CARRIZOZO, NEW MEXICO, FRIDAY, SEPT. 17, 1937

NUMBER 12

Lincoln County Frontier Days

On October 15th and 16th the first annual Lincoln County Frontier days will be held in Carrizozo, N. M. The American Legion Posts of Carrizozo, Capitán, Corona and Ruidoso will sponsor the affair which will furnish a diversified program consisting of rodeo, racing, athletics, platform dancing and booths with many concessions. Read their ad on page 8. In next week's paper a complete program will be printed.

Lujan-Valverde

Friends and relatives here received invitations to the marriage of Miss Clara Lujan of Stockton, California, to Mr. Jesus Valverde also of Stockton.

The marriage took place last Saturday, September 11th at 10 o'clock in St. Mary's church in Stockton.

The bride is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ben Lujan who were former residents of Carrizozo. She was born here and made her home here until her parents moved to California in 1924.

The groom is a son of Mrs. Reyes Valverde, and is a promising young business man. Friends extend best wishes.

Court Items

Dutch Burch was tried and convicted Tuesday for larceny of cattle.

Wednesday Homer Rorrer, Clifford Borderrack, Halley Rorrer and Clifford Wilson were tried for the breaking and entering house at Luna. At first three pleaded guilty and one not guilty. Later all four pleaded guilty. Manfor Chavez was tried for failure to keep the hide of an animal he slaughtered.

R. A. Crenshaw, accused of larceny of two horses was being tried yesterday. The jury was selected yesterday morning.

I. O. O. F. Notes

Last Tuesday night a fairly large group of Odd Fellows met for the regular business meeting. Next Tuesday night two more candidates start upward on their road of Odd Fellowship. Let as many as possible can be on hand.

Messrs. M. U. Finley and T. E. Kelley went to Nogal Lake on a fishing trip Wednesday.

News Notes of the Carrizozo Schools

The football team has their first game with Capitan next Friday. The boys plan on starting off right by winning their first game. The school is behind our team 100 per cent and we are all anticipating a great season.

The Ancho Bus students are congratulating themselves on having the finest bus in the land. But a student from another bus puts it this way, "The whooping youngsters and the big red buss is the most noticeable of all the busses."

Twenty-five men reported for football Friday. New suits were ordered for the team. Now watch for the date of the big All school and community dance for ATHLETIC BENEFIT.

The Library in High School is becoming more and more useful every day. Some stringent regulations have been put into use for the protection of library books. Ninety-nine per centum of the students appreciate the improvements being made in the Library.

The responsibility for school notes this week rests on the Third year English class. If other classes think they can improve on these notes we hope for them to have a chance in the near future. A Junior's comment, "Our faculty is made up of pretty good teachers, some of whom are not only good teachers but really seem to want to help a fellow."

Miss Ward has three typewriting classes this year. There seems to be an increased interest in typewriting. Three more typewriters would be a valuable addition to the high school equipment.

The supervised-study plan in high school is proving both interesting and practical. A few of the teachers are spending too much time for the recitation and not enough for the supervised study.

In the English classes theme writing is receiving special emphasis. The new library books are proving a valuable assistance to theme writing.

Several teachers are beautifying their school rooms by the addition of beautiful bouquets. If any one is in doubt as to how to arrange a bunch of flowers artistically, they should consult Miss Gerda Smith of the Junior High school Faculty.

Mr. Walker of the Lyric Theatre is making a liberal offer to all grade school students. At the end of the first three months he is giving the student in a room who has the highest standing in class a free pass to the show for the following three months. We only regret that we can not have the same arrangements for high school students.

Retired Professor Dies

Battle Creek, Mich., Aug. 30, 1937.

Dr. Edward E. Cole, 79, retired college professor, died at 7:45 a. m. today in the home of his daughter, Mrs. Roy Hamilton, 37 East Avenue South, where he had spent the last year. He had been in ill health since suffering a stroke about a year ago, but he had been able to get about the house most of the time.

Dr. Cole spent his early years in Henderson, Ky., where he was born August 5, 1858, the son of Jacob and Margaret Cole.

Although his father was a Baptist minister, Dr. Cole had affiliated with the congregational college in the west.

Besides his daughter at whose home he died, Dr. Cole leaves another daughter Miss Margaret Cole, and a niece Miss Carmen Pitt both of Washington, D. C. with whom he had lived during part of his retirement; two sisters, Mrs. Laura Pope Duquesne, III, and Mrs. Frank Hall, McLeansboro, Ill, and two grand children, Betty and William, Hamilton both of Battle Creek. Mrs. Cole's death occurred in 1933.

Funeral services will be conducted from Farley funeral home at 2 P. M. Tuesday the Rev. Charleton Brook Miller in charge. Burial will be in Oak Hill Abbey, beside his wife. Battle Creek Times.

He had many friends here who regret to learn of his death. He was superintendent of the local high school for several years.

"King of Kings"

Don't fail to see "King of Kings" at the Methodist church Sunday evening at 8. The greatest dramatic story of Christ ever produced. We will actually be able to hear Christ Himself speak. The CCC camp has kindly offered us their folding chairs to fill all available space in order to seat the people. We are anxious to have people from every part of Lincoln county. You will never forget this picture. Both Catholics and Protestants have exhausted all the ancient sources and writings to produce this picture. So we invite the Catholics to come as well as other denominations and those of no church. There will be more Biblical information in this picture than you can teach in a life time. An actual movie talkie has been produced where characters equal any in the great passion play produced in Switzerland. We have all longed to see the great passion play, now is your opportunity for twenty five cents and ten cents. If more come than can get in the church we will give a second show, or a midnight matinee. Come early to get a seat.

Rev. J. A. Bell

Mr. and Mrs. M. U. Finley have as a guest their little granddaughter, Judith Pilant who will attend school here this winter.

Dr. and Mrs. R. T. Lucas arrived from Kansas City last Monday, and will visit the Burko family until Saturday.

Mr. E. I. Griffin of Adobe was a Carrizozo visitor Wednesday.

Mr. Walker of the Lyric is adding newer and greater improvements to his building which will include ladies' rest room, etc.

County Commissioner P. R. Sandoval was visiting relatives in Carrizozo yesterday.

On another page of the News will be found an interesting letter from Prof. J. M. Helm.

Mr. Hugh Grafton of Angus was in town yesterday buying ranch supplies.

Mrs. Nellie Branum, who recently returned to Masonic hospital in El Paso isn't doing so well, so she will leave next Saturday to visit her son, Linza in Los Angeles for the next few months. Mrs. Margie Clouse will visit in El Paso Saturday and see her mother off.

Mrs. Thomas Karr and children came home Tuesday from Brooklyn, Iowa, where they had been on account of the serious illness and death of Mrs. Karr's father.

The football dance comes off tonight at the Community Hall at 8:30 p. m. Sat Chavez and his orchestra. Come out and support your football team. Admission $1.00. A good time guaranteed.

Let The Good Work Go On

The Village officials, the County Democratic chairman, the Highway Department and Governor Tingley have all joined forces so the streets of Carrizozo are being oiled, and every highway leading into town has received a coat of oil and gravel. The drive across the Mal Pais and the drive toward Ancho are already a delight. We who reside here are extremely grateful for what has been done and for the promise of the other projects which are already started or will be before many days.

JAPS CARRY WAR SOUTH

Checked by Chinese... Japan Aims to Subdue China Once for All... Lewis Rebukes President Roosevelt

Japan tries to force her will with machine guns in Shanghai.

Opposition Surprises Nippon

JAPANESE naval guns and bombers carried the war 600 miles south of Shanghai when they attacked the port of Amoy, which houses a huge Chinese fort and arsenal, opposite the island of Formosa. Their bombs carried little effect and the shore artillery chased the warships, completely disabling one. The battle was but thirty miles from Hong Kong, recently ravished by a typhoon.

