Odd Fellows Ob- serve Mothers Day

The Odd Fellows' program held in honor of Mothers' day at the High school auditorium was a very impressive service. Mr. Burke and his committee are to be congratulated on their splendid arrangement. Music by the Methodist church orchestra was appropriate and entertaining. A quartet arranged by Mrs. Don English could hardly be excelled. With touching pathos the whole program sounded our deepest emotions and feelings for motherhood and its glorious benefits. Mr. Burke made reference in a very dramatic way to a number of great men in the nation who had been saved to a clean life by the determined effort and prayers of their mothers.

Those appearing on the program, were, Orchestra: Mmes. Burns, Don English, Messrs. Harry Miller, Sat Chavez, Phil Bright, Murel Burnett and Mr. Chase. Quartet Mrs. Don English, Mr. Meek, Messrs C. Jones and M. Burnett, with Mrs. Burns at the piano. Mrs. Don English gave a reading, accompanied by Mrs. Kelley at the piano.

Officers of the Lodge headed by Mr. Newton were on the platform wearing the regalia which denoted the wearing of the great brotherhood. The large crowd and the many lovely roses and other flowers gave the service a beautiful and appropriate setting.

$750,000 to be Expended Oiling Starts at Overpass

The promised road work for Lincoln County is about to begin. The Mayor of Carrizozo, Mr. F. E. Richard, received a message yesterday from Santa Fe stating that men and machinery would be here Monday morning to start on Highway 380-known as the Mal Pais road.

Each county in the state has been allowed a specified sum for road construction and repairs. Under this set-up Lincoln County has been allotted $750,000. Work will be started on the several projects which have been planned, and the vast sum of money allotted will be consumed for these purposes.

On a recent trip here Governor Tingley assisted by other state and county officials made a survey of the various roads to be worked on.

With improved highways our position commercially, educationally and industrially will place us in an enviable position. Already we are served by the main line Southern Pacific. Several motor bus systems enter and leave each day on schedules to meet the convenience of the public.

Lincoln county has several wholesale businesses perfected to serve the buying public to their satisfaction, and they are the best in their lines in this part of the state. Good roads will make them more accessible.

The Business Men's Club of Carrizozo has played an important part in the distinction which we have gained for enterprise the past year. Our business section has modern stores, lumber yards, garages all under management of progressive men. In fact marks of the depression have been almost entirely eradicated.

Carrizozo as the county seat, is entitled to a great deal of graveling, oiling and paving. Situated near the ancient Mal Pais, several famous summer resorts, the Mesalero Indian reservation, the land of Billy the Kid and some of the most picturesque mountain scenery in the entire Southwest new highways will be vastly appreciated not only by ourselves, but by the tourists who visit us each season.

Think This Over

The habit of saving is a good habit, and wealth is a result of habit. All banks are ever willing to assist in the cultivation of this habit. A depositor once said he felt reluctant about coming in and "bothering us" with a small deposit. It is not the occasional big thing that makes success, rather it is the repeated habit. We welcome deposits of any amount and are always glad to have you come in.

GEORGE VI AND ELIZABETH CROWNED

Five Million Voices Cry, "God Save the King!" as Guns Boom Glad Tidings From Historic Tower of London.

London, England.—"God save the King!"

As the great guns of the Tower of London boomed forth the news that the Archbishop of Canterbury had placed the weighty Crown of St. Edward, the Crown of England, upon the head of George VI, the cry came forth in a mighty swell from five million throats as from the throat of one man.

This was the climax of the greatest show on earth, a show for which a generous share of the throng which lined the six and one-half miles of the processional route had waited without moving from their places through the dampness of a London spring night and, indeed, through part of the preceding day.

Those of the King's subjects who had not been able to afford $2 to $250 for a seat that would assure them a glimpse of their new monarch on his proudest day began marking off space along the curb on the afternoon of May 11. Smart alecks who thought they could put off their vigil until sunrise of Coronation Day were doomed to stretch their necks an inch or two in twelve hours of straining to see over several rows of earlier arrivals.

"A Quiet Empire."

It was a heavy day of work at the end of many back-breaking weeks of preparation for the 9,000 gentlemen and ladies of the peerage whose rank and purse entitled them to sit for an entire day in 10 to 25 pounds of clothing per capita, on a hard seat 19 inches wide without ever moving. But it was a magnificent show.

"The Lord give you fruitful lands and healthful seasons," said the archbishop in the benediction which followed the crowning of the King, "victorious fleets and armies, and a quiet Empire."

No one in Britain could deny that in a time of world-wide unrest, a time of urgent necessity for imperial strength and unity, the political expediency of "a quiet Empire" prompted the government to make of this the most splendid coronation in all history. The government expense in the crowning of George VI has been estimated to be double that in the coronation of his father 20 years ago. Its backing of the dazzling pageantry required expenditures of $2,620,000 of public funds, not counting an estimated $500,000 spent by the royal household in entertaining royal and foreign guests.

In the vast coronation pageant the government hoped to lend new emphasis to that sentiment which is the real bond holding the empire together, and which is symbolized by the crown and the man who wears it. There is still an undercurrent of dissatisfaction over the abdication of Edward VIII. The new King and Queen must be popularized to the fullest possible extent. The coronation was an opportunity to accomplish this, and the government could afford to let none of it slip past.

The show and the crowd lived up to all advance billing. It was estimated that there were 300,000 visitors who had to cross the ocean. All London's 12,000 hotel rooms were sold out. Souvenir manufacturers and vendors did the expected land office business. The drink bill for toasting the new King was guessed at $10,000,000.

Queen Goes First.

Pomp and regal solemnity were byword of the day from the time the King and Queen boarded the coronation coach at Buckingham Palace in mid-morning. Eight magnificent cream-colored horses drew the ancient four-ton vehicle down the streets it has traversed since 1761, when it was built for Queen Anne. In its heavily ornate gold and jewels it carried the spectators back through the pages of history to those days before the American colonists had revolted and prevented the British Empire from including the lion's share of North America.

The ancient coach, a tradition at coronations, bore the royal couple down the mall to the Abbey, where the Queen's procession left the King to enter first, so that she could stand and wait for him by the chairs of state, or recognition chairs, in front of the royal box where the other members of the royal family were seated.

Peers and peeresses were in their places before the central figures of the coronation drama arrived. And before them the real martyrs had assumed their positions. These were the eight newspaper photographers the government had permitted to be present.

Abhorring the thought of flash bulbs marring the solemnity of such an occasion, but still anxious that pictures be taken, officials hit upon a solution. They provided camouflaged quarters for camera men in false pillars and other positions which blended into the background of the Abbey. Narrow slits in the walls of these refuges enabled the cameras to peer out at the spectacle. But the poor "photogs!" They had to be "set up" before anyone entered the Abbey and maintain their cramped positions for eight or nine hours. They were not permitted to withdraw until everyone else had left.

A general color scheme of blue and gold with rich, soft velvet hangings made a brilliant background for the cast and for the spectators in their gorgeous uniforms and gowns. Peeresses wore robes of crimson velvet, trimmed in ermine, unless they happened to be of royal blood, in which event they were required to don the purple velvet of royalty. The court gowns worn underneath were of white, cream, silver or gold. Fashion experts estimated that the most economical of them cost at least $1,200. Uniforms of the men started at about $600 and went up from there.

History's Greatest Gem Display. This did not, of course, include the jewelry of the coronets. The cheapest coronet could hardly have been purchased for less than $100. The total of all the rings, bracelets, necklaces, etc., worn by the 9,000 present must have run into the millions, and was probably the most costly and magnificent display of gems ever worn in one place at one time in the world's history.

Rank of the members of the nobility was indicated by the amount of ermine on the robes of the women and the length of their trains. A duchess was marked by four rows of ermine on her robe, and a train two yards long. A marchioness was permitted three and one-half rows of ermine and a one-and-three-fourths-yard train; a countess half a row less of ermine, half a yard less train; rank was further graded down at half a row and half a yard per classification.

The head of the procession, which had included a great list of dignitaries, the King's representatives and royal persons with their families from all over the world had been waiting at the west door of the Abbey, and as the royal coach approached, filed in to await their monarch. Following them came the chaplains, deans and officers of Westminster, then the archbishops with the Queen consort and the ladies and gentlemen of the court.

Enter the King.

Noblemen close behind bore the staff and the sceptre, with the cross and the golden spurs, and the three swords which signify mercy, temporal justice and spiritual justice. These were the trappings of St. Edward, with which English kings are invested.

