CARRIZOZO, NEW MEXICO, FRIDAY, JULY 2, 1937

Attention Odd Fellows

Alamogordo and Carrizozo To Hold Joint Installation of Officers

Carrizozo lodge No. 30 invited Alamogordo lodge No. 25 to come up here on Tuesday July 6th for a joint installation of officers.

After installation ceremonies the first degree will be conferred on an Alamogordo candidate and on our candidate who is ready for this degree.

All out-of-town members who possibly can get here please attend. A social hour with refreshments will be enjoyed after all the ceremonies are finished.

Baseball Results

Carrizozo took it very easy, in Sunday's ball game against San Antonio. Andy Lueraz, with the perfect support of his team mates, kept San Antonio scoreless till the last of the 8th, while Carrizozo had 10 scores with the game well in the bag. The final results were 10-3 in favor of Carrizozo.

Carrizozo showed a revival of spirits after the trouncing they got at Tucumcari and played good baseball which is a credit to the manager and the team as a whole.

Drivers Should Have License

"The better class of motorists who are in the great majority," said Werthan, chairman of traffic enforcement meeting for Colorado and New Mexico "have long sought strict and impartial enforcement of traffic laws. The public wishes the highways rid of the drunk and reckless drivers together with that small majority of unfit who endanger the lives and property of others. Political influence and the fixing of traffic charges has long been frowned upon by most motorists. A well administered drivers' license law will meet the approval of motorists everywhere. The revocation of the drunk and reckless drivers' right to use the roads should be insisted upon."

Lamb Prices Fair

Prices of spring lambs rose sharply during the second and third weeks of May, reaching the highest level thus far in the current season. The average price of $12.63 per 100 pounds for good and choice spring lambs at Kansas City for the week ended May 22 was the highest since 1929. In last week of May prices declined about $1.25 from their peak, but recovered most of this loss in early June. After mid-June, however, prices again declined. The higher lamb prices in May than a year earlier were due chiefly to higher wool and pelt values, since prices of all grades of dressed lamb were below most of May but declined at the end of the month and in early June.

Star Cafe

The Star Cafe, inside and out, presents a very attractive appearance. The booths, counters and individual tables have all been re-varnished. New linoleum on the floor, and the brilliant red diamonds used in the decorative scheme blend well with the dark finish of the furniture. Mrs. Bigelow intends to give a series of special dinners. The first one will be a chicken dinner tomorrow beginning at 11:45 and serving will continue until 2 o'clock in the afternoon. People in town on business, and local people will do well to take advantage of this dinner. For price and other particulars see her ad in this issue of The News.

Charles Mackey visited his family here this week from the CCC Camp at Fort Sumner.

Do Not Lend Government Money

Outstanding loans of the Federal Land Bank of Wichita and the 41 production credit associations in Kansas, Oklahoma, Colorado and New Mexico, totaled slightly more than $187,000,000, May 31, 1937, according to Dudley Doolittle, general agent of the Farm Credit Administration of Wichita.

Contrary to the belief of some who are unfamiliar with the Farm Credit Administration, these loans are not made from Federal appropriations, Mr. Doolittle explains.

"Because the activities of the Federal land bank were increased and the organization of the production credit associations were authorized by the Emergency Farm Mortgage Act of 1933, many persons apparently gained the erroneous impression that Congress appropriated funds for the land bank and production credit loans," the FCA executive states.

"Actually, these cooperative agricultural credit organizations obtain funds through sale of bonds and debentures to private investors in the public money markets. Loans by the Land Bank Commissioner made through the agency of the Federal land banks and the loans of the Emergency Crop and Feed Loan offices are from emergency funds appropriated by Congress. These operations are of a temporary nature, however."

Fourth of July Swimmers

Predicting that there will probably be more swimmers in the water on the Fourth of July than on any other day of the summer, Dr. Robert A. Fraser, Chief Medical Director of the New York Life Insurance Company offers three simple rules which should go far in preventing the large number of swimming accidents which occur every year during the summer months.

Dr. Fraser has been making a special study of hot weather accidents and disablements. "If everyone," he said "will remember the following three rules many lives will be spared and much sorrow avoided; First never go swimming alone; second, keep out of the water for at least one full hour after each meal; third, never dive into water until you are sure of its depth.

"They are just 'common sense rules', Dr. Fraser said, "yet failure to observe them probably accounted for the great majority of the 5,500 swimming fatalities estimated by the National Safety Council for the year 1935, the latest figures that are available.

"Many people are drowned every year because they insist on going swimming alone and are powerless to help themselves when seized with a cramp or faced with some other sudden emergency.

"As for keeping out of the water directly after eating, a life guard at one of the large semi-public swimming pools here in the East tells me that he and the other guards know that their busy period will occur in the hour between two and three o'clock every day, when diners rush from the table into the water and are seized with cramps. More people get into difficulty during that hour than any other time during the day.

"And finally, the dangers of diving into water without first knowing the depth are obvious to every one."

The American Legion Dance

Everyone who possibly can should attend the Carnival dance to be given by the American Legion tomorrow night. This money will be used for a worthy cause to assist veterans and the widows and children of veterans who are in need. Every cent will be directed toward some worthy object. Music will be furnished by the Rhythm Rascals; confetti, souvenirs, and balloons will be plentiful. And this will be a small price to pay—only $1.00.

Washouts Near Carrizozo

Last Sunday almost everyone in town visited the scenes of the washouts on the S. P. which occurred Saturday afternoon during the heaviest rains that had fallen at Coyote and Largo and vicinity in twenty years or more. The highways too were made impassable for several hours. The bridge, wrecking crews, and several section crews labored the greater part of Saturday night and all day Sunday to repair about a mile of railroad track which was literally washed away at the above-mentioned points. Traffic was resumed about 6:30 Sunday when four passenger trains which had been detained here were permitted to leave.

The highway was fairly passable shortly after daylight Sunday morning when rail road ties, steel rails and other debris had been removed. The force of water may be partly estimated when it is known that a heavy cement block signal was washed from its position on the track to the edge of the highway; rails were bent almost in half and rail road ties were scattered through the fields as far as could be seen.

Fort Stanton 4th of July

At the big 4th of July celebration, the following rules will be observed, with the right of the management to change such rules if conditions require.

Steer riding moneys 1st prize, $20; 2nd 10; 3rd 5; Entrance fee, $2. There must be at least six entrants.

Calf roping moneys—1st prize, $20, 2nd, 10, 3rd 5.

Bronc riding 1st prize $25; 2nd 10, 3rd 5.

Wild cow milking 1st prize $20; 2nd 10, 3rd 5.

All entrance fees, $2.00.

The management assumes no risk of responsibility in case of accidents or injuries to contestants or stock.

Lists of instructions will be given out so that everybody can plainly understand the rules governing the celebration. A crowd far greater than ever before in attendance is assured.

Admission tickets will entitle holders to all events and also to the big barbecue dinner.

Attention Singers

Please remember our Lincoln County Convention at Carrizozo, N. M. the second Sunday in July and Saturday night before.

Visiting singers from a distance will be there. Lots have a good attendance from Lincoln county.

3 Nations Own 4-5 of Visible Supply of Gold

Three nations, Great Britain, France and the United States, now own four-fifths of the world's visible supply of gold.

This became known Monday when Great Britain disclosed that its holdings totaled $3,518,060,000 as of March 30. The United States has $12,289,174,000, latest tabulations showed, while France's holdings have been reported to total $3,846,000,000.

The powers now are co-operating under the tri-nation monetary agreement, which was signed to bring greater stability to international exchange.

N. M. Reclamation Project

San Juan Reclamation Bill Introduced By N. M. Senators

Washington, June 30.—Senators Dennis Chavez and Carl A. Hatch of New Mexico, asked congress today to authorize construction of the San Juan transmountain water diversion project in New Mexico, estimated to cost about $15,000,000.

The project would be carried out as a reclamation undertaking to divert water from the San Juan river, a tributary of the Colorado, into the Chama river, a tributary of the Rio Grande. The project would require tunneling under a main range of the Rockies in northwestern New Mexico.

The bill specifies construction would not be initiated until the project is found to be feasible under the reclamation act.

BOARD MEDIATES STRIKE

More Deaths As Steel Riots Continue . . . Russians Hop Over Pole to U. S. . . . New Cabinet for France

Miss Perkins Names Three

THE federal government took a hand in the settlement of the dispute between John L. Lewis' Committee for Industrial Organization and the big independent steel companies, as the mediation board of three, appointed by Secretary of Labor Frances E. Perkins, sat in Cleveland to hear the cases of both sides.

Secretary Perkins named three mediators, appointed by her, to hear the cases of both sides. The government's move was prompted as the steel strikes, affecting plants in several states, threatened new outbreaks of violence which might be beyond the powers of local or even state governments to control.

As the mediators began their task of effecting a compromise, a dozen persons had been killed in strike riots and scores more injured since the strike against Republic, Bethlehem, Youngstown Sheet & Tube, and Inland started May 20. Eighty-five thousand workers already had lost approximately $10,000,000 in wages.

