Mass Meeting Well Attended

A mass meeting was called Friday night for the purpose of discussing the light rates. A large crowd turned out and the discussions were more or less animated. The principal speaker did not arrive, but a number of citizens had a few words to say. The consensus of opinion was that our rates are too high. The minimum is 12 kilowatt hours for $2.50.

Other towns have a minimum of $1.50 per month for residential and commercial lighting. In Mountainair commercial rates start at 12c per kilowatt hour and scale down to 8c. However on the 12 cent rate is 50 kilowatt hours. Residential lighting rates also scale down from 12 cents per kilowatt for the first 15 kilowatts per month per meter to a low of 8 cents.

A committee was appointed at the mass meeting for the purpose of investigating light rates and to see if the relief the people are praying for is feasible.

Another committee has also been appointed to investigate what the chances are for a municipal plant. Excessive rates are lending impetus to municipal and government owned plants.

A member of one of the committees states that regarding the general complaint on high rates and inadequate service the investigation indicates that the present old type generating steam equipment with about 14 miles of transmission lines with lack of booster transformers gives low voltage, which burns out motors and causes general dissatisfaction. Also that towns the size of Carrizozo have successfully installed Diesel generating plants and modern street lighting and distribution systems and pay interest and sinking funds with rates half those charged in Carrizozo.

He also states that the franchise granted the present company exempts them from all taxes by the city of Carrizozo, so that there would be no loss to the citizens in tax revenue.

Another mass meeting is to be called for next week, as soon as the two committees turn in their separate reports.

New Pullman Train To Have Car Names You Can Pronounce

After baffling travelers for many years, Pullman car nomenclature will stand revealed as a model of historical simplicity when a new train, the 'Forty-Niner', makes its appearance on the San Francisco-Chicago run next month!

Instead of carrying the usual tongue-twisting, eye-reviling names, the Forty-Niner's equipment will be christened Donner Lake, Angels Camp, Gold Run, James Marshall, Captain John Sutter, Joaquin Miller, Advance and Progress, according to F. S. McGinnis, passenger traffic chief for the southern Pacific Company.

For Californians, at least, these names will need no explanation, for they loom large in the state's history. Nor should other travelers experience much difficulty in associating them with times and events brought to mind by the mention of "Forty-Niner".

Donner Lake, in the high Sierra, perpetuates the name of the ill-fated party of covered wagon emigrants, trapped on its shores by the snows of 1846; James Marshall touched off the Gold Rush of '49 by his discovery of shining nuggets in the race of Captain John Sutter's mill at Coloma, California; Angeles Camp and Gold Run, famous mining towns, stir memories of the "diggins" of early days. That's simple enough, but maybe it should be pointed out that the first name of Joaquin Miller, who won fame as the "poet of the Sierra", is pronounced as if spelled "Wah-keen".

The Forty-Niner, an all-Pullman train, is to be jointly operated by Southern Pacific, Union Pacific and Chicago & North Western railroads on the Overland Route.

Germany and Loyalist Spain Can No Near War

MOST of the ingredients of a good European war were tossed into the pot by loyalist Spain and Germany.

Adolf Hitler

vessel, participating in the international naval patrol, was lying off Ibiza Island, one of the Balearics under rebel control. It replied to the attack with anti-airplane guns, and the claim of the Valencia government was that the vessel was the first to fire.

Nazi Germany was tremendously aroused by the incident and Reichsfuehrer Hitler and all other prominent government leaders gathered at once in Berlin. Immediate revenge was demanded by all Nazis, so the pocket battleship Admiral Scheer and four destroyers shelled Almeria, southern Spanish loyalist port, without warning, killing twenty or more citizens and destroying many houses. Coastal batteries replied, probably without effect, and after 90 minutes of firing the German vessels departed.

Germany announced it would no longer participate in the international patrol of Spanish coasts until it could be assured such incidents as the bombing of the Deutschland would not be repeated; and Italy announced it also had withdrawn from the international committee and firmly supported Hitler.

The Valencia government asserted the Deutschland had no business being at Ibiza. It also charged that an Italian submarine launched a torpedo that sank the 3,940-ton Spanish passenger liner Ciudad de Barcelona 37 miles northeast of Barcelona. It was declared 50 members of the crew were drowned and a number of others injured.

Five Killed, Many Hurt in Steel Strike Battle

URGED on by C. I. O. organizers and other agitators, a mob of some 1,500 steel strikers and their sympathizers undertook to invade the Republic Steel plant in South Chicago and drive out the loyal employees. The rioters were met on company property by 150 city policemen and warned to turn back, but they replied with a shower of missiles. The police first used tear gas, but when the strikers began shooting they opened fire in earnest and a desperate battle ensued. Four men were killed and nearly a hundred, including 20 officers, were hurt. Two days before the police had dispersed a crowd that sought to close the steel plant, and later a fatal riot developed from a meeting held to protect that action. Mayor Kelly of Chicago upheld the course pursued by the police and said the police commissioner held the situation could be handled without the aid of the National Guard.

Authorities blamed Communist agitators for the riot. Loyal workers in Republic Steel plants at Warren and Youngstown, Ohio, were besieged by strikers and were supplied with food with difficulty. At first food was mailed to them, but the government refused to guard mail trucks in Warren which the pickets stopped, and the acting postmaster there said United States District Attorney Freed at Cleveland had authorized him to refuse packages of food intended for delivery through the picket lines.

The Republic Steel was continuing to operate, but the Inland Steel and the Youngstown Sheet and Tube corporations, the two other companies against which the S. W. O. C. had declared strikes, had closed down their plants.

Green Ordered to Press War Against the C. I. O.

THE A. F. of L. executive council closed its executive in Cincinnati with the heads of affiliated unions, after directing President Green to push vigorously the campaign against Lewis and his C. I. O. First steps were to order the Chicago and New York labor federations to expel all unions affiliated with the Lewis organization. Similar orders were to be sent to all other central bodies and state federations. The council also ordered the collection of a war chest, all members to pay two cents a month instead of one cent for the national federation.

The C. I. O. replied with announcement of a drive intended to penetrate every industry which has an organization of where existing unions "are not taking care of their members." An impending contest between the two factions is for control of the maritime workers.

Neville Chamberlain New British Premier

STANLEY BALDWIN, prime minister of Great Britain, entertained the king and queen at dinner and then retired from his high office. He is succeeded as head of the government by Neville Chamberlain, who has been chancellor of the exchequer, and a few other changes in the cabinet were made.

Mr. Baldwin is to become Earl Baldwin of Bewdley and sit in the house of peers. But Ramsay MacDonald, former prime minister and afterward lord president of the council, who retired from the cabinet with Baldwin, has declined to accept a title, presumably because he didn't wish to be laughed at by the Laborites. He probably will be given membership in the Order of Merit.

If another war comes, the British empire will not be caught unprepared. The imperial conference in London turned its attention to this matter and a special committee was formed to organize all the empire's resources for an instant shift to war footing if that becomes necessary.

Goebbels Makes Fierce Attack on Catholics

PAUL JOSEPH GOEBBELS, Nazi minister of propaganda, in a speech at Berlin that was widely broadcast by radio, replied to the strictures of Cardinal Mundelein of Chicago with a fierce tirade against the Roman Catholic church. He reiterated the charges of gross immorality against priests and monks who have been tried or imprisoned in Germany, and charged that leaders of the church had done nothing to remedy the alleged conditions.

The propaganda minister demanded that Catholic attacks against the Nazi regime be stopped, both at home and abroad. Should they continue, he threatened drastic measures against the church, hinting at wholesale expulsions of Catholic clergymen from Germany.

