City Demands Cheaper Light and Power Rates

Minutes of special meeting of Board of Trustees held at City Hall June 14, 1937, at 7:30 P. M. Members present: F. E. Richard, Mayor; A. J. Rolland, Andy Padilla, Tennis Bigelow and John W. Harkey, members; Morgan Lovelace, Clerk. Absent: None.

Minutes of last meeting were read and approved.

Motion by Tennis Bigelow and seconded by Andy Padilla that Town Clerk be instructed to write a letter of protest to the New Mexico Light and Power Co., in regard to high rates charged, inadequate service etc. Motion carried. The letter follows:

June 15, 1937

New Mexico Light & Power Co., Carrizozo, New Mexico.

Gentlemen:

During the years of your operation, under your franchise, to furnish electricity for power and light to the Village, there has come to each of us severally, many protests, in regard to your very high rates, poor distribution of current and lack of proper reserve unit or units to insure uninterrupted continuance of your service.

We are sure that your rates, comparatively speaking, are the highest in the State and probably in the nation.

We feel also, that, operating as you are with one unit of power, that sooner or later, we shall be left without electric current or either light or power, which in the past, has resulted in very serious inconvenience and often in financial loss.

Now when meeting of citizens of the community in public protest at your rates etc., as enumerated before, pass the protest on to us for official action, it seems that it is our duty to move as well as we may, to the end that relief may be had by the people.

Therefore, Gentlemen, we are constrained to make this demand upon you, that within a period of thirty (30) days, you advise us in writing, what steps if any, you intend to take, toward alleviation of an intolerable condition and that, such steps shall have been brought to a completed reality in a period of six (6) months, otherwise the Village government will be compelled to employ whatever means that it may, within the law, to the end that reasonable and satisfactory electric current may be supplied to our Village.

Beguiling Silk Sheers This Summer

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

YARDS and yards and yards of entrancing silk sheers will go floating and billowing through the evening mode this summer. Alry-fairy, vaporous, frothy and transparent tulle, nets, organzas, chiffons, marquisettes, mousseline de soles and other as filmy fabrics have an importance this season such as they have not achieved in years.

The vast yardage that goes into the making of the new romantic full-skirted dance frocks is almost unbelievable. Certain Paris dressmakers are using as much as forty yards for a single gown—the type (slim-bodied and voluminous skirt over stiff petticoats) that "us moderns" regarded as belonging to quaint century-past scenes, but scarcely expected to see revived in our own day and generation. Yet here they are dancing before your very eyes into the current style picture.

The skirts of these picturesque gowns vary, from floor-touching to the very new ballerino type. Nothing in the way of a dance frock so startled the world of fashion this season as the appearance of the waltz frock which Schiaparelli brought forth. Now that we are getting used to the idea, this sourette silhouette which caused such a sensation at the openings is developing into a big vogue among the younger dancing set. The frock centered in the group illustrated plays up the new favorite. It is made of white mousseline de soie exquisitely detailed with tiny turks on the waist and wee buttons that fasten at the back.

Some of the more informal waltz frocks are often of printed silk with perhaps shirred fullness at the waistline like a girlish or with flaring pleats in the peasant skirt. The bodice is neat and slim at the waist.

with gemure square neckline in front and cunning short puff sleeves.

Not that all party dresses are full skirted, but the fragile sheers and gay silk prints certainly do make up beautifully in full-skirted versions.

The gown to the right and to the left in the picture demonstrates the effectiveness of sheer material for the evening mode. The lovely summery redingote model shows up the exquisiteness of transparent materials to a nicety. It is designed of two tones of chiffon—green over yellow, with ties at the neckline and back waistline. A brown orchid corsage adds the final accent to an artful color study.

If there is one type of dress that is running away with the honors more so than the redingote styles it is the bolero costume. Not only are the redingote and the bolero important daytime features but they are just as significant throughout the evening mode. Here, to the left in the picture, is a lovely bolero dress for summer night, moonlight dancing under the stars. White silk marquisette is the chosen medium for this pretty ensemble. Large floral appliques on the bolero and the skirt add color glory to the scene.

Silk sheers featured for evening gowns are also suggested in dark colors, the latest being bold and glamorous plaid transparencies or stripes if you prefer. Triple sheers are also shown in luscious plain colors or in exotic prints. Some of the silk marquisettes are flock-dotted or embroidered.

Clever and ornate trimmings that accent the width of swirling hemlines include bands of contrasting colors, full stiff ruchings, borders of delicate lace, sprays of natural-looking flowers positioned effectively, also scalloped or plicated edges.

COSTUME ACCENTS

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

It's a daisy, she is a daisy—getting our pronouns somewhat confused—but perhaps it would be better to study this picture of a modish young miss and figure it out for yourself. The soft white petals with fluffy yellow gold centers of the most American of flowers, form the crown of a charming hat by Jean King. A rough natural straw braid of circular weave is the brim, and the hat is worn tilted slightly over one eye. A Victorian scroll monocraft pin beautifully wrought in gold, tunes to the glinting gold high-lights in the straw of the hat as it clasps a sweetly feminine jabot made of the faintest of dainty val edging. The secret that the young woman pictured would tell you is that carefully selected flattering accessories play a big part in the fine art of dress.

Colorful Corset

The color contagion has spread to corsets and there is a youthful corsetette available in all the better stores which may be ordered dyed in any one of a dozen colors to match your evening gown or your new suit.

GRADUATES SHOULD THINK OF GLOVES

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

Gloves have always been a mark of sophistication. If this year's crop of sweet girl graduates realized that, there would be a rush for the glove counter. Most of the time, we are so concerned over the big items, like the dress, that we forget about the things that go with, those little tell-tale touches.

Most schools require a simple, youthful white dress. The majority of these are the short-sleeved, garden-party variety. In the prep and high schools, they are almost informal evening dresses. Such formality with no gloves? Your hands will look much prettier when accepting your diploma if they are well gloved in snow-white glace kid. There is such a variety of little short formal gloves in the shops that you should have fun choosing the pair that particularly suits your dress.

And don't forget gloves for the spring proms. It's not so much the basic costume as the finishing that makes a well-dressed woman. Gloves are indispensable to even the most divine evening dress. Nude hands are fast fading out of the picture. You must look feminine and romantic these days. And don't you feel a lot more dressed up when you wear gloves? You can indulge your taste for long ones or very short ones as both are correct.

Smart Coats

The fitted, slightly flared coat is ace-high in chic and will be seen in numbers. Redingotes are a fashion favorite. Short coats have come to town, too, pruned from last year's full swagger lines to a straighter box cut.

Overalls Go Wading

Summer overalls have cuffs that can be turned up for wading in the surf. The newest adaptation of last year's popular fashion barely reaches the knee, and is very baggy. The characteristic overall straps remain the same.

