CARRIZOZO, NEW MEXICO, FRIDAY, DEC. 18 1936

SANTA CLAUS

The Carrizozo Business Men's Club sponsoring Santa will have a large Christmas Tree lighted up in the new park from Saturday on throughout the Holidays until New Year's Day. The New Mexico Power & Light Co. will arrange lighting of the tree.

Promptly at one o'clock on Saturday, December 19, Santa Claus will make his appearance on the streets on the east side of the tracks in a car furnished by the Chevrolet people. His journey will continue from there to the streets on the west side and down the main thoroughfares of the town.

The children and Santa Claus will gather at the new park at about 2:30, where Santa will empty his bag to the kiddies.

Don't forget to meet Santa in town and go with him on his journey through town. He will have a present for all the kids there to receive them. Don't forget to bring your children, and be sure to tell everyone. All are welcome.

Let's make this a real Christmas and have the real Christmas Spirit.

The Carrizozo Business Men's Club is sponsoring Santa, and wants to make this celebration an annual event. Donations will be accepted from all interested in helping. — Contributed.

FORT STANTON

The American Legion Auxiliary entertained at tea Sunday, Dec. 13th, at the Community House in Fort Stanton. All of District No. six was represented, and a guest from Santa Fe county. The tea was given in honor of Mrs. Vera Travis, Past Dist. President. Her District presented her with a Past District President's pin.

The ladies of James A. Hipp Post Auxiliary were hostesses. There were thirty-four Legionnaires and Auxiliary members present.

Kimbrell-Twitchell

Miss Ann Kimbrell, of Picacho, N. M., and Mr. Frank Twitchell, of Oakland, Calif., were married here on December 5, with Justice D. M. Barringer officiating.—Alamogordo News.

Mrs. R. C. Skinner and son, of Malaga, arrived last week, and will spend the remainder of the winter with her mother, Mrs. G. B. Greer.

School Notes

Ola C. Jones Co. School Sup't

The Lincoln P. T. A. held a very interesting meeting Monday night in the new school auditorium. After the business meeting, Mr. Burgess conducted the following program:

Music by the School Harmonica Band, accompanied by Mrs. Burgess at the piano.

Spanish Songs by a trio of girls, Misses Ofelia Miranda, Lucille Miranda and Mrs. Henry Sanchez, accompanied by Mr. Jose Moriera on the guitar.

Piano Solo Variations of Old Black Joe Miss Ruth Brickley.

An interesting and educational talk on "A Trip to Alaska," by Mrs. Ola C. Jones.

The Capitan P. T. A. is sponsoring a Community Christmas Tree. With it the Capitan Grade school is presenting an operetta, "Christmas With the Old Woman Who Lived in the Shoe."

At their last regular meeting, the following program was presented:

Songs, "Empty Saddles," and "Sundown," by Mr. C. H. Lenth. Short Address, by Rev. J. A. Bell.

County Board of Education

The new County Board of Education, to serve Lincoln county for the next two years, has been named, and will be composed of one woman and three men. They are: G. T. McQuillen, Chairman; A. L. Hulbert, Lincoln; Mrs. L. L. Peters, Ancho, and Florentino Lopez, Carrizozo.

D. A. Hood

Mr. D. A. Hood who lived on the A. N. Runnels farm about six miles south-west of Capitan, was found dead out in the field, where he had been engaged in doing some hauling, on Wednesday, December 9.

It is thought that he fell off the wagon, which ran over him, resulting fatally. His team was found near the house tangled in farming implements.

Mr. Hood was 55 years old. He came here from Texas several years ago. He was a Christian, having obeyed the gospel years ago. Therefore, we should not "weep as those who have no hope."

Mr. Hood is survived by his wife, three sons and one daughter. The daughter and one son reside in Texas, the others live here. Contributed.

Jicarilla School Notes

(By Mrs. McDonald)

At the beginning of school, the P. T. A. decided to give a present at the end of each semester to the child making the best grades in each grade. At the end of the first semester, John Arthur Huffman was the first grade winner. He received a pocket comb. Betty Lou Sechrist won in the third grade. Her prize was a box of Shirley Temple stationery. Louola Haskins was the winner in the fourth grade. She received a pretty purse.

These youngsters are delighted to think they've won, and with their gifts. Each is determined to win again, while their classmates are as determined that they shall not.

The school and Sunday School are having their Christmas program and tree together Friday night, December 18. Besides the tree and program, there will be a dance, refreshments and a quilt will be sold to help pay for the hot lunches which we have already begun serving. A cooked food sale will be held at the store and postoffice, sponsored by the P. T. A. The benefits will also go into the hot lunch funds.

Our P. T. A., and others who do not belong to the P. T. A., are working hard to see that the children are well taken care of.

The Junior Class Play

The Junior Class play Wednesday evening was well attended and quite successful. All played their parts well. Excellent training and a great deal of talent were shown. The class presented Miss Ward with a beautiful bouquet of roses just before the curtain went up on the third act.

Obituary

The funeral services for Richard Bramblett whose death occurred Thursday afternoon at his home at Alto, N. M. was conducted by Rev. Lewis of Capitan, N. M. Saturday afternoon at Angus cemetery at 4 p. m.

Mr. Bramblett had been in ill health for a couple of years but his sudden death came unexpectedly.

At his bedside at the time of his death were just his immediate family who had waited on him through his illness.

Mr. Bramblett was born Aug. 1, 1850, at Summerville, Ga., moving from there at the age of ten. He enlisted in the Confederate army at the age of fourteen, and took part in two battles under General Johnston.

He was married at Springplace, Ga., at the age of twenty one, to Mary Jane Venable. To this union were born seven children, four of whom preceded their father in death. Besides his widow, Mr. Bramblett is survived by three children: Mmes. G. C. Arnold Ora B. O'Leary, of Alto, N. M., and Colquitt Bramblett, of San Angelo, Texas.

Mr. Bramblett was a member of the Masonic Lodge, having joined at a very early age, in Montgomery, Alabama, where he was an overseer at the State Penitentiary. He was a member of the American Legion of Honor. He joined the Methodist church, in which father was faithful to the end.

Mr. Bramblett was a charter member of the Ku Klux Klan organized in the South at the close of the Civil War, and was a faithful member until it had served its purpose and was disbanded. He was a Democrat among Democrats, and had voted a straight Democratic ticket for sixty-five years, and lived to rejoice in Roosevelt's re-election.

The entire citizenship of Alto, who have known Mr. Bramblett for his open heart and his loyalty to his friends, join in extending sympathy and condolence to his relatives.

Active pall bearers were O. B. Shook, B. L. Luck, Ernest Barkley, Dick Bingham and B. Stuart. — Contributed.

Jingles From Jicarilla Hills

(By Hill Billy)

A group of some thirty CCC boys are busily at work on the new highway between the post-office and the Sparkman ranch. The advance guard is cutting and burning brush. After them come the boys who are blasting trees and stumps. These are in turn followed by the road building machines, and after them, a group building retaining walls preparatory to putting in culverts. When this project is completed the Forest will have a modern graveled highway that would do credit to a vastly more densely populated community.

The thanks of the entire populace are due to Senator Hatch for the speedy way in which he got results in the building of this roadway, from the Forest Service. Thanks are also due to the different supervisors and to the boys who actually performed the labor. The road has already been completed from Jicarilla to Ancho, and we are proud of it; and we are sure that the transient public will voice our approval.

M. H. Bridges, while visiting in White Oaks the other evening, met with a serious accident. After leaving the brilliantly lighted room and going out into the darkness, he walked over an embankment. He is now walking on crutches, suffering from a fractured foot.

The well that Mr. Little is having drilled in Spring Gulch is progressing slowly. They are now down at the approximate depth of 340 feet, and the flow of water is increasing very slowly.

Mrs. Bryan Ellis was a business visitor in Carrizozo a few days ago, and while there she had a session in Dr. Blaney's dental chair.

Mr. S. H. Smith, who is drilling the well for Mr. Little, visited the home port at Duran for a few days. When he returned his wife came with him for a short stay. She says she has to inspect the boys' camp at regular intervals to put things in apple pie order.

Our popular mechanics, Friday Sherrill and Claud Haskins are busily engaged in putting a couple of refractory cars in order. It is to be hoped that these enterprising young men will build up a highly remunerative trade in the auto repair business. They have abundant room in their shop — all out doors in front of the Sherrill residence.

Mr. Clyde Coon, of Oklahoma City, is a business visitor in this vicinity this week.

This community witnessed some peculiar weather phenomena last Thursday. All day long heavy squalls of snow followed one another, interspersed with brilliant flashes of sunshine. In mid-afternoon deep rumblings of thun-

Masons and Rainbows are invited to the installation of officers of Comet Chapter No. 29, on Monday evening, Dec. 21, at 8:00 o'clock.