Duke of Windsor Will Get $250,000 a Year

EDWARD, duke of Windsor, and his bride will not have to wonder where the next meal is coming from, for King George has arranged that his brother shall receive a pension of $250,000 a year, practically for life. The money will come from the crown revenues, and therefore the consent of the government was necessary. This was granted, and Sir Walter T. Moncton, attorney general for the duchy, of Cornwall, flew to the Chateau de Candé with the papers for the duke to sign. It was believed the settlement included the transfer to Edward of part of the revenues allotted to Princess Elizabeth, daughter of King George VI, and heiress presumptive to the throne, from the duchy of Cornwall until she comes of age or marries.

Duke of Windsor

In another respect the duke has lost out. The last act of the Baldwin cabinet was to have the king announce in the London Gazette that Windsor was "entitled to hold and enjoy for himself only the title, style or attribute of royal highness," so, however, that his wife and descendants if any shall not hold the said title, style or attribute.

As one step in settling the duke's official status, King George has bestowed on Edward a special banner as a knight of the Most Noble Order of the Garter. The banner has a label with a crown on it, signifying that Edward is a former king. It is hanging in the chapel of the order in Windsor castle, immediately after the banner of the duke of Gloucester, Edward's brother, which is next to that of the king.

George F. Baker, Rich Banker, Dies on Yacht at Honolulu
GEORGE F. BAKER, chairman of the First National bank of New York and reputedly one of the wealthiest men in the United States, died aboard his yacht in Honolulu harbor, Hawaiian Islands, of peritonitis. He became ill as the yacht, carrying a party of his friends, was heading toward Honolulu on the way from Fiji. An operation was performed at sea but his life could not be saved. Mr. Baker was fifty-nine years old. His father, George F. Baker, one of the greatest figures in the financial world, died six years ago.

Golden Gloves Tourney Results in a Tie
EUROPE'S slight amateur boxing champion, from Italy, Germany and Poland, tied with the eight best of the Chicago area in the Golden Gloves tourney in Chicago, and each side won four matches. More than 21,000 persons saw the fights. The net receipts of the tournament go to charity.

Many Mexicans Killed When Dam Gives Way

SCORES, perhaps hundreds of persons were killed at Tlalpujahua, Mexico, when a dam gave way and the town was partly buried in mud, sand and rock. The dam was high in the mountains and was used by a gold mining company to hold back the deposits gathered in its cyanide processing operations. Weakened by heavy rains, it broke just before daylight and let millions of tons of "tailings" rush down the ravine in which the town lies. Hundreds of houses were swept away or buried. An official of the mine said the dead were "conservatively estimated at more than 100."

Court Bill Assailed by Raymond Moley

VALIDATION of the social security act by the Supreme court was most pleasing to President Roosevelt, but he did not agree with the general opinion that this would put a stop to his program for enlargement of the highest tribunal. He more than intimated in a press conference that the fight for his court bill would be fought to a finish and that he was not satisfied with the apparently slender "liberal" majority in the court, since a number of important administration policies are still to be passed upon by the Supreme court. He cited four issues raised by the new wages and hours bill, namely, child labor, minimum wages, maximum hours, and the question whether goods produced under unfair practices can be regulated by the government. He also mentioned TVA, the problems of flood control on the Ohio watershed, the right of municipalities to borrow federal funds to construct electric light plants, and whether the government can condemn property for a housing program.

Raymond Moley

One of those who believe the President's court plan is doomed to defeat is Raymond Moley, former head of the "brain trust." Addressing the Illinois Bankers' convention in Chicago, Dr. Moley scathingly attacked the scheme. "The President," he said, "has spoken of the dangers of a government of men. Well, there is something worse than a government of men; it is a government by a man.

"Most law and all constitutional government down the ages are really hollers and check-reins upon this unlovely tendency in rulers to lose their heads in the intoxication of power.

"There are incidental factors that have contributed to the defeat of the President's proposal to violate in this way the spirit of the Constitution. The change in the philosophy dominating the majority opinion of the court has helped. The scattering of the attorney general's insincere, insubstantial statistics by the chief justice is another. The retirement of Justice Van Devanter has helped, too.

"But behind all this has been a slow and powerful surge of public opinion. The people prefer the stability of constitutional institutions as against the unpredictable will of leaders, even very popular leaders."

Reorganization Program May Be Postponed

PROBABLY the President's governmental re-organization program will not be enacted into law during this session of congress, and Senator Joe Robinson told the joint committee that has been considering it that he didn't think this would be a great public calamity.

The joint committee couldn't come to an agreement, so it was decided that the senate and house groups should act separately. The former will offer a single bill comprising the whole program, but the house members will split the President's recommendations into four measures. These would:

Abolish the office of the controller general, who is responsible to congress, and substitute therefor an auditor general subject to the political control of the administration. Create two new executive departments—conservation and public welfare—and empower the President to transfer some 100 bureaus, commissions, and independent agencies to the ten existing and two proposed departments.

Abolish the civil service commission and substitute therefor a single civil service administrator; also blanket under civil service, without competitive examination, all federal jobholders below the rank of assistant cabinet officer.

Give the President six presidential assistants to serve as liaison officers between him and the department chiefs.

Golden Gate Bridge Is Opened With Big Fete

SAN FRANCISCO put on a wonderfully brilliant festival to celebrate the opening of the Golden Gate bridge, the fulfillment of the city's dream of half a century. The battle fleet of the United States navy was there, and so were representatives of the states, of numerous cities and of many foreign nations. The Golden Gate bridge is a single deck suspension bridge, the longest single clear span in the world. It is 8,450 feet in length from end to end, and 4,200 feet center to center of piers. It crosses over San Francisco bay at a height of 249 feet

Wide Use of Prints for Sports Togs

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

WHEN the world takes a holiday at the beach, tennis court, golf course, aboard ship or wherever vacation lures the playful, watch prints. We promise you that you will see prints this summer such as you have never seen before, armies of them, droves of them, processions of them!

It would seem as if style creators are just discovering that if there is one place more than another where riotously gay prints lend themselves dramatically to the picture, it is at the beach and its environs. The vibrant blue and green hues of the sea, the vast dome of a glamorous opalescent sky, the bright glare of the sun, the stretches of golden sand call to the colors, and to more color and more in the fashion parade.

So it is that prints for beach and for swim wear have become a hobby with designers this summer. Needless to say, for the most part it's linens and cottons that "steal the show" when it comes to rollicking, frolicking beach and sea-going costumes. The grand thing about the spectacular printed linens and cottons that are so thrillingly enlivening the pageantry of fashion where sea-breezes blow is that you can wear them with all confidence, knowing that they have been scientifically processed so that they won't shrink and they won't lose their high color no matter how wet the water, no matter how many duckings they get, no matter how relentlessly scorching sun rays attack. This assurance of non-shrinkage and of color endurance that goes with modern wash materials has, as a matter of fact, proved persuasive in encouraging the movement that is now on of featuring tub prints in a big way for beach fashions and also for swim suits.

As to whether you den linen or cotton in the existent orgy of prints that is being staged on land or sea is entirely a matter of choice since one is declared as good style as the other. A truly amphibian suit done in the modern spirit is worn by the exultant water nymph centered in the accompanying picture. A swim suit of this type, made of print, the patterning of which is as smart and distinctive as is this patterning and which is guaranteed sanforized shrunk as is this print, will do honor to even the most ultra-of-ultra cruise wardrobes.

Any girl would look pert and modern in the clever sport pajamas here shown. It is one of the newer prints that have so much swank and at the same time so many practical advantages not only for beach wear but for house wear as well. This gaily patterned linen washes like a hankie.

And do for fashion's sake see the cunning play suit to the right in the group. Yes, you can have a costume exactly like it, buy it already made or get the material and sew your own. The new Hungarian cotton prints such as have been used for the making of this fetching outfit are selling as fast as they can be measured off on the yard-stick. The colors are rich and glowing and the prints faithfully reproduce original old-world fabrics. The trick is to make them up in keeping with their quaint design, in just come such peasant manner as here shown. Full skirt of course and rather short is according to the prescribed formula. Tune it to practical active sports wear by choosing a divided-skirt pattern. Let the bodice be backless for comfort and for "style" on a hot summer day. And to the entire add a smart bolero to give it that picturesque peasant flavor which fashion thinks so well of this season.

