Officials to Hear Protests

A meeting at which New Mexican stockmen will be asked to voice their protests relating to the Taylor Grazing Act will be held in Roswell Sept. 26, it was announced Monday by J. E. Stablein, acting regional grazer, division of grazing.

This meeting will be in conjunction with the meeting of the South-eastern New Mexico Grazing Association of District 6, to be held in Roswell, Sept. 25.

F. R. Carpenter, director, will attend and it is believed that Mrs. Antonette Funk, assistant secretary of the interior also will be present.

All stockmen, especially those in Districts 4, 5 and 6, are urged to attend the meeting.

Knox Talks on Recovery

Talking of forgotten men—what about Col. Frank Knox, who was nominated for Vice President at the Republican National Convention?

We know from the newspapers that he is making speeches hither and yon, but nobody talks about him and, though it is recorded that he has the widest of radio broadcasts, he gives the impression of somebody in a dark corner talking to himself.

Now a vice-presidential candidate is quite a fellow in the political picture. Theoretically he speaks with authority, only second to that of the presidential candidate. It is a phenomenon worthy of notice, under such circumstances, that newspapers do not editorialize on his utterances; that the speakers on the other side do not answer him, or in fact pay any attention to his statements. It is understandable that with a vivid candidate for the first place, the understudy might easily be overshadowed, but even his staunchest advocates do not credit Governor Landon with either brilliancy of utterance or magnetism of personality, so it is not a case of eclipse by a brighter constellation. Perhaps the circumstance that the Editor-Colonel is listened to with patience, instead of enthusiasm, may be due to the subject matter of his addresses.

His text is ordinarily the perilous plight to which our country has been brought by the Roosevelt administration. According to him the Roosevelt administration has precipitated the business-men of the nation into "a shadow of fear and uncertainty." He likewise informs us that the people have "seen natural recovery struggling desperately against fear and intimidation, and waste and destruction," and mentions that "the nation has lived for three years in an atmosphere of uncertainty and apprehension." Writers might complain that he ought to find a few variations of this form of expression, for all three of them came out in a single speech.

A little later he mentioned that the Democrats had "blocked real recovery by draining the nation's recuperative power," etc.

City Buys Crushed Rock

The City Council bought 1644 tons of crushed rock from R. G. Skousen at 30c which amounted to $493.20. It is all being used on the city streets.

Lyric Theatre

Mr. Walker has installed a new music machine for entertaining the public before and after the show at the Lyric. He is getting some excellent plays, too. Next Sunday, "The Trail of the Lonesome Pine," a play founded on the popular book by John Fox, Jr., the author who stirs your sentiment and makes your heart ache in unison with the characters as he presents them.

Mr. Dow Announces

Mr. Larry Dow requests us to inform the people through the columns of this paper that he again seeks re nomination and reelection to the office of County Assessor of Lincoln County. Mr. Dow has interviewed the majority of the tax payers in Lincoln county and has been fair to all; he has gotten as high a valuation as he reasonably could, and the books show quite an increase in valuations all over the county, due to his thorough canvass.

Mr. Dow is one of the best known citizens in the county and is well esteemed for his honesty and willingness to serve.

He makes and holds friends, and no more reliable or better qualified person could be found for this important office. He solicits your support upon past experience, with proven efficiency and energy.

An Expression of Appreciation

To our many Friends, One and All:

It is with deep felt gratitude that we come to thank you for the many kindnesses shown us; the most recent of which was the presentation of a beautiful Zenith radio. We wish to make special mention of Mr. and Mrs. F. J. Sager, who it seems originated the idea; to Mr. Carl who untiring efforts of solicitation brought the idea to a realization; to the Lincoln County Light and Power company for the liberal contribution of power; to Mr. Kroggel for the discount which helped wonderfully, and to Mr. Mitchell who installed the radio and to all who took part in this noble movement in bringing this means of information and entertainment to us. We again thank you all for your many favors. You do not know and I cannot tell you how very much anyone in my condition appreciates these favors.

Mr. and Mrs. E. T. Collier.

State Fair at Roswell

Three weeks before the opening of the fourteenth annual show, directors of the Eastern New Mexico State Fair to be held in Roswell October 7, 8, 9, 10, were playing checkers with the space in the exhibit buildings in order to accommodate the exhibitors who had already made reservations. And this despite the fact there is much more space available since the erection of additional buildings last winter.

Messrs. Roy Harmon and John Kelt, able and popular clerks at the post office have been quite busy handling the heavy mail which is passing through here.

Judge A. H. Hudspeth of Santa Fe was in town last Monday attending to business affairs.

ACROSTIC

Rise is what they did,
Oh! How it made them shift their quid!
Of truth they say we should not banter,
Sort of got them in a canter.
Every thinking woman and man,
Voters everywhere take the stand;
End that passing of the buck,
Landon is going to be out of luck,
This election he can't win with mud and muck.

New Curbs

Main street has been closed at different blocks ever since Monday while the workmen have been busy putting in new curbs. All streets in town are to be improved by curbs, gravel and eradication of chug holes.

On Wednesday, the city of Carrizozo moved its water crane from the corner of Main street opposite Richard's service station to the rear of the city hall, presumably to widen the street end to get rid of the mud puddle which stands there part of the time.

Joe McBrayer, assistant at the Harry Miller service station started to school last Monday and Andy Lucraz has taken his place.

Mr. Vigil of Lincoln was a Carrizozo visitor yesterday. Mr. Vigil says things look fine for the Democrats in his part of the county.

George Joyce now has three large buildings in charge. The two school buildings and the Community hall which the school board bought several months ago. Tony Perca has been made his assistant.

Mrs. Nellie Brantum and Mrs. Oscar Clouse went to Roswell last Wednesday to stay over for the big Al G. Barnes circus Thursday.

Mr. L. A. Wtaker went to Roswell Thursday to attend the Al G. Barnes Circus.

Mrs. Clea Prior has returned from a two week's stay in Michigan where she visited her sister.

Mr. W. J. Sandfer of Tinnie was attending to business affairs in town Wednesday.

A few Carrizozo people who attended the Al G. Barnes circus at Roswell last night were: Tennis Bigelow and wife, Claude Brantum, wife and children, Brack Carrett, Bill Compton, Buster Walker, Masson Hicks, Albert Roberts, Marvin Peckham, Mr. Kroggel, Mr. Finley and wife, Mrs. Tommy McCamant, Mr. Tommy Cook and wife, Mrs. C. E. Smith and children.

Mrs. G. A. Titsworth of Capitán and Mrs. Paul Mayer were co-hostesses yesterday at a tea honoring Mrs. Brickley of Carlsbad. One hundred guests were invited.

Auto Accident

Mrs. Charlie Adams of Capitán was brought to Dr. Rathmann's hospital Tuesday evening about 7 o'clock suffering from injuries received in an auto accident, Tuesday afternoon while driving home from the Capitán drug store with two others in the car. Being blinded by the sun, Mrs. Adams had a head-on collision with a truck. Both knee caps were fractured and a gash on the chin which required several stitches.

School Notes

I have received many requests for information on the "checking out" and "checking in" of books in my library, and have asked Mrs. A. F. Roselle, Lincoln County Rural School Librarian to summarize a few points governing them. They are as follows:

In each textbook furnished by the State Department of Education, a sticker bearing their name is placed. On this sticker, the name of the school, the number of the book as 1, 2, 3, etc. and name of subject are written. On an original and carbon copy of Accession Record Blanks furnished by the State Department, this same information is listed. When teacher checks out the books for her particular school, she signs both copies, leaves the original copy with me and keeps the carbon copy for her own record. Then when she returns the books at the close of the school year, each one is examined, notations and payments made on those same accession blanks for damaged and lost books, and credit given her for the return of undamaged.