The climactic incident which finally goaded the government into some action other than occasional "off-the-record" statements was a widely publicized telegram to President Roosevelt from Gov. Martin L. Davey of Ohio, fearful lest the bloodshed already occurring in Youngstown and other cities breed into a little civil war.

"Apparently every avenue of approach available to the state of Ohio has been exhausted for the time being," Governor Davey wired. "It appears that the matter has gone way beyond the powers and opportunities of one state to deal with it."

Charles P. Taft II, Cincinnati lawyer, son of the former President and chief justice, and a member of the "brain trust" of Governor Landon's presidential campaign, was named chairman of the mediation board. Appointed to sit with him were Lloyd K. Garrison, former president of the national labor relations board, and Edward F. McGrady, assistant secretary of labor and a former A. F. of L. organizer under Samuel Gompers.

The mediation board had a job cut out for it. It was to conduct an investigation of the strikes and the grievances of both sides, then make recommendations for a settlement. It has power to act as arbitrator only if both sides request it to do so. The first stumbling block it encountered was the refusal of Tom Girdler, chairman of Republic, to sit in the same room with C. I. O. representatives. Girdler, leader of the companies' fight to keep the plants open despite the unions, agreed to help in the supplying of facts and information, but would not consider appearance at a conciliation conference.

Johnstown's Martial Law

MAYOR DANIEL J. SHIELDS, of Johnstown, Pa., where 15,000 were out of work because of the forced shut-down of Bethlehem Steel's Cambria plant, was not so successful in his appeal to the President. Federal action to prevent recurring riots with attendant injuries was refused him. But Gov. George H. Earle declared martial law there and forced Bethlehem to close the plant, despite vigorous protests. Forty thousand coal miners had announced they would hold a mass meeting to decide upon action in aiding the steel strikers; rioting between strikers, non-strikers and police seemed imminent, but in the face of the Pennsylvania police they did not come off.

Death Strikes for Two

TWO C. I. O. strikers were killed and 24 persons were injured as strikers and police fought for three hours in front of the Republic Steel plant in Youngstown, Ohio, before a truce was arranged between Sheriff Ralph Elser and John Stevenson, union organizer. Gov. Davey finally sent state troops.

A mob of strikers had attacked a company of police on guard at the plant, forcing the latter to retaliate with tear gas guns. Snipers among the mob tried to pick off policemen from vantage points on nearby hills.

At neighboring cities of Warren and Canton police were apprehensive because of threats by the C. I. O. union to prevent a proposed back-to-work movement by loyal Republic Steel workers.

Steel Wants Its Mail

THE Republic Steel corporation filed in the federal district court in Washington a petition for a writ of mandamus compelling Postmaster General Farley to deliver parcel post packages to steel plants in Ohio which local postmasters have refused to deliver.

The petition charged that the local postmaster at Niles, Ohio, was refusing to deliver packages containing food and clothing and addressed to the loyal workers who were being housed inside the Republic plant. It charged that this refusal was made after the postmaster had reached an "understanding" with two members of the union.

"Having waited a week for a reply to our letter . . . to Mr. Farley and having received none, we have no recourse but to such legal action as is available to us under the circumstances involved," said John S. Brooks, Jr., counsel for the corporation. He said separate suits will be instituted in Ohio against the local postmasters involved.

Short Cut from Soviet

THREE Russian airmen successfully completed the first non-stop airplane flight from the Soviet Union to the United States. Taking the short, but hazardous, route over the North pole, they hopped off from Moscow to arrive in Vancouver, Wash., 63 hours and 17 minutes later, after traveling nearly 6,000 miles. They had planned to alight at Oakland, Calif., but poor visibility drove them down 500 miles from their goal.

The three were Pilot Valeri Chkalov, Co-Pilot George Phillipovitch Baibukoff and Navigator Alexander Vassilievitch Bellakoff. Their flight, in a single-motored monoplane, took place only a few days after the opening of the Soviet floating weather station at the pole, to make scientific observations preparatory to establishing trans-polar air routes.

French Premier Quits

FACED with one of those financial crises all too frequent in recent French history, Premier Leon Blum asked the senate for powers which would make him financial dictator of France for about six weeks. He did not believe it possible to bring order into the treasury without so drastic a measure.

Premier Blum

When it was refused he and the 20 members of his cabinet resigned. He had served 117 days of his second year as premier of France—something of a modern record. President Albert Lebrun designated Camille Chautemps, radical socialist and a former premier, to attempt the formation of a new cabinet. A successor to Blum was not immediately in sight.

The Popular Front government was one of the bulwarks of leftist tendencies in Europe, as opposed to extreme Fascism, and openly expressed its sympathy for the Spanish loyalists. Its passing is extremely important in international affairs.

Barrie's Last Curtain

SIR JAMES M. BARRIE, novelist and playwright, whose whimsical pen gave to the world many important works of literature, including "Peter Pan," "The Little Minister," "Dear Brutus," and "What Every Woman Knows," died of bronchial pneumonia in London. He was seventy-seven years old.

To Sign or Not

THERE is no issue of wages, hours or other material demands in the strike between the independent steel corporations and John L. Lewis' Committee for Industrial Organization. The corporations have agreed to all of the demands of the unions—verbally. "Verbally"—that is the word which has for weeks kept thousands of workers in eight or ten states from returning to their jobs.

The C. I. O. demands that the corporations put their agreement in the form of a written contract. The corporations refuse. And the unions have refused to call off the strikes until they get the signatures on the line.

Union officials have taken the position that if the company officials are willing to agree orally to union demands they ought to be willing to confirm the agreement in writing. Lewis has demanded that President Roosevelt intervene to force the companies to sign. At a press conference the President refused to say officially what was his reaction to the demand. He did say—and emphasized—that he was not speaking "officially"—that he could not see why the companies would not make written agreements.

Tom Girdler, chairman of the board of the Republic Steel corporation, explained the companies' stand.

"The reason the C. I. O. wants a signed contract is because such a contract would be the first step toward the closed shop and the check-off.

"Under the closed shop every worker has to belong to a union, whether he wants to or not. The closed shop is actually a 'deal' between the employer and the union whereby the employer helps to force every employee into the union. Under the check-off the company takes unions dues out of the pay envelopes of all its employees and hands them over to the union.

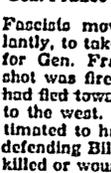

"Does the C. I. O. contract preserve industrial peace? It does not. They have broken numerous contracts."

Bilbao Falls at Last

BILBAO, capital of the Spanish loyalists, fell before an attacking force for the first time in history; it had withstood many sieges dating from medieval ages.

In the bombing and shelling which broke the "iron ring" of defense the loyalists had so steadfastly maintained the city was literally torn to shreds and the death toll, which included many women and children, was enormous. But as the Fascists moved in, parading jubilantly, to take possession of the city for Gen. Francisco Franco, not a shot was fired. The last defenders had fled toward Santander, 45 miles to the west. The Basques were estimated to have used 75,000 men in defending Bilbao; 10,000 were either killed or wounded.

Gen. Franco

FOR the first time since the World War the chief of staff of the German army, Gen. Ludwig Beck, went to Paris to visit the French chief of staff. And just about the same time Baron Constantin von Neurath, German foreign minister who recently completed a tour of central Europe, announced that he would visit London as a guest of the British government.

It was believed that the purpose of the two visits was to reach an understanding between the four great powers of western Europe, to the exclusion of Soviet Russia—an understanding such as Germany and Italy have long dreamed about.

With eight important Russian generals having been recently executed for treason, with virtually the entire Red military staff under suspicion, it was apparent that Russia's importance as a military power had taken a sudden drop, for the immediate future at least. And with the resignation of the Popular Front government in France, which had been favorable to the communists, it looked like the golden opportunity to convince France that an alliance with Soviet Russia was an unreliable one.

The Tax Parade

AS A congressional committee opened hearings on tax evasion and avoidance by wealthy citizens, Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau was among the first to testify. He said the nation was losing hundreds of millions of dollars in annual revenue through such tactics. Then his under-secretary, Roswell Magill, suggested three changes in the present tax laws: That depletion reductions be eliminated, that community-property provisions now in effect in some states be circumvented, and that higher levies be put upon the American-earned incomes of non-resident aliens.

The first names mentioned in the hearings were connected with the practice of forming foreign corporations to which individual incomes are transferred, a scheme which treasury officials said was usually within "the letter of the law." Among the first names were: Philip De Ronde, former president of the Hibernia Trust company of New York; now Paraguayan consul in New York; Jules S. Bach, New York banker; Jacob Schick, ex-army officer and electric-razor inventor, and Charles Laughlin, motion-picture actor.

Printed Organdie Ideal for Summer

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

THERE'S an exquisite femininity and a new elegance in this season's mode to be seen in the beguiling and flattering ruffled lingerie touches given to costumes, the whisper of taffet underslips and the seductive charm of sheerest of sheer fabrics for daytime, afternoon and evening wear.