TIPLESS GLOVES

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

Here it is, the latest step toward chic and toward greater freedom—the tipless glove, cut to show brightly polished nails. The open-air fever, starting with toeless shoes and crownless hats, has gone to the fingers. If your gloves are copper red as gloves and accessories are apt to be these days it's robin-red nail polish you'll be wanting. The suit is of horizon blue, softest feather-weight woolen. The wide revers, the modified umbrella skirt, the squared shoulders and the boxy jacket with its jaunty swing make this smart street-and-travel costume as modish as it is practical.

PASTEL LACES FOR WEDDING DRESSES

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

Pastel laces for the wedding gown, as well as the bridal party's dresses are a new note this season, and one that bids fair to gain in popularity through the season. Very pale pastels are used, so pale that they are almost white; and yet have a special shimmer that would not be attained by plain white. One of the loveliest of these pastel wedding gowns that we have seen is of palest blue linen thread, and the edge of the train, and the edge of the slit skirt, are scalloped with the scalloping accented by tiny-pleated net in the same blue. The neckline, too, is edged with the fine net pleating.

Net, as well as lace, ranks highly for bridal gowns this season. Silk net, particularly, is adapted to molding the figure, and when cut on a princess line, accenting the slender figure, it makes a truly beautiful bridal gown. And whereas net veils are prevalent over lace-bridal gowns, a net wedding dress is best set off by a lovely lace wedding veil. One veil that we have seen, over a net gown, was of lace, and very short. A bertha collar of lace was attached to the net train, the lace forming borders on the sides of the train.

Summer Velvet

Summer velvet is taking its place in the sun. The sheer quality of the fabric with its rich velvet pattern adapts itself particularly well to summer wedding clothes.

Gloves

Gloves deserve a whole chapter in themselves. They mirror fashion trends as clearly as clothes. Femininity is uppermost.

Flowers Everywhere

Flowers are everywhere. It is newest to wear two boutonnieres, one on each lapel of your suit.

What Irvin S. Cobb Thinks about

Deporting Alien Criminals. SANTA MONICA, CALIF.— Wouldn't it be lovely if the other states, not to mention the federal government, followed the example set by the governor of New York?

He commutes the sentences of foreign-born, long-term convicts so they may be eligible for parole—not mind you, to go free and sin some more, but to be turned over to the port authorities for immediate deportation.

That is, it would be a lovely idea if only we could be sure that these same criminals wouldn't come slipping back in again. The present immigration law was devised as a barrier to protect decent citizens, both native and naturalized, against the human scum of the old world, but it appears to be more like a sieve if we may judge by the hordes of nondesirable aliens who somehow manage to get in and stay in and even go on relief, some of them.

In other words, when we give these unpleasant parties a complimentary ride back where they come from, let's make sure it's not going to be a round trip.

Missionaries From China

FROM Peiping a group of believers in the doctrine of Confucius are sending missionaries to the United States. We've been sending out missionaries to their country for centuries, but that Chinamen should dare to try the same thing on us—well, that's a white horse of a yellow color.

What if, not content with zeeking converts, these interlopers inculcated among us certain phases of their heathenish philosophy, such as teaching young people consideration and respect for their elders; and showing that rushing about in a frenzy does not necessarily indicate business energy; and that the natural aim of man is not always to worship speed and—up to thirty-odd thousands a year—to die by it; and that intolerance as between religious creeds isn't invariably proof of true piety; and that minding one's own affairs is really quite an admirable trait?

Why, native Americans wouldn't be able to recognize the old home-place any more!

Such threats against a superior civilization are not to be borne.

Vanished Americans

IT'S exciting to prow among the ruined cities of the first Americans, who scattered into the twilight of antiquity when the Christian era was still young. They were our oldest families, older than even old Southern families—and who ever heard of a new Southern family or even just a middle-aged Southern family?

But afterwards, it's confusing to read the theories of the expert researchers who have passed judgment on these vanished cliff-dwelling peoples, because few such learned gentlemen agree on any single point. There is one very eminent authority who invariably insists that all the rest of the eminent authorities are absolutely wrong about everything. He is the Mr. Justice McReynolds of the archeologists.

After reading some of the conflicting literature on this subject, I've decided that a true scientist is one who is positive there are no other true scientists.

Unemployment Statistics

THANKS to bright young bureaucrats in Washington, we know how many goldfish are hatched every year and what the gross annual yield of guinea pigs is, and the exact proportion of albinos born in any given period, but it never seemed to occur to anybody to compile reasonably accurate statistics on unemployment.

Yet, with depression behind us and business up to boom-time levels, it's estimated that between eight and nine million people are out of work, not counting those on strike, and judging by the papers there must be a couple of million of them. Apparently the more prosperous we grow on the surface, the more deplorable becomes the status of those off the payrolls. It doesn't make sense. Or anyhow there was a time when it wouldn't have made sense.

This curious situation puts a fellow in mind of the old old story of the chap whose wife had an operation, and every day when he called at the hospital, he was told the patient showed improvement. One morning, as he came away, weeping, he met a friend.

"How's the wife?" inquired the latter.

"She's dead."

"I'm so sorry," said the friend. "What did she die of?"

"Improvements," said the widower.

SYNOPSIS

Victoria Herrendeen, a vivacious little girl, had been too young to feel the shock that came when her father, Keith Herrendeen, lost his fortune. A gentle, unobtrusive soul, he is now employed as an obscure chemist in San Francisco, at a meager salary. His wife, Magda, cannot adjust herself to the change. She is a beautiful woman, fond of pleasure and a magnet for men's attention. Magda and Victoria have been down at a summer resort and Keith joins them for the week-end. Magda leaves for a bridge party, excusing herself for being such a "runaway." Later that night Victoria is grief-stricken when she hears her parents quarrelling. The Herrendeens return to their small San Francisco apartment. Keith does not approve of Magda's mad social life and they quarrel frequently. Victoria asks her mother why her dad is so worried.

CHAPTER II—Continued

"Why, he's been so glum and silent these last months I hardly know. Ever since you and I went down to Santa Barbara last summer he's seemed to feel he has a grievance." Again the beautiful affectionate eyes filled with tears.

Victoria's heart ached for her with a fierce wrench of pain and sympathy. She knew of what her mother was thinking on these hot days; she was thinking of her friends at Tahoe, and up on the cool shores of Pebble beach and Santa Barbara.

Presently Magda came back to the question:

"You do see that it's hard for me, Victoria? What would you do?"

"Oh, yes, oh, yes," Victoria agreed. "It's—It's hard on us all!"

"Hard on you, too, dear?" Her mother asked quickly, in a tone that cranked away from pain.

"Hard to see you unhappy and see him unhappy," Victoria said, her eyes watering.

There was a ring at the door. Victoria was glad to go to answer it; the conversation had gotten completely out of hand. She came in with a great box of flowers; there were often boxes of flowers, but not often so large as this.

Victoria ran about getting vases for them.

"And what's in the box, Mother, the little box?"

Mrs. Herrendeen was smiling superbly, shaking her head. The card, twisted and wired in a wet envelope, was in her hand; the little square jeweler's box with it.

"What's in it, Mother?" Victoria insisted.

"I hate to look," the woman said. "I know it's going to make me angry."

"Angry?"

"I think so. Oh," Magda murmured, under her breath, "he has no right to do that!"

"Do you know who it is before you even read the card, Mother?"

"I think I do. I think it's my very rich friend, Mr. Manners."

"The Spanish one?"

"He is half Spanish, I believe."