Duke and Wally Married

By England's Rebel Parson

"I BECAME the hand of God and am carrying out God's will," the Rev. R. Anderson Jardine, the "poor man's parson," told his Darlington congregation at Durham, England, upon his return from Chateau de Cande, in Monts, France. There he had married Edward, duke of Windsor, and Mrs. Wallis Warfield, in the religious ceremony of the Church of England, despite the dictum of the church that the history-making couple be denied the rites. Married earlier in the same day in a civil ceremony performed by the mayor of Monts, the Duke and "Wally" left on their honeymoon and are now at Wasserleoburg castle in lower Austria.

Sixteen principal guests were present in the chateau when Mayor Mercier, pronouncing the English names with difficulty, and speaking in French, performed the civil ceremony and pronounced the duke and Wallis man and wife. Vicar Jardine, who had volunteered his services, recited the solemn religious rites as prescribed by the church, the duke placed the ring on the duchess' fourth finger, and they knelt on white silk cushions while the minister prayed. Throughout the entire service the famous organist, Marcel Dupre, played softly. The duchess, who cannot be called "her royal highness," wore a gown of Wallis blue and the correspondents privileged to be present were agreed that she was a beautiful, gracious and serene woman. The Chateau de Cande, owned by Mr. and Mrs. Charles Bedaux of New York, was lavishly decorated with flowers. Wedding presents were numerous, of course, and some of the richest were sent by members of the British royal family.

Downing Street, determined that the popularity of the former king, heightened by the pathos of his role of "under dog," should not damage the prestige of the Crown, and the church, asked newspapers to clamp down on publicity concerning the rebel vicar. The postmaster general ordered all stamps bearing the likeness of Edward destroyed. Not a foot of the special films or newsreels taken at Monts will be permitted to show in the United Kingdom.

Long-Lost Airliner Found on Utah Mountainside

ON December 15, 1926, Pilot S. J. Samsco, operating a Western Air Express liner from Los Angeles to Salt Lake City, with four passengers, co-pilot and stewardess aboard, reported by his radio to the caretaker of the airport at Milford, Utah, and asked that his position be checked. His voice was never again heard. Now after nearly six months the wreckage of the airplane has been found high in the Wasatch mountains, 25 miles southeast of Salt Lake City and 35 miles off the regular airline course. So shattered was the plane that the largest single piece of debris was a part of a propeller. Bodies of all aboard were buried 25 to 50 feet in the drifts of snow.

With a rich jewelry shipment reported to have been aboard the ship, a guard was placed around the wreckage and given orders to "shoot on sight" until the wreck should be recovered; four souvenir-hunters were shot at three times. Ronald Dyche, of the national forest service, who aided in the long search, revealed how close the air travelers came to escaping death. "If they had just been flying 25 feet higher," he said, "they might have made it over the peak and possibly reached safety."

Four men, natives of the mountainous region, accidentally discovered the lost plane; they announced that they would seek to share a $1,000 reward posted by Western Air Express.

Congress May Be at It Until Winter's Snow Files

READING the election returns of an overwhelming Democratic landslide last November, Charles Michelson, publicity director of the Democratic national committee, said: "We will regret this." The great party majorities in both houses now show signs of splitting into regional and economic blocs, which is exactly what he was afraid of. Biggest wedge in forcing the split among the party ranks was, of course, the President's bill for the reorganization of the Supreme court. This led a long list of bills, many of them expected to evoke heated controversies in congress, which threatened to postpone adjournment to mid-winter. Indeed, it was believed by some that if part of the program were not postponed, this session would run continuously into the next, beginning in January.

Besides the Court bill, there are to be acted upon measures for the establishment of wage and hour standards for interstate industries, the curtailment of tax dodging, reorganization of the executive branch of the government, helping farm tenants, conservation of soil, water power resources and housing.

Congress, Under Pressure, Passes Work Relief Bill

ADMINISTRATION leaders, from the President down, "turned the heat" on the rebellious members of the house, and the latter sullenly gave in and passed the billion and a half dollar work relief bill about as Mr. Roosevelt and Harry Hopkins wanted it. One after another the restrictive amendments earmarking $505,000,000 of the total for projects of a solid type, flood control and highways, which had been adopted in committee of the whole, were called up again and voted down by substantial majorities. The final vote by which the measure was sent on to the senate was 323 to 44.

Tax-Dodging Investigated by Congressional Body

TAX dodging by wealthy men and women, excoriated by President Roosevelt in a special message, is going to be investigated speedily by a joint committee of congress. The resolution for the inquiry was introduced in the senate by Senator Pat Harrison of Mississippi, chairman of the finance committee; and in the house by Robert L. Doughton of North Carolina, chairman of the ways and means committee. The investigation is designed both to focus public attention on the extent of the alleged tax evasion and to provide congress with information necessary for the drafting of corrective legislation.

Jean Harlow, Blond Actress, Dies at 26

JEAN HARLOW, one of the most glamorous characters in life to millions of Americans, died of uremic poisoning in Hollywood. The impetuous actress who started the platinum blonde craze was only twenty-six, but she had known tragedy. Born Harlean Carpenter in Kansas City, she came to the movie capital in 1927. She had been twice divorced and once widowed. Her second husband, Paul Bern, film executive, shot and killed himself two months after their wedding. At the time of her death she was being seen frequently in the company of suave William Powell.

Il Duce Shows von Blomberg His Mediterranean Strength

CERTAIN British and French newspapers of late have seen fit to "pooh-pooh" the naval strength of Il Duce in the Mediterranean. It is not altogether impossible that this depreciation may have made Adolf Hitler a little uneasy about his alliance with the Italians. So Premier Mussolini invited Field Marshal Werner von Blomberg down to the "blue southern ocean to see for himself."

More than 70 submarines were massed as the feature of a mock combat off Naples. The grand fleet of 150 warships summoned for the maneuvers went through their exercises at a minimum speed of 30 miles an hour. The German registered delight continually as Il Duce pointed out to him every phase of the sham battle. Italian officers boasted: "Only Fascist Italy can mobilize so many underwater craft at a moment's notice."

The day before, Galeazzo Ciano, Italy's foreign minister, had informed the British ambassador, Sir Eric Drummond, that Italy accepted in principle all points in the British proposals to assure the safety of international naval patrols off Spain. It was understood that the Nazis had tendered the same approval.

The three main points of the British proposal were: That both Spanish belligerents be required to give formal solemn assurances that they will respect international patrol ships; that safety zones for patrol ships be established at certain specified ports of the two belligerent parties; and that the four naval powers engaged in patrol duties consult each other on measures to be taken if any of their patrol ships should be attacked. The Italians and Nazis wanted the third point to permit any ship attacked to retaliate at once. But they weren't insistent.