The library books are classified according to the Dewey Decimal Classification System as follows:

- 100 -- Philosophy
- 200 -- Religion
- 300 -- Sociology
- 400 -- General Work
- 500 -- Natural Science
- 600 -- Useful Arts
- 700 -- Fine Arts
- 800 -- Literature
- 900 -- History

Each serial number of book, and classification are written on each book, envelope in book, and card in envelope. Each teacher is allowed to check out twelve library books for a period of a month's time. The signed cards are a record of the books she has checked. At the close of that period of time, she returns these books, allows them to be examined for defects that might have been incurred during the month, crosses her name from each card in the presence of the librarian, pays for the damaged ones, places the cards in the envelopes, and places the books in their respective classified places in the library. She has thus cleared her record and is allowed to check out twelve new ones.

On the fifth day of September, over 4000 text and library books were checked out to the rural schools of the county. I look to see the library books circulate from one school to another about every six weeks. I am in the library each day from 8 a. m. to 5 p. m. except Sunday, and cordially invite you to come and see what a splendid library it is.

All children in rural and city schools must be vaccinated by Monday the 21st. Teachers have been requested to exclude those not vaccinated until they are immunized. Please give this matter your early attention.

Republican Speaking

Last Monday evening Dr. Kent, Republican nominee for Land Commissioner, and Judge M. A. Otero, Republican nominee for short term Senator spoke to a fair sized crowd in community hall.

Mr. Wm. Gallacher, Lincoln County Chairman of the Republican party introduced Dr. Kent, the first speaker.

The superannuated college president admitted that he had opportunities to go to older states to supervise greater schools, at larger salaries, but his friends persuaded him to remain here to help build a young state. His talk was brief and we remember two funny stories he told which kept the crowd good natured.

Dr. Blaney introduced Judge Otero and stated it was the first time he had ever had the honor of introducing a United States senator. Perhaps when the votes are counted next November he will discover he still hasn't had that honor.

Judge Otero, who is not a man of great stature explained that he was standing on the Republican platform not from choice, but because he was drafted and intended to stand on it throughout the campaign.

He declared he "didn't believe in politics in relief." None of us do, as is evidenced by the number of Republicans who have been aided in getting good jobs and also those who have been on relief.

Judge Otero spoke at length, stating that "a mud bucket wasn't part of his equipment," then promptly proceeded to plaster Governor Tingley and Senator Chavez, but he didn't sound very convincing.

He seemed to consider the fact that Mr. Miller was an expert at handling delinquent boys, qualified him in every sense of the word to be governor of this great commonwealth.

We'd suppose it would take some vastly different qualities of mind, a far greater and more outstanding personality, coupled with executive ability of a high order to be a successful governor of the state.

An excellent, good hearted manager of hardened youths might become a mediocre Chief Executive.

TWO SPECIALS FOR BANANAS

Tasty Ways of Serving One of Our Best Fruits.

By EDITH M. BARBER

AMONG the best of our fruits we rate the banana. Perhaps you question the classification of the banana as such. It has, of course, the advantage of being in season the year around. It always seems to me, however, to be at its best, so far as flavor is concerned, at this time of the year.

This is fortunate because what would the picnicker do without it? How they fill in for the hungry ones who wait for lunch to be ready! At the same time they will furnish a dessert.

Do you like your bananas red or yellow? Some like the flavor of one and some of the other. Red bananas are slightly more juicy and a little more tart. They are not so plentiful as the yellow fruit and therefore are often more expensive. By the way, I had a different type of banana in Jamaica where it is a specialty and very popular. It is too fragile for export, so you will have to go to the tropics to taste it.

On the fruit boats which bring bananas from Central and South America to New York, two specialties found on the menu are bananas broiled in bacon and prepared for dessert with a rum sauce. This, by the way, is a good chafing dish dessert which may be prepared at the table. The bananas are sliced lengthwise, put into the dish with melted butter, sprinkled liberally with granulated sugar and then drenched with rum, which is then set on fire. While they are cooking they should be basted with the sauce formed by the other ingredients. The cooking should be short—just three or four minutes for the sale of texture and flavor.

Apricots with Bananas.

1/4 pound dried apricots
Sugar
3 bananas
Soak apricots in just enough water to cover for several hours. Cook until very tender. Force through strainer and stir in sugar to taste. Cut bananas in halves and arrange in a greased baking dish. Pour apricot pulp over the bananas. Bake in an oven 375 degrees fifteen minutes. Serve hot or cold. For serving hot, two tablespoons of whipped cream may be put on top of the fruit just before serving.

Fried Bananas.

Peel bananas, cut in halves crosswise or in quarters and roll in softened dry bread crumbs or in rolled cornflake crumbs. Fry in very deep fat, 395 degrees F. until light brown. Drain on soft paper and serve with broiled chops, steak or ham.

Pineapple Mousse.

1 teaspoon gelatin
2 tablespoons cold water
1 1/2 cups crushed grated pineapple and juice
1-3 cup sugar
1 tablespoon lemon juice
1 cup cream

Soak gelatin five minutes in the cold water. Heat pineapple and juice to boiling point, add sugar, lemon juice and gelatin. Cool when it begins to stiffen, fold it into stiffly whipped cream. Pour into tray and freeze without stirring.

Bisque Ice Cream.

1 cup condensed milk
1/2 cup water
1 1/2 teaspoons vanilla
1 cup cream
Salt

1 cup macaroon crumbs
Mix milk with water, add vanilla and salt. Whip cream until stiff. Fold into mixture. Turn into refrigerator freezing trays and freeze from three to four hours. Fills two pint trays.

English Shortcake.

6 slices buttered bread
1 quart berries or fruit
1 cup granulated sugar
Whipped cream.

Trim crust from bread and line a greased bowl with the slices, cutting corners so that the pieces meet. Pour in the berries, crushed, with sugar, cover with bread, set plate on top of this, press down with a weight and put in the refrigerator twenty-four hours. Turn out of mold, garnish with whipped cream and serve.

Cardamom Cookies.

1 cup butter
1 cup sugar
2 eggs, well beaten
4 cups flour
1 ounce cardamom seeds, crushed

Rind of 1/2 lemon, grated
Cream the butter with the sugar until light. Add eggs. Add flour, cardamom seeds and grated lemon rind. Chill dough, roll, cut with cookie cutter and bake in a hot oven, 400 degrees F. about eight minutes.

Pleasing Dining Room

A charming old English dining room has walls and woodwork painted half white and a white ceiling cross-beamed with dark oak. The furniture is also of dark oak, while the floor covering has deep rose tones in it. The draperies at the windows are dark blue with a pattern containing the lighter blue of the walls and the rose tones of the floor.

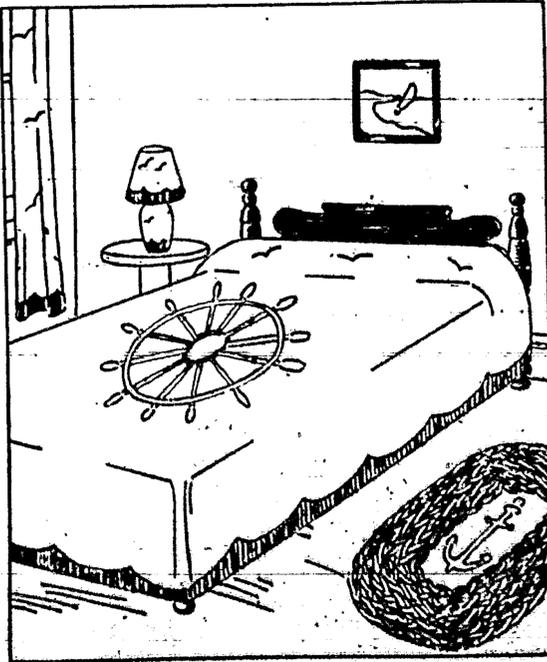

The Household

By LYDIA LE BARON WALKER

DECORATING the boy's room is something every mother who has a son finds intriguing. The lad spurns anything that savors of daintiness. He wants a real man's room. It is up to the mother to make the room as masculine in its character as she would make her daughter's room feminine in type. Most boys delight in boats and boating, and this suggests a nautical room for home, school or college. Fortunately there are many emblems that lend themselves admirably to ornamental use, ships and boats, anchors and ropes, sea creatures and seaweed, lighthouses and rocky shores with waves and breakers, fishermen and oarmen, etc.