Magda slowly brought forth the card, glanced at it, crumpled it to pulp. Victoria's eager eyes were upon her as she opened the little box, cutting its heavy cords and breaking away the wax seals. There were a cardboard box, a light wooden box, a lined jewel case in which a heavy diamond bracelet was flashing and gleaming on a satin cushion.

"What does the note say, Mother?"

"Just—well, nothing, really. Ridiculous!" the woman murmured, her expression partly amused, partly pleased, partly impatient.

"It's beautiful," Victoria said, of the bracelet. "Are they expensive?"

"Only a few thousand," her mother answered carelessly. She fitted the bracelet carefully back in its case; replaced the wooden box, the cardboard box, and yawned.

"Don't you like him, Mother?"

"Who? Ferd Manners?"

"Is that his name? It doesn't sound very Spanish."

"It's Ferdinand de Something Manners. I believe his mother was an Argentine heiress. He's lived there a great deal."

"You might know he was Spanish," Victoria said brightly. "Or he wouldn't think he could send a married lady jewelry!"

"True for you, Miss Herrendeen!" her mother agreed, going into the bedroom with the box. Until she could return it, she would hide it, Victoria knew. Dad must know nothing of this.

The afternoon dragged. After a while Victoria put on her old white serge skirt and a white thin sweater, pulled a small white hat over her bobbed head, and went to the library to get a new book. When she came back at five, her mother was entertaining a caller. It was a square, dark-skinned man, sprawled in a low chair, a glass of champagne between his big brown hands.

"This is my little girl, Mr. Manners."

"Come, it was to be Ferdinand!" the man said, his voice and accent instantly betraying the Latin.

"It was not," Magda countered simply, smiling. She was in something soft and cool and pale blue; she had had time to dress, time to draw shades and set the flowers about advantageously.

"Are you going up to Helen's?" he was presently asking. He paid no attention to Victoria. Magda, shook her head. "You're not?" the man demanded surprised.

"My little spare tire," Victoria's mother said, her arm about her.

"But good gracious, take her! Connie's girl must be about her age."

"No," Magda said, gently shaking her head. "Not just now, anyway. But it must be lovely up there! I've never been there, you know. Phyllis was telling me of some place—the Braverman place right on the water."

"But that's just the place I am going to buy!" Ferdinand Manners exclaimed. When Magda presently went out of the room to bring him her Spanish shawl, he asked Victoria if she knew that she had a very beautiful mother. He bent his russet head over the shawl. "Yes, that is a fine shawl," he said. "What does the man offer you?"

Victoria was shocked. Was Mother going to sell the famous old shawl? She saw that her mother hadn't wanted her to know.

"He offers me three hundred—Marsh. It's to be edged with fur for a wrap. They'll take all this off." Magda ran her fine thin hand through creamy silk fringes so stiff that they looked like cotton.

Just a week later Victoria brought in a great box just delivered from Munich; the shawl was inside. It had been changed into a sumptuous evening wrap with a border all the way about it of soft white fur. And this gift her mother did not return. She put it away in the great trunk that always stood in her room; there was small closet space in the apartment.

That same week, on another sticky sultry night, Keith Herrendeen came in looking tired and pale at six o'clock, apparently more than ordinarily wearied by the burden and heat of the day. He sank into a chair in the sitting room that was also the dining room, where Victoria was already setting the table.

"I brought you a little present, Magda," he said, his face suddenly bright with a smile. "It's not much, my dear."

It was an Emporium box; a white linen jacket, unlined, with a smart dark blue stripe about the collar and cuffs. The tag was still on it; he explained that she was free to exchange it if she liked. Victoria sent a quick apprehensive glance toward her mother. The bracelet that had cost thousands had been sent back, but the remains of the great crate of flowers, and fresh flowers, were everywhere, and deep in her mother's trunk was the beautiful shawl with its new border of pure white ermine.

Mrs. Herrendeen stood fingering the linen jacket. The staring "$3.05" on a tag was in her hand, as the fringe of the shawl had been a few days ago.

"It's very sweet, Keith," she said, holding her tone low. But it was no use; in a minute she was crying convulsively, bitterly, senselessly, standing at the window, with her shaking shoulders to the room.

"Don't mind me," she said thickly. "I'm crazy. Don't pay any attention to me!"

"I'll be damned if I understand you sometimes, Magda," Keith said wearily.

It was on this night that there was the first talk of sending Victoria to a boarding school. Victoria's heart rose on a bound of joy at the thought.

"This seemed to be a time of thrilling plans. It appeared almost immediately that she and her mother were going up to Tahoe to visit Anna Brock. Mrs. Brock was an old friend who had a daughter Catherine; Victoria and Catherine had known each other, not very intimately, all their lives. They had always rather shyly liked each other.

"Dad, will you be up at all, week-ends?"

"That's a pretty expensive trip, Vic."

"But once? If we can afford to stay there, surely you can afford to come up once?"

"I'll try."

"It isn't going to cost us very much," said her mother. "The cottage belongs to Anna's sister, and our food won't be much."

"Oh, are we sort of boarding, Mother?"

"Something like that."

Keith Herrendeen, putting them on the train, gave Victoria a little box in parting.

"That belonged to my mother, and her mother before her—you've seen it, the pearl and onyx set. I want you to have it."

Victoria clung to him. "Dad, you're not going to have much fun. I wish you were going!" And she called back to him over her shoulder: "I'll write you—I love you!"

For the first day or two Mrs. Brock and Magda talked together confidentially and inexhaustibly. Catherine and Victoria did not care, for they were embarked upon the most enchanting adventure of their lives. All day long, and far into the beautiful summer nights, the two girls talked and laughed, swam and cooked and walked together, giggled their way through adventures that supplied them with endless material for laughter and reminiscence.

The little cabin was on the east side of the lake; it was so small that the happy party had the feeling of living out of doors.

A mile or two to the west was the hotel, in a settlement of informally grouped lake homes; the Brock place was all by itself, with a little triangular sandy beach of its own. Anna and Magda and the two girls concocted for themselves the sort of meals that women love in summer: salads, bowls of berries, boxed cookies, fruits.

Victoria's beautiful mother had for a friend one of the homeliest of women. But Anna Brock had an odd abrupt charm of her own, and she was extremely brilliant. She spoke French and German, and in September she was going to New York to teach Latin in a boy's school. And then Catherine—joy of joys!—would be placed with Victoria in the San Rafael boarding school. They would still be together!

"Mother, how can we afford that?" Victoria asked one day.

Magda and her daughter had swum out through the shallow clear water to a great rock and were basking on it.

"This is a good chance to talk to you, Vic, without Anna or Klitsy hearing," Magda said, by way of reply, after a moment's hesitation.

"Vic, I don't want you to feel badly about this," her mother presently began. "I'm getting a divorce from Dad. We're in Nevada—did you realize that? Aunt Anna's cabin is well over the line, and on that day when we took a long drive we went to Reno and arranged it."

Victoria was looking at her mother steadily; she had not moved a muscle. Now she swallowed with a dry throat.

There were tears in Magda's eyes and in her voice; and she stopped short and looked away over the dazzle of blue water.

"Oh, the break is terrible, I know that—I know it now! But after a few weeks—after a month or two—everyone gets used to it—and the two persons who have grown nervous and irritable and wretched together are free!"

"But then when will I see Dad?" Victoria asked, tears gushing from her eyes. "Can I write to him?"

"My darling, of course. And he'll come to see you at school take you out to movie! Why, I'm writing him today, and I'll put your love in."

It seemed less strange the next day; Dad and Mother separating.

Still Victoria tried to adjust her thoughts to all the amazing angles of this new turn of affairs, thought that she would go and see Dad often, too, if she could get away from school. And perhaps next year he and she would have their little dream house on the shore for a few weeks, and cook waffles and scrambled eggs.