Clothes That Look the Part

NOW, Milady, that you've seen all three, which will you choose, the lovely dance frock, an easy-to-sew runabout model, or a slick all around the clock dress to flatter your every mood and moment? It's a personal question but one you'll surely want to toy with since Sew-Your-Own makes the answer so easy.

Any Time After 8:30

The romantic fashion at the left will make memorable occasions of your summer parties as only a lovely appearance can. Its two pieces are young, cool and streamlined. For the Miss whose interest centers about matinee goings-on, there's a dashing shorter style—it differs only in length, and either will be picturesque in marquisette, dimity, or organdie.

A Tip for Tea Time

When you're keeping up with the Joneses, wear this stylish all occasion dress. It will do great things for you socially, and, figuratively speaking, it will cut inches from those high spots and make you feel pounds lighter. Think of what that means to chic and comfort when things get hot out your way. Durk sheer crepe is the material that lends to p charm to this creation.

Fore and Aft

Easy to sew and always ready to go is this new spectator frock for young women and those who want to turn back the clock. With this number handy there's no need to pause for reflection about what to wear. And that holds good whether you're bound for sports, business, or society. It is becoming as a sun tan, as simple to sew as a dress can be, and a cinch to launder. Why not make a carbon copy for the morning after? Remember summer chic depends upon the company your wardrobe keeps. Be sure it's amply supplied with cool convenient Sew-Your-Owns!

BEAUTY'S DAUGHTER -By- KATHLEEN NORRIS

SYNOPSIS

Victoria Herrendeen, a vivacious little girl, had been too young to feel the shock that came when her father, Keith Herrendeen, lost his fortune. A gentle, unobtrusive soul, he is now employed as an obscure chemist in San Francisco, at a meager salary. His wife, Magda, cannot adjust herself to the change. She is a beautiful woman, fond of pleasure and a magnet for men's attention. Magda and Victoria have been down at a summer resort and Keith joins them for the week-end. Magda leaves for a bridge party, excusing herself for being such a "runaway." Later that night Victoria is grief-stricken when she hears her parents quarreling. The Herrendeens return to their small San Francisco apartment. Keith does not approve of Magda's mad social life and they quarrel frequently. Magda receives flowers and a diamond from Ferdie Manners, a wealthy man from Argentina whom she had met less than a week before. Manners arrives a few hours later. Magda shows him a valuable Chinese shawl that has been in the Herrendeen family for many years. Vic is shocked when she learns her mother had contemplated selling it. Magda tells Manners a dealer had offered her $300 for the shawl. Magda takes Victoria to Nevada to visit a woman friend who has a daughter named Catherine. There she tells her she is going to get a divorce. Victoria soon is in boarding school with her friend Catherine. Magda marries Manners and they spend two years in Argentina.

Victoria spent a somewhat bewildered yet happy Easter vacation there, exploring all the garden paths and all the big rooms. She came back to California at another Easter time, eighteen years old, and ready to graduate with her class. Her mother met her in New York, and they made the transcontinental trip together.

Ten weeks later Victoria's handsome bags were packed again, and she went down to the Chalmers place for the summer.

The beautiful Chalmers house was open to summer breezes and filled with summer flowers; the Chinese butler, discreet in his purple and blue silks, motioned her upstairs. Another Oriental took her bags; her mother's maid, who had crossed the continent with them a few weeks before, met her at the top of the stairs. Vic asked to see her mother. Magda was in her magnificent bedroom, a large airy apartment flanked by an enormous bath, by a complete dressing room, by an awninged upper balcony.

Victoria found her mother stretched on a couch by a window; she was not reading the magazine she held, and her eyes were absent and reddened a little from recent tears. At the sight of the girl she began to cry again, and they clasped each other closely.

"My darling, you're home at last! If you knew—if you knew how I've wanted you!" Magda sobbed. She instantly regained control of herself and smiled with trembling lips, straightening the collar of Victoria's blouse as the girl knelt beside her. "Was it all wonderful?" she said. "It was perfect. And at the end we all cried because we weren't all going to be back in September!" Victoria laughed. "But, Mother dearest, you're not well?"

"I've been feeling—wretchedly. Something," Mrs. Manners said hesitantly—"something rather horrid happened last night, and Ferdie was arrested." Her eyes filled again, she straightened the collar again. "It was all rather horrid, and it'll all be forgotten this time next week," she said cheerfully. "So let's not talk about it!"

"Arrested?" Victoria echoed, aghast. "Why—what happened?" "There was an accident. I don't know just what happened," Magda said, her eyes watering. "It was all so horrible! He had been drinking, of course, and he was driving May Finesse home—they were both in the car asleep, right near where the smash was."

"Who were?" "If it had been anyone but May!" Magda sighed. "However, they say the poor fellow'll get well, and Ferdie can stand the damages. He was all smashed up, the man they ran into, and it's a miracle they weren't all killed. But if he'd been with anyone but May!"

"Who's she?" "Oh, she's a cheap little idiot I used to know years ago—May Smith; she married Tony Feeney and divorced him and spent a few weeks in Paris, so now she's 'Madame Finesse,' and she can hardly remember an English word!"

"And does Ferdie like her?" Magda looked at her daughter ruminatively, answered mildly. "Rather. And of course she's making passes at Ferdie."

"Oh?" Vicky said. "It was the old atmosphere again." "Or rather, at the Manners money, which is very stupid for me," Magda ended the subject cheerfully. "Stupid, that's what it is, for Ferdie'd never look at anyone like May! And now tell me more about today—did you say Grace Peacock was there?" "She's Margery King's mother." "I know she is, and I know she went all over Europe trying to get a priest to marry her to Joe Peacock, and couldn't." "Margery's nice," Vicky said slowly. "And you're adorable, only you have those Herrendeen eyes that you must remember to keep open," Magda said lovingly. "Did you get yourself some lovely things in Paris?"

"Some. Not expensive. But I got one—yes, I have two or three you'll love." "Have you had it waded, Vic?" "My hair? No, that's just brushing and setting."

Convent-bred, and with an instinctive distaste for Ferdie and for Ferdie's world, yet she knew that she must either meet him halfway with flattery and flirtatiousness, submit to kisses and embraces, concede him confidences and little harmless intimacies, or he would not like her at all. On the very first evening Magda told him good-naturedly that he must stop carrying on with her daughter.

The idle days began to go by. Victoria wondered what she was to do with the endless line of them that stretched ahead. For a week she enjoyed the new life lazily; then quite suddenly the whole thing began to pall.

