LINCOLN COUNTY GOES DEMOCRATIC

Democrats Lose only One Candidate

Tuesday's election was a splendidly conducted affair in Lincoln County.

Everything passed off pleasantly and smoothly. Chairmen of both parties, and their assistants conducted a clean campaign, and an honest, fair election. No one talked a great deal, but both sides worked vigorously and anxiously bringing in the voters. The Democrats swept everything. The only county office lost to the Republicans, was the sheriff's office, which was won by Mr. Greisen by a very narrow margin.

In the Judicial and senatorial districts Democrats won. Judge Frenger and District Attorney Threet were given sweeping majorities, not only in the county but in the district.

In the race for state senators and representatives, Senator Coe defeated her opponent by a wide margin. Mr. Sears won over Mr. Key, Republican candidate, by a small majority in the district. His majority in Otero county was 454, and the District majority was 99.

Representatives Taylor and Hall were winners.

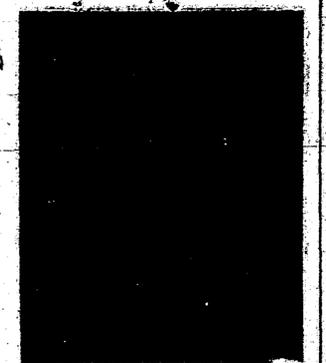

This election gives the state senate, all Democrats except one and in the lower house all Democrats were elected except two. This is the most complete Democratic victory since statehood.

Even Socorro county, Republican stronghold gave President Roosevelt a majority.

Totals for the state:
President: Landon 47,469, Roosevelt 85,964, Lemko 122.
Senate, long term: Everly 49,406, Hatch 85,922.
Senate, short term: Otero 60,010, Chavez 76,370.
Representative: Brown 46,835, Dempsey 85,370.
Governor: Miller 57,009, Tingley 80,756.

Following are totals for the county:

Long Term Senator: Hatch 2025, Everly 1630.
Short Term Senator: Chavez 2103, Otero 1771.
Congressman: Dempsey 2066, Brown 1633.

Lights of NEW YORK

Nassau is still one of my favorite streets. Wandering down from the vicinity of Brooklyn bridge, where it loses its identity in Park Row, it finally strikes Wall street and becomes Broad. It does so in two ways--by changing its name and widening to about twice its former size.

Narrow and daunting no little from the straight line, Nassau street is one of the few Manhattan thoroughfares where the pedestrian has a chance. Wheeled traffic--and there is not much of it since drivers who can, avoid Nassau--moves so slowly it really doesn't count. Hence there are as many who travel in the middle of the street as use the sidewalks.

That holds true, especially during the luncheon recess. Then, Nassau's sidewalks are entirely inadequate. When the myriad offices of the financial district pause for midday food, Nassau street really comes into its own. It's an old street, but then it becomes young. Clerks, stenographers and other workers connected with money come trooping into Nassau to eat, shop, chatter with friends, or parade down the narrow thoroughfare arm in arm. These crowds, in the main, are youthful and full of the spirit of youth. They are good-looking crowds also. In fact, this correspondent rates them higher in feminine attractiveness than any Park avenue parade he has witnessed.

Nassau's attraction for shoppers of the adjacent financial center of the country comes through the fact that almost anything may be bought there. Some of the stores, though they may be mere holes in the wall, have barkers. Others use loud speakers. So there is considerable noise and confusion. Prices also are attractive, insofar as could be noted in a stroll from the statue of Benjamin Franklin--newspapers were selling papers at the feet of the Great Printer--down to the sub-treasury building, not a price ended in a naught of five. The figures were all odd numbers, suggestive of bargains. There were bargains also, popular brands of cigarette rolling far below advertised prices and cigars that cost 50 cents each up to being on display at 29 cents.

Most of the Nassau street shops do almost all their business during the luncheon hour. At other times of the day they are somnolent, with only a few languid clerks, and sometimes only the proprietor on duty. But when Wall street and its environs release thousands of slaves of finance, Nassau street springs into new life. Reserve forces of clerks take their places behind counters. The barkers and loud speakers labor mightily. Selling is keyed to high speed. Customers do not demur. Generally, they have only a few minutes in which to make their purchases. So the staccato service, instead of being resented, is appreciated.

While competition between stores is keen, that on the sidewalks, which forms another mart, is still more keen. Pitchmen flock into Nassau street between noon and 2 p. m. Almost anything may be purchased right out in the open. Nassau street is the only

Seaplane Always Will

Be Fastest, Says Expert

St. Louis, Mo.—Land planes can never hope to attain the speed in the air that seaplanes can, according to Maj. James H. Doolittle, holder of the American seaplane and world's land-plane speed records.

"Paradoxical as it may seem," Doolittle observed, "airplane speed in the air is governed by its landing speed. The pontoons on a seaplane's landing gear," he said, "permit comparatively smooth contact with the water with a suction effect, compared with the rough bouncing of land-plane wheels on a ground surface, which, at extremely high speeds, has a tendency to turn the plane over."

The most powerful engine used in land-racing planes today is about 650 horse power, while a 2,300-horse power engine was developed for the English seaplane which flew 400 miles per hour, the record. The land-plane record is 294 miles an hour.

Coconut Palm Is Valued

for Variety of Products

No tree, perhaps, provides such a variety of human needs as the coconut palm, says the National Geographic Magazine. It gives food and drink—the latter particularly important on smaller islands of the South Seas where there are no water holes. Often travelers on these islands have gone for ten days with nothing to drink but coconut milk. Also, the coconut palm furnishes, besides the copra of commerce, a strongly alcoholic toddy and a sticky sirup resembling treacle.

The husk and shells provide fuel and the dried spathes is excellent tinder. The shells serve as plates, spoons and water bottles. Mats made from the leaves are used for walls and for beds; the dried leaves, tied into bundles, give light as torches and flares. The spines of the leaves are made into brooms and the central stalk provides a weak timber which is put to a number of uses. The outer skin of this stalk is useful where a strong, tough rope is required, as in lashing the gunwale of the canoe to the dug-out log.

The rope made from the husk fiber serves all general purposes, from house-ties to fish lines. A coarse covering at the base of the leaf, which at first glance looks like a roughly woven fabric, is made into strainers and sieves. The actual trunk of the palm, although not very durable, is made into spears and walking sticks, or cut into logs for sitting platforms. The white, unbroken leaves, favorite ornaments among the islands, serve many magical purposes in ceremonies.

Leadership of President Roosevelt

That the leadership of President Roosevelt has prevented class war and widespread disaster in America was the declaration of Marcus Levin, president of one of New York's largest department stores, in a recent radio address to the people of the country.

"If there had been a leader of lesser stature since March 4, 1933, in the office of President of the United States, one who cared nothing about human suffering, there would in all likelihood have been deep unrest and widespread disorder," he said. "President Roosevelt not only saved millions from the misery of suffering, but he saved America from class division and class war. His opponents claim that he was responsible for a campaign of class war. On the contrary, Roosevelt's leadership and statesmanship made impossible the class war which, but for him, would have been inevitable."

Mr. Levin defended relief expenditures under the New Deal and asserted that they were opposed "only by owners of huge fortunes—men who have enough and too much of every thing themselves and greedily fight to protect their property in this way by opposing the taxation needed for relief."

FOUR WONDROUS NEW REASONS WHY:

"It's Buick again!"

SENSATIONAL is the fervor with which the American public has taken to its heart the brilliant motor cars offered by Buick this year.