This was late August. It was in early October that Victoria, slim and busy and happy in the dark blue Dominican uniform, with the dazzling collar of her bluejacket's blouse turned back at the neck, and the pale blue scarf that marked her as a freshman blowing in the autumn wind, was stopped as she was racing in Catherine's wake across the school playground.

"Letter for you, Victoria," said Sister Beata, extending it in a clean, cool hand.

"Oh, thank you, S'ter," Victoria gasped, seizing it. It was from her mother, who was down in Santa Barbara with the Arnolds. It told her happily, simply, that her mother and Ferdinand Almsa y Castello Manners, "for you may as well have his whole name, my darling, although I've only got the first and the last on my new cards," had been married that day at noon.

Her father came to see her now and then, on Sundays. They were oddly silent, oddly ill at ease with each other.

Victoria saw her stepfather only in flying glimpses for the remainder of her school life. He and her mother were at the big Manners cattle ranch down in the Argentine for two years, and when they came back Victoria was preparing for a second trip to Europe. Mother Raymond had written to her mother about leaving her in the school there for the final year of French and music and culture generally, and Victoria had only one real visit with her mother before it was time to go.

Ferdinand Manners had leased the big Chalmers place in Burlingame; Magda was back among her friends again and giddy with happiness and triumph.

Chow Good Sledge Dogs

Natives of Northern China, born and reared to draw sledges over frozen wastes, the chow's steadfast, purposeful eye is indicative of their inbred ability to keep their gaze on the trail and their minds on the destination ahead. They have an amazing instinct to find their way through a country that is entirely new to them; and if they become separated from their masters in a crowd, they do not become confused as many dogs do, running this way and that, but very calmly and confidently thread their way through the throng until they find the man for whom they are looking.

Spots in America That Resist the Melting Pot

Festivals of Various Kinds Call Attention to "Bits of Europe" Here.

"It takes celebrations like a tulip festival to call one's attention to the many 'bits of Europe' scattered throughout the United States," says a bulletin from the National Geographic society.

"Recently thousands of flower-loving Americans descended on Holland, Michigan, to witness the town's annual tulip festival. The gay blooms stretching for eight miles, lure visitors each spring to this largely Dutch community sprinkled with Dutch names and, for the festival period, with residents in Dutch costumes.

A "Little Greece" in Florida. "Holland is one of the largest Dutch communities in the United States. Until recently, many of its factory workers spoke only Dutch, and neighboring farmers wore wooden shoes.

"Tarpon Springs, about half way down the west coast of the Florida peninsula, is the home of many swarthy, mustachioed Greek sponge divers and their families. They came to the warm blue waters of Florida fisheries from the sponge fishing grounds of the Mediterranean, and have made Tarpon Springs famous as a 'sponge city.' Their brightly painted diving boats are patterned after those used in Greek waters. The town supports a Greek Orthodox church, and on January 6 annually celebrates Greek Cross day, a religious fete brought from the homeland.

"Northwestern Pennsylvania has its Russians. Nearly half a century ago, some 'Old Believers,' descendants of seceders from the Russian church in the Seventeenth century, settled in Erie. The Russian colony now numbers about 2,000 inhabitants. Folk songs are sung to balalaika accompaniment by bearded men and long-haired women.

Finns Settled in Forest Lands.

"Although Finns dwell in small numbers in every state in the Union, they have not found the South appealing, and have settled chiefly in Michigan, Minnesota, Massachusetts, and Washington. From Finland, 'the Land of a Thousand Lakes,' they have been especially drawn to Minnesota. Their physical stamina and experience as lumberjacks in Finland's vast forests have fitted many of them particularly well to take part in America's lumber industry.

"The Finns retain their love of education, flocking to schools and night classes. As in their home land, they build log bathhouses in which to take steam baths, and carve from birchwood skis which carry them over the fields in rigorous winters. Finland, Suomi,

Somehow the Proverb Sounded a Bit Off

He had only recently joined the ranks of politicians, and he was anxious that his first speech to his prospective constituents should be a great success, says London Answers.

He spoke for a long time, warning his hearers of the dangers of war and the importance of keeping a large army. Wishing to finish with some quotation, he thought of the proverb about locking the stable door. But he wanted to be a bit more original.

Suddenly he had a brain-wave. "Ladies and gentlemen," he cried, "don't, I beg of you—don't wait till your house catches fire before calling the fire brigade."

Your Job

DO YOU realize that your job is the most important affair in the world, just because it is your job? The way you look at your job makes all the difference to your career. Do you regard it only as a money-making stunt? Or do you consider it a position to be proud of?

If you put your heart and soul into your effort; you are bound to make good and will wake up one fine morning to discover that you are one of the indispensable. The world respects you because it cannot get along without you.—Geoffrey Rhodes.

Toimi, and Toivola are some Minnesota place names that tell of Finnish population.

Shipping Lures Dalmatians.

"For centuries Dalmatians have either tilled the soil or sailed under Ragusan and other flags all over the world. Today these dark, spirited people, with blood of bold sea rovers in their veins, not only man the orange-sailed fishing boats off the Dalmatian coast, but they man American ships and work in fisheries of Louisiana, Florida, and California.

"From green vineyards, gray olive groves, fig and orange orchards steeped in almost perpetual sunshine along the Dalmatian coast, have come many of the large commercial fruit growers of the Pacific coast, particularly those in Santa Cruz and Santa Clara counties. Watsonville, south of San Francisco, has a population almost entirely Yugoslavian.

"The majority of fishermen in Provincetown, Massachusetts, are Portuguese. Their ancestors sailed there on whalers from Portugal and the Azores. The city directory is filled with names that sound strange among those of most New England towns: last names such as Silva, Ramos, Furtado, Costa, Zora, Dutra, Cabral, Almeda, Agna, and Corea."

Firestone TIRES

GIVE YOU GREATER PROTECTION AGAINST SKIDDING AND BLOWOUTS

YOU will know the minute you see this tire why car owners everywhere call it the greatest tire ever made to sell at these low prices. The deeper, wider, flatter non-skid tread made of tough, long wearing rubber will give you protection against dangerous skidding.

But tires cannot be judged on tread alone. Under the tread of Firestone Standard Tires are two extra layers of Gum-Dipped cords. This Firestone patented construction feature binds the tread and cord body into one inseparable unit. Every cord fiber in every cord in every ply is saturated and coated with pure liquid rubber which counteracts the internal friction and heat that ordinarily destroy tire life. This Firestone patented process of Gum-Dipping gives greater protection against blowouts and is used only in Firestone Tires.

See your nearby Firestone Dealer or Firestone Auto Supply and Service Store and join the Firestone Save a Life Campaign today by equipping your car with a set of new Firestone Standard Tires.

DON'T RISK YOUR LIFE ON THIN WORN TIRES

Protect yourself and your family from the danger of driving on thin worn tires which may cause a serious accident.

DO YOU KNOW

THAT last year highway accidents cost the lives of more than 38,000 men, women and children?

THAT a million more were injured?

THAT more than 40,000 of these accidents resulted in deaths and injuries were caused by motorists driving on thin, worn and skidding tires?

Congressional Reflections

Office of Senator Chavez, June 10, 1937.- Lovers of the Old West and old timers acquainted with the history of the old Lincoln County War will be interested in knowing that the historic site, the Old Lincoln County Courthouse, is being listed for study and investigation by the National Park Service with a view of making it a National Monument.

Senator Chavez was assured by A. E. Demaray, Acting Director of the National Park Service, that the Courthouse would be listed for investigation in the Nation wide survey of historic sites which the National Park Service is now conducting.

The Lincoln County Courthouse is a part of the old West so familiar to us in the tales of Billy the Kid and other Western characters and is a site of great historic interest and concern, not only for the inhabitants of the Southwest but also for the entire Country, for what American youth has not been thrilled by the hair raising deeds of Pat Garrett and William Boney, alias Billy the Kid.