"Magda" had her own beautiful suite of rooms; Ferdie had his. They lived entirely separated lives; sometimes they saw each other during the course of the day, and sometimes not. Quite often they dined at the same house, but the dinners were large, and Ferdie went to them before Magda did, explaining perhaps to a servant that he was meeting some friend first at the club for preliminary cocktails, and Magda always went late, in great state, in her beautiful car with her own driver. So that even then they had no moment together.

CHAPTER III

Her mother was not happy. Gallant and smiling, keeping a brave front to the world, Magda's soul was trying to feed itself on husks. What she told Victoria of the last few years was a story of disillusionment and loneliness, in a setting of luxury, travel, extravagance.

Blarritz had been dull, London dull, Paris dreadful, Rosatios down in Buenos Aires, where Ferdie's Spanish mother and Spanish sisters lived, had been insufferable.

"Perhaps I oughtn't to tell you this, Vicky. But the beginning of it all going wrong was of course that there were always other women. His wife was only to wear the jewels and be introduced to all the business friends, big German and Spanish cattle men, scores of them! The wife is a figurehead after the first year. If she has sons, and keeps the peace with his family, and forgives him everything, the man is pleased with her. If she gets temperamental, tries to assert herself, he is annoyed. But he goes his own way just the same."

Victoria looked thoughtful, her fine dark brows drawn together. "You oughtn't to stay here." "Where," Magda asked simply, "ought we go?"

The summer idled itself into autumn, and Victoria and Magda went down to the shore again. This time they had the smartest cottage at the lodge, and the beautiful Mrs. Manners was much admired and entertained. Mr. Manners, she explained to everyone, with a flash of white teeth, was fishing for steelhead up in the Klamath. Every hostess told Victoria's mother that she had a "wonderful man" for her as a dinner or bridge partner, but Victoria noticed that Magda found none of them really wonderful.

In October Ferdie went off on somebody's yacht for six weeks. He seemed a little guilty about it and gave Victoria a large check "to waste in New York." Later she suspected that his twinges of conscience were because the yachting trip that he had mentioned as involving only "a few fellows" actually included the owner's wife, another woman, and the ubiquitous May. Magda did not know that, or Victoria believed and hoped she did not.

They came back to California in December, and Ferdie came back for Christmas. Little was said of the feminine element on the yachting trip, and the three spent the holidays in a splendid suite in the Fairmont hotel up at the top of the hill with the green iron balconies of their breakfast room hanging over the fascinating jumble of masts and stacks and long pier roofs on the Embarcadero. Ferdie now said that he thought he must go back to Rosario for a few months. He thought Magda would be a great fool to go. It would be hot traveling; and she hated the place anyway.

An unusually long period of affection and placation resulted in April in Magda's decision to go with Ferdie to South America.

Victoria told her mother she was going to stay in California. Well—because Catherine and Mrs. Brock were going up to the lake again, and wanted her. Well—and because she really would like it—like it better. She might come down to Rosario later, all by herself. But— but really she would like it better this way, now.

Magda was gently hurt, puzzled, Ferdie smiled, but Vicky knew that he was furious. She held her ground, good-natured and affectionate, but not to be moved. In the end they left without her, and Vicky and Catherine went up to the lake.

A week later, when she and Catherine were sitting down on the "lakes" shore one day, Victoria told her the reason:

"Catherine, cross your heart and hope to die if you ever tell anyone this!" "I do," said Catherine solemnly, suiting the action to the word. "It was he," Victoria said. "Who? Your stepfather?" "My stepfather nothing!" Vicky echoed, repudiating the relationship. "He—Catherine, if you ever tell anyone this I'll never speak to you again!—he followed me into the sitting room one night—we'd all just come home from a movie—and kissed me and crushed me against him."

Victoria was at the dock, in the fine soft November fog, to see the big ship come in; the Empress of Panama was on time; at exactly one minute before eleven o'clock she drew up alongside, and all the excitement of landing began.

Then mother and daughter were in each other's arms, and Victoria was laughing. "And how's Ferdie?" "Ferdie—" Mrs. Manners' glance returned from the luggage and fixed itself upon Victoria. "Ferdie is—just the same—an ever."

"And when does he get here? Or does he go to Paris? You were so vague!" "No, here. When the Loughborough yacht does, whenever that is," Mrs. Manners said, in the same tone of pleasant indifference. "And now, is a car here, and did you reserve my rooms?" she demanded gayly, as the customs formalities were concluded and she could pick the Pekinese from Victoria's arms again and accompany her along the pier. "Don't tell me it's going to be freezing like this."

"It's been actually hot, until today. This is just fog," Victoria explained.

Maid, dog, parrot, bags, they got into a large waiting car at the Embarcadero. Mrs. Manners talking, as is the custom of returned travelers, of the amusing steward on the boat, the races at Havana, of everything unimportant and inconsequential. They were driven rapidly up the steep hills to the big hotel; everything going with the smoothness of custom; Victoria's mother had been arriving and departing in just this manner ever since her second marriage five years earlier.

Soon Victoria and her mother settled at luncheon beside the fire. "Well, this is fun!" said Magda then. "And now we can talk. You look so well, Vic, and you're really handsome. Really you are! What have you been doing with yourself, tell me everything, you got my wires?"

"You're the one with the news," she said smilingly. "Nothing has happened here. Miss Butler put me on night duty last night—only the second time, and I'm dead! I had breakfast at the hospital at seven, and had to clean up three bath-rooms, and stopped on my way downtown to leave my bag here."

"The hospital!" Magda echoed aghast, not hearing the rest. "You've been ill!"

Victoria's smile was reassuring. Her color was beginning to come back now, as she fell with vigor upon a three-inch steak, and there was revived light in her eyes.

"I'm in with Catherine," she explained. "Student nurses." Mrs. Manners sat back and regarded her with puzzled eyes.

"Mummy, you're such fun—it's such fun to be talking to you again, and it's the best food I ever tasted! But darling," Victoria pleaded, "I had to do something. I couldn't just take a room somewhere and wait for you. You were with Ferdie way down in South America, and I was absolutely on the loose."

"But you were with Anna and Catherine."

"Aunt Anna got a most flattering offer from a school in Cleveland. We couldn't go with her, and Kitty was going to be a nurse. So I went along to the hospital with her."

Bolting Sirup—If the saucepan is well buttered around the top sirup that is being boiled in it will not boil over the top of the pan.

Keeping Flowers Fresh—A couple tablespoons of sulfuric (not sulphuric) acid added to each pint of water encourages buds of cut flowers to continue growing and leaves and stems remain greener.

Brightening Piano Keys—Discolored piano keys can be brightened by rubbing with a soft cloth dampened with alcohol.

Tinting Milk—When small children refuse to drink their daily milk requirements, try tinting the milk with vegetable coloring.

