CARRIZOZO, NEW MEXICO, FRIDAY, FEB. 5, 1937

FRANK WILLIAM LESNETT

It is with deep regret that the News-chronicles the death of Mr. Frank William Lesnett, which occurred at his mother's home last Friday afternoon, January 29th, after an illness of three weeks.

Mr. Lesnett had been employed at Ziegler Bros. store for many years, where he served faithfully and efficiently. In going about his daily tasks for his employer he made a very wide acquaintance and hosts of friends. As a neighbor, as a friend and as a citizen he ranked with the best. He loved his family; was a most thoughtful son, and a devoted father.

He was born at Ruidoso, New Mexico on November 6, 1888.

He married Miss Alma Phillips in February 1912, at Roswell, N. Mex. Three children were born to this union, one of whom died a number of years ago.

Funeral services were conducted at Santa Rita Catholic church last Sunday afternoon, by Rev. Fr. Salvatore. A long line of friends accompanied the remains to their last resting place in the local cemetery.

Mr. Lesnett is survived by his two daughters, Mrs. Bruce Groves of Los Angeles, Calif., and Miss Nadine Lesnett of Wichita, Kansas, both of whom were here for the funeral. Other survivors are his mother, Mrs. A. E. Lesnett, three sisters, Mesdames Edith Crawford, Geo. Dingwall and E. A. Orme-Johnson; one brother, Mill Lesnett; two nieces, Mesdames Wayne Hamilton and Forrest Lindamood.

Friends extend deepest sympathy.

A Lamb Treat for Valentine's

The custom of serving double lamb chops for the dinner on St. Valentine's day is a pretty one, and from a culinary standpoint it is most desirable, for thick chops are always better than thin ones, says Inez S. Willson, home economist. They can be broiled so that they are nicely browned on the outside and tender and juicy on the inside.

To broil the chops, thoroughly preheat the broiling oven. Place the chops on the rack far enough from the flame or element that by the time one side is nicely browned, they will be about half done. If the regulator is turned to "high," this means a distance of about three inches. If the distance must be less, then lower the temperature accordingly. When the chops are nicely browned on top, season with salt and pepper, turn and allow to brown and finish cooking on the second side.

Assistant District attorney Cuba Clayton of Tularosa was here on professional business last Saturday.

Sunlight and Influenza

The American Journal of Hygiene is definitely a highbrow magazine. In a recent number along with "Studies in Schistosome Dermatitis" and "A Helminthological Survey of Baltimore House Rats" is an article by two Harvard professors on the destruction of ultra-violet light of the influenza virus. The writers describe the experiments by which they convince themselves that influenza virus sprayed into the air will still give ferrets influenza half an hour later but can be "killed" in the air by ultraviolet light. Their article was sent in for publication on July 2nd last and published in September. In the first week of 1937 Dr. W. M. Stanley of the Rockefeller Institute was awarded a thousand dollar prize for experiments which seem to prove that the influenza virus never was alive.

If the influenza virus is not alive it cannot be killed. And yet the Harvard experiments are not less important. They show that ultraviolet light does something to influenza virus which prevents it from giving influenza to ferrets. If the virus is made harmless to ferrets it has probably also been made harmless to us.

Nine years ago, being supposedly too sick to do anything more useful, I made daily measurements of the ultraviolet light in the sunshine and in the skyshine at Boulder, Colorado. These measurements also were published in the American Journal of Hygiene. They prove that ultraviolet light is one of the valuable natural resources of the Rocky mountain states. To what extent our advantage in this respect already helps to protect us from influenza is uncertain due to the incompleteness of reporting this disease. Nor can we say for sure that more use might be made of it. But when we reflect that ordinary window glass keeps the ultraviolet light out of our homes we cannot help suspecting that some day this great natural resource will be used more effectively than at present.

Farm and Ranch Improvement

Thousands of dollars have been added to the farm and ranch income of New Mexico as a result of a wide variety of projects carried on by the Experiments Station at State College during recent years.

A report just released by Dr. Fabian Garcia, Director of the Station, shows that in one single instance--that of the sugar beet industry--the work of the Station has led to the establishment of an industry which increased farm income by $75,000. Station specialists developed a beet resistant to the Curley Top disease and not only made beet raising profitable but have paved the way for introduction of sugar beets as an important New Mexico crop.

Acala cotton, a type which today constitutes ninety per cent of the crop in the state, was introduced and developed. The value of other types was increased by $450,000.

In Harding and Union counties the annual yield of sorghums is now 24,000 bushels greater than before because Station staff members made possible the introduction of a new grain sorghum, Kilo.

Other noteworthy achievements include the development of a new Chilli which has increased farm income by $25,000; perfection of a method of eliminating chilli wilt; development of two new onion types which have added $30,000 to farm incomes in the Mesilla Valley; demonstration of a superior variety of pecans worth $100 per acre; demonstration of the profit possibilities of potato production at Bluewater and at Las Vegas; and the improvement in the quality of New Mexico eggs, a project which has added $100,000 to the income of the poultry industry which now produces seven and a half million eggs annually.

Station experiments have also shown the value and necessity of supplementing mineral feeding to livestock on New Mexico ranges. It is estimated that such supplementary feeding on all deficient ranges would increase ranch income $400,000 annually.

Less than three months ago experiment station biologists prevented a California and Arizona quarantine on New Mexico sweet potatoes thus saving the market for a 25,000 bushel crop of great value to certain sections of the state.

It is particularly significant that for the entire program of agricultural experimentation New Mexico provided $5400 last year. On the other hand, Arizona provided $79,569, Colorado $82,933, Montana $71,576, Oklahoma $59,865 and Wyoming $78,210.

Chevrolet Workers Return to Work

In announcing the resumption of part-time operations in Chevrolet plants not involved in the strike in Detroit, Flint, Saginaw, Bay City, Indianapolis and Muncie, M. E. Coyle, general manager of the Chevrolet Division, emphasized that the program is being undertaken to furnish some employment to 40,000 of its workers and thus keep them off relief. The company hopes to provide a minimum of two days employment per week for these 40,000 workers, he added.

"Due to the shortage of bodies, the majority of our assembly plants will of course be idle," said Mr. Coyle. "This means that, instead of flowing through the plants in accordance with the normal routine, the parts manufactured under this part-time operation plan must be stored until assembly is resumed. "We hope to operate the manufacturing plants a minimum of two days a week. In those departments where it is possible to do so additional days will be added to the schedule. Considerations of expense and inconvenience will be secondary to the one main issue, which is to relieve the present situation by providing as many hours of work to as many employees as we possibly can".

Miss Rhoda Freeman left last Saturday for Albuquerque where she entered the University. She was accompanied by her parents, Dr. and Mrs. Freeman, and her brother and sister, Carl and Mary May, who returned home Sunday.

HANDWRITING ON THE WALL

Unless labor unions and employers exercise self restraint over their respective powers and recognize the rights of the public, the government will step in and take control, Dr. Robert L. Sutherland of Bucknell University, declared recently when speaking on the long drawn out Pacific Coast ship strike and the automobile strike in the East.

Dr. Sutherland said it was "only a matter of time until any group using power without responsibility will be checked," and pointed out that as a general rule this country never curbed power until it was abused.

When any group of leaders, no matter who, deliberately plan to win their point at all costs, regardless of suffering of workmen or the public, it is time to break their grip, that is what government is for, to protect all the people.

If the day arrives when our government can be controlled by either labor or industrial dictators, to the detriment of the people, fascism or communism will have swallowed democracy, individual rights will be wiped out and labor will become a form of slavery.

Board of Education Meets

The Lincoln County Board of Education met last Tuesday, with all members present.

Principal business under discussion was the bids for the several school buildings which were advertised last month for sale. Bids for Macho, Jack's Peak and Mon Jeau buildings were accepted, but the bid for Bethel school was rejected as it was considered too low. Other business was to consider appointment of a teacher for the Stetson school to replace Mrs. Byrl Lindsay, who resigned recently. Miss Brockwell was appointed.

Mr. L. E. Hunt was a visitor from Tularosa Wednesday. Mr. Hunt says his wife has almost recovered from her serious illness of last summer and fall.

Mrs. J. H. Hoffman and children have been ill of influenza which has been so prevalent the past two weeks.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Skinner and several members of their family were victims this week of the flu epidemic.

Mrs. Ola Jones and Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Kelt spent last Sunday at the Jones ranch near Ruidoso.

Ohio River Valley Is Devastated by Floods

DAY by day the devastation caused by great floods throughout the Ohio valley and the lower Mississippi valley increased. Several hundred thousand persons were rendered homeless, more than 100 lives were lost, and the property damage, running far into the millions, cannot yet be estimated.