Indeed, the sweeping success of the 1936 Buick program flatteringly suggests to our great parent General Motors to a momentous decision.

Should we continue this amazingly popular line of cars into next year, perhaps the prudent thing to do—or should we dare broad improvement upon their spectacular excellence?

We felt there was only one right answer to that question, the bold and progressive answer—and that's why insiders now forecasting 1937 are already saying: "It's Buick again!"

That's why on top of $15,000,000 recently spent re-tooling and re-equipping Buick's great plant, we appropriated and are now spending $14,500,000 more.

That's why every car in the 1937 Buick line—the SPECIAL, the CENTURY, the ROADMASTER and the LIMITED—is a triumph visibly and intrinsically out-ranking anything we have ever done.

Each has more beauty for dazzling style, more power for breath-taking action, more room for full-family comfort, more downright "road-command" for safety and pleasure.

See them—then you'll know why Buick's soaring sales curve is headed for yet loftier altitudes next year.

YOU'VE GOT WHAT IT TAKES!
You can afford the new Buick. It's easy to buy and thrifty to own. With all its quality, its mechanical precision and stunning style, prices start as low as $765 and up to $11,000. General Motors term 12 mile per hour. Safety plan included. See your dealer. Prices subject to change without notice. YOUR MONEY GOES FARTHER IN A GENERAL MOTORS CAR.

A coarse covering at the base of the leaf, which at first glance looks like a roughly woven fabric, is made into strainers and sieves. The actual trunk of the palm, although not very durable, is made into spears and walking sticks, or cut into logs for sitting platforms. The white, unbroken leaves, favorite ornaments among the islands, serve many practical purposes in ceremonies.

Waffle House Cafe

Well, folks, we have been in Carrizozo only one month, but we immensely appreciate the Hand of Friendliness and Patronage you have shown us. We invite you in Any Time - Day, or Night, as our door never closes. Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Payne, WAFFLE HOUSE CAFE.

NOTICE

Every one will have an opportunity tomorrow to help in a good cause. A sale of baked goods will be held in the Carrizozo Hardware Company's store for the benefit of the Methodist parsonage. Every church member is invited to assist in any way possible. Proceeds will go toward buying some much needed furniture.

While in Albuquerque last Friday Mr. R. A. A. Chase was accidentally hit by a car and thrown against the curb. His forehead was cut which necessitated several stitches to close the gash. Otherwise he was uninjured which was lucky as the car was traveling at a high rate of speed.

HISTORIC MURDER

ONE hundred and ten years ago a man was murdered and as a direct result of that crime we now have, every four years, national conventions of delegates from every state and territory in the Union to nominate candidates for President and vice-president. Here's how it came about:

In 1826 William Morgan of Batavia, N. Y., published a book which purported to reveal the secrets of Freemasonry. Soon afterwards he disappeared and the Masons were not only accused of having kidnaped him and drowned him in the Niagara river but also of blocking a proper investigation of his disappearance. From western New York, opposition to the Masons spread to other states and several demagogic young politicians, among them Thurlow Weed and William H. Seward of New York and Thaddeus Stevens of Pennsylvania, seized upon the movement to promote their own ambitions.

The result was the organization of the Anti-Masonic party and in September, 1830; the first Anti-Masonic convention, the first national convention of any party, was held in Philadelphia, attended by 90 delegates from ten states. It was decided to hold another convention the next year to nominate candidates for President and vice-president and this meeting was to be composed of as many delegates from each state as there were representatives in both houses of congress.

Accordingly in September, 1831, the convention was held in Baltimore and it nominated for President William Wirt of Maryland, who had been attorney-general in Monroe's cabinet, and for vice-president Amos Ellmaker of New York. In the election of 1832 these candidates won only the electoral vote of Vermont. Later this party was absorbed by the Whigs and lost its identity, except in Pennsylvania where it elected a governor in 1835 and continued as a separate party for a few years.

But during the Anti-Masonic party's short existence it had pointed the way for others to follow in the method of choosing candidates. It gave them the national nominating convention and while convention procedure has since been changed in many ways, from that day to this the fundamental principle upon which it was based has remained unchanged—democratic representation of the party constituency.

KANSAS CAMPAIGNER

THE state of Kansas is in the limelight this year because for the first time in history a nominee of one of the major parties comes from the Sunflower state. Moreover, it has two candidates for the presidency—Gov. Alf. M. Landon heading the Republican ticket and Earl Browder of Wichita, the leader of the Communist party.

This is not the first time, however, that a Kansan has been a nominee. Back in 1824 there was another, also a governor.

His name was John Pierce St. John, a native of Indiana, an adventurer in California in the gold rush days, a lawyer in Illinois and a soldier in the Civil war, rising to the rank of lieutenant-colonel of an Illinois volunteer regiment. After the war he moved to Missouri where he practiced law for a time and became noted as a political orator. In 1853 he moved to Kansas where he was to win his greatest renown.

He served in the state senate in 1873-4 but declined re-election and in 1878 was elected governor by the Republican party. Re-elected in 1880, he won the Republican nomination for a third term in 1882 but was defeated in the election.

Always a pronounced enemy of the liquor traffic, St. John was nominated for President on the Prohibition ticket in 1884 and polled a total of 151,869 votes. This was 20,000 more than the vote for Butler, the candidate of the "Greenbackers," so that he was the "runner-up" in the race between Cleveland and Blaine.

During his canvass for the presidency, St. John traveled extensively over the United States making speeches in behalf of the "dry" cause. In fact, during his 14 years of public life he is said to have hung up a record of travel exceeded by few candidates for office. He traveled more than 300,000 miles by rail, during which time he never had an accident nor was sick a day and made a total of 4,000 speeches, missing but four engagements in all that time.

Norwegian Pagan Festival
Originally a Norwegian pagan festival in honor of the sun, St. Hans eve is celebrated throughout the country with bonfires, dancing and merrymaking the whole night through. In Oslo, the entire population, it seems, either boats out to islands in the fjord or goes out onto the tops of near-by mountains for the celebration. Bonfires are lighted on every hill, and at the outdoor museums here and at Lillehammer, great demonstrations of folk dancing are given.

Illuminated Highways Are New Safety Measure

A motorist can see a pedestrian a half mile ahead and a car three-quarters of a mile ahead at night on the illuminated highway between Schenectady and Duaneburg, N. Y. The 18-mile stretch of road is lighted with 390 yellow sodium lights spaced 250 feet apart by engineers of the General Electric company and the American Road Builders' association.

What Irvin S. Cobb Thinks about

Greenhorn Hunters.

BEVERLY HILLS, CALIF.—Now that the casualty lists are drifting in, there's talk of action to cut down the needless fatalities that mark every gunning season.

Greenhorns prowl the glade, firing at anything that moves. All who can afford hunting licenses and high-powered rifles are eligible. They rarely hit big game, but seem able to blast down humans at any distance. If it were permissible to mount guides' heads there'd be handsome trophies over many a mantelpiece in this fair but careless land.

Irvin S. Cobb

Once there was a Maine guide—so the old story runs—who got goshawfully tired of being shot at by city slickers. So he made a complete suit of broad-awing stripes, alternately white and black. He figured that ought to save him, but on his next trip into the woods, an amateur potted him the first shot. At the inquest, the coroner said: "We know you didn't mean to kill poor Eph, but how in thunder did you think a man dressed like him could be a deer?" "I didn't think he was a deer," confessed the remorseful one, "I thought he was a zebra."

