Local Cattlemen Injured at Liberal

Messrs. Pete Johnson and George Jeffreys were taking several carloads of cattle to the Kansas City markets last week when the caboose in which they were riding was struck at Liberal Kansas from the rear, by a train headed in the same direction. The cattle train was taking the side track and the caboose hadn't cleared the main line. A man named Smith was standing on the platform of the caboose, and called to Messrs. Johnson and Jeffreys that they were going to get hit and to jump. They started to run to the platform, but saw it was too late and ran back inside. The engine struck with such force the caboos was ripped wide open. A heavy stove fell on Mr. Johnson, breaking both legs below the knees, cutting his head and chest, and his back is severely injured, also one of his arms.

Mr. Jeffreys was somewhat more fortunate, in that he did not get any bones broken, although his head, chest and arms are severely cut, and buried. The accident happened Saturday night.

Mrs. Johnson and baby and Mrs. Jeffreys left Sunday for Liberal on the first train. A message from Mrs. Johnson to her mother-in-law which was received Monday states that Mr. Johnson was still unconscious and had not recognized either her, or the baby, so Mrs. Johnson, Sr., left Tuesday on No. 12 to be at her son's bedside. Also Mr. and Mrs. Bryan Cazier left Tucumcari Sunday for Liberal to be with their brother.

A message received today from Mrs. Cazier states he is slightly improved.

All entries in the Parade must be on the Grounds by 10 a. m. Saturday. Parade starts promptly at 10:30.—Parade Committee.

Believe it or not—Billy the Kid will be on the grounds Friday and Saturday Oct. 15th & 16th.

All Contestants in the Rodeo, must enter the Parade Saturday morning Oct. 16th.

I. O. O. F. Notes

Last Tuesday evening after the regular business meeting the honorary degree was conferred on Edward Penfield. Mr. Hugh Bunch being in waiting the degree team prepared for the 1st degree, which was conferred on Messrs. Bunch and Penfield.

Messrs. Bert Pfingsten and Ramey of Lincoln attended this meeting and at the close of the degree work they presented the lodge with a bushel of delicious apples.

Next Tuesday night there is a second degree. A good attendance is requested.

Lets decorate. The American Legion needs your support.

Dancing on the grounds all afternoon. At night good music will be had at the Community Hall. Oct. 15th & 16th.

If you have an old buggy—wagon— or cart be sure and enter this Parade Saturday Oct. 16th.

Carrizozo School News

Soon it will be time for the first six weeks period grade cards. As a school student I wonder whether the teachers marks reflect the effectiveness of the teacher's instruction or does it reflect the condition of student's work. Mr. Carpenter recently told us that the study habits of students become the work habits of future men and women. This being the case the habits acquired in school are of equal importance to the things learned in School.

Mrs. Gayle Swearingen of the Junior High faculty made a business trip to Roswell Saturday.

The eighth grade had charge of an assembly program Thursday afternoon.

A contest between classes was on this week in seeing who could sell the most tickets to the Theatre for Oct. 6th and 7th. The show was entitled "Sea Devils". The Athletic Department received a per centum of the receipts.

Miss Virginia Pierce is sponsoring a Dramatic Club. This organization will be of great benefit in providing good assembly programs.

Frontier Days or the Lincoln County Fair for Oct. 15th and 16th is attracting much attention, in preparation for the big events. School will be dismissed for the afternoon of Friday Oct. 15th, but the school buses will run on Saturday morning Oct. 16 to bring in the students for the events of Saturday.

Miss Cole of the Music Department spent the week-end in Santa Rosa with relatives.

The new Red Jerseys for the Football team have arrived and now the team can all blossom out in new regalia for the next Football game. We hope we can handle Vaughn's team on the local gridiron today as easily as we did Hondo last Friday.

The Athletic Association is planning a carnival-dance for November. Some of the stunts are now being formulated. A Big time will be had by both students and townspeople and a neat sum of money should be realized.

Methodist Church Notes

Mr. C. M. Harvey of El Paso makes a liberal offer to the Methodist church here provided this church raises a certain amount to liquidate parsonage debt and annual budget to be closed up October 27. Rev. J. A. will attend the conference at Albuquerque October 27. The proposition Mr. Harvey made will be announced next week.

Mrs. Bell will fill the pulpit Sunday evening after which we will have a young people's social. Miss Cole's music class will furnish music for the service. We will have Communion service Sunday morning 11 a. m.

Rev. J. A. Bell.

Attorney and Mrs. E. M. Barber of Las Vegas were visitors in Carrizozo Wednesday. Mr. Barber is practicing law at Las Vegas.

Prizes will be awarded the best decorated home and store on the Parade route.

Lets all help make the Parade a real success. Old timers and all, are welcome—Costumes will count in prize awards.

Way Back When

By JEANNE

BETTE DAVIS WAS AN USHERETTE

LIFE has a strange way, sometimes, of repeating a circumstance from our previous struggles, as if to remind us that what may have once seemed a difficult trial was actually preparation for a later triumph I am thinking, particularly, of Bette Davis and the marvelous performance she gave as the waitress, Mildred, in "Of Human Bondage"

Bette Davis was born in Lowell, Mass., in 1903. Her mother had only a small alimony with which to support Bette and her sister, so she became a professional photographer. After attending the Mary Arden school of Peterboro, N. H., Bette went to Cushing academy of Boston. There, she waited on tables to earn her tuition. To the sixteen-year-old little girl, whose dramatic ambitions made her super-sensitive to her role in life, her occupation as waitress was humiliating in contrast to the advantages enjoyed by her fellow students. Miserable though her school days were, that occupation was to be the role of one of her greatest triumphs. Would Bette Davis have played such a convincing "Mildred" if circumstances had never forced her to be a waitress at school?

