know just what steps are necessary to get the "wishes" of the people written into bills and what winding trails these bills follow through congress before they are enacted into the law of the land, congressional doings are being followed during the present administration with more than usual interest by the nation as a whole. In order that its readers may follow the proceedings of the greatest legislative body in the world with still more interest the Pathfinder tells how the wheels of this legislative mill grind.

The law-making power of the government is vested, by the Constitution, in congress. Congress consists of two branches—the senate and the house of representatives. The senate is composed of 96 members, two from each state regardless of population. Membership in the house is apportioned on the basis of population, no state having less than one representative. The total membership of the house is now 435, and the presiding officer is the speaker. Senators are elected for terms of six years and representatives for two years.—Pathfinder Magazine.

How the Famous Empire

State Building is Heated

The owners of the Empire State building contracted for an outside supply of steam for heating purposes. This is derived from two entirely independent steam mains. The building has a two-pipe vacuum system with steam turbine-driven vacuum pumps discharging through suitable heat exchangers into the sewer. The equipment is divided into four separate zones, the lower, up to and including the fifth floor, being supplied from the mains in the sub-basement. The next section is supplied downward from a set of mains on the twenty-ninth floor ceiling. The section from the thirtieth to the forty-fifth floors is supplied upward from mains on the twenty-ninth floor, and the top of the building, including the tower, from mains on the fifty-fourth floor ceiling. There are about 7,000 radiators.

How Balboa Found the Pacific

Balboa was living in Hispaniola and having fallen deeply into debt, feared imprisonment. He hid in a cave and got himself smuggled aboard a ship leaving for the mainland of Central America. There he was successful in making friends with the Indians. He heard, while there, that a complaint had been lodged against him with the king of Spain, possibly on the old charge of fleeing from debt. Determined to perform some feat which might soften the king's wrath, he set out into the wilderness with some companions, among them Pizarro, destined to be conqueror of Peru, and stumbled upon the greatest ocean on the globe.

Hiawatha Brought Peace and Goodwill to Indians

Hiawatha is the Iroquois name of a hero, of miraculous birth, who came to the North American Indians, to bring them peace and goodwill, observes a writer in the Cleveland Plain Dealer.

In Longfellow's poem, published in 1855, he was a member of the Ojibway tribe, reared by his grandmother, Nokomis, daughter of the moon.

Hiawatha represents the progress of civilization among the Indians. First he wrestled with Mondamin (Indian maize), whom he subdued, and gave to man bread-corn. He then taught man navigation; then he subdued the Mische-Nahma or surgeon, and told the people to "bring all their pots and kettles and make oil for the winter."

Hiawatha then conquered Meglissogwon, the magician, "who sent the fiery fever on man; sent the white fog from the fen-lands; sent disease and death among us" and he taught his people the science of medicine. Then he married "Laughing Water," setting his adherents an example to follow. Lastly, he taught them picture writing.

With the arrival of the white men and their religious faith, Hiawatha asked his people to receive the new words of wisdom and departed "to the kingdom of Ponemah, the land of the Hereafter."

Sparrows Are Productive

It is not unusual in some parts of the country for a single pair of English sparrows to rear 20 to 30 young in the course of a year. Assuming the annual product of a pair to be 24 young, of which half are females and half males, and assuming that all live, together with their offspring, in ten years the total progeny would be 275,714,288,000.

U. S. Tidal Shores Line

The total length of the tidal shore line and total area of continental United States, including islands, is 21,362 statute miles; of which 15,132 miles is in Alaska. The area of continental United States is 3,026,780 square miles; the area of Alaska, including the Aleutian Islands, is 584,400 square miles.

Care Important in Selection of Shoes

Are you one of the persons who spend more time in buying fashionable shoes rather than determining that you are being well fit? Various surveys have proven that the majority of both men and women are wearing shoes which are not well fitted and comfortable. And this condition is not limited to adults. It has been learned that many children are having their feet injured by wearing shoes that are too short, that hinder proper circulation, or that are poorly built.

The foot is a flexible structure, made of 26 bones held together by muscular bands, and is somewhat semicircular in shape, curved on the outside and straight on the inside. Shoes which tend to force the toes out of line are going to cause trouble eventually. And who can enjoy anything when the feet have developed bunions, corns, or painful fallen arches?

When buying shoes for children be sure they are an inch longer than the length of the foot and one-fourth inch wider. The soles should be flexible and the counters snugly fitted. The uppers should be full and the inner lines straight. Children are prone to outgrow their shoes before they are worn out. Examine the old shoes carefully when buying new ones and correct the difficulties.