Cincinnati, Louisville, Portsmouth, Frankfort and Evansville were the worst sufferers; but every city, town and village along the Ohio and its tributaries shared in the disaster. Fires broke out in the Mill Creek district of Cincinnati and destroyed property valued at $1,500,000 before the flames could be controlled. Throughout the entire region transportation was crippled, pure water and fuel supplies were shut off or greatly reduced, and outbreaks of typhoid and pneumonia were threatened. In Louisville the light and power plant was forced to shut down.

President Roosevelt directed five federal agencies to co-operate with the American Red Cross in relief measures, and that organization, appealing to the nation for $2,000,000, sent hundreds of nurses to the flooded areas. The army sent soup kitchens and tents and the coast guard sent boats and crews. Many cities forwarded supplies of food, clothing and medicines.

In Frankfort, Ky., the state reformatory was flooded and the prisoners were removed to other quarters with the aid of troops. The convicts took advantage of the emergency to start a riot and about a dozen were killed. All of southern Indiana was placed under martial law by Governor Townsend and 1,400 National Guardsmen were called out. In the effort to save Cairo, Ill., a levee was dynamited by army engineers despite the armed resistance of farmers whose lands were flooded when the dike was broken. All women and children were evacuated from the city. Twelve counties of eastern Arkansas were submerged over most of their area and thousands of families were gathered in refugee camps.

Radek and 16 Others Admit Plot to Wreck Soviet

KARL RADEK, noted soviet Russian journalist, and 16 other men more or less prominent in the affairs of Russia, went to trial as conspirators against the Stalin regime and the soviet state, and all freely confessed their guilt. They readily told the details of the amazing plot and asserted that the exiled Leon Trotsky was its chief mover. Radek described the scheme by which the plotters hoped to overthrow Stalin and bring back a modified capitalism to Russia. It involved the wrecking of the nation's railway system and the bringing about of war on Russia by Japan and Germany. Japan was to be given the maritime provinces in Asia and Germany was to be permitted to grab the Ukraine. But Radek added that the conspirators hoped the war would result in a new revolution in Russia and that thereafter those territories could be regained. "I am guilty of all the charges," said the once powerful editor.

Gregori Sokolnikoff, former soviet ambassador to England, declared he knew as early as 1932 of a plot to assassinate Stalin, and admitted he was guilty of plotting to betray the Soviet union to Germany and Japan. Vladimir Romm, former Washington correspondent of Izvestia of Moscow, though not yet on trial, was put on the stand and testified that he knew of the anti-Stalinist plot, that he carried letters from Radek to the exiled Leon Trotsky and that he agreed to become Trotsky's undercover informant.

Leon Trotsky, from his haven in Mexico City, sent out a specific denial of the charges that he was head of the conspiracy.

Japan's Cabinet Quits; Ugaki Is New Premier

KOKI HIROTA, premier of Japan, and his entire cabinet resigned after being bitterly attacked in parliament because of their militarist and fascist policies. The emperor consulted Prince Saloni, last of the elder statesmen, and on his recommendation called on Gen. Kazushige Ugaki, former governor general of Korea, to form a new government. This choice was considered a victory for the anti-army element, but the military leaders, it was admitted, could still block Ugaki's efforts by refusing to provide a minister of war. That post must be filled by a general in active service and a cabinet cannot otherwise be accepted. The crisis was brought on by widespread opposition to the dominance of the cabinet by the army and the oppressively high taxes required to carry out the policies of the militarists. The navy does not always side with the army and in this instance seems definitely against it.

Gen. Ugaki, the son of a farmer, was born in Okayama prefecture, central Japan. During his military career he served as military attache in Berlin, chief of the military affairs department of the war department, commander of an infantry regiment, president of the military staff college, and supreme war councillor.

Farley Is Reappointed Postmaster General

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT sent to the senate the name of James A. Farley as postmaster general for another term, and the senate promptly confirmed the nomination. It is believed Mr. Farley will not long remain a member of the cabinet, for he wants to return to private work. He told reporters in New York that he was looking for more than a job as a salesman.

J. A. Farley

"If I should return to private life," the postmaster general said, "I would like an opportunity to build up an equity in a business, so I would have something more than just a salary for security for my family. I have had several offers already, but they haven't been just what I would want."

France Offers to Help a Peaceful Germany

IF REICHSFUHRER HITLER will co-operate with other nations in the interest of peace, France will help Germany to overcome her present economic difficulties. Such was the offer made by Premier Blum in an address at Lyons. Blum, however, warned the Nazis that France cannot and will not co-operate with Germany economically or politically "while the possibility continues to exist that this help may be some day turned against the country which gave it."

He expressed opposition to Hitler's policy of making bilateral pacts, and added: "I believe I am practicing realism when I declare we do not wish to separate French security from European peace."

German officials were pleased by Blum's speech and said his good intentions could not be doubted.

Secretary Perkins Works on Motor Strike

SECRETARY OF LABOR FRANCES PERKINS herself undertook the difficult task of breaking the renewed deadlock in the General Motors strike, but at this writing she had not made much progress. Governor Murphy of Michigan, who went to Washington for the inauguration, helped her, arranging separate meetings with John L. Lewis, C. I. O. leader, and President Sloan of the motor corporation. But his efforts to bring these two gentlemen together seemed futile. Lewis summoned Homer Martin, head of the striking union, and John Brophy, C. I. O. lieutenant, from Detroit and conferred with them on "strategy". All the union leaders appeared supremely confident, and Lewis insisted the demand that the union be recognized as the sole bargaining agency must be conceded if there were to be negotiations.

Secretary Perkins, after talking with both sides, went directly to the White House. She said she was "keeping the President informed" of developments. The belief was general that it would be necessary to invoke the personal aid of Mr. Roosevelt to bring about a peaceful settlement.

Lewis brought about the temporary suspension of negotiations by a statement he gave the press. With brutal frankness he said:

"We have advised the secretary of labor that the economic royalists—and the du Ponts and Mr. Sloan are among them—used their money to try to drive Mr. Roosevelt out of the White House. Labor rallied to the President's support when they attacked him."

"These same economic royalists now have their fangs in labor, and labor now expects the government to support labor in its legal and logical objectives."

Later Secretary Perkins invited Sloan and the union leaders to a peace conference. Martin accepted but the G. M. C. head declined, again insisting the strikers must first evacuate the company's plants.

General Motors officials called on about 40,000 workers to return to their plants in Michigan and Indiana, which were to be reopened.

President's Inaugural Is Delivered in Rain

LOFTY ideals, beautifully worded and eloquently voiced. That seems to be a fair description of the second inaugural address of Franklin D. Roosevelt. Standing bareheaded on the capitol portico in a cold, pelting rain, he took the oath of office administered by black robed Chief Justice Hughes, and then, in ringing words carried by radio to the ends of the earth, he pledged his administration to carry on its fight for the social security and material prosperity and happiness of the entire people of the United States. In effect, he promised that the federal government would bring about a better life for one-third of the nation now underprivileged, and that the program of planned economy would be continued. For forty millions who are not getting their share of the nation's material benefits the government will provide homes, food, clothing, education, recreation and increased incomes.

President Roosevelt

The President's listeners interpreted some of his phrases as a challenge to the Supreme court, as when he said: "Nearly all of us recognize that as intricacies of human relationships increase, so power to govern them also must increase—power to stop evil; power to do good. The essential democracy of our nation and the safety of our people depend upon lodging it with those whom the people can change or continue at stated intervals through an honest and free system of elections. The constitution of 1787 did not make our democracy impotent."

"In fact, in these last four years, we have made the exercise of all power more democratic; for we have begun to bring private autocratic powers into their proper subordination to the public's government. The legend that they were invincible—above and beyond the processes of democracy—has been shattered. They have been challenged and beaten."

Before the inauguration ceremonies, Mr. Roosevelt and members of his family attended a special service in St. John's Episcopal church. After delivering his address the President reviewed the military parade from a cupola built in front of the White House. In addition to the soldiers, sailors and marines, samples of the Civilian Conservation corps and of the National Youth administration were in the line, as were the governors of 46 states with their staffs.

Congress Extends President's Control Over the Dollar
 CONGRESS did not wait for the inauguration to rush through the bill asked by the President extending for two and one-half years his power to control the two billion dollar stabilization fund and to devalue the dollar. Senator Vandenberg and Representative Snell, minority leaders, made futile efforts to amend the measure so that it would call on the secretary of the treasury to submit to congress a complete audit and report upon the operations of the fund after the expiration date in 1935.

Howard Hughes Sets New Cross-Continent Record

HOWARD HUGHES, wealthy manufacturer, motion picture producer and amateur aviator, set a new record for the flight from Burbank, Calif., to New York—7 hours 23 minutes, 23 seconds. It was an astonishing performance. Hughes' average speed for 2,400 miles over what he calls a "modified great circle course" was 332 miles per hour. This achievement is the greatest sustained speed flight ever made.

The flight was made without a stop, the cruising altitude being about 14,000 feet, and the motor of the plane could not be allowed to operate at full throttle for more than a small fraction of the time. The top speed reached was 380 miles an hour.