Antics of "Automaniacs". IT MUST indeed be true that providence looks after idiots and drunkards. Else how could all such be able to get drivers' licenses? I rode with a prize specimen yesterday. He seemed lucid enough until he got his foot on the gas. That was what fooled me. If ever I ride with him again, which heaven forbid, I shall carry a lily in my hand—just in case. We had a set of overcoat buttons, the top off of a stop signal and part of a gear in our car when we arrived. So we didn't actually hit anybody, this being due, I think, to his holding dead on the mark instead of leading it by a few inches, an one should when one's target is moving. He hopes for better luck next time. Yet there was no rush. There rarely is. And that's the funny part about an automaniac's reactions. It's the only funny part—the rest is tragedy.

The Simpson Affair.

THE simple name of Simpson has become practically a household word in America, but 'tis said millions of English people haven't so much as heard it yet—or at least not in their public prints. It's another case of having to go away from home to hear the news. If it's true, as exclusively reported over here, that his majesty invited a premier and primate—two of the highest cards in the whole deck—to mind their own business, he set the tune for the daily press of his realm to dance by. However, the British newspapers never did develop the high arts of keyhole peeping and transom lifting to the extent practiced by a certain peculiar school of American journalism. With them, an Englishman's house still is his castle, though it be a glass house. Or even a royal palace. But some of the London gossip-writers must be so swollen up with strangulated copy they've probably had to have their clothes let out. Now, if haply 'twas purely a Yankee affair—instead of being, as it were, fifty-fifty—how those boys would love to cut loose.

A Job for the New President.

IF, in his first message to the next congress, our newly-elected President—should come right out and advocate the following things: First—Taking steps to collect, or at least try to collect, what those defaulting debtor nations owe us; second—instructing the proper departments promptly to deport all aliens illegally admitted to this country and therefore here in defiance of our immigration laws; third—authorizing immediate action so that all unaturalized communists and other foreign-born enemies of the government which shelters them—including especially such of these as are on federal relief rolls or hold private jobs to the exclusion of citizens—shall be put out of this country and kept out. Well, if he did do those very things, there wouldn't be, as Adam Bede once said, a dry throat left among the kind of Americans I trot around with.

Alcohol for Auto Fuel Being Made From Kansas Corn

Product Will Be Blended With Commercial "Gas"

ATCHISON, KAN.—America's first power alcohol plant is producing new fuel for motor cars. Two batches of anhydrous ethyl alcohol made from corn, totaling 2,000 gallons, have poured from the stills of the Chemical Foundation-sponsored plant of the Bailor Manufacturing company here.

Officials expressed themselves as pleased with the performance of the new plant and predicted that in a month the capacity of 10,000 gallons a day would be realized.

Alcohol-blended gasoline under the name of agrol will be on sale shortly in seven midwestern states at prices that will compete on a quality basis with straight gasoline fuels.

Outlet for Surpluses.

The production of power alcohol from surplus farm products in this plant is being watched by leaders in agriculture, the oil industry and other fields, including government, because it is a practical demonstration of the Farm Chemurgic Council's thesis that crops from American soil can be utilized for manufacture of industrial materials.

The Atchison plant also produces butyl as well as ethyl alcohol and as a valuable by-product evaporates the spent mash into a protein feed for stock. The butyl alcohol is used in connection with the ethyl alcohol production.

The ethyl alcohol, the same stuff that gives the kick to liquor, is used blended with gasoline to produce motor fuel. The whole output of the Bailor plant is being taken by the Chemical Foundation of Kansas for distribution at a price not to exceed 25 cents a gallon.

At the plant the alcohol is denatured and then blended with an equal volume of a petroleum to make what is called "agrol fluid." This blend will be used by filling station operators to make three grades of agrol gasoline, known as agrol 5, agrol 10 and agrol 15. These numbers indicate the quantity of alcohol of the standard blends when 60 octane gasoline is taken as the base fuel. If the filling station uses higher octane gasoline, less agrol fluid is needed, and if lower octane gasoline is the base, more agrol fluid is blended.

Synthetic Cloth Is Produced From Fiber of Raw Meat

BERLIN.—Raw meat is the newest item on the German "Er-satz" list, to replace part of the costly imports of wool and other fabric material.

But a suit of raw meat clothes is not as gory to wear and look at as it sounds. Carnofil, as the new fiber is called, comes from the hands of German chemists and fabric technologists looking and feeling very much like good ordinary woolen cloth.

Tough Meat Used.

Carnofil depends on the "stringiness" of meat, a property we all have noticed—usually with annoyance—when we get a piece of beef from a cow that reached too venerable an age before she visited the butcher. Cooks try to mitigate this stringiness by various means.

In making Carnofil the exact opposite is sought; the juicy part is dissolved away by chemical treatment, and the dried fibers are then mechanically treated to render them more flexible.

Carnofil is a coined, semi-Latin word, meaning "meat-thread."

Powerful Antiseptics Made From Oat Hulls

SAN FRANCISCO.—Oat hulls and other farm wastes may in the future yield powerful antiseptics for use in medicine and for combating plant diseases, as they already supply industry with materials for making plastic products such as steering wheels, radio panels, and electric insulators.

Doctors N. M. Phatak and C. D. Leake, of the University of California Medical school here, have combined furan, an oat-hull derivative, with mercury in various ways, producing a number of promising germ-killing compounds. In dilutions one part of antiseptic in from 15,000 to 30,000 parts of water, they killed test cultures of colon bacilli and the yellow germs that cause boils.

Mother Earth Adds Pound an Hour to Her Avoirdupois

Diet of Stone and Iron Drops From the Skies

OLD MOTHER EARTH is putting on weight at the rate of nearly a pound an hour, on a diet consisting of stone and iron. She makes no secret of it either, for at least the larger mouthfuls are signaled by shooting stars.

How fast the earth receives new matter from interstellar space was worked out from the addresses presented by Dr. F. G. Watson and Dr. J. L. Greenstein, both of Harvard College Observatory, before the meeting of the American Astronomical society at Harvard University.

Dr. Watson made a special study of the rate of fall of what might be called micro-meteors, which are bits of cosmic dust gathered in by the earth as it speeds through space, but which are so small that they do not make the brilliant flashes that mark the capture of their larger brethren, the meteors or shooting stars.

Birth of Shooting Stars.

The brilliant shooting stars on which young people "make a wish" are caused by the evaporation in the high upper atmosphere of bits of stone or iron, the biggest about the size of a pinhead.

Dr. Watson's micro-meteors are much smaller than that, the smallest detected with his special instruments being about a hundredth of a millimeter in diameter. That is about the size of a yeast cell, or a good, fat, outside germ.

Dr. Watson's studies showed that every day the earth's atmosphere receives approximately one hundred thousand million meteors and micro-meteors.

How Rate Is Estimated.

Their total mass comes to an estimated ten kilograms daily. A kilogram is a little over two pounds, so that the hourly rate is somewhere around one pound.

Dr. Greenstein conducted his research on similar drifting solid particles as they exist in the far interstellar spaces, for they seem to be everywhere in the astronomically exploratory universe. Particularly thick masses of them cut off light from distant stars, making the dark nebulae, or "coal sacks," that have proved so puzzling and tantalizing to astronomers.

Gigantic Model of "O' Man River" Is Used in Flood Study

NIAGARA FALLS.—Army engineers are turning back the calendar through the years and re-enacting the great floods of the Mississippi river, it was revealed at the meeting of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers here by Lieut. F. H. Falkner, Engineer corps, United States army.