Adults should buy the best type of shoes for working hours and not for Sunday or the occasional party. Relative to their size, the feet do more work than does any other part of the body. Every-day shoes should have straight inner lines, wide roomy toes in sole and upper, and broad, low heels. Fit them carefully that they may have the correct length and width. You cannot mistreat your feet for years and expect to be comfortable and healthy.—Health Bulletin.

Carrizozo enjoyed a very refreshing rain last Wednesday.

Local and Personal

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Coplin and two sons of Kansas City, are visiting their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Ziegler.

Miss Helen Rice, formerly of Lincoln, but now of Rexburg, Idaho, wrote an interesting letter to the News last week, in which she sends good wishes to her many Lincoln County friends.

Mr. Joyce of Ruidoso was a business visitor here today.

Mr. Wells of White Oaks was a Carrizozo visitor yesterday. He is working hard in the interest of his candidacy for commissioner. In our mention of his service in the World War, we stated he spent 6 months abroad in active service, but it should have been twenty-two months in active service.

Recently Dr. M. G. Paden read us a letter he received from his nephew, who is Captain on a steamboat plying on the Ohio river between Louisville and Cincinnati. The letter stated that nothing could change the sentiment of the people in that part of the country from President Roosevelt and the administration; that times were much better and that there was far less of suffering and deprivation among the poorer people under Roosevelt policies.

WHY

Smoking is Enjoyed by Many Men and Some Women

Nicotine seems to be the obvious answer. Yet the corroborative evidence has been too good. Not to the carbon monoxide given off by a cigar or a pipe, the explanation. If it were, smokers would find the fumes of auto engines and motor trucks with delight. Turn to any of the other products of tobacco's combustion or to any of its ingredients. Not one of them accounts for the seductiveness of a cigarette. Dr. Howard W. Haggard and Leon A. Greenberg of Yale's Laboratory of Applied Physiology tell us in Science that they hit upon the key to the mystery while they were trying to find out how often children, college students and industrial workers should be fed. After a meal the blood sugar increased, only to fall again to the fasting level and remain there, with a few exceptions, for many hours.

The exceptions were never the experimental children. So Haggard and Greenberg concentrated on the adults. Emotional disturbances have an effect on blood sugar, but these were ruled out. A persistent search for the cause led to nicotine. When the fasting level had been reached the amount of sugar in the blood rose quickly after smoking.

This wasn't exactly new. It had long been known that when nicotine is injected into animals their blood sugar temporarily rises. But no one had suspected that the smoking of a cigarette would produce the same effect.—New York Herald Tribune.

Once Alaskan Capital

Sitka, once the capital of Alaska, when the "Wild Land" was under Russian rule, is located on an island amid myriads of isles, one of which is surmounted by majestic Mount Edgecombe. St. Michael's cathedral was built in 1817 and is in the form of a cross. It is the oldest shrine on the Pacific coast. The equipment still shows the lavish splendors of early Russian decoration and contains the same vestments.

Servants in Medieval Castle

In a medieval castle servants included the steward, who was a general domestic butler. There would be one or more cooks, depending on the size of the establishment. There would be scullions, butchers, millers, cellars, cup bearers and a miscellaneous crew of boys and men doing menial work. More on the military side, but still servants, were the armorers, farriers, hostlers and groomers. Every castle had its priest, who also was a sort of servant. A priest might also act as a messenger and scribe. There often was a fool or jester. There were many maids, a housekeeper and seamstress.

People Fire Conscious

Capitan N. M. July 24.

It is encouraging to note that the people of Lincoln County and in fact the whole Lincoln Forest and surrounding country are becoming "fire conscious."

On the fourth and fifth of July estimated number of people in the national Forest was 25,000. Of this number about 10,000 visited the Ruidoso area, 1,000 the Bonito Creek area and about 400 the Eagle Creek and Pine Lodge areas on the Lincoln Division of the forest. This was perhaps the largest crowd ever handled on this section of the forest at any one time and we are proud to say without a single man-caused fire.

A large part of the credit is due to the merchants of the area who co-operated in not selling fire works and to the many people living in the forest who gave the fullest co-operation in helping to keep down the fire danger.

We sincerely hope that the remainder of the year will be as satisfactory as it has been so far.