Then came more dignitaries, and the King's sceptre with the dove symbolic of mercy and equity; the King's gold and diamond orb, surmounted by the Christian cross; the crown of St. Edward, the patent and the chalice and the Bible.

Then entered George VI in the crimson robes of state, to join his Queen, and march through the choir and up the stairs to the theatre. Passing the thrones, they then knelt at the altars before the recognition chairs to offer prayers. Next they proceeded about the Abbey to all four sides before the view of the assemblage. The King went to his chair and once more faced each side of the Abbey as the Archbishop, in loud tones, announced him.

After the regalia had been brought and placed by the dean of Westminster upon the altar, the Archbishop asked the King, according to ritual, "Sire, is your Majesty willing to take the oath?" and the King answered, "I am willing." He gave his oath to govern the peoples of the British Isles and the Empire according to their laws and customs; to maintain the profession of the Gospel and the Church of England. After he had kissed the Bible and signed the oath, the King repeated and subscribed to the declaration required by parliament and, with the assemblage, prepared for the communion service.

Following this lengthy service, the King, having first removed the cap and robes of state, ascended to the throne of St. Edward, the ancient chair which contains beneath its seat the historic Stone of Scone upon which the kings of Scotland sat as they were crowned a thousand years ago. After a silken pall had been put over the King, the Archbishop anointed him upon the hands, breast and face with the holy oil, and he was ready to be presented with the spurs and the sword.

King Receives His Crown.

These given, George VI removed the pall and was clothed for the first time in the royal robe of purple. The orb and cross were brought from the altar by the Dean of Westminster and placed in the King's hands by the Archbishop. He was next invested with the ring and the sceptres.

Then as the King bowed his head the Dean of Westminster brought the Crown of St. Edward, and the Archbishop, receiving it from him, held it but momentarily upon the head of the King (its weight is terrific).

This was the signal for the trumpets and the guns in the Tower of London, for the peers and peeresses to cry "God save the King!" and for the millions who, along the processional line outside, had been waiting for that moment, to toss their hats in the air and cry likewise, "God save the King!" The peers were now allowed to put on their coronets.

There followed more religious ceremonies of great length and solemnity, and then the coronation of the Queen, following which the peeresses cried, "God save the Queen!" and donned their coronets.

Still more long hours of ceremony. Then, in the early evening the King's coach at last passed once more down the processional route, and the millions who had waited all day for the sight went home happy.

Mrs. Simpson's Divorce Is Made Absolute

MRS. WALLIS SIMPSON was granted an absolute decree of divorce in London, and within a few hours Edward, duke of Windsor, was on his way from St. Wolfgang, Austria, to visit his fiancée at the Chateau de Candé near Tours, France. The former king of Great Britain had been waiting impatiently, baggage packed, for word that Wallis was entirely free, and he lost no time when his solicitors telephoned him from London.

It took only 25 seconds to make absolute the decree nisi which Mrs. Simpson obtained last October 27. The king's proctor had been satisfied with the lady's behaviour in the interval, and Sir Boyd Merriman, president of the divorce court, personally granted the decree along with a lot of others.

The date for the wedding of the duke of Windsor and Mrs. Simpson has not yet been announced, but it probably will be in the week beginning May 24. Edward was willing to wait until all the coronation hubbub was over for he did not wish to annoy his royal brother in any way.

London Getting Ready for the Coronation

FROM all quarters of the earth men and women of much, little or no importance were flocking to London for the coronation; the diplomats were trying on their new knee breeches; the peeresses were buying wigs to make their coronets fit more comfortably; the officials, troops and horses were being rehearsed in their parts; the proprietors of parade seats were desperately trying to dispose of them at cut prices; and hotel managers and tradesmen of all sorts were preparing to make lots of money out of this thoroughly commercialized affair. It was said by steamship officials in New York that hundreds of Americans booked for the coronation had cancelled their passages, but despite this it was certain London would be thronged with visitors.

One most disturbing feature was the strike of the London busmen. It disrupted traffic just when the city was filling up with visitors, and those persons as well as hundreds of thousands of residents of the city and its suburbs were compelled to get about as best they could.

New Constitution for Ireland Is Published

LAMON DE VALERA, president of the Irish Free State, made public his proposed new constitution for that state which is to be ratified or rejected at general elections and a plebiscite probably late in June. The document declares all of Ireland, its islands and territorial seas, included in the national territory, and "Eire," an ancient name for Ireland, is designated the official name. Ireland is declared a "sovereign and independent democratic state," and no mention is made of Great Britain. The president is to be elected by direct vote for a seven year term. The Roman Catholic church is given special recognition, but other churches also are recognized and freedom of conscience and practice of religion is guaranteed. Titles of nobility are prohibited.

Support of home life is pledged, and the constitution declares "no law shall be enacted providing for the grant of a dissolution of marriage." Divorce in other states under civil laws would not be recognized in Ireland.

Ulster, the northern part of Ireland which does not belong to the Free State, received the proposed constitution coolly, evincing no desire to unite with the Free State. "We definitely prefer our position as citizens of the United Kingdom," said the Ulster commerce minister, John Milne Barbour, and this seemed to be the prevailing sentiment.

Big Strike Is Started in Hollywood Movie Plants

ELEVEN unions of the Federated Motion Picture Crafts, with about 6,000 members, went on strike in Hollywood, Calif., and the great film industry there was in serious difficulties. The strikers counted heavily on co-operation by the Screen Actors' guild, but that body, which has 5,000 members, delayed action until it could confer with the producers. The guild already had presented a number of demands regarding working conditions and hours and overtime pay.

Pat Casey, labor relations expert for the producers, said the strike would not curtail operations at any of the nine big studios and ventured the opinion that the dispute could be settled in a reasonable and sensible manner. He claimed that no more than 1,500 of the Hollywood movie industry's 40,000 employees were involved in the points at issue, and observed that no questions of wages or hours had been put forth by the striking unions.

The film companies have indicated their unwillingness to settle the issue of the closed shop and union recognition until they know what demands in the matters of wages and hours may be made by their workers.

Fifteen of the largest hotels in San Francisco were practically tied up by a strike of 3,500 employees. The strikers were given the active support of 13 unions. They insisted that hotel owners had refused to agree to preferential hiring and a five day week for clerks, although other groups of hotel employees had been awarded such conditions.

The 15 hotels involved were the Alexander Hamilton, Bellevue, Cathedral hotel apartments, Cliff, Sir Francis Drake, El Cortez, Fairmont, Mark Hopkins, Palace, Plaza, Whitcomb, William Taylor, St. Francis, Gaylord, and Steward.

Moscow-Volga Canal Is Opened by Stalin

MAY day was fittingly chosen for the opening of the Moscow-Volga canal, one of the greatest physical undertakings of the soviet government. For four years 200,000 prisoners have been working on the project, these including not only Russians, but also Finns, Letts, Estonians, Poles, and Ukrainians. Many of them were political prisoners.

Josef Stalin, dictator of the soviet union, and President M. I. Kalinin were the chief figures at the official celebration of the opening of the canal. This waterway, part of the plan to make Moscow actually a seaport, is 90 miles long, has eleven locks, twelve large dams, and utilizes eight large lakes and man-made reservoirs.

The canal begins on the Volga seventy miles below the city of Kalinin (formerly Tver), where a large dam and hydro-electric station have been constructed. The lake formed there has been named the Moscow sea and is ninety miles long with an area of 205 square miles.

Basques and Rebels Fight Fiercely Near Bilbao

SOME of the most desperate fighting of the Spanish civil war was taking place in the struggle for Bilbao between the sturdy Basques and Gen. Emilio Mola's veterans, reputedly mostly Italians and Germans. The insurgents had promised not to bomb the center of the city but bombarded its environs heavily from the land and the air. By fierce attacks they broke through the Basque lines on the Bay of Biscay coast, reaching Bilbao's seaports at the mouth of the Nervion river.

Disregarding the protests of General Franco, Fascist chieftain, the British and French governments undertook to remove from Bilbao a large number of women and children. These refugees were taken away by merchant vessels while British warships guarded outside Spanish waters. Franco maintained Bilbao was a military objective and that neutral nations had no right to evacuate the civil population as this would lift a burden from the Basques and permit them to concentrate on the defense of the city.