Rail Brotherhoods to Ask 20 Per Cent Raise

REPRESENTATIVES of five railway brotherhoods who have been in conference in Chicago decided to demand a 20 per cent raise in wages for the members of those unions, numbering about 250,000. These are employees in the train service classification—conductors, engineers, firemen, trainmen and switchmen. Based on the October, 1936, pay roll statistics issued by the interstate commerce commission, a 20 per cent pay raise for these workers would require an increase of 116 million dollars in the annual pay rolls of the country's railroads.

Yugoslavia and Bulgaria Sign Friendship Pact

PREMIERS STOYADINOVITCH of Yugoslavia and Klosevvanoff of Bulgaria signed a brief treaty pledging their respective nations to maintain friendship and "inviolable" peace with each other. This was cause for relief in the Balkans, for those two nations had been at sword's points for a long time and their mutual frontiers have been strung with barbed wire and strongly guarded.

Printed Lace and Other New Prints

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

SEEMS as if every type of material ever known has gone into print. The latest entrant into the printed realm is lace. Printed laces are the big news in the lacy story for the coming season. Granted that prints for resort wear and for spring are more lovely each year, but never have they risen to greater heights of glamor than when colorfully printed on sheer Chantilly lace which brings the pattern out color-gloriously.

The evening gown in the picture is fashioned of printed Chantilly lace, the patterning done in green and shades of yellow and orange. Black ribbons make the shoulder straps and belt of this handsome gown. And if you want to wear printed lace in daytime let it be a blouse of printed lace worn with your new spring bolero suit—a word to the wise is sufficient.

The advance arrival of new prints would indicate that the vogue for the spring and summer of 1937 promises to exceed all previous records. In the new showings silk prints fairly hold one spellbound with their daring, their unusualness and their artful art both as to color and design. The same may be said of the grand and glorious linens, also pique prints whose spectacular fling at color is simply breathtaking.

See the youthful contrast jacket-and-skirt costume centered in the group illustrated. An ensemble like this is an especially smart cruise fashion for deck-pacing or for going ashore at points enroute. It is fashioned of cloque pique combining print and plain. The fabric is one of the new pre-shrink cottons so ideal to wear in warm climates where frequent tubbing is necessary.

The fact that prints are going strong in sunny resort and among cruise-faring fashionables in no way implies that midseason stay-at-homes are being left printless. On the contrary the prints that are peeping from beneath winter coats are as refreshing a sight as could possibly greet winter-weary eyes. The colors are entrancing and the patterns are unmistakably "new." The fact that the motifs are widely spaced makes for an absolutely "different" look. As a tonic that acts instantaneously we recommend a frock forthwith and sans delay made of one of the radiantly colorful new prints.

An interesting characteristic of curly arriving modes is that the emphasis is placed on the smartness and novelty of the print which fashions the dress rather than on its making. In fact the new print frocks are styled most simply the more to show off to advantage the beauty of their material which thrills with unique designs and dramatic colorings.

The print fashioning the daytime gown shown in the foreground of the group illustrated makes color-play its big feature. Green and red on a brown ground is the color scheme. The belt is of brown suede. The large jeweled clasp (huge ones are worn this season) at the neckline further emphasizes the idea of striking color.

Speaking of the new spring prints in general they are newest looking when the florals are large and distinctive and set far apart. Just now it is the dark grounds that appeal or that which is ultra chic, the background in a vivid color. Paisley patterns and bold stripes are especially smart.

BEIGE LACE
 By CHERIE NICHOLAS

Beige is high fashion again as in fact are all shades that suggest cinnamon and yellowish and delicate brownish tints. These colors are especially effective in lace and have the added advantage of practicality and wearability. The stunning lace dress pictured is tailored of beige lace. It has a nicety of detail that is recognized at a glance. The full skirt lends itself to movement and is most graceful on the dance floor. This is a grand type for the winter cruise and for pecking up for a southern resort vacation as well as for the "little" evenings in town.

LACE HEADDRESSES SMART FOR SPRING

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

Fashion has always decreed that you shall be smart—and this year that you shall be pretty as well. This combination is entirely possible when you have seen yourself in the all-lace hats which are becoming more and more popular for dining out and the theater. One, a Schiaparelli model, is helmet like, with a conic crown. The lace is fixed on wire and gives the Spanish touch, which of course is the thing this season.

If you prefer to get your Spanish effect in another way, don't forget the mantilla. It can do wonders towards conveying that air of mystery and romance. And you can make it yourself, fashioning it in your own way. Some are made of squares of Chantilly; others have lace borders around net. We noted particularly one of plain net, with a wide border of lace. They are, incidentally, equally attractive when worn as scarves or shawls, and even folded in a triangle and tied ascot-fashion in front.

Black and White Popular for Formal Evening Wear

Black and white have established themselves as the height of formality for evening wear. Used together, they are always the more effective. Seen recently in one of the best New York fashion ateliers was a formal gown of white lace, palliated all-over with rhinestones, and over it was worn a charming, hip-length jacket of black net. Fitted snugly at the waistline, and with straight sleeves slightly puffed at the shoulder, it flared out in a full pleatum below the waist.

The black net jacket suggested itself as an admirable light wrap to be worn with all evening dresses.

Ask Him Before Giving Your Child an Unknown Remedy

Practically any doctor you ask will warn: "Don't give your child unknown remedies without asking your doctor first."

When it comes to the widely used children's remedy—"milk of magnesia," the standard of the world is established. For over half a century many doctors have said "PHILLIPS' Milk of Magnesia." Safe for children. No other is "quite like it."

Keep this in mind, and say "PHILLIPS' MILK OF MAGNESIA" when you buy. Now also in tablet form. Get the form you prefer. But see that what you get is labeled "Genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia."

SYNOPSIS

Sleepy Cat, desert town of the Southwest, is celebrating the Fourth of July. Jane Van Tassel, beautiful daughter of Gus Van Tassel, hated owner of Gunlock ranch, has arrived from the East for the first time. She watches the Frontier Day celebration in company with Dr. Carpy, crusty, tender-hearted friend of the community, Henry Sawdy of the Circle Det ranch, tricked in a fake horse race the day before by Dave McCrossen, foreman at Gunlock, plans revenge. He enters Bill Denton, a handsome young Texas wrangler, in the rodeo which McCrossen is favored to win, and lays heavy bets on him. Unknown to the crowd, Denton is a champion horseman, McCrossen and the young stranger tie in the various events. Denton then drops a cigarette carelessly. Racing down the track full tilt, he picks up the cigarette. The verdict goes to Denton when McCrossen refuses to attempt the stunt. Entrusted by the crowd, Denton agrees to perform another trick. Jane Van Tassel is asked for her bracelet and throws it on the track. Just as Denton rides to pick it up a yell from Barney Restock, a McCrossen henchman, scares the pony, nearly costing the rider his life. Gun play is prevented by the intervention of Dr. Carpy. Back on Gunlock ranch after two years in Chicago, because of her father's illness, Jane gets lost riding in the hills and meets Denton, now a neighbor, who guides her home. Not knowing her identity, he speaks bitterly of Van Tassel. She tells McCrossen who brought her home and he denounces Denton as a cattle thief. Later she asks Dr. Carpy why her father is unpopular and he tells her it is because of Van Tassel's ruthless and unscrupulous character.

"Who is that man?" asked Bull as Panama left the shop.
"Why, you ought to know that man, Bull. He's an old-time Sleepy Cat gambler and confidence man—up to every game they ever played from here to Frisco."
"What's his name?"
"They used to call him Big Bill Hayca."
"I heard that name."
"Guess you did—guess everybody's heard it."
"But he made a trip to Panama when the French outfit was running things there. He cleaned up on the Frenchmen, and they run him out of town. He says he got the dysentery down there. Anyway, he got away before they strung him up for a cardsharp. Now everybody calls him Panama."
"What's he doin' here now?"
"Why, the damned critter got religion somehow, and he's the kindest, best preacher that ever talked in Sleepy Cat. He's doin' a world of good."
"Oscar spoke up. 'Panama's breaking Jake of swearing, Bull.'
"Got a job, ain't he?" snickered Bull.
"Just the same, he's cooled me down a lot—you know that, Oscar," declared Spotts. "Otto!" he yelled to the porter in the back room. "What the hell's a matter with the hot water this mornin'?"