Of all the very lovely sheers on the summer fabric program there's none more lovely than the entrancing printed organdies. These dainty crisp cool-looking and cool-feeling finely flowered Swiss organdies are the very embodiment of the new elegance and femininity that so distinguishes current fashion.

The fact that they are so enchanting, so lovely tells their story of allure only in part, for after all it is said and done it is their utter practicality that offers the big appeal. With the permanent finish and fast color given to the new Swiss organdies you can depend upon them surviving endless tubbings, retaining their crisp vitality and handsome color tones the entire life of your frock.

The exciting variety of new finishes and new patternings given to organdies this season has greatly enhanced them in the eyes of designers who are launching a new vogue for tailored effects as well as the dressier-type costumes. The new matelasse organdie is especially attracting attention. These smart matelasse weaves come in most any coloring and patterning from multi-color florals to smaller geometric figures and fascinating dotted prints that tailor to perfection in attractive one and two-piece frocks such as are ideal for warm weather wear. With dark backgrounds they especially tune to street wear and to costumes for active moments the whole day through as their crinkled finish requires little or no pressing.

The distinctive daytime frock centering the fashions pictured, demonstrates the adaptability of organdie in the new cloque or matelasse finish for practical wear.

The novelty patterning of this organdie is done in red, blue, green and white dots against a black background. Self-fabric applique in unique design on plain white organdie ornaments the short puffed sleeves and shoulder yoke, also banding the edge of a separate full-cut overskirt that has been cleverly contrived so it may be also worn as a cape if you feel an urge to wear it that way.

For comfort and joy supreme there's nothing more to be coveted than a belloved print organdie done in exotic colorings. The summer fabric showings are playing up some of the most fascinating flower-printed organdies eyes are beheld. That pretty-pretty frock to the right in the illustration is made of crisp and dainty floral printed permanent finish Swiss organdie. Given a simple tailored styling it makes a very practical daytime dress as well as a very attractive one. The self-fabric saw-tooth edging at neckline and sleeves adds a voguish finish.

Glamorous is the word for the new organdie evening gowns. In youthful party frocks or in romantic trailing sophisticated styles, they run the gamut of color and fabric finish from dainty allover embroidery cutout patterns to pastels in brilliant floral patterns and striking flocked embroidery designs. For the beguiling evening frock shown to the left the designer uses crystal-clear organdie in white with a flocked floral motif in vivid red. It has a high pointed collar at the front and a sweeping double ruffle cascading so as to swirl about gracefully at the back in dancing.

DOTTED LAWN

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

Fashion seems never to get tired of dots. This season more than ever dotted effects are playing a most important role in the fabric realm. Daytime costumes tailored of sheer dotted materials are featured in dark tones that are practical. Navy, black, burgundy, brown, copper, green, with tiny white dots are proving big sellers. Clean cut, cool as a breeze, is the suit of dotted lawn as here shown. Its linen collar and pocket flaps are scalloped. Being sanforized-shrunk it can be successfully tubbed time and time again.

Skirts that are killed, pleated and shirred, with the fullness held in just below the hipbone, are indicated for the youthful, slim figure and are very new.

LACE AND VEILINGS FOR EVENING HATS

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

A new collection of Suzanne Talbot millinery, just emerged from their Paris boxes and wrappings, presents the last word in delight to the eyes. To say the Talbot hats are feminine does not describe them quite adequately, for they are sheer bits of inspiration. She has taken finest horsehair and fashioned hair cloth of it that in some cases looks like patterned lace, and in others like sheerest straw. With this, in white, in black, in midnight navy, she has used Chantilly lace for veilings and trimmings instead of the accustomed mesh veilings.

One of the hats is a flat sailor made of the hair cloth in black, and vertically across the crown is placed an inch band of white insertion lace of fine linen thread. Then the same insertion falls from the edge of the brim, ever so delicately, to the eyes. Another model, a true basket type, is made of fine black hair woven in a lace pattern, with a full lace veil and a narrow velvet ribbon band coming under the chin and tied in a bow and streamers at one side. To complete the pretty picture, a pale blue ostrich feather curls up under the veil.

Higher Waists Being Shown for Day and Evening Wear

Vera Borea's summer collection shows higher waists for day and evening wear with short bodices that usually are draped. Shoulder width is maintained throughout but the sleeves are plain and straight in line.

There are many cotton prints and linens shown for wear at all times of the day with bright yellow as the outstanding color. Bright colors are used for short little jackets over dark skirts—for example, pastel blue is now shown with dark red, and rose is shown with dark gray.

Cut-out applied designs are used for trimming for daytime and evening clothes.

Luggage Styles New luggage styles prove that the old "suit case" is getting lighter every year.

what Irvin S. Cobb thinks about:

The New NRA Bill. SANTA MONICA, CALIF. — They do say the new NRA bill, as drawn by the Gallagher and Shean of the administration, Messrs. Corcoran and Cohen, is more sweeping than was the original NRA.

Even Gen. Hugh Johnson, once as conversational as Mrs. Astor's parrot, but lately exiled amid the uncongenial silences, crawls out from under a log in the woods with lichens in his hair, but the lower jaw still working smoothly in the socket, to tell how drastic a thing it is.

Critics assert this legislation will cover business like a wet blanket over a sick pup, and point out that the number of sick pups benefited by being tucked under wet blankets is quite small. However, these fussy persons belong to the opposition and don't count. Anyhow, they didn't count much at the last election except in Maine, Vermont and one backward precinct in the Ozark mountains.

Friendly French Visitors. IT SEEMS we were cruelly wrong in ascribing mercenary motives to those French financiers who've been dropping in on us lately. They came only to establish more cordial relations. Of course, there's a new French bond issue to be floated, but these visits were purely friendly and altruistic.

Still and all, I can't help thinking of Mr. Pincus, who invaded the east side to invite his old neighbor, Mr. Ginsburg, whom he hadn't seen in years, to be a guest at Mrs. Pincus' birthday party.

He gave full directions for traveling uptown, then added:

"Were we ill now it's a von of dose swell walk-up flats. So mit your right elbow you gif a little poosh on the thoid button in the doorjam downstairs and the lock goes click-click and in you come. You go up two floors and den, mit your other elbow, you gif one more little poosh on the foild door to the left and walk in—and will-mommer-be-surprised!"

"Vait," exclaimed Mr. Ginsburg. "I could get to that Bromix. I got brains, ain't it? But also I got fingers and thumbs. Vot is de poosh-mit-elbow stuff?"

Murmured Mr. Pincus gently: "Surely you wouldn't come empty-handed!"

Visiting Ancient Ranchos. UNDER the guidance of Leo Carillo, that most native of all native sons, I've been visiting such of the ancient ranchos as remain practically what they were before the Gringos came to southern California. You almost expect to find Ramona weaving in a crumbly patio.

What's more, every one of these lovely places is lived on by one of Leo's cousins. He has more kinfolks than a microbe. They say the early Carillos were pure Spanish, but I insist there must have been a strong strain of Belgian hare in the stock. When it came to progeny, the strain was to the Pacific coast what the Potomac shad has been to the eastern seaboard. It's more than a family—it's a species.

And a mighty noble breed it is—producing even yet the fragrant essence of a time that elsewhere has vanished and a day when hospitality still ruled and a naturally kindly people had time to be mannerly and 'tix instinct to be both simple and grandly courteous at once.

Privileges of Nazidom

THE German commoner may be shy on the food rations and have some awkward moments unless he conforms to the new Nazi religion. But he enjoys complete freedom of the press—or rather, complete freedom from the press. And lately another precious privilege has been accorded him.

He may fight duels. Heretofore, this inestimable boon was exclusively reserved for the highborn. But now he may go forth and carve and be carved until the field of honor looks like somebody had been cleaning fish.

This increase in his blessings makes me recall a tale that Charley Russell, the cowboy artist, used to tell:

"The boys were fixing to hang a horse thief," Charley said. "He only weighed about ninety pounds, but for his heft—he was the champion horse thief of Montana. The rope was swung from the roof of a barn. Then they balanced a long board out of the loft window, and the condemned was out at the far end of it, ready for the drop, when a stranger busted in.

"Everybody thought he craved to pray," but that unknown humanitarian had a better notion than that. In less'n a minute he came inching out on that plank and there wasn't a dry eye in the crowd as he edged up behind the poor trembling wretch and slipped an anvil in the seat of his pants."