Elsewhere along the far-flung front the Japanese were meeting with opposition the caliber of which they had not expected. Along the Wosung front, 200,000 Chinese, including crack German-trained divisions, were successful in holding back 60,000 Japanese; it was said to be the severest opposition the Japs have met since they fought Russia in 1904.

Japanese aerial bombardments continued in the Chapei, Kiangwan, Taichong and Yanchong districts of Shanghai. The continued peril of the international settlement and the French concession spurred the American, British and French consuls to demand of both the Japanese and Chinese that their forces be withdrawn from that vicinity. Scores of noncombatants were daily being killed and wounded there by falling bombs and shells.

But Japan's long-awaited "big push" had not yet materialized. It was believed large reinforcements were being awaited. The Chinese man power was beginning to tell against the inferior numbers of the Japanese.

Only in the northern province of Chahar did the Japanese make real progress. There they captured the capital city of Kalgan. A commission of 100 "prominent" Mongols and Chinese (many of them known to be associated with the Japanese army) was setting up a new "popular" autonomous government under Japanese control. The Chinese soldiers driven out of Chahar were reported concentrating in Shansi province, to the south.

Plague Upon a Plague

JOHN L. LEWIS, fire eating chairman of the Committee for Industrial Organization, let fly a rebuke at President Roosevelt for implied backwatering on campaign promises and hinted at the possibility of a third party in the elections of 1940. In a radio speech he declared:

"It ill behoves one who has sipped at labor's table and who has been sheltered in labor's house to curse with equal fervor and fire impartiality both labor and its adversaries when they become locked in deadly embrace."

This was regarded as an answer to the "plague on both your houses" which President Roosevelt called down on extremists of both sides in the "little steel" strike. In his campaign for re-election he had "sipped at labor's table" to the extent of a half-million-dollar contribution to the Democratic national committee by the C. I. O.

Lewis suggested that it would be a wise move for labor and agriculture to wage their battles together politically.

"Labor has suffered just as our farm population has suffered," he said, "from a viciously unequal distribution of the national income."

"The exploitation of both classes of workers has been the source of panic and depression, and upon the economic welfare of both rests the best assurance of a sound and permanent prosperity."

Chinese Won't 'Cooperate' JAPAN'S aim in the undeclared war is to make China submit once and for all to her will, the Japanese government virtually admitted through its foreign minister, Koki Hirota. The seriousness of Japan's intentions were obviated when Emperor Hirohito, departing from precedent, referred to the conflict in detail in a public statement from the throne, and when it was revealed that Nippon is preparing more appropriations for her already heavy war chest.

Hirota blamed the Chinese central government for the present fighting because it refuses to "co-operate" with Japan in "maintaining peace" in eastern Asia. Japanese military action against China, he said, was taken to make impossible the recurrence of the current hostilities. "Japan," he said, "has no other objective than to see a happy and tranquil North China and Sino-Japanese relations so adjusted as to enable us to put into practice our policy."

"Since China, ignoring our true motive, mobilized her vast armies against us, we can do no other than to counter by force of arms."

The emperor, in addressing the houses of parliament, greatly impressed his subjects with a review of the war, arriving at much the same conclusions as Hirota had. The session of parliament was called to consider the appropriation of $592,000,000 for the campaigns in China, raising the total of the nation's war chest to $737,000,000.

Dodd and Hull Disagree

BY THE time this is printed William E. Dodd may no longer be United States ambassador to Germany. In an interview he vigorously opposed any American representation at the Nazi party congress in Nuremberg. Secretary of State Cordell Hull refused to comment upon Dodd's attitude, but announced that the United States would be represented at the conference which will celebrate Hitler's rule by Prentiss Gilbert, American charge d'affaires in Berlin.

Secretary Hull explained that the action was being taken merely as a friendly gesture to the Nazi government, with whom he said the United States is in complete diplomatic accord. Diplomatic reports have indicated that Dodd, now vacationing here, had made himself unpopular in Berlin because of criticism of the Hitler government's policies. Rumor had it that he might not return to his post.

Eleven ambassadors, thirty ministers and seven charges d'affaires were scheduled to attend the rally, the most conspicuous absence being that of the papal state's representative. Most distinguished guest expected was Premier Benito Mussolini of Italy.

Palestine Plan Approved

GREAT BRITAIN'S plan for the establishment of separate Jewish and Arab states in Palestine received the favorable report of the League of Nations' permanent mandates commission. The scheme, evolved to solve the differences forever arising between the Arabs and Jews, would give them each a state of their own and leave a third division of Palestine, the part containing Jerusalem, Bethlehem and other important shrines, under British mandate.

The 235-page report said it was "conceivable the new states resulting from partition might remain under mandate until they gave proof of ability to govern themselves."

Postage Stamp War

HONDURAS and Nicaragua were on the verge of running up the curtain on their own little show in honor of Mars, the god of war—all over a postage stamp. Nicaragua issued a stamp bearing a map which showed an area along the Honduras boundary as "territory in dispute." Honduras claimed it was an affront to their sovereignty, citing the Spanish award which both sides accepted in 1908 and which was supposed to have settled the territory question. Honduras was further incensed when Nicaraguan radio speakers hinted the Honduran army couldn't lick a postage stamp, and proposed sending troops into that country.

'Black Death' in Shanghai

AS IF there were not horror enough in Shanghai, the ill-fated city found itself face to face with a new peril—bubonic plague. The outbreak of the disease, first discovered in the French concession, where most of the American population lives, was traced in large part to the sanitary difficulties in removing the bodies of Hongkew civilians killed by bombings, artillery shelling and machine-gun fire.

Sanitary officers in the concession and the international settlement fought frantically to check the spread of the dread cholera. They were hampered by Japanese military forces which insisted upon keeping closed areas where there still remained bodies to be buried.

Admiral Harry Yarnell, commander of the United States Asiatic fleet, cancelled all shore leaves for sailors and ordered Chinese hands off American ships. With the port of Shanghai closed to American shipping other than warships, because of the ever-increasing danger of bombs and artillery fire, 500 Americans who had intended to leave on the next liners out of port were stranded, making a total of 2,000 American inhabitants who remained exposed to the double dangers of warfare and cholera.

Evacuation of Americans from Shanghai was difficult with the ban on shipping. Warships appeared the logical means of rescue, but there were few in the Shanghai area capable of taking aboard large loads of passengers. Accordingly, a cruiser squadron of six ships was being prepared to leave the United States, steam to Shanghai and remove those stranded there.

The Japanese embassy warned foreign nations that they had better advise the Japanese navy of movements of ships into the vast blockaded area, lest these be mistaken for Chinese supply ships. The embassy intimated that cargoes of ammunition and military supplies might be denied admittance and advised foreign ships that it might be a good idea to permit Japanese authorities to inspect their cargoes before entering the blockade.

YOU Figure It Out

IT IS true that the first session of the seventy-fifth congress appropriated a vast amount of money, but just how much? It depends upon your point of view.

Rep. John Taber (Rep., N. Y.), ranking minority member of the appropriations committee, in preparing a compilation for the last issue of the Congressional Record, estimated that congress had appropriated $10,252,022,650, all for use in the current fiscal year. He contended this amount of spending in one fiscal year would result in a deficit of between $3,000,000,000 and $4,000,000,000, and a national debt of more than $40,000,000,000.

Publication of Taber's statement drew a reply from Clarence Cannon (Dem., Mo.), chairman of the committee. He presented a series of tables which he claimed proved that the last session appropriated only $9,427,005,934, of which only $7,440,049,022 was for the 1938 fiscal year.

Then, just to sharpen the wits of laymen who sought the answer to the puzzle, Carter Glass, Democratic senator from Virginia, who has often differed from the administration on points of expenditures, offered his estimate that $2,303,400,693 had been appropriated.

War May Soon Be Luxurious

ONE good argument for peace is that the rising costs of raw materials are making war more expensive than ever. This was demonstrated when London financial circles revealed that parliament will be asked to vote supplementary funds to carry out Great Britain's armament program for the present year.