For Blacking Stoves—An old shoe polish dauber is an excellent tool for blacking stoves.

Cabbage Cooked with Milk—Two cups milk, six cups shredded cabbage, one-third cup milk or cream, two tablespoons melted butter, two tablespoons flour, half teaspoon salt, heat milk and cook cabbage in it two minutes. Add milk or cream, flour blended with butter and salt. Cook for three or four minutes, stirring constantly.

Custard Sauce—One and one-half cups scalded milk, one-eighth teaspoon salt, one-quarter cup sugar, one-half teaspoon vanilla, yolks of two eggs. Beat eggs slightly, add sugar and salt; stir constantly while adding gradually the hot milk. Cook in double boiler till mixture thickens, chill and flavor.

Cooking Rhubarb—Rhubarb is disliked by some people because of its acidity. But this can be considerably reduced if the fruit is covered with cold water, brought to the boil and then strained before being stewed in the ordinary way. This method is only recommended to anybody who dislikes ordinary stewed rhubarb, as the healthful salts are lost when the fruit is cooked twice.

Storing Tea and Coffee—Home supplies of tea and coffee will keep their flavor longer, if stored in stone jars.

Cleaning Rubber Rollers—The rubber wringers on washing machines can be kept clean by washing with kerosene.

Congressional Reflections

Office of Senator Chavez, Washington, D. C., June 16.— Senator Chavez returning from New Mexico released the following statements:

"First on my list for immediate attention is relief for the farmers of the Middle Rio Grande Valley. I intend to have a conference immediately with Senator Hatch and Congressman Dempsey so that together we can present a plan to the directors of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation and go into the whole matter of relief. This action is vitally important and must be done immediately."

With reference to his statement made at Albuquerque concerning the threatened suits by the Middle Rio Grande Conservancy District against the farmers in the District, Senator Chavez said the following:

"My statement still stands. This is one fight in which I refuse to back down. I intend that the poor people in the area affected shall receive every protection that is humanly possible to obtain, and I know that in this I have the support of my colleagues in the New Mexico Delegation to Congress"

Regarding the group of Navajo Indians which is in Washington protesting against treatment by the Indian Bureau, asking the aid of Congress of the United States, Senator Chavez announced that as Senator from New Mexico and representing a large group of these Indians, and as a member of the Senate Indian Affairs Committee, he is presenting the Indians to the Senate Committee that they might make their demands known. "We shall see," said Senator Chavez, "whether a press hand-out by a Bureau agent carries more weight than a group of Indians representing the majority of Navajos in New Mexico and Arizona. I want this outrageous situation on the Navajo Reservation called to the attention of the American people, for it is only by arousing public opinion that the suffering of these truly noble people can be alleviated."

Senator Chavez also announced that he intends to take up further Gila Rural Electrification Project. An amended application is now in the hands of the R. E. A. and it is this application that Senator Chavez intends to push.

Christian Science Service

"Is the Universe, Including Man, Evolved Atomic Force?" is the subject of the Lesson Sermon which will be read in all Churches and Societies of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, June 20, 1937.

The Golden Text is: "Behold, the heaven and the heaven of heavens is the Lord's thy God, the earth also, with all that therein is." (Deut. 10:14)

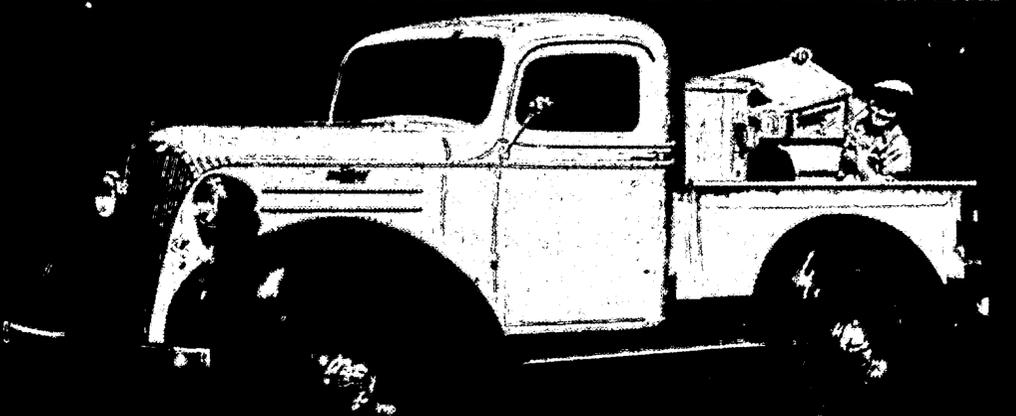

Among the citations which comprise the Lesson-Sermon is the following from the Bible: "The Lord hath prepared his throne in the heavens; and his kingdom ruleth over all." (Ps. 103:19)

The Lesson-Sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "Light is the symbol of Mind, of Life, Truth and Love and not a vitalizing property of matter. Science reveals only one Mind, and this one shining by its light and governing the universe, including man, in perfect harmony."

ASPARAGUS FIT DISH FOR KING

Delicate Flavor Often Ruined by Over-Cooking.

By EDITH M. BARBER

"THE asparagus plumps out with the name of Carême," pronounced one of the admirers of the great chef. Ordinary mortals, however, may need a few directions for its plumping, as no vegetable is more sensitive. The delicate flavor is ruined by over-cooking. As the heads are so much more tender than are the stalks, a special method should be used.

I have put a large double boiler to work for this purpose. After the stalks have been thoroughly washed and the tough ends removed, I retie the stalks into a bunch, place it in the lower part of the double boiler with water enough to cover the bottom of the pan to the depth of one inch. To the water I add a dash of salt and a dash of sugar. I then use the upper part of the double boiler as a cover. The steam will cook the heads just quickly enough so that the whole stalks will be tender. By this method color will be preserved quite well.

Those of us who are fond of this vegetable, which for centuries has been considered by epicures as the king, will use it often during its comparatively short season. It is almost a meal in itself and will make a satisfactory main dish for the quick meal whether it is served with Hollandaise, with a sour cream sauce, with a cheese sauce, with a cream sauce on toast, with browned crumbs or with brown butter and grated cheese. Parmesan cheese is particularly delicious with asparagus. You may also like to serve it occasionally cut in small pieces before cooking and dressed with cream.

Asparagus in Cream.

1 bunch asparagus
1/2 cup cream
Salt, pepper, nutmeg

Wash and clean asparagus and cut into one-inch pieces. Reserve tips, cook remainder in water, to which a dash of salt and a dash of sugar have been added, for five minutes. Add tips, cook about five minutes more and drain. Add cream and seasonings, heat and serve.

Cheese Sauce.