Banks of Galley Oars.

One of the ancient ornamental conceits for weaving, rug-craft, and other craft arts is the galley oarman. When you know the motif the stylized row of oars or banks, as they are termed, is readily distinguished in what seems to be a maze of design. The motif is, of course, adapted to the necessities of the craft, such as the warp and weft, or filler, as it is frequently termed today.

A large anchor with its chain and fastening done in applique or tufting makes an excellent center motif for a bedspread, and in somewhat smaller size, for the center of sofa cushion covers. Strips of undulating applique supply the wave motif to use as bands for a border. Or if tufting is employed, the wave motif can be done in this work. In plain embroidery chain stitch done in heavy yarns is quick and correct for chains.

Fish and Seaweed.

The fish and seaweed design is just the thing to use on towels, bureau scarf, and table covers. This printed pattern for filet crochet or cross stitch by coualed threads, can be had while it lasts, by sending ten cents together with self-addressed, stamped (3-cent) envelope with a request directed to Lydia Le Baron Walker care of this paper.

Wall papers come in lighthouse patterns, seascapes, and ship designs. Or a plain wall paper can be the background for pictures featuring water, wharf, and marine scenes.

CROWN OF THORNS

DOUBTS of the identity of the leading presidential candidates, so thoroughly dispelled early in 1936, sometimes have held on to the midst of the conventions.

So it was that the Democratic gathering of 1896 provided a tremendous upset, giving the party William Jennings Bryan, a leader who literally was to wear a "crown of thorns" through three unsuccessful campaigns.

No less than 13 candidates for the Democratic nomination were regarded seriously in 1896 and the usual stableful of dark horses was present.

"Pitchfork Ben" Tillman of South Carolina, whose hat was definitely in the ring, prodded the delegates unmercifully and the wordy battles from the platform spread to one flat fight after another on the floor. Then Bryan was recognized.

"We are fighting in defense of our homes, our families, and posterity," he declaimed. "We have petitioned and our petitions have been scorned. We have entreated and our entreaties have been disregarded. We have begged and they have mocked us when our calamity came. We beg no more, we entreat no longer, we petition no more—we defy them!"

His remarks were on the financial plank of the Democratic platform and Bryan fired them directly at the delegation from New York. Then he closed with the defiance which still rings down the corridors of time: "You shall not press down upon the brow of labor this crown of thorns, you shall not crucify mankind upon a cross of gold."

He "stopped the show." The delegates went wild. When the business of the convention could be resumed the day following, Bryan was nominated.

His defeat by McKinley, two succeeding failures for the presidency, in truth settled a crown of thorns upon the brow of Bryan which he was doomed to wear until the last public act of his life—participation in the famous "monkey" trial down in Dayton, Tennessee. He held, and he swayed, multitudes with the power of his oratory, but on election day he could not mark their ballots for them.

THE FIRST PLATFORM

ONE of the essentials of a modern political convention is the adoption of a "platform" upon which the Presidential nominee is to "take his stand" during the campaign. Whether or not he stays on it is quite another matter but few candidates would think of going before the "peepul" without one.

The first platform appeared during the campaign of 1840. In that year the Democrats, holding their convention in Baltimore, set forth what they considered the fundamental principles of their party. Asserting that the federal government was one of strictly limited powers and that all grants not expressly made to it were reserved to the states, this platform

Declared against the assumption of state debts, contracted for local improvements, by the federal government.

Denied the power of the federal government to foster one industry, or section, to the detriment of another.

Asserted that the federal government exceeded its authority when it raised more revenue than was required to defray the ordinary expenses of administration.

Denied the power of congress to interfere with or control the institution of slavery.

Declared against the handling of public funds by private banks. Denounced restrictions upon the privileges of citizenship and of ownership of land with respect to foreign immigrants.

They then unanimously renominated Martin Van Buren for the presidency and got ready to fight the battle of ballots along the lines of policy they had laid down. But if they expected their opponents to meet them on that ground they were grievously disappointed. The Whigs not only failed to adopt a platform but they failed to put forth any statement of principles for the very good reason that they didn't have any. They disregarded issues entirely and launched their whirlwind "Tippecanoe and Tyler, Too!" campaign.

The bewildered Democrats stood firm on their platform and watched the procession go past—a triumphal procession for the Whigs.

Secretary of the Treasury
In 1789 congress enacted a law providing that the secretary of the treasury may not engage in trade or business, own steamships or otherwise be active in profit-making enterprises during his incumbency. He is liable, on conviction, to a $3,000 fine, dismissal and may never thereafter hold office under the federal government. The same provisions apply to the treasurer of the United States and the register of the treasury.

Shirtwaister for School Girl

1959-B.

Here is the frock for juniors to make for school days. A combination of rhythm in its hemline, rhyme in its color scheme and rhyne in its style. For late summer wear, try tub silk, linen, cotton or shantung with long or short sleeves. For autumn and winter—"tweedy" silk crepe or broadcloth.

The waist, gathered slightly to the shoulder yoke front and back, has a center pleat and pockets for trimming. Buttons—a matter of choice. A small collar, tie, and belt complete this most effective frock. By way of suggestion, make the collar and cuffs in contrast, and detachable to be readily removed for laundering.

Barbara Bell Pattern No. 1959-B

is available for sizes 8, 10, 12, 14 and 16. Size 12 requires two and three-eighths yards of 35-inch material with one-third yard of 35-inch contrasting material and one yard of ribbon for bow. With long sleeves it requires two and five-eighths yards.

"Duck Pond" in Stitchery

Pattern 5602

The "Duck Pond"—a quiet, shady nook where graceful ducks float to and fro, is a charming subject indeed for a wall-hanging, the detail will prove fascinating to embroider. It's no time before every stitch is in, done in wool or rope silk, and you're ready to line and hang it.

In pattern 5602 you will find a transfer pattern of a wall hanging 15 by 20 inches; material requirements; illustrations of all stitches needed; color suggestions.

To obtain this pattern send 15 cents in stamps or coins (coins preferred) to The Sewing Circle Household Arts Dept., 259 W. Fourteenth St., New York, N. Y.

Write plainly pattern number, your name and address.

When We Build

When we build, let it be such a work as our descendants will thank us for; and let us think, as we lay stone on stone, that a time is to come when those stones will be held sacred because our hands have touched them, and that men will say as they look upon the labor-and wrought substances of them, "See! this our fathers did for us."—John Ruskin.

Sages and Martyrs

To know how to say what others only know how to think is what makes men poets or sages; and to dare to say what others only dare to think makes men martyrs.

KEEP BOWELS OPEN

No person can be well and happy if constantly distressed with the evil effects of constipation. And no person needs to risk ill health by neglecting to keep the bowels wholesomely clean. Yet so many suffer! Are you one of them? Is constipation keeping you unfit and uncomfortable—bilious, bloated, tired, without appetite, ambition or energy? Then try Doan's Regulets. They act mildly and without distress, contain no calomel nor habit-forming drugs, tone the liver, stimulate the flow of bile and promote well-balanced activity of the intestinal tract. Be regular with Regulets. Sold at all drug stores.

Household Questions

To clean glass in oven doors rub over with vinegar then wash with soap and water.

Never prune climbing roses in the fall. Cut out all dead canes but wait until next spring before cutting out dead shoots.

If the soil in which bulbs are to be planted is acid, work hydrated lime into the top soil two weeks before planting.

A damp cloth dipped in baking soda will remove tea and coffee stains from china cups.

In pressing never put an iron on the right side of any goods except cotton. Always lay a cloth between the iron and the goods.

Woodwork which has to be painted should be well smeared with lime water, which can be obtained at any druggist's. Let dry and then paint. The paint will dry in half the time. Put the brush in water when you have finished. It will be quite soft for next day.

If a thick cloth is placed at the bottom of a pan or bowl in which delicate china or glass is being washed the danger of chipping will be lessened. This will also prevent silver from being scratched.