In February experts figured the cost of armaments at $7,500,000,000 over a five-year period. Now it is apparent that many more millions will be required. The cost of anti-mony has increased from $335 to $465 a ton, copper from $225 to $275, heavy scrap steel from $18.75 to $22.50, tin from $1,135 to $1,295, and zinc from $105 to $115. Steel ship plates a year ago cost $46.75 a ton; now they are $57.

Japs Eye Sino-Russ Pact

IN TOKYO it was widely believed that the non-aggression pact signed by the Russian and Chinese governments was accompanied by a secret military agreement which would ally the two enemies of Japan to the extent that Soviet munitions, military advisers and aviators would be dispatched to China.

The charges were that by the terms of the secret agreement China fully recognizes Soviet activities in Outer Mongolia and the province of Sinkiang in return for a joint defense understanding against Japanese advance in China.

Mediterranean Menace

REGARDED as a renewal of attacks on shipping in the Mediterranean due to the Spanish civil war was the submarine attack upon the Russian freighter Timiryazev off Algiers. When the ship sank after being struck by a torpedo the captain and the crew of 29 were picked up by a fishing boat and brought to Algiers.

None of the crew could identify the attacker, although all reported they had seen a submarine's periscope just before the blast.

What Irvin S. Cobb Thinks about

Tombstone Inscriptions.

PHOENIX, ARIZ.—A gentleman took me sightseeing through a cemetery that abounded in proud mausoleums and stately shafts.

I figured he wanted to show me that rich folks continue to enjoy the utmost luxury even after becoming deceased.

How futile and how vain are most tombstone inscriptions. They give the dates of birth and death—events in neither of which the departed had any say—so—unless he committed suicide. And just as the average graveside eulogy is a belated plea for the defense, offered after the evidence is all in, so an epitaph is an advertisement for a line of goods which—permanently has been discontinued.

Somehow this burying ground stuff reminds me of hired critics of other men's efforts. The difference between professional book reviewers and the other obituarists is that the latter do their work after you pass on, but the reviewers can't wait until you're dead to write your literary death notice for you.

Maybe critics are to authors what fleas were to David Harum's dog; they keep authors from brooding on being authors.

Catching Barracuda.

LEO CARILLO is quite a yachtsman when not acting for the green or leading parades. He's our champion parade leader. It's got so they don't dare let a colored funeral go past his house for fear he'll rush right out and head the procession.

On one of those days when there wasn't a parade, he took Victor Moore and me out on his boat. We caught a mess of slim, yet fragrant fish. Leo called them barracuda, but, with their low retreating foreheads and greedy jaws, they looked more like chyster lawyers to me—the kind who chase ambulances and eventually get disbarred.

Glad, Mad Artists.

HERETOFORE, the glad, mad geniuses, who produce masterpieces of sculpture and painting which resemble nothing on heaven or earth or in the waters below except possibly some bad dream which these parties had once while feeling pretty bilious, have depended upon the ultra-ultra among the intelligentsia for support.

But now one hears divers millionaires may endow for them an academy or a gallery—or possibly it's an asylum for the more violent cases. Anyhow, there's money behind the cult, and when money gets behind a thing in this country, it usually flourishes, provided the money doesn't get too far behind, as happened in 1929, when the rest of the country was trying to figure out what had become of the deposits and investments, which we, of the sucker class, had entrusted to our leading financial wizards.

Still, we of that same ignorant mass-group do not have to buy examples of this new school. We don't even have to look at them unless we're in Germany and are escorted to the official state-run display by a regiment of Nazi storm-troopers.

And, aside from their ideas of what constitutes art, it's said that some of the artists themselves are not really dangerous, merely annoying in an itchy sort of way. In other words, they're all right if you don't get one of 'em on you.

Pagilistic Authors.

I'M ALWAYS missing something. On the occasion of one really historic battle between a brace of distinguished writers, I yawningly left the scene before Messrs. Sinclair Lewis and Theodore Dreiser quit swapping hard words and started swapping soft blows.

And it was just my luck to be out here recently when Ernest Hemingway threw a book—or maybe it was a publisher; anyhow some such hard, knobby object—at Mr. Max Eastman and Mr. Eastman retorted with a tremendous push which damaged Mr. Hemingway not at all.

The typical writer, no matter how red-blooded his style may be, packs all his wallops in his pen and never in his fist. There have been exceptions. Once Rex Beach cleaned out a night club all by himself, but his opponents were hoodlums, not fellow-writers. He had something substantial to work on.

Some of my belligerent brethren in the writing game never lose an argument, but, on the other hand, none of them ever won a fight. Neither did their literary opponents. In fact, next to the average professional pugilist, I can think of no one who, in the heat of combat, equals a writer for showing such magnificent self-control when it comes either to inflicting personal injury or sustaining same.

Here's What to Sew

THIS is not a wishing-page, Miss lady, even though it is from a book of exclusive fashions by Sew-Your-Own! You can run any one of these frocks through your machine in short order. The patterns are so easy to follow (even the simple-pure will say they're simple) and the finished article so exciting you'll be apt to ask yourself, "Why have I waited so long to Sew, sew, sew my own?"

All-Occasion Dress.

Here is one frock that belongs in every woman's wardrobe. You'll look prettier in the kitchen, more comfortable at work—and in your silk crepe version—prettier in afternoon leisure or shopping on the avenue. The shoulder-leeve-in-one construction makes easy sewing, and the full cut skirt with two kick-pleats serves well when one's in action.

Simple 'n' Charming.

A lusciously feminine frock for you, young but knowing ladies of fashion, is the model looking right at you from above center. You probably can't remember when you've seen one you've liked as much. That vivacious charm plus striking simplicity are the things about it that will make you remembered as the lady in red, or the lady in black, or the lady in what-color-have-you! It is especially easy to sew, too, thank you.

New School Frock.

You cute, little lady of fashion, this is your lucky day. You and Mommy will agree on this dress.

Indolence and Inability

There is room at the top fully as much because the intellectually indolent don't want to get there, as because of the inability of others to do it.

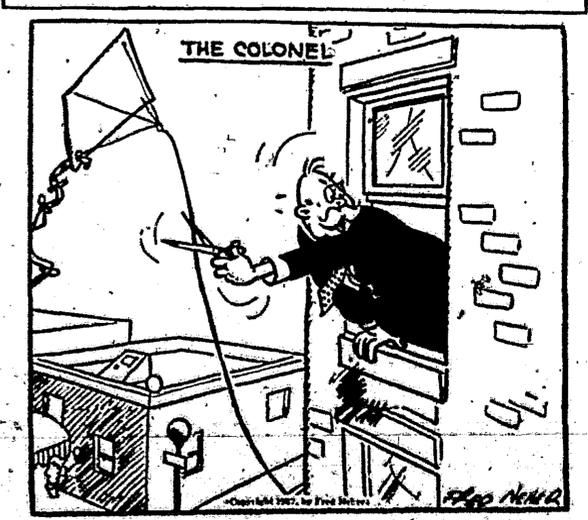

If one has a thousand friends he can't give proper attention to any of them.

There wouldn't be so many nobodies if self-respect were more generally diffused.

We all love best a friend who is sometimes stubborn, generally good-natured.

A recluse may keep track of what is going on by the newspapers, but he misses an enormous fund of sub rosa information that circulates solely by vocal repetition.

"All right, Serena," she said half aloud, apostrophizing the dim light that shone in the window she knew to be Serena's window. "All right—wait for him to telephone. He will. He said five minutes ago that he'd empty the ashtrays and lock the doors, and that always means he's going to telephone you. Let him tell you he's had a talk with Vicky, and she was surprisingly sensible, and say, 'Ah, lover, then maybe we can begin to play tomorrow!'"

"But from now on it's my will against your admirable little-girl innocence, Serena. He'll never get free of me, for I'll never consent to it. He'll never marry you while I live, and I'm not going to die! I'm going to be right here, and after a while you'll give in because there's nothing else for you to do. You belong to him now—and I know it, while he was telling me how strong you were, how controlled you were! You're his now—you've had all you're going to have from him—the rest is all mine! I'm the wife, and my children are the children, and I can wait. I'll know it all, and I'll keep still—I'll be pitied, and women will hint things to me, and I'll keep still!"