2 tablespoons butter
1 1/2 tablespoons flour
1 cup milk
3/4 cup grated cheese
Paprika
Salt

Melt butter, stir in flour, and when well blended, add milk and stir over a low fire until smooth and thick. Add cheese and paprika, stir until cheese is melted and season to taste with salt. Serve with asparagus.

Spring Salad.

1 teaspoon onion juice
1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
2 cups cottage cheese
1 bunch romaine
1 bunch lettuce
1 bunch watercress
Radishes
French dressing

Stir onion juice and Worcestershire sauce into cheese. Pile in the center of a shallow salad bowl or platter. Surround with greens and garnish with radishes. Pour French dressing over greens just before serving.

Cabbage and Pickle Salad.

3 cups shredded cabbage
1/2 cup minced sweet pickle
1 tablespoon minced onion
1 teaspoon sugar
1/2 teaspoon mustard
1/2 teaspoon paprika
2 tablespoons vinegar
1/2 cup salad oil

Mix cabbage, pickle and onion. Mix sugar, salt, mustard and paprika and add vinegar. Stir in the salad oil. Pour over other mixture, and chill. Serve on small cabbage leaves and garnish with strips of pickle.

Baked Tomatoes.

6 medium sized tomatoes
3 hard-cooked eggs
3 tablespoons salad oil
2 teaspoons minced onions
2 teaspoons chopped parsley
6 thin squares bacon
Salt and pepper.

Wash the tomatoes. Cut a thin slice from the top, scoop out the pulp from the center, and sprinkle the inside with salt. Make a mixture of the cooked eggs (chopped), the salad oil, salt and pepper, onion and parsley, and with it fill the tomatoes. On the top of each tomato lay a square of bacon. Bake in a shallow pan for twenty minutes in a moderate oven (375 degrees Fahrenheit).

Creamed Onion Tops.

3 bunches of young onions
2 cups white sauce

Cut the onion tops into one-inch pieces. Cook in plenty of boiling salted water about ten minutes until tender. Add to the white sauce and serve at once.

Frizzled Beef.

1/2 pound dried beef
3 tablespoons fat
3 tablespoons flour
2 cups milk
Pepper

Tear the beef into pieces. Melt the fat in a frying-pan and cook the beef in it a few minutes. Sprinkle with the flour and pepper, stir well, add the milk, stir until it boils, and boil one minute.

English Dining Room

Slate gray, lime green and yellow form the color scheme of a sophisticated and striking Eighteenth century English dining room. The walls are painted slate gray with the ceiling in off-white. Lime green is used on the woodwork—the rug is the same color. Draperies are in yellow and the room is furnished with Sheraton reproductions.

Household Hints

By BETTY WELLS

NOTHING sets a lady up like fresh flowers under her chin. We always stop for a bunch of violets or a gardenia when we want to make an "appearance" in last year's suit.

It's the same way with a room this year; the smartest decorators are botany-minded. We enjoyed so much seeing a dining room recently exhibited by a young man who sets styles in interiors.

White walls to begin with, three of which are completely covered in panels of flower and fruit prints framed in green and hung close together from dado to ceiling. The fourth wall with a bay window has a green trellis criss-crossed over the entire wall space around the window, then a big white wire bird cage stands in the curve of the bay window.

The chairs have upholstered seats and backs covered in floral needlepoint with an off-white ground. They'd be a lot of work, to be sure, but you'd have heirlooms when you finished with them. If you don't feel up to needlepoint, quilted off-white ground floral linen seats and backs are interesting.

For the floor this room had a hand-knotted embossed rug in natural color, but for a more practical room we'd suggest a plain green rug of distinctive weave.

Georgian furniture was used to advantage in this floral setting and gave a feeling of dignity to what might otherwise have seemed a frivolous scene. Conversely this botanical background lightened and refreshed the effect of the fine Sheraton sideboard and console.

Decorative Screens.

If your idea of a screen is something to knock over, it's time we took you in hand and introduced you, not only to come of the very clever and decorative screens available but to the screen as an asset in smooth living.

Spring furnishings usually leave a residue of things that can't be cured so must be endured—corners that are necessary to the functioning of the house, but not to its decoration. A screen solves all such problems with a single gesture—quite a switch gesture at that. Kitchen, nursery, powder room, study, sewing room or even clothes closet can lurk behind a screen in a room that looks, as if it hadn't a care in the world.

Another reason for considering yourself as a potential screen user, whether or not you had thought of it before, is the fact that a screen will balance most any decorative difficulty you may be facing. If one side of the wall needs more height, more color, more pattern, more contrast, a screen will be a simple, successful answer. Even more space, or the effect of it, can be achieved with a mirror screen. Or an extra "wall" can be made with a screen set out in the floor with a little settee, a dressing table or a table before it.

Mirror screens are much more interesting than they used to be. Mirror panels are now often likely to be set in wide decorative frames. A perfectly lovely example of these seen recently shows the frames for the mirrored panels decoratively outlined with a classic key in gold on a light off-white ground. And fantastic motifs painted in tropical colors on mirrors give verve to many screens.

The highest needs must have most care, and the lower needs, the least care, and we must train ourselves that hunger for the ideal things shall chasten and subdue every worldly hunger, fulfill the true ideal of men and women, and make life a moral success and not a moral failure.

Keeping Up With Science

Televised Pictures Can Be Produced for the Home User

Method Worked Out by Radio Engineers

New York.—A scientific idea that figuratively almost went into the wastebasket because it seemed too difficult to work out has now produced bright, clear television images of such size that they appear to meet the potential requirements of home users.

At the meeting here of the Institute of Radio Engineers, scientists of the Radio Corporation of America demonstrated televised pictures, 10 by 24 inches in size, that compare favorably with home motion pictures in brightness and detail.

This area of viewing screen may reasonably be supposed to represent the television set owners' wishes for size, since it is probable that future commercially-available sets will be about as large as the larger radios today. A few people may wish to devote the whole side of a room to a television screen but the feeling is that a picture about two feet square, visible across an ordinary living room, will meet the greatest demand.

New Projection Tube

Dr. V. K. Zworykin, W. H. Painter and Dr. R. L. Law described the new type projection tube which makes possible the bright images in "living room" size. Idea behind the work is that a controlled stream of electrons strikes a fluorescent screen and by bombardment makes the screen shine so brightly that an ordinary optical system can enlarge the image to its 10 by 24 inch size.

These flying electrons, which ultimately form the television picture, have to pass through four "gates" before striking the fluorescent screen.

Through Small Hole

Through the first three the electrons are packed into a pencil of rays about the size of a real lead-pencil. But in going through the last "gate" they must pass through a hole too small in size to allow the passage of a human hair. Getting these electrons through this tiny opening without loss and obtaining something on the opposite side was one of the "kinks" in the original idea that almost led to its abandonment before being tried.