Lieut. Falkner is director of the U. S. Waterways Experiment station at Vicksburg, Miss.

Scene of the re-creation of Mississippi floods is the great 1,100 foot long model at Vicksburg of O' Man River's domain from south of Helena, Ark., to the river's mouth. Represents 16,000 Miles.

The model shows the 602 miles of the main river channel, the five principal tributaries, all backwater areas and the entire Atchafalaya basin to the Gulf of Mexico. Total area of the river section portrayed is 16,000 square miles.

At present, Lieutenant Falkner disclosed, studies are under way for the purpose of determining the extent and sequence of work required for handling the 1927 flood. In the past year there has been made a survey of flood water routing through the emergency diversion outlets from the main channel of the Mississippi river through the Atchafalaya basin.

The Vicksburg station is only one of 41 division and district offices throughout the nation in which the army's corps of engineers is conducting over three hundred separate experiments on all phases of river navigation and flood control.

Holy Land Crusader's Prison to Be Explored

MUNICH.—The castle where King Richard the Lion-Hearted was imprisoned when he returned from crusading in the Holy Land, now only an imposing ruin, is to be excavated and restored as a part of an extensive project for the investigation of some of the historic castle ruins in the Rhenish palatinate, undertaken by the German state of Bavaria.

This castle, still known by its ancient name of Trifels, came into the possession of the German emperor, Heinrich IV, in the year 1061. During the reign of Henry VI it was rebuilt and extended; it was in this renovated castle that the famous English king was imprisoned, along with many Sicilian nobles.

DIET TO-BLAME FOR THE HIVES

Wrong Food Is Cause of Many Other Ailments.

By EDITH M. BARBER
CERTAIN foods which score the best as far as nutritive value is concerned occasionally produce disturbing symptoms when eaten by some persons. Persons of this type are said to be sensitive to certain foods or to have food idiosyncrasies.

This sensitiveness may be acute or mild. The symptoms may be a rash, asthma or a less acute form of nasal disturbance. Usually the offending food belongs to the protein division. Eggs and milk are often the offenders. Sometimes peas, beans and whole grains, all of which contain some protein, produce the same effect. Shellfish and strawberries, although the latter are low in protein, are also often to blame for hives and digestive upsets.

Usually food idiosyncrasies show themselves in infancy. There are cases, however, which develop in later years, especially during periods of nerve strain. Fortunately, however, these conditions are usually temporary.

Sometimes sensitiveness may be reduced and sometimes cured by giving minute but gradually increasing quantities which eventually create an immunity. This is exceedingly important in the case of children when milk causes what is known as an allergy. It is also important in the case of eggs, because so many dishes contain them as one of the ingredients. Shellfish and strawberries may be avoided easily if they cause trouble, but eggs and milk may be present when it is not apparent.

Corn Pone.

1 teaspoon sugar
¼ teaspoon salt
1½ cups boiling water
1½ tablespoons butter, melted
2 cups cornmeal
Dissolve the sugar and the salt in the water; mix the butter with the cornmeal, then add boiling water and let stand ten minutes. Shape into oblong cakes, bake on a greased pan in a hot oven, 450 degrees Fahrenheit, for 25 minutes.—From "Nutrition in Health and Disease," by Cooper, Barber and Mitchell.

Maple Parfait.

4 eggs
1 pint cream
1 cup hot maple sirup
Beat the eggs lightly and pour on slowly the maple sirup. Cook until the mixture thickens; cool, and add the cream beaten until stiff. Mold, pack in salt and ice, using two parts of ice to one part of salt, and let stand four hours or pour into freezing tray of automatic refrigerator and freeze three to four hours.

Brandy Hard Sauce.

1-3 cup butter
1½ cups powdered sugar, or 1 cup granulated
1 egg yolk
2 tablespoons or more brandy
Cream the butter, add the sugar gradually, then the beaten egg yolk and beat until very light. Add the flavoring.

Noel Cake.

2 cups ground Brazil nuts.
6 eggs
¼ teaspoon salt
1 cup sugar
Grind the nuts (one and one-half cups of shelled nuts or about one-half pound) and mix with sugar and salt. Beat egg yolks until foamy and beat in sugar and nut mixture. Beat thoroughly and fold in beaten egg whites. Pour mixture into a greased spring form and heat in a slow oven, 325 degrees F. for 20 minutes; raise the temperature to 375 degrees for 10 minutes and then decrease heat to 325 degrees for 30 minutes.

Watch Proportions

Many chintzes bold in design and brilliant in color are appealing because they are decorative in themselves. Their striking quality is, alas, their fault. A patterned fabric does not have the same status as a piece of furniture or even as an accessory in a room. It always becomes a part of some other design—a curtain for a window, a cover for a chair—and should be plainly subsidiary to it if it is not to look overbearing and soon become tiresome. On the other hand the patterns used in a large room and on large chairs and davenport are lost if they are too delicate.

What Brush for What

When selecting a brush for applying shellac, choose a bristle brush; for japan colors, a squirrel hair or camel's hair brush will leave the smoothest surface. For lacquer, use flowing brushes made of ox-hair, fitch or badger. When applying paint and varnish, use soft flat brushes of Chinese bristles, fitch or badger. Keep a varnish brush for varnish only.

Eggshell Gloss

If you wish to obtain an eggshell gloss by rubbing, simply pour small amounts of paraffin oil on the furniture and then sprinkle fine powdered pumice stone over it. Rub well with rags using long straight strokes. When you have the desired finish, carefully clean away all trace of pumice and oil.

Dumb Waiter Old

Wives, Know Yourselves!

Accurate Analysis Will Do Much to Overcome Difficulty in Wedded Life

Speaking on the question of trial marriages, a well known writer said, "There should be no need for trial when two people know their own abilities and have measured themselves accurately. Two people who understand themselves will never, I believe, have any difficulty living happily together after marriage."

That is a new slant on the question of success in marriage, supplements a woman writer of national fame. Not "know my husband"—or "wife," but "know thyself!"

And, come to think of it, isn't most of the discontent and dissatisfaction in marriage traceable to ideas of ourselves—that may be misconceptions, no less than our illusions about the other person?

How many women's dissatisfaction with their husband has as its source the thought of all they gave up to marry him, all they "might have had" if they had married a certain other man?

How many women's discontent with the role of wife and mother springs from the thought of how much more fascinating pastimes they might have had if they had followed that career?

How many girl's impossible expectations of a fulltime lover and Prince Charming originates in an exaggerated notion of their own devastating beauty and charm?

If all discontented wives would look deeply into themselves, measure themselves, stop fooling themselves, many might discover that the other man they might have married is a self-nurtured illusion; that the career of their dreams is not a soft snap and a joy forever, but a grueling, exhausting job which might have worn them out if they had qualified for it, which they probably would have been unable to do; that they themselves are neither devastating beauties nor always charming, but women who are frequently disappointing and difficult to live with. They might discover and admit to themselves that they are greatly in debt to their husbands for many things that make life easier and better and more worthwhile—that they would not get along so well without them.

Then they might think more of doing their part of trying to make those husbands happy. And that effort on the part of one must inevitably go a long way toward a mutually happy and successful marriage.

Sun Carnival

El Paso, Tex., Nov. 5.—The color of the Great Southwest will be splashed over the nation on New Year's Day.

The romance and glamour of this great region will reach out and touch residents of every mid-west and eastern state.

Through thousands of loud-speakers in homes in snow-covered eastern sections will come the description of the superbly beautiful Southwestern Sun Carnival. "Pageant of Beauty" Parade.