"You take your day, Serena—go ahead! Take a year, take two years. Flatter him, and meet him for lunch, and take his presents, and hate me. Hate me because I won't give you your way. But in the end I'll win!"

Victoria and Violet Keats sat on the Hardisty lawn on a hot spring afternoon and discussed, with limitations, their husbands and children, their homes, servants, and friends, their lives generally. The long Saturday had been spent by Violet and her own quartette, of youngsters with the Hardisty troop; now it was late afternoon, and the problem of getting Kate, Duna, Busty, and Bobo Keats amicably separated from Gwen, Kenty, Sue, Dicky, Bobo, and Madeleine Hardisty was like an uneasy undercurrent to the women's talk.

"I suppose you couldn't leave them all with us, Vi?"

"What, all four of them!" Violet ejaculated. "I couldn't leave one. Mother's birthday tomorrow."

"I'd forgotten that—although I sent her flowers."

"Did you really think to send her flowers, Vic?"

"I did, and a book."

"You're charming, and she really loves you, and always has," Violet said, touched into a rare display of feeling. "I don't know why you worry so about this baby of yours."

she added, going back to earlier talk. "He may be just slow. Duna was terribly slow; he didn't walk until he was nineteen months old."

Vic looked down at the yearling baby in her lap.

"Marty's not slow," she said gently. "It's more than that, Vi. My own boy!"

The last was murmured to the child, who looked up at her with smiling blue eyes. Small and relaxed and secure, he lay in her arms. He never fretted, he did not seem sick, but this littlest of the Hardistys had only been loaned to her for a while, and his mother knew it.

"Quentin think so?" Mrs. Keats asked abruptly. "You've had another opinion?"

"Knows so," Victoria spoke mildly, but her whole body was torn with a sigh.

Violet was silent.

"Isn't it strange?—this little fellow means more to Quentin than any of the others did. He's always loved them as soon as they got interesting, but only this one from the very start!"

"All men are like that," Violet put into the pause.

"Martin he adores. It's strange," Vic mused. "He'll come home night after night and sit holding him. He used to say Marty understood him; he doesn't say that now, he doesn't say anything."

"I feel so badly for Quentin," Vicky presently continued.

"For Quentin?" Mrs. Keats' tone was sharp and quick. She apparently reconsidered what else she might have added, and when she spoke again her tone was milder. "I feel sorry for you, my dear," she said. "I think you're a remarkable woman, Vicky."

"Oh, thank you!" Vicky answered gratefully, with a little flush.

"And so does everyone else," Violet persisted. "And sometimes there is someone I'd like to talk to!" she added, significantly.

Vic's eyes laughed, but there was a glint of warning in them, too.

"Because I adore Quentin—we both do," Violet proceeded further. "We both do," she repeated, trying to open a door.

"Quentin's a genius," Vic said simply, closing it once and for all. "How'd he like Germany, Vic?" the other woman asked, abandoning her other lead.

"He had a remarkable experience. He stayed with the Von Hoffmans and almost worked himself to death. But he said it was a wonderful experience."

"He got home last week, you said?"

"Last Saturday. He looks thin, older, somehow," Victoria said. "Ah, here they all come!"

Panting, breathless, exhausted, the children now emerged from cover and flung themselves about on the lawn. They ranged from Kate Keats and Gwen, sixteen years old, to Madeleine Hardisty, who was four. Brown, tall, handsome children in white shirts and tan shorts, they glowed, sparkled, shone with the beauty of bright eyes and clear skin, flashing teeth and tumbled masses of rich soft hair, firm young legs and arms. They had had luncheon on the lawn today; had had two swims of indeterminate length. Now Susan's brilliant thought was that the Keates should stay to supper, and that they should make it a picnic. Victoria considered this temperately.

"But Aunt Vi says that tomorrow's their Gran's birthday."

"But couldn't we go home on the train after dinner? Duna'd take us; he could take us the way he did the circus day?" Kate Keats pleaded eagerly.

"Oh, no, it's too much of an imposition, Vic!" Violet said.

"It's no imposition at all," Vicky assured her. She looked up over the baby's head and her eyes widened, although she did not smile.

"All Right, Serena," She Said Half Aloud.

"Here's Quentin!" she added.

There was a general swarm of children toward him, accompanied by the usual deafening uproar, and Quentin came up to the women with the younger members of his family hanging on him like limpets. Violet Keats thought he looked older indeed; there were touches of silver on his Indian-brown temples, and he seemed quieter, somehow; more like the old remembered Quentin; she liked the expression of his face. He as genuinely happy to see her; kissed her in the old brotherly fashion; they had not seen each other since his return from a three months' visit to Germany. Violet questioned him about it, and he sat holding the delicate little Martin very gently in his big hands, and sometimes kissing the top of the baby's dark fluffy little head. The question of the Keates remaining was presently raised.

"Next year—gosh, I can drive Uncle Quant," Duna Keats said manfully. "But gosh, Dad doesn't want me to until I get a license."

"But look here, Vicky," Quentin said, with his face brightening. "I've got to go to San Francisco and see a patient tonight; a woman we operated on this afternoon. I told them I'd be in about ten. Why not let me drive these roughnecks in with me, if their mother's willing?"

The ensuing wild pandemonium of the lawn in the spring sunset presently resolved itself into definite picnic plans. The children were to use the grill behind the old cow yard.

"Good to get home, Quentin?" Violet asked.

"Yes," he said quietly, unsmilingly. "It's good to get home."

"Well," Violet said, stirring, "I have to go. I must get started. You're sure my youngsters won't be horribly in the way tonight, Quentin?"

"In the way? Love to have 'em. I'll drop them at the house sometime after nine."

"I'll go in with you, Vi, and see you off," Victoria stretched her arms for the baby. "You come along with your mother, Mister," she said. "Nurse has something to say to you, young man!"

She called over her shoulder to Quentin.

"Coming?"

"I thought I'd sit here and have a smoke. It's so peaceful, Vic!"

"Oh, and stop at the barn before you come in, and see Moogy's puppies. Claus had some story about the little brown one. I told him you'd come out!"

Smiling, he turned the corner of the barn. A woman was standing there waiting for him. Serena.

CHAPTER XII

She was in pale blue, the broad straw hat that dipped about her face and lent an almost too picturesque beauty to her appearance had a childish blue ribbon about it; the pale scallops of the frail blue gown swept the young spring grass. Serena's eyes were at their bluest, too, grave loving, reproachful.

"Lover, I had to see you," she said. "Was this terribly stupid of me? I had to see you."

Quentin had involuntarily glanced back toward the garden and the house. He and she were sheltered by a dozen intervening hedges and trees and angles of fence. He looked at her unsmilingly.

"I don't quite like it," he said deliberately.

"Why, I went to see Victoria and her mother often while you were gone, why shouldn't I?" the woman said, in a sort of proud impatience.

"Don't look so serious; nothing happened! Darling, I had to see you. You know that I have to see you?"

He looked at her without speaking.

"What is it, dear?" she asked tenderly. "What have I done?"

Quentin Hardisty spoke quickly, almost with his professional manner:

"You've done nothing, of course. Don't take that tone—don't speak like that."

"Oh, but I will speak like that," Serena persisted lovingly. "Surely I have the right just to ask you what I've done, Quentin, how I've offended you?"

"You haven't offended me at all. I wrote you months ago—before I went to Germany—"

"I know you wrote me," the woman said, as he hesitated frowning and confused. "Why did you write me that hideous letter, Quentin? I only began it; I couldn't finish it. It's burned."

"I'm horribly sorry, of course," Quentin said gruffly, awkwardly in the silence.

"Sorry!" the rich sweet voice echoed. "But what are you sorry about, dearest dearest? Remember what you told me in the beginning, that you had been twice married without ever knowing what real love was, lover, that you and Vicky had acknowledged that, had married with your eyes wide open. Remember?"