Basket Ball Saturday Night

A double-header basket ball game will be played at community hall tomorrow night between the local and Socorro high schools and between the Carrizozo town team and the CCC team.

Mr. and Mrs. Bert Kerr and little daughter, Nancy Ann, of Panora, Iowa, are here, and will spend two months at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Karr. Mrs. Kerr is a sister of Mrs. Karr.

Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Shrum have moved from the Red Hill community to Nogal.

Bradley Smith came home Tuesday from Belen, where he had been for two weeks.

W. S. Armstrong

Funeral services were conducted at the Methodist church Wednesday afternoon at 3 o'clock by Rev. J. A. Bell, for Mr. W. S. Armstrong, age 70, long time resident of the Coyote community, who died at 7:30 o'clock Tuesday morning at the home of Mrs. Phillips here. Mr. Armstrong had been ill less than two weeks. He is survived by one brother, who lives in Windsor, Missouri. The brother was unable to attend the funeral.

der occurred, during some of the heaviest falls of snow.

Our popular school teacher, Mrs. McDonald, is contemplating a visit to Arkansas during the holidays. She and her husband established a new home in that state last summer, and of course she is anxious to inspect it at this time. After the close of school next Spring, she expects to return there to remain permanently.

The Lincoln Gold Placer Mining Co. (Dave Mitchell Pres.) is making very satisfactory progress in its operations.

Every few days a new group of prospective mining investors visit these hills. Great results are expected in the near future.

Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Hall, of White Oaks, have just returned from Oklahoma and Texas, and visited their daughter, Mrs. Dave Mitchell at her home at the Lincoln Gold Mining Camp.

The kiddies of this community, as elsewhere, are looking forward to the coming of Old Kris Kringle with his reindeer entourage.

We are glad to note that Mr. Moody is out and around again, after quite a protracted illness.

Mrs. Simpson Offers to Free King Edward

DISTRESSED by the storm over King Edward's proposal to marry her, Mrs. Wallis Warfield Simpson, lovely American divorcee, took refuge in the villa of friends at Cannes, France, and there made a dramatic gesture of renunciation. Through Lord Brownlow, gentleman-in-waiting to the king, she gave the correspondents this statement:

"Mrs. Simpson, throughout the last few weeks, has invariably wished to avoid any action or proposal which might hurt or damage his majesty or the throne.

"Today her attitude is unchanged and she is willing, if such action will solve the problem, to withdraw forthwith from a situation that has become both unhappy and untenable."

This offer to abandon her romance was transmitted to London and all the world awaited the response of the king, in his seclusion at Fort Belvedere. Unhappiness is the fate of both Edward and "Wally", whatever the decision may be. If the king relinquishes the woman and retains the throne, Prime Minister Stanley Baldwin and the cabinet, together with the aristocratic caste, will have scored a victory, but the contest between the new and the old will certainly be renewed in other form.

At the time when Mrs. Simpson gave out her statement, it appeared that the king had scored a point. Mr. Baldwin, having failed signally to induce the monarch to abandon his determination to wed Wally, gave in to the extent of side-tracking the abdication issue and giving King Edward ample time to come to a final determination. He told the house of commons this and related the whole story of the controversy which, he said, was precipitated by the king himself when he informed the prime minister of "his intention to marry Mrs. Simpson whenever she should be free." Mr. Baldwin said the king "will no doubt" communicate his decision in good time "to the government in this country and the dominions." He added "It will then be for those governments to decide what advice, if any, they would feel it their duty to tender him."

Replying to a warning from Winston Churchill that the government must not try to "extort" abdication from the king, Mr. Baldwin said "It has always been, and remains, the earnest desire of the government to afford his majesty the fullest opportunity of weighing the decision which involves so directly his own future happiness and the welfare of all his subjects."

But, he added, both the government and the king were aware that "considerable prolongation of the present state of suspense and uncertainty would involve the risk of gravest injury to national and imperial interests."

In what the prime minister said it was made evident the king never had stated his intention of making Mrs. Simpson queen, and it appears the monarch was told that neither his government nor those of the dominions would countenance legislation making possible amorganatic marriage, which Edward desires. On this point neither the king nor the cabinet has yielded, and to date Edward has shown no intention of abdicating.

Having learned all about the Simpson affair when the British press dropped its self-imposed silence, the British public took hold of it with excitement and enthusiasm. Crowds paraded in London, carrying banners with such inscriptions as "God Save the King From Baldwin." They booed cabinet members and the archbishop of Canterbury, who was steadfast against the marriage, and surged about Buckingham palace in great throngs.

Blum's Spain Policy Wins Support of Deputies

PREMIER BLUM of France, for the first time calling for a vote of confidence, won the chamber of deputies to the support of his policy of neutrality concerning the civil war in Spain, and this victory saved his regime from disaster. The vote was 330 to 171. The communists refused to vote because they could not approve the "blockade of republican Spain," but affirmed their support of the Popular Front government. Following the vote the cabinet ministers all decided to retain their posts.

Foreign Minister Delbos told the chamber of deputies that France would give army, navy and air aid to Great Britain and Belgium if they were attacked without provocation. He also said that France soon would propose at Geneva "a practical plan for reduction of armaments which will include provisions for publicity on military expenditures and limitation of air forces."

Mr. Hull Offers Eight "Pillars of Peace"

HEADS of 21 delegations to the peace conference in Buenos Aires outlined national policies, and among them was Secretary of State Hull, who proposed a program containing what he termed "eight pillars of peace" upon which rest peace and prosperity. These were:

1. Internal quiet and education.
2. Frequent international conferences.
3. Swift ratification of existing peace pacts.

4. Adoption of a common neutrality policy.
5. Fair and equal commercial policies.

6. Practical international cooperation.
7. Strengthening of international law.

8. Faithful observance of the sanctity of treaties.

"There is no need for war," Hull said in his address. "There is a practical alternative policy at hand, complete and adequate. It is no exclusive policy aimed at the safety or supremacy of a few, leaving others to struggle with distressful situations. It demands no sacrifices comparable to the advantages which will result to each nation and to each individual.

"Peace can be partially safeguarded through international agreements. Such agreements, however, must reflect the utmost good faith; this alone can be the guarantee of their significance and usefulness."

Next Mr. Hull offered a neutrality pact for all American republics. His plan would create a permanent inter-American consultative committee to co-ordinate existing peace instruments and bring agreement on a common neutrality policy, based on the United States' neutrality theory.

Midland Steel Strike Ended by Agreement

EMPLLOYEES of the Midland Steel Products plant at Detroit returned to their work, having voted to accept a settlement of their strike which included wage adjustments and abolition of the piece work system. The strike had been seriously felt by the automobile industry.

The peace terms, which union leaders called a "90 per cent victory" for employees, provide for recognition of the union, a 45 hour week, time and a half pay for overtime and holidays, an increase of 10 cents an hour on the base rate of pay, and a 10 per cent increase on piece work until it is eliminated, which is to be done as rapidly as possible.

Pope Pius XI Stricken With Leg Paralysis

STRICKEN with paralysis that affected both his legs, Pope Pius XI was believed to be in a serious condition because he already was afflicted with asthma, arterio sclerosis and high blood pressure. At first the holy father flatly refused to submit to a medical examination, saying "I am in the hands of God," and he even insisted on dictating and signing letters. But later he was persuaded to take complete repose, which his physicians said was vitally necessary. Father Agostino Gemelli of Milan, a medical expert, was summoned to Vatican City and gave out a statement indicating that rigid measures were being taken to stave off possible uremic poisoning.

The pope's illness was discovered when he was unable to arise for a ceremonial concluding a week of spiritual exercises. He was barely able to stir the left leg and physicians found that the heaviness of limb had spread also to the right leg.

Cardinal Pacelli, papal secretary of state, was more optimistic than many others. After a visit to the sick room he said:

"The pope is improved. In about a week the strong constitution of the holy father will win out over the illness. He is nearly eighty years of age and has never been confined to bed by illness. It is only natural that he should just for once feel indisposed."

Wheat Farmers Approve Crop Insurance Plan

LEADING wheat producers held a convention in Washington and gave their approval to Secretary Wallace's plan for crop insurance and the "ever normal granary." It was proposed that the federal government supply the initial capital to start the program, acquire and maintain warehouses and run the "all hazard" insurance program through a corporation.

A permanent wheat farmers' committee of fifteen was established to advance a program for participating farm groups and to exercise pressure for legislation. The committee was instructed to report by January 15. M. W. Thatcher is chairman.

Hamilton Will Resign as Republican Chairman

JOHAN HAMILTON, chairman of the Republican national committee, called a meeting of that body to be held in Chicago December 17, and announced that at that time he would submit his resignation.

Mr. Hamilton desires that the committee shall be able to address itself to the plans for a party comeback with a clean slate and with new officers in command, if a change of personnel shall be deemed more conducive to success.