War Department Bill Is Biggest Since War Time

RESISTING all efforts of the would-be economists, the majority in the house passed the War Department appropriation bill carrying $416,400,000 for the fiscal year 1938. This is the largest army bill ever passed in times of peace.

As passed the measure carries increases in the pay of the army totaling $5,861,000; clothing and equipment, $5,500,000; military post construction, $5,400,000; ordnance service and supplies, $5,800,000, and National Guard, $1,600,000.

The bill provides more than two millions for the acquisition of land at Mitchell field, N. Y.; Kelly field, Tex.; at Tacoma, Wash., and at West Point, N. Y.

Japan's Military Bloc Defeated in Elections

PREMIER SENJURO HAYASHI and the army bloc that supported his regime lost out in the Japanese parliamentary elections. The candidates of the Minseitō and Seiyukai parties, both anti-government, won about 400 of the 486 seats in the new house of representatives. Despite this defeat, General Hayashi refused to resign.

"What's the matter?" stormed Denison, wild with the delay.

"Just a minute," muttered Pardaloe. "Forgot something. Be right back."

Pardaloe spurred back to the fall once while his companions counted time. He rejoined them after three minutes that seemed to Denison thirty. "For God's sake! Are you ready now?" Denison chopped off the words furiously.

"All set, Bill," returned Pardaloe peacefully. "You hustled me so, I got the wrong hat, boy."

Denison was waspish with impatience. "Man alive, what difference does it make what hat you wear?" he demanded testily.

"A whole lot of difference," returned Pardaloe with warmth. "Had on my new hat. It might sit plugged."

Three men rode with Denison that night—Pardaloe, Bob Scott, and Fryling Pan. The ponies were fresh and the men eager. They stopped at Gunlock. A light was still burning in the living room of the ranch house.

When the men pulled up in the yard, Denison sprang from the saddle, ran to the door, and knocked.

"Who's there?" were the low words from within.

"Is that you, Jane? It's Bill."

She swung the door open. "Bill," she cried, "what are you doing here?"

"I think I'm needed here. How's Henry Sawdy?"

"Oh, he's badly wounded, Bill. How did you know?"

"Bob Scott and John Fryling Pan have strict orders to bring me ranch news of the kind that came today."

"Tell me quickly, dear, what happened this afternoon," he urged.

"McCrosen rode out to get some things, so he said. It was sitting here sewing, Bill, when he walked McCrosen. He said he was going away for good. I said I wished him luck."

Jane hesitated a moment. "He asked me to kiss him good-by. I said no. He got angry and swore he'd take as many as he wanted. I tried to run to the front door. He caught me, and I was fighting him in his arms when Henry Sawdy walked in at the kitchen door."

"Henry told him to let go of me. That man acted like a tiger."

"He turned on Sawdy. Got out of here, Sawdy," he shouted. I begged Sawdy to protect me. He drew his gun!

"Let go that girl! Sawdy said."

"McCrosen turned on Henry, his gun in his hand."

"Henry didn't dare fire for fear of hitting me. McCrosen fired point-blank at Henry, and he fell in a heap. I screamed, tore myself loose, and ran out the front door and hid behind a tree. McCrosen walked out as cool as could be, put up his gun, mounted and rode away. Bill, I'm glad you're here! I don't feel safe a minute!"

He comforted her as best he could. "I must see how bad Henry is hurt, then I'm off with Pardaloe and Bob Scott after McCrosen. He's running off steers tonight."

With Jane, he went to the bed on which Sawdy had been laid. Sawdy looked pleasantly surprised as Jane held up the lamp and he saw Denison.

"Well, Bill," he said coolly, "the old foreman is shootin' us up today."

"Henry, where are you hit?"

"In the side, Bill, but it ain't over-awful. You see, McCrosen—"

"Jane told me, Henry. Don't waste any strength talking."

"When I seen his game to hold Jane for a shield, I made up my mind to drop at his first shot—"

"You did a good job. Now keep quiet."

He told Sawdy of the word he had from the Indians that a bunch of two- and three-year-olds were to be run off that night; that George Plenty Bear was watching in the hills, and that he, Denison, and Pardaloe hoped to pick up the trail without much delay.

Over the rim of the hills a full moon was rising into a cloudless sky. Jane, with tightened lips, her heart pounding in her throat, her straining eyes watchless, stood in the open doorway watching the ghostly figures of the four horsemen silhouetted against the sky, as they made their way up the ridge that led to the hill divide.

From the moment Denison and his companions crossed the divide, they were riding into enemy country.

Fryling Pan was asked to strike farther down and across the reservation; the rendezvous had been fixed at a point on Deep Creek.

With the hills behind them, Denison, Scott, and Pardaloe made their way down the creek breaks to the benches. They were aware of a rough cattle trail along the east bank of the creek, but the night, as they halted on the creek bench, was silent. Denison conjectured wrongly that the cattle had been driven past this point.

Working carefully downstream through clumps of willows and alders along the benches, Scott pushed ahead to locate the phantom Fryling Pan. The lone Indian after a time came down from the hills. He was taciturn. "Nobody go by," was all he said.

Denison questioned him closely without shaking his certainty that neither cattle nor horsemen had passed down the east bank. The west bank, where the pursuers were now halted, was impassable for cattle.

"They've taken another trail," Bob, declared Denison to Scott. "There's an overgrown trail through the timber to the south. It's a long way around and rough, and they took it to throw off pursuit. But that may beat them yet."

"How so?"

"They've got to double back, lower downstream to strike Deep Creek again with the cattle. We'll play it so, anyway. It's into the brush for us. We can't cross the horses here. If I'm wrong, and they're above us yet, it's safer to stick to this side, anyway."

"Where can they strike the creek?"

"About a mile above the old bridge."

"How we goin' to get to them?"

"We've got to cross that bridge."

Scott smiled a sickly smile. "That bridge's been fallin' to pieces for 10 years."

"John," said Denison to Fryling Pan, "feel out the scrub for us. Let's go!"

The riding was rough and the pace through the chaparral gruelling. The four men reached a point where the creek bottom opened from a canyon out on low, rough country, and the rising moon shed more light.

"We're a mile yet above the bridge," said Denison. "You and John ride up the canyon wall a ways, Bob, and take another look."

The Indians came back with news. "There's somethin' looks like what's left of a campfire near the bridge—"

"Push on!" exclaimed Denison. "They may have halted there."

The riding grew worse. Thickets became almost impassable. There never had been a trail down the west bank, and the job called for dogged endurance.

Scratched and torn, the four reached an open breathing space where rock and shale ended the fight through the scrub. The moon, clearing the mountain peaks, revealed, at a distance below, the abandoned bridge. Not far from it, Denison could discern embers of the campfire Fryling Pan had reported.

"Where there's been a fire, there's been men," said Denison. "They may be there yet. But we've got to watch both sides of the creek. Suppose you, Bob, and Fryling Pan get over to the east bank—"

"How?"

"The bridge."

Scott grinned but shook his head. "There's ten feet of plankin' gone in one place from the floor of the old bridge. Nobody can cross that. We could maybe crawl across in the daytime—not now."

"We've got to get across somehow," insisted Denison. "Bob, is there any place up or down the creek where you and John can get over?"

"Not with horses."

"Well, we must stop the cattle and whoever's with 'em. I'll get over, somehow, after you. Where's the plankin' off the bridge?"

"The east end."

"That's bad. No matter—dust along. Two shots from you will bring me over. Anyway, you stop anybody that comes along with the beef. We'll leave the horses here with Pardaloe, and while you're getting over I'll try to find out who these fellows are below at the fire. Bill," he turned to Pardaloe—"if I need you, I'll whistle."

"O. K.," assented the lanky Pardaloe.

Slipping off his horse and taking his rifle, Denison crept, crawled, and rolled down the slope towards the dying fire. For a little way he could be seen and heard. Then he vanished into the shadows.

Denison, though anxious to get at what lay ahead of him, was forced to work down the slope slowly. Within a long earshot of the dying fire, he thought he heard voices. Since the men were still there, renewed caution was called for. Creeping over a sandy bit of bottomland, dragging his rifle after him, he could hear the voices quite plainly.

He made out two voices, but this gave no assurance that one or more men might not be asleep.

Flattening on the sand, he listened. The fire and the men were not over fifty feet away. Denison could hear their words. They were talking English, though one voice was guttural and revealed a Mexican. As they were obviously waiting for someone who had failed to appear, cold, and too lazy to keep up their fire, Denison made no bones about intruding on the pair and whoever might be with them.