CONTRASTS

Our County Commissioners have carried forward the most extensive road program that has ever been undertaken in this county. Working in unison with the boards of education, Governor Tingley, and other state and federal agencies, the accomplishments in every public department and public office have been marvelous. Take a trip to any point in the county and contrast the roads now, and four years ago. Also contrast the schools and school houses with those of four years ago; contrast all lines of business; people's homes, clothes, cars, and in fact anything. The contrasts are so vivid and so remarkable that any serious thinking individual would hesitate a long time before voting for a ticket that would plunge us again into the gloom of those latter days of the Hoover administration.

Oren M. Downing

Oren M. Downing, employee of the Southern Pacific Railroad Company for the past twenty-two years, and agent at Corona, New Mexico, for about ten years, died July 17, 1936, at Saint Mary's Hospital, Tucson Arizona.

Mr. Downing was born at Bloomfield, Iowa, May 2, 1871 at which place he married Elsie May Turpin, Nov. 26 1893, five children being born of this union.

Surviving relatives include his widow, two sons, Don of Modesto, California, and Oren L. of Nara Visa, New Mexico, three daughters, Mesdames Paul Long, of Corona, Leo Smith of Albuquerque, and Walter Gage of Richmond, California, eight grandchildren, and one brother, Elmer Downing of Arkansas City, Kansas.

Services were held at the First Baptist Church, Corona, Monday July 20, the Rev. Henshaw of the Christian Church of Albuquerque, officiating. Burial was made in local cemetery. Active pallbearers being Messrs. A. J. Atkinson, Frank DuBois, Glen Greer, Archie Perkins, Claude Casey, Wilbur Dishman, and Aubrey Thompson. The Rev. Rolls' male quartette, with Mrs. Rolls at the piano, sang three beautiful selections. Amid a profusion of floral pieces from family and friends, a lovely wreath from the Order of Railroad Telegraphers, of which Mr. Downing had long been a member, was noticeable.

Mr. Downing moved to the R. R. Agency at Curtis, Arizona, Jan. 16th, 1936, for the benefit of his health, but Corona remained his home. His high ideals and quiet personality had endeared him to many friends. He will be greatly missed, and the sorrowing family have the deepest sympathy of the entire community.

John B. Heilman

Mr. John B. Heilman passed away July 16th at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Pearl Stearns, who lives near Nogal. Mr. Heilman was born in Pennsylvania in 1836 and had he lived eight more days would have passed his 100th birthday.

Rev. J. A. Bell conducted funeral services at the Methodist Church here last Friday afternoon after which the remains were shipped to Colorado for interment.

Mr. Heilman had spent a long, active and useful life, having come to the West in a covered wagon in company with one hundred other pioneers.

He was pre-eminently a pioneer. As he moved westward with the changing frontiers, he voted for statehood in three different territories: Iowa, Colorado and New Mexico.

Mr. Heilman located at Denver, Colorado, many years ago where he was employed as a horticulturist. He was one of the first men to introduce sugar beet raising in commercial quantities in Colorado.

He located in New Mexico forty years ago.

Mr. Heilman is survived by two daughters, Mrs. Pearl

Auto Engineers Study Effects of Motor Vibrations

Humans Best Fitted to Stand Vertical Shocks

WHITESULPHUR SPRINGS, W. VA.—Transverse vibration, or sideways, causes motor car riding annoyance quicker than any other type of vibration, it was disclosed here at the meeting of the Society of Automotive Engineers.

Prof. H. M. Jacklin, Purdue university authority, told of his studies of motor car vibrations with an instrument for measuring "accelerations." The apparatus turns mere human guesses about riding comfort into facts and figures.

First using a shaking table in his laboratory and test subjects seated on hard type rattan street car seats, Professor Jacklin found the following comparison between the three possible types of vibration—transverse (sideways), longitudinal and vertical:

Vertical	.....31.3
Longitudinal	.....4.03
Transverse	.....2.35

The figures represent an arbitrary scale devised by Professor Jacklin which gives a measure of vibration tolerated with only "disturbing" results. The important thing is that the human body will tolerate nearly twice as much longitudinal vibration as transverse, and nearly 15 times as much vertical vibration as transverse or sideways.

Reactions to Discomfort

Going from the laboratory to driving in real cars, Professor Jacklin used a specially chosen test group of observers whose records in the laboratory indicated that they were nearly normal in their reactions.

Particular attention was given to "disturbing" vibrations which Professor Jacklin defines as, "You note that certain organs or parts of your body have greater vibrations than you, yourself, and you try to prevent this by tightening certain muscles."

Molecules Sorted by Chemist Like Peas in Cannery

ST. LOUIS.—It is now possible for the chemist to sort out molecules, as a canning factory grades peas by passing them through sieves, by using cellulose membrane of the kind employed to wrap cigarettes.