The management of the late campaign has been criticized by some leaders in the East, and also by a few of the most radical of the western leaders; but it may well be that the criticism represents only minority views of the committee and that Mr. Hamilton's resignation will not be accepted.

Vice President Garner Vexes Some Congressmen

CALLED back to Washington because he is acting President during the absence of Mr. Roosevelt, Vice President Garner promptly involved himself in the battle for the house leadership that is being waged by the supporters of John J. O'Connor of New York, chairman of the rules committee, and Sam Rayburn of Texas, chairman of the interstate commerce committee.

Mr. Garner put himself behind his fellow Texan, declaring: "I am for Rayburn 200 per cent. He is the best equipped man for the job and I will do all I can to further his candidacy."

O'Connor's friends and other representatives who had been neutral were astounded and angered by what they considered an unwarranted intrusion by the vice president into a house contest.

Treasury Financing Plans Told by Morgenthau

SECRETARY OF THE TREASURY HENRY MORGENTHAU announced the mid-December financing operations of the treasury, the main features being further borrowing and refunding that will put the national debt above 34 billion dollars, lowered interest rates on government bonds and elimination of preferential treatment for the small investor. The secretary said that the December 15 financing, which includes the borrowing of 700 millions to cover continuation of deficits incurred, would be the last until March, when heavy income tax collections will pour into the treasury. Refunding raises the overall amount of the financing to $1,463,631,900.

In announcing that the treasury would not permit the small investor to have his subscription up to $5,000 met in full as in the past, but would be forced to accept a pro-rata share just as in the big bond buyer, Morgenthau declared that the public had "abused" the privilege. The plan "to give the little fellow a break" was initiated by Secretary Ogden Mills during the Hoover regime.

Russia's Constitution Given Final Approval

SOVIET RUSSIA'S new constitution received the final approval of the all-union congress of soviets, and the event was celebrated by a tremendous parade of the army and the civil population of Moscow. One revision of the original draft, made by the congress, authorizes the government to declare war "in case of necessity" instead of "in case of an armed attack against the U. S. S. R." This change was interpreted as bolstering the mutual aid treaty with France and also as a strong reply to the anti-communist agreement between Germany and Japan.

Williams Says WPA Rolls Must Be Decreased

"WHITE collar" members of the Workers' Alliance of America who called on Aubrey Williams to insist that no workers be dropped from the relief rolls were told by the acting WPA administrator that lack of funds made necessary the dropping of about 175,000 by December 15, and that 250,000 others would be transferred from drought relief to the resettlement administration.

David Lasser, president of the Workers' Alliance, asserted that widespread strikes would result from the reduction of the rolls.

Lace Is in Every Phase of Fashion

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

THE story of lace continues to unfold enchantment to an admiring world. It is not only that lace there is nothing lovelier with which to adorn as an expression of the "eternal feminine," but the significant thing we are coming to learn about lace is that in many of its modernized types it is absolutely practical for general wear. Through convincing demonstration in present-day fashions the theory has been utterly done away with that lace is a luxury to be reserved for "occasions" only.

The following might seem merely a pretty fairy tale to entertain. It is, however, a really and truly true story which has to do with the recent arrival from Paris of a prominent American who brought with her a perfectly exquisite and thoroughly practical wardrobe fashioned all of lace. Of course this collection embraced laces of versatile type for the lingerie as well as sports and evening clothes are each and every one of lace. The thrill uttermost and the argument conclusive as to the practicality of lace is a raincoat of handsome close-woven waterproofed lace. We hasten to assure that the raincoat has been put to the test time and time again, proving to be water repellant, and a sure protection.

To be sure, every worthy tale must have a moral or deliver a message and here it is—the happy possessor of this most charming and replete lace wardrobe is telling her friends that for travel lace clothes are eminently practical and satisfactory. Not only does lace prove flattering at all times but a vitally important thing about lace clothes is that pack them as hurriedly as you may they come out unwrinkled, maintaining a well groomed appearance without the necessity of pressing.

There is no end to the types of lace now available. You will find a lace tuned to your every need and to every mood of fashion. In the lace story for winter, it is the daytime dress made of wool lace that is making the headlines. A stunning model is pictured in the foreground of the illustration. It is of suede-finished brown wool lace in a heavy fabric type which makes the perfect thing for daytime street wear. To trim this handsome frock, Piquet uses a stitched cheec fabric woven of wool the same as made the lace, bordering the square neck, for the ash belt and to finish the side seams. We venture to predict you'll be deciding on a wool lace frock for your "fashion-first" this winter.

You can see from the beguiling dance frock shown to the right that designers are doing delightfully original things with lace. Chanel's evening and dinner dresses in ankle-length were a feature of her recent showings in Paris. She has a particularly charming dress as pictured with a dipping hemline starting from the ankles in front, done in Chantilly lace in pink and in black. The tiers of the skirt are matched by the cap sleeves in alternating ruffles of pink and black. The décolletage is especially charming and youthful.

The dress illustrated to the left was one of the hits in the Lelong collection, and considered by him one of the best of his creations. He did it in several fabrics including lace. For the lovely gown here shown he used one of the lovely filmy laces now so modish in an interesting delicate patterning. The feature of the pleated sleeves is also carried out in the little back pleum which stands out in quaint bustle effect. The girdle is matching suede.

REVERSIBLE CAPE

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

Complete tweed ensembles are excellent style. The model pictured is a Creed masterpiece done in terms of select wool weave such as declares its style supremacy. The cape is made reversible, which is a feature to be commended as it adds to the adaptability of the ensemble to occasion. Tailored outfits of this type, with jacket suit and top cape, are a whole wardrobe in one.

RED IS IN FAVOR FOR EVENING WEAR

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

The fashionable set literally "saw red" at the brilliant first night functions of the winter season. Red velvet wraps, gowns of red taffeta and alpper satin, the gleam of red in nails and lips—the shades varied all the way from the subtle smoky reds to the brighter tones of ruby, coronation and mountie, or orange red.

Particularly effective is a red velvet gown, ermine-trimmed and worn with a white ermine wrap, and an artful Juliet cap of red over sleek blonde hair. The sleeves were long and bound with ermine at the wrists. An ankle-length wrap of faille taffeta in mountie red, very slim of waist and broad of shoulder was worn by a striking brunette.

Muffs are worn demurely small or large and debonaire. A girl in bouffant black net under a slim black velvet wrap carried a large muff of white ermine tails, decorated with a spray of gardenias.

All-black splashed with color is again repeated and is second in favor to the predominating red.

Paris Sponsors Spots

A fingertip sports jacket made on boxy lines and recently shown in Paris was made of rabbit "mouette," a black and white spotted fur presented in several collections. Under it goes a belted waistcoat of the fur.

High Hats

New highs are marked by many new hats. A youthful mode by Agnes is of black antelope, draped and twisted to a high-point cone held by three long royal blue cow leathers.

what Irwin S. Cobb thinks about:

Our Good Will Ambassador BEVERLY HILLS, CALIF.—What better salesman of good will and brotherly understanding could we send to our great sister republics in the lower half of this hemisphere than our own President, who carries for his samples his personality and his spoken words?

If, in the past, we looked mainly to the old world for our markets, it is certain that in the future we must increasingly cultivate the Latin stocks of the new world, on a continent whose incredible natural resources are for a great part still virgin and nations who must be cured of persisting beliefs that the Monroe doctrine is, for them, a threat and not a shield.

If yesterday was Europe's and today is North America's then surely the promise of tomorrow belongs to South America.

Tugwell's New Job.
NOW that brother Tugwell, almost the last surviving lobe of the original brain trust, has left the government flat, folks are wondering how he'll make out in his new line.

Don't worry, anybody. To some, the molasses business might be sticky, but it offers no obstacles to a young gentleman who wrote and, what's more, had published, a poem with this deathless refrain: "I will now roll up my sleeves and remake America."

Mark the words, in six months he'll be an outstanding popcornball baron, and inside of a year the acknowledged taffy-kisses king of North America. And pretty soon we'll be 'lasses-conscious to a point where the effect will be that the entire country is paved with fresh fly-paper.

I wouldn't be surprised to see us using caramels for currency. And as for peanut brittle—well, I've already started hoarding.

Il Duce's Son-in-law

WHEN Mussolini let the word percolate that he was grooming that new son-in-law to fill his dictatorial boots he must have meant what he hinted at. Because latest photographs show the heir apparent with his jaw also thrust forward, his brows also knit in menacing frown, and his plumpish bosom inflated until his medals stand forth like carnival tags on a marquee.

The likeness to the original model is so perfect that Il Duce could use a picture of the young man for a hand mirror.

Ornithologically, it seems fitting that Italy, having kicked the dove of peace in the pants, should cherish the pouter pigeon pose to typify defiance.