The television engineers are now continuing their work ironing out one hampering factor in their development; that the bright, clear image can only be obtained with special laboratory equipment.

Syrup of Raspberry and Cacao Best Flavoring Agents

Chicago.—To kill or disguise an unpleasant taste, doctors find syrup of cacao (chocolate to you) and syrup of raspberry the best flavoring agents. Almost everyone likes these flavors.

Second in popular choice are the syrups of orange, cherry, sarsaparilla and citric acid.

Tasting tests have been carried on by Harold N. Wright, a pharmacologist, among students in the medical, dental and nursing schools of the University of Minnesota.

The flavoring agents commonly employed in medicine were judged in the experiment according to (1) the popularity of their appeal; (2) their efficiency in disguising the bitter taste of certain drugs; (3) their effectiveness in covering the salty taste of other drugs; and (4) their effectiveness in disguising the unpleasant taste of tincture of digitalis.

Bitter drugs are best concealed, Mr. Wright found, by syrups of raspberry, eriodictyon and prepared cacao. Salty drugs are best disguised by syrups of cinnamon, orange and sarsaparilla.

Trick by Which High Fever Is Brought On

St. Louis.—By just wrapping a piece of dry cloth about the bulb of a clinical thermometer and blowing hard upon it, a patient can manufacture evidence that he has a startlingly high fever.

Dr. Osa K. DeFoe has discovered this new trick that doctors must be alert for when encountering unusually high temperatures in their practice of medicine.

Nearly Everything Can Be Purchased in Small Packages

Offered Public in Single-Use Tubes

By WATSON DAVIS
THIS is a package age. Often we buy things because we like their containers, whether we need the things themselves or not.

Beer cans, after a spectacular entrance into an old field, have become almost commonplace. And paper-cups, glass containers for food that we are proud to use as dinner ware, motor oil in non-refillable cans, have made a place for themselves.

Now an even larger use of single-use containers is predicted. Arthur D. Little laboratories foresee what they call the "toothpaste cocktail," which will do away with losing the top off the toothpaste tube because you will use it once and throw it away. Hermetically sealed containers are soon to come into use for the dispensing of hair tonics, flavoring extracts and even alcoholic beverages in "one-dose" quantities.

Tubes of Coffee and Paint.

It is predicted that there will be made this year some 25,000,000 single-use tubes for holding the makings of as many cups of soluble coffee. A paint manufacturer has greatly simplified his problem of providing a bright spectrum of many colors of paint. Uncolored or white paint only is sold in the familiar cans. But single-use tubes of colored pigments in oil are squeezed into the can by the user to make any color desired. The dealers reduce the cans on their shelves to a seventh of the usual inventory.

Envelopes are made not only of paper these days, but also of tin and other metals as well as transparent cellulose sheeting.

Reasons for Small Packages.

There are two motives in making smaller packages. One is convenience, which is the reason for the present American boom in small packages. The other is the fact that many people of low purchasing power must buy in small quantities even though that may be the most uneconomical way in the long run.

This finds an extreme in China. The American trade commissioner at Shanghai, in urging more suitable packaging of American goods, tells how an American raisin company recognized that its product must be brought into the buying range of the masses. It was content to package as few as five raisins in a stamped envelope to be sold for the lowest unit of Chinese copper currency.

Obsessions Result From Changes in Brain Structure

Pittsburgh.—Changes in the brain structure itself are responsible for obsessions, Dr. Paul Schilder of New York told members of the American Psychiatric association here.

The kind of obsessions to which Dr. Schilder referred are a form of mental disorder in which certain thoughts and ideas keep going through the patient's mind against his wish and in spite of himself.

One patient cited by Dr. Schilder got the idea, from her sister's criticism, that she had always been lazy. She resented this very much, but could not stop thinking and saying that she had always been lazy. Her husband tried to help her overcome this difficulty which worried her by telling her "to send the cockeyed world to hell." After that, she could not get out of her mind the idea that she had to do this.

Another patient complained of seeing dirt everywhere and had to clean her house continually, although she was convinced there was no dirt in it. These patients are not really thinking, Dr. Schilder explained, but are in a state in which one idea persists in their minds.

Titanium and Bromine Are Made Radioactive

Washington.—Another element rendered strongly radioactive by atomic bombardment was reported to the meeting here of the American Physical society by Dr. Harold Walke of the University of California.

Significant is the fact that much of the radio-activity comes in the form of gamma radiation such as radium gives off. Titanium was the metal bombarded and the radio activity is believed caused by the formation of isotopes of titanium and vanadium. One radioactivity decay had a half life of nearly sixteen hours and another over 16 days.

Dr. Arthur H. Snell of the same laboratory of Prof. E. O. Lawrence at the University of California also reported bombardment of bromine with deuterons. A radioactive form of this element which had a half life of 35 hours was disclosed, that was accompanied by the liberation of gamma radiation.

'Way Back When

By JEANNE

AN OIL DRILLER

CLARK GABLE was little different from any other small town boy. Born in Cadiz, Ohio, in 1900, and later living in Hopedale, Ohio, population 500, Clark Gable was a regular American boy, fond of the outdoors and all sports. Motherless from the time he was seven months old, he was raised by his grandparents until his father remarried. He held a deep love and respect for his stepmother.

Like any other normal American boy, Clark Gable was not sure what position he would like to hold in life. He thought for awhile that he might be an architect, and later he studied medicine at night school. Ambitious but poor, he had to work from the time he was seventeen years old, and his jobs were as varied as his opportunities. He was time-keeper in a rubber factory, call boy in a theater, an oil driller, a telephone lineman, a surveyor's assistant and a lumberjack. Clark Gable might have been anything but a motion picture actor.

He became a star by traveling the hard road of theatrical stock companies and motion picture extra, overcoming many disappointments, until he reached the pinnacle in "It Happened One Night," which won the Motion Picture award for the best picture of 1934.

CARL SANDBURG NEVER WOULD SETTLE DOWN

HOW many times have you heard someone say, "I don't know what to do about that boy of mine. It looks like he never will settle down?" Carl Sandburg was like that. A boy who skipped from job to job, and gave his simple Swedish immigrant parents many a worried hour! He was born in 1878 in Galesburg, Ill., of people who were uneducated and kindly, simple and poor. Forced by poverty to go to work when he was thirteen, he began the seemingly endless series of jobs that gave him such true understanding of the common people.