Recognition came to Bette Davis soon after school. She had always wanted to be an actress and her mother encouraged her, although her father thought she should take a business course in New York and prepare to be a stenographer. She attended a dramatic school in New York instead, and then obtained a job as an usherette in the Cape Playhouse of Cape Cod, Mass. Finally she was given a small part, and rose rapidly in the theater, going on to Hollywood where she rose to stellar heights in "Of Human Bondage." For her performance in "Dangerous" she received the Motion Picture award in 1935.

RADIO STAR RAN A CONCESSION

FORTUNE'S favorites do not always bear marks to distinguish them from her failures Bob Burns, who with his "bazooka" has become nationally known for his radio broadcasts and motion picture work, for many years looked like a failure. He was born in Van Buren, Ark., in 1920, and was always fond of music. His first "bazooka" was a horn made from a piece of pipe welded to a funnel, because he had nothing else to play. After two years in college, he joined some friends in Oklahoma raising peanuts. Bob gave that up to go back to Van Buren where he joined a minstrel troupe at three dollars a week. He tried to get a theatrical job in New Orleans, next he tried New York, with no luck, and went to Little Rock, Ark. There, he failed at trying to sell advertising on commission.

During the World war, Bob Burns was in the marines, was a crack rifle shot, and entertained the soldiers with his "bazooka." After the war, he started a concession on the boardwalk at Atlantic City, running a game of chance. He married a girl who worked in another concession and, together, they started a dance hall; but it failed. Failure after failure. And in the midst of his troubles, his son was born.

But then Bob Burns got a job in vaudeville, and in a few short years he was at the top of the entertainment world, with contracts for stage, motion pictures, and radio. His "bazooka"—in which he had such faith, but which seemed such hopeless comedy to many people, is with him today and nationally known.

what Irvin S. Cobb thinks about:

Rivals for Nudism.

SANTA MONICA, CALIF.—I took part in a parade celebrating old days in California, riding in an ancient open carriage with our postmaster here—he calls Jim Farley "Jim"—and our congressman, who like practically all Democrats in good standing in the southern part of the state, craves to be the next nominee for governor. If any more aspirants hob up, there won't be anybody left to vote for them. This certainly has been a banner year for oranges and candidates.

Our outfit got a lot of cheers from the crowds and a perfect ovation when passing a given point where the Elks also were giving away beer. All three of us felt pretty proud of ourselves until we realized that probably the applause wasn't meant for us. There must have been thousands in that crowd who'd never before seen a horse-drawn pleasure vehicle.

If Lady Godiva, dressed only in her long hair, rode on a white horse through any modern city street, there'd probably be ten who'd hurrah for the horse against one who looked a second time at the lady. Sight of a white horse would be a treat to one and all, whereas in these days of nudism and public undressing on the beaches—but that will be about all for that.

International Messes.

WITH the great powers tottering on the brink of hostilities to a more tottery extent than usual; with the Spaniards still willing to fight to the last Italian from Brother Mussolini's loan collection; with China battered to a bloody hash-meat in what would closely resemble a war if only Japan had so declared it, which must indeed be gratifying to the ghosts of the thousands already slain and the homeless refugees from ruined cities—this seems a mighty good time for us to keep our shirt on.

Kindly recall that other historic occasion when Uncle Sam felt called upon to hop into a mess cooked up by foreign nations and, as a result, not only lost his shirt, but has never since been able to collect the laundry bills for washing the said shirt. This, if you get the drift, is a subtle reference to those defaulted European debts.

Let us, therefore, highly resolve that, no matter how great the pressure from within or without—mainly it'll be, as was the case before from without—we'll keep the old shirt on.

Classifying Bores.

I'VE been classifying bores. Class I B bores are those still using the lapel clutch or buttonhole grapple, whereas a class A bore is one whose boast is that he never lays a finger on you—just holds the victim by psychic power.

Lately I've met what I should call a super A type, the same being a gentleman who, in addition to having perfect technique otherwise, had been imbibing garlic to excess—and didn't care who knew it. When finally rescued, they had to use a pulmotor on me.

Meeting this champion reminded me of what I heard the late Wilson Minzer say to a gentleman who insisted on boring Wilson while suffused with the afterglow brought on by combining bourbon whisky and Bermuda onions in his diet. His hicoughs were not only frequent but had echoes to them.

Finally, when Wilson was practically ready for artificial respiration to be applied, he said:

"Dear sir, your breath would start the windmills turning in an old Dutch painting."

Typical Texans.

I USED to think a typical Texan was one who said he was going to send you a ten-gallon hat and then didn't do it. But he is a subspecies.

A really orthodox Texan tells you he's giving you a pair of genuine Texas steer horns. They'll be along as soon as he can have them shipped. But he never ships 'em—that's what makes him typical.

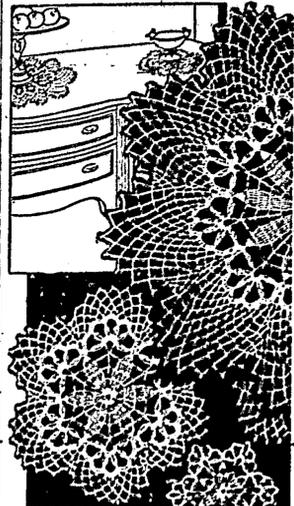

So many typical Texans have volunteered to send me, sets of long horns that, if all these parties were laid end to end, you'd have one of the finest consecutive strings of horns I've ever seen. But they wouldn't stay that way; they'd rise right up and start looking for Easterners to promise long horns to.

Not that I'm craving any long horns. They stretch so far from tip to tip they make you think of a muckellunge fisherman trying to show you how much that biggest one measured. If you hang them low, they prong people in the eye. If you hang them high, they're chiefly useful for cobwebs to drape on. And no self-respecting wife will let you hang them anywhere.