CHAPTER IV

Jane made it a practice to visit her father at the Medicine Bend hospital at least every two weeks.
She spent the day at the hospital with her father, ate an early supper with him, and took Number One back to Sleepy Cat. Her father asked a good many questions about McCrossen.
"A good man," Van Tassel said wheedlingly of him again and again. "His only trouble is gambling—he will gamble."
"I'm sorry, Father," returned Jane with asperity—it was not the first time he had made the same remark—"but I don't quite see how I can watch him, do you?"
"Well, keep track of the shipments this month. The steers will be going out right along now—good deal of money coming in. See that he don't get too much away from you, under one pretext or another. When he wants money to gamble, he won't stop at nothing. And it won't do a bit of hurt to be kind of nice to him yourself."
Hints such as these failed to move Jane. Indeed, they aroused an antagonism.
When the train pulled into Sleepy Cat late that night it was cold; a north wind was whistling. McCrossen was on hand with the two-seated buckboard. He met Jane at the Pullman step and hurried her through the sprinkle across the platform to the rig.
"I piled 'ee house supplies in the back," explained McCrossen, "so you'd better 't's with me."
"Brought you an extra-heavy coat over," he added. "Thought you might need it. Will you put it on now?"
His voice, never harsh, sounded solicitous. Jane thought she would put the coat on. Her foreman, sitting beside her, helped her get into it. His manner was tender. His hands, as he straightened the coat collar, lingered a moment on her shoulders. Jane shook her shoulders slightly to draw them away.
"Your father's a great man, Jane," he said. "No use talkin'."
"I'm glad to hear someone say a good word for him," returned Jane dryly.
"Oh, he's got his enemies, I know. But from the first minute I ever saw you, girl, when you got off the train that mornin' in Sleepy Cat—McCrossen inclined in friendly fashion toward his tight-sitting little companion to emphasize his words—"from the very first minute I saw you, I said to myself, 'There's a girl with all the grit and head of her father.'"

"Hadn't you better drive a little faster?" suggested Miss Tight Sitter, casually.
"I'm afraid to push the old buckboard over this part of the road. So I said to myself," he continued, "There's a girl with her father's grit and her mother's beauty. Jane"—he lowered his voice, becomingly—"are you warm?"
"Quite."
"And comfortable?"
"Perfectly. But I should like to get on faster."
McCrossen brought the horses to a stop. "What's the matter?" asked his companion rather tartly.
"This is Gunlock Ford." The creek was runnin' kind of high when I drove through after supper, and it's been rainin' all evenin'. We don't want to get caught in the water. I'll get out and see how things look. Take the lines a minute."
"It's safe, I reckon," he reported, returning soon to the rig. "But you'd better put your feet in my lap till we get across. The water might come up through the floorboards."
Her response was whilly. "My feet will be all right where they are."
"O. K., Jane! But you're about the sweetest girl I ever saw in the world."
Sniding action to these words, McCrossen put his arm swiftly around the girl and pulled her toward him for a kiss.
He failed to get one. Instead, he got a smart slap from Jane's gloved hand; and she pushed him back with a force he had not thought possible in so delicate a feminine make-up.
"Please mind your business, Dave, and attend to your driving," said Jane collectedly.

The farther she rode, the wilder the country grew.

The night was an unquiet one for Jane's pillow. The more she thought about her surprise admirer and his crude advances, the angrier she grew. In the morning she breakfasted and ordered her saddle pony. She meant to take a long ride all by herself and rid herself of her annoyance in the morning air of the high hills.
The day was sympathetic to her purpose. She rode under a cloudless sky into the far reaches of Gunlock Ranch. Incessantly, the clouds in her mind cleared and left her free to enjoy the glory of the scene.
On and on, Jane rode. The pony was spirited and seemed, like his mistress, to enjoy the jaunt. The farther she rode, the wilder the country grew, with only small bunches of cattle here and there to remind her of her domain. At length the hills grew too rough for pleasure riding. With her spirits quieted and feeling invigorated, Jane reined about for the ranch house.
Covering considerably more distance, Jane, having grown weary, was rejoiced at last to see the dusty, serpentine foothills road well below her. Having reached it, she reined into it and jogged along, confident of reaching home soon. Presently she encountered an Indian family traveling toward her in a wagon. She reined up.
"Am I heading right for the Gunlock Ranch?" she asked of the man driving.
He nodded affirmatively. But a bright-eyed boy in the wagon box made a protest. He jabbered in low tones to his father and, turning to Jane, exclaimed, "Wrong way," and pointed north. The father shook his head, and the dispute grew. Jane, confused by the uncertainty, thanked the party and rode on south.
A few miles farther she met a horseman heading north. As he drew near, Jane thought she recognized him as the man who had directed her back to the ranch a couple of weeks before, at the close of a long day of riding through the Gunlock hills. Jane reined up inquiringly. The horseman responded to the unspoken invitation by doing likewise. Jane saw a slender face, deeply tanned, black hair, mild brown eyes, a large nose, and a small mouth, framed by a not unfriendly chin.
"Good-morning," ventured Jane. "Can you tell me whether I am on the right road to Gunlock Ranch?"
The man listened but made no effort to speak. Instead he looked at the girl silently. His gaze was embarrassing. He ignored her question and instead asked one himself:
"Aren't you the girl who got lost around here a couple of weeks ago?"
"Yes," answered Jane. "And aren't you the man who directed me back to Gunlock Ranch?"

"Guess I was," the man replied, in an absent-minded way.
"I realize that it's stupid of me to lose my way again," she said, "but can you tell me whether I am heading right for the ranch?"
He found his tongue and spoke quietly: "Well... you'd reach the ranch the way you are going, though probably not today."
"Not today?" she asked in amazement.
"You want to reach the ranch house, I suppose?"
"I do."
"Then you're heading the wrong way."
"Will you please set me right?"
"You'd better take the back trail. You're going away from the ranch house now."
Jane exclaimed in surprise. "Why, how is that? Are you sure?"
"Dead sure." A suspicion of humor crept into the words.
Confused at being caught wrong, Jane flushed. The man, silent, just looked at her. She did not like it; he might be laughing at her. Facing him more sternly, she asked with helpless annoyance in her words, "What am I to do?"
"Back trail."
"What does that mean?" she asked tartly.
"Turn around."
"Where am I?"
"Pretty well out on the Gunlock Indian Reservation."
"I've never felt so stupid in my life," declared Jane, trying to act as cool as she reined about. "I thought I knew this country well enough by this time not to get lost. I'm certainly not a tenderfoot."
The man smiled, but to himself. "There's been men here several years who got lost riding in the hills. It's no disgrace for a two-monther."
Jane did not rellish being termed a "two-monther." "Oh, I've been here before," she said airily.
He offered no comment. Tired, waiting for him to say something, Jane was nettled by his continued silence.
"I see you're wearing your bracelet," he remarked of a sudden. The words came, so to speak, out of a clear sky. She looked at him just as suddenly as he had spoken; and in alarm.
He was looking straight ahead—just as if she were not within miles—and with the impassive expression of a man riding quite alone. Could he be, she asked herself in a flash of fear, a bad man? Could he mean to rob her of her bracelet and watch?
For a moment she was too upset to speak. But her silence seemed not to move her companion.
Looking placidly ahead, and after waiting for her to comment, he spoke again:
"I might be wrong. But I thought I saw that bracelet about two years ago, Fourth of July."
"Oh," exclaimed Jane for want of something better to say.
"Anyway," continued her even-speaking guide, "I know I couldn't be mistaken about the young lady that wore it. Weren't you visiting here around that time?"
"Yes," ventured Jane, stealing a glance at the questioner. His gaze was fixed steadfastly ahead.
"Were you at the Frontier Day celebration in Sleepy Cat that Fourth of July?" he continued.
"Yes," repeated Jane. "W-were you?"
"If I hadn't been," he answered dryly, "I shouldn't have seen the bracelet."
They were jogging along pleasantly enough, and as the man didn't actually demand her bracelet or watch, her panic subsided.
"Stopping over at the ranch for a while, are you?"
"For a while, yes."
"Some of the boys over at your ranch were telling in town that had a young lady over at Gunlock that used to ride in a circus. I suppose it was you?"
"I'm the only woman, young or old, over there."
"What circus did you work with?"
"Oh, several circuses," said Jane recklessly.
"What were some of them?"
Jane, growing flighty, named one of the big ones whose shows she had attended in Chicago.
"What year were you with that show?"
She was growing desperate. With affected embarrassment she turned full on him. "You mustn't ask me that. Women are sensitive about their age, don't you know?"
For the first time he turned his eyes directly toward her; there was a slight mutual shock at the encounter. To hide a momentary confusion, she laughed nervously; but a bridge—a little bit of a bridge over a little bit of a brook—had been crossed. And the little bit of a brook was of the kind that sometimes leads to a big river.
His eyes were brown—Jane could see them now—brighter with some of the lightning that flashed in response to her words. She was even a little scared.
"I've heard some women are that way," he went on, "but I shouldn't call you a woman."
"Oh, my! Why not?"
"Well, I'd call you a girl. The reason I asked was, because I was with that show one season myself."
This was growing terrifying. Jane made an effort to change the line of talk; but her stranger was interested. "Did you ever happen to ride in Madison Square Garden?"
"No! Did you?"
"I rode there one winter when we showed there."