He drove a milk wagon in Galesburg and he blacked boots in a barber shop. If you could have looked into the future and said that some day Carl Sandburg would be a great poet, they would have laughed you out of town! He became a scene shifter in a cheap theater, a truck handler in a brick yard, and then a turner's apprentice in a pottery shop. Cheap manual labor, nothing skilled about most of it! He worked as a dish-washer in mid-western hotels, a harvest hand in the Kansas wheat fields, and a carpenter's helper.

Carl Sandburg was learning the painter's trade when the Spanish-American war broke out, and he enlisted. A comrade persuaded him to go to Lombard college and he worked his way through as a bell ringer, gym janitor and college correspondent for the Galesburg Daily Mail. In college his literary ability developed and he became editor of the school publications. After graduation he supported himself as advertising manager of a department store and sales manager of a business machines firm.

He entered politics, became a reporter, and in 1917, Carl Sandburg joined the staff of the Chicago Daily News, where his work has been outstanding.

A rolling stone, a restless jack-of-all-trades has been Carl Sandburg, but from the time of his literary awakening in college, he has written steadily stories for children, a biography of Lincoln, and hundreds of poems about the mass of people.

So, if that boy of yours is restless, if he skips from place to place, be patient. Carl Sandburg gained fame by knowing many people, many jobs, many problems.

Calling Upon Bermuda's Varicolored Finny Tribe

Trip Underseas in Diving Helmet Lends Thrill to Visitors.

Summer visitors and budding scientists have found a new thrill in Bermuda. One of the most popular diversions of the summer is amateur helmet diving, made possible through the government aquarium on Harrington sound.

"Although not a new idea, this is the best opportunity the public has been given to enjoy this unique sport, and hundreds of sightseers, including many women and children, are taking advantage of the privilege," says a bulletin from the National Geographic society.

Heavy Helmet Becomes Light

"After visiting the aquarium, one of the finest in the world, more adventurous ichthyologists add to their acquaintances among Bermuda's fish families by descending beneath the clear, calm waters of Harrington sound to view them in their natural surroundings. It is in Alice in Wonderland experience feeling fish frisk about you unseparated from your touch by a tank's glass walls.

"Divers on their first descents are apt to be nervous. Clad only in bathing suit and sneakers, the novice may eye with apprehension the strange-looking metal helmet with its snakelike air hose. The helmet, flanked with 14 d weights, rests heavily on the shoulders, but as soon as one ventures to descend the gently sloping sea-floor, and lower one's head under the surface, the air-filled helmet seems much lighter. In fact, its weight is scarcely felt.

"Water rushing in under the open helmet almost to the mouth may cause alarm, but air pressure holds it at about chin level, and one soon relaxes again. Should the diver feel ear pressure, as in elevators, it can be alleviated by swallowing. Once he becomes accustomed to the silvery bubbles, and the gentle gurgling of the air as the pump forces it out under the bottom of the helmet, and assured that the water will not rise above his chin, the newcomer in Neptune's realm is ready to look out of the glass window in the front of the helmet and enjoy the strange spectacle of being at home with the fish. Underwater View of Fish Ideal.

"Wandering through this twilight, underseas world one has the queer feeling of being a disembodied spirit, of pressing against warm wind; of wading, not up to one's ankles only, but with one's whole body. Distances under water are strangely deceiving. The diver progresses through sunlit water for what seems a city block only to be told on his ascent that he has covered no more than a score of feet.

"Those who think all fish are silvery and torpedo shaped are surprised by the variety of beautiful colors and the strange shapes of Bermuda's fish. While one gets some slight idea of them by gazing down through a glass-bottomed boat towed slowly over the reefs, one can see them still better, without distortion or foreshortening, through the helmet. Colors of birds and butterflies are lasting, but the radiant, iridescent colors of fish fade at death. Many fish, pale and uninteresting looking on ice in Bermuda's markets, appear full of brilliant coloring that flashes and changes when seen alive under the water.

Cecil Rhodes Knew Little About America

The fact that there are today more Rhodes scholars from the United States at Oxford than from all the British dominions put together, is due to an extraordinary error on the part of Cecil Rhodes.

"He believed there were still only the original thirteen states in the Union of America," says Sarah Gertrude Millin in her biography of Rhodes. "Nor did the solicitor who drew up his will, know better."

In assigning his scholarships, Rhodes allotted so many for each state and colony and a complimentary few for Germany.—Kansas City Star.

To the Point

No man can be made a fool of if he doesn't possess suitable material for the job. It is not how fast an automobile can go that counts, but how quickly it can stop. It takes some people so long to be sure they are right that they have no time left to go ahead. There is a lot of parking space on the straight and narrow path. If you haven't time to read, you haven't time to succeed. The man who goes out and paints the town red feels blue in the morning.

Red Squirrelfish, striped Yellow Grunts, Sergeant-Majors, Angel-fish, and many others dart past the helmet's window.

"Many forms of sea life, other than fish, attract the attention of the diver. On the rocks are chitons, related to snails, whose shells are arranged in overlapping plates. Pulled loose from a reef, they curl up like miniature armadillos. Lovely-sea anemones wave pastel-colored tentacles to and fro like the languid arms of odalisques.

"On the sand are puffy black sea puddings, tiny scuttling crabs, crawling starfish, and spiny sea urchins. Stepped on, the spines of these so-called hedgehogs of the sea frequently break off in one's foot.

Bermuda is an ideal place in which to observe fish by means of helmets for two reasons. The Gulf stream, which flows like a warm sapphire river through the Atlantic north of Bermuda, protects the islands from cold and insures a teeming supply of semi-tropical fish. The islands are coral formations on the top of a submarine mountain, and thus scientific dives may be made very near shore, to observe both deep and shallow water species of fish."

High Bridges

The bridge highest in the air is the Viscous railroad span in the Andes in Peru—15,000 feet above sea level. The bridge highest above the water spans the Arkansas river at the Royal Gorge in Colorado—1,050 feet above the surface of the stream.

I WILL OIL-PLATE YOUR ENGINE

in next to no time

And even quicker I can plainly state how it saves your oil and your engine to change to Oil-Plating. After I put in Conoco Germ Processed Oil, which is the only oil that forms Oil-Plating, let's say you run a bit and then want to park—a few minutes or maybe hours. But every drop of Germ Processed oil will not drain back down into your crankcase like an everyday oil. Instead of that, a definite amount of this oil is always left closely plated all over the pistons, cylinders, bearings and other parts, from the bottom clear to the top of your engine. You'd say that the oil is united for good, to every working surface. I don't know of anything that will make Oil-Plating let go, no matter if you want to stop and start at every doorway, or make 500 miles a day across the mountains. Staying in place and not just splashing on and off, Oil-Plating can't leave the usual openings for friction and wear. Your smooth, quiet, cool-running engine will certainly make you notice that, and of course, your own eyes will see Conoco Germ Processed oil staying up around full.