Expertly described by a staff announcer from Station WFAA, Dallas, the great procession will command the attention of untold thousands.

But the atmosphere of the parade will not be lost when the broadcast is finished. Newsreel cameramen will be on hand New Year's Day to "shoot" for the Nation's theatre-goers the dramatic highlights of the Southwest's greatest show—the Southwestern Sun Carnival.

Southwestern residents, thousands strong, already are planning to be in El Paso during the carnival season, Dec. 29 to January 1. Practically all towns in the area are already entered in the pageant or are making the last arrangements necessary to enter.

Contests to determine the Sun Princesses in Southwestern cities and towns will be started in a few days and school and college bands are busy practicing the snappy marches they will play during the Pageant of Beauty parade.

Prospective entrants in the Southwestern Sun Carnival have until Dec. 1 to get their entries to officials.

Mr and Mrs Jerry Beltran returned home Tuesday night from Colorado.

Junior Home-

Makers Meet

The Junior Home-Makers held their regular meeting in the Home Ec. room Tuesday afternoon. The new members were initiated in an impressive candle-light ceremony. After the initiation Hilda Ann Barnett read the poem. "If for Girls" the girls chose sides for a contest, at the end of the year the side with the least points has to give the winning side a party. Points will be given for new members, good program, and number of girls present. The names of the sides are to be kept secret and the side which keeps its name secret longest will be given 25 points. The initial of the sides are the C. K. T. C. and F. F. C. F. B's.

After the meeting refreshments were served by the officers of the Club.

Europeans Are Lining Up, Communists vs. Fascists

JUST about everything necessary to a general European war is now ready. At this distance it seems that Josef Stalin, dictator of Soviet Russia, will be the man to fire the starting pistol; and he is reported to be convinced that another great conflict is unavoidable. The nations of the continent are lining up as Communist or Fascist, either in the constitution of their governments or in their active sympathies. The immediate occasion for their disputes is the civil war in Spain. Nearly all the continental governments and that of Great Britain joined in an agreement of nonintervention, but that pact is about played out. Russia, accusing Portugal, Germany and Italy of aiding the Fascist Spanish rebels, has denounced the agreement and declared she reserves freedom to help the Madrid government; the accused nations deny the Soviet charges and retort that Russia already has sent many shiploads of war supplies and munitions to the Spanish loyalists. At least three ships, alleged to be Russian and laden with munitions for Madrid, have been bombed by insurgent planes.

Portugal severed diplomatic relations with the Madrid government, and the representatives of the two countries were recalled. Dr. Armando Monteiro, Portuguese foreign minister, followed up this action by sending to Lord Plymouth, British chairman of the nonintervention committee, a long document accusing Russia of having planned and brought about the Spanish civil war. He named the Russian diplomats, agitators and soldiers who, he charged, were directing the operations. He alleged that Moscow sought to start a revolution in Portugal and thus provide a base for attacking General Franco's insurgent forces in the rear.

Nazi Germany, and Fascist Italy have buried their differences for the time being and reached an agreement on a united policy. This was outlined in a communique published after Italian Foreign Minister Galeazzo Ciano had conferred with Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler in the first place Hitler and Mussolini in the world that they intend to recognize the insurgent government headed by General Franco as the legitimate regime in Spain, but they promise to respect the terms of the nonintervention agreement.

Other important declarations of policy by the two states are: 1. Co-operation to protect the peace of Europe and "the holy riches of European civilization" and family life.

2. Endorsement of a conference to rewrite the Locarno pact guaranteeing European borders, but only in the west. This implied that neither would agree to Soviet Russia's presence at the meeting.

3. Co-operation for the rehabilitation of the Danubian countries.

In one clause of the agreement Germany recognizes Italy's sovereignty over Ethiopia.

U. S. Submachine Guns for French Fascists?

POPULAIRE, the organ of Premier Leon Blum's Socialist party, alleges that a shipment of sub-machine guns from the United States has been added to the secret armaments of the Croux de Feu in France. The Croux de Feu, a Fascist organization headed by Col. Francois de la Rocque, was dissolved recently by the government and was succeeded by the new Social party.

Populaire, referring to the sub-machine guns, said these "terrible weapons used by American gangsters" arrived from America through the port of Havre and through Holland. The paper added that the weapons are being planted in caches in Normandy and elsewhere in the north of France. Furthermore, according to Populaire, great quantities of tear gas bombs and tear gas pistols are arriving from Germany for the use of the Fascists.

Mussolini Holds "Eternal" Peace Is Absurd

PREMIER MUSSOLINI, talking at Bologna, said that Italy's "olive branch grows out of an immense forest of 8,000,000 bayonets"; and next day at Imola he told 70,000 listeners that he hoped for long periods of peace, but not for "eternal peace, which is absurd and impossible."

"The Italian people, which gave its blood for the empire, is ready for any other trial when the crucial hour approaches," the Fascist chief shouted. "In order to make peace—just as to make love—it is necessary that there be two."

Spanish Rebels Pushing Toward the Capital

GENERAL FRANCO, head of the Spanish insurgents, ordered the immediate taking of Madrid and each day the state of the defenders of the capital became more desperate. The rebels closed in relentlessly, making effective use of bombing planes and armored tanks. President Manuel Azana and some of his cabinet ministers slipped out of Madrid and appeared in Barcelona. Ostensibly they were making a tour of the loyalist fronts, but the general opinion was that they had fled from the capital to make a "last stand" in Catalonia, which province always is radical. Anyhow, Azana took over an office in the Catalan parliament building for himself and his secretarial staff. Senora Azana has quit Spain. She appeared in Toulouse, France, and departed for an unannounced destination.

British Government Curbs Oswald Mosley

GREAT BRITAIN is determined to keep out of the Communist-Fascist conflict if possible. Sir Oswald Mosley and his black-shirted Fascist followers have been trying to stir up trouble in England and in consequence the cabinet decided to put a ban on all political uniforms. It was expected that when parliament reassembled the government would announce drastic action to suppress the Mosley organization or at least to put a stop to its demonstrations and parades in Leeds, Manchester and the east end of London, where these Fascists like to create ugly feeling against Jews.

The public demand in England for action against the Fascists has been strengthened by the revelation that Mosley takes his advice from Berlin and Rome. It is reported, and widely believed, that Mosley's tactics of deliberately leading his blackshirts into Jewish communities are based on advice given him by Paul Joseph Goebbels, Hitler's propaganda minister.

Labor Conference Will Assemble on Nov. 9

SECRETARY OF LABOR FRANCES PERKINS announced that the third national conference on labor legislation, designed to stimulate the raising of work standards through federal and state co-operative efforts, will be called into session in Washington on November 9, and will last three days.

Governors of all the states have been asked to send official delegates including labor commissioners. Private individuals who have special knowledge of labor problems have been invited to attend the conference.

Green's Big Fortune Moved to a Bank

EIGHT armored cars escorted by armed private guards and state police, carried a fortune of $23,000,000 from the estate of the late Col. E. H. R. Green in South Dartmouth, Mass., to the First National bank of Boston. There it will be stored in vaults until legal actions may be taken to obtain income and inheritance taxes for the state of Massachusetts.

The fortune, which consists of the famous coin collection, valued at 5 millions; the stamp collection, valued at 3½ millions; a large amount of cash and securities, and a quantity of uncut diamonds, has been under constant guard at the Green home since his death.