The first of the two men heard from him was a low but plain command: "Pitch up, boys!"

The startled pair jumped to their feet. "Up! Put 'em up," came a sharper order. Their hands went haltingly up. They looked around to see where the voice came from, and while they looked they heard a short whistle and saw a man emerge from the chaparral not twenty feet away.

"Who the hell are you?" demanded the smaller man of the pair, with a bluster. His voice betrayed him to Denison.

"I'm here, same as you are, to meet some cattle coming down the creek," returned Denison. "I'm going to help you, Clubfoot. Hands up. Damn you, keep 'em where they are!" While he spoke, he heard Pardaloe clattering through the thicket. "Bill," he added, as Pardaloe appeared, "bring down the horses, will you?"

"These boys are waiting for the cattle, same as we are," explained Denison when Pardaloe reappeared. "We don't need four hands on the job. Take their guns. Tie 'em up till we get straight."

Pardaloe, tying the mounts, stamped forward, gun in hand. He searched the pair, while Clubfoot protested profanely at the outrage.

"I'm here to take over cattle that belong to me—bought and paid for," stormed the butcher.

Before Pardaloe had finished roping the butcher and his helper, a shot was heard from far across the creek. Denison started almost as if the bullet had struck him.

While he listened with every nerve on edge, a complete silence followed. It was not a light. Was it a signal?

Almost five minutes passed when a second shot rang into the night. Denison tried to read the riddle. The first shot had come from a revolver; the second, sharper and less open, had come from a rifle. It all dawned on Denison—they were signal shots.

He whirled toward Pardaloe. "Hand me Clubfoot's gun, Bill," he said. Seizing the gun, he fired it twice in the air.

"Some guesswork here, Clubfoot," he remarked, emptying and tossing the gun on the ground. "I don't know whether your answer was to be one or two."

Scarcely were the words out of his mouth, when a spatter of revolver shots rang across the creek.

"Bill," exclaimed Denison, "that's a fight. If these birds make you the least trouble, shoot 'em. I'm going over."

"How you goin' over?" called Pardaloe.

"Quickest way I can. Bill," he shouted. "The bridge."

He was running for his horse.

"You're crazy. It'll drop you a hundred feet, man!" shouted Pardaloe.

"Watch your prisoners!"

Denison was galloping away.

Pardaloe, petrified, watched the disappearing horseman. Nothing but the sharp echo on his ears of flying hoofs convinced him he was not dreaming, for he never would have believed sober Bill Denison would take so slender a chance of getting across the creek alive. The clatter of hoofs grew fainter. At times they ceased, and the old frontiersman's breath choked him. Then, as if in answer to his straining ears, came the hollow sound of hoofbeats on wood. Denison had reached the bridge.

An instant later there came into Pardaloe's sight, in the distant moonlight, the ghostlike figure of a horse flying across the rotten bridge. Pardaloe divined at once that the pony had thrown his rider. Then, of a sudden, the riderless beast whirled with a spring and, as if somehow guided, shot ahead again—he was a third of the way over.

Pardaloe's jaws came together squarely and comfortably, for he now understood. Denison was on that horse, clinging to its back like a panther.

But there was still the east-end plank gap to cross; Scott had said the big one was ten feet, but he had not seen it for a year. It might easily be twelve or fifteen feet; suppose it were twenty?

With Denison more than halfway across, the clatter of hoofs grew fainter. One, two, three rifle shots rang out in fairly quick succession.

The rider was out of sight. Pardaloe ran to higher ground. Try as he would, he could not see a thing on the bridge. But now and again he could hear the faint hoofbeats. They ceased. Then there was a silence; then a faint, distant shout.

To this day the gap that Denison jumped has never been measured.

The reckless rider had been spotted when he was less than halfway across. McCrosen, riding behind the cattle, had galloped forward when Rebstock ahead was intercepted and questioned by Scott. The half-breed's gun signals had been taken by Rebstock as an attack, and he had fired back. Before either side really knew what it was all about, they were exchanging shots.

But the instant McCrosen saw the horse dashing along the rotten bridge, his sixth sense of danger guessed the rider for an enemy, and without a moment's hesitation he trained a rifle on him and fired.

Highest Laboratory in World Built on Top of Mt. Evans

Protected Against Wind, Lightning and Rats

Denver.—The campus of the University of Denver has been extended up to the peak of Mt. Evans at 14,259 feet. There, at the end of the highest automobile road in the United States, stands the highest laboratory in the world, being some three thousand feet higher than the famous laboratory on the Jungfrau Joch in Europe.

This laboratory is a joint project of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology and the University of Denver. The building was pre-fabricated in Denver, cut into sections and transported from Denver to Mt. Evans in one day by the use of a nine-truck caravan.

CCC men did yeoman service in carrying 40 sections averaging in weight from 200 to 500 pounds, up the rocky knoll from the terminal of the automobile road to the site of the laboratory. They also constructed the foundation for the building.

Will Stand Wind and Weather.

The laboratory is designed to withstand a wind velocity of 150 miles per hour and to screen out electrical disturbances of this region, which at times cause electric sparks to jump from one's fingertips, ears, and nose, and make the hair stand out like the quills of a frightened porcupine. Also it had to be made as impervious and impenetrable to rodents and convention-tourists as possible.

To make the structure wind-proof, side walls were eliminated, while the protection from lightning was accomplished by having the end walls, the roof, and the floor completely surrounded with metal which is connected to ground wires buried deeply in the mountain. This also protects against rodents.

Use of the laboratory will not be limited to research work on cosmic rays. The first work done was that by Dr. Fred D'Amour of the department of zoology, who studied the physiological changes in the rat due to high altitude. The department of meteorology has long desired a station at high altitude where observers could be placed.

Cattle Tick Fever Nearly Wiped Out in United States

Washington.—The areas under federal quarantine against cattle tick fever in the South have just reduced by 28,150 square miles, eliminating all remaining quarantined parishes in Louisiana and leaving under the ban three small blocks in Florida and two larger groups of counties on the eastern and southwestern boundaries of Texas. Total wiping out of the disease in the United States is in sight.

Cattle tick fever is a classic in the annals of bacteriology and medicine because it was the first disease proved to be carried by an insect—or more strictly, in this particular case, a tick; for ticks are not insects. It was in the eighteenth century that the late Dr. Theobald Smith, then of the United States Department of Agriculture, followed a "blind hunch" supplied by Texas stockmen and proved scientifically that ticks are the carriers of this disease. Later, it was found that insects as well as other species of ticks are responsible for the spread of many diseases afflicting both human beings and animals.

Dipping and Quarantine.

The United States Department of Agriculture, with the strong cooperation of the states concerned, undertook to eradicate this costly malady of cattle. Two principal means are employed: dipping the cattle in tick-killing baths and forbidding shipment of animals that might be harboring ticks into disease-free areas.

How effective this campaign has been is told by a glance at the Department of Agriculture's "tick map." On July 1, 1906, when the work was first taken in hand, the cattle tick fever area included practically the whole South, plus the southern half of California—a total of 720,565 square miles. The areas left under quarantine now add up to only 33,571 square miles, not much more than the single state of South Carolina.

How Old Testament People Pictured the God of Israel

Portrait of 1200 B. C. Uncarved in Syria

By EMILY C. DAVIS

WHAT did Jehovah, God of Israel, look like—as people of the Old Testament pictured Him?

Biblical Israelites ventured no real portraits. Other nations might surround themselves with statues of their deities, or engraved pictures, or bas-reliefs. But the ten commandments forbade graven images. And even though Israel gave in to temptation to make a golden calf, and even though some Israelites had a weakness for clay figurines of heathen goddesses, there was no known attempt to portray Jehovah.

Bas-relief Found in Syria.

Special interest, therefore, is aroused by discovery of a portrait which gives the modern world a fairly good idea of how the ancient world visualized Jehovah. The portrait is a bas-relief from the Twelfth century B. C., uncarved at Ras Shamra in Syria, where a Canaanite city stood.

French archaeologists, directed by Prof. Claude Schaeffer of the French National Museums, are finding ruins of Ras Shamra a veritable treasure city for evidences of lost history.

The bas-relief shows the deity El, mentioned in the Old Testament as a name for absolute Deity, and later, Prof. Schaeffer says, becoming God of Israel under the name of Jehovah, or Yahveh.

Stern-Faced and Bearded.