The New Mexico Legislature in Senate Joint Memorial No. 8, introduced by Senator Perry Sears of Capitan, requested that the Courthouse be declared a National Monument.

Tourist Season Here

Capitan, N. M.— Tourist season in this part of the country starts in earnest about June 1. The resorts take on a new air; fishermen, hikers, horsebackers and campers fairly take over the roads and streams.

We are exceedingly fortunate this year in that we have had lots of rain and yet have missed the damaging downpours and floods of the lower country in the Hondo valley. The mountains and streams were never more beautiful than they are this summer. An ideal set-up for a big year as far as tourists go.

A survey of the United States shows that in New Mexico the amount spent by the people of the state for amusement is 3.44 per head. This does not rank at the top of the list, but is far from the bottom. A large per cent of this money would necessarily be tourist trade. The people of the state well realize the recreational values we have and should try to keep them as attractive as possible. A little care with refuse from picnics, fire, beer cans, refraining from whittling and chopping on public improvements and damaging trees, flowers and shrubs along the roads will more than pay for itself in the added attraction our state will have for outsiders. After all "Welcome Stranger" is a small investment for the return it brings to the people of New Mexico and Lincoln County.

Treatment of Pimples

By DR. JAMES W. BARTON
© Bell Syndicate.—WNU Service.

NOTHING is much more embarrassing and distressing than pimples (acne), coming as it does when the personal appearance means so much to the individual.

Even young people with a very fine skin and complexion may have crops of pimples occur from time to time. In fact even if the patient has a history of boils, appendicitis, tonsillitis (ailments which are commonly supposed to have some connection with acne) it may make no difference as far as having or not having acne.

Also pimples seem to come in those who are underweight, overweight, or of average weight, so that the nutrition or the nourishment of the body seems to make no difference as far as having acne is concerned.

That certain foods cause acne, or make it more severe, has been proved. This is not because of anything wrong with these foods, but because something is wrong with the way the body handles these foods.

Formerly treatment was all applied to the skin itself—ointments, washes, electrolysis, and X-ray treatments. These are still used and help greatly, but foods known to cause acne are now avoided, and arsenic, salicylic acid, mercury, mineral oil, and other substances are given internally.

Foods to Be Avoided.

Beginning with the diet, the foods that have been found to aggravate the condition are pastry, chocolate, candies, sundaes, jams, jellies, preserves, pork or gravies. Those should be avoided entirely. Foods that should be eaten only in small quantities are bread, potatoes, cheese, macaroni, nuts, salted meats, very fat fish.

The second step is to try to locate any disturbance in the body such as infected teeth or tonsils, chronic indigestion, or constipation. Sometimes the removal of infected teeth, or the correction of constipation by such simple methods as the use of mineral oil or cascara, clears up the acne.

The outside treatment mentioned above is the use of hot and cold packs of plain soap and water; tar soap, coconut oil soap, zinc, mercury or sulphur ointments; electrolysis, and X-ray.

The internal treatment is the use of Fowler's solution (arsenic), liver extract, and the injection of vaccines by the hypodermic needle.

Skin specialists are agreed that of all simple methods used, the X-ray treatments give the most satisfactory results.

Diet First in Reducing.

When there is excessive overweight there is always danger an excessive overweight predisposes to diabetes, high blood pressure and a failing heart. Common sense then would suggest that the overweight should undergo an examination and follow a prescribed plan in regard to diet, rest, and exercise, all of which should be supervised by a physician who gives this branch of medicine some special study. Thus cutting down by one-half on bread, butter, potatoes, sugar, pastry and all liquids, walking for half an hour, and cutting one hour off the sleeping or resting time each day would show a loss of 10 pounds a month in one with excessive overweight and of five pounds in one of moderate overweight.

However as diet is the great standby in increasing and decreasing weight, suggestions for reducing should come from those who have made dietetics a matter of scientific study. Further, what might make a suitable reducing diet for an overweight woman who spent many hours daily on chairs or in automobiles, might not be sufficient to maintain the strength of one who did the work in a medium size or large house. Anyone who does real work or takes real exercise needs meat, eggs, or fish once or even twice a day.

Some years ago Drs. L. H. Newburgh and Margaret W. Johnston in the Journal of the American Dietetic Association reminded us that body weight is resultant from two factors, gain or loss of tissue and gain or loss of water. They state that a person may maintain the same weight even on a reduced diet for some days, which of course is a matter of surprise and regret to many who are eating much less food than usual. Thus there may be no loss of weight on the reduced diet for as long as two weeks, after which weight is lost rapidly for a certain period of time.

The point then should be remembered that loss of weight may not occur for days or even weeks on a reduced diet, and there should therefore be no further reduction of food, even if no weight is being lost, until a period of as long as 10 days has passed.

Simultaneously with the Cavalier's flight, a Pan-American Sikorsky clipper made the west-east flight to Bermuda.

Ohio Will Have a "Little Ruhr"

A new "Little Ruhr" is rising seven miles up the Cuyahoga river from Cleveland, Ohio, which will mark it as America's meeting grounds for iron ore and coal. ## BREAKS NARCOTIC RING

Miss Joyce McAllister, twenty-seven-year-old former Santa Barbara, Calif., college student, whose under-cover detective work is credited with leading to the arrest of seven Chinese and a veteran federal agent in raids on night clubs in the Chinese quarter of Reno, Nev. ## Mariner Plans Sea Cruise in Tub

Ernest Biegajski of Buffalo, N. Y., evidently believes in safety first, for he has put on a life preserver before hoisting sail and moving out into Lake Erie in his remodeled pickle barrel schooner in which he plans to go to Europe this summer if present experiments prove successful. This is the second such boat he has built with his soldier's bonus money. The 1936 model leaked so badly that only the timely arrival of the coast guard prevented its maiden voyage from turning into a tragedy.

Sons of Diamond Daddies Good at Baseball

These four stalwarts of the University of Florida baseball team ought to be pretty good at the national pastime—if there is anything in the theory of heredity. All are sons of famous major league fathers, whose names were household words a few years ago. Left to right are Ed Manning, twenty, son of Ed Manning, former pitcher for the St. Louis Browns; Lee Meadows, Jr., nineteen, son of Lee Meadows, old Pittsburgh Pirates mound ace; Jimmy Shotton, seventeen, son of Bert Shotton, a former St. Louis Cardinal, and Wilbur White, nineteen, whose father once played third for the Chicago White Sox.

Dictator Once Dependent on Charity

YOU may not agree with the principles advanced by Adolf Hitler, or you may be an enthusiastic admirer of his. In either case you will be interested in looking at the man and his life to see what lesson we may learn. Perhaps the greatest inspiration to be drawn from the German dictator's life is a word of encouragement for those whose early lives may seem failures.

Adolf Hitler was born on the Bavarian frontier of Germany in 1889, the son of a customs official who had political ambitions for him. The boy developed a desire to be an artist. His father opposed him, so Adolf refused to study in school. He was the despair of his father and mother. When he was eighteen, he went to Vienna and applied for admission to the Academy of Art. His art was too poor to qualify and they directed him to the architectural school, but his loafing in early grades made it impossible for him to pass entrance requirements there.

For three years he slept in a cheap men's hotel in Vienna, getting his meals at a monastery and occasionally begging from passers-by. In the winter he shoveled snow to make a living. Whenever he earned a few kronen, he stopped work and went to some cheap cafe to deliver political speeches. He painted poor water colors which a friend peddled for him, he painted picture postcards, and when hungry enough was a house painter. During the war he was a corporal.

Here was a man in his thirties who had never shown any real promise in anything he did. Then, Adolf Hitler formed an ideal of government.

FATHER DIVINE WAS A HEDGE TRIMMER

WHAT are the limits of human credulity? To what heights may not the spell-binding orator rise? For thousands of simple blacks in that section of upper New York city known as Harlem, the answer to those questions is "God! Only God is the Limit!" For George Baker, once a Baltimore hedge trimmer and dock worker, who is reported to have served 60 days on a chain gang, is the negro who claims to be God.