SYNOPSIS

Victoria Herrendeen, a vivacious little girl, had been too young to feel the shock that came when her father, Keith Herrendeen, lost his fortune. A gentle, unobtrusive soul, he is now employed as an obscure chemist in San Francisco, at a meager salary. His wife, Magda, cannot adjust herself to the change. She is a beautiful woman, fond of pleasure and a magnet for men's attention. Magda and Victoria have been down at a summer resort and Keith joins them for the week-end. Magda leaves for a bridge party, excusing herself for being late. "Remember," she says, "that night Victoria is grief-stricken when she bears her parents quarreling. The Herrendeens return to their small San Francisco apartment. Keith does not approve of Magda's mad social life and they quarrel frequently. Magda receives flowers and a diamond from Ferd Manners, a wealthy man from Argentina whom she had met less than a week before. Manners arrives a few hours later. Magda shows him a valuable Chinese shawl that has been in the Herrendeen family for many years. Vic is shocked when she learns her mother had contemplated selling it. Magda tells Manners a dealer had offered her $300 for the shawl. Magda takes Victoria to Nevada to visit a woman friend who has a daughter named Catherine. There she tells her she is going to get a divorce. Victoria soon is in boarding school with her friend Catherine. Magda marries Manners and they spend two years in Argentina. Victoria has studied in Europe and at eighteen she visits her mother when Ferd rents a beautiful home. Magda is unhappy over Ferd's drinking and attentions to other women. Vic dislikes him, but for her mother's sake is nice to him. When her mother and stepfather return to South America, Victoria refuses to go with them because of Ferd's unwelcome attentions to her. Magda returns and tells Vic she and Ferd have separated. Meanwhile Keith has remarried. Victoria is now a student nurse. Magda has been to love with Lucius Farmer, a married artist. While she and Vic prepare for a trip to Europe, Ferd takes a suite in their hotel.

CHAPTER IV

Victoria looked sympathy, distrustfully. "We'll be gone in a week, Mummy. Then won't it be better?" Magda looked at her daughter soberly. "I'm forty-two, Vicky, and I've never liked—anyone before," Magda faltered, with a little difficulty. "It isn't only myself—truly, Vic, it isn't. But it's to hurt him so horribly—to ruin his life, now when he's just beginning to succeed—that's what kills me," Magda whispered. "But you're separating, Mother. We'll be gone in a few days. That'll help," Victoria said, forcing herself to gentleness and sympathy. "That's just it, Vic. It'll kill him." Tears came to Magda's eyes. "But he'll have his work, and his wife and children—" Victoria began and stopped. "His wife means absolutely nothing to him, Vic. They've been nothing to each other for five years. He told me so." "But Mother," she presently offered doubtfully, "doesn't a man belong to his wife?" To this Magda superbly made no answer. With an expression of patient endurance she rose and swept into her room. When the bright soft morning came, Magda was exhausted. Her face was bleached and bloated with tears, her eyes swollen, and the hair that had so often been pushed off her forehead during the fevers of the night hung in careless locks and showed darkness at its roots. Victoria was dressed in silk pajamas, having her own breakfast, when her mother awakened; she set Magda's tray on the tumbled bed before her. But her mother could not eat. She drank a little coffee, set the tray aside. "Vic," she breathed, "what shall I do?" "Mother, you mustn't cry so. Ferd's coming up this morning; he'll be here for lunch!" "Ferd knows," her mother whispered, not opening her eyes. "Well, what does he think? Is he—what does he say?" "Nothing. It amused him, I think," Magda said, with more bitterness than Victoria had ever seen in her before. "You wouldn't like to divorce Ferd?" Victoria asked doubtfully. "If Lucius got a divorce?" "He won't hear of it." "Ferd won't!" It was an exclamation. "No. He's frightened to death of that Campbell woman. She's going to be on the Loughborough yacht; he knows that the minute I'm out she'll be in. He's not trying to get her, or if he's not he's beginning to feel that he will some day. As long as he's married to me he's safe." She was silent, staring into space with narrowed, somber eyes that were reddened with tears. "Mummy, I have to remind you that Ferd's coming up today. He has tickets and things, he said." "Can you talk to him, Vicky darling? Lo, that's a lamb," Magda said gayly. "Tell him I had to go down to Burlingame—and that I felt terribly..." Magda was rummaging about in a bureau drawer; she spoke absently. "Today and tomorrow are our last days," she said. And presently she gave Vicky an absent-minded kiss and was gone. It was five o'clock when Victoria got home; Magda had evidently preceded her by only a few minutes and was lying flat on her bed. "Vic, we had a very serious talk this morning, you poor chicken, and I've been thinking about you all day," Magda said, her eyes rounded over her teacup. "I'll tell you what's happened, and what we decided. We're not children, this isn't a first affair, and there are a great many other persons to consider. So... So—the upshot of it all is, Vic, that you and I sail on Saturday, and that it's all over!"

Magda was a little subdued and pale in the morning, but showed no other signs of her recent emotion; the day was exciting with final purchases, much talk of wardrobes and plans. Vic wandered out to the balcony, looked down at the waterfront over which the mist was softly closing. Through the cold dusk the fog horns were steadily sounding. "Horrible weather to go through the Gate!"

"What makes you say that?" Magda asked, looking up from her letter.

"Heavy fog. You can't see the Konalel. Maybe that's she, going along now. I hope Ferd's made her!"

Vic Awakened With a Start, With a Sense of Something Wrong.

"They'd wait for Ferd. They may not even sail. What is this, darling—the eighteenth?"

"Tomorrow's the twentieth."

"Of course!" Magda reached for the trilling telephone. "Tell Mr. Farmer to come up," she said immediately. And then to Vic, "I'm going out with him for just a little while."

"Call me if I'm asleep when you get back!" Vic answered, going toward her room. She heard Lucius' voice a few moments later; her mother's voice. "One more day of this," she said to herself.

Vic awakened with a start, with a sense of something wrong. The telephone was ringing, and someone was knocking at the door. The room was filled with dusk and fear and confusion.

At the door it was Otto, with the dinner card. On the telephone was Mollie Jervis, saying good-by. Victoria answered both claims; ordered oyster stew and brown toast and meringues; snapped up lights. But she still felt frightened and bewildered; her forehead sticky with perspiration; her throat thick.

"Goodness, what horrible dreams!" She went to her mother's door, saw only dusk and confusion and emptiness within. "She's late," Vic yawned, seeing a clock's hands at seven. "Maybe she's taking a bath."

The bathroom was empty, too. Perhaps Mother was going to have one last dinner with her Lucius. Perhaps she had left a note somewhere; it might be in her room.

Victoria went in there, lighted lights. She saw the note on the dressing table, a large square note addressed to "Vic." And even before her eyes reached its first words "My darling, you must forgive me..." somehow she knew. "I never thought of this!" she whispered aloud, in the tumbled desolation that seemed now like a deserted battlefield, like an ocean after a wreck.

Her glance went on. She saw the word "Tahiti," the word "Malolo," the words "snatch our few years of heaven..."

Victoria went to the balcony and sat down in a green iron chair. Her legs had failed under her; she felt cold, but her face was burning. One trembling hand clung tight to the note; in the empty hotel rooms behind her the lights shone brightly over the packed handsome trunks, with their bands of white and blue.

Coming into the diet kitchen, at six o'clock on a summer morning, Florence Flood Dickenson discovered it empty, except for a solitary figure at the end of the long table. The girl raised her head and showed a weary face that was yet keen with sensitiveness and sympathy and lighted with a tired little smile.

"Hello, Dicky," she said, in a hoarse sweet voice.

"Oh, is it you, Herrendeen?" Miss Dickenson asked. "Have a nice vacation?"

"Marvelous. How's everything gone?"

"Oh, beautifully. We missed you, of course, but everything's gone marvelously."

Two probationers came in with trays. A boy put his head in the door, said, "Miss Rockwood?" and vanished. The hospital day had begun.

"Vicky, tell me, do you like Dr. Hardisty?" Louise Mary Keating asked interestedly, a few days later. "Very much," Vicky said abstractedly.

"Vicky, I'll bet you're in love with him! They say every woman he meets is in love with him." Miss Keating bit into a chocolate; looked at it filling thoughtfully. "I oughtn't to touch these," she said.

"I'll bet Vic hates to give up the Keats kid," Helen Geer observed, watching her. "You won't see Dr. Hardisty any more now after tonight, Vic."

"Well, as a matter of fact, I will," Vicky said, beginning to smear her face with cold cream, after tying a towel over her tawny hair. "When little Kate Keats goes home I go with her. I've been there before, you know, and Mrs. Keats asked me yesterday to come back. Her mother isn't very well, and if she goes away with the doctor she always leaves a nurse with the children."

"And then will you see Dr. Hardisty every day, Vic?"

"Not every day. But they're great friends. A lot of good it would do me to fall in love with Quentin Hardisty," Victoria went on practically. "He doesn't know I exist."

The Keats home stood out on Pacific avenue with the long lines of the Presidio eucalyptus trees and the Golden Gate below the drawing room's northeast windows, and a sweeping view of the bay and the mountains that framed the bay from the upper floors.

Victoria liked the atmosphere of the house; she said it reminded her of a book.

Victoria, who had gone to them from the hospital as Kate's nurse, had been kept on after Kate's recovery because of Duna's scarlet fever, and after that because of the feeble age of Mrs. Chauncey Clements, the children's English grandmother. Gently, agreeably, without any unpleasantness, Granny was dying. Victoria had a small room next to the old woman's luxurious one on the first bedroom floor, and the easy task of watching her dignified departure from a life in which she had behaved for eighty years with admirable decorum.