Favorite Recipe of the Week

Mixed Mustard Pickles

Use two quarts each of beans, cauliflower, tiny cucumbers and silver-skinned onions. Cut the beans and break the cauliflower into flowerets. The cucumbers may be sliced lengthwise if desired. Shred five large peppers and put all on to boil in a gallon of vinegar. When boiling take up the vegetables and return the vinegar to the kettle. Mix one ounce tumeric, one-half pound mustard, three cups brown sugar, two cups flour, one-half cup salt and enough cold vinegar to form a paste. Add this paste to the hot vinegar and stir until well blended. Then add the vegetables and heat until scalding hot again. Seal at once.

Crows Are Enemies of the Wild Ducks in Breeding Season

Control Methods Are Recommended by Expert

Washington.—Crows are major enemies of wild ducks in at least a part of the great wild duck breeding grounds in Canada, a survey by E. R. Kalmbach of the United States biological survey shows.

Of 512 duck nests studied, 31 per cent (156 nests) had been ravaged by crows. Other causes of destruction had accounted for another 20 per cent of loss, so that of all the nests that started the season with hopeful batches of eggs, only 49 per cent turned out live ducklings.

It is possible, however, Mr. Kalmbach notes, that part of the egg destruction by crows might have been wreaked after the parent ducks had abandoned the nests for other causes.

Furthermore, he cautions, this survey was made in a part of the nesting area where the crow concentration is unusually high, and where a large duck population offers unusually great temptation to raid for eggs.

How They Should Be Controlled.

For practical control purposes, Mr. Kalmbach recommends: "Crow-control operations on duck-breeding grounds should by all means be entrusted only to those who fully recognize the hazards associated with human intrusion on waterfowl nesting grounds. The work should not be carried out haphazard or by mass action devoid of careful supervision. There should, in fact, be solitude for the privacy of every nesting duck.

"At winter crow roosts, where control is possible at a lower cost per bird, the benefits with respect to waterfowl are, in turn, less direct, since only a part of the birds present at these roosts actually enter the problem of crow-waterfowl relationships on the breeding grounds.

Upper Cambrian May Have Had Land Plant Life

Cambridge, Mass.—Plants have lived on land many millions of years longer than is commonly supposed, if fossil plant remains examined by William C. Darrah of the Harvard Botanical museum here really are what they very decidedly look like.

The fossils are spores, minute one-celled bodies that serve instead of seeds with lower plants that produce no true seeds. These particular spores have the form and markings that characterize spores of the ferns and their relatives.

But the formation, they come from, a boghead coal deposit in Sweden, belongs to the Upper Cambrian geologic age, 500 million years or more ago, when there were supposed to be no land plants living, and none to come for many millions of years. It appears to be a projection of land-plant life into a hitherto unsuspected past.

Age of Earth Checked by Potassium "Clock"

New York.—A radioactive potassium "clock," latest aid to scientists seeking to know the age of the earth, indicates that the world is less than 3,000,000,000 years old, Dr. A. Keith Brewer of the United States bureau of chemistry and soils reports in the magazine Science.

Radioactive potassium, K 40, changes over long periods of time into the common variety of calcium, the metal that forms the basis for lime and limestone. Scientists can compute the age of the earth from their knowledge of how much calcium is to be found today and a knowledge of the rate at which radioactive calcium decomposed.

Results by the potassium "clock" method, Dr. Brewer reported, are in close agreement with estimates of the earth's age gained from another radioactive "clock," that of radium, uranium and lead.

Jupiter Due to Have Big Disturbance Soon

Denver.—A great disturbance on the planet Jupiter to occur during the next few months was predicted in a communication to the American Association for the Advancement of Science meeting here from Dr. E. C. Sipher of Lowell observatory, Flagstaff, Ariz. It will take the form of a series of intense dark spots in the giant planet's equator. A small faint marking gives warning of the approaching spots, judging from a similar happening in 1920.

Keep Skin Clean to Prevent Acne Is Advice to the Young

Local Treatment Is Best, Say the Dermatologists

Chicago.—For acne—the adolescent's complaint—local skin cleanliness brings the best results.

That improperly functioning endocrine glands are probably responsible for acne, medical research examiners believe. But no glandular substance found is enough better than local treatment to justify the expense and effort of its administration.

Thirty-nine students at the University of Iowa have recently been treated for acne as a part of a scientific experiment. Dr. Grace E. Williams, medical adviser to women, and Dr. Ruben Nomland, professor of dermatology at the university, report their observations on these students in the Journal of the American Medical Association.

With evidence pointing to a deficiency of sex hormone in acne patients, the Iowa physicians began their study. They took twenty-eight women students and eleven men, the average being nineteen years. Of these eleven had severe, twenty moderately severe, and eight mild acne.

Hormone Treatment Not Effective.

All thirty-nine students were asked to give meticulous attention to details in the care and treatment of their skin. In addition, twenty of them were treated with sex hormones, while the remaining nineteen were also given injections but the injections were merely sterile water. The students did not know which were getting hormone substance and which were getting water.

Treatment went on for from four to six months with 95 per cent of those given the hormone substance showing moderate to marked improvement and 78 per cent of the control group given sterile water showing the same degree of improvement.

The Iowa doctors concluded at the end of the experiment that a deficiency of the pituitary-like hormone is not an important factor in causing acne and that the local treatment is still the best bet for controlling acne.

Here are the instructions for local treatment of acne given to most of the students:

Stop all picking and squeezing. Discontinue the use of all cosmetic creams. Wash with soap and water twice daily, keeping the skin nongreasy almost to the point of scaling. Eat a diet low in carbohydrates. Eat no candy. Remove blackheads by placing hot towels on the face for five minutes, then applying a thin coating of 3 per cent resorcinol in cold cream to the face and again applying hot towels for five minutes. The blackheads are then squeezed out with a comedon remover, the face rinsed with cold water and hamamelis water applied. Apply a prescribed lotion two or three times a day. Avoid larded salt. Shampoo the hair twice a week.

Female of Species Is Tougher Than Male

Nottingham, England.—Sex is equally distributed among Britons only in young people; between the ages of fifteen and nineteen the numbers of boys and girls is approximately equal. At earlier ages there are more males, later females predominate.