The Canaanite sculptor has carved a striking profile of a venerable, stern-faced individual wearing a beard and dressed in ankle-length costume and high peaked headdress. He sits stiffly on a high, richly ornamented throne with a footstool. Facing is the small king of the city, devoutly holding up his scepter and a pitcher containing some offering.

Portraits of El have been known before, but none of so early a century, which pictures El at the very time when the Israelites were fighting for their promised land under Yahveh's guidance.

The bas-relief is unfinished. Enemies invading Ras Shamra from overseas rudely interrupted life in the Canaanite city. This portrait of El was buried in the sculptor's wrecked home, to wait 3,000 years for a public showing.

Outer Leaves of Lettuce—The outer leaves of lettuce, often trimmed off and thrown away, are more than 30 times as rich in vitamin A as the inside leaves.

Removing Mustard Stains—Mustard stains can be removed from table linen by washing in hot water and soap and rinsing in warm water.

Butter Layer Cake—When raspberry jam that is not of firm consistency is to be used for filling a sponge sandwich cake it is advisable to butter the inner surface of each layer before spreading it with jam. This will prevent the moisture from soaking into the cake and making it sodden.

Beef Juice—To make beef juice add 1 pound of fresh, raw, finely chopped round steak without fat to 8 ounces of cold water. Add a pinch of salt, put the beef and water in a glass jar and stand it on ice overnight. Shake and strain it through coarse muslin, squeezing hard to obtain all the juice.

Fingerprints Tell About One's Health and Character

New York.—Scientists may find that fingerprints, now important for identification, can in the future be made to tell something of the heredity, character and health of a person and his possible criminal tendencies, members of the American Orthopsychiatric association learned at their meeting here.

First results of research on this problem were reported by Dr. John A. Larson, assistant director of the psychopathic clinic of the recorder's court, Detroit. Dr. Larson examined the fingerprint patterns of 3,524 mental disease patients at Eloise state hospital, where he is attending neurologist. He found that the distribution of arches in the fingerprint patterns was consistently lower in the group of patients suffering from schizophrenia than in groups suffering from other kinds of mental disease. In a group of sex delinquents who had no mental disease, the distribution of arches was low but the whorls seemed to increase.

Great caution must be used in drawing conclusions from these findings, Dr. Larson pointed out. Early studies had convinced Dr. Larson that fingerprint patterns obey the laws of heredity. Closest resemblances were found in a pair of identical twins. Although fingerprints are different for each individual, members of a family have certain similarities in their fingerprint patterns. Racial similarities and differences might also be found, Dr. Larson believes, so that it may be possible in the future not only to identify a person by his fingerprints but to determine his race and family connections.

Apricots From Asia May Flourish in Dakotas

Brookings, S. D.—California's apricot-blossoming hillsides may soon have rivals on the prairies of the Northwest, where nobody would ever have imagined this fruit to be possible.

Dr. N. E. Hansen, of the South Dakota State college here, has an Asiatic species which he has been nursing for about a dozen years, and which seems to be quite hardy under the severe climatic conditions of the Dakotas. He found the original trees in northern Manchuria.

OF INTEREST TO THE HOUSEWIFE

Soaking Salt Fish—When soaking salt fish add a small glass of vinegar to the soaking water and it will draw out more of the salt.

With Fancywork—Before starting to draw the threads on linen for hemstitching, wet a small brush, rub it over a bar of soap until a lather is produced, scrub the threads of linen that you wish to draw, and they will pull out easily.

Washing Windows—Add a little starch to the water used for washing windows. It not only helps remove the dirt, but gives a lasting polish.

Hanging Pictures—Never allow picture frames to touch the wall if it is damp. The frame will soon become damaged. With a small tack or gramophone needle, attach two small corks at the bottom of your frame. These will keep the frame off the wall.

Bolled Whitefish—Clean a whitefish. To sufficient water to cover add salt and vinegar and a bunch of parsley and a quartered onion. Cook until the flesh separates easily from the bones. Drain and place on a hot platter, garnished with parsley and serve with a sauce.

Tomato and Lima Bean Casserole—Drain the liquid from a No. 2 can of green baby lima beans and combine the beans with a can of tomatoes. Add a little butter and seasoning, then mix. Place in buttered casserole. Cover.

Lincoln County Received $5450.00 Since 1937

The Resettlement Administration has loaned farmers in Lincoln County a total of $5450.00 since January 1, 1937, according to J. W. J. Evans, county supervisor, with offices in Carrizozo, N. M. This figure does not include loans made after April 15.

Mr. J. W. J. Evans said loans in Lincoln County were made to deserving farmers for various purposes, including the different farming operations, such as for the purchase of feed, seed, gas and oil, living expenses, purchase of livestock and necessary equipment, etc.

A few of the loans, he said, were made to include necessary repairs of a minor nature to buildings.

Another important phase of the Resettlement Administration's broad-gauged credit program, designed to rehabilitate drought-stricken farmers, is the loan policy which makes it possible for the farm women to improve their conditions in the home and provide an adequate diet for their families.

Newspaper Best Medium.

Convinced that newspaper space represents the most advantageous medium for merchandising its products as evidenced by substantial increases in sales of Conoco germ-processed motor oil following past newspaper advertising campaigns, Continental Oil Company is again launching a large scale advertising campaign in some 1400 carefully selected papers in all sections of the nation. The campaign will continue into September.

Surveys conducted by Continental's advertising department showed two factors which decided the nature of the forthcoming campaign. First, it was ascertained that the best sales results followed the use of newspaper advertising; and second, that the average motorist is far more concerned with the mileage he obtains from his motor oil than any other single factor.

What is the "Low-price Field"?

YOU hear a lot about "the low-price field" these days. A good many cars claim to be in it. So whenever the low-price field is mentioned, remember!

Until Ford came, no average American could own a car.

Today all Ford prices are still low — with the prices of the 60-horsepower Ford V-8 $30 to $60 lower than those of any other car of comparable size.

But with Ford, "low price" doesn't merely mean low figures on the price tag. It means much more than that. It means low prices and low costs all the car's long life. Low prices for service — for parts — and, above all, for operation.

Both Ford V-8 engine sizes are economical to operate. The 85 horsepower gives greater gasoline mileage this year than ever, and the "60" delivers the highest mileage in Ford history.

Private owners, cab companies, fleet operators all report that the "60" averages from 22 to 27 miles per gallon of gasoline.

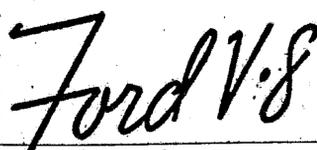

Check and see how much Ford saves you.

Resettlement Home Management Supervisor In New Mexico

Mrs. Marie M. Bishop, Resettlement Administration home management supervisor for Lincoln County, today released figures showing how the Resettlement Administration has helped 3,426 borrowers in the 31 counties in New Mexico to attain higher standards of living and insure a more rugged, self-sufficient type of agriculture. Mrs. Bishop gave the following interesting information as indicative of the great progress being made in the home life of the families who are being rehabilitated through loans from the Resettlement Administration.

Among the basic factors on which the report is based the average size of a family is 5.1 persons with the health of 381 families excellent, 1920 good and fair. The average size of a home is 3.1 rooms with 217 houses in excellent condition, 1344 good and 1389 fair. One hundred sixty-eight families have excellent water supplies and 1691 have a rating of good, 961 fair. Families having water piped into the house number 167; 2142 use well water and 1027 must haul water. Garden irrigation is practiced by 1765 families.

The 3426 borrowers own a total of 7780 milk cows or an average of 2.3 cows per family; 357 have washing machines; 2072 have pressure cookers, 1411 have sewing machines and 588 have sealers.

The following figures show the number of families who met 75 percent or more of their classified dietary needs, according to the standard set up on the 1936 home plan. Families meeting milk needs numbered 2959; meat 2392; poultry 1930; egg 2211; potato 2500; tomato 1728; green vegetables 2001; canned vegetables 1006; dried vegetables 1968; fresh fruit 1698; canned fruit 1524; dried fruit 1202; bread and cereals 3211;

Gardens were successful, with 466 families being rated at 100 per cent, 534 between 95 and 76 per cent and 599 between 70 and 60 percent. Families meeting their clothing needs numbered 1889, with 1404 meeting better than fifty per cent of their clothing needs. 447 families purchased all clothing while 2979 made some and purchased some. Families meeting fuel needs numbered 3264; 1117 purchased all fuel, 1673 obtained all fuel without cost, and 741 purchased a part of their fuel. Home account books were kept by 1962 families.