Early records of his life have not been found and George Baker, who now calls himself Father Divine or God, will not talk. It is known that he came from the South, and that he worked at odd jobs in Baltimore in 1930. Starting as a Sunday School teacher, he established a new cult, and moved to New York with a few followers who believed him to be God. New disciples joined him and were provided with food and lodging, while he found jobs for them and collected all their earnings. In 1919, he changed his name to Father Divine (God) and conferred the title of Angels on all who turned their possessions over to him. Thousands of dollars became his in return for new, more glamorous names, such as Ruth Rachel, Hozanna Love, and Frank Incense. Today Father Divine's Angels number about 1,000 and there are 3,000 "Children" or followers who retain some of their possessions, living in apartment houses and flats of Harlem. Heaven is his headquarters, where meals are served and where about 75 Angels sleep. He has established Extension Heavens now in Bridgeport, Jersey City, Newark, and Baltimore; and he owns profit-making stores and shops throughout Harlem. It has been estimated that his income is $10,000 per week, but no property is held in his own name.

Don't Irritate Gas Bloating

If you want to really GET RID OF GAS and terrible bloating, don't expect to do it by just doctoring your stomach with harsh, irritating alkalies and "gas tablets." Most GAS is lodged in the stomach and upper intestine and is due to old poisonous matter in the constipated bowels that are loaded with life-causing bacteria. If your constipation is of long standing, enormous quantities of dangerous bacteria accumulate. Then your digestion is upset. GAS often presses heart and lungs, making life miserable. You can't eat or sleep. Your head aches. Your back aches. Your complexion is sallow and pimply. Your breath is foul. You are a sick, groggy, wretched, unhappy person. YOUR SYSTEM IS POISONED. Thousands of bacteria have found in Adierika the quick, scientific way to rid their systems of harmful bacteria. Adierika rid you of gas and cleans out poisons from the bowels and upper and lower bowels. Give your bowels a REAL cleansing with Adierika. Get rid of GAS. Adierika does not gripe—is not habit forming. At all Leading Druggists.

Watch Your Kidneys!

Help Them Cleanse the Blood of Harmful Body Waste Your kidneys are constantly filtering waste matter from the blood stream. But kidneys sometimes lag in their work—do not act as Nature intended. If to remove impurities that, if retained, may poison the system and upset the whole body machinery. Symptoms may be nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—a swelling of nervous anxiety and loss of pep and strength. Other signs of kidney or bladder disorder may be burning, scanty or too frequent urination. There should be no doubt that prompt treatment is wiser than neglect. Use Doan's Pills. Even if Dice Are Not Loaded, You'll Lose in the Long Run

Gambling Odds Figured Out by Mathematician

Princeton, N. J.—Prof. John Von Neumann, Institute for Advanced Study mathematician, even applies his science to the gambling table.

He has warned Princeton students in a lecture that it is impossible to win at dice over long periods, whether the "ivories" are loaded or not.

The magic "seven-eleven" combination is by far the most frequent thrown, he said, but if it doesn't turn up on the first cast, the chances are reversed, and the stakes are as good as lost.

"That leaves a .490 winning average, so the game is not fair," he declared.

"Stone-paper-scissors," a form of gambling that originated among bored convicts and is as old as chess, is Prof. Von Neumann's specialty. This well-known game is won by making each play the same number of times, but at random, and your opponent will lose in the long run.

He termed the intellectual pursuit of chess to be merely a game of chance, and said that "white," which has the first move, can always win, although "if black" is wise to the theory, he can play defensively and tie "white."

Two Kinds of Games. Prof. Von Neumann divided "games of chance" into two categories: those like dice where explicit hazards are introduced by rules, and those like chess, poker, and "stone-paper-scissors," where chance is introduced by what the opponent does.

"In the latter type intellectual reasoning is sometimes needed, while in the former no decision is required except whether to bet," he pointed out.

In the case of dice, he showed that since 7 can be thrown in six ways and 11 in two, while 2, 3, and 12 result from only one or two combinations, the conditions are favorable to win on the first throw. But if "seven-eleven" is missed, repetition of the first throw is unlikely, and the even is now working against the player. The net effect is against the player.

In poker, which he had to simplify considerably to be able to analyze, Prof. Von Neumann stated that chances are one out of 300,000,000 to obtain any certain combination of five cards.

Earthen Jugs Were Coffins for Women of Ancient Russia

Baku, U. S. S. R.—Finding a cemetery in which women, in all their finery, were thrust into huge jug coffins when they died almost two thousand years ago, is reported on the Kura river by workers building a dam.

That earthen jugs served as coffins sometimes in this far southern region of Russia, has been known. But the new discovery reveals what the ancient people and their burial rites were really like, reports Tass.

It is now believed that the jug coffins were for women only, or almost entirely so. Men were simply buried in the ground with no shelter. The cemetery dates from the first to third centuries of the Christian era.

One Girl's Fine Garb. One young girl found in a jug was wearing red leather shoes and belt, cloth trousers clasped at the ankle with bronze anklets, a skirt and blouse and a load of beads around her neck and bracelet on her wrists. Dishes for food were in the jug, and small clay cups and saucers believed to be toys for playing house were put in the jug with her.

The jugs, over 40 inches high, were closed with a large stone stopper and laid horizontally in the ground.

Ants Help to Build Roads in Algeria

Algiers.—On the French African motor road, one of the longest in the world, the ingenuity of construction engineers is being combined with the industrious nature of the ant.

Ant hills 10 feet high and scattered freely through that region contain a hard gritty material which makes an excellent road surface. Only a part of each hill is dug away for the road, experience having shown that the ants will then quickly replace the used material.

Writing Invented in Sumeria to Handle Priests' Business

Earliest Examples Are Office Files

By EMILY C. DAVIS
WHEN man could no longer do without writing, he invented it. Imagine priests in a Mesopotamian city in a busy temple, taking in herds of sheep as offerings, buying lands for the temple estates, making loans to hard-up devotees who can't afford to pay just now.

It is a science of big business in its earliest form, in the southern Tigris-Euphrates valley over 3,000 years before Christ. The growing problem of handling so much wealth has the temple staff dizzy remembering who paid, how much, what is promised, what is due—

Writing has to be invented. And so, it is.

Archaeologists have been able to trace writing back to its start in these cities of Sumerian people in southern Mesopotamia, because buried in the ruins are hard, baked clay bricks inscribed with temple accounts. The oldest writing preserved in the world is baked into the oldest and crudest of these tablets of clay.

Other Early Systems Lost. Whether these Sumerians were the world's first literate people may never be known. Other ancient peoples who had writing systems apparently began by using less durable writing materials, and therefore their early efforts have not survived.

Writing was a city man's invention, in Sumeria. It was the development of city life that brought so much complicated finance to the temples.

That the invention of writing was probably inspired everywhere by the peculiar, practical needs of urban economy, is the view taken by Dr. V. Gordon Child, professor of prehistoric archaeology at the University of Edinburgh.

It is no accident, he explains, that the world's oldest writings turn out to be bookkeeping accounts and dictionaries. The accounts are office files. The dictionaries are school-books used in teaching young scribes to write. And if Egypt's earliest writing had been preserved, it would, he believes, be of some such severely practical nature.

Curb Service for Banks Provided by New Invention

Washington.—Curb service by banks, department stores and other places of business, whereby customers would pull up in their cars, make their deposits or purchases without taking a single step out of the car and without the attendant stepping out of the building, is described in a patent granted here to W. E. Lindsay of Denver, Colo.

It works this way: You pull up along side a gasoline-pump-like stand on the curb much as you would to get gas for the car. The stand is provided with a small door at car window level. There is also a telephone, or a microphone and loud speaker. Between the stand and the bank or store building, a tunnel or conduit extends underneath the sidewalk.