UNCOMMON AMERICANS

"Mother of Thanksgiving"

OF COURSE, we all know we owe the observance of Thanksgiving to the Pilgrim forefathers. But if it hadn't been for the persistence of a woman editor the chances are that it would still be only a New England festival instead of a nationwide holiday celebrated in all states on the last Thursday in November. Sara Josepha Hale was her name and she was the editor of Godey's Lady's Book, the most popular woman's magazine of the Nineteenth century.
She was born in New Hampshire in 1788, and, like all New Englanders, the celebration of Thanksgiving, even though its observance was not a regular event, was very dear to her. As early as 1827 she began advocating that "Thanksgiving, like the Fourth of July, should be considered a national festival and observed by all our people." But it was not until 1840 that she began her campaign through the columns of Godey's Lady's Book, of which she became editor in 1828.
Early each spring she began writing letters to governors of all states and territories asking their assistance in making the last Thursday in November, which had been Washington's choice for the first Thanksgiving Day, set aside by Presidential proclamation. By 1849 most of these commonwealths were keeping individual festivals but no attempt was made to have the date uniform. So Mrs. Hale started on the "Prisoners of War."

She wrote to Fillmore, Pierce and Buchanan again and again. But all of them ignored her, for they felt that such "feminine meddling in public affairs" should be frowned upon. However, in 1863, as the result of a letter which she wrote to President Lincoln, he issued the first national Thanksgiving day proclamation since Washington's day. Mrs. Hale had won her battle after 17 years' effort. With the precedent thus established other Presidents, as well as governors of states, have never deviated from the custom which Lincoln thus established.
Being thus the "Mother of Thanksgiving" was not, however, Mrs. Hale's only claim to distinction. She was the author of that famous poem, "Mary Had a Little Lamb"; she was the first to advocate women teachers in public schools; she started the first day nursery; she founded the first society for the advancement of women's wages, and her demands that housekeeping be given the dignity of a profession put the term "domestic science" in our language.

Prisoner of War

IN THE year 1783 there was born to an English family, then living in Ireland, a son who was to bear the name of John Whistler. Before he became of age young John ran away from home and enlisted in the British army. In 1777 he was sent to America with troops who were to serve under General Burgoyne and when "Gentleman Johnny's" expedition ended in disaster at Saratoga, young John Whistler was a prisoner of war.
Before the end of the Revolution he was sent back to England as an exchanged prisoner and soon afterwards he was discharged from the army. Then he fell in love with the daughter of one of his father's friends, eloped with her, came to America a second time and settled down at Hagerstown, Md. But he could not be content with civilian life for long. So in 1791 this soldier who had won the scarlet uniform of Old England put on the nondescript uniform of a lieutenant adjutant in the levies which made up a part of the army of the new republic.
From that time on he served continuously on the Northwestern frontier under St. Clair, Wayne and the others who were campaigning against the hostile Indians. By 1797 he had won a captaincy and in 1803 he was stationed at Detroit. Then orders were given to build a fort at the foot of Lake Michigan and establish a garrison there with Whistler as commandant. Accordingly he built the post which was named Fort Dearborn and thus he became the "father of Chicago."
For nine years Whistler ruled at Fort Dearborn and then he was ordered back to Detroit. At the outbreak of the War of 1812 he was serving there on the staff of General Hull and when that flustered officer, without attempting resistance, surrendered his post to the British army which swooped down upon him, Whistler again became a prisoner of war.
So his was the unique distinction of having been a British officer who surrendered to a victorious American army and then an American officer who surrendered to a victorious British army. That alone would make him an "uncommon American" even if he hadn't been the "father of Chicago" and the man whose grandson became one of the greatest of all American artists, James Abbott McNeill Whistler.

Going to the Party?

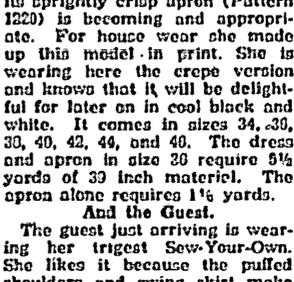

WHERE is the party? At Mrs. Smith's on Walnut street and it looks awfully much as though the principals were caught by the candid camera. Luckily, however, they're perfectly groomed for their parts:
Introducing Janet.
Janet in her jumper (Pattern 1990) is asking "Mother which glassware to use. Her plaid blouse in taffeta makes her feel very dressed up. Mother chose this style because the many possibilities for change make it a wardrobe rather than a dress and she knew it would be easy-to-make. Your own little girl may have this same ensemble in sizes 8, 10, 12, and 14 years. Size 8 requires 1 1/2 yards of 39 inch material for the jumper and 1 1/2 yards for the blouse.
Mother, the Hostess.
Mother is the perfect hostess, calm and assured, because she knows her all-occasion frock with its sprightly crisp apron (Pattern 1220) is becoming and appropriate. For house wear she made up this model in print. She is wearing here the crepe version and knows that it will be delightful for later on in cool black and white. It comes in sizes 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, and 46. The dress and apron in size 38 require 5 1/2 yards of 39 inch material. The apron alone requires 1 1/2 yards.
And the Guest.
The guest just arriving in wearing her trigest Sew-Your-Own. She likes it because the puffed shoulders and swing skirt make her hips look smaller. The collar is young and the sleeves stylish. This frock is especially chic in silk crepe alpaca or one of the lovely new prints. For your own daytime distinction, then, why not make up Pattern 1205? It is available in sizes 14, 16, 18, and 20 (32 to 42 bust). Size 16 requires 4 1/2 yards of 29 inch material. One ball of yarn required for trimming as pictured.

Bearing and Forbearing
The two powers which in my opinion constitute a wise man are those of bearing and forbearing.—Epictetus.

OF INTEREST TO THE HOUSEWIFE

To cook dried prunes wash them well, cover with four inches of cold water and let soak overnight. Simmer very slowly for one hour.
Try mixing ginger cookies with cold coffee instead of water.
Grease your measuring cup before measuring syrup or molasses and the ingredients will not stick to the sides of the cup.
Do not put too much wax on floors. A little wax and plenty of polishing makes a better-looking floor.
Doeskin and chamois gloves become stiff and harsh unless washed in tepid suds and rinsed in slightly soapy water.
Pastry made with too much water is tough and hard. Use only enough water to hold the ingredients together; mix quickly; roll and handle as little as possible.

Coronado Cuarto Centennial

Four hundred years after the white men first visited them, two villages, now in ruins, will figure largely in New Mexico's 1940 Coronado Cuarto-Centennial. They are Kawa and Puaray, the latter being headquarters for the Coronado expedition during the strange winters of 1540-41 and 1541-42, when the main body of the great little expeditionary force camped there, while expeditions went out in several directions.

It was from these little villages, across the river from the present day town of Bernadillo, that Captain Barris Nunez went up to the Jemez country and discovered the Hot Springs and the Soda Dam. It was from Puaray, called Tiguex by Castaneda, Coronado's husband, that Pedro de Torralva went into the Hoya Ancha and came back with tales of the wondrous chain now known as the Grand Canyon.

It was from this base that the great Conquistador himself, Francisco Vasquez de Coronado, went eastward searching for the mythical cities of gold.

And it was in Puaray or Tiguex that Coronado, wounded in a tournament, lay sick of a fever while his discouraged captains decided to return to Mexico.

The history of Coronado's famous expedition into New Mexico may perhaps be enacted upon the site of the long dead pueblos, villages which have been excavated only recently, and in which wonderful and great finds have been made.

It is in Kawa that the first mounds in the Rio Grande area were found. Such paintings on the walls of the ceremonial rooms, the kivas, were described by Captain Gaspar Perez de Villagra, historian of the Onate expedition, which came up from Mexico in 1610.

Today's Taxogram

The burden of excessive taxes falls heavily upon Mrs. Home Manager whose task it is to make the weekly pay check stretch to cover the weekly expenses. It is estimated by Henry A. Frazier, of the California Consumers Association, that three-fourths of the price of breakfast bacon, or 85 cents out of 48 cents a pound, represents hidden taxes.

President's Ball Nets Nearly $10,000

Nearly ten thousand dollars was raised in New Mexico for charity Saturday night as thousands danced in cities and towns over the state in honor of President Roosevelt's birthday.

Reports from the ten leading cities of the state showed more than $5,000 had been received in the more populated centers alone.

Albuquerque led the list with an estimated more than $1,000 but Arthur Prager, in charge of the ball there, expressed disappointment that the total would not reach $3,000 goal.

In Santa Fe no immediate figure was available although 800 attended the ball. Raton staged four dances, with all of the halls crowded to overflowing. Mayor O. E. Maulsby, chairman at Raton said that while $800 was taken in at the dances he was sure the figure would go even higher as many ticket purchasers did not attend.