This sexaw of the sexes, and what it means biologically, was discussed here before the meeting of the British Association for the Advancement of Science by Prof. F. A. E. Crew, noted biologist of the University of Edinburgh.

In a word, the female of the species is noticeably tougher than the male. Men, boys and boy babies all tend to die off faster than their sisters.

Huge Fossil Beast Is Found in Colorado

Chicago.—Fossil remains of a hitherto unknown species of extinct mammal, big as a hippopotamus, have been found in Colorado by an expedition of the Field Museum of Natural History. Bryan Patterson, in charge of the expedition, reported the find to headquarters here.

The creature lived in the early days of the age of mammals, about 45 million years ago, when the region that is now the Rocky mountains was a low, flat plain.

Screen Star's Yacht Is Now Science Laboratory

La Jolla, Calif.—The seagoing yacht, Serena, formerly the property of Lewis Stone, noted actor, has been purchased for the Scripps Institution of Oceanography by Robert Scripps, son and nephew of its two founders and head of the Scripps-Howard Newspaper Alliance. The vessel will replace the institution's former floating laboratory, the yacht Scripps, burned on November 13, 1936.

Removal of Gall Bladder

By DR. JAMES W. BARTON
© Bell Syndicate.—WNU Service.

A PROMINENT lawyer was going down hill physically. He was seventy years of age but had always been able to look after his legal work despite attacks of indigestion and an irritation which caused painful and frequent emptying of the urine.

The indigestion gave him loss of appetite, sour taste in the mouth, a bloated feeling, gas on the stomach and in the intestine, fullness after eating, and either constipation or diarrhoea.

He didn't want to go to a doctor as he was afraid that an operation, perhaps two operations, might be necessary, and at seventy years of age he was "taking no chances."

The symptoms however—terrible attacks of indigestion, and the frequent desire to pass urine—made him decide that life wasn't worth the living with this pain and distress so he consulted his physician.

Some months later friends meeting him on the street stopped him and congratulated him on his splendid appearance—good color, brisk walk, calm, serene face.

Don't Put Off Operation.

To the inquiry as to the cause of the change in his appearance, he quite casually remarked, "Oh, they found some gall stones and removed my gall bladder, and then a little later I had them remove the gland at the neck of the bladder, so with these two annoyances removed I'm feeling young again."

The point here is that while operation can never be treated lightly and operation on one past seventy would seem somewhat of a serious risk—nevertheless when gall stones are present it is not the age of the patient that matters from the standpoint of a good recovery after operation, but the length of time the patient has allowed the symptoms to be present before undergoing the operation.

So if your doctor advises removal of the gall bladder, don't put it off too long. If it should come out, the sooner the better.

Dieting Daughters.

One of the unfortunate things about prescribing reducing diets, particularly for women, is that so many young women of normal weight, or even below normal weight, believe that they will have a better appearance, will look "slim," if they follow the general rule of reducing weight, which, after all, is "just to eat less food."

Intelligent young women, college and business girls, who would not think of using a drug such as thyroid extract to reduce weight, will deliberately "starve" themselves to get the slim boyish figure.

"Of all the conditions found on examination of large groups of young women, underweight is about the most universal and likewise the most likely to prove dangerous," I am quoting Jane Foster, R. N., in Hygeia. Miss Foster is assistant director of health, Sarah Lawrence college.

"There is then the problem of the girl of eighteen or nineteen consciously controlling her own weight at a standard below that for good health. Now the greatest cause for death in this age group is tuberculosis, the predisposing factor of which is malnutrition—underweight.

"The greatest cause of illness in college health records is found to be infections of the nose, throat and chest and these, too, go with pronounced underweight. Other companions of underweight may be irritable dispositions and a loss of the natural mental ability or alertness. Those who work with this age group are frequently impressed with the large number who complain of fatigue and general dissatisfaction with life."

Of course the cause of this fatigue, irritability, dissatisfaction with life, is that these young women, who should be eating more food at this age than at any other age in their lifetime, are actually eating less than the body needs just to keep it working, aside from the extra food needed for growth in height and width. And the foods that should be eaten for growth and strength—meat, eggs and milk—are not included to any extent in the diet of these slim-mad girls.

What these girls of normal weight forget is that underweight means undernourishment, and undernourishment means that a reduction of the "energy reserves" of the body occurs when not enough food is eaten and the body is below normal weight.

The energy reserves of the body—the reserves needed to promote health and growth, and prevent or lessen the effects of illnesses—can only be maintained by a generous all round diet at this important age in a woman's life.

Fall Fashion Parade

BE THE first to wear the new Fall fashions in your group—let Sew-Your-Own help you to step right out in front, in the parade of new Fall Fashions. Today's trio gives you wide choice. Your first occasion frock if you are young and slim is a good looking basque model; for run-around a pretty yoke model that is as easy to make as it is to wear; and if you are full bodied a jabot model that takes away inches.

The Popular Basque Dress. If you are twenty or thereabouts, you'll adore this pretty basque dress with its flaring skirt. The slim wasp waist and short puffed sleeves above a swing skirt are as young as the morning. Have it in a pretty dark print banded in velvet ribbon for every afternoon festivity. It's a dress that you'll wear all through the winter.

Yoke-Style House Frock. Every woman will be quick to see the advantages of this frock, in style and wearability. The round yoke buttons at front and gives a fresh, young look to this design. Best of all, it is cut in one piece from neck to hem so that you can make it in practically no time at all. The waistline is darted for snug fit. You'll look and feel years younger in this model—wear it!

Loans Wanted

would be a good sign for bank to hang out but for obvious reasons a bank cannot do such a thing. But your bank does want good loans.

A good loan is a loan that will be repaid when due. No bank can loan money without sufficient knowledge that the money will be repaid when due and still maintain that obligation of safety to its depositors. This is why every loan must be thoroughly investigated before it can be made. Your banker does not want to turn you down; but he must protect his depositors at all cost.