"We can't talk about this here," Quentin interrupted, in a hard, cold voice.

"Where can we, then?" Serena asked, with a touch of steel in her own tone. "You got back a week ago today. I've not seen you until now. What about tonight? Can you come over about ten? Spencer's tired; he'll be in bed."

"I've got to go up to San Francisco tonight, I've a patient at the Dante hospital."

"Then I'll go with you."

"You can't. The Keats children are all here; I'm taking them in."

"Then I'll go in and drive back with you."

"I think Kenty's planning to do that."

"Kenty! As if you couldn't put him off! Ah, lover," Serena pleaded, coming close to him, pressing his arms with her own soft arm and hand, "tell me what's wrong, tell me what I've done."

"I tried to tell you in that letter," Quentin said, looking down into the tear-misted blue eyes raised to his own. "It's a horribly hard thing to say, I—I think we both feel it. It's all been a—it's the sort of thing that can't—"

Serena drew off a little, still looking into his eyes.

"You mean that you're going to punish me, for loving you, Quentin? You're going to make me feel sorry that I loved you so generously, gave you everything I could give? You're going to make me wish that I was calculating and wise, like other women? Are you going to fail me now?"

"It isn't a question of failing you, Sina. It's that—well, I know we're both sorry for the whole thing," Quentin persisted miserably.

Serena was regarding him with narrowed eyes; her breast moved visibly on constricted breath.

"You mean for me to go on quietly living with Spencer," she said, in a level voice, "and for you to go back to Vicky. You mean that you think, knowing what she might some day know, Vic will forgive you, and everything will be lovely?"

They're Not All Professors— Those Absent-Minded Ones

Absent-mindedness isn't confined to the professors; says the Commentator.

The late Dwight W. Morrow once telephoned his secretary from Philadelphia, to inquire, "What am I in Philadelphia for?"

Secretary Henry A. Wallace, when he was in Czechoslovakia, packed his passport in a trunk that was shipped to London, while he set off in the opposite direction.

And J. David Stern, publisher of the New York Post and Philadelphia Record, was hurrying along the street when he met a friend.

"Come on and have lunch with me," the friend said.

"If we go nearby," Stern said. "I'm late as it is."

They entered the nearest restaurant and sat down. Stern complained that he didn't know what was the matter with him, he didn't seem to be hungry.

"Beg pardon, sir," the waiter said, "but it's no wonder, sir. You just finished your lunch about ten minutes ago."

Clouds Pass By

The clouds I feared and worried about, and concerning which I wanted so much precious strength, lost their frown and revealed themselves as my friends. Other clouds never arrived—they were purely imaginary, or they melted away before they reached my threshold.—J. H. Jowett.

Helper of Humanity

He who helps a child helps humanity with a distinctness, with an immediateness, which no other help given to human creatures in any other stage of their human life can possibly give again.—Phillips Brooks.

A Great Motto

ONE of America's great business organizations has adopted a motto for the guidance of its people—a little five-letter word with a big meaning. It has been cut in huge granite letters over the entrance of recently constructed building used as a training school. It is made the theme of many employee discussions. It hangs over the desk of company executives. The word is THINK.

Educators, philosophers, preachers throughout the ages have written and talked about it. Rodin gave the world a famous statue called "The Thinker." "Think" is a significant word. It represents the only means by which human progress can be accomplished. It annoys people who have lazy minds, because thinking means mental effort. Practically all the accidents in the world are caused because people don't think. Thousands fail in life simply because they don't think. Others give great inventions to the world because they do think.—The Pick-Up.

a Safety Tip FOR YOUR WEEK-END TRIP

TAPPING RUBBER TREES ON FIRESTONE PLANTATIONS IN LIBERIA
From the Firestone plantations in Liberia comes an ever-increasing supply of the world's finest rubber. Money saved here and in manufacturing and distribution enable Firestone to sell a safer, first-quality tire at lower prices.

Here's Why FIRESTONE STANDARD TIRES GIVE YOU MORE FOR YOUR MONEY

DON'T take chances on your Week End trip. Protect yourself and family by equipping your car with a set of new first-quality Firestone Standard Tires. Firestone builds extra quality and extra safety into these tires and sells them at lower prices because Firestone controls rubber and cotton supplies at their sources, manufactures with greater efficiency and distributes at lower cost.

YOU GET EXTRA PROTECTION AGAINST BLOWOUTS—eight extra pounds of rubber are added to every 100 pounds of cord because every fiber of every cord in every ply is saturated with liquid rubber by the Firestone patented Gum-Dipping Process. This counteracts the internal friction and heat that ordinarily cause blowouts.

YOU GET EXTRA PROTECTION AGAINST PUNCTURES—because there are two extra layers of Gum-Dipped cords under the tread.

YOU GET EXTRA PROTECTION AGAINST SKIDDING—because the tread is scientifically designed.

YOU GET LONGER NON-SKID MILEAGE—because of the extra-tough, long-wearing tread.

You need all of these features to make your car tire-safe on your Week End trip. Firestone gives them to you at lower cost. Join the Firestone SAVE A LIFE Campaign today by equipping your car with a set of new Firestone Standard Tires—today's top tire value.

DON'T RISK YOUR LIFE ON SMOOTH WORN TIRES!

DO YOU KNOW

THAT last year highway accidents cost the lives of more than 28,000 men, women and children?

THAT a million more were injured?

THAT more than 40,000 of these deaths and injuries were caused directly by punctures, blowouts and skidding due to smooth, worn, unsafe tires?

At right is section from a new Firestone tire. Note the thick, non-slip protection against skidding, punctures, blowouts and skidding.

At left is a section cut from a smooth, worn tire, with non-slip protection worn off. Punctures, blowouts and skidding.

Mrs. Eva B. Smith, Editor and Publisher

Letter to the Editor

College Station, Murray, Ky., Sept. 9, 1937.

Dear Mrs. Smith: Here is the letter I promised to write as soon as I had time to get my breath after an exciting time dodging cyclones, lightning and the floodwaters of the Ohio river.

Of course people in New Mexico have high water and lightning experiences but the Kentucky cyclones take the very wind out of a fellow.

One day while down in town watching the refugees who had collected in Murray from Paducah, a cyclone passed over the city, took the tops off two or three buildings and moved on with but little more noise and excitement than a big air ship. I stood there several minutes, breathless, wondering if the act was to be repeated shortly but that was all for that day. I went on down to the refugee camps and heard the people relate their frightful experiences in fleeing the high waters in Paducah. When the whole surface of the earth in the city was covered with water the streets became rivers filling the lower stories of buildings, the people went up to the second stories, thinking the water would never get that high, but it kept rising and all the boats on the Ohio and Tennessee rivers were pressed into service taking the people to dry land. They were met there by land conveyances and distributed to near-by cities where they were cared for until they could return to their homes. Many had no homes when they returned and other provisions had to be made for them. But it is all over now and sometimes it seems that such disasters are things of the past. The floods of 1937 destroyed and some have but perhaps the lesson learned will partly compensate for the losses. We learned to appreciate the strength of a great government, the value of the Red Cross and good-neighbor-policy, and the importance of the principle, "safety first."

While the flood was at its worst the Mississippi and Ohio rivers were filled with federal soldiers and sailors in government boats to rescue the people and protect the levees. The Red Cross was sending in money from every state in the Union even far-off China and Japan sent aid, and already plans are being made to build seawalls to protect exposed cities along the Ohio river.

Last Sunday I passed through Paducah, Brook Port and Metropolis cities, all of them under water during the flood and I could see no sign of high-water damage. All debris is cleared away, houses repainted, new houses being built and practically everybody in good spirits. This week I took a trip through the country, saw many fat hogs and cattle and field after field of the finest tobacco that grows on uplands, and in the river bottoms corn that will make seventy-five bushels, and corn worth a dollar per bushel. The farmers here really seem to be over the depression. Practically all of them have new cars, comfortable homes and good roads. Most of the houses in the country are frame buildings, painted snow white with green roofs and window shutters and built colonial style.