Violet Keats was in her early forties; her husband perhaps ten years older. She adored the small, blinking man with his stuffy gray mop "as only an English gentleman can adore a man," Vic told Catherine.

"We're dining alone, Victoria, you and I," Mrs. Keats said one day. In her crisp, brisk way. "I want to talk to you!"

It was when they were seated at the little table downstairs an hour later that she made a first attack upon Victoria's confidence. "You're so perfectly charming with the children that I shan't feel quite happy until you're in a fair way to have a few of your own," she said.

"Not I!" Vic smiled, shaking her head.

"You don't mean that. No girl means that!"

"Most girls don't, I dare say. But I do. I've had a queer education along those lines," Victoria added, half to herself.

"You mean your mother's life?"

"Not only Mother. But all her crowd, all women who make love, passion, so important, who persuade you, or almost persuade you, that it is right to go wherever your heart goes. It's all so artless."

"You ought to set your cap for Quentin, Vic. He's as completely disillusioned as you are."

"Dr. Hardisty?"

"Certainly he is. In his heart he despises women. He thinks—Johnny tells me that he thinks that they're all alike—weak and selfish and ready to break up anything or anybody's life for a little pleasure."

"Did he tell Dr. Keats that?"

"That's the impression he always gives."

"That amazes me," Victoria said, "because if ever any man had his way with women it is Dr. Quentin Hardisty!"

"Yes, but it doesn't mean anything, Vic."

"You knew his first wife?"

"Very well. I'd left her—or rather she'd left me downtown about ten minutes before she was killed. She was driving her own car—she drove like a crazy woman, everything she did was wild, and she had this crash. They got her to the hospital and poor little Gwen was born an hour later. Quentin's wife was a terrible girl—rich and spoiled and—oh, I don't know, flighty. He's never been very happy, poor boy!—There's Johnny at the door now, Vicky," she broke off to say. "Ah, and Quentin with him—come in both of you—are you frozen, have you had anything to eat?"

"We're starving!" Dr. Hardisty, shedding outer garments in the hall, said in his deep voice. "Vicky'll go get us some eggs, won't you, Vicky?"

The girl raised her head and

By JEANNE

GERTRUDE STEIN DROVE AN AMBULANCE

PERHAPS your brother or your father went over to France with the A. E. F. and saw a rattling old French ambulance jolting over the shell-torn roads with two women on the driver's seat. One, a husky, healthy woman with hair clipped short and heavy masculine shoes, was Gertrude Stein; the other, tall and angular and more feminine, was her secretary, Alice B. Toklas. Gertrude Stein was born in Allegheny, Pa., in 1872. Much of her childhood, until she was five years old, was spent in Europe. Then her family moved to California, and she was raised in San Francisco and Oakland. After attending Radcliffe college, she went to medical school at Johns Hopkins. She settled in Paris in 1903, and the world may have lost a great surgeon as she abandoned the scalpel to carve out a career as an author.

She paid to have her first book printed, because no publisher would accept it. Wide recognition came to her with the publication of her book, "The Autobiography of Alice B. Toklas," in which she uses her secretary's life story as a means of praising her own accomplishments. There she asserts that her book, "The Making of Americans," is the greatest ever written. Her motto, "A rose is a rose is a rose," and some of her sentences such as "Toasted Sudio is my ice cream," or this one from her play, "Four Saints in Three Acts" (there were actually many more saints and there were four acts). "If a magpie in the sky on the sky cannot cry if the pigeon on the grass alas can alas and the magpie in the sky on the sky and to try and to try alas on the grass alas the pigeon on the grass and alas" have made many critics think that the strain of ambulance driving may have been too much for her.

FANNIE HURST LIVED LIKE HER CHARACTERS

HAVE you read "Back Street," or "Five and Ten"? Have you wept and thrilled over the shop girls of Fannie Hurst's short stories? Fannie Hurst, herself, was once a waitress, a nursemaid, a salesgirl, and a sweatshop worker. Had you met her then, you could hardly have known that some day she would be hailed throughout America as a leading novelist. Fannie Hurst was born in Hamilton, Ohio, in 1893. She was raised in St. Louis, Mo., an only child who had many lonesome hours for reading. At fourteen, she submitted blank verse to the Saturday Evening Post. Spurred on by ambitions, she wrote until three and four in the morning while a student at Washington university, and for years wrote without having a single story accepted. From the Saturday Evening Post, alone, she received 35 rejection slips.

Her first encouragement came from R. H. Davis, editor of Munsey's and success followed swiftly. Her first book, a collection of short stories, was published in 1914, and her works appeared regularly thereafter, including "Mannequin" in 1926, which was awarded a prize of $50,000 by a moving picture corporation.

Fannie Hurst now lives in luxury in New York city. A handsome woman, she loves fine furs, rare faces, and brilliant colors. What a contrast to the humble scenes that made possible her successful interpretation of shopgirl hearts and souls are the rich surroundings her persevering ambition has won for her!

Cool, Smart, Comfortable

COOL is the word for Carrie when she wears one of these smart new frocks by Sew-Your-Own.

No matter whether she's three or thirty, a June bride or a proud mama, Carrie will find what she needs for summer comfort here.

The young frock with the interesting middle, and sporty inverted pleat is one that's going in for extra credit at summer school. It has that advanced chic which readily distinguishes co-eds' clothes. If you're campus bound (or just bound for an ordinary vacation) be sure to have a couple of versions of this fashion first with you. Then you'll be set for that heavy summer schedule.

Lines for a Princess.

Second to none in the summer is this princess dress. As fit for golf as it is for dancing, you can see at a glance that this is the one dress you can't be even half-way happy without. Fresh in spirit, dainty in detail and becoming to all figures this simple-to-new frock will introduce countless women to new chic this season. Come on, Milady, shake hands with Chic.

Only when we're very young are we privileged to wear dresses as cute as this one. The most unaccustomed seamstress can make it with its half dozen pieces; the merest remnant will suffice for material. There is more than ordinary intrigue packed in the diminutive skirt that shows a couple of darling dimpled knees so lusciously sun tanned. Use it as a cool, cool top with panties as the ideal hot weather attire, or slip it on as an apron—either way it will be a fine little companion for mother's pet this summer.

The Patterns.

Pattern 1250 is designed in sizes 12 to 20 (30 to 38 bust). Size 14 requires 3 1/4 yards of 39 inch material plus 4 1/4 yards for braid trimming as pictured.

If Things were made by Hand

Critics of the machine and mass production methods seldom consider what the machine has done in making more and better things available to more people.

According to the National Machine Tool Builders' Association, a large automobile manufacturer recently estimated that a car which today sells for $600 would cost at least as much as $3,500 if made by non-mass-production methods.

It isn't hard to see what this would do to automobile production when we note that in 1935 in the above $3,000 wholesale price range, 2,428 automobiles were sold in the United States and Canada. But of all price ranges somewhere in the neighborhood of 4,000,000 cars were sold this same year.

Here are some other facts about what things would cost if made by other than mass production methods.

A leading typewriter manufacturer estimates the cost of a typewriter at $1,000 instead of slightly more than $100.

An alarm clock would sell for at least $25, according to the vice-president of a leading alarm clock firm.

An electric refrigerator manufacturer states that refrigerators made experimentally cost approximately six times as much as those made on production assembly.

Steel Company's Fair Exhibit

San Francisco, July 2.—A display costing a quarter of a million dollars will be the United States Steel Corporation's contribution to the 1939 Golden Gate International Exposition, it was announced today.

A contract reserving 10,830 square feet of exhibitor space in the Building of Mines, Metals, and Machinery was signed yesterday by Ambrose N. Diehl, president of Columbia Steel Company, West Coast subsidiary of the nation's leading producers of steel.

"Our largest exhibit, the San Francisco-Oakland Bay Bridge, is already on display," Diehl said. "We are proud to have been the builders of the great bridge which will serve as the portals of the Golden Gate International Exposition and over which millions of visitors to 'Treasure Island' will pass."

"By our participation in the 1939 Exposition we are reaffirming our faith in the growth and industrial expansion of the West."

Postoffice Advance July 1

Three New Mexico postoffices will be advanced July 1 from the fourth to the third class, placing them in the presidential grade. Dulce, Mogollon and Tierra Amarilla are the offices showing the increase in receipts necessary to make the grade.

Hot Springs, Lovington and Socorro are to be advanced from third to second class offices, putting the employees under civil service and raising their salaries.

Tomorrow night is the big American Legion dance at community hall.

Americans Spend For Pleasure

One measure of American living standards is the amount of money spent for travel and recreation. Americans, for travel by air, land and water spend about six and one-half billion dollars yearly. Commercial amusements such as motion pictures, theatres, clubs, radios and radio broadcasting claim some two and a quarter billion dollars. Nearly a billion dollars is spent upon games, sports and outdoor life.

Refrigerator Gauge Free

An instrument for measuring refrigerator temperatures is being offered free of charge to any adult person owning an ice refrigerator in Carrizozo according to announcement today, by Carrizozo
Hardware Company of Carrizozo, local Frigidaire dealers.