Order hyacinth, tulip, narcissus, snowdrop and crocus bulbs now. In preparing beds for these bulbs mix bonemeal liberally into the soil, but never permit manure to come in contact with the bulbs. They should be surrounded only by soil or sand.

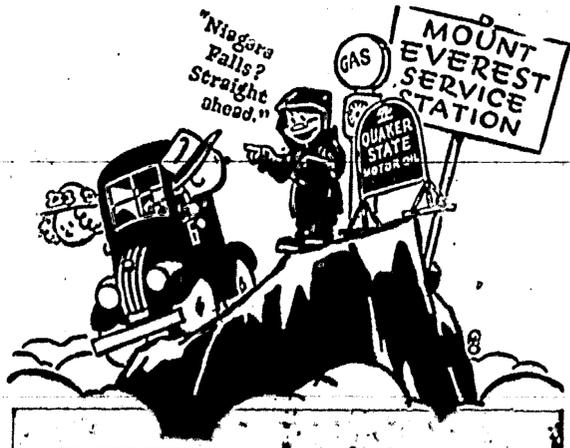

If you want your linen to wear well, try this plan: Instead of folding tablecloths and sheets lengthwise, as is usually done, fold them the other way occasionally. They last far longer if the folds are sometimes changed than if they are always folded in the same place.

Carrie Nation

For years in the 1900's Carrie Nation not only demolished saloons with her hatchet but publicly knocked cigars from men's mouths and berated women for wearing evening gowns. Nothing daunted her until the night she did her "hatchet act"—for $300—on the stage of Miner's Burlesque on the New York Bowery, when she was almost drowned in the heaviest barrage of eggs ever laid down by an American audience.—Collier's Weekly.

Mrs. E. B. Smith, Editor and Publisher

We congratulate all our county officials for their splendid and economical administration of affairs.

Republicans have opened their headquarters and are at work spreading propaganda, and trying to boost each other's courage, but unless something unforeseen happens neither activity will help their cause in Lincoln county a great deal.

Landon is improving his radio technique, but by the time it is perfected, if ever, he will have no use for it.

What a break for the Democrats! "Ex-president Herbert Hoover will take the stump for Landon."

"Knox, Knox, Knox" at best, is a ridiculous proposition—merely a form of recreation indulged in by the Grand Old Party! "Knox, Knox, Knox."

What is The Use?

The Republican party leaders keep up a vigorous whistling in respect to the prospects of putting Candidate Landon in the presidential chair. They go on the principle that "faint heart never won fair lady." If they speak hopefully, they assume that possibly the on-the-fence voters will flop in their direction and turn the tide in favor of Landon.

Yet, after all, what would be the use, even if an unexpected event did take place? The senate when congress adjourned, counted for the democrats a clear majority of forty-four seats. There are to be thirty-six contests but only twenty-three of these are held by the democrats and more than half of these are seats in the democratic south. By no possibility can the republicans win the senate.

The house has 435 seats. Presumably the election were a great landslide toward the Republican party, the democrats might lose the house. But the present membership is about 3 to 1 democratic. This is an unwieldy majority and it would not hurt the Democrats to lose forty or fifty of the close seats. But the Republicans have at present 100 seats only and would have to win 118 from the democrats to get a bare majority. Not even in the most sanguine dreams would Landon expect to win so many seats, even in a landslide.

But what is the use of having a president who would find both houses of Congress dominated by the opposition party? He would be unable to pass his desired legislation. His dominations made to the Senate would be looked on askance. All he could do would be to protest against the system and hope for better results in 1938. But the results of the election in 1938 might be worse for his party, not better.

In his heart Candidate Landon must say, "What is the use of running?"—Dallas, (Texas) News.

To Celebrate Founding

New Mexico Federation of Women's clubs will meet in Las Cruces at the Women's Club house, with the state president, Mrs. J. O. Seth of Santa Fe, presiding. The Federation will celebrate the twenty-fifth anniversary of the founding of the New Mexico federation in 1911.

Methodist Church
Narrowness; the cause of people not attending church. When you went to church twenty years ago you found many narrow people and preachers attending, today only the broader more tolerant folks attend. People who crawl in a hole and pull the hole in after them gradually become narrow, intolerant, uncultured and mercenary in all their relationships. A good psycho-analyst would tell them this. A community that is a victim to such an obsession of narrowness and prejudice is as a rule a good field for steam roller politics. Church attendance and church participation is sacrificial. No other institution is so wholly sacrificial. No individual can be truly cultured whose life is not largely sacrificial. The church is stranded. That institution which strives to put on a bold front when it officiates at your weddings and heals the broken hearted at your funerals, is often embarrassed. We drive hundreds of miles to minister to rank strangers, and the only cheap thing about the service is the minister.
There will be services both morning and evening at the Methodist church. Sunday school rally day at ten o'clock. Preaching at eleven and seven thirty. Choir practice each Tuesday evening at 7:30. R. A. A. Chgo choir director.

A Suggestion to Governor Landon
The other day at Buffalo Governor Landon expressed deep concern over future generations. "We must remember," he said, "that every time the Government spends a dollar that dollar will have to be paid by us, or we must pass the debt on to be paid by our children. No parents like to leave their children a heritage of debts and mortgages. . . . We must face the issue squarely. The present Administration's daily mounting deficit are closing the door of opportunity to your children and to my children."
It is interesting to learn how the present Administration's "daily mounting deficits" were acquired. Let us ask, for example, what share Governor Landon had in their creation.
The records show that a grand total of $448,198,816 was sent to Kansas by the Federal Government since the inauguration of President Roosevelt, which followed the inauguration of Governor Landon by two months.
This money was used in Kansas to relieve distress, to prevent foreclosures on houses and farms, to re-establish banks upon a sound basis, to stimulate business and industry and to restore purchasing power to Kansas farmers.
While Governor Landon was clashing the salaries of school teachers and other civil employees in order to create a surplus of more than a million dollars for Kansas, he was giving small head to the future distress of "your children and my children" so far as the Federal budget was concerned.
As a matter of fact, Governor Landon constantly bombarded Washington with telegrams, letters, telephone calls and personal appeals for more Federal money for the people of his state. He wouldn't give them the money of the State of Kansas, but he was indefatigable in his efforts to get more cash out of Uncle Sam. As a result of his supplications, Kansas, which ranks as the twenty-fourth State of the Union in point of population, stands as fifteenth in the amount of money actually received from the Federal Government. Well might he say, as he boasted when he was running for re-election in 1934, that "Kansas has always received its full share of Federal relief money."
Now, when he is a candidate for President, his supporters glorify his record as a budget balancer, when as a matter of law, he could have been nothing else. He, himself, goes upon the stump and bemoans the tax burden that awaits the next generation. He forgets to mention that he had a noteworthy share in creating that burden.
Since the Governor frets so much about the future generation and Kansas, after accepting $448,198,816 in the last three and a half years from the Federal Government, finds itself with a cash balance of more than $1,000,000, why doesn't Governor Landon return it to Uncle Sam? It would be just so much less that "your children and my children" would have to pay.

Split in Labor Ranks Is Now in Effect

LABOR DAY, for organized labor, was considerably marred by the fact that the suspension of the ten unions which followed John Lewis had just become effective. However, the holiday was celebrated as much as usual all over the country and the workers were addressed by many notables. President William Green of the A. F. of L., speaking at Knoxville, Tenn., declared that only labor's enemies would profit from the schism. He made a plea for a higher wage level, shorter working hours, freedom to organize, additional social security legislation and adoption of the child labor amendment to the federal constitution.

He also assailed the idea of an independent labor party and pledged the federation to a non-partisan policy in the present presidential campaign.

John L. Lewis made a radio address at Washington but did not mention the split. He maintained that American industry could "easily pay a minimum income to unskilled labor of $2,500 a year." Urging labor to organize to better its condition, Lewis said that "able economists have already shown that the entire scope of American life—social, economic, physical, and spiritual—may be vastly improved."