The Language of Lawyers

I REGRET I didn't think this up first—some dirty plagiarist is always thinking up something before I get around to doing so. But I feel it my duty to help spread it around, especially since it was a lawyer who wrote it. I'm quoting him:

"If a layman gives an orange to you he simply says: 'Have an orange.' But when a lawyer puts the transaction in legal form he writes: 'I hereby give and convey all and singular, my estate and interests, right, title, claim and advantages of and in said orange, together with all its rind, juice, pulp and pips, and all rights and advantages therein, with full power to bite, cut, suck and otherwise to eat the same or give the same away with or without the rind, skin, juice, pulp or pips, anything hereinbefore or hereinafter or in any other means of whatever nature or kind whatsoever to the contrary in any wise notwithstanding.' And then another lawyer comes along and takes it away from you."

Underdone Movie Hams

A MEDICAL journal reports that a preventative has been found for trichina. But I'm afraid it's too late to do anything for some of our Hollywood actor-folk, triching being a thing common to underdone hams.

A lot of us who came out here as greenhorns and went to cutting up didoes for the screen have an alibi. When the movie critics accuse us of having contracted the disease of bad acting, our defense is that we'd been exposed to it.

Yet the films have produced a grand crop of good actors, out of very raw material, too, sometimes. And they keep right on doing so, notwithstanding that every now and then the popular fancy picks on some male beauty with a set of educated eyelashes and the wholesome trick of a languishing glance.

The door-bell rang. Winnie lifted the big bowl to the table, and as she was, with her apron upon her, she went to the front door.

"Oh!" said Winnie. "Oh." She reached for her apron and crumpled it in her thin hand. "Tis you." For the dread which had seized her when Cathal came home on the night this girl had called him, filled Winnie again. "Do ye seek me?"

"Yes," said Agnes.

"Will ye step in?" Agnes stepped into the neat little sitting room, where a few old, plain chairs and the table told that they were memorable, treasured things. She looked about, and met Winnie's blue eyes.

"Will ye choose a chair? None else is home," Winnie explained, seating herself unceremoniously, "or I'd call them."

"You are the one," said Agnes, "I wanted to see."

"Me?" said Winnie. "Over him?"

"Over him add myself," said Agnes; and she waited, not knowing what next to say.

"I'm pleased ye are here," said Winnie, trying to help her. "And why should ye not be? He's gone the many, many times to ye. Too many times, was it?" she asked anxiously; for she was still puzzled.

"Not too many for me."

"Then what trouble came to him?" Winnie asked, crumpling her apron. "What trouble this week and more? From the night he came home from the murder of that Lorrie, he's lived for ye. For naught else but for ye."

"He told you?" asked Agnes.

"Yud he tell me? I've me eyes; and the blind cod see. . . . There was a time he never knew ye; and there's been the time since. As different to him as night and day. What's fallen between ye?"

"Fallen?" said Agnes. "Nothing's fallen. We mean to be married."

"Who?"

"Cathal—your grandson—and I."

"What?" cried Winnie. "What! . . . What I hear, did ye say? . . . Ye and he! . . . He's a bit of a book, with every word of ye and every pitcher of ye pasted in. I looked. Sure it was printed for all the world to read; but he pasted them all together. At last ye returned from beyond the sea. He goes to ye; then he goes no more; and he passes me, these days, never speaking. In that because he'll be married to ye?"

"That's it," said Agnes; and no longer could she sit still. She arose, and Winnie arose. "He thinks I won't do it; so I came here."

"And still ye will?" said Winnie, so proud of him and humble for herself that tears came to Agnes' eyes.

"What!" Winnie whispered again. "He was born beyond us all. Far, far beyond most men. Scarcely thirty he stands now, a single score and ten; and men twice his years—the great men of Chicago—send for him in their need. And they lay their troubles on him. Well, as a lad he was like that; he wud see to us all. Small as he was, he wud see to us all. Never fear he will fall to see to ye."

"Oh, I know him, too!" Agnes cried. "Not yet," said Winnie proudly.

"Not yet the half of him! Not yet whether how strong nor how tender he can be! Once—altdown, Miss Glenelth; sit down. Let me tell ye—"

Far away, a school bell beat; and for the first time, it meant nothing to Winnie; and Agnes heard nothing else at all. So the back gate had swung, and the children trooped into the kitchen, before Winnie remembered them.

The cakes that day were never baked; for Winnie had left them to batter; but there was the hot fresh bread to eat and butter and hand about with the mugs of cold-milk. So Winnie O'Mara did that day with Agnes Glenelth helping her.

At five o'clock that afternoon the reception clerk at Cathal's office looked across his desk at a slight, straight, white-haired little woman in black-silk dress, new black bonnet and gray gloves.

"I wud see," she announced steadily, "Mr. Cathal O'Mara. Point me his door, and I'll trouble ye no more. Faith, now meself I see it." And forthwith she strode to it and opened it.

"Winnie!" cried Cathal, rising. "What's happened?"

She faced him fair and told him. "I had a caller today, Cathal. Agnes Glenelth come to see me over ye!"

Cathal could not bring himself back to his desk after his grandmother, had gone; he stood half the room's width away, staring without recognition at the open books and the papers which a few minutes ago had absorbed him.

One meaning—one, and none other was possible—was declared in what Agnes Glenelth had done this day, and which Winnie had told him. Agnes had broken down the last false barrier between them; it existed in her no more.

In him, what still held him? A lifetime of feeling the inferiorities inflicted upon a little boy of no fortune and no "birth"—but inferiorities which Winnie, from the first, so valiantly and steadfastly had denied for him.

When Winnie had opened his door, he had been studying how he might save from the penitentiary, and utter degradation, Philip Linsdale. This week another gentleman in desperate straits—not a neighbor to the Glenelths, but certainly known to them—had appealed to Cathal to save him from prison. Today, Cathal O'Mara—of no birth and background—had to refuse to take a like case.

For banks in the city and about Chicago were failing; great companies and corporations could not meet their debts; great men—great names of the city—dropped in dishonor. They who had held themselves above and beyond Cathal O'Mara were calling to him.

What had Davis Ayreforth all but done? How secure were Robert Glenelth's own fortunes?

Cathal stepped to his desk; he laid paper-markers between the pages, and closed his lawbooks. One last moment he hesitated; he pressed his buzzer.

"Ask Mr. Parry," he said to his secretary, "if he can step in here." Then: "Jim, I'm going away for a couple of weeks."

"Now?" said Jim. "On what case?"

"No case," said Cathal. "But it's two weeks before I have myself to be in court. You can carry on for me till then, can't you? You see, Jim, I hope—I hope to be married."

North from the city, he drove; and no doubts dragged upon him. He drove, pilfering his dreams for a practical plan of that which Agnes and he—Agnes and he—might do.

He never gained her door; for she awaited him by the road just within the gates.

It was dark. Clouds floated below the moon, clouds not of storm but of concealment; but in the dark he saw her white figure before he pointed toward her. He switched off his lights and stepped down. She said no word; nor did he. He grasped her hands, speaking then her name; but his breath went from him; and she whispered there to the dark of the lawn, clinging to him: "You're here—you're here!"

He released her so that she could lead him toward the lake. They descended, cautioning each other of the steps, to the shore; and no one else was near.

No lightning threatened tonight. The lake lay calm. Ripples ran up on the beach, which sighed as the sand released the wavelets and let them retreat over tiny shifting shells and stones.

"Dare you do it? Dare you?"

"What?"

He swept her up in his arms. "The one thing left to us to do. Go on from this moment together."

"There's nothing else," she said, "for me."

"Nothing!" he denied for her. "There's any one in all the world for you!"

"No," she said, very simply. "Kiss me."

They went up together to the house, where lights betrayed her father figuring at his desk under the auliers and trophies of his gun-room. Her mother seemed to be upstairs.

Cathal, alone, sought her father.

"Hello, O'Mara." Bob Glenelth turned on his chair. "You came awhile ago?"

"Yes, sir." The two men looked at each other; and Cathal knew that her father was well aware of why he was there. And it was Glenelth, not he, that avoided it.

"You've Ormstead now, I hear, O'Mara," Bob Glenelth said. "They've charged him with fraud—fraud and larceny too. He's taken for his private purposes, they say—to save himself—two millions. They've caught him; so he's come to you."

"Yes, sir."

Bob Glenelth somewhat ruefully smiled: "You seem to be collecting my friends, O'Mara."

Cathal said nothing, and Glenelth suddenly rose.

"What can you do for them? Will they spend the rest of their lives in a cell? They were good men. . . . You know I don't mean 'good,' but they had ability; they built things; and now you stand between them and prison."

"Yes, sir."

He struck at the wall beside him, which resounded at the blow. "Sometimes, O'Mara, I feel that even the walls we built must be of paper. . . . You came to ask me something."

"Yes, sir. I want to marry Agnes. She will marry me."

"I supposed so; and I suppose, whatever I say, you're both going to do it. Well, one thing; you're not paper, O'Mara. Whatever else you are, or aren't, you're not paper. . . . When are you planning—this thing?"