Women to Find Beauty Galore at New York Fair

NEW YORK (Special).—What will interest women most in the New York World's Fair of 1939?

Beauty, landscaping, food, health, welfare, the children's world, color, illumination, science, art, pageantry—whatever most interests the woman at home will interest her at the Fair. No exhibit will be thoroughly masculine just as none will be thoroughly feminine. The whole exposition will concern itself with presenting its theme—"Building the World of Tomorrow" as it effects the lives of the men, women and children who will attend the Fair.

Woman's love of beauty has always predominated her thoughts. It will surround her at the Fair. The tree-lined thoroughfares with brightly colored buildings on either side, Aquadons with their soft lights and tinkling fountains, beautifully planted courtyards, unusual architecture, blueness of the sky reflected in the lagoons and pools—all planned to meet that love of beauty.

A Children's World

In the Children's World weary mothers may peek their children while they themselves enjoy more adult exhibits. Here the youngsters will find trained directors who will permit them to participate in a Fair of their own. Three age groups will be catered to, the very young with nursery school activities, the middle-agers with crafts and games to fit them and the adolescents. There will be plenty of fun and amusement, some novel arrangements which will include a book house, a marionette show shop and a foreign village for children and several educational features.

The Community Center with its model town will interest women. Here they may see model homes, model community buildings, model schools, model ways in which to live healthily, happily and comfortably.

The World of Health will attract many women since it will show all that science is doing for bodily welfare and the latest advancements in all phases of medicine and health.

Daily Fashion Shows

The New York State Exhibit to be known as the Marine Amphitheatre will have women predominant in its audiences, for women attending the Fair will be drawn there by the pageants, music and entertainment which will be presented from its Island stage.

The Clothing sector, with its daily fashion shows, its color exhibits, the Cosmetic Hall with its display of proper ways to make-up and new methods of keeping young and beautiful; the Food sectors where food growing, food packing, food cooking, food serving will all be shown—all will be places where women will congregate.

The Hospitality Center, sponsored by the Women's Committee, where women may meet together and learn to know one another's problems, will be a mecca for women.

Attention Singers

Since word has come to us of the meeting of the Otero County Singing Convention at Alamogordo the 2nd Sunday in October and due to the fact that some of our Lincoln County Singers plan to attend, the singing that has been announced for Capitan the 2nd Sunday in October will be postponed till the 2nd Sunday in November.

The Importance Of Rest In Tuberculosis

Here in New Mexico we have a large number of Health Seekers who have come to the state in hopes that the climate of New Mexico will aid in the cure of some particular condition. One of the principal conditions is tuberculosis.

Rest in tuberculosis is most essential if a cure is to be effected. All of us at some time or another have had a cut in the crook of the finger. All of us know that the constant flexing of the finger tends strongly to keep the cut open. It is exactly the same thing in tuberculosis. In advanced cases a cavity is formed in the lung of the tuberculosis patient and this cavity corresponds almost exactly to the cut in the finger. Constant flexing of the lung during the breathing process tends to keep the cavity open and unhealed and violent breathing can have what amounts to a tearing effect and cause hemorrhages.

Rest therefore is absolutely necessary if the tuberculous lung is to be healed, and in many cases a great deal can be accomplished by studied easy breathing. If the lung cannot be healed without further aid artificial rest can be induced for the injured lung by a process called pneumothorax treatment. This treatment which is quite simple induces air into the lung cavity or external lung compartment and gently collapses the lung to a state of immobility. If this is not sufficient there are other treatments available which can aid in arresting a active tuberculosis. It should be remembered however that cure of tuberculosis is most quickly and easily effected if the disease is noticed and cared for at the earliest possible moment. Tuberculosis can be cured comparatively easily if it is taken in hand in good time. That is the reason why the health departments all over the country place such stress upon diagnostic tuberculin testing programs in the schools. Tuberculosis is a peculiar disease. It is definitely an infectious disease but its infective power is not great. It is not like scarlet fever, for instance, where one case of infection is sufficient to produce the disease. Tuberculosis is generally acquired by prolonged exposure to infection. It is often primarily acquired in early youth but clinical symptoms do not appear until young adult life. The time to place the individual under supervision is the time when an infection can be observed and not after the disease has had time to develop. Tuberculin testing programs therefore are carried out by the health departments in the high schools particular in order to locate the children who have been infected. Positive reaction to the tuberculin test may not of necessity mean anything except that a child has been at some time or another infected. X-ray follow-up will show definitely whether or not the individual has been able to disperse the infection or whether medical care and supervision is proper to aid the child in obtaining a cure at a time when cure is in general assurable.

MUSSOLINI VISITS HITLER

War Strength of Nazis Displayed for Il Duce . . . Japan Sharply Warned Not to Bomb Russian Embassy

Il Duce and Der Reichsfuehrer Review Nazi Troops in Munich.

Edward W. Pickard SUMMARIZES THE WORLD'S WEEK

War Dance for Duce

BENITO MUSSOLINI, visiting Adolf Hitler for the purpose of composing and presenting to the world a statement of the intentions and demands of the Italian and German governments, was received by the Nazis with great enthusiasm. Il Duce, on the way to Berlin, stood on a hill in Mecklenburg with Hitler and witnessed a big war dance staged by the reichsfuehrer that displayed the military might of Germany most impressively.

Adolf Hitler

Hitler's best officers and troops, armed with the latest weapons of death, put on a sham battle participated in by all land and air forces. In the nearby Baltic the German warships showed how they chase "Red" submarines, and at Wustrow the anti-aircraft batteries gave a demonstration of their effectiveness. The huge munitions plants in the Ruhr district were visited, and the throngs of workers, given a holiday with pay, cheered the two dictators heartily. Every city and village was decorated. In Berlin there were tremendous demonstrations and elaborate festivities in honor of the visitor from Rome.

As for the statement by the rulers of Italy and Germany, the best guess was that it would declare that hereafter Fascism and Nazism must be shown proper respect by all powers, that "denigration" of the regimes must stop and that their aims and intentions must be understood by the world and that their right to political parity must be recognized.