Secretary of Labor Perkins, also speaking over the radio, ignored the civil war within labor's ranks and painted labor's future as rosy. "Some 1,000,000 men and women who were jobless at this time last year have been added to the ranks of workers in private industry and the amount of money in pay envelopes has been increased nearly 42 million dollars in weekly wages," said Miss Perkins.

None of the noted speakers seemed to wish to comment on the situation in Minneapolis, where strikes have resulted in the shutting down of that city's immense milling industry. It is expected this strike will be extended next to Buffalo, second American milling center, and later to Chicago. The issue in the closed shop; the milling industry never has been unionized.

Irun Falls to the Rebels;

San Sebastian Next

FIERCE attacks by the Spanish rebels resulted in the capture of Irun, on the French border, and the defenders were mercilessly slaughtered save for those who were able to take refuge in France. The town was reduced to smoking ruins, and the victors promptly started an advance westward against San Sebastian, their main objective in the north. Recognizing the fact that this large resort city could not long be defended, the government administration there offered to surrender the place if full amnesty were promised; but declared if this were refused the city would be burned to the ground and the 625 fascist prisoners held there would be shot. There was great discord among the defenders, the anarchists insisting on destroying the city anyhow.

South of Madrid the government forces were said to have made progress and there were claims that Talavera had been taken and that the Alcazar in Toledo was practically battered to pieces by loyalist artillery. The rebels' advance on Madrid from the south and west was supposed to have been halted.

The Madrid government was re-organized and Francisco Largo Caballero, left wing Socialist, was made premier.

French workers in Paris in a great demonstration insisted that the government abandon its non-intervention policy and give active aid to the Spanish government. Premier Blum, while not concealing his sympathy with the Madrid crowd, declared that if France dropped neutrality, Italy and Germany would be able to give the Spanish rebels much speedier and more effective aid than the French could give to the loyalists.

Representatives of twenty-four powers were scheduled to confer in London on plans for the establishment of a nonintervention control committee. Portugal, however, was still holding out.

Mrs. Markham Flies Atlantic, Landing in Nova Scotia

MRS. BERYL MARKHAM of England put her name on the roll of fame as the first woman to make a solo flight across the north Atlantic from east to west. She started from London for New York, but her fuel gave out and she was forced to land her small monoplane at Balaine cove near Louisbourg, Nova Scotia. Except for a few scratches she was unhurt, but the plane was badly damaged.

Another woman, Louise Thaden of the United States, gained fame by winning the $15,000 Bendix trophy race, a transcontinental dash from New York to Los Angeles; and yet another woman, Laura Ingalls, took second place. In the Los Angeles air meet Michael De Troyat, French race and stunt pilot, won high honors.

Nine persons were killed when a sight-seeing plane crashed near Pittsburgh.

France to Spend Vast Sum for Military Defense

FRANCE'S government has decided that conditions in Europe are so threatening that it must spend a huge sum for national defense. So it adopted a program for increasing the efficiency of the army which will cost $930,000,000 in the next four years. The proposal was made by Edouard Daladier, minister of defense. The first installment of $280,000,000 will be disbursed in 1937.

The program calls for an intensive increase of mechanized units and also for rearmament. Furthermore, it provides an increase in the size of the professional army and the creation of a specialized group of long service, noncommissioned officers such as already exist in the French navy.

The program also provides for strengthening the frontier fortifications. But the chief improvement will be made in the air force which will be increased by 2,000 planes.

Roosevelt and Landon Confer on Drouth

FRANKLIN D. ROOSEVELT and Alf M. Landon, rival candidates for the Presidency, met in somewhat dramatic fashion in Des Moines, Iowa; but they met as chief executives of the United States and of Kansas respectively for the purpose of discussing plans for the relief of drouth stricken farmers.

The conference, held at Mr. Roosevelt's suggestion and including the governors of the other states that had suffered especially from the drouth, began in the state house in Des Moines, where Governor Herring entertained the distinguished visitors at a luncheon. The President and Mr. Landon, it was said, did most of the talking at this repast and exchanged a lot of joking remarks. Then the conference was started in earnest, each state being taken up in turn.

Early in the evening Mr. Roosevelt entertained the governors at dinner aboard his special train. On that occasion he and Mr. Landon had their most intimate talk. Results of the conference, if any, were not made public at once, the President reserving announcement of his plans for a radio address.

Relief Work Will Be Continued for Farmers

IN HIS radio talk the President asserted every governor with whom he had talked on his trip to the drouth area gave approval to his policy of providing federal work relief for the distressed farmers on projects that will protect their crops in the future. This policy, he said, would be continued. He did not give specific details of the drouth relief plan, which will be based on the report of the President's drouth study committee.

Mr. Roosevelt asserted that work relief for the unemployed in the cities has restored consumer purchasing power, sustained every merchant in the community, and provided a backlog for heavy industry.

Declaring re-employment in private industry is proceeding rapidly, the President announced allocation of an additional $2,500,000 to the United States employment service.

Japan Will Build Big Submarine Fleet

JAPAN proposes to build up a submarine fleet approximately 30 per cent larger than that of either Great Britain or the United States. Such was the substance of a note delivered by the Japanese embassy in London to the British foreign office. The decision replaces the submarine parity among the three powers established by the 1930 London naval treaty.

Japan notified Great Britain that it was determined to keep about 11,059 tons of destroyers and 15,593 tons of submarines above the 1930 London treaty quotas. This tonnage, if the treaty's provisions were carried out, would be scrapped at the end of this year.

The United States, like Great Britain, has decided it must keep in service after the end of the year 40,000 tons of over age destroyers in excess of the total permitted by the 1930 treaty.

Lithuania May Abandon Fascist Regime

FASCISM in Lithuania, established about a year ago by Antanas Smetona, the president-dictator, is likely to come to an end very soon. The new parliament is now in session and has begun to study possible revision of the constitution.

The Lithuanian government has had serious trouble with Germany over Memel, which, though mainly populated by Germans, was turned over to Lithuania for use as a port by the League of Nations. The country's second source of woe is its broken relations with Poland. There have been no formal relations between the two countries since Poland seized Vilna, the original Lithuanian capital. There is no mail or telegraphic communication across the border and no trade.

Railway Labor Act Is Attacked in Court

IN AN appeal to the Supreme Court of the United States the Virginian Railway company made an attack on the provisions of the railway labor act authorizing collective bargaining between representatives of the employees and the carriers.

The railroad appealed from rulings by the Eastern Virginia Federal District court and the Fourth Circuit Court of Appeals requiring it to negotiate concerning disputes with a unit of the American Federation of Labor.

High Labor Costs Drive Big Concern From New York

BECAUSE labor costs in New York city are too high the Charles Schweinler Press, largest magazine printing house there, has decided to close the plant in which it employs 1,000 men and women and move where costs are lower. Executives of the company said they did not object to the wage scales imposed by New York unions, but found the differential between the local scale and the rates in force elsewhere so great that it was "impossible" to continue in New York.

Revised Budget Figures Increase the Debt

REVISING the 1937 budget figures he submitted to congress in January, President Roosevelt now estimates that expenditures caused by the bonus and the AAA invalidation will put the public debt at the all-time high figure of $34,100,543,494. He says, however, that better business will run tax receipts up $12,000,000 higher than was expected. The President's revision covered the fiscal year that began July 1 last and will end June 30, 1937. During his absence from the capital it was issued by Acting Budget Director Daniel W. Bell.

The chief items changed by the estimate were:
 1. Receipts, fixed at $5,665,839,000.
 2. Expenditures at $7,762,035,300.
 3. Gross deficit for the year at $2,096,196,300.
 4. Public debt on June 30, 1937, at $34,100,543,494.

These estimates compared with January figures as follows:
 1. Receipts of $5,654,217,650.
 2. Expenditures of $7,645,301,338.
 3. Deficit of $1,991,083,720.
 4. Public debt at end of year of $31,351,638,737.