I wanted to write you about the city of Murray, the fourth Monday, the college and the dogs but it would make my letter too long.

Best wishes for everybody in Carrizozo.

J. M. Helm.

Senator Chavez Visits Exposition

San Francisco, Sept. 15. -- Arriving here to participate in the ceremonies incident to the launching of a new TWA air service between San Francisco and New York, Senator Dennis Chavez, of New Mexico, delayed his return home in order to inspect Treasure Island, San Francisco bay site of the 1939 Golden Gate International Exposition and to visit points of interest in the city.

"My wife and I feel thoroughly at home in San Francisco," said Senator Chavez, "for, after all, the heritage of New Mexico and California is much alike."

"New Mexico as you know, has already named a commission for the San Francisco Exposition, and we are looking forward to the time when we join the rest of the world on your Treasure Island."

Guest of General William E. Gillmore, head of the department of governmental participation for the Exposition, Senator Chavez, after inspecting the Exposition site, declared the setting for the World's Fair of the West was unparalleled.

"Being air-minded," he said, "I was particularly interested in the plans of converting the site into an airport at the conclusion of the Exposition. It is admirably located for a commercial airport and should become one of the most important in the United States."

"I understand that all eleven Western States, as well as many others, have made plans to participate in the World's Fair of the West. The West indeed should be proud of the great fair being created to call to the attention of the world the wonders of this part of our country."

Dreamers and Doers

The world generally divides men into those two general classifications, but the world is often wrong. There are men who win the admiration and respect of their fellow men. They are the men worth while. Dreaming is just another name for thinking, planning, devising-- another way of saying that a man exercises his soul. A steadfast soul, holding steadily to a dream ideal, plus a sturdy will determined to succeed in any venture, can make any dream come true. Use your mind and your will. They work together beautifully if you'll only give them a chance. -- B. N. Mills in Forbes Magazine.

Ross Located North Pole in 1831

A paddle wheel boat was the first steam propelled vessel to attempt to find a Northwest passage from England to Asia. It was used by Sir John Ross, Arctic explorer. However steam power had to be given up. This trip, in 1829, was the second one made by Ross who on an expedition in 1818 had contacted the Cape York natives whom he named the Artic Highlanders, which has stuck all these years. This first trip was not considered a success. His boat was frozen tight in the ice and his party was forced to make a long dangerous march for food they stayed in the region from 1829 to 1833 when they encountered a whaler who took them home.

They made some remarkable discoveries besides determining in 1831 the position of the north magnetic pole. Only three lives were lost.

Ross was honored by many learned societies, and made a knight. In 1851 he became a rear admiral.

Atty. H. B. Hamilton is here this week attending to professional matters before the district court.

N. M. Crop Report, Sept. 1

Hot dry weather during August caused a rapid decline in crop prospects, and on September 1 production estimates for about all field and fruit crops were downward from those of a month earlier, according to the Monthly Crop Report issued by Fred Daniels, Agricultural Statistician, United States Department of Agriculture. While estimates of production of field crops were above those of recent years, they were below the 5-year (1928-32) average except grain sorghums, which is slightly above the average. All fruit crops are now estimated above those of recent years, and also above the 5-year (1928-32) average.

Corn: The corn crop is estimated at 3,105,000 bushels for the 5-year average (1928-32). The corn acreage is about 20 percent above that of 1936. Lack of sufficient rain and high temperatures during August caused rapid deterioration of the crop since August 1.

Grain Sorghums: The September 1 condition of grain sorghums was 61 percent of normal compared with 83 last year and 75 for the average, (1928-32). The crop is estimated at 4,875,000 bushels as compared with 1,950,321. There was a rapid decline in reported condition from a month ago and rain is badly needed, but the grain sorghum crops have withstood the dry weather better than other crops.

Beans: The production is estimated at 560,005 bags as compared with 288,000 bags last year and 615,000 bags for the 5-year (1928-32) average. There was some damage during August from hot weather and some fields are ripening prematurely. The condition of beans on September 1 was 36 percent of normal as compared with 40 last year and 62 percent for the 5-year (1928-32) average.

Hay: The All Tame Hay crops made favorable progress, especially on irrigated land during the past month, and the total production is now estimated at 261,000 tons, which is slightly below 266,000 tons last year. The Alfalfa Hay crop, which is the largest of the tame hays, estimated at 209,000 tons as compared with 209,000 last year.

Fruit: The total apple production is estimated at 1,109,000 bushels, which is greater than last year's production of 790,000 bushels and 1928-32 average of 842,000 bushels. Except for damage in southern counties by early frosts other sections of the state have normal or above crops. The peach crop is estimated at 32,000 bushels as compared with 56,000 last year and 76,000 for the average of 1928-32. The pear crop is well above normal with an estimate of 52,000 bushels. The grape crop is estimated at 1,120 tons which is smaller than last year's production of 1,300 tons, but larger than the 1928-32 average of 940 tons.

Household Hints

By BETTY WELLS

"I HAVE six children and I'm proud of it!" said the lady who lives on the hill. "I don't mean that I think I'm especially clever just for having them—don't get me wrong. But I think to have such a big family and manage my home as nicely as I do is quite something if I do say so myself. In fact I think I'm as much an artist as if I painted the pictures for the magazine covers."

We think so, too. Especially when she showed us the ingenious ways she had managed to tuck six children away in her small colonial cottage. It wouldn't have been any trick on a big budget, but on an income like theirs it certainly meant finesse.

The four boys were bunked together dormitory fashion with four cots all alike across one room. The walls were prepared in a simple all-over design with rather faint green trees on a white ground. The woodwork in this room was painted in the same shade of pale green while the curtains were of a plain fabric in bright red made with rings so you could pull them back and forth to serve as both glass curains and window shades. The main problem here was space for the boys to keep their things. Two small old dressers had the drawers taken off and a coat of light green paint, and this made room for one big drawer and one little drawer for each boy. In addition to this their mother bought four of those utility cabinets you see in the stores, one for each boy, to use for keeping his hang-up clothes. These four cabinets also got a coat of light green paint and stood side by side in a row against an unobtrusive wall. There wasn't room left for anything else when all this got into place, so the boys used their beds for sitting.

The two little girls have a room together where some thought had gone into creating an attractive effect on a small budget. Here an inexpensive but delightful wall paper had been used . . . white with light blue plaids through it. Then for bedspread and curtains a dress dimity in white with pink flowers running riot all over it. The woodwork in this room was painted light blue as was the dresser and two little chairs had blue slip covers placed over them.

A Little Girl Grows Up. Nothing gives a little girl such a whirl as yards of pretty material—"goods" to her—and a chance at the family-sewing machine. And a little girl grown up doesn't change a lot. Especially if she grows up to be a lady with a house in later years.

One of our readers is all of a flutter over the prospect of making new curtains and draperies for her living room. She recently bought a sofa and chair in modern style covered in blue and piped in soft green, an unusual but pleasant color combination. Her new rug is tan and brown and she has a white fireplace and a new spinet piano with a white leather covered stool. She is planning to add either a bookcase or a desk and an occasional chair, perhaps in white or eggshell leather. The walls of the room are an off-white but that can be changed if desired.

Since this modern room replaces a maple ensemble that's graduated to the back of the house, she wants to retain something of the warmth and friendliness that the room has always had before. With that in mind she asks what she should do about the draperies and whether we'd advise a new wall color . . . if so what?

We're inclined to advise a warm deep dusty beige for the walls of this room, then maybe one of those hand blocked modern linen prints in blues and greens. Sometimes you run across quite a distinguished pattern with that combination. If not use blue on natural linen. Then repeat green and white in accessories for the room.

Another very handsome thing to do in this room would be to have the walls painted in the green of the plings, then add draperies and lamps of white and accessories in blue. . . .