Supreme Court to Pass on Wagner Labor Act

BEFORE taking a recess of two weeks, the United States Supreme court announced that it would review and hand down a decision on this term upon the Wagner labor relations act. Many lawyers believe this law will be held unconstitutional, for in the Guffey coal act decision the Supreme court held that the relationship between employers and employees was local and beyond the power of congressional regulation.

Browder Not Allowed to Talk in Tampa

TAMPA is not the only town that refuses to listen to Earl Browder, the Presidential candidate of the Communist party. Browder went to Tampa to deliver a campaign speech but as he began talking a group of men violently broke up the meeting and upset the speaker's stand. The leader of the attacking crowd denied that their action was sponsored by any organization, saying "We are just a group of red-blooded American citizens."

Senator James Couzens of Michigan Dies

JAMES COUZENS, independent Republican senator from Michigan, died in a Detroit hospital after a long illness, and immediately following an operation to relieve uremic poisoning. He was sixty-four years old.

Mr. Couzens was one of the wealthiest men in congress, his riches being a result of early association with Henry Ford in the automobile business. He was twice elected mayor of Detroit and was appointed to the senate in 1922 to fill out the unexpired term of Senator Truman H. Newberry. As a senator he frequently disregarded party lines, and since the election of President Roosevelt he had supported many New Deal measures. Before the recent primary he announced that, though a candidate for renomination as a Republican, he intended to support Mr. Roosevelt for re-election. This was an act of political suicide, and he was defeated by Wilbert M. Brucker.

Supporter of Chiang Slain in Hankow

GENERAL YANG YUNG-TAI, governor of Hupeh province and one of Dictator Chiang Kai-shek's strongest supporters, was assassinated in Hankow by a Chinese youth.

Yang was a close associate of Chiang Kai-shek and for some time was his personal secretary. He was appointed civil governor of Canton in 1920 and earlier was associated with President Sun Yat Sen. He was appointed governor of Hupeh province last December.

Foes of Alcoholism Meet in Pueblo

THE first Mexican national congress against alcoholism opened its sessions in Pueblo, and the first address was delivered by Josephus Daniels, the American ambassador, who during his tenure as secretary of the navy ordered all alcoholic liquors removed from American naval ships. On the first day of the convention all liquor stores throughout Mexico were closed by order of the government.

Zephyr Train Sets New World Speed Record

SETTING a new world's long distance train speed record, the Burlington railway's streamlined steel Denver Zephyr made a non-stop run from Chicago to Denver in 12 hours 12 minutes and 27 seconds. The distance is 1,017 miles, so the average speed was 83.4 miles an hour. After crossing the Colorado border the train hit its top speed of 110 miles an hour, which was maintained for one mile.

Belgian Fascists Plan March on Brussels

BELGIAN Fascists, known as Rexists and led by Leon Degrelle, clashed with the police in Brussels and Degrelle was jailed for a night. He said the motive of his demonstration was to show that ex-soldiers were backing the Rexists, and he announced that he would carry out his threatened "march on Brussels" with 150,000 followers and overthrow the government.

Labor's Quarrel May Be Handled at Convention

PEACE within the ranks of the American Federation of Labor has not yet been achieved, for the executive council of that body adjourned without settling the dispute between the Green and Lewis factions. The council will meet again November 14 in Tampa, and two days later the federation will open its annual convention in that Florida city. If there are developments meanwhile, the council or federation may discuss the quarrel, according to President Green. He said: "The matter is temporarily closed," and added that so far as he knew, no peace overtures had been made by the CIO leaders. Mr. Green declared the ten suspended unions could not be admitted to the convention.

Indictment of Five Is Echo of Lindbergh Case

AN AFTERMATH of the Lindbergh kidnaping case is the indictment of Ellis H. Parker, chief of detectives of Burlington county, N. J.; his son and three other men by a federal grand jury at Newark, N. J. The indictment charges the defendants took possession of Paul H. Wendel in New York, forced him to confess that he kidnaped Charles A. Lindbergh, Jr., and held him in New Jersey while revisions were made in the confessions of the older Parker ordered.

President Questions Engineering Schools

IT WAS announced at the White House that President Roosevelt had written to heads of 100 schools and colleges throughout the country asking the educators to determine whether courses at engineering schools are so "balanced" as to give students the necessary "vision and flexible technical capacity." The "impact" of science on human life produces social dislocations as well as advances in productive power, he held. He mentioned "unemployment, bankruptcy and relief." The engineer, he said, has a responsibility to help design "mechanisms to absorb the shocks of the impact of science."

Flat Furs Is Smart Trim for Suits

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

IF YOU are planning a new coat, costume-suit or daytime frock of handsome broadcloth (great favorite this season) or one of the new silks that look like wool or any of the smart novelty woolsens, accented with trimmings of flat fur handled in clever dressmaker ways, you do well. The idea is right in line with smartest current style trends.

One of the outstanding gestures in fashion's realm today is the lavish and ingenious use of such furs as Persian lamb, astrakhan, caracul and similar pelts, for borderings, for collars, panels, bib and plastron effects, for big revers and even for entire sleeves and novel pockets.

Also highly significant is the fact of a strong British trend influenced by the forthcoming coronation of King Edward VIII, that is evidenced throughout this season's fashions.

The models pictured carry the message both of British influence and the vogue for flat fur accents. They were selected from a collection of "classy" fashions presented by the style creators of Chicago in the wholesale district. The silk afternoon costume to the left is in royal wine shade, fashioned after the king's guard, trimmed in black astrakhan with typical old English collar, with three-quarter length coat of military bearing. The delightful handling of the bordering down the front illustrates the intriguing manipulation designers are giving to the now-so-voguish flat fur.

The dress and cape-coat ensemble to the right is developed in a royal wine shade trimmed in smart black astrakhan with satin lined cape—a most charming costume for afternoon or street wear. The dress is tailored with long tight-fitting sleeves and also carries accents of astrakhan.

Chic versions of the very-new-flat-trimmed gowns are created of gleaming black broadcloth with a bordering of Persian lamb outlining the very full circular hemline and collar, from which extends a matching fur border all the way down the front from neckline to hemline. Wear one of the fashionable high toppers of the same Persian lamb with a dress of this description for stunning effect.

The big hue and cry this fall is for gray-on-gray coats, the smartest types tending to the use of gray caracul or Persian lamb on rich gay cloths of sterling quality, although gray kidskin and grayish moleskin come in for a big share of the honors. The unique maneuvering of the fur adds to the zest of things. For instance a coat is apt to have a vestee that develops into a panel that travels the entire way down the front of the coat. Or perhaps the sleeves and the collar will be all of fur. The tricky ways of these stunning flat furs are too numerous to mention.

Cunning suits that ring a conge of youth have hip-length peplum jackets with full "wing" skirts, all the edges being finished with bindings of the Persian lamb or caracul if preferred. These are fashioned of broadcloth, duvetyne or velvet. Black is first choice, although the autumn reds and greens and browns are competing most successfully for prestige. The latest thought is the fur-trimmed cloth or velvet dress cold with a matching fur muff.

Buttons down the back mark this advance style. Many of the newer dresses are crocheted in a quick lacy stitch that is most effective yet does not exact a heavy toll of time and patience to bring to completion. The dress shown is crocheted of knit-crocheseen and will hold its shape beautifully. It is just the type to wear under coats this winter, and it will blossom out next spring gaily and becomingly and smartly wearable without a coat. You can turn this dress around and wear it frontways if you really wish.