The $2,000,000,000 deficit Mr. Roosevelt estimated is the lowest of the New Deal. Regarding this figure the President said:
 "The estimated deficit for 1937 is $2,096,196,300 which includes $500,000,000 for statutory debt retirement and $500,000,000 for further payments under the adjusted compensation payment act.

"Deducting the amount of the statutory debt retirement leaves a net deficit of $1,516,196,300.
 "This does not mean that there will be an increase in the public debt of this amount for the reason that it is contemplated during the year to reduce the working balance of the general fund by approximately $1,100,000,000."

What Mr. Roosevelt meant by this was that instead of borrowing money to cover the difference between receipts and expenditures, the Treasury would dip into the general fund for $1,100,000,000.

Six Men May Be Cited for Contempt of Senate

UNITED STATES DISTRICT ATTORNEY L. C. GARNETT of Washington was asked by Vice President Garner to present to the federal grand jury the case of six Railway Audit and Inspection company officials who failed to appear before a senate committee some two weeks ago. Those cited by Mr. Garner were: W. W. Groves, president of the company; W. B. Groves, vice president; Earl Douglas Rice, vice president; J. E. Blah, secretary-treasurer; R. S. Judge, director; and J. C. Boyer.

The committee, headed by Senator La Follette, is investigating the alleged use of labor "spies" by employers in disputes with their employees. At the time of the hearing an attorney for the company told the committee an injunction was being sought in federal court to prevent the officials' appearance and to prohibit production of their records.

"Go-to-School" Knits and Prints

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

DING-DONG goes the bell that sounds the knell of vacation as it rings in "first day of school." And again doting mothers are confronted with the problem of planning practical and as attractive as practical school wardrobes for the children of the household, for as every mother knows much of the poise and happiness of little girls in the classroom depend upon the feeling of self confidence which a pretty frock inspires.

To help in this matter of appareling little daughter to a nicety here are two suggestions we have to offer—knits and prints. Perhaps it would be more accurate to say crochets as well as knits for as much crocheting is being done these days as knitting. Simply a matter of choice. To emphasize the vogue for crochets and prints we are showing three as cunning classroom outfits as ever a fond mother might hope to include in her little girl's clothes collection.

See little Miss Twelve peering to the left in the picture arrayed in an ensemble that couldn't be prettier if it tried. It is crocheted in two shades of blue knit-crocheted. For the encouragement of would-be crocheters who feel the urge to copy this most attractive outfit we are telling you that the stitch is very simple and goes like lightning when once you get started. The skirt has gores of the lighter blue and the blouse is made by the scarf in matching light blue. It has a stylish high neck that closes with a drawstring. There are crochet buttons to add glamor to the occasion. The cutie-cute bag, the scarf and the hat are crocheted to match. In a many-piece crocheted outfit as just described, the practical side of the question is self-evident. The blouse, the skirt and the jacket may be worn separately, which means that any number of changes are possible, being just what is a most needful virtue for school togs. The simplicity and practicality of the blouse-and-skirt two-piece to the right is a big argument in its favor. This crocheted outfit for the grammar school Miss is a real find when it comes to appropriate dress for play or for classroom. The blouse contrasts the dark skirt which is in keeping with the present style trend to bring out striking color effects. The wide sailor collar provides a nautical touch. The gay tassel tie gives a final flourish to this most attractive back-to-school dress which is so easily crocheted or mercerized knitting and crochet cotton. We almost forgot to mention the crowning glory of these crocheted garments—they wash perfectly and with a little trouble as a gingham, a pique or any wash fabric.

Picture for yourself little daughter in a cunning print such as the little girl centered in the picture is wearing. The grand thing about dresses made of the new prints this season is that it is perfectly safe to buy the correct size for no longer does one have to allow for shrinkage. That is, if the fabric is one of the newer prints that are sanforized shrunk. It means a great deal to know that little daughter's gay print frock will not shrink out of fit in tubbing.

In the washgoods sections one finds the cunningest classroom prints imaginable such as fashions the little girl's dress pictured.

SQUIRREL-IN VOGUE
 By CHERIE NICHOLAS

A pleasing topic of conversation among fur stylists and one that is creating no-end enthusiasm, is in regard to the revival of the ever beloved youthful-looking and wonderfully flattering gray squirrel. When you go fur-coat shopping keep this in mind and look for the charming squirrel models that are making so welcome a re-appearance. Perfect for sports and for more formal wear also, is the stunning double-duty coat pictured. It brings back squirrel worked in the striking new split skin fashion.

ALIX SCULPTURES CLOTHES TO FIGURE

Outstanding among silhouettes for fall are those drawn by Alix. Her dresses are fashioned to display every curve of a rounded, feminine form through masterly manipulation and drapery of soft, clinging fabric. This season, as last, her favorite is jersey, both silk and rayon.

Some of her skirts are so full and flaring that they resemble lampshades or parachutes, while others are caught under the hem like Turkish trousers. Fall coats are cut with a swirling flare.

Evening clothes, particularly, would delight an ancient Greek sculptor. Fullness is concentrated in groups of folds or gathers directly in front or back, not obscuring, but, rather, emphasizing, lovely curving outlines.

Borders of four or five bright colors emphasize the flare at the hem of many evening dresses.

Luxury and Elegance to Dominate Fall Costumes

Elegance and luxury will dominate the mode this autumn if the costumes already appearing are any criterion. Magnificent fabrics, beautifully cut on exquisite lines, is the recipe for late afternoon and informal and formal evening clothes. Typical of this trend is a white dinner ensemble with a long slim skirt of white and silver blistered crepe and a simple surplice bodice of plain silver metal cloth. The shoulders, with double puffs and the tailored lapel collar, are smart notes on the short jacket that is fitted in back and open in front.

Motorist's Buttons
 Among the novelty buttons that have made their appearance are those that carry the various road signs for motorists.

what
Irvin S. Cobb thinks about:

Camels and Communists
FLAGSTAFF, ARIZ.—There's nothing new about the fable. The only novelty is in the moral. One night a camel came and begged to be allowed to poke his cold nose inside an Arab's tent. So the Arab, being a good-hearted Arab, says yes. Pretty soon the camel claimed his ears were chilly and could he shove in as far as his ears? And the Arab said that was O. K.

Next the camel got permission to put his neck in out of the weather, and, after that, his forelegs and then his front hump, closely followed by his rear hump, and finally his hindquarters.

When morning came the camel was inside the tent, completely filling it, and the Arab had been crowded outside and there he was—poor shivering wretch, as homeless as a ha'nt.

Moral—Every time I hear of an imported Communist smuggling himself into our midst, I think of a cold-nosed camel.

Holding the Bag.
UP TO now our government has declined all invitations to jump into the Italian-German-French-Russian-British snarl, but watch for an effort to induce America to join in when the time comes for dividing up control over poor old Spain's ports, islands and remaining colonial possessions.

Not that we'd want anything out of the grab-bag and not that they'd give us anything. They'd merely expect us to hold the bag afterwards, which would make two bags in all—this little new one and the big one we've been holding ever since 1918.

Travelers' Homecoming.
CALIFORNIA travel bureaus report an increase of incoming tourists. But then again, on the other hand, part of it may be due to returning residents who went hurriedly away when the papers started printing a certain roman's diary. If your sins do not always find you out, at least they frequently find you getting out.

It's all over now and peace and quiet have been restored to our home circles, but at the height of the rush one involuntarily was reminded of the ancient story of the Frenchman who bet with his friend he could prove every man, however outwardly pure, had a dreaded secret in his life. So, to test it, he sent to each of the ten most respected notables in Paris an anonymous telegram reading as follows: "All is discovered. Flee at once." And next morning nine of them were gone and the tenth had committed suicide.

"Backward" British Justice.
ENGLISH news-reel producers have been fined $10,000—and that's important money in any language—for titling a film "An All-empt on the King's Life." Mind you, they weren't punished for any injury this title might do his majesty. Incredible though it sounds to us, the charge was: "Contempt of court for prejudicing the case against McMahon. (The man who tried to shoot King Edward) before he was brought to trial."