Sales of garden, dairy and poultry produce by 1304 families amounted to $114,644.44, or an average of $87.39 each. Mrs. Bishop cited these accomplishments as major factors in the rehabilitation of Resettlement clients and the establishment of a sound live-at-home program which will be continued this year. Greater progress can be expected with the experience of the past year as a basis for intensified effort, she said.

Locates In Santa Rosa

Mr. H. B. Hamilton, formerly of El Paso, has moved to Santa Rosa and has opened offices for the general practice of law in the FFF Hotel building. Mrs. Hamilton has moved here with her husband.

Mr. Hamilton practiced law in Carrizozo for 35 years before going to El Paso nine years ago. He has a large clientele in Lincoln County, and located here in order to be closer to those who desired his service from that vicinity.

The many years of practice in all types of cases gives Mr. Hamilton knowledge that makes him capable of handling any case that might be brought to him. — Santa Rosa News, May 7.

Reckless Driving Unnecessary

More than a million miles of automobile driving without an accident — that is the record of Paul Robert Merlin, French world war hero, now an American citizen and resident of Santa Monica, Calif.

Merlin credits his perfect record to obedience to traffic laws, and especially his refusal to speed. "Careless and reckless driving is so unnecessary," he said. "Speed seldom benefits any driver. I have driven my present car, a Chevrolet, for 40,000 miles, and have never missed an appointment, although I never drive at a greater rate of speed than the law allows."

1937 Farm Program Started

All interested farmers who failed to sign at the scheduled community meetings held in this county may sign up on the Farm Program for this year by seeing Committeeman in your own Community, or by calling at the office of the County Extension Agent in Carrizozo. This sign-up should be completed within the very near future.

WHAT YOU SAY GOES if you say BUICK!

This year, good things come in eights — get into this bellwether Buick and the other fellow will know who's lead-off man in your neck of the woods!

You're boss of the bunch when you ease in gas to the great valve-in-head straight eight, ablest engine of its size anywhere in the world. It's soft of voice but it packs authority — there isn't any fooling when it has work to do!

You're the envy of all eyes, garbed in Buick's princely style — handling these ready controls is the softest job in the whole wide world.

You stream down the straightaway — soar over the tallest hills — you sweep around the corners and curves erect as a dowager making her entrance — why even the back seat's chatterproof, so sweetly, smoothly, serenely does this road-wise car conduct itself!

You can't hurt it — it's built rugged and stout as Buick always has been — but still we say, handle with care! For so instant-quick is its lift to your toe-touch, so quietly easy will it outwing the birds, that you never have to force it to make your distance safely with time to spare.

This year say Buick — and whatever you say on the open road will go with the whole parade. Its purchase is as easily managed as its feather-light controls — for today Buick is priced at the lowest figure in history.

Your cue now is to see us. Do that without delay and you'll hold the center of the stage all summer long!

Congressional Reflections

Office of Senator Chavez, May 8, 1937. Farley to address students at the New Mexico State College. Senator Dennis Chavez Thursday assured Dan Williams, President of the Board of Regents, New Mexico State College at Las Cruces, that Postmaster General James A. Farley had agreed to stop at Las Cruces following the dedication of the Carrie Tingley Crippled Children's Hospital and give a short address to the student body.

This week brought good news for those interested in securing another air mail route for New Mexico. Conferees handling the Post Office Appropriation Bill this week reported out a compromise agreement which upped the House figures by $300,000. Senator Chavez announced that informal queries from the Post Office Department brought out the fact that the amount would be sufficient to care for advertising the route between Albuquerque and San Francisco for bids.

Lea county and Southeastern New Mexico were lauded Saturday morning by Senator Chavez when he appeared before the Federal Communications Commission in behalf of the establishment of a radio station at Hobbs, New Mexico. He pointed out the unparalleled and substantial growth of Lea county and the ability of that part of New Mexico to support a radio station. The Senator accompanied M. A. Whitmore of Roswell, who is seeking a permit to establish the station. The prospects are very favorable.

Dr. Ray Fife, President of the New Mexico State College, was a visitor this week at Senator Chavez office. Dr. Fife is here for the purpose of conferring with the Department of Agriculture and New Mexico officials in Washington with reference to soil conservation in the state of New Mexico. One of the main purposes of his visit is also to confer with these officials in order to develop a plan for the establishment and operation of an agricultural experiment sub-station for the Middle Rio Grande Valley. The station will be established a short distance south of Albuquerque. This will obviate the necessity of passing direct legislation by congress. Senator Chavez had previously introduced a bill for this purpose.

This week saw many prominent New Mexicans in Washington. Associate Justice Howard L. Bickley of the New Mexico Supreme Court is in Washington attending a meeting of the American Law Institute. Judge Bickley is accompanied by his daughter Mrs. T. Q. McCarty of California. Judge R. H. Hanna, Albuquerque attorney, is in Washington handling an Arizona Indian case before the Department of Interior. Fidel Baca of Belen, New Mexico, is also visiting in Washington. Old residents of Chavez county, and for that matter the entire State of New Mexico will be interested in knowing that Col. William B. Pistole was in Washington this week enroute to Roswell, New Mexico, where he is going to establish his home. Col. Pistole is retiring from the army and going back to his old home at Roswell. He graciously entertained the New Mexico delegation for dinner at the Army and Navy Club Wednesday evening.

Mrs. Billie Ferguson and daughter and little grandson were visitors from the Nogal Mesa Tuesday afternoon.

The prospective road program for Lincoln county, will furnish work for a large number of men and will also bring much money into the county. This in turn will enlarge our buying power and create prosperous times for all lines of business.

4000 Fish Turned Into Rivers

It's getting so a fish isn't going to have any privacy at all. Mr. and Mrs. New Mexico fishermen were urged Tuesday to report to the state game department the catch of any "branded" fish that may be taken any time in the future.

Jim Johnson, department fish specialist, announced plans for numbering 4000 fish, of catchable sizes ranging from 6 to 14 inches in an effort to determine piscatorial migration after planting.

A small metal tag is slipped through the fishes' jaw (it doesn't hurt a bit, Johnson explained) and the ends are punched securely together. The new style marker is round and has advantages in that it will not deter the growth of the fish and will not become lost, two drawbacks of former styles tried in other states.

This will be the first such experiment in New Mexico, although other states, including Michigan, Iowa, Minnesota and New York, have made migratory studies, none too successful because of the unsatisfactory markers, Johnson said.

Amos Gaylord came in Monday from Mora county on his way to Nogal to take up his residence there again.

Mrs. Chas. Littell of White Oaks was shopping in Carrizozo last Tuesday.

More Mileage to you - BREAD & BUTTER TO ME

My station is all on its own. My living's got to come mostly from just you people right here. I want your steady trade, so's to build a real growing business. And there's where it helps me a lot, I can tell you, to be selling Conoco Germ Processed oil. You see it makes customers and keeps them for me. It's patented - the only oil that can Oil-Plate your engine. Meaning that a definite part of this oil always fastens direct to every working part... forms a real Plating of oil, which can't run down. Other oils will "dry off" every time you park, but Oil-Plating can't, so you'll never make any hard, grinding starts. And that ends the worst wear of all. Or when you're hitting it up all day, you won't find this real Oil-Plating rubbing right off, like just some plain little drops of oil. Oil-Plating's not thinning out either, nor burning right up. Which gives you mighty solid reasons why Oil-Plating means more mileage from your engine and your Conoco Germ Processed oil. Besides making customers, I get a kick out of changing you to an oil I can believe in myself, right to the limit.

Fire Season Here

Capitan, N. M., May 10, 1937. The fire season is officially opened in this part of the forest. Lookouts and Fire Guards have been installed and the fire organization is ready to function. There is still plenty of snow in the mountains, however, the needles, grass and other litter in the lower country only needs the impetus to cause it to burn.

Warm weather will bring picnickers, campers, fishermen and others to the forest for enjoyment or business. Climatic relief of course draws a majority of the people here in the summer. Would they come if the trees, water, grass and flowers were gone? We have no control over the climate, but the other things are entrusted to our care. You are a stock holder in the National Forest whether you pay direct or indirect taxes. They are your property to protect or destroy.