STREET TWEED SUIT HAS LONGER JACKET

The conventional street suit of tweed is made this year with a longer jacket that is nipped in at the waist and then flares out in a basque. For country or sports wear, the more classic suit lines are used, length top coats shown over full or divided skirts. One house goes further and makes a bloomer dress of tweed. The dress is cut on severe, tailored lines, high at the neck and with long sleeves. Instead of a skirt, the dress ends in well-cut bloomers, which come several inches below the knees. A seven-eighths sport coat of matching tweed completes the bloomer costume.

Silk Satins Outstanding Vogue for Autumn Wear

From morning to night during the coming weeks style-alert women will be wearing silk satins, judging from the emphasis accorded this fabric in the Paris openings. Plain and novelty weaves are both endorsed.

Sleek satin afternoon frocks under frodlish broadcloth coats are especially good form. Satin blouses with wool suits are also in high fashion. Printed silk satin in a pin motif or printed in a flirtee patterning are among the new showings. Eyelet embroidered satin is also a new feature.

New Stocking Note

After a summer of light beige stockings, black heels strike a note that seems fresh and new. They are two-thread chifon, with black heel, sole and toes, and seamed with black thread.

Contrast Important

Color contrast is important this season in sports costumes, skirts and sweaters often being of different tones. Scarfs and belts also carry out color contrasts on knit.

Gigantic Palm Grove

Elche in Spain boasts one of the largest date-palm groves in the world, variously estimated at from 50,000 to 110,000 trees. The fruit-bearing palms are pollinated by hand, men scaling the trunks by holding themselves with a rope tied loosely around the tree and their waists. Many of the leaves are blanched and cold throughout Spain for Palm Sunday, and as protection against lightning.

What made justification for the taking of the life of another—of a man you had married?

Martin O'Mara had said to her, when last he was here—on Saturday:

"When a wife kills a husband, no one else ever finds out why. To save her life, she'll never tell even her attorney more than a part. She shot him; and the fact speaks for itself the fullness of her reason. You were the first to see her afterward."

"Yes," said Agnes.

"Then you can best judge for yourself—no one, who was not there, can tell you as well—what you should do."

Agnes arose and dressed long before breakfast-time, though she knew she would not be summoned to court today.

Both Mr. Nordell and Martin O'Mara had told her that they would move for the exclusion of witnesses, except when testifying; and in a trial for murder, the judge would so order.

The morning paper came; and there again was Agnes Glenelth on the page beside Myrtle Lorrle and Martin O'Mara.

She gazed once more at the placid, confident countenance of Charles Lorrle, who had cast off the wife who had married him when they (both were young, and who had borne him his daughter.

Here was that wife—Stella Lorrle—as now she was; and here was their daughter Janet. She was seventeen, and she had been graduated from a high school in Wisconsin last week, and had accompanied her mother yesterday to Chicago to be beside her mother today when Stella, the first wife, sat at the trial of Myrtle, the second wife.

Wife! Did any other word in all the language describe—or fail to describe—as many different relations? Both of these had been wives, and of the same man; and one had borne him a baby, and the other had killed him.

Here was Bert—Myrtle's Bert. ("Oh, God, Bert!") What part had he played in the killing? Some said—and Job was one of them—that the existence of Bert and the insurance on the life of Charles Lorrle completely explained the whole occurrence. Myrtle had shot her husband to go off with Bert—and the insurance.

Agnes shut her eyes; and she saw herself again in that room; and she knew, as she was returned to the feeling of the moment when Myrtle Lorrle first eloped to her, that she had not come in upon a wife who had just killed her husband because of another man, and to collect his insurance.

It was very warm at the jail, and sultry and sticky. Myrtle perspired even when she sat still, after she had dressed for the courtroom.

She wore her platinum wedding ring and her engagement ring—sapphires and diamonds set in platinum; and she turned them nervously on her damp finger. She had figured, when she held up her finger for him to slip them on it, that she could get away with marriage with him.

Why not? Wasn't marriage just living with a man? Wasn't that really all there was to it?

He'd give her a lot of money—more than she'd ever seriously dreamed of having; and she'd give him loving. But here didn't do...

They were coming for her to take her to court—to be tried for the murder of Charles. Damn it, she never meant to kill him—just to make him leave her alone, sometimes.

Stella would be in the courtroom; Stella, whom she'd given the gate, but who yet had showed up Myrtle as a wife and lover. Well, Stella'd had an advantage: she'd loved the faithful; she'd not had to try to love him, thinking of somebody else.

"Can't you keep her out?" she had asked Cathal.

"Not if she wants to come."

"Stella ain't so frightful for forty. Some men might like her yet. Aren't you going to have the jury, men?"

"Yes," said Cathal.

"Then the ones I can't get from Stella, Agnes can. I'll tell you—there's one type of man that never liked me; that's the type likes Agnes, I'll bet you. So have Agnes there for me."

"Agnes?" Cathal objected.

"That's how I think of her; wouldn't you? Say—sudden terror took its turn—Agnes ain't going to throw me, is she? She ain't."

"No," said Cathal. "But she won't be there when you get come in."

Myrtle Lorrle would have given much this morning if she could have counted on Agnes Glenelth's presence in the courtroom where she was to be tried for her life.

She was not in the old jail, but in the new one on the west side of the city; for, together with all other prisoners awaiting trial, she had been moved into the fine, modern structure of stone and steel directly in the rear of the new, imposing Criminal Courts building of Cook county.

Myrtle was now in the courtroom. Stella was staring at her! And she couldn't take her eyes off Stella. And beside Stella was Charles's kid.

Where was somebody for her? Somebody that counted and could do good? Where was Agnes Glenelth? Oh, why is hell wasn't she here?

The damn room was full of people, staring; but you couldn't see them, except Stella and Charles's kid.

Myrtle did her best to take it.

For two days they fought over the way it was Wednesday before Mr.

Nordell outlined to the 12 men at last selected—and the newspaper repeated to all who read—the case against Myrtle Lorrle. It was bad for her; very bad, as witness after witness built it up. It was much worse than Agnes had expected.

Agnes read it at home. For the state had decided not to call her; and Martin O'Mara told her that he could give her at least two hours' warning before he would put her on the witness-stand.

She felt shaky and half sick again. These were matters about Myrtle Lorrle which Martin O'Mara might not have known about his client. Yet now he had heard them; and he continued to defend her. Indeed, it was plain he was fighting for her only more hotly.

The newspaper writers spoke especially of how he fought. When Mr. Nordell put a question that might have a damaging answer, the defense attorney leaped to his feet.

"I object, Your Honor! I object!" "Overruled," said the judge, and told Mr. Nordell to proceed with the witness.

"Exception!" "I take an exception!" "Exception!" O'Mara struck back at the judge again and again.

Agnes could not completely understand it; but she could feel the fight in it.

Job brought with him, that night, the late editions which carried the report of the afternoon session of the trial. It was worse for Myrtle—and for Agnes—than the morning's disclosures. Some of it, Job read to her; some he left to her to read to herself.

"Now, Glen, what are you going to do?" "I'm going on, Job. I have to—haven't I?"

"Not as a defense witness." "I have to—if he calls me."

"Ho!" repeated Job. "He'll call you; but you can give him a surprise on the stand."

"How?" "When he questions you. You see now—you must see now—how things were. She was double-crossing her husband for her Bert. Wasn't she?"

Cathal telephoned to Agnes at nine that night.

"It looks," he said, "as if the state will rest tomorrow morning. If it's not..."