"Tomorrow."

"Tomorrow? You waste no time, O'Mara. . . . Well, I've had one big formal wedding in my family—announced weeks ahead, a thousand guests. This is hardly the time for that again; and I'm willing that my other daughter try another sort of thing. Her mother won't be—you know that. But let me stand up with my daughter and give her away, even if it's before a justice of the peace."

CHAPTER XIV

"Fools, they were; for they ate the Cattle of the Sun. Were they fools, do you think?"

"What were the Cattle of the Sun?" Agnes asked. "Days?"

"Days. They devoured the days—the Cattle of the Herder of the Heavens—without counting them."

"Must we count them?"

"You don't want to, either."

"I can't bear to! I can't bear to know when this must come to an end."

"It will never come to an end, Agnes, what's between us."

"No; but you must go back to the people that need you. So many people that so desperately need you! And you're so young—so young!" She caught his hand and kissed it; so he caught her to him; and for several moments both of them forgot about the Cattle of the Sun. Then he said, definitely: "We won't count them, either. We'll throw away the calendar and never mark the days."

"But," she weakened, "can we?"

"See that great gray crag down there?" Cathal gazed into the valley. It was noonday, and they rested side by side, far up on the flank of their mountain, at the very edge of the snow-line. Above them rose rock and snow; beside them a single stout little dwarf pine clung in a cleft, a brave outpost of the forest below.

The Sun, herding his cattle through the pastures of Time, had climbed to his highest slope in the sky; and his radiance caught the gray crag so that it shone above the mountain's shadow.

Agnes gazed at the great rock, and she followed Cathal's feeling: "Until that falls into the shadow at noon, let us stay! Then we need never count the days. Only, some day that rock will tell us that we must go."

And so they agreed on it.

They were far in the west and the north, amid the mighty, majestic mountains; and for five days they had been married. (And Bob Glenelth had stood by his Light One in the service at the house of the minister.)

To be married, to take your place in the procession of life, to realize at last how you had received your life and how, if you willed, you would pass life on—that was a solemn and also an exultantly happy situation. And there were the mountains.

Lord, thou hast been our dwelling-place in all generations. Before the mountains were brought forth. . . . Before these mountains were brought forth!

For a thousand years in thy sight are but as yesterday when it is past, and as a watch in the night.

A thousand years ago, no one had ever dreamed of Chicago, and the forefathers of the millions in the teeming city were to beget sons and daughters and die, and they would bear children that would die through six hundred years, before a generation grew that would bear of this America. And the stock-market that now "made" or ruined so many men—what was it? A center of scheming through a moment of time. Your stocks maintained their prices. In this center of men's schemes, and you remained powerful and great like Issai, and clever and comfortable like Jeh. . . . They declined, and you were disgraced like Philip Linsdale and John Ormstead; or you must destroy yourself, as Arthur Linsdale had done, and Missus had tried to do, in order to leave a few dollars to Bee and the boys. . . . Thou carriest them away as with a flood; they are as a sleep.

But the mountains would remain; the world, continue to spin under the sun, each year in the spring exposing to the sunshine for a few days that great gray crag in the valley, and immersing it again in the shadow until another twelvemonth was turned. One new, reckoned year to add to the uncountable ages of eternal Time.

Agnes shivered a little.

"Cold?" He clasped her closer.

"Have we been mad, Cathal? Are we all insane in the cities?"

"Here," he said, "it seems so. But you and I are going back."

"Not before we must! Oh, why do we ever leave here?"

He looked down at her. "All my life, I'll remember how you said that! And a thousand, thousand other—What magic you've made of my days!"

"You think I have? It seems to me you've done it all. I've merely moved, Cathal, into your kingdom."

"Mine!" he said. "Mine?"

"With your words, that night, you made 'his walls'!"

"The Man Who O-O"
Tales and Traditions from American Political History
BY FRANK E. HAGEN AND ELMO SCOTT WATSON

THE LADY CANDIDATE
EVER hear of Mrs. Belva Lockwood of New York? She was the woman who was twice a candidate for the presidency of the United States on the Equal Suffrage ticket. That she was defeated on both occasions is beside the point. The record shows that she was perhaps the most stalwart of the early-day advocates of "emancipation" in all its forms for the lovelier sex. And she accomplished most for them.

In 1852, two years before her likeness were seen on presidential banners, Mrs. Lockwood obtained the admission of women to the Supreme Court of the United States. It was the culmination of a five-year battle, launched at the Suffrage convention in Lincoln hall, Washington, in 1847.

Mrs. Lockwood was a practicing attorney herself. For three years she had been empowered to appear before the Supreme Court of the District but was barred from the United States body by lack of precedent. She established the precedent. But it required a follow-up campaign of briefs, speeches and bills to obtain the desired end.

The speech of Mrs. Lockwood at the 1877 convention was convincing to her hearers. Contrary to current recollections of the masculine type of woman who first demanded political equality, she is described in a convention report as entirely feminine. As an example: Mrs. Lockwood wore a velvet dress and train.

Mrs. Lockwood was a candidate in 1880 as well as in 1884. She was active in public life almost to the day of her death in 1917, when eighty-seven years old. After women were allowed before the United States Supreme Court she championed the right of Negro lawyers to appear there. Then she shouldered legal cudgels for the Indians, went as a peace commissioner to Europe, engaged in a score of other worthwhile activities.

BALLOTS OF HATE
THE presence this year of a nationally known newspaper publisher on the ticket of a major political party has excited interest in the part newspaper men have taken as candidates in the past.

One of them who was very active was Horace Greeley of New York Tribune fame, a candidate of the "Liberal Republicans" and endorsed by the Democrats to oppose the reelection of Grant in 1872.

Greeley was made a presidential candidate by a reform group of Republicans which had found its nucleus in Missouri with the election of one of its leaders as governor and later held a national convention at Cincinnati.

The Cincinnati convention expected its candidate and platform to be accepted by the Democratic organization, sadly broken up by the disfranchisement of southerners in the wake of the Civil war. So everyone was amazed when Greeley was named presidential candidate.

During the war, Greeley, a chronic sufferer from nervous disorders, had been erratic in his editorial positions, shifted them frequently—always with the belief that he was expressing what most people wanted.

While the South was still under arms, he had declared with great passion that the war should not end while slavery existed, yet petitioned Lincoln to appoint him commissioner to arrange a peace.

The result of all this was that he was threatened throughout the South and thoroughly hated there. Yet after the war he signed the bill of Jefferson Davis.

When the Democrats met at Baltimore a little more than two months after Greeley's nomination they adopted the Greeley ticket because they felt it their only means of opposing Grant.

A small group, it is true, broke away from the main body of Democrats, held a second convention in September at Louisville and placed a third ticket in the field.

Grant didn't fuss around with the election. He won overwhelmingly. It was the first time since the Civil war that all the states voted and Grant carried all but six of them, getting 272 electoral votes.

The states Grant didn't win—Missouri, Maryland, Georgia, Kentucky, Tennessee and Texas, were fairly representative of the territory which hated Greeley but Greeley died before the results were known. These states would have given him 68 votes had he lived.

Explains Lightning
Why certain trees are more apt to be struck by lightning is explained by Dr. W. J. Humphreys in the Kansas City Star. "In general, the trees most likely to be struck are those that have either an extensive root system like the locust, or deep tap-roots like the pine, and this for the very obvious reason that they are the best grounded and therefore, on the whole, offer the least electrical resistance."

It's Princess Lines Again

AGAIN princess lines are riding the crest of the fashion wave. Good news for members of the Sewing Circle, for princess lines have always been favored by those who sew at home. And for morning wear, the timeless shirt-maker, a perennial choice for busy housewives. Check your wardrobe. It's time to start sewing again, and here are three top-notch selections.

The smart shirtwaister (Pattern 1976) is a utility frock distinguished for its trim lines and as easy to make as it is to wear. Suitable in any of a wide range of fabrics for a wide variety of needs from sun-up to sun-down, this extremely wearable number is available in a wide range of sizes. The notched collar is neat and youthful, there is fullness at the yoke, and the set-in sleeves fit well and wear forever. Send for Pattern 1976 in size 32, 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46, 48, and 50. Size 38 requires 4 1/2 yards of 35 inch gingham or percale or chanton.

The slick little princess model (Pattern 1920) needs little comment for the picture tells the story. An utterly simple little affair which buttons all the way down the front, it will make an instant hit with your growing daughter and you can slide it through your machine with the greatest of ease. Just seven pieces to the pattern, including the collar and sleeve band, it is available in sizes 4, 6, 8, and 10 years. Size 8 requires 2 1/2 yards of 35 inch fabric plus 2 1/2 yard contrast.