How the "holes" in transparent cigarette wrapping material can be varied in size to allow such sorting was described by Prof. James W. McInnis and Dr. R. F. Stuewer of Stanford university before the Thirteenth Colloid Symposium of the American Chemical society here.

Openings Are Adjusted

"The holes," said the scientists, "may be adjusted smaller and smaller so that it is possible to put a solution of sugar or of salt or milk through and get only pure water."

Application of the molecule sorting, it was indicated, is in finding out how far certain molecules in a solution exist independent of one another.

"In a solution of pectin, which is the basis of most of the preparations which the housewife uses for making jellies, it is found that the colloidal particles of pectin contain one-third of their weight of molecules of water," the scientists reported.

One Chance in Million of Earth-Planet Crash

PROVIDENCE, R. I.—The chances were only about one in a million that the famous baby planet Anteros would strike an inhabited portion of the earth when it made an unprecedented close approach of 1,200,000 miles to the earth last February 7.

Astronomers and laymen can be assured by the calculations of Prof. C. H. Smiley and Ward Crowley of Brown university reported to the scientific journal, Science, which provide an antidote to the "sad stories of what might have happened if the planet had struck the earth."

Only sixteen of a million bodies coming to within a million miles will strike the earth, their figures show, and about 73 per cent will fall in oceans or seas and 28 per cent in sparsely inhabited territory.

Mile-Deep Canyons Found in Atlantic Off Jersey Coast

U. S. Coast Survey Ship Reports Unusual Finding

DISCOVERY of three vast submarine canyons, hitherto unknown to science, is reported by Prof. Francis P. Shepard, who has just returned to Washington, D. C., from a cruise on the U. S. coast survey ship Oceanographer. Professor Shepard's participation in the survey was assisted by a grant from the Geological Society of America.

The canyons are cut deep into the sea bottom off the middle Atlantic region of the United States. They lie to the southwest of the great submarine Hudson canyon, which continues the Hudson valley far under the ocean from the mouth of the present Hudson river.

7,000 Feet Below Sea

Greatest depth of the floors of the three new-found canyons is 7,000 feet below sea level. Their walls rise above this level 1,000, 1,500 and 2,000 feet respectively.

The deepest of the three is the southernmost. This canyon is located approximately off Toms river, New Jersey, and cuts back into the continental shelf for about three miles. The other two terminate headward below the shelf margin.

All of these canyons extend directly down the continental shelf slope in the direction which would be expected of streams if the sea level were lowered, and their shapes are decidedly those of stream-cut canyons.

Scientist Makes Soundings

Professor Shepard has plotted the 4,700 soundings of the recent Hudson canyon survey on a large scale. He states: "This is the most complete deepwater survey ever made and probably the most successful of the surveys to date. The canyon is much straighter than previously supposed, being practically identical in character with the canyons off Georges Bank in having a maximum wall height of 4,000 feet; but the hundred-fathom curve is bent shoreward 10 miles as compared to 13 for the largest of the Georges canyons. The walls are not quite as deep in the case of the Hudson canyon. The bottom declivity is fairly uniform but shows an increase between 3,500 and 4,500 feet, which is probably due to the outcrop of a harder layer along the canyon course."

"Inside the canyon, as was known previously, a valley only about sixty feet deep extends almost into New York. This shallow valley is only a few feet deep where it joins the head of the canyon."

Okapi, Cousin of Giraffe, 30 Million Years Out of Step

PHILADELPHIA.—Okapi, queer-looking jungle cousin of the giraffe and one of the world's rarest mammals, is a "living fossil," 30 million years out of step with the times.

This is the verdict rendered to the American Society of Mammalogists at their meeting here, by Edwin H. Colbert, research worker at the American Museum of Natural History.

Is Almost Extinct

Mr. Colbert has made a careful examination of okapi skeletal material, and finds that though the animal is related to the modern giraffe, it is in all respects more primitive than any fossil giraffe known. He considers it to be more like what an ancestor-giraffe might have been, back in Miocene times, 20 million years ago.

Although not an extinct animal, the okapi is apparently about as near extinction as a species can get, and still survive. It was never seen by white men until the beginning of the present century, when its discovery by Sir Harry Johnston, then governor of the British province of Uganda in Africa, caused a furor in the scientific world and even a newspaper sensation.

Five-Year Closed Season Asked for Fur Animals

WASHINGTON.—Five years of complete protection for three valuable fur-bearing animals, marten, fisher and wolverine, are asked by Ira N. Gabrielson, chief of the bureau of biological survey, United States Department of Agriculture. Although several states have given this protection within their borders, others have not.