4-H Club News

Four-H clubs are literally serving their communities in the proverbial 1,001 ways, a check of their last year's activities by the National Committee on Boys and Girls Club Work shows.

Histories of 4 H clubs entered in the National Program on Social Progress last year revealed hundreds of activities which could be grouped under such heads as public presentations, educational promotion, social service, conservation and recreational improvement.

Under these heads 4-H groups cooperate with the Red Cross, Chambers of Commerce, Farm Bureau, Grange, Farmers Union, American Legion, Kiwanis, Rotary and Lion's Clubs, and churches, schools and other groups.

The activities of the youth groups were as varied as the material and spiritual needs of society. Four H members were found to be cheering the sorrowful, serving the sick, ministering to the poor and improvident, assisting the unemployed, providing wholesome pastime occupations, and creating better community relationships.

The widespread dissemination of these facts now being carried on through the press, by the radio and other avenues, is destined to greatly enlarge the opportunities for group service by the nearly 100,000 4-H Clubs now in existence.

Club leaders and members are again offered incentives in this phase of their work through the social progress program which is sponsored by the Radio Corporation of America and provides $7,500 in county, state and national prizes for the best reports. Details of the program are to be announced upon its acceptance by State Club Leaders.

Keeping Up With Science

New Eye Training Needed to Meet Air Travel Growth

More Perfect Vision Must Be Developed

COLUMBUS, OHIO. — With air travel becoming increasingly important, more attention will need to be given to training the eyes of the oncoming generations, it appears from remarks made by Dr. C. E. Rice, consultant to the Social Security board, at the conference here of the National Society for the Prevention of Blindness.

A well developed ability to see with both eyes together is essential for normal perception of depth. This, Dr. Rice pointed out, is vitally important for pilots of aircraft. Squint is one example of an extreme degree of lack of ability to fuse the pictures in the two eyes, or to make them see together. Sometimes this squint or crossing of the eyes is due to mechanical conditions which can only be corrected by operation, but in some cases the ability to fuse can be developed by proper training, Dr. Rice said.

The cause of the condition, which may lead to blindness of one eye because it is not used at all, is unknown. Dr. Rice suggested that some of the infectious diseases acquired early in life may play a part in causing the condition.

Cause of Myopia Not Known. Nearightedness or myopia is another visual defect about which not much is known as to the cause. It is probably due to defect in the development of the coats of the eye ball, and may even have its origin in the make-up of the germ cell from which the baby developed. Since the cause seems to start operating long before the child is born, it is wise, Dr. Rice thinks, to encourage the prospective mother to partake of a wholesome diet fortified with cod liver oil during the months before the child's birth.

Other dangers that may threaten the baby's eyesight before he is born are various disease germs. Most important of these are the germs of syphilis, tuberculosis and gonorrhea. Treatment of the mother before the baby's birth will safeguard the child from blindness due to syphilitic infection. Guarding the infant from danger of tuberculous infection, either from infected milk or from contact with tuberculous patients, will protect his sight from this particular hazard.

Not all cases of babies' sore eyes, dangerous because the condition may lead to blindness, are due to gonorrheal infection, Dr. Rice pointed out. Other disease germs may get into his eyes during the birth process. Dropping silver nitrate into the new-born baby's eyes, to protect him against this hazard, is now a world-wide procedure.

Some Wasps Are Much Meaner Than Others

WASHINGTON.—Wasps are not all alike. Some of them are meaner than others. They aren't all mean, so far as that goes. Some are relatively placid.

A study in insect individuality was made recently by Austin H. Clark of the United States National Museum. A mason-wasp's nest was brought to him for identification, and when the insects hatched out he studied them one by one.

The first one out was small, dark, and wicked. She lurked in a dark corner of the jar in which the nest was kept, ready to show fight against any of her sister wasps or anything else that offered. The second wasp out was bigger and really very good natured. She wouldn't even offer to sting Mr. Clark's finger when he offered her the chance.

Other wasps that emerged varied between the truculence of the first and the placidity of the second. Only one male appeared. At first he was dull and uninterested, but he "pepped up" considerably when he found there were ladies present.

The observatory will be located in southwest France in the Basses-Alpes in the region of Forcalquier.

Young Whale Needs About One Jonah a Day for Food

Interesting Facts About the Cetacians

A JONAH a day would be just about right for a young and rapidly growing finner whale. That is, supposing the finner whale could swallow the prophet—which he couldn't. But anyhow, a whale of this kind, which are the ones most hunted for oil nowadays, increases in size by the equivalent of a big man's weight every day, during his period of most rapid growth.

This is among the host of fascinating whale-facts amassed in many voyages to both of the earth's frozen ends, by Prof. Johan Hjort, seagoing scientist of the University of Oslo.

Finner whales mate in early autumn, and their young are "calved" in May. The prenatal period is only a little longer than man's. The whale baby feeds on its mother's milk from May until December, when it is weaned. Adolescence lasts from then until about the beginning of the following August. Thus in two years the blue whale passes from infancy to adulthood, although of course it continues to increase in size for a long time after maturity is reached.

Their growth naturally goes on at a tremendous rate. In a single day, during the period of most rapid increase in size, the young whale puts on every day the weight of a full-grown man. A really large finner whale will weigh as much as 1,500 men—real he-men, too, the size of the thick-chested Viking whaler captains who pursue them. Cruising at ten knots, Professor Hjort has calculated, they must put forth an effort equivalent to 47 horsepower. The Norse biologist added that he has been on ships pursuing such whales at a speed of fourteen knots—and not catching them.

The oily blubber, chief prize in whaling, performs a very important biological function for the whales. It is to these huge sea mammals what the hump is to a camel—a reservoir of energy-food stored up in times of abundance, to be drawn upon in seasons of scarcity. Because of the tremendous quantitative fluctuations in the various forms of sea life on which whales feed, they must often go for long periods without feeding, and often cruise for hundreds of miles without so much as a herring or a shrimp to eat.

A second function of the blubber is protection from the cold. Fat is an excellent non-conductor of heat, so that a whale well wrapped up in his subcutaneous layer of blubber can live for weeks and months in polar water at a temperature near or below freezing.

Whalebone, formerly next in importance only to oil in the whaling industry, is now an object of practically no value.

Water Wagon Best for One Living in the Tropics

CHICAGO.—If you are going to live in the tropics, you will climb aboard the water wagon if you know what is good for you.

Here is the recipe for successfully living in a tropical climate, as given by Dr. Cecil K. Drinker, Harvard physiologist: No alcohol; adequate sleep, simple food, plenty of water, plenty of salt in the diet, and daily exercise.

Two years is probably the longest safe period for a white man to live in the tropics, according to Dr. Drinker, whose studies of the effects of heat and humidity on the human body are made the subject of editorial comment in the Journal of the American Medical Association.

The health of a man from a temperate climate begins gradually to deteriorate when he goes to the tropics, and the effects of the heat and humidity upon his wife and children are even worse.

Better Be Tall and Thin.

A tall, thin person is best fitted for tropical life, according to Dr. Drinker, for his body has a maximum surface for heat loss in relation to body weight.

Some of the bodily changes that have been noted among white residents of the tropics are as follows: The basal metabolism changes. Fertility is reduced. The pulse rate decreases slightly. The breathing rate decreases, but the minute volume of air is somewhat higher. Often a slight alkalosis develops. Blood sugar is likely to be low; the non-protein nitrogen increases; the total phosphorus in the blood is lowered. The red blood cells increase slightly; the white cells decrease.

Children, after the age of three years, tend to become weak and apathetic, Dr. Drinker states. By the time they are ten years old, they are poor in initiative and application.

In the case of adults, the will power often weakens, laziness follows and sometimes vicious habits gradually develop.

ARE YOU ONLY A THREE-QUARTER WIFE?

THERE are certain things a woman has to put-up with and be a good sport.
Men, because they are men, can never understand a three-quarter wife—a wife who is all love and kindness three weeks in a month and a hell cat the rest of the time.
No matter how your back aches—no matter how loudly your nerves scream—don't take it out on your husband.
For three generations one woman has told another how to go "smiling through" with Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It helps Nature tone up the system, thus lessening the discomforts from the functional disorders which women must endure in the three brackets of life: 1. Turning from girlhood to womanhood. 2. Preparing for motherhood. 3. Approaching "middle age."
Don't be a three-quarter wife; take LYDIA E. PINKHAM'S VEGETABLE COMPOUND and go "Smiling Through."

An excellent study of President and Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt as they appeared at their open car, following his second inauguration. Despite the downpour of rain, the President refused to disappoint those who had waited for hours to see him and rode in an open car to the White House.

What Irvin S. Cobb Thinks about

Hollywood "Riffs" and "Probes." BEVERLY HILLS, CALIF.— Out here, our two favorite headlines are "Riff" and "Probe," one signifying that some ideal marriage between movie stars has begun to split at the seams and the other that some functionary has been in office long enough for the professional investigators to start investigating.