Attendant's Peephole. From a special window inside the building the attendant can observe and identify the people pulling up to the stand. By means of the telephone, he can talk with the customer. A conveyor runs from the stand through this tunnel to the attendant's desk.

When you pull up, you pick up the phone and tell the attendant what you want. Suppose it is to make a deposit. When he identifies you, he presses a button and the door of the stand opens up. Into a box carried by the conveyor you now place your check, money, deposit slip or passbook.

Road Magnets Reap Curious Metal Crop

Washington.—Magnetic road sweepers or "nail pickers" used on gravel roads pick up a curious assortment of potential puncture makers, and save the motorist a considerable sum of tire expense.

But in addition to saving money and time, this type of maintenance is considered an important safety measure. These electro-magnets will draw a nail through about three inches of loose dirt, and pick up as much as 12 pounds of metal per mile.

Here is what one pound of metal is reported to have contained after the magnet had passed over a North Dakota highway: 102 large nails, 187 small nails, 30 tacks, 23 pieces of tin, 8 brads, 11 bottle caps, 5 washers, 38 pieces of wire, 2 screws, 5 fasteners, 1 needle, 1 hairpin, 1 bolt and 1 razor blade.

FRIED CHICKEN PRIME FAVORITE

Method of Preparation Varies in Different Sections.

By EDITH M. BARBER

FRIED chicken! The very words bring water to the mouth. The battle, however, in regard to the methods of its preparation continues to rage. Shall it be dipped in flour crumbs or batter, or shall it be fried in its natural state? Should butter or lard or a mixture of both be used? Shall much or little fat be used in the frying? What is the difference among the terms Southern, Virginia and Maryland fried chicken? How does Kentucky prepare it?

While fried chicken is certainly a specialty in every state, the South seems to have been given the palm, so let's see how Southerners describe their methods of cookery. In "Eat, Drink and Be Merry in Maryland," by Frederick P. Steff, I find two different recipes under the term Maryland. In one, the chicken is rubbed with salt, pepper and flour; in the other it is dipped in milk and then in flour. In one it is fried in hot fat to half cover; in the other it is fried in butter and salt pork.

In the book "Old Southern Recipes," by Mary D. Pretlow of Virginia, the chicken is rubbed with salt, pepper and flour and fried in lard to half cover. In the "Savannah Cook Book" by Harriet Ross Colquitt, we are directed to season, dredge with flour and fry in deep, very hot fat. Emma Speed Sampson, who says she started in Kentucky but hopes to end in Virginia, gives two recipes. In one, the chicken must be dipped in milk and then in flour and fried in a small amount of lard; in the other, it is prepared in the same way and cooked slowly in deep hot fat. In the "Blue Grass Cook Book" by Minnie C. Fox, the directions tell us that the chicken must be dredged in seasoning and flour and cooked slowly in equal parts of butter and lard. In "Two Hundred Years of Charleston Cooking," the recipe tells us to season the chicken with lemon juice, salt and pepper, then to dip it in a mixture made by beating two eggs with a tablespoon of milk. It should be fried in plenty of fat until brown, then covered and cooked slowly.

Apparently the secrets of preparing really fine fried chicken lie first of all in the selection of tender birds, as well as in the method of trying. If the chickens are older, a very little water may be added after they are brown. The pan may be covered and cooking continued until the meat is tender. This process is suggested in several Southern recipes. Instead, I sometimes place fried chicken in a casserole, add cream, cover tightly and finish cooking in the oven. Most of the cream will be absorbed and the final product will have a delicious rich flavor.

Chicken, Maryland. (From "Eat, Drink and Be Merry in Maryland," by Frederick P. Steff.) Take half spring chicken and season, rub over with flour, then immerse in beaten eggs. Heat some clarified butter in a saucepan, fry the chicken in it very slowly to cook and attain a fine color; then finish cooking in a slack oven for ten minutes. Dress the chicken with cream sauce and garnish the top with small corn fritters and slices of broiled bacon. Decorate the legs with paper frills.

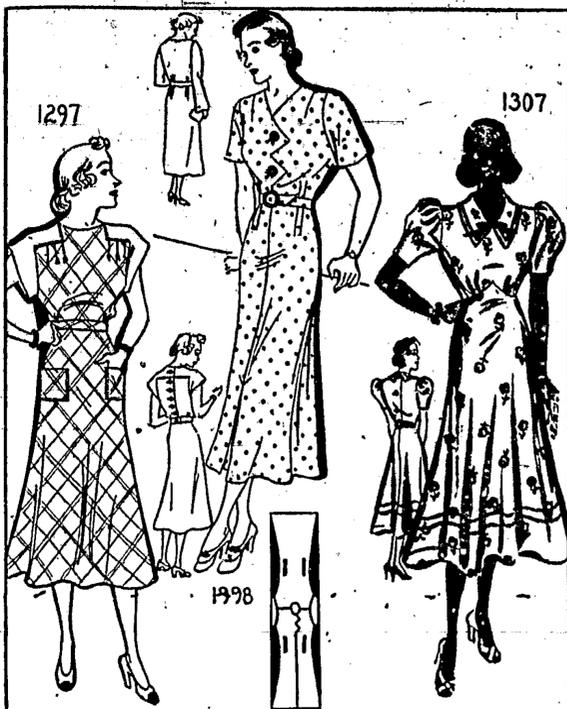

Blue Grass Fried Chicken. (From the "Blue Grass Cook Book," by Minnie C. Fox.) Prepare young chicken and sprinkle with salt and lay on ice twelve hours before cooking. Cut the chicken in pieces and dredge with flour and drop in hot, boiling lard and butter—equal parts—salt and pepper and cover tightly and cook rather slowly. If it cooks too quickly, it will burn. Cook both sides to a rich brown. Remove chicken and make a gravy by adding milk, flour, butter, salt and pepper. Cook until thick and serve in a separate bowl.

Georgia Fried Chicken. (From "The Savannah Cook Book," by Harriet Ross Colquitt.) Cut up the chicken, sprinkle with salt and pepper, dredge with flour and fry in deep and very hot fat. Pour off most of the fat in which the chicken has been fried, leaving a little in the pan. To this add a large tablespoon of flour and cook, stirring it constantly, until a golden brown. Season with salt and pepper, add one half cup of cream, heat thoroughly and pour over chicken.

Casserole of Chicken
1 chicken (4 pounds)
2 teaspoons salt
Pepper
Flour
6 tablespoons butter
1 cup water
2 tablespoons chopped celery
2 teaspoons chopped onion
1/2 cup mushrooms
1/2 cup cream

Wash the chicken and cut into pieces for serving. Sprinkle with salt and pepper. Roll each side in flour. Saute in butter—until well browned on both sides. Place in a buttered casserole. Add water, the celery, onion and mushrooms. Cover and cook until tender, one to two hours, in a moderate oven 350 degrees Fahrenheit. Remove the cover and add cream. Cover and cook another five or ten minutes.

Correct Vacation Toggery

VACATIONING they will go—Vera, Mom and Flo. And they will enjoy themselves the more because their wardrobes after Sew-Your-Own are just exactly right.

Mother in this model will be mistaken for daughter many a time because her design and dots are so very youthful. She will have various frocks in various materials developed on this theme.

Dates for Dancing. Vera, to the right, has a date for dancing and when her escort admiringly effuses some such nonsense as, "That gown must have come on the last boat from Paris" she will toss her dark head and say, "No foreign frocks for me. I Sew-My-Own." Her dress of soft flowered material with demure braid at the neck and hem almost makes a sweet old-fashioned girl of her, but the tailored collar and trim cut label her the sophisticated, young thing that she really is.

Only a snappy sophomore can fully appreciate just how smart are those buttons down the back of the model to the left. Her yoke and neckline are "Oh, so new."