The lovely daytime princess frock (Pattern 1933) is a model which can be made and worn successfully by 36's as well as 50's. There is a choice of long or short sleeves and there is just enough contrast in the graceful collar to give the frock a smart touch of distinction. Likewise simple—just eight pieces including the collar and cuff—this pattern is designed for sizes 30, 35, 40, 42, 44, 46, 48, and 50. Make it in satin, silk, crepe, sheer wool, broadcloth, challis, or linen. Size 38 requires 5 1/2 yards of 39 inch or 3 1/2 yards of 54 inch fabric. Less with short sleeves.

Don't miss these grand numbers. A detailed sewing chart accompanies each pattern to guide you every step of the way.

Send for the Barbara Bell Fall and Winter Pattern Book containing 100 well-planned, easy-to-make patterns. Exclusive fashions for children, young women, and matrons. Send fifteen cents in coins for your copy.

Send your order to The Sewing Circle Pattern Dept., 307 W. Adams St., Chicago, Ill. Price of patterns, 15 cents (in coins) each.

Social Security Accounts

Employees throughout the States of Texas, Louisiana and New Mexico today were urged to fill out application forms for social security accounts and return them to post offices not later than December 15 by Regional Director Oscar M. Powell.

"All employees in the fields of commerce and industry who have not already done so should file their applications in accordance with the December 15 deadline as the first step in the maintenance of a wage record account for each of them under the system of federal old-age benefits," Powell declared.

Explaining that the time extension for filing applications was granted because of the many requests for information received from employees and the time required to answer these requests, Powell said one of the common questions raised in Texas, Louisiana and New Mexico is in connection with names to be used in filling out applications.

"Employees should use the name by which they are known on the pay roll of their employer," Powell said, "and any evidence or statement believed necessary to explain a difference between a pay-roll name and the name as shown by vital records should be either attached to application cards or forwarded separately to the Wage Records office of the Social Security Board, Baltimore, Maryland."

Employees who have not received applications from their employers should apply for an account by filling out application card at the local post office and fill it out as soon as possible.

Employees are urged to fill out every space on the form, writing the word "unknown" in any space for which requested information is not available.

Christmas Accessories

The increasing beauty of the new automobile has created a demand on the part of new car buyers for more accessories, and this demand is making itself felt throughout the industry during the Christmas buying season as never before, according to M. D. Douglas, Chevrolet Parts and Accessories Merchandising Manager. "Automobile owners are taking greater and greater pride in their cars," Mr. Douglas declared. "A steadily rising sale of accessories has been the result. Such items as a radio, heater, defroster, clock or vanity mirror are now being purchased as Christmas gifts. They not only add to the appearance of the car, but they also increase the safety, comfort, and convenience of driving.

"Further, the fact that the public is spending more and more time on the highways has greatly stimulated the vogue of accessories," Mr. Douglas said.

Elaborate plans have been made to meet this increased demand for extra equipment at Christmas time by providing dealers with complete lines of accessories engineered to Chevrolet standards and designed to provide maximum satisfaction for owners, according to Mr. Douglas.

This year's accessories have been made available at most attractive prices permitted by Chevrolet's high volume production. Each item will be wrapped in gay Christmas paper and delivered complete with a gift card which the donor may attach if he desires.

Chevrolet dealers throughout the country will make special efforts to install gift accessories at a time most convenient to the recipient during the holiday season.

Notice

State Engineer's Office
Number of Application 2182
Santa Fe, N. M.,
December 12th, 1936

Notice is hereby given that on the 10th day of December, 1936, in accordance with Section 26, Chapter 49, Irrigation Laws of 1907, The Great Western Mines, Inc., of Roswell, County of Chaves, State of New Mexico, made formal application to the State Engineer of New Mexico for a permit to appropriate the Public Waters of the State of New Mexico.

Such appropriation is to be made from a small spring in Blue Front Canyon, which is a tributary of the South Fork of the Bonito River, by direct diversion at a point which bears due North 1320 feet distant from the South quarter corner of Sec. 15, T. 10S., R. 11 E., N. M. P. M., being in the E 1/4 SE 1/4 SW 1/4 of said Sec. 15, and 0.2 cu. ft. per sec. is to be conveyed to a point which bears N. 6 degrees W. from the SE corner of the NE 1/4 SW 1/4 of said Sec. 15, being in SE 1/4 NE 1/4 SW 1/4 of said Sec. 15, by means of 1285 feet of 2 1/2 inch pipe and there used for mining, milling and domestic purpose between the dates of January 1st and December 31st of each year, after which use the water will be returned to the stream undiminished in quantity.

Any person, firm, association or corporation deeming that the granting of the above application would be truly detrimental to their rights in the water of said stream system shall file a complete statement of their objections substantiated by affidavits with the State Engineer and serve a copy on applicant on or before the 10th day of February, 1937, the date set for the Engineer to take this application up for final consideration unless protested. In case of protested applications all parties will be given a reasonable length of time in which to submit their evidence in detail or arrange a date convenient for a hearing or appoint a referee satisfactory to all to take testimony. Appearance is not necessary unless advised officially by letter from the State Engineer.

Thomas M. McClure,
12-18-25 State Engineer.

Local and Personal

Frank A. English, son of Mr. and Mrs. F.A. English and James V. Taylor, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. J. V. Taylor of Carrizozo, are expected home for the Christmas vacation about December 18. These young men are enrolled in the Junior College and are among the one hundred fifty-three boys from New Mexico enrolled at New Mexico Military Institute, Roswell, this year.

Mr. Tiffany is up, and around after a severe attack of acute indigestion.

Mrs. T. A. Spencer, who has been ill for the past ten days, is convalescing nicely.

On December 11th the P. T. A. held a most interesting meeting at the high school auditorium. Miss Stover's class in calisthenics entertained with drills, etc.

Renewals this week were Mr. Tom James and Mr. W. J. Ferguson.

Mr. W. J. Ayers of Three Rivers added his name to our list this week.

Odd Fellows and their families are invited to a supper to be served by the Rebekahs on the night of December 23rd, at 8:30, immediately following the regular lodge meeting. Lodge will open at 7:30. Members please be there promptly so the business may be attended to and the supper served on time.—Committee.

Dr. Rathmann's parents arrived Monday night from Hastings, Nebraska. They will spend the Holiday season, and may possibly remain until spring. It has been two years since Dr. Rathmann had seen his parents.

Mrs. C. P. Huppertz was hostess to the Carrizozo Bridge Club yesterday.

Mrs. R. E. Blaney is expecting her sister, Mrs. Rogers, to arrive this week for a holiday visit.

Mrs. Marie Kohn, who was a guest at the home of Dr. and Mrs. R. E. Blaney, for some time, very generously contributed $50 toward the fund for the new club house which is to be built.

The Household

By LYDIA LE BARON WALKER

EVERY person wishes to succeed. The things in which this success is desired vary widely. Business prosperity, success in professions, and in careers, are among the chief material cravings. But there are thousands of persons who desire above everything else that success may reward their efforts in bringing up their children to meet the exigencies of life without failures. There are thousands who want home happiness more than anything else in the world. There are thousands of persons who are ill, or at least not in good health, who feel that life would be without burdens if only they could succeed in getting well. And there are the continual wishes for success in governing one's temper and ruling over one's own citadel of mind and spirit.

Since this desire for success in one thing or another is universal, and since some persons win out, while others lose, it is wise to gain some insight into methods that are fruitful. Success does not come in hap-hazard ways, but by earnest endeavors and steady purposes. There are methods to follow.

Definiteness.
The first thing to consider is precisely what you want. Definiteness is essential. The next thing is to have faith in your choice, and faith in your eventual success in it. No one can succeed who is not convinced in his own mind of these things.

Speaking of the mind brings up the necessity of constructive thoughts, and thoughts of success. No one can make a financial success who is thinking in terms of lack. This immediately stresses poverty above riches. The thoughts must be just the reverse. This same thing is true of everything in which success is desired. The thoughts must be continually progressive. It is amazing how ways open and ideas begin to formulate when the thoughts are set in the right direction.

Guard against destructive thoughts toward those who could block the path. Rather consider how to meet and surmount such obstacles as may be in the way. There are sure to be some of course. Sometimes a person stands in his own light, and then he has something in himself to conquer before success can be attained. It is possible, however, to efface, circumvent, or surmount obstacles. Learn to rejoice in overcoming difficulties. There are many pleasures along the way of success as well as in its culmination.

Bed Linen.
The young woman who is getting things for her hope chest, and planning the needed things for her trousseau, often is puzzled to know how to select household linens with discrimination. A few hints will not come amiss, then.

Sheets and pillow cases should be torn, not cut, into wanted lengths and sizes. If the sheets and pillow cases are made at home be sure to remember this requirement. Each ready-to-use sheet and pillow case should have been torn and not cut before hemming or seaming and hemming. Then they will keep their shape, and the hems will remain straight, unless the person making the article has been careless, or the machine has not been handled right when the sheets and pillow cases were run through it while being made.