"The advice we are offering,"
said Mr. F. A. English, manager,
"is a cold gauge. There is nothing tricky about it since its design is based upon the same principle as a standard thermometer. The only difference is that it is not necessary to read and interpret figures which ordinarily represent degrees of temperature.
Since it is intended to tell whether conditions in the food compartment are safe or unsafe, it is equipped with just three divisions, or zones. These are the 'too warm zone,' the 'safety zone' and the 'too cold zone.' Within a few minutes after being placed in any kind of ice box, it will point to one of these three conditions, thereby enabling the user to take the necessary action.

"Foods which are perishable must not be permitted to remain in any place in which the temperature is about 50 degrees.
This temperature has been determined by scientific experts after many years of study and research. Most scientists agree that below the 50 degree point and above the 32 degree point, lies the zone of safety. This, of course, sounds very simple, but as a matter of fact, one of the most difficult things that a refrigerator has to do is to maintain all food compartment temperatures within these limits. In most cases they rise above the 50 degree point at least during parts of the day or week.

"Whatever type of refrigerator one may be using, from now on he need no longer be in doubt as to its performance. Any adult who will call at our headquarters will be given a cold gauge absolutely free. There will be nothing to buy, no contest to enter, nothing to turn in. Ours is a free service being offered in the interest of a broader public education in the matter of better food preservation."

Importance of Trees

The juniper is one of the lesser species of trees in the lumber statistics of the United States and considering the country as a whole does not figure as one of the important species. In the Southwest, however, it is one of the most important species due to its extensive use as fire-wood.

Juniper is often found half or even three-quarters dead. This is the nature of the trees and these same trees may live on for a number of years in that condition.
In removing fire wood think a little in the future and take only entirely dead trees. On National Forest lands there is a heavy penalty for removing live trees without a permit, these rules were meant to include the half dead juniper.

It is hard to realize the real worth of trees for watershed protection and for spreading seed as it cannot be estimated in dollars and cents. A tree takes a hundred years to grow and only a few minutes to destroy,
they were put here for our use,
let's use them wisely.

Jim Samples and Billy Davidson of Carlsbad were here Sunday visiting friends.

Mrs. Eva Emerson and son Amos and daughter, Eula were in town Monday from Baca Canyon.

LIVING UP TO MY AD

Giving you tops in Mileage

I know the trouble. So many oil ads yell mileage, that you can't tell one way or another. I don't want my own ads to be in that class, so I'd like you to know all I'm staking, when I personally recommend Conoco Germ Processed oil to you. In my case, you see, I'm the owner of my business. And there's nothing makes repeat customers for me like my Germ Processed oil... or I ought to say, the long mileage it gives you. The patent Germ Process makes this oil get fastened real firm to the bearings and cylinders and other parts—as if they'd been built with an actual plating of oil that can't separate ... can't thin out and burn right up. Neither is it going to run down every time you stop. Then you can't make any "dry starts" with Oil-Plating, and right there is where engineers say you will end a good half of all the wear you used to get in Summer. The less wear, the less oil your engine eats. You'll get on to this yourself, from your cool quiet Oil-Plated engine. And that's how I make another good friend for my Conoco Germ Processed oil.

Geniuses Not Born Eccentric, Declares New York Scientist

Gifted Children Are Studied in Clinic

Langhorne, Pa.—If men of genius are eccentric or insane, it is not because all geniuses are born queer, but possibly because of lack of understanding in their education and family life. Dr. Harvey Zorbaugh, director of the Clinic for the Social Adjustment of the Gifted, New York university, told an audience at Woods' schools.

Among a hundred gifted children whose development is being watched at the clinic, five are so extremely gifted as to be clearly in the class of potential genius. In terms of IQ, these children all score at or above 180, a "normal" score is 100. One child registered 204 on this mental scale, the others were respectively 180, 190, 190, and 200. Such genius is rare, Dr. Zorbaugh said. Probably not more than 24 would be found in all New York's 1,000,410 public school children.

All Well Adjusted.

All are well adjusted, socially competent young persons, Dr. Zorbaugh told the Conference on Education and the Exceptional Child.

In three generations of the five families of these children there is but one relative who may be suspected of a psychotic episode," he said. The mother of one child is eccentric although it has never been necessary to put her in a hospital.

At present these young prodigies are tall, healthy children ranging in age from five to fifteen—all of them normal mentally, physically and emotionally.

Their Futures Uncertain.

"We cannot predict the futures of these children," Dr. Zorbaugh said. "So far, they and their families have had careful guidance. The children have all had unusually fortunate educational experiences. If, as they grow older they become unstable, we believe it will be due to the clinic's inability to control the hazards of development to which such children are exposed."

"If society showed the interest in its children of genius that it shows in its idiots, we might speak more confidently. We spend millions of dollars yearly, for research and education, in our feeble-minded."

"An equal amount invested in our gifted and talented children would yield an immeasurably rich return—in a deeper understanding of the nature of giftedness and talent, in the increased social productivity of the gifted elements of our human population."

Waste Products of Farm Used to Make Better Roads

Columbia, Mo.—A new method with which durable roads can be built by simply adding to the soil a cheap chemical mixture of resinifying materials such as furfural and its derivatives, has been developed by Dr. Hans Winterkorn of the Missouri College of Agriculture. The chemicals are obtained primarily from waste agricultural products—products grown in the average cropping system of a midwestern farmer.

The process will make it possible to build satisfactory surfaces in many places where gravel crushed rock, and other aggregates are not readily available. The method also is expected to be used extensively in establishing the base for concrete and other types of highway surfacing.

Salmon's Homing Instinct Subject of Dispute

Stanford University, Calif.—Salmons' alleged homing instinct, or tendency to return at maturity to spawn in the waters where they were hatched, has become a point of debate among marine zoologists.

In Science, Dr. Zoologists H. Rich of Stanford university takes issue on the subject with Dr. A. G. Huntsman of the University of Toronto. Dr. Huntsman has declared that salmon do not "go home," but Dr. Rich points to the existence of many distinct strains of Pacific coast salmon as evidence that they do. If salmon went up "just any old river" the distinctions between varieties would disappear through hybridization, he believes.

World of Future to Be Peopled by the Nations of East?

Increase in Japan Is Indication of This

By MARJORIE VAN DE WATER
PRESENT-DAY struggles of a single European nation to stamp their own culture on the world seem peculiarly futile and pathetic when viewed in the light of certain figures now published for the first time in an American publication by Princeton university and the Population Association of America.

Will the world of future years be one peopled by the nations of the East?

This is the question that can be read between the lines of those marshaled rows of figures in the Population Index. Japan, although losing a grievous number of infants in extremely high infant mortality, is growing at a rate so high that it is not comparable with that of either the northern European nations or North America.

It's Girls That Count.

Although the girl child is not so important as her brother in some civilizations, she is the one who counts most in the calculations of the vital statistician. It is the number of daughters born to the women of proper age for motherhood that eventually determines (along with death rates) how many of their kind shall walk the earth.

So figures of total population increase or decrease do not interest statisticians so much as those more significant ones showing how many daughters may be expected to be born and grow to child-bearing age for each woman now living and at a reproductive age.

United States Falls Short.

In the United States, births of daughters are not numerous enough to insure replacement of one generation by the next. In Japan, the reproduction rate is high enough to double the population in each succeeding generation. France, in the depression year 1933, lacked 18 per cent of enough births to insure replacement. England lacked 27 per cent, Germany 30 per cent and Austria 33 per cent.

The hand that rocks the cradle appears to be working out a new destiny for the future of the world.

Yale Students Form Club for Research in Rocketry Field

New Haven, Conn.—Rocketry, long considered off the main path of the engineering sciences, is attracting the attention of student engineers at Yale. The recently organized Yale Rocketry club, consisting of engineering students and devoted to the study of fundamental rocket principles, plans to carry out actual experimentation and research in this field.

Experimentation in rocketry has long passed the phase of sending rockets for the purpose of gathering pertinent facts about the efficiency of the device. Proving stands built to hold the rocket motor securely to the ground, furnishing data on fuel flow, fuel tank and combustion chamber pressures, and jet reactions. This is the method the engineers of the Yale Rocket club plan to use.

The most pressing problems for rocket research are those concerning liquid fuels, used today almost to the exclusion of the old-fashioned explosive powder mixtures; and those dealing with constructional metals for the motor and the entire rocket. The Yale engineers point out that while liquid oxygen is now generally used in conjunction with either gasoline or alcohol, there are many drawbacks to this fuel mixture. They believe future development in the field of rocketry awaits the discovery of a more dependable source of power.