To the German press Mussolini said "My visit to Germany is wholly a matter of the heart, a visible sign of the cordial friendship between two great, cultured peoples that trust each other implicitly."

"The two peoples will clasp hands, will put their parks and rifles on their shoulders and will march side by side in the future, for this future belongs to us."

Russia Warns Japan

TOKYO officially notified Berlin that the Chinese were plotting to attack the Russian embassy in Nanking with planes disguised as Japanese aircraft, for the purpose of involving the Soviet government in the Sino-Japanese conflict. With the equivalent of "Oh, yeah?", Russia retorted with a stern warning that it would hold Japan responsible for any bombing of the embassy, intentional or accidental. The Soviet officials said they considered the reported plot a "pure provocation showing the intention of some Japanese military powers to bombard the Soviet embassy intentionally and then try to escape responsibility."

With callous brutality Japan continued the air raids on Nanking, Canton and other large Chinese cities, the bombs slaughtering thousands of helpless civilians. The utter contempt for protests of western nations shown by Japan seemed warranted by the failure to insist on respect for the nine-power treaty guaranteeing the territorial integrity of China. For this failure Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek blames especially the United States. "This war," said he, "will last as long as Japanese aggression lasts in China."

The League of Nations advisory committee adopted a resolution condemning the Japanese aircraft for bombarding open towns, though the British tried hard to avoid mentioning Japan by name.

Leland Harrison, the American observer without vote, sat silent throughout the acrimonious debate in the committee.

A Japanese submarine sank a fleet of Chinese fishing junks off the coast of southern China, killing 300 men, women and children.

Yarnoll's Policy Wins

ADMIRAL HARRY YARNOLL was decidedly opposed to the policy of Washington to withdraw American warships from Chinese waters in the face of danger. His protests have been considered by the general board of the Navy department and his program approved. Consequently our naval vessels will remain there to protect our nationals as long as the present controversy between China and Japan exists.

The Navy department announced that the Asiatic fleet could not be withdrawn under present conditions "without failure in our duty and without bringing great discredit on the United States navy."

Moro Woo in Palestine

GREAT BRITAIN'S contested plan to divide Palestine between the Jews and the Arabs, with a slice for herself, came to the front again when Lewis Andrews, British commissioner of Galilee, was assassinated by a group of terrorists in Nazareth. Three men, two in European garb and one in peasant clothing, ambushed Andrews and shot him, and his bodyguard to death.

Andrews had gained the enmity of extremists because of the strictness of his rule as district commissioner and his life had been threatened frequently.

O'Mahoney Butts In

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT, on the way to Seattle, first entered the "enemy's" country when he crossed the border of Wyoming, the state of Senator Joseph O'Mahoney, leader of the anti-Supreme court enlargement forces. Mr. Roosevelt's train reached Cheyenne in the early morning, and there, among the welcome, was Joseph, though he had pointedly not been invited to board the train. He walked alongside the President's car and Mrs. Roosevelt emerged, shook his hand and asked after Mrs. O'Mahoney.

The senator then entered the private car and he and Mr. Roosevelt shook hands and said "Hello," but the atmosphere was decidedly chilling. He took leave of the party at Casper, Wyo., after accompanying the President and his group on a drive about that city.

The Chief Executive spent two days in Yellowstone National park, and then went on to Boise, Idaho; to the Bonneville dam near Portland, and thence to Seattle.

No Special Session ACCORDING to high government officials in Washington, the President has dropped his plan to call a special session of congress in November. Administration leaders, it was said, were convinced that it would only invite trouble over the appointment of Hugo Black to the Supreme court and further damage Mr. Roosevelt's legislative program.

Noted Merchant Dies EDWARD A. FILENE, best known of all Boston's merchants, died of pneumonia in the American hospital in Paris. He was seventy-seven years old. Besides being a business man, Mr. Filene was a noted social economist. He was sometimes called the apostle of mass production and distribution.

Only ten days after he took charge of the American legation in Vienna, Gremvill T. Emmet died of double pneumonia. He was sixty years old and was a former law partner of President Roosevelt. He was minister to the Netherlands in 1931 and was given the Austrian post last July.

Windsors in Paris FRENCH secret service agents, who have been hunting for two missing "White" Russian generals, were given the pleasant assignment of guarding the duke and duchess of Windsor who went to Paris for their first visit there together. The duchess had a lot of shopping to do.

The British embassy's second secretary, Armine Dew, greeted the couple at their nine-room suite in a Rue de Rivoli hotel. On the street below, shopkeepers were filling their windows with American flags in preparation for arrival of the first of a contingent of American war veterans revisiting France.

Drops "Parity Prices"

ONE of the administration's chief policies for agriculture has been abandoned, Secretary Wallace announced in Washington. "Parity prices" for farm products, he said, could not be attained. The aim now will be to give "the average farmer the same purchasing power he had in the half century before the World war."

"I don't think there is any way of getting enough money out of the Treasury," Wallace said, "to give farmers parity prices during the next ten years for cotton, wheat, corn, hogs, or any other product that is exported. You might be able to get enough for a year or two to do this. But the consumer would soon rise up in protest."

Wallace also talked about the soil conservation program, under which farmers must hold acreage of major crops below the 1928-37 average in order to obtain benefit payments. He said the only fault with this was that normal yields would be too large in view of the prospective markets.

The secretary still believes that national control over production of the major farm crops is necessary.

"In my opinion," he said, "the principle of co-operative crop adjustment is sound and will eventually be applied again."

Douglas Heads SEC

WALL STREET didn't like the idea of having William O. Douglas as chairman of the Securities and Exchange commission, preferring the more conservative George C. Mathews. However, Douglas was selected to the post, succeeding James M. Landis; and to reconcile the financiers he described himself as "a pretty conservative sort of fellow from the old school, a school too old for some to remember," who has in mind "no ruinous theories of social experimentation."