In between, somebody is either trying to put Sister Aimee McPherson in a hole or get Tom Mooney out of jail. So far, neither undertaking has succeeded, but folks keep right on trying. Last month, it was Sister Aimee's turn. This month it's Tom Mooney's.

But when other sources of news fail, it's fine to be able to fall back on good old reliable "Riff" and dependable, staunch old "Probe."

Poor Lo's Renaissance. THE government says the surviving Indians are actually increasing in number. I started to add that this proves the Indians are holding their own, but, since we've left them very little of their own to hold, I stayed my hand.

The Navahoes always have been the most independent and aloof of all the tribesmen. For the most part, they continue to live a nomadic existence, following their ancient beliefs and ceremonials, refusing to be caged in towns, yet, numerically and in material possessions, they outgrow any other tribe.

Can it be that the white man's culture, which we so jealously strive to cram down the gullets of red people and black and brown and yellow, isn't always what the victims need?

But, of course, to say that is practically to admit our civilization might have a few tiny flaws in it, whereas we know it to be the one perfect creation of man, and for proof point to its crowning achievement, the late World war.

The Spoils System. THIS isn't a criticism, it's a timid little prediction based on all the political experience that the past yields to us:

Pledges of curtailment in governmental expenditures, an emanating from White House sources, are undoubtedly sincere. But Andy Jackson or whoever it was first coined the line, expressed the correct idea when he said that to the victor belonged the spoils—and not to let them spoil too long either.

So it shouldn't surprise anybody or deeply shock anybody, except the few G. O. P. boys still scattered through congress, if Pennsylvania and Missouri and certain other states should go right on getting plenty out of the treasury for continued relief work on behalf of Senator Guffey and Mr. Pendergast and such-like benefactors of the human race. Not that the ins are any greedier than the outs; they've merely improved in sagacity since the days when nearly all the smart wolves seemed to be Republicans and nearly all the half-witted sheep seemed to be Democrats.

But Pascamaquoddy might as well make up its mind to being sort of neglected from now on. Maine, she ain't been actin' right.

France's Inconsistency. FRANCE has just lent a vast sum to Poland, and Poland, it is admitted, will use the money to increase its war strength. If Poland should repudiate the debt and default on the interest, a howl will go up from "La Belle France" that'll ring around the world.

But, of course, it will continue to remain an evidence of soulless greed for Uncle Sam even to intimate that France might pay us a little something off account against the enormous amount she owes us for borrowed money which she has used to build up her army and also, it would appear, to pass along to Poland so that Poland may build up hers.

If consistency be a jewel, France is practically out of jewelry.

Cat as Prized Weather Forecaster On Japanese ships in the Seventeenth century the tortoise-shell tomcat was so highly prized as a weather forecaster, because it would rush up the mast before the approach of a storm, that it was often placed as a member of the crew and given a rank higher than that of the cook.—Collier's Weekly.

Friendly Encouragement A friendly slap of encouragement on the shoulder, a little well-timed smile of approval, a cheerful look for a comrade when he slips—these are the inexpensive little things that get the important big results.

GEORGE ADE

With a New Modern Fable

He had come up to the Seat of Learning with a paper Suit Case.

The other Lad in this plain Narrative was a Blue Blood.

By GEORGE ADE

IT HAPPENED that in the tall-grass Brain Hatchery known as Atwater College the class of 1900, commonly called Naughty-Naught, contained two Striplings who were quite dissimilar.

One was named Rube, and the Monicker fitted him like a Glove. He was a product of the soil and corn-fed. He was coarse-grained and wore Freckles. Both his rough Attire and his uncouth Manner marked him as a Yawp who had been reared among the Hay Stacks and the Live Stock. He had come up to the Seat of Learning with a paper Suit Case, a change of Underwear and a deep-seated Determination to get an Education and then go out into the world and wrangle for a Career. By firing Furnaces, waiting on Table, mowing Lawns and collecting Laundry Bills he had managed to keep himself in Crackers and Oatmeal.

The other Lad with whom this plain Narrative is concerned bore the name of Egbert and he was a Blue Blood with hifaluting Family Connections and all the Trimmings of Wealth and Social Importance. He had a nifty Wardrobe and wore a jeweled Frat Badge and was one high-rolling Spender. For him the College Experience was regarded as a pleasant Prelude to a Life of Ease, for he was an Only Son and his Governor had Nothing But.

Ridiculous and Sublime.

The two received Sheepskins that looked alike but one was a hard-earned Certificate of Efficiency and the other was simply documentary Proof that one of the Inmates had served his Full Term of Imprisonment. It happened that just about the Time when the two were ousted from the Campus, one of the Characters in this Drama had $3 in Currency and a Program for the Future. The other, by reason of the sudden Demise of an overworked Parent, found in his lap the neat sum of One Million Smackers. Say what you may, a Thousand Grand is a lot of Dough.

Ten years elapse and now the Date is 1910. Rube, after drudging his way through Law School, has hung out his Shingle as an Attorney and is elbowing his way into a Practice. He has married a Gal from his Home Town and moved into a City Apartment and has set his Traps for Lucre, Retainer Fees and influential Connections. He is gradually shedding the unselfish Altruism contained in his Commencement Oration and is developing the hard-boiled qualities of a Go-Getter.

Egbert's Dough Holds Out.

What has happened to Egbert? Ever since receiving his Inheritance on a Silver Platter he and his Help-Mate, who was lifted right out of the Society Column, have been lounging on the soft Cushions of a Colonial Mansion trying to think up different Ways in which to slather their vast Wealth. They were Easy Marks for glib Salesmen and already were Collecting the shiniest and most expensive Types of the newest Fad known as the Automobile. They loved to entertain and when they threw a Party the Giggle Water was served by the Magnum.

What is more, Egbert had his Name on every Sucker List in America and was a Fall Guy for every slick Promoter. His original Million had been whittled down to Seven Hundred and Fifty Thousand Iron Men but even what he had left might seem to represent a Goodly Sum.

Sure enough when it comes to check-up for 1920, it is discovered that Rube has done so much Smooth Work in making a Joke of the Sherman Anti-Trust Law and helping his powerful Clients to keep out of Jail that he has garnered a nifty Total of Two Hundred Thousand Bucks. Furthermore, he is all grided up to muscle in on new and gigantic Enterprises promising dandy Returns to Organizers who are bold and confident and ruthless.

During the two decades that have elapsed since Egbert became a Plutoocrat he has never exuded a drop of Perspiration except while engaged with Golf or Tennis and he has cultivated, beyond all Sense and Reason, the soft Habit of Easy Spending. Because his Fortune has always seemed inexhaustible he and Friend Wife have denied themselves nothing in the way of Frip-peries, Dev-Dads and the gaudy Trimmings of High Life. His Credit is still good and his Checks circulate everywhere but his total Holdings now amount to only Four Hundred Thousand Beans. He is still worth twice as much as his former Tutor and Class-Mate, now very much in the Public Eye and still an uncultured Rube according to the Standards prevailing in the Smart Set dominated by Egbert. And yet it is well to remember that being at a Certain Point on the Wide Highway is not so important as the matter of the Direction in which you are traveling. In the Home of Opportunity, it is the Finish that counts, and not the Start.

After the Storm.

No doubt every Reader can guess what the Developments had been during the fast and furious years of the Twenties. It was Rube who made Hay while the Sun was shining and cashed in on his Special Knowledge of the Ins and Outs of Frenzied Finance. He ceased to be a lawyer and became a high-powered Executive, a Big Shot and one of the Loud Noises in all the Clamor of a bolsterous Prosperity. He parlayed his Bets and doubled his Antes and ran his Bluffs until he had a Stack of Chips that he couldn't see over. What is more, he still carried in the back of his Dome a reserve of Horse Sense and Corn-Field Caution and that is why he escaped with a Whole Hide when the market popped in 1929.

Any one who is up on Recent History can guess what happened to Egbert. When the Bottom fell out of Things he didn't last any longer than a Snow Drop on a Hot Stove. He was simply eliminated.

The Natural Cycles.

It was on one of the darkest Days of the awful Depression when Egbert called on Rube and secured Employment as an ornamental Secretary and Hand-Shaker at the General Offices of a Corporation which was trying hard to weather the Storm. Rube gave the Job to Egbert and still felt the little Inferior to his old College Chum because Egbert was still an Aristocrat and Rube will always be a Yokel.

However, to prove what Funny Things may happen in this Land of Whirligigs and Quick Changes, Rube and his Wife are determined that their Only Child, a husky Collegian named Alexander, shall not grow up in the Image of his Dad and turn out to be another Oaf. No, they are seeing to it that he mingles with the Rich and Mighty and busts into the most elite Circles. He is protected from all the hard and cruel Circumstances surrounding Rube when he was a poverty-stricken Undergraduate at Atwater. They are going to make a Fine Gentleman of Alexander or die in the Effort. In due Time he will get all the Money. And, in due Time he will duplicate the interesting Career established by his Father's Class-Mate, known as Egbert.