Look carefully at all hems. Also to reassure yourself ask the sales person whether materials in the articles have been torn. Very cheap sheets and pillow cases are apt to be cut. The material is probably stretched unevenly in the process of making. When cut straight across the goods it will remain straight only until laundered. Then the sheets will not fold evenly, and the hems will wrinkle peculiarly. Seams in pillow cases will make odd looking curves and not come as they should in straight and even lines on the exact side edges.

Closely woven fine-spun cotton sheeting in full width size for beds is an excellent choice. The sheets and pillow cases will be sufficiently lightweight, yet durable. Sheets and sheeting that is full of sizing will be slazy when laundered. High grade sheets are never made with center seams.

Protect Shingle Roofs
Neglect of wood shingle roofs causes the wood to dry out and curl up. Splitting and breaking away soon follows because of rusted nails. A coat of preservative shingle stain applied periodically—once every two or three years—will make a roof last indefinitely.

NOONDAY LUNCH FOR YOUNGSTERS

Food Should Be Both Tempting and Nutritious.

By EDITH M. BARBER
WHAT are you giving the children for lunch when they come running in from school these crisp winter days? If a noon-dinner is the custom of the household or if there are small children who must have their main meal in the middle of the day this meal will be the usual type dinner with meat or eggs or a cheese dish, potatoes, at least one other vegetable and a simple dessert. If, however, dinner is served at night the lunch will be a problem by itself.

First of all there should be something hot like soup or cocoa. Nothing tastes so good as my own remembrance of this in my childhood days. At the same time the hot beverage seems to stimulate the appetite for the rest of the meal.

If a milk soup is chosen for the main dish with such a soup as vegetable or fish chowder, plenty of crackers, or toast, and a dessert even the hungry boys will be satisfied if they can have several helpings.

Of course it is a good idea to add a salad of some sort unless it is to be served for dinner. Perhaps you will say that your boys don't like salads. I have found, however, that "cold slaw" is not considered a salad by many men and boys and that it is always well liked. Of course every mother should aim to teach her children to eat and like all foods and the salad habit is a good one.

Eggs and cheese dishes are also a good choice for luncheon. Baked eggs with tomatoes or with a cheese sauce, cheese toast, omelette, eggs, a tomato rabbit, or toasted cheese sandwiches are a few suggestions. A combination of rice or macaroni with cheese and tomatoes is usually liked.

Hot cocoa or a cereal beverage made with milk is better on a cold day than plain milk. Cocoa made by the easiest method is fortunately better than when it is made in a more intricate way. I am giving you here the simple method which always gives a smooth finely flavored beverage.

Cocoa.
1/4 to 1/2 cup cocoa (according to taste)

- 1 teaspoon flour
- 1 cup cold water
- 3 cups milk
- 2 to 4 tablespoonfuls sugar

Salt
Mix the salt and cocoa and the flour, add the water and cook in the top of a double boiler over the direct heat for three minutes after the mixture begins to boil, stirring constantly. Add the sugar and milk, heat until it begins to look foamy. Beat with an egg beater to prevent the curd forming on the top and serve at once or place over hot water and cook until ready to serve. Leftover cocoa may be reheated and served, as the flavor improves rather than deteriorates by standing. For young children half as much should be used.

Egg and Tomato Casserole.
6 hard-cooked eggs
1 can tomatoes
Salt

- Paprika
- 6 cloves
- 3 tablespoons butter
- 3 tablespoons flour
- 1 cup milk
- 1/2 cup tomato juice
- 1/2 cup grated cheese
- 1 cup buttered crumbs

Cut hard-cooked eggs in half and arrange around edge of greased casserole. Drain tomatoes and place in center of dish. Sprinkle with salt, paprika and cloves. To make the white sauce, melt the butter, stir in the flour, add the milk and tomato juice and stir over the fire until thick and smooth. Add cheese and seasoning to taste and stir over a very low fire until cheese is melted and smooth. Pour over tomatoes and eggs. Cover with crumbs and bake 20 minutes in a moderate oven (375 degrees Fahrenheit).

Vienna Noodles.

- 1 package noodles.
- 1/2 pound ham, boiled and chopped
- 1/2 cup cream
- 1/4 cup cracker crumbs
- 2 tablespoons butter

Cook noodles in boiling salted water until tender, drain in colander and let cold water run through them. Butter a bread pan, dust with cracker crumbs. Place a layer of noodles, then the ham, then the rest of the noodles. Pour the cream over this, sprinkle cracker crumbs on top and dot with bits of butter. Bake one hour in a moderate oven (375 degrees Fahrenheit) until brown and crisp. Remove from pan and serve hot.

Baked Salt Mackerel.

Soak mackerel over night. Drain, dredge well with flour and pepper. Put in a greased pan and half cover with rich milk. Bake in a moderate oven (375 degrees Fahrenheit) about 15 minutes until tender. Add one-fourth cup of cream and cook ten minutes more.

Orange and Onion Salad.

- 3 oranges.
 - 2 Spanish or Bermuda onions
 - French dressing
- Slice the oranges after peeling and arrange with slices of onion on a bed of lettuce or endive. Dress with french dressing and let stand at least one hour before serving.

The Beautiful
BEAUTY has been the delight and torment of the world ever since it began. There is something irresistible in the beautiful form. The most severe cannot pretend that they do not feel an immediate prepossession in favor of the handsome. At the same time the handsome should bear this in mind—that not any can bestow this gift on themselves, nor retain it when they have it.—Steele.

THE OTHER WOMAN LIVES JUST AROUND THE CORNER

IT may seem unreasonable, but I cannot understand why a woman who is usually happy and bright should have recurring periods when her whole character seems changed. No amount of advice or discipline, the discomfort that all women must endure. It does not know what it is to do housework with an aching back and falling energy. All too often it is that other woman who seems more cheerful by comparison. Are you such a three-quarter wife?

Don't let the ordeal that all women face cause you avoidable discomfort or endanger your home. Do as so many wise women have done—try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

For three generations one woman has told another how to get "smiling through" with Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It helps Nature take up the system, thus lessening the discomforts from the functional disorders which women must endure in the wide woman's range of life. It gives three months of life: 1. Three months from girlhood to womanhood. 2. Preparing for motherhood. 3. After-feeding "milkmaid" age.

Don't be a three-quarter wife; take LYDIA E. PINKHAM'S VEGETABLE COMPOUND and Go "Smiling Through."

Christmas Eve in the Market Place

By Louis Abney in Christian Advocate

THE market place on Christmas Eve... Things and things for sale... Tinsel bangles, gilded toys... Along the Christmas trail!

Jouling crowds of shoppers;
Trees of fragrant pine
And Douglas fir and silver spruces;
A never-ending line
Of eager, noisy vendors
Crying out their wares:
"Whoever buys on Christmas Eve
The Christmas blessing shares."

Southern amilax, holly wreaths,
Sprigs of mistletoe...
Everywhere the jangling flakes
Of starry Christmas snow;
Throngs of hurried shoppers,
Children's eyes aglow,
Reminiscent of a Light
That shone—long ago.

Vendors in the market place
Did you come and buy...
There was once a Gift that came,
Priceless, from the sky!

A Manly Christmas Husband

By Gertrude H. Walton

"A BORESOME holiday! If only I had invited Fred to come here with me," Manly jerked his hat from a rack when Julia, his sister, rushed into the hall.

"Manly, please come with me tonight to the dinner party at Judge Thompson's. Horace has just telephoned he can not get here until too late. Roads blocked with snow and cars because of the blizzard yesterday. Our first big spread in this burg we're so new and this is our first opportunity to meet many prominent citizens of Palas City. Judge Thompson's dinners are annual affairs and he gives special invitations to newcomers of the city."

"I don't care much about the party. But so much in the papers about the Willis Graham's family who will be at the Judge's. Graham is the big shot who made millions from his washing machine patents. He's sort of a god in these parts. He has no son—but some daughters. Maybe, when I'm through college old Graham might remember a Manly boy, for an engineer or in his office." Manly, after assuring his sister, Mrs. Horace Linn, that he would accompany her, mused on his way down to the city.

Manly's parents had gone South for the winter and Julia had urged her brother to spend the holidays with them because she and Horace would be a bit lonely since recently settling in the thriving factory municipality of Palas City. At first Manly reasoned that Horace and Julia wouldn't enjoy his peddling around, since they were newly-weds, and thought to decline the urgent invitation. But remembering the loneliness of a home, without parents, he found himself in his sister's comfortable home, for at least two weeks "en-duration" as he thought.

In evening clothes Manly was nearest satisfied with himself as being "well groomed," than in any other attire. Somehow, the black dinner coat, light vest, brilliant studs in the spotless shirt front, illuminated the sparkle of his brown eyes and enhanced the manliness of his form. Upon arriving at the ancestral estate of Judge Thompson, Manly was bewildered when the Judge, with unusual ceremony, introduced them as "Mr. and Mrs. Horace Linn, new residents of Palas City!"