AS TO STUFFING OF VEGETABLES

Various Ways of Preparation Are Outlined.

By EDITH M. BARBER

WHAT about a stuffed vegetable as a headliner for a quick meal? Eggplant, green peppers, tomatoes or squash may be chosen. Some people like to parboil eggplant and green peppers before they are stuffed and baked. In my opinion, this first process is unnecessary, although it is a little easier to remove the pulp of the eggplant after it has been partially cooked.

Whatever vegetable you choose, part of the pulp should be removed, and mixed with the bread crumbs or rice which furnish the foundation of the stuffing. Slices should be cut from the tops of eggplants, peppers and tomatoes. If small acorn squashes are used, they should be cut in half and the seeds removed. The stuffings should be very well seasoned with salt, pepper, minced onion and whatever herbs you like. In addition minced ham, bits of cooked bacon or any other meats which you have on hand will add to the flavor. Flaked sardines or anchovy paste may be used instead. If a plain stuffing is used, grated cheese may be sprinkled over the top of the stuffed vegetables before they are baked.

Both peppers and tomatoes are particularly good with a combination of raw corn, cut from the cob, well seasoned with minced onion, salt, pepper and paprika. You may like to drop an egg on top of each tomato or pepper stuffed in this way. By the time the eggs are set, the vegetables will be done to a turn in a moderate oven.

Special Stuffed Squash.

- 3 acorn squashes
- Salt, pepper
- 2 cups creamed celery
- 1 onion, minced
- 2 strips pimiento
- Dry bread crumbs
- Bacon

Wash and dry squash. Cut in halves, sprinkle with salt and pepper and dot with butter. Bake in a moderate oven (375 degrees Fahrenheit) until almost tender, about 30 minutes. Fill centers with creamed celery, to which the minced onion and chopped pimiento have been added. Cover top with crumbs and lay on slices of bacon. Return to oven and cook until the bacon is crisp and crumbs are brown.

Baked Tomatoes.

Cut tomatoes in halves. Sprinkle with salt, pepper and sugar. Arrange a few pieces of minced onion on each half, dot with butter or bacon fat and bake in a modern oven (375 degrees Fahrenheit), 15 to 20 minutes.

Baked Stuffed Eggplant.

- 1 eggplant
- 3 tablespoons butter
- 2 tablespoons minced onion
- 3 cups soft bread crumbs
- 1 teaspoon salt
- Pepper
- 1/4 tablespoon lemon juice

Wash eggplant and cook in boiling salted water 20 minutes. Remove from water and drain. Cut slice from side and remove pulp with a spoon. Melt butter, add minced onion and cook three minutes. Add bread crumbs, seasonings and finely cut pulp. Refill eggplant shell with stuffing, and bake in a hot oven, (450 degrees Fahrenheit,) until brown. Serve with baked halved tomatoes.

Tomatoes Stuffed With Salmon.

- 6 tomatoes
- 1 cup flaked salmon
- 2 teaspoons minced onion
- 1 tablespoon lemon juice
- 2 tablespoons melted butter
- Paprika
- Bay leaf

Select firm tomatoes of the same size, cut slices from the tops and remove part of the pulp. To salmon flaked add minced onion, lemon juice, melted butter, a sprinkling of paprika and the tomato pulp. Stuff the tomato cups with the mixture, place a small piece of bay leaf on each one, put in a greased baking pan and bake about 15 minutes in a hot oven (450 degrees Fahrenheit) until the tomatoes are tender. Serve on a hot platter with a white or brown sauce.

Deviled Corn.

- 3 teaspoons butter
- 2 tablespoons flour
- 1 cup milk or stock
- 2 cups corn
- 1/2 tablespoon prepared mustard
- 1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
- Paprika
- Salt

Melt butter, stir in flour and when smooth stir in milk or stock (bouillon cubes or gravy will make stock). Cook until smooth and thick, add corn, seasonings and half the bread crumbs, pour into greased baking dish and bake about 20 minutes in a moderate oven (375 degrees Fahrenheit).

Quick Cucumber Pickles.

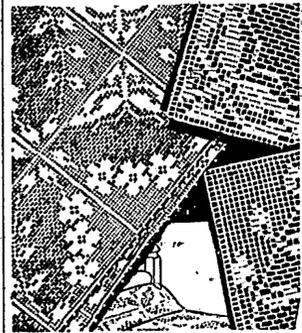

- 4 quarts cucumbers
- 1 gallon vinegar
- 1 cup mustard
- 1 cup salt
- 1 cup sugar

Soak small cucumbers in brine over night. Drain and soak in lime water if desired. Drain again, wash and place in clean jars. Cover with the vinegar mixed with the other ingredients and seal.

WOMEN WHO HOLD THEIR MEN NEVER LET THEM KNOW

NO matter how much your back aches and your nerves scream, your husband, because he is only a man, can never understand why you are so hard to live with one week in every month. Too often the honeymoon express is wrecked by the nagging tongue of a three-quarter wife. The wise woman never lets her husband know by outward sign that she is a victim of periodic pain. For three generations one woman has told another how to go "Smiling Through" with Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It helps Nature tone up the system, thus lessening the discomforts from the functional disorders which women must endure in the three crucial years of life: 1. Turning from girlhood to womanhood. 2. Preparing for motherhood. 3. Approaching "middle age." Don't be a three-quarter wife. Take LYDIA E. PINKHAM'S VEGETABLE COMPOUND and Go "Smiling Through."

Silks Are Most Sumptuous This Fall

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

THE fourth annual silk parade is on in country-wide pageantry and during this time your favorite stores will have an unusually wide selection of silk merchandise and the smartest new silk fabrics. Plan to do your shopping for your fall wardrobe at that time when the highlights of the season will be available.

For the important evening wrap, silk and metal brocades in quaintly beautiful colorings or exotic tones are in high favor. These are often elaborate in texture and include self and metal faconne as well as exquisitely colorful metal brocaded flowers. For a floating full-skirted frock, silk and metal marquisette that reminds of oriental sheers that veiled harem beauties, is new this season.

The queenly figure descending the stairs to the right in the picture is gowned in one of the opulent new silks. It is a black satin with self and metal faconne in a leaf pattern. Here is a perfect demonstration of the new trend toward styling the gown with that utmost simplicity that ignores any suggestion of trimming in order the more to play up the superbness of the fabric. It is interesting to note the gloves milady wears in that the cuffs are finished with bands of glittering sequins that match perfectly. For evening there is nothing more breath taking than the colorful lacquer-printed silk satins. These feature flowers, geometrics, Indian and Persian designs, and they are very new and important. See to the left in the picture how dramatically printed satin of the glamorous type drapes to the figure.

Describing the swatches of handsome silks shown in the insets below, the one to the left is a multi-color stamp printed silk satin for evening. It will prove charming for a short-skirted young dance frock. It is also the type of silk that makes a fetching deep girde for a black velvet dress—which is one thing about these more elegant silks: if your allowance does not permit buying yards and yards just a mere dash of them used in a trimming way on a monotone frock will give it an aristocratic air.

To the right is a black silk satin with self and metal faconne richly interwoven into a leaf pattern. It ranks high among silks that are done in a grand manner.

Centered in the trio of insets is a black faille with silver metal bandings, suitable for trimmings, blouses, dinner gown or evening jackets.

LEATHER TIE-BELT

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

This very good looking fall coat in bold herringbone patterned soft wool in natural beige has a notched collar of beaver and a wide crush belt of brown leather with fringed ends, each of which is a distinctive feature. The collaring of cloth coats with handsome fur is one of fashion's most notable styling features this fall, while the use of leather in numberless trimming ways, especially for smart girdles, is one of the highest highlights of the mode this season. You can vision for yourself the swank that a leather tie-girdle as pictured will give to coats made of cloth. The broad shoulders are also good points in the styling of the coat pictured.

SMART FROCKS USE LAVISH EMBROIDERY

A craze for embroidery is on. Some of the smartest newest woollens for daytime frocks and for the stylish little separate jackets and boleros and for waistcoats and blouses are embroidered with an all-over scattering of tiny motifs or perhaps with florals arranged in the popular striped effects.