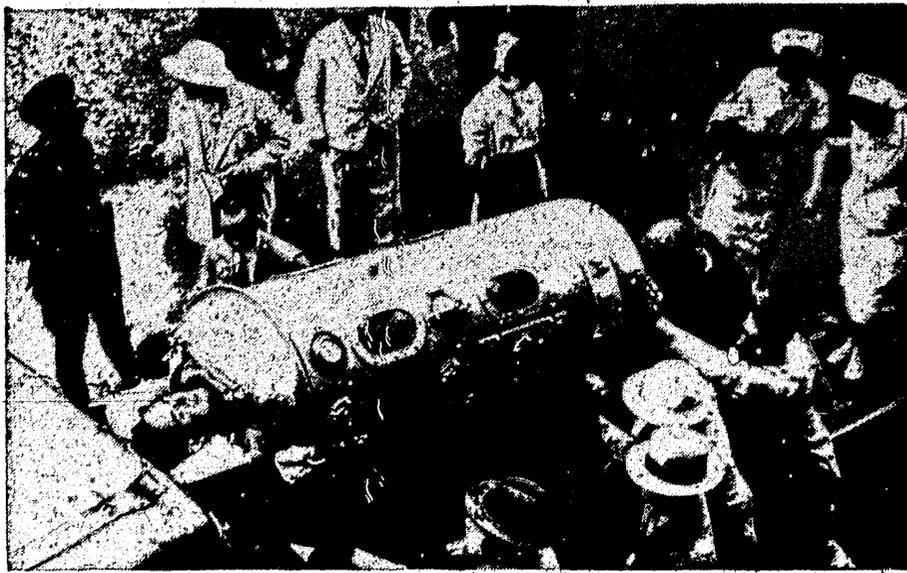

Astronautics, as this new field of science is called, is expected to yield information of an exploratory nature concerning the stratosphere. It is believed that astronautics will provide hitherto unknown facts for the meteorologist, astrophysicist, biologist, and aeronautical engineer.

Pink-Hearted Cabbage From Imported Stock

Washington.—A pink-hearted type of cabbage has been grown from stock imported from Turkistan, at the experiment station of the United States Department of Agriculture at Beltsville, Md., Dr. Roy Magruder reports in Science.

The heads are green outside. As the leaves are stripped off, the inner ones are first the usual cabbage-white or cream color. Then, varying from a half-inch to three inches in diameter, there is an inner heart around the terminal bud, of pale pink or magenta color.

Mechanical Reveille Supplants Bugler

Private Frank Kaufhold, of the Second air base at Mitchell field, N. Y., seems amazed as he hears Mitchell field's new mechanical bugle blow the familiar strains of "Reveille." His own bugle is now outmoded with the new contraption that has been adopted here. Although it takes some of the romance from army life, bugle calls, mechanical ones we mean, now have exceptional clarity and perfection.

Household Hints

By BETTY WELLS

"THAT'S my best color," commented Dottie Young as we admired the lovely old blue of her living-room walls. And it does bring out her eyes and makes her skin simply bloom.

She used her old mulberry twist weave rug, then hunted to find curtains of a pinkish cast but verging toward a pale mulberry tinge rather than the usual peach tone. This was a rayon gauze that hangs delicately but it's not really transparent. She followed this tone through a deep pinkish lavender which she quilted and used as a slip cover for a pair of chairs. All the other furniture she slip covered in a sprawling floral on a light beige ground but with deep purply-reds in the pattern—almost mulberry they were.

Crystal for accents, lilacs and lavender sweet peas and irises and delphinium are Dottie's favorite flowers here. She highlights them with pink flowers when she can get just the right pink. Flat silver frames for her pictures made unexpectedly distinctive details . . . and her silver tea set repeated that note.

Dottie herself is usually to be found in something trailing and creamy colored, or else in simple pastel linens that go so well with her eyes and that room.

The reason this room pleases us so much is because it not only suits dainty Dot, but it has substance enough to match her broad shouldered gray tweeded Henry. And the furniture coverings can stand a growing family since they all zip on and off for cleaning.

Italian Furniture

"I went on a European trip and shipped back from Italy some very beautiful Renaissance furniture, including a desk, book-case and two Dante's chairs—all hand carved in a very dark wood (almost black) which I placed in my living room. I made two dark red velvet cushions for the two chairs," wrote one of our readers.

"My three-piece living room set of taupe mohair does not go well with this other furniture, and I would like to either re-upholster my three pieces with some sort of damask or get something new." The background of my rug is a dark red scattered with dark blue, green and yellow (a Persian hunting scene). Would you advise me to get a new living room set, and if so, what period or style and what color should I get to go with my Italian pieces? Or if I would re-upholster the one I have now, what colors should I have the three pieces and what material? I have no Venetian blinds and I use no curtains. What color and what kind of material should I get for draperies? Should I get a floral pattern or stripes?

"My dining room is small—9 by 11 and very near my living room. I saw a very pretty India druggist rug. Do you think it would be appropriate? What would you suggest?"

Here are our prescriptions: If the living room furniture isn't too fat and overstuffed looking, it could be reupholstered and used with the Italian pieces. If it is too bulbous looking, replace it with heavy but rather straight line pieces. These can be quite as comfortable as the other type. In any event, we'd like dark dull red for this—either damask or brocade velvet. But we'd not have the chairs the same, old blue would be our choice for these two chairs. A third upholstered chair could be in a deep dull gold. A blocked linen on a natural ground might be a good idea for the draperies—something with a large scale motif and a Renaissance type of design. Tall brass lamps and accessories of brass would be appropriate and attractive here, and for the wall perhaps a reproduction of an early Italian painting.

Tips on Redecorating

When redecorating a room the first thing to consider is which furnishings to keep and which to replace or re-upholster. Determine which colors will predominate in them before selecting the colors for your walls and ceiling. Well-tailored slip-covers will save your furniture and add a note of freshness to the room. They can also repeat the hints of your curtains or introduce a new color note.

WHAT means this demonstration, in home, in street, and hall? What means this celebration joined in by great and small? Why all this bustling, bustling, and why these banners gay? What are these things denoting? It's Independence day!

What means the gay bells ringing? Why do our hearts rejoice? What means the children's stinging? Each one with heart and voice? This yearly contribution, which never shall know decay, Tells of the Revolution— It's Independence Day.

Fraternal thoughts' engender, A country's love that sticks, 'Tis why we all remember The War of 'Seventy-Six, And so we come displaying Our national love this way The Stars and Stripes are saying "It's Independence Day!" —Frank E. Williams, in Crit.

First FOURTH of JULY Celebration

FOURTH OF JULY first was observed as a holiday with a "public levee at the home of the President" in 1783, three years after the close of the Revolution, it is revealed in papers brought to light by the historical research department of the Carnegie Institution of Washington, states a writer in the Washington Star.

The first of these is a letter from Rufus King to Elbridge Gerry, both of whom were members of the Continental congress, then meeting in New York. It reads:

"D'r Gerry, in consequence of an order of Congress a public levee was held from 12 to 3 o'clock at the House of the President at which were present the members of Congress, Officers of the Great Departments, Foreign Ministers etc., etc. the Cincinnati are in the highest prosperity. They celebrate the Day with a splendor exceeding any thing within the practice of Government—of course draw the Huzzas and admiration of the Multitude, the Chapter of these Knights appointed a deputation of four members to present the anniversary congratulations to the President and members of Congress. They attended the Levee, and I was witness to the degradation of Government in seeing them recd. etc. etc." That same day the New York Daily Advertiser printed an account of the celebration:

"The morning was ushered in by the ringing of bells and a discharge of cannon. At 12 o'clock a grand procession (headed by city watchmen and closed by citizens) . . . to the house of his excellency the Governor—and from thence to the house of his excellency the president of Congress, where the compliments of the day were first paid to his excellency by the Governor, and afterwards by his worship the mayor, in behalf of the citizens of New York. From whence they returned to Corro's tavern, where a cold collation was provided by the corporation. And the day was closed by the ringing of bells and the firing of cannon."

There follows an account of the meeting of the Cincinnati at Corro's tavern in commemoration of the day, at which suitable orations were delivered by Colo. Hamilton and Walker. One of the 13 toasts was, "May the powers of Congress be adequate to preserve the General Union."

CONGRESS' FIRST SITTING

THERE were two reasons why the Constitution framers provided for such a long lapse of time between election of a congress and its first sitting. The chief reason was that the framers believed it unwise to have legislators take office soon after election because of the danger of hasty action. It was felt that time should be allowed for the heat of the contest to cool. The secondary reason was that considerable time was required for members to travel from distant parts.

Fourth of July Parade

HATS off! Along the street there comes A band of bagpipers, a rattle of drums, A band of color beneath the sky: Hats off! The bag is passing by.

Hats off! Along the street there comes A band of bagpipers, a rattle of drums: And loyal hearts are beating high: Hats off! The bag is passing by. —Henry Holcomb Bennett.

Liberty's Sacred Shrine

SCATTERED along the Atlantic coast region from Boston to St. Augustine are countless historic old brick structures invested with the glamour of romance, of stirring adventure, of heroic sacrifice and earnest, patriotic devotion to country, but nowhere is one instinctively moved to bare his head in a sincere reverence so much as in Independence Hall, where more than 150 years ago a handful of patriots dared the wrath of Great Britain and declared for American freedom. Even today one seems to feel the presence of those dauntless spirits in the very atmosphere of those

Independence Hall Still Stands as Patriotic Inspiration

plain, old-fashioned rooms, hung with mementoes of the days of '76. About it hovers the best traditions of American patriotism. Other walls have rung with patriotic declaration, with impassioned oratory and bold defiance, but nowhere has loyalty to country and earnest devotion to the cause of liberty found such deathless expression as was voiced in that Declaration of Independence announced by the ancient Liberty bell in the cupola overhead on that memorable Fourth of July so many years ago.