"Sh! They think you are my husband. Don't make them any wiser. Horace and I are strangers, you know, here," Julia motioned. Not knowing whether Julia had planned to pass her brother off on her husband, or whether it was a surprise to Julia, as well as to himself, Manly played "husbandly faithful" beside Julia. But it seemed that every place Manly stood or sat, Patricia, one of the Graham daughters, was near, kindly gracious, but aloof. When he asked her to dance she quickly assented, as though she feared he might never ask for another dance.

"She thinks I am married. Huh! A Manly Christmas husband, indeed! Dum it all! Why did Julia get me into this jam? She will have to un-jam me," he snorted to himself. Julia seemed satisfied with the evening's pleasures. But Manly felt for the first time, that his sister was selfish.

"Of course," he reasoned, "sister doesn't suspect that I wanted more dances with Patricia, and a chat on the mezzanine in one of those brilliantly Christmas decorated booths up there. If Julia suspected such a thing, she is clever at hiding it."

The next morning's mail brought Manly an invitation to a party at Willis Graham's for the Graham daughters!

"How do they know my name is not Horace Linn and that I am not the husband of my sister?" Manly asked, almost provoked at the smile on the face of his sister who was at that moment darning her brother's hose.

"Of course, you'll go. A secret! No, not a secret any longer because the secret has been long enough," she teased. "I whispered to Patricia, at the party, that you were my brother and to introduce you to others of the younger groups, and to Mr. Graham. She, however, promised secrecy to all but Mr. Graham. Since she did not introduce you to others, not even to her father, I believe she enjoyed the brother-husband affair and planned a party to reveal the secret to her father and guests. No, her interest in you began before I told her you were not my husband. She was raving about my husband's eyes, and hair, and form, and clothes and—"

"Huh, jealousy, more than kindness for your brother prompted you to tell the truth," Manly teased. "You made a Manly Christmas husband, anyway. I'm sure Patricia would agree with me," Julia answered.

After the party at Patricia's, the Christmas holiday failed to be boring. For with Patricia's pep, and promises, Manly looked forward to the days after college, of becoming a Manly husband, in truth.

Bones Uncovered in Tanganyika May Be Neanderthal Kin

Found in River Bed With Other Relics

NEANDERTHAL man, or his cousin, may have been an inhabitant of eastern Africa during the Ice age. Such, at least, is the preliminary evidence offered by fragments of a skull brought back from Tanganyika, formerly German East Africa, by Dr. L. Kohl-Larsen, Berlin archeologist.

The fragments were found in a thick river deposit that contained a considerable number of rough stone implements, and thousands of bones of animals used for food by the prehistoric men who lived at the site: rhinoceros, zebra, gazelle, hyena, and others. Beneath this stratum was another layer of food remains, consisting almost entirely of fish bones, and above it traces of a second fish-bone layer.

Evidently Very Old.

The bits of skull are so badly shattered that positive identification is not possible at present. That they are undoubtedly very old, however, is attested not only by the fauna in whose company they were found but also by their blackened, highly fossilized condition. They are unusually thick.

Most important among the pieces is a bit of the upper jawbone, bearing three teeth. It was partly on this that the suggestion was based, that the one-time owner may have been a relative of Neanderthal man. If this should prove to be really the case, the find is one of extraordinary importance, for the nearest sites now definitely known for authentic Neanderthals are in Palestine, about 7,000 miles north of Tanganyika. This would represent a tremendous extension of Neanderthal man's distribution.

Paintings Found, Also.

Dr. Kohl-Larsen also found several caves containing crudely executed paintings of animals—probably not of the same age as the bone deposits by the river. One of the caves had a sun symbol, done in white paint.

Behavior of Living Cells Is Linked to Mathematics

Chicago. — The mysteries of protoplasm, the secrets of life, seem far removed from the cold abstractions of mathematics. In the popular mind, biology and mathematical physics are about as far apart as any two sciences could be.

But scientists are not letting them remain so. One of those who, by means of mathematics, are increasing our knowledge of living matter is Dr. N. Rashevsky of the University of Chicago here.

One of the foremost characteristics of a living thing is its ability to reproduce its own kind. In the simplest forms of life—in organisms consisting of a single cell—this is accomplished merely by the cell dividing into two. Food is absorbed through the cell wall and presently, when the individual has become quite "grown up," it splits into two little ones and the process begins over.

One question which scientists must eventually settle is this: "How completely can the behavior of living cells be explained by our knowledge of physics and chemistry?"

Proved by Mathematics.

In his work on this vital question, Dr. Rashevsky has not used test tubes, nor has he studied cells under a microscope. His only instrument has been high-powered mathematics. Among his many contributions so far has been the mathematical proof that certain tiny droplets of "non-living" matter will absorb "food" from a solution, will grow until a certain size is reached, and then will divide. And the size to which they grow is nearly the same as that of living cells.

While no forces or influences other than the well-recognized ones of physics and chemistry are invoked, his non-living "paper and pencil models" show remarkable resemblance to living cells.

A further resemblance is their inability to form spontaneously. They must either be created by some outside agency or else be natural offspring of their "parents."

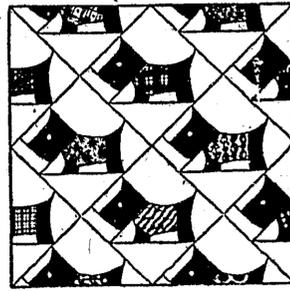

Seemingly Dead Earth Is Very Much Alive

Berlin.—Striking new figures on how much life there is in seemingly dead earth have been produced by Dr. G. Frenzel of the Breslau Zoological museum.

He made a count of a number of soil samples taken at the depth of about a foot, in rather dry, sandy meadowland. Of one-celled animals he found nearly 150 million per square yard, and of many-celled forms, principally small insects and mites, approximately 90,000. Bacteria and other forms of plant life were not included in his count.

Uncle Phil Says:

In Good Company

Company is one of the greatest pleasures of the nature of man, for the beams of joy are made hotter by reflection when related to another.

Theories might work, if human nature didn't interfere.

The man who makes no mistakes does not usually make anything.

Luck usually favors the man who doesn't count on it.

The Present Moment

Try to be happy in this present moment, and put not off being so to a time to come.

Fame is one thing that sophistication can't take the savor out of.

A young intellectual tries to get along without emotions and presently makes the horrible discovery that he has lost them.

A good provider never lacks an admiring eye.

Coarseness isn't much better than outright immodesty.

Rising to the Top.

NOTHING that is really good can be suppressed, everything is added on. With affection it is the same as with the masterpieces of great artists, the remembrance of the one never making us forget the others. And I know of nothing more delightful than to be able to speak of those one loves as if they were all members of the one true family of the heart.

When friendships are real, they are not glass threads or frost work, but the solid things we can know. — Emerson.

TRACTION MEANS GROUND GRIP! GROUND GRIP MEANS "FIRESTONE"!

TRACTION on unimproved roads in bad weather is a problem which has long baffled tire engineers. Sure footing on a muddy football field is also a problem. But during the wet, slippery football season of 1936, thousands of players depended upon the cleats of their shoes to bring them through for the winning play.

During 1937 thousands of car, truck and bus owners will depend upon the rugged rubber cleats of Firestone Ground Grip Tires to pull them through snow, mud, sand, or over any unimproved roads.

The scientific tread of the Ground Grip Tire is so distinctive in design and so unusual in performance that it has become known as "the tire that makes its own road." It is almost unbelievable how these super-traction tires dig in, grip, and pull you through. They are self-cleaning. Chains are not necessary. Equip the rear wheels of your car, truck or bus with a pair of Ground Grip Tires and save time, money and trouble.

If you have not already equipped your tractor and farm implements with Ground Grip Tires do it now—they will save you 25% in time and fuel costs, reduce vibration, and provide greater comfort.

Call on your nearby Implement Dealer, Firestone Tire Dealer, or Firestone Auto Supply and Service Store today. Start now to reap the many advantages of the Firestone Ground Grip Tire—the greatest traction tire ever built!

FORD

advances into 1937 with the

and new operating economy

The addition of a new 60-horsepower engine to the Ford line for 1937 brings you a new, low price and gives you a choice of two V-type 8-cylinder engines. 85 horsepower for maximum performance, 60 horsepower for maximum economy.

The 60-horsepower V-8 engine was originally developed for use in England and France, where fuel costs are high. It has been proven there for two years with brilliant success. Now, brought to America, it creates an entirely new standard of modern motoring economy!

The "60" engine, available in five body types, is built in exactly the same body size and wheelbase — to the same advanced design — with the same comfort and convenience as the "85." And it delivers V-8 smoothness at speeds up to 70 miles an hour.

Two engine sizes—but only one car and one purpose—to give you more miles and more satisfaction for your money in 1937.