For contrast, take a not altogether forgotten criminal case. Possibly you may remember a certain murderer's trial and what sort of publicity went before it, and what actually occurred whilst 'twas being held, and what the aftermath has been, with attorneys and key-witnesses and—yes—actually some of the jurors peddling their private views for public consumption; and the governor of a great state displaying curious and violent activities, even when the verdict had been called a fair one by the high courts?

Backward race, these Brits, trying people by the evidence and not by the newspapers and the moving-picture cameras.

A Gentleman's Dinner.
BACK EAST, a distinguished continental chef rises up to outline the American gentleman's ideal dinner. He names eight courses, which is too many, and no domestic flavor about any part of it.

In rebuttal, I crave to offer a menu of all native products.

First, Lynnhaven oysters on the half shell, with western celery and ripe olives.

Second, terrapin stew.

Third, rice-fed canvasback duck, with lye hominy and a baked wine-snap apple.

Fourth, one very small slice of hickory-and-sassafras-smeared razor-back ham with watercress salad, soured in a plain oil and vinegar dressing.

Fifth, toasted southern beaten biscuit and a mere morsel of old-fashioned country rat cheese—preferably from Herkimer county, New York.

SYNOPSIS

Job Braddon, young and fantastically successful broker of Chicago, is infatuated with Agnes Gleneth, beautiful daughter of a retired manufacturer. Rodney, a doctor, in love with Agnes, visits his brother, Job. Rod plans work at Rochester. Job suggests that he make a try for Agnes before leaving. In Rod there is a deep, obstinate decency than in Job. Agnes believes to be happy, a girl must bind herself entirely to a man and have adorable babies. Rod visits Agnes and tells her of his great desire, but realizes it can never be fulfilled. Agnes' mother is attempting to regain her husband's love. Agnes has disturbing doubts as to what attracts her father in New York. Job tells Agnes he is going to marry her, and together they view an apartment in Chicago. Job asks Agnes to set an early date, but she tells him she cannot marry him. When the agent, Mr. Colver, offers to show them a furnished apartment, Job asks Agnes to see it alone, saying he must return to his office. Agnes consents and Job leaves. A radio is blaring terrifically from one of the apartments. Colver raps upon the door, which is opened by a scantily clad girl, who draws Agnes into the room. Colver finds her husband, Charles Lorrie, fatally shot. He calls the police. Myrtle Lorrie asks Agnes to phone Cathal O'Mara, a lawyer, to come at once. Agnes does. The police take charge. O'Mara arrives. The officers are antagonistic to him. Agnes sides with O'Mara. Agnes is to be a witness at the coming trial.

When a map swung far and fell feet forward so they seemed to be some chance for him, cheers screamed from the crowd; when he fell, tumbling over and over, a great groan went up from the throat of thirty thousand.

Winnie O'Mara did not faint. Her man was still on the tower, among the last of them. Now Fitzpatrick was speaking to him.

No bit of a doubt which was him when, before he went down the shroud of the rope, he hung for the hat of him. It was like him, that. There he was on the line, bareheaded.

A gray-haired priest stood in the square at the fire-line, lifting his arms as each man came down, and repeating the prayer for them in extreme. Loud and clear to the stillness, as each man swung, and before the shout or the groan roared from the thousands of throats as the man let go, across the voice of the priest at his praying.

Winnie O'Mara had worked her way close to him so that of last she was almost beside him; and so she did all that was left her to do for her man.

"Cathal Martin O'Mara, he is, Father," she whispered to the priest. "Pray for him!"

"Yours?" said the priest, gape at her.

"Mine, Father."

So the priest faced again to the fire; and once more he raised his arms to his petition. "Cathal Martin O'Mara," he called him by name, the tears streaming down his face as he prayed. Then the great cheer from the crowd cut him short, for Martin O'Mara had swung well, and well he let go. But no good it did him. A minute or so more, and the tower fell, and was down on top of him.

Such was the heritage of Cathal Martin O'Mara, his grandson. Of the twenty trapped on the tower, seventeen were gone and three were terribly injured.

"On such events, by such men, prepared to face death and torment—men, generation after generation, soon forgotten and obliterated—government was built up," wrote a historian of soldiers who perished long ago on a field for Rome. "The fact has a meaning; and perhaps, many generations hence, wiser men than we or they will explain it with a clearness that still eludes us."

Cathal's father and his father's brother John became firemen. Headstrong, heedless men, the both of them. Martin, the son, died of pneumonia after fighting a lumber-yard fire through one long below-zero night. John died of another cause; but the O'Maras had done their duty through the Fire Department.

Winnie, a fireman's widow and proud forever of him, would have no more of it. Besides, this boy was from birth "beyond" his father; and yes, beyond his grandfather. He was strong, as had been all the men of his family, but he was of slighter build and was smaller-boned. Heedless of himself he was, like them all; but his was a sensitiveness strange to them. And beyond them all, he took to schooling. He went through high school, running errands and delivering goods for local stores after hours, since his home depended then on a fireman's widow's award.

He worked his way through the University of Illinois at Urbana, and he ended his long schooling in Chicago at Northwestern University Law school, which he attended for three years, clerking at odd hours and in the evenings.

From all this, he emerged an attorney committed, by the undoubted forces dominant in his nature, to the defense of criminal cases. It was the appeal of the desperate, the despised cause that was irresistible to the grandson of the Martin O'Mara who had followed James Fitzpatrick to the tower with the building ablaze below them. So he started taking criminal cases.

He cared little for money, but he adored a fight; and money enough came to him—enough, that is, for his purpose to buy a bit of ground with a bit of a house on it, and without a speck of mortgage.

Winnie's it was, in her own name and in her own right; for he gave it to her. "And that," as Winnie herself proudly complained, "is the wasteful way of him; sure, I'm nearest the end of me life; and well he knows the trouble of real-estate in an inheritance. Himself, he should have kept it; or give it to his mother."

But she treasured it for her own, "beholden to no one but to him."

Ah! There he was, at last.

What thoughts were in him—Winnie wondered—when he came home like this? Him, home from the murders and the judges and courts and the jails—and the gentry in the headlines with him.

Winnie caught her shawl about her slight shoulders and hurried to the door, when he turned to it.

"Have ye supped, Cathal?" she questioned him, with eager anxiety.

"Where would I? At the jail? Have ye kept nothing for me?" he retorted, delighting her.

She drew him, as soon as he threw off his overcoat, into the warm, fragrant kitchen where she had the heating-oven burning low, and on top of the stove, her old iron kettle simmering.

Nothing left to her in life compared with an occasion after he had been called into, a big murder case, or when the trial was on and he had worked half the night, yet he had come home to her, at last, having "saved" his hunger so that she could sup with him.

She laid a loaf and the bread-knife and butter and bowls of the good hot soup upon the kitchen table; and they sat down and supped, across from each other, she watching him—seldom taking her eyes off him—he speaking to her, smiling at her, often looking at her, but with his thoughts far away.

Winnie was used to this; and she did not resent it, though she wondered what went through his mind that he couldn't tell her. Here he was with her; and beside her a picture of him in the paper with his name bode in the headlines—as huge, almost, as the name of him that was murdered, and almost as big as the name of the girl, Agnes Gleneth, who had called him.

"The wife kill him, Cathal?" Winnie asked presently.

He nodded.

Winnie could not comprehend the people, men and women, whom he defended. However roughly they lived, or heroically or rashly they died, her own—men and women—had sinned simply, repented, confessed and were shriven; and sinning or sinless, they were bound together by loyalties and sentiments which death only (and not always death) could dissolve. But from her, her grandson went out into the violent, faithless world of wealth, of extravagant excesses and bodily indulgences, divorce—and murder of man by his woman. How did a wife, calling herself one, do it?

Winnie flattened on the table the newspaper to display its picture of Agnes Gleneth.

He bent forward and suddenly he saw her as he had not known her. It was a reproduction of a photograph of Agnes at the time of her debut three and a half years ago, when she was nineteen; and not even the newspaper press had obliterated the loveliness and delightfulness of her.