Doubtless more loving care has been lavished upon this old building than upon any other in America. It stands today virtually as it was in '76.

Here the Declaration of Independence was adopted on July 4, 1776.

JOHN ADAMS' WISH

IN A letter written July 3, 1776, John Adams revealed to his wife the hope that the fourth would become "the great anniversary festival" sustained with "poetry and parade, shows, games, sports, guns, bells and illuminations."

AROUND the HOUSE Items of Interest to the Housewife

Picking Raspberries.—Red raspberries will keep better if picked early in the morning.

Preserving Broom.—Soaking a broom in boiling salt water every two weeks will help preserve it.

Fire-Prevention.—To avoid fires keep all cleaning cloths that have been treated with oil in a covered metal container.

Washing White Gloves.—White gloves can be kept white by washing them after each wearing with a soft brush and a pure soap.

Keeping Peeled Apples.—Peeled apples can be kept white until used by keeping them immersed in water to which a little salt has been added.

Apple and Rhubarb Jelly.—Cut apples into quarters. To every pound of apples add one cup of rhubarb juice. Simmer until the apples are soft. Strain through a jelly bag without pressure. To each pint of juice add one pound of sugar. Boil slowly, removing all scum until the juice will jelly. Pour into tumblers and seal with paraffin.

Luncheon Dish.—Boil 2 pounds spinach, press out all moisture, and chop fine. Have ready 1/2 pound cooked macaroni and 2 hard-boiled eggs cut into slices. Well grease a pie dish, put in a layer of macaroni, sprinkle with grated cheese, and season with pepper and salt. Then put a layer of spinach with sliced eggs on top. Repeat the layers and pour in a little milk. Cover with a thick layer of breadcrumbs with pieces of butter on top. Bake for 10 minutes.

Orange Peel Marmalade.—Take six orange rinds, or four orange, two grapefruit or orange and lemon rinds, cover with water and pinch of soda, cook till tender; drain. Take out white pulp with spoon. Put rinds through chopper, yielding two cups chopped rind, add water to cover, about two cups; add sugar, about two cups; simmer slowly for three hours. Bottle in the usual way.

Removing Peach Stains.—Fresh peach stains can be removed from linen with a weak solution of chloride of lime.

HEADS U. S. CHAMBER

George H. Davis of Kansas City, who was elected president of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States at its recent annual meeting in Washington, D. C. He succeeds Harper Sibley. Mr. Davis is a banker, a farmer and a merchant. At its convention the Chamber opposed President Roosevelt's proposal to revamp the Supreme court and called for amendments to the Wagner labor act.

Mr. Slim Buie and C. A. Stillwell, S. P. water service men were here from Luna yesterday.

New Deal's "Won and Lost" Record

The United States News recently compiled what it terms "The New Deal's 'Won and Lost' Record in the Supreme Court."

Two Court terms have been concluded in which Administration measures have been decided. In 13 cases, the Administration has been sustained. In 11 it has lost.

Cases in which it has been upheld includes such measures as Gold devaluation, the TVA, the arms embargo, the silver purchase policy, the 2nd Frazier-Lemke farm mortgage moratorium act, the social security measures.

Cases which it has lost involved the NRA, the AAA, the Guffey Coal Act, the Rail Pension Act, and the Municipal Bankruptcy Act.

Most favorable to Administration laws, says the News, was Mr. Justice Cardozo, who cast 19 votes for New Deal laws and 5 against.

Most unfavorable was Mr. Justice McReynolds—5 for New Deal laws, 19 against.

It is interesting to note that Mr. Cardozo was appointed by a Republican—President Hoover; Mr. McReynolds by a Democrat—President Wilson.—Industrial News.

Mr. Paul Mayer, who recently sprained his arm has almost recovered from the painful injury.

I. O. O. F. State Officers Distinguished visitors who will be at the installation I. O. O. F. next Tuesday night are Mr. Wm. J. Keith of Raton, Grand Master; Mr. Lem H. Wright of Clovis, Grand Secretary and Dr. Kibbe of Clovis, Grand Instructor.

Mr. and Mrs. Lorenzo Garcia came from Roswell Sunday and will make their home here.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Zumwalt who have been employed at the Kandy Shop have returned to Nogal to live. Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Zumwalt are now living in the apartment in the rear of the Kandy Shop.

Friday Sherrill and Mitchel Ellis were business visitors here from Jicarilla yesterday.

Congressional Reflections

Office of Senator Chavez Washington D. C., June 29, 1937. —The United States Senate yesterday saw one of its busiest days as far as New Mexico is concerned. In rapid succession it considered and passed the measure in the Interior Department Appropriation Bill benefitting the Elephant-Butte Irrigation District in New Mexico and that in Texas, as well as S. 2086, the Arch Hurley Conservancy District Bill.

The Rio Grande project item was a part of the regular Interior Department Appropriation Bill which the Senate was considering yesterday. The project is sponsored jointly by Senators Hatch and Chavez, Congressman Dempsey of New Mexico and Congressman Ewing Thompson of El Paso, Texas. It provides that the two districts be relieved of the obligation of making payment on the construction costs chargeable to power development on the project and it alleviates the distress of the two districts which have been struggling along in an attempt to carry the immense charges incident to the construction of the works and dams.

The Arch Hurley Conservancy District is well on its way to becoming a reality. Thirty thousand acres of eastern New Mexico dust bowl land will be transformed into productive acreage resulting in increased wealth and resources for New Mexico. The rich lands and communities that will arise thereon will be a tribute to all those who shared in the dreams and work that went into the project and more especially will they be a tribute to the tireless energy and far-seeing vision of the man after whom the district is named, Mr. Arch Hurley of Tucumcari. The bill is sponsored jointly by the New Mexico Delegation in Congress. It goes to illustrate the tremendous good that can be accomplished for the State of New Mexico with proper teamwork by its elected officials.

The nomination of Fred G. Healy to be State Administration in WPA for New Mexico vice Lea Rowland was received by the Senate for confirmation.

It was open field day on the Indian Bureau when the Senate considered the Interior Department Appropriation Bill. Repeated charges of waste, extravagance and inefficiency were made against bureau administration by Senators Clark Chavez and Wheeler. Not one voice in the United States Senate was raised to defend the Bureau. It shows the attitude of the Senate and places Senator Chavez, who has been fighting the Indian Department, on a very firm ground.

Into the Senate Hopper today went the bill for the transmountain diversion project introduced jointly by Senators Chavez and Hatch.

Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Zumwalt, proprietors of the Kandy Shop are now selling candy, paper and notions at wholesale and retail. They have put in booths and serve ice cream and cold drinks to the public. They invite their friends and patrons to call frequently.

Mr. M. U. Finley has just finished pebbledashing the Riley McPherson house which he purchased in June.

Miss Cora Crews of Oscurio was shopping in Carrizozo yesterday.

Body of Tall Men
The association which is composed of tall men is called the National Society of Long Fellows. It was organized in the spring of 1927, for the purpose of giving publicity to the needs of exceptionally tall people in the way of special accommodation.

Military Reservation
The Canal zone, a United States military reservation, has an area of 568 square miles, including land and water.

Meat Essay Contest Winners

Two New Mexico young people, Miss Gayle Prue of Roy and Miss Jessie Mae Brazel of Tularosa, have just been announced as state champions in two national contests.

Miss Prue is state winner in the second national meat poster contest and Miss Brazel has been awarded first place in New Mexico in the fourteenth national meat essay contest. Committee of prominent artists and home economics authorities selected the winners.

A total of 20,581 students from 1,017 high schools representing every state participated in these competitive events, according to the National Live Stock and Meat Board, sponsor of both contests.

Miss Prue's winning poster stressed the importance of meat in proper nutrition. The title of Miss Brazel's winning essay was, "Modern Methods of Meat Cookery."

The national champion in the poster contest was Miss Jane Morry of Detroit, Mich., while Miss Eleanor Duncan of Liberty, Mo., won the national award in the essay contest.

The selection of all winners was made by committees meeting in Chicago. The chairman of the poster committee was Miss Georgia Rawson, president of the Women's Advertising Club of Chicago. The chairman of the essay committee was Dr. Louise Stanley, chief of the Bureau of Home Economics, United States Department of Agriculture.

The National Live Stock and Meat Board sponsors research in meat and furthers education on the subject, cooperating with leading educational institutions and the United States Department of Agriculture. The Board represents all branches of the livestock and meat industry.

Miss Brazel is a granddaughter of Mrs. Anna Brazel.

Automobile Plants in Detroit Active Again

Automobile plants in Detroit are active again with production schedules fast reaching the normal pace to meet heavy Spring demands.