He Seated Himself, Restlessly, Upon Another Chair.

too near noon, I'll put on my first witness at once; I figure I'll ask you to go on in the afternoon. Say, two o'clock."

"Yes," said Agnes. "I'll be there."

"Will you?" "Of course I will."

What had happened to her distress and disquietude? He was fighting; he had been fighting all day, and was spent, but with the fight still in him. She could feel it in his voice; and she aligned herself again with him.

"How's the trial going—really?" "Really?" repeated Cathal.

"I mean with you. You know how many of those things are true; the papers don't—do they?"

"No," said Cathal; "but some of the things are true enough. But they've got nothing to do with whether she did murder. That's all."

Agnes hung up, but sat by the telephone without stirring. She was warm and excited and satisfied, as she had not been all day.

It was eleven, next morning, when she left the house with her mother and Bee. They avoided the train. Simmons drove them, in the big car, to the city, where they picked up Job. Then they stopped at a quiet little restaurant where they could be alone, and where Job had had luncheon ordered in advance.

The noonday was very hot. The heat, indeed, supplied the third topic to the people of the city; the others were the further advances in stocks, and the trial.

Today it seemed almost more the trial of Agnes Glenelth than of Myrtle Lorrle. Today Agnes's pictures and her name exceeded Myrtle's in size and display. Agnes had ceased to care what they said even about herself.

She sat at the restaurant table beside Job, and with her mother opposite and Bee beside her, and looked down at jellied consommé in the cup before her. She lifted her spoon into the cup, but not to her lips.

Job could eat; Bee could eat; her mother could, a little. Agnes sipped iced-tea.

What Myrtle Lorrle had done—and what Agnes Glenelth was to support her in having done—divided any group of people. They did not debate whether she had shot her husband; that was undisputed. It was whether she "should" have shot him or not; or at least whether, having done so, she should now be punished further.

Job was against her—Job, who, if Agnes would marry him, would "tip up the cup" of sensation with her, drain it to the last drop while they both were young; and then? Why—he said—think now of that?

Her mother had no pity for Myrtle; her mother who had given herself completely to her love when young, and who now was being neglected for another. Bee, somewhat less surely, wanted Myrtle convicted. Not electrocuted, but imprisoned at least until she was old—until, for her, the life of sensation ceased.

Martin O'Mara would justify and free her; and not because he would make money by it. He could have made money "fixing" taxes, but he would not. Emotionally this sort of case appealed to him; he wanted to defend cases like this. He would get Myrtle off.

The talk at the table changed nothing. Simmons drove them at last to the Criminal Courts building. A crowd lined the curb. People were everywhere in front, everywhere inside. Windows of all the courtrooms were open. Photographers formed the edge of the lane that was opened.

Agnes never knew, until she saw the pictures in the papers the following day, how she got from the car to the doors of the court.

An elevator lifted them to the hallway outside the courtroom where Myrtle Lorrle was being tried; and there they met O'Mara.

He led Beatrice Glenelth and Beatrice Ayreforth into the courtroom, and then returned to Agnes and Job in the hall.

"I've one witness to finish with before you," he said to Agnes. "He'll be on when we start again, in a few minutes. He won't take long." And he showed Agnes and Job together to the defense witness-room.

It was a plain, stern little chamber with two windows, a table and six chairs; it was vacant; but the feel of conflict filled it. Not strange, with Job and Martin O'Mara with her in the little room!

Cathal, at least outwardly, was the cooler of the two. He wore a light suit of dark gray, and his bag just changed his linen; and the excitement which he controlled gave him bitter bearing.

"I'm sorry the day's so hot, Miss Glenelth," he said.

"I don't mind. Don't bother about me, please; and don't worry. I'll try not to lose my head."

Cathal caught breath, looking at her in her light, simple dress.

"You'll not, I'll ask you only what you know I'll ask. What the State will ask you, no one can tell; but I'll be before you to help you all I can."

"Thank you."

The door opened for the warning to Cathal that the judge was returning to the courtroom. Cathal hurried away.

Agnes stood stock still for a long minute; and Job merely stared at her. When at last she dropped down upon one of the straight, hard chairs, he sealed himself, restlessly, upon another. These two had nothing left to say. Only at last, when Agnes was summoned to the courtroom, he got up with her; but he parted with her at the door of the witness-room.

"Good girl!" he said, and gave her his hand. "And good luck, Glen!" And then, to save himself, he could not hold back the globe as she went to be Martin O'Mara's witness. "Go get your little pal—and her lawyer, Glen—your hundred and fifty thousand dollars for the shooting."

CHAPTER IX

Before she sat down in the witness-chair, Agnes stood for a moment, facing the courtroom. She had been sworn, facing the judge, who was beside her now, at her right and a little behind her.

The jury, twelve men in two rows, were at her left. A court reporter, with pencil and his book open, was almost at her feet to her right.

Directly in front of her stood Martin O'Mara; and over his left shoulder she saw Myrtle Lorrle seated at a table. Agnes would hardly have known Myrtle had not the newspaper pictures of recent days prepared her for her present appearance. Myrtle was in black, with not even a touch of color, except a piping of white in the neck of her dress and on the sleeves.

Black became her and made her look even younger and altogether than she was; and it made her skin whiter. She had on no rouge at all, and little or no lipstick. She looked not in the least like a killer.

Mr. Nordell was a few feet from her, seated at another table with two younger men with books and papers. That was the table of "the State." Beyond were benches row after row, where people sat and leaned forward. You could feel—Agnes felt—the clash of the conflict which swayed them.

IRVIN S. COBB

America's Foremost Humorist

Coursing through the mind's channels from wit to wisdom comes this radio entertainer, journalist, novelist, magazine author and dramatist—a great mind whose columnar comments on the world's troubles will make you rock with laughter in one moment, contemplate with utter sobriety in the next. Cobb's life has been a full and adventurous one. His journalistic experiences have taught him to watch for the whimsical and humorous sides in this day-to-day tussle with our fellow humans. Bunch together these varied experiences and abilities and you have a man whose writing knows no peer, whose humor and wisdom fit admirably into your reading program.

Texas Centennial to Re-open Next Year

Dallas, Texas, Nov.—Re-opening of the Texas Centennial Exposition for a five month's period in 1937 was assured today. The Exposition, through its president, Fred F. Florence, served formal notice on the City of Dallas it would exercise its option for the use of the Exposition grounds during the coming year.
Tentative plans for the 1937 World's Fair are for its opening June 12 with closing set for Oct. 31.
The decision of the Board of Directors of the Texas Centennial Exposition to reopen next year is the result of a general demand by the business interests of Dallas and Texas that the Exposition should carry on during 1937.

FOR 1937

AMERICA'S FINEST LOW-PRICED CAR

The Crowning Achievement of Pontiac's
Policy of Giving More for Less

REMEMBER—no matter what other important business you have on hand—be sure to see the 1937 Pontiac. You'll be well repaid, for Pontiac has built a new six and eight that have no counterparts in the history of motoring. The highlights of the 1937 Pontiacs are shown at the right. But even this imposing list can give you only the faintest notion of how completely Pontiac has overturned previous ideas of what a low-priced car should be. The new Silver Streak is bigger—full five inches bigger—and what a difference that makes in roominess, riding ease, smartness! It's an even better value—enriched with more basic advancements than any new car at its price. And it is even more economical than last year's Pontiac; official economy champion of its price-class! Come in—see the latest, greatest models of the most beautiful thing on wheels—let your own eyes prove that everything points to Pontiac for 1937. It is America's finest low-priced car.