Edon Still Hopful

ANTHONY EDEN, British foreign minister, hurried from Geneva to attend a special cabinet meeting to which he reported on developments in the Mediterranean situation that is so threatening to European peace. He told of Italy's reiteration of its demand for parity in the "anti-piracy" patrol, and it was believed both he and Prime Minister Chamberlain were hopeful that a rupture could be averted by a partial yielding to Mussolini in this matter.

British public opinion was said to be strongly against a complete concession.

Meanwhile events in the Mediterranean were not such as to bolster Eden's peaceful designs. The British aircraft carrier Glorious reported it had been attacked by a submarine near Malta just as it arrived to take part in the patrol of the sea. Also the admiralty announced on unidentified airplanes dropped six bombs close to the destroyer Fearless. The British and French fleets began their search for "pirate" submarines.

Mr. Roosevelt also gave approval to John Biggers' plans for a voluntary enrollment of the nation's unemployed, to be carried out with the aid of the Post Office department.

Madam Perkins Snubbed FOR the first time in the history of the Labor department, the secretary is not asked to address the annual convention of the American Federation of Labor, to be held in Denver. The list of invited speakers was released, but the name of Madam Perkins was not there. The secretary, whose administration of her office never has been taken very seriously by the country, is considered by the A. F. of L. to be prejudiced in favor of its rival, the C. I. O.

Household Hints

By BETTY WELLS

"I FORGET to count my blessings sometimes," confided Ruth K., "especially on wash day when my work is more than cut in two by my washer and mangle."

"But for some reason or other, I never fail to be impressed with the wonders of my machines when I have a big batch of curtains to do. We have about a million windows—well nearly! And you know what work it is to wash and iron curtains by hand. Now I swish them through the washer, then put them through the mangle . . . when you get on to doing curtains with the mangle, it's easy and does them beautifully. The trick is putting curtains through the mangle is not to fold them. Put them through the full width from each selvage."

"I've been getting very expert at tinting my curtains, too. I love to experiment with tints and have had the grandest luck mixing them. Some of my curtains I have in a very sunny peach color that I got by mixing yellow and pink. And pink with a little sky blue, that added gives a lovely off-pink that's just the thing this season. Another color that's nice for curtains is chartreuse . . . you get that by adding a lot of extra yellow to the green tint or else by toning yellow with blue. Anyway the fun of it is that you never get quite the same tone twice—sometimes it will run more toward yellow and sometimes more toward green. All of them are nice. Straight yellow is a good color for curtains if you want a sunny effect. In mixing tints, be careful not to mix too large a batch of tint at the time or the colors may gray up.

"I think linen is the best material to use because it hangs in such soft beautiful folds. White dress voile is nice too and so is theatrical gauze. I try to keep to fabrics that don't need starch. That's where you really get into trouble with curtains, so I steer clear of such fabrics. Then I like to paint the rods and hardware the same color as the woodwork and curtains."

We take Ruth's word about curtains because hers always look so fresh and pretty.

Unexpected Fate.

"Nobody ever warned me of my fate," laughed Esther M. "So I certainly didn't expect to turn out to be a former's wife! But funny enough I rather like it."

Esther lives on a farm in a plain little square bungalow with no particular architectural distinction, and she hasn't much in the way of money to do things with it. But she and Joe are a hard-working young pair with ideas and they're clever with hammer and paint brush.

The changes they've achieved in three years make us want to pin a medal on the two of them. They painted the house white with a bright blue roof and a bright blue door. Inside they've taken out the color-ade effect that originally separated the living room from the dining room, so now they have one big room. A sunny hot room a good part of the time it is; so they painted walls and woodwork in white with just a touch of light blue in it. Then Esther M. got plain white voile curtains, made them to hang straight and tailored, and always dips them in an over-dose of bluing to give them that same suggestion of blue that the walls have. Their furniture was mostly old and oak, originally belonging to Esther's mother, but they did a grand job of rejuvenating it. First they took generations of varnish off with a good paint remover. That left it a fashionable blonde color and they added only a thin coat of clear shellac. The old oblong dining table was placed at right angles to a pair of double windows in the part of the room that had formerly been the dining end. The sofa and chairs were grouped at the other end of the room. But a large jasper rug in shades of grayed rose extended the full length of the big room. The sofa and one chair got a slip cover of soft blue and another chair was upholstered in a flowered material with quite a bit of rose in the pattern. A pair of little extra cushions of this same flowered fabric added their bit to the two corners of the sofa.

GOOD NUTRITION IS UP TO COOK

Food Must Be Varied and Include Needed Calories.

By EDITH M. BARBER

GOOD nutrition depends upon more than food selection. First of all there is, of course, the choice of such a variety of foods that together they add to the perfect sum of calories, muscle building, energy giving, vitamin and mineral-bearing foods.

While some of these foods may be eaten in their raw form and need merely the process of digestion to be absorbed, others need to be prepared for digestion by cookery. Meat, for instance, must be cooked, because the human teeth are not strong enough to divide raw meat into small pieces which may be easily reached by the digestive juices.

Cereals also need preparation, either by long cooking, by grinding or by pressing by machinery, plus a short cooking. The ready-to-eat cereals are examples of the latter treatment. Flour is also prepared by machinery at the mills before it is made into bread, cakes and cookies.

While many vegetables and fruits can be eaten in their natural form, some of them need cooking for two reasons. The first is, of course, to make them ready for digestion; the other to make them palatable. Potatoes are the outstanding example of the latter fact. The raw potato is unsuited in its raw form to take an important place in our diet.

Potatoes Hashed in Cream.

2 tablespoons butter
2 cups diced potatoes
Salt, pepper
2 cups rich milk

Melt the butter, add potatoes and seasoning and stir over fire until the butter is absorbed. Add the milk and cook slowly, about half an hour. Add more milk if needed.

Fruit Au Gratin.