Knitted fashions also reflect the flair for embroidery in that they carry flowers and designs done in bright yarns showing peasant influence.

The black dress that has a gorgeous bouquet embroidered like a corsage at either the waistline or shoulder is a winsome number. Any woman who can embroider could be the happy possessor of a fetching dress like this for to "embroider your own" requires but little effort.

Evening fashions fairly scintillate with dazzling embroideries. Short sleeves, all-over sequin-embroidered, enrich black velvet dinner gowns. Embroidery is done on lace on tulle, on velvet ribbons that girdle the waist and so on and so on the story of embroidery is endless this season. Even the simplest linen, cotton or wool day dress is apt to yield to the present urge for hand-stitchery of some fanciful sort.

Youthful Effect Stressed in New Wedding Clothes

The extremely youthful trend of this season's clothes has had its effect on wedding gowns. The most recent Paris brides have been dressed in demure creations of white mousseline or organdie which greatly resemble the frocks worn by French children for their first communion.

Instead of the halo head veils or the conventional wreaths of orange blossoms, lilies of the valley or camellias, the dressmakers are using little round caps of tulle with a long floating veil attached just in back.

Boomy Jackets

A gray velveteen jacket with fullness at the front is smart over a pencil-slim wool dress in matching gray.

'Way Back When

By JEANNE

FROM LUMBER YARD WORKER TO VICE PRESIDENT OF U. S.

TO KNOW whether you have chosen the right vocation for success in return for your efforts is sometimes difficult to decide. But, once it begins to dawn upon you that you could go further in another occupation, it is time to change. The greatest advancement lies where your talents and interests are greatest. Charles Dawes, who made the under-slung pipe famous when he became Vice President of the United States, might have been relatively unknown if he had not changed his mind about the occupation he would follow.

He was born in Marietta, Ohio, in 1865. He attended the public schools there and entered Marietta college, graduating at the age of nineteen. During the summer months he worked in a lumber yard, shifting lumber. It is easy to imagine that without vision and analysis, he might have set the proprietorship of a lumber yard as his goal. Dawes was always fond of music. He played both the violin and the piano, and music has been his chief diversion. He composed "Melody in A Minor" which Fritz Kreisler, famous violinist, included in his repertoire.

After college, Charles Dawes went to work in the engineering department of the Toledo and Ohio Central Extension railroad, working up to chief engineer in charge of construction. He decided to study law, or he might have been simply a good civil engineer. Graduating from the Cincinnati School of Law, he practiced for some years and became interested in politics. President McKinley appointed him controller of currency and, after four years of service, Dawes organized the Central Trust company of Chicago. He was general purchasing agent for the A. E. F. during the World war, and director of the budget bureau under President Harding. In 1924, he was elected Vice President of the United States under Coolidge.

FAMOUS AVIATRIX ONCE DROVE A TRUCK

THIS is a note of encouragement for "tom-boys" and particularly for parents who may not understand them. Girls who fall into the classification of "tom-boys" usually simply have a stronger spirit of competition or a greater streak of adventure than other little girls. Their greater activity may be early expression of a sense of leadership which may later lead to fame.

Amelia Earhart, queen of aviation, was a tom-boy. Born in Atchison, Kan., in 1898, she was an unusually active little girl. She loved rough and tumble games, and she could beat most of the boys her age in sports and contests. She graduated from Hyde Park high school in Chicago and went on to a girl's school in Rydal, Pa. From school she went to Canada where she worked as a nurse's aide in a Toronto war hospital. Stories of World war pilots appealed to her sense of adventure and daring; and Amelia made her way to California, determined to learn to fly.

Here her self-reliance and "tom-boy" courage was helpful, for she had to earn the money for her instruction. Amelia Earhart worked for the telephone company and even drove a sand and gravel truck. Later, she attended Columbia university. She held 28 different jobs while perfecting herself in the art of flying. In 1920, she won the plaudits of the world by being the first woman to fly the Atlantic. As a result of this flight she gained recognition as the foremost woman flyer, became aviation editor of Cosmopolitan Magazine, and vice president of two important commercial airlines.

AROUND the HOUSE

Items of Interest to the Housewife

A Combination Dish.—Two parts of tomatoes simmered with one part of celery makes a good combination dish.

In Preparing a Chicken Dinner.—A live chicken usually weighs a third more than a dressed chicken. Allow half a pound of dressed chicken per person.

For Basting Roasts.—Leftover fruit juices, especially those from spiced fruits, make excellent basting liquid for roasts, chops and ham dishes.

Picnic Lemonade.—One cup sugar, one cup water, one cup strong tea infusion, six lemons, one cup crushed pineapple, three quarts water. Cook the sugar and water to a thin syrup; add the tea, lemon juice, pineapple and water. Serve iced. Sixteen to eighteen servings. Excellent to quench thirst. Juices from canned peaches, apricots, pears or cherries can be utilized for some of the water.

Dainty Shoulder Straps.—When making your undies try using narrow velvet ribbon for the shoulder straps. The velvet side next to the skin acts as a grip, while the satin on top looks dainty. You will find that ribbon-velvet straps will outlast any garment.

Save the Curtains.—A finger cut from an old glove and slipped over the end of a curtain rod enables it to be pushed through the curtain hems of the finest net without catching and tearing the fabric.

Raspberry Shrub.—To three quarts of red raspberries and one quart of sugar add one cup of vinegar. Cook slowly for half an hour and strain through cheesecloth. Pour into sterilized bottles and seal. Serve over ice cubes diluted with water to taste.

A Mended Cloth.—If a small hole is burnt or worn in an otherwise good white tablecloth, it can be "mended" most effectively by stitching a motif in fine crochet over it and cutting away the spoiled fabric underneath. Add one or two more motifs so that the necessary one does not look odd. This is certainly more decorative than an obvious darn!

Undeserved Compliments

Compliments which we think are deserved, we accept only as debts, with indifference; but those which conscience informs us we do not merit, we receive with the same gratitude that we do favors given away.—Goldsmith.

GO FARTHER BEFORE YOU NEED A QUART

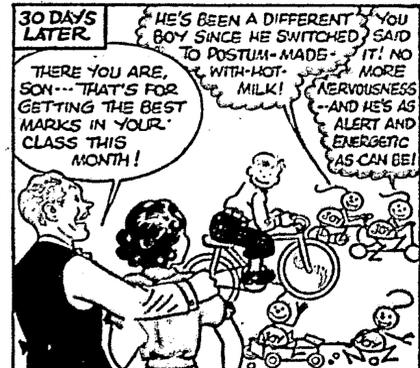

How long should a quart of oil last?

No one can answer that question specifically because driving habits differ. But there is one thing certain... you will go farther with Quaker State because it gives you "an extra quart of lubrication in every gallon." You can easily prove the economy of Quaker State by making the "First Quart Test." And remember... the oil that stands up longest is giving your motor the safest lubrication. JOYS and GLOOMS

YOUR MONEY BACK—IF SWITCHING TO POSTUM DOESN'T HELP YOU!
Many people can safely drink coffee. But many others—and all children—should never drink it. If you suspect that the caffeine in coffee disagrees with you... try Postum's 30-day test. Buy a can of Postum and drink it instead of coffee for a full month. If... after 30 days... you do not feel better, return the Postum container top with your name and address to General Foods, Battle Creek, Mich., and we will refund purchase price, plus postage! (If you live in Canada, address General Foods, Ltd., Cobourg, Ont.) Postum contains no caffeine. It is simply whole wheat and bran, roasted and slightly sweetened. It comes in two forms... Postum Cereal, the kind you boil or percolate... and Instant Postum, made instantly in the cup. Economical, easy to make, delicious, hot or iced. You may miss coffee at first, but you'll soon love Postum's own rich flavor. A product of General Foods. (Offer expires Dec. 31, 1937.)