The past few years the people in this country have a fine record in the number of man-caused fires. It is remarkable considering how dry the last few years have been. This year we have had the most moisture in twenty years. It affords an ideal opportunity to establish a record that will be advertised all over the United States. Last year over the 4th of July week-end with 26,000 people in the forest, we did not have a single man-caused fire. It would really be something to go a whole season without a man-caused fire, wouldn't it?

UNCOMMON AMERICANS

By Elmo Scott Watson
Western Newspaper Union

Father of the Dime Novel

A FEW years before the opening of the Civil war a printer in Buffalo, N. Y., began issuing a magazine called the Youth's Casket and a little later another, called the Home Monthly. Neither was much of a success. More successful was his brother who ran a newstand and began selling songs on single pages in much the same fashion as the ballad-hawkers of an earlier day. Then the printer brother published a number of these songs in a pamphlet called "The Dime Song Book" and it sold so well that they decided to move to New York city and publish other books for ten cents.

Thus it was that a great American institution was born, for these brothers were Erastus F. and Irwin P. Beadle and they were the "Fathers of the Dime Novel." They took into partnership another native of Buffalo, Robert Adams, and for the next three decades there came from the presses of Beadle and Company and Beadle and Adams a perfect flood of little books (the Pocket Library, the Half-Dime Library and the Dime Library) to thrill the souls of American boys and to fill the hearts of American parents with fear that their sons were being corrupted beyond all hope by these "yellow-backs."

How groundless that fear was is shown by the fact that some of the most distinguished Americans of today grew up on a reading diet of Beadle's dime novels. Exciting and thrilling those stories may have been (opening, as so many of them did, with "Bang! Bang! Bang! Three shots rang out and another redskin bit the dust") but they were also highly moral. For the Villain was always foiled, Virtue always triumphed and it is doubtful if a single boy ever was ruined by reading one of them.

Irwin Beadle retired from the firm in 1862, Robert Adams died in 1860, and his two younger brothers, William and David, succeeded him. With them as partners Erastus Beadle carried the dime novel to the heights of its success. He continued in the business until 1882. Then he retired with a fortune built up by the dimes and nickels of Young America. He died in 1894—too early to realize that certain of the little "yellow-backs" which he sold for a dime would later sell for hundreds of dollars because they are "Americana" and "collectors' items."

She Wanted to Be President

SHE wanted to be President of the United States but if ever there was a forlorn hope it was that ambition of Victoria Claflin Woodhull.

She started under the handicap of being born in Ohio to a family that was not only poor but disreputable. And neither she nor her sister, Tennessee Claflin (or "Tennie C." as she wrote it) ever tried to retrieve the family reputation. Instead, both of them added several shocking items to Puritanical America's low estimate of the Claflins. For one thing they went in for spiritualism and, what was worse, they became free love advocates.

Victoria first married Dr. Canning Woodhull but soon discarded him for Col. James H. Blood, a handsome and distinguished Civil war veteran and a kindred spirit, whom she later married. Tennessee went to New York and won the admiration of Commodore Vanderbilt who set her and her sister up as brokers. Having thus entered the business world, the sisters set out to prove that women were just as capable as men in other lines of activity.

They began publishing Woodhull and Claflin's Weekly and with it Victoria started her own "boom" for President. She ran for that high office on a platform of women's rights—and kept right on running for many years. She went to Washington and appeared before the judiciary committee of the house of representatives to demand the right to vote. Of course, she failed to win that right just as she failed to get anyone to take her Presidential candidacy seriously.

So she finally gave up the attempt, discarded Colonel Blood and went to England where she acquired another husband, as did her sister. Then both of them disowned free love, won their way into English society and for many years published a magazine devoted to advanced views on many subjects. Eventually Victoria settled down into a placid existence as the Lady Bountiful of a small town in Worcestershire and became known as "a social reformer who suffered for views now generally accepted." When she died in 1927 at the age of ninety, the vicar who preached her funeral sermon told his hearers, "We have been privileged to have had one of the world's greatest personalities among us!"

The last rivet was recently driven in the Golden Gate bridge at San Francisco. With many notables witnessing the ceremonies, a crew of iron-hatted riveters drove a golden rivet into the open, signaling completion of the structural steelwork. FRUIT CONTENT OF DAILY DIET

Of Great Importance Because of Vitamin Supply.

By EDITH M. BARBER

WHILE fruits, of course, belong to the vegetable kingdom, we classify them separately from those foods which we call vegetables. In fruits most of the carbohydrate is in the form of sugar in contrast to the starch of vegetables. Like vegetables they are high in vitamins, in general, supplying us with larger amounts of vitamin C. Leafy vegetables, tomatoes and squash, however, can compete with even citrus fruits on this count. Most fruits supply, as well, a certain amount of one or more minerals. Like vegetables, they furnish roughage in the form of cellulose which aids the rhythm of digestion.

While the majority of fruits are eaten in their raw form, cooking destroys very little of the vitamin content. Canned fruits can be counted upon to supply us with practically the same amount of vitamins which are furnished by the raw product.

The natural acids of fruits are usually an advantage to digestion, excepting in special cases where there is already an excess of acid in the stomach. Even in such conditions ripe bananas, sweet cherries, cooked pears, apples and prunes can usually be taken. Let me call attention to the fact that the condition of acidosis is completely different from that of hyperacidity. No matter how acid the fruit is during digestion, after absorption, alkaline products which prevent acidosis, result.

In no respect have the dietary customs of this country changed more than toward the fruit content of our daily ration. This change is, of course, wholly advantageous.

Living Room

In a striking modern house, which is dramatically simple in design, the color scheme of the living room is dominantly blue, white and yellow.

Yeah, What?—
Little Boy—Dad, why are all those holes in the board?
Dad, a Carpenter—Son, those are knot holes.
Little Boy (after a long silence)—
Well if they are not holes, what are they?

Turnover

Stubb—This government report states that the life of a paper dollar is only seven or eight months.

Stubblefield—Well, I have never had one die on my hands.

Soldiers make good husbands, says Sergeant-Major Sam; they're trained to be tidy. Then why is their dining room always a mess?

THE WRECKERS

"Good grief—I'll never rent that cottage to a mouse family again. They nearly ate me out of house and home."

Subtlety

A customer sat down at a table in a smart restaurant and tied a napkin around his neck. The scandalized manager called a waiter and instructed him: "Try to make him understand, as tactfully as possible, that that's not done." Said the thoughtful waiter to the customer: "Pardon me, sir. Shave or haircut, sir?"—The Kablegram.

Knowingly?

"Does your husband talk in his sleep?"
"No, and it's terribly exasperating. He just grins."—Omaha World-Herald.

Boo!

"And this, I suppose, is one of those hideous caricatures you call modern art."
"Nope, that's just a mirror."—Christian Register.

Why Laxatives Fail In Stubborn Constipation

Twelve to 24 hours is too long to wait when relief from clogged bowels and constipation is needed, for then enormous quantities of bacteria accumulate, causing gas, indigestion and many restless, sleepless nights. If you want REAL, QUICK RELIEF, take a liquid compound such as Adierika. Adierika contains SEVEN cathartic and carminative ingredients that act on the stomach and BOTH bowels. Most "overnight" laxatives contain one ingredient that acts on the lower bowel only. Adierika's DOUBLE ACTION gives your system a thorough cleaning, bringing out old poisonous waste matter that may have caused GAS pains, sour stomach, headaches and sleepless nights for months. Adierika relieves stomach GAS at once and usually removes bowel congestion in less than two hours. No waiting for overnight results. This famous treatment has been recommended by many doctors and druggists for 35 years. Take Adierika one-half hour before breakfast or one hour before bedtime and in a short while you will feel marvelously refreshed. At all Leading Druggists.

Printed Cottons Rank High in Chic

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

ARE modern cottons putting on high-style airs? Their emergence from the humble houserock field tells as fascinating a story as any Cinderella romance might offer. Cottons are certainly going places and doing things in the way of color, weave and design such as they never ventured to do before.

This spirit of cottons to do and to dare is especially true in regard to this season's prints which are flaunting a glory and glamor that is taking them into the swankiest places cottons were ever known to go. As pretentiously fashioned as designers are now turning out cotton costumes for both day and evening wear, you feel smartly dressed in them no matter the place, the time or the company you are in.

It's cottons such as were displayed at a style clinic held in the Merchandise Mart of Chicago recently (three of which are here pictured) that cause one to become cotton-conscious to ace-high point of enthusiasm. Attractive cotton fashions of the type pictured available in department stores and specialty shops the country over give the perfect answer to women seeking maximum style at minimum outlay.