One of the reasons why their numbers have been rapidly reduced, Mr. Gabrielson states, is that they have been subjected to unrestricted trapping during the critical months before the birth of the young, so that the killing of a single female has meant the wiping out of a whole brood.

The Man Who O-O

Tales and Traditions from American Political History

FRANK L. HAGEN and ELMO SCOTT WATSON

DRAFTED

FROM time to time there has been talk of "drafting" some candidate. However, there have been only two instances in our political history when a man was given the nomination against his will and in both cases the drafted candidate was defeated in the election.

In 1868 one of the issues raised by the Democrats was a demand for the payment of the war debt in paper money issued for this purpose. Its chief advocate was George H. Pendleton of Cincinnati and the appeal of the "Ohio Idea," was so great that he was the logical candidate for the nomination.

But Horatio Seymour, the Civil war governor of New York, was opposed to both the "Ohio Idea" and the candidacy of its chief supporter. As chairman of the convention he was able to prevent Pendleton's nomination but he could not keep the inflation plank out of the platform.

After many ballots, and some confusion it turned to Seymour and, although he shouted from the platform "Your candidate I can not be!" the delegates went right ahead and nominated him.

Although Seymour polled 2,709,213 popular votes to 3,015,071 for Gen. U. S. Grant, the Republican nominee, and carried eight states, the electoral vote stood 214 for Grant and 60 for Seymour. This defeat ended his political career for he considered his acceptance of an unwanted nomination as the greatest mistake of his life and would never again consider running for any office.

Four years later a peculiar political situation resulted in another case of "drafting." A faction of the Republican party, dissatisfied with the Grant administration and his renomination, held another convention in Cincinnati and chose Horace Greeley for President and B. Gratz Brown of Missouri for vice-president. When the Democrats met in Baltimore they decided that a fusion ticket might defeat Grant so they also nominated Greeley and Brown.

But this action offended the "old line" Democrats so they held a convention in Louisville, Ky. For President they selected Charles O'Connor, a distinguished New York lawyer who had won the deep affection of the South by his efforts to secure the release of Jefferson Davis from prison at Fortress Monroe and to defend him against the charge of treason. O'Connor was nominated on the first ballot by a vote of 600 to four and for their vice-president they named John Quincy Adams of Massachusetts.

Immediately after the balloting O'Connor was notified by telegraph of his nomination and at once declined to accept it. The convention was thrown into disorder and an attempt was made to give the honor to the permanent chairman, James Lyons of Virginia, but he refused. So the convention adopted a resolution reiterating the selection of O'Connor and Adams and immediately adjourned. In the election which followed O'Connor and Adams received 23,453 votes scattered through 23 states. This was not an impressive showing but the "Greeleyites" did little better and the 23,000 had the satisfaction of knowing that they had been true to a plank in their platform which read, "We welcome an eternal minority under the banner inscribed with our principles rather than an almighty and everlasting majority purchased by their abandonment."

MORE THAN A WHISPER
RARE indeed is the Presidential contest which does not bring out a "whispering campaign"—that attempt to discredit a candidate by circulating slanderous stories reflecting upon his morals or motives. So it is refreshing to learn that occasionally political partisans dare to speak out boldly against an opponent instead of working against him secretly and in the dark—to shout rather than to whisper.

One of the earliest examples of this kind of campaigning took place during the Adams-Jackson contest in 1820. It was a printed placard which read:

IMMORALITY
"Fellow citizens, can we vote for the man who openly sets the laws of the great Jehovah at defiance, thereby showing a bad example to our children? Some few Sundays ago Mr. Adams passed through Providence galloping and running his horse, and at every tavern stopping to receive the salutes or huzzans of the Federal Party. I have always been an Adams man until he violated and trampled on the laws of God; now my conscience forbids my supporting him. I therefore shall choose Andrew Jackson, one who keeps holy the Sabbath Day."

The clever cutting of this useful pinafore is shown in the small diagram beside the little girl. You will see at once that this frock requires no sewing and of course the feature which so greatly intrigues children is the butterfly which forms the pocket. Notice how simple it is to put on, merely slipped over the head and tied at each side. Mothers find it a great help because it can be used as an apron over a frock, which must be kept clean, or worn instead of a frock. The panties to match are an asset—they have the comfortable French yoke top and stay snug but never bind. This attractive design made in cotton, percale, gingham, calico, or lawn would be effective with contrasting binding and colorful embroidery on the butterfly pocket.