STEWES CAN BE MADE INVITING

Properly Prepared, No Dish Is More Delicious.

By EDITH M. BARBER

THE word stew has acquired a bad name in this country. In general the bad reputation is deserved, and yet nothing in the world can be more delicious, nor bring more praise from guests than a well seasoned, properly cooked piece of stewing meat.

What do we mean by the term stewing meat? Merely the less expensive, less tender portions which need a comparatively long cooking, and for this reason the cooking must be done in water or other liquid. I have two hidebound rules for making these meat dishes, which, by the way, when I serve I give a title other than stew.

Method No. 1, which I use for beef and sometimes for veal or lamb, always begins by searing, that is to say, browning the pieces of meat on all sides in hot fat. If bacon or ham fat is used a special flavor is provided. Often I cook a clove of garlic or a few slices of onion with the meat.

Next I add just enough liquid to cover the meat. This may be water, with or without vinegar or wine, or canned tomatoes. Then I add a variety of spices and herbs. Whole peppercorns, cloves, mustard and celery seed, thyme, parsley and others may be used according to taste. The meat is covered and allowed to simmer for several hours.

Method No. 2 is used for chicken, veal and lamb. The meat is put into boiling water with salt, a few slices of onions, peppercorns, a few slices of carrots and celery. This is brought quickly to a boil and then allowed to simmer until the meat is tender. With this type of stew I serve a sauce made from butter, flour, the meat stock, egg yolks and cream. This may be flavored with sherry and lemon juice and sprinkled with chopped parsley.

A stew made by either of these methods and called anything you like is worthy to be served at any table.

Brown Stew de Luxe.

- 2 pounds cold meat, beef, lamb or veal.
- ¼ cup or more drippings or bacon fat.
- 10 small onions, peeled.
- 1 clove garlic.
- ¼ cup flour.
- 1 quart water.
- 1 teaspoon water.
- 1 teaspoon mustard seed, and 1 teaspoon celery seed.
- 1 cup sliced carrots.
- ½ cup diced celery.
- Salt, pepper.
- Sugar.

Cut meat in two-inch pieces. Melt fat, cook peeled onions in it until they are yellow and remove from pan. Brown meat with garlic in remaining fat, sprinkle with flour, stir until flour is mixed with fat and browned. Add water seasonings, vegetables and the onions. Cover and let simmer for several hours until meat is tender.

Cream Stew

- 1 four-pound chicken, or 2½ pounds solid veal or lamb.
- 1 quart boiling water.
- 1 onion, sliced.
- 3 cloves.
- 4 peppercorns.
- 1 tablespoon salt.
- ¼ cup chopped carrots.
- 1 tablespoon celery leaves.
- 3 tablespoons butter.
- ¼ cup flour.
- 2 cups stock.
- 2 egg yolks.
- ½ cup cream.
- 2 tablespoons lemon juice or sherry.
- 1 tablespoon chopped parsley.

Cut chicken or meat into pieces for serving, add water, onion, cloves, peppercorns, salt and celery leaves. Bring to a boil, cover and simmer for an hour or more until meat is tender. Drain and serve stock for sauce. Melt butter, stir in flour and when well blended, add the stock and stir over the fire until thick and smooth. Beat egg yolks and stir into them the cream and lemon juice or sherry. To this mixture, add a little of the hot sauce and pour back into the hot sauce. Cook two minutes and serve over hot meat. Sprinkle with parsley.

One cup of cooked mushrooms may be added to the sauce if desired.

Porcelain Houses Clean

Houses of porcelain enamel are one of the new features in building. One of these gleaming enamel houses was on exhibition at the Chicago World's fair. And everyone has seen the white hamburger stands made of this same material. These houses never need painting, they stay washed by the rain, so that they are always as fresh and clean as the day they were built. They can be had in any color at all, and they will not fade.

Selecting Paint Brush

In selecting the proper brush for painting, you should consider not only the quality of the brush, but its size, width, comfort in handling and the material on which it will be used. Smooth work must be done with smooth, soft brushes.

The Quest of Life

ONE of the best antidotes and cures of the craze for publicity is a love of poetry and of the things that belong to poetry—the beauty of nature, the sweetness and splendor of the common human affections, and unselfish aspirations of the soul. The most beautiful things that can ever come to us cannot possibly be news to the public. It is good to find the zest of life in that part of it which does not need, and will not bear, to be advertised. It is good to eat our meat with gladness and singleness of heart.—Van Dyke.

The Clock of Time

Now is the constant syllable ticking from the clock of time. Now is the watchword of the wise. Now is the banner of the prudent. Let us keep this little word always in our minds, and whenever anything presents itself to us in the shape of work, whether mental or physical, we should do it with all our might, remembering that Now is the only time for us—that Now is ours; that Then may never be.

DON'T RUB YOUR EYES

Rubbing your eyes sends invisible particles of dust and dirt right into the delicate tissues, making the irritation just that much worse. A much better way, as thousands have discovered, is to use a little Murine in each eye—right and nursing. Murine may be depended on to relieve eye irritation because it is a reliable eye preparation containing 7 active ingredients of known value in caring for the eye. In use for 40 years. Ask for Murine at your drug store.

How to Ease a Cold Quickly

Get Quick-Acting, Quick-Dissolving Bayer Aspirin. Take 2 Tablets

The modern way to ease a cold is this: Two Bayer Aspirin tablets the moment you feel a cold coming on. Then repeat, if necessary, according to instructions in the box.

Try this way. Your doctor, we know, will endorse it. For it is a quick, effective means of combating a cold. Ask for Bayer Aspirin by the full name at your druggist's—not for "aspirin" alone.

At the same time, if you have a sore throat, crush and dissolve three BAYER tablets in one-third glass of water. And gargle with this mixture twice.

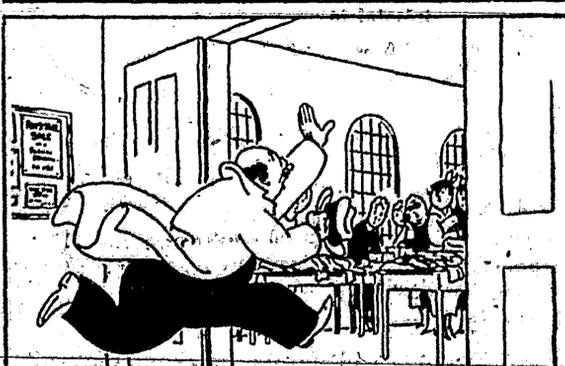

The Bayer Aspirin you take internally will act to combat the fever and pains which usually accompany colds. The gargle will provide almost instant relief from rawness and pain, acting like a local anesthetic on the irritated membrane of your throat.

Agriculture Pioneering

Agricultural cooperation is relatively new, its history spans little more than a generation. It is the application of proven business principles to agriculture. It has won an honored place in the world, based on honest achievement.

The better agricultural cooperatives illustrate the pioneer spirit. They have always kept in mind the thought that "self help is the most worthwhile help." They have paid their way, fought their own battles and solved their own problems. Industrial News.

Law to Ban

Child Marriages

Sneedville, Tenn., Feb. 4. Aroused over the marriage of Eunice Winstead Johns, 9-year-old mountain bride, Tennessee's legislature began setting up a legal barrier today to future child marriages.

Two weeks ago little Eunice wed a 22-year-old mountaineer, Charlie Johns. The ceremony was conducted by a Baptist minister in the middle of a country road.

In Nashville, Senator George H. Freeman of Lincoln county introduced a bill last night that would render "null and void" the marriage of any person under 14, regardless of the parents' attitude.

Another bill, offered by Senator Fletcher R. Morgan of Chattanooga, provides that a county clerk issuing a license to anyone under 16 years of age would be guilty of a misdemeanor.

Tennessee has no marriage age limitations in cases where parents consent.

Johns, meanwhile expressed dislike for strangers who talk to his wife.

"Let Eunice alone, don't scare her," he told newspapermen at his parents' mountain cabin.

Mrs. Winstead, defended the early marriage of her daughter, one of several children.

"My girl has a right to marry," she asserted. "She has a right to have her man the same as me or any other woman. And Charlie is a good boy. He don't throw away his money. I set a lot of store by Charlie."

"My girls always work. I put 'em in the corn field almost as soon as they can walk. My girls don't loaf and they don't get in trouble either."

"Double-Crossing"

Doctor Vitzelly says that a New York boss in the early '30s testified before an investigating committee that when a consultant asked a favor he made a record of the name and fact that if he intended to grant the petition he marked a cross after the name. Sometimes he would change his mind, in which case he added a second cross. In his testimony he would say, "I crossed Smith; I double-crossed Jones." Possibly this is the origin of the expression "double-cross" as used today.