A stunning dress, as shown to the right in the group, holds no terrors for a limited budget for it is anything but costly even though it does give its wearer an air of high-brow chic. Which is the grand and glorious thing about this season's handsome cottons, they are inexpensive although they have all the voguish details you would expect of much higher priced modes. In the gown referred to you see how dramatically splashy cotton prints have stepped into the 1937 scene. The graceful black scroll patterning boldly contrasts vividly colorful florals. A girlish round collar and short puff sleeves are important style details. The gypsy sash girdle repeating leading colors in the print adds the final "touch that tells." A bright green felt hat with grosgrain ribbon trim colorfully tops this costume.

A peasant print and the new spaghetti trim are combined in the dress shown to the left to interpret style at its best. The print is in peasant blues, greens and yellows on a russet background ground. The spaghetti trim for belt and for the modish lacing on the waist in in multi colors. The skirt is flared as fashion now demands. The hat has a square high crown and the brim is bound in grosgrain.

Royal crimson (echoing coronation colors) and navy blue on a white background of cloxy pique presents a stunning color study for the gown centered in the group. Because the print is a vividly colorful widely spaced bold floral it registers definitely 1937. This ensemble features a jacket with puffed sleeves and paneled down the back to correspond with the panel in the dress which is sleeveless and collarless. A new Gaucho style felt hat inspired by South America gives a nonchalant touch which is most intriguing. Adjustable knots hold the hat under the chin.

When you go cotton-print shopping don't forget that the bigger, the bolder, the print the smarter. You can go to any extreme and still not be found guilty of exceeding the speed limit so far as the colors and designs of the new cottons are concerned. There is a decided trend toward bold stripes and plaids. Then too, fancy turns to East Indian and oriental print designs. These are particularly smart for the now-popular house coats and for sports frocks.

VOGUSH SILK NET

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

If you have to make one party dress do for various occasions there is no better buy than black silk net of sterling quality. Especially is this true at the present moment since Paris is showing greatest enthusiasm for black silk sheers of every description. One of the arguments in favor of black net is that it can be worn over different slips, the latest idea being multi-colored plaid or striped taffeta or gay floral print topped with black sheer. The silk net evening gown pictured has a charming Empire décolletage.

FASHIONS CALLING FOR GREAT YARDAGE

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

The present dramatic fashions calling for great yardage as endorsed by leading designers give fabrics a larger share of the fashion spotlight than in many seasons. "Ballerina" skirts of layers and layers of stiff sheer silks, attached to long fitted bodices of silk net, silk tulle and silk marquisette show the inspiration of the recent Degas exhibits in Paris and New York. Full-skirted evening gowns sometimes use forty yards of silk.

Schiaparelli's ballet waltz dress with short skirt over stiff petticoats, the soubrette silhouette which caused such a sensation at the openings, is frequently interpreted in silk net, also in printed silk.

Cotton Laces Are Just the Thing for Daytime Frocks

Cotton laces, fashion forecasters declare, are going to be prominent among the daytime frocks worn this spring and summer. Street-length dresses made of lace in the many tailored styles are just the thing for the perfect combination of smartness and practicalness. The laces are varied in their patterns, some having big flower designs made up of large or small flowers or different sizes together. Others are patterned in geometric and modernistic figures. The beauty of the cotton laces is that they can usually be worn straight-through-the-day, finishing up at the country club as fresh and smart as a daisy. A little sports dress may be just a sports dress, but when it's lace, you have sounded a style-correct decorative note, to say nothing of coolness and uncrushableness.

What Irwin S. Cobb Thinks about

Humane Fox Hunting.

SANTA MONICA, CALIF.—In England it has been decided that fox-hunting is humane. This opinion emanates from the hunters. The foxes have not been heard from on the subject.

Maybe you don't know it, but there's a lot of fox-hunting among us, especially down south. Being but a lot of stubborn non-conformists, southerners do not follow the historic rules. A party at large wearing a red coat, white pants and high boots would be mistaken for a refugee from a circus band. And anybody blowing a horn as he galloped across hill and dale would be set down as an insane fish peddler; and if you shouted "View, halloo! Tantivy, tantivy! Yoicks, yoicks!" or words to that effect, they'd think you were a new kind of hog-caller.

Irwin S. Cobb

Down there they've chased the fox until he's wise. The foxes have learned that the hounds can't follow trail on a paved highway and so quit the thicket for the concrete when the chase is on. A fox has been sitting in the middle of the big road listening to the bewildered pack.

On second thought maybe Brer Fox isn't so smart, after all—not with automobile traffic what it is. 'Tis a hard choice—stay in the woods and get caught or take to the pike and get run over.

Courageous Republicans.

WHO, besides the writer, can recall when the Democrats held their jubilation rallies the night before a presidential election and the Republicans the night after the returns were in, when they had something to jubilate over? Now the situation is just the other way around. The Literary Digest poll was practically the only thing the Republicans had to celebrate during the entire fall season of 1936.

Still, we must give that diminished but gallant band credit for courage. Here, in an off-year, they're spiritedly planning against the next congressional campaign.

English Recruiting.

THE English are still having trouble inducing young fellows to join the colors. First, the government tried to increase enlistments by giving every recruit a giddy new blue uniform, absolutely free of charge, and still the lads refused. So now, as an appeal which, 'tis believed, no true Britisher can withstand, the military authorities announce that, hereafter, Tommy Atkins will have time off for afternoon tea.

This may be a new notion for peacetime, but, during the great war, the custom was maintained even up at the front. Many a time I've seen all ranks, from the brigadiers on down, knocking off for tea. However, this didn't militate against his majesty's forces, because, at the same hour, the Germans, over on their side of the line, were having coffee—or what the Germans mistake for coffee. And the French took advantage of the lull to catch up with their bookkeeping on what the allies owed them for damage to property, ground rent, use of trenches, billeting space, wear and tear, etc., etc.

Did it ever occur to our own general staff that guaranteeing a daily crap-shooting interval might stimulate volunteering for the American army?

The Job of Censorship.

ONE reason why moving pictures are so clean is because some of the people who censor them have such dirty minds. To the very pure everything is so impure, is it not? That's why some of us think the weight of popular opinion, rather than the judgment of narrow-brained official judges in various states, should decide what should and what should not be depicted. Anyhow, there are so many movies which, slightly amending the old ballad, are more to be pitied than censored.

Sponsors of radio programs also lean over backward to be prudishly proper. But without let or hindrance the speaking stage, month by month, grows fouler and filthier. Suggestive lines once created a shock in the audience mind. The lines no longer suggest—they come right out and speak the nastiness.

Sauce for the goose isn't sauce for the gander, 'twould seem—or maybe, after the reformers got through saucing radio and screen, there wasn't any left over for the so-called legitimate stage.

Parading the Fashions

A STYLE show De Luxe for De Ladies on this De Lightful Spring day!

Betty Ann feels just a bit the most elegant of the three for her housecoat is superlative. She has "skirts" like the ladies in the feminine yesterdays; her basque is form-fitting; her sash has a bow, and her sleeves puff. The illusion is so perfect that she is about to reach for smelling salts or a sprig of old lavender.

Matrons Have Vanity, Too.

Mama, very young for her years, can not resist styles that bring more compliments her way. The no-belt feature of this one is definitely new, and does wonders for the figure a bit past the clim stage. The continuing collar, which in soft pastel is always flattering, gives the break required by the all-in-one waist and skirt. The fitted top and flaring bottom make for style plus comfort, a demand matrons, even though youthful, always make.

Winifred on the left is privately making up her mind to have a housecoat, too; though she is mightily pleased with the way her print has turned out. She chose this style because the fitted, broken waist line and front beamed skirt are so very slenderizing. She's on her way to the 4-H meeting now and has only stopped to remind Betty Ann of the picnic "The Jolly Twelve" are having.

Horticulturist Here

Mr. A. B. Fite, Extension Horticulturist, spent one day in the county this week with the County Extension Agent doing grafting work on pecan and walnut trees in the Ruidoso valley.

The possibility of producing English walnuts from grafts made on native black walnut trees is very promising in this locality. It seems that the best time for this work is from May 1 to May 10 just when the sap starts to rise in these trees. Mr. Fite has had considerable experience in this work, and the people in this vicinity should plan to use him more in this type of work next spring.