A glance told that it was when she was younger. It gave her to him, too, in her quiet, thoughtful mood, her eyes seeming to consider him, as they looked out from the page—her eyes which he had not seen without horror and without fright in them.

It surprised a pang in him which he betrayed.

"Oh," said Winnie, "that's how she called ye so quick. She knew ye."

"No," said Cathal, defending her from this imputation. "She's as the paper says—doesn't this say it? She just happened in, looking for an 'agent' ment."

"But she was quick to call ye."

"Because the wife asked her to. She—the never had need of me, Winnie."

"Wud that shame her," Winnie caught him up, "having need of ye?"

"I tell you she'd nothing to do with it; and she had never heard of me, he repeated so positively that Winnie abandoned the subject of Agnes Gleneth, but only to watch him more keenly.

He helped her clean up, as he always did. He bent and kissed her on her cheek; and he went to bed, but he could neither sleep nor lie quiet. Frequently enough, when he had just taken a case, he lay half the night planning, yet with no disquiet such as this.

Agnes Gleneth had no need of him; he was a part of what was to continue, at best, an ordeal for her, which she would escape but could not. No; she had no need of him.

But he, and his client Myrtle, had need of her. More than that, they had the right to demand and enforce her attendance to their needs. By the accident of her stepping into that room, and by the fact that he was called to the case, Cathal Martin O'Mara had acquired peculiar and undeniable rights over Agnes Gleneth which he could exercise as he pleased.

And this was a circumstance of subtle and exciting effects.

CHAPTER IV

Job, on his part, was feeling the nip of a new sensation which came from the not altogether disagreeable notoriety he suddenly shared with Agnes.

By this morning, when he was looking over the newspapers brought to his bedroom, all the world—as much of it as meant anything to him—knew that Agnes had discovered the Lorrie murder because she had been looking at an apartment with Job Braddon.

Strangely and excitingly, it intensified his feelings about her to read of her,—and a little about himself with her,—and to know that millions of people this morning were poring over the same descriptions of her, and the account of what she had done and said.

His eagerness to possess this girl in the paper—his love for her, his desire, whatever it was—never had matched this morning.

He lived in an apartment by himself, with two Filipinos—Ojal his valet, and Imlo the cook.

The measure of Judson E. Braddon's importance had been augmented rather than otherwise, by what he had done with Agnes, and by the manner in which the newspapers referred to her and to him.

Job went late to his office, not yet having phoned Agnes. He hoped that she slept in order that, when she awoke, she would be the better rested and the more completely restored to the impulses which had made her respond to him. If not, he would give her more time to recover from this shock; but meanwhile, he knew she was his. And all the world knew it. His impulses for complete possession of her gave him no peace.

Agnes did not move from her room during the forenoon. She read to bed the papers which were brought to her, which gave surprisingly variant reports of what she had "discovered" and done, and even more individual explanations of murder itself. And she saw, for the first time, the likeness of Myrtle's husband.

How queer to see your own name in great black type on the page of the paper, and underneath, reports of what you had said and done which you could not yourself remember, so precisely! How queer to find yourself a leading witness, but only now to learn, from a newspaper picture, what he, who had been killed, looked like.

The account of him said that he was forty-six a month ago. He had been married, first, 20 years ago, and been divorced to marry Myrtle Silver two years ago. His wife and a daughter, and his father and mother, survived him to Stapleton, Wis.

He was described as "rich," having been a partner to a very prosperous group of chain-stores spreading through Illinois and Wisconsin. He had made his start in Stapleton, whence his father and his divorced wife and his daughter were coming to Chicago.

Agnes thought: "He was two years younger than Father, and had been married 18 years before he got a divorce."

There were large likenesses of Myrtle, who had come from Macon, Ind., to encounter, at a night-club in Chicago, Charles Lorrie of Stapleton, Wis., and marry him; and live as his wife for two years; and then kill him.

Below all this in the paper was Bert, her instincts told her. She ought to have spoken of Bert to the police and to the state's attorney. . . . Or, should she have?

Job was on the phone—Job, whom (as all the world had reason to suppose) she soon would marry.

Job's voice was happier this morning; Job exulted that everyone who read the papers believed that he and she were to be married. And Agnes realized, as she replied to him, that she had given him much of the right to feel as he did. You could not revoke a thing like looking at an apartment with a man, especially after all the world caught you at it.

A Lesson From the Kitchen—

Captain of Industry Learns Something About Household Economy

At last we have something to teach the men. Captains of industry are invited to take a lesson from the kitchen!

The ordinary housewife, so long without question overlooked among workers of any real significance, has at last come into her own. A seer has divined in her modest labors a real contribution, or at least avoidance of error, that holds a lesson for the princes of finance!

That seer is the deaf and blind but keenly observing Miss Helen Keller, who draws her observation and its conclusion in the form of a story. And it is a story so satisfying, with so much food for rejoicing on the part of women, that to prevent even one of us from missing it, we must retell the gist of it here.

It is a story about the Joneses—the captain of industry, she just a housewife. When the Joneses' resources showed signs of dwindling some time ago, it appeared to Mrs. Jones that her household system was foolproof against waste or loss—that the trouble must be in the big business of which her husband was a leading light. Timidly, as becomes one of her modest position and accomplishments, Mrs. Jones advanced a few theories. But naturally her husband would not lend a serious ear. Whereupon Mrs. Jones suggested that he take over for a while the household management, and see if it gave him any ideas.

At once the captain of industry started making changes. First, he found it wasteful to have the oven going for just one cake, so he baked ten cakes at one time. Then he turned his attention to the labor saving devices, which to his astonishment were idle for a large part of the day. The vacuum cleaner, dish washer, washing machine and others presented quite a problem in efficiency. Mrs. Jones asked if he should not build more houses to make more work for them, and Mr. Jones was about to turn his talents to solving the problem when the ten cakes which the family had obligingly eaten for him began to manifest the usual results. The doctor's bill was charged to "Overproduction"—and to a lesson in household economy which the financier had learned from the kitchen. Perhaps the result was that he called in Mrs. Jones to find the flaw in his complicated system of industrial economy—as one who has failed to one who has succeeded. But that is as far as the story goes!

P. T. A. Friday

The P. T. A. met at the school auditorium Friday afternoon at 4 o'clock. We were very fortunate in having Mrs. John Gutznecht, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Ziegler with us and enjoyed very much her talk on "A Trip to Spain." Other numbers on the program were Piano Solo by Helen May Young, Vocal Solo, Mrs. Don English, accompanied by Mrs. T. E. Kelley and our P. T. A. song with Mrs. B. S. Burns at the piano. We regret that Mrs. Ola C. Jones was unable to give her talk on Alaska but we shall have that in store for some future meeting. It was unfortunate that due to habit some of our good patrons were not with us but we shall be happy to see you Oct. 2nd 4 p. m. The P. T. A. voted to sponsor an improved play ground move. After the program an informal reception was tendered the teachers, the elected officers acting as hostesses. It is time to renew your membership and the membership committee will no doubt call on you soon.

May we give you
six dollars?

NOT in cash, of course. We're speaking of its equivalent. But here is something for you to consider:

Every year this newspaper brings you at least three outstanding novels in serial form. Purchased as books each would cost not less than $2, making a total expenditure of at least $6 per year.

Like yourself, we could find plenty of uses for that $6. Some member of the family is always in need of a new pair of shoes or some other necessity. But at the same time your requirements for good reading material must be met. By accepting these three novels each year we feel you are treating yourself to real enjoyment, at the same time giving your purse a substantial boost.

These novels are a source of constant pride to us. Every year we select them from the season's most outstanding best sellers, offered in serial form by a large newspaper syndicate organization. We'd like to feel that you—as a subscriber—always look forward to reading the coming installment in the next issue. It gives us a great satisfaction to know that here is another reason why our paper is popular in the home.

You are invited to begin reading our novels now. These regular brief visits to fictionland will prove a delightful interlude from your work-a-day activities. And it will make us happy to know that you are getting enjoyment from them.