12 canned or stewed pear or peach halves
Cornflake crumbs
Butter

Drain the fruit, saving the juice. Roll fruit in crumbs. Place in buttered baking dish, cut slice up. Dot with butter. Bake in hot oven (400 to 425 degrees Fahrenheit) until crumbs are brown. Serve with lemon sauce.

Baked Stuffed Fish.

1 medium sized fish, two to three pounds
Stuffing

2 cups soft bread crumbs
2 teaspoons chopped onion
Salt, pepper
2 teaspoons lemon juice
3 tablespoons melted fat

Clean the fish by removing the scales and the fins, and split. Stuff and sew. Dredge with flour, dot with butter and bake in a hot oven (500 degrees Fahrenheit). Cook until the fish separates from the bone and flakes when tested with the point of a knife.

Potato Salad.

4 cups cold boiled potatoes
1 chopped onion
1 cucumber or 2 pickles
1/2 cup French dressing
Cooked salad dressing

Cut potatoes into dice or slices, add the onion and sliced cucumber or pickles, mix with French dressing which should be very well seasoned, and let stand in ice box one or two hours. Mix with salad dressing, serve on lettuce and garnish with parsley. Celery, cut into cubes, or celery seed may be used with the other ingredients if desired.

Refrigerator Pudding.

Chocolate filling
Sponge cake or lady fingers

Line bowl with slices of stale sponge cake or split lady fingers, crust side out. Fill with chocolate filling in alternate layers with cake and chill in refrigerator several hours.

Plum Jam.

1 pound plums
1/2 to 3/4 pound sugar

Wash plums and remove seeds. Add sugar and cook until mixture is thick and clear. Pack immediately into hot, clean jars and seal at once.

Chocolate Filling.

4 ounces chocolate, cut in pieces
1 1/2 cups milk
1/4 cup flour
1 cup sugar
2 tablespoons butter

1 1/2 teaspoons vanilla
Put chocolate and milk in double boiler and heat. When chocolate is melted, beat with rotary egg beater until smooth. Sift flour with sugar, add a small amount of the chocolate mixture and stir until smooth. Return to double boiler, cook until thick and add butter and vanilla. This filling may be stored in refrigerator in a covered jar. It may be used in the pudding, or to put between layers of cake or as a pie filling.

Salmon Cutlets.

2 cups flaked salmon
1 cup thick white sauce
1 teaspoon chopped parsley
Paprika
1 teaspoon lemon juice
Salt

Mix in the order given, spread on a platter to cool. When cold, shape like a cutlet and fry in deep fat, 375 degrees F. A stick of macaroni may be inserted in the end to represent the bone.

Household Questions

Potatoes for Short Cakes.—Hot, boiled and mashed white potatoes are good in making short cakes and puddings. They not only save flour, but require less shortening.

Eggs in Tomatoes.—Take large tomatoes, slice off the tops, remove the pulp. Break an egg into each case, replace the pulp, add a nut of butter, season with pepper and salt. Replace the tops and bake in a hot oven for 5 to 10 minutes. Serve hot or cold, garnished with cress, peas or lettuce.

Cleaning Enameled Sinks.—Those stubborn dark streaks which accumulate on enameled sinks and bathtubs can be removed with kerosene.

Strain the Starch.—Starch used in laundering should be strained to remove all lumps that might blister when ironing.

When Peeling Soft Potshing Dusters.—Rinse them in slightly soapy water instead of clear water. This makes the dusters much softer and they polish better.

Johnny Cake.—One cup yellow corn meal, one cup bread flour, one-third cup sugar, one and one-half cups sour milk, half teaspoon soda, half teaspoon baking powder, one teaspoon salt. Mix and sift the dry ingredients twice, and gradually add the sour milk. Beat well, and bake in a shallow greased pan, in a moderate oven.

When Peeling Small Onions.—Cover small onions with hot water and let stand for a minute or two and the skins are easily removed.

"Ah, but that's nonsense!" Quentin said in his honest, troubled voice.

"Of course it is!" Serena said. She went over and clung to Quentin's arm. He disengaged her hand without seeming conscious of her presence and turned to Victoria. "Why did you come here, dear?" he asked in a concerned, tender voice. "It will only distress you horribly. You don't belong in this!"

"Spencer asked for me, Quent." Vicky raised her eyes to his and saw Serena, pale and tense and watching, looking at them. And she felt an odd twist of something like pity in her heart.

"Nonsense or not," little Dr. Cudworth said inflexibly, "I couldn't—professionally I could not ascribe this to a natural illness."

Serena faced him down. "You could mind your own business!" she said with a hiss on the last word. "If you don't want to do it, knowing, as I told you when you got here, as everyone knows, that he's been a sick man for years, I say that if you don't believe that a man who takes no exercise, and is not strong, could eat something, or take an opiate, that would make him desperately ill, you're a fool! You oughtn't to be practicing medicine. It happens all the time! Men die every day of acute indigestion coupled with heart failure, and if you won't take the responsibility of saying so, Dr. Hardisty will!"

"That couldn't be done, Serena," Quentin said quietly. "I have never had this case. But I'm positive—I don't believe—I know—Dr. Cudworth isn't seriously suggesting—"

"You may do as you think best, Doctor," the other doctor said abruptly. "I would have entire faith in anything you saw fit to do. But I personally must decline the responsibility."

"I have nothing to do with it," Quentin said briefly. Serena turned on him.

"Spencer had acute indigestion, and he's got a bad heart," she said. "But believe me, if there's any investigation, if there's one word of talk, you're in this, too, Quentin Hardisty! I'll not stand it. I'll not face a coroner and be questioned, while you are quietly enjoying yourself over there on the lawn with your wife, laughing and carrying the children into the house!"

"I don't think that'll happen," Quentin said. But Vicky saw that his face was pale. "I wish you'd called me earlier!"

"How do you know what'll happen?" Serena said. "I know. I can tell you! We had a coroner's investigation when Gita's father died. I know what it means! You'll have to sign that death warrant, Quentin, or I'll have to drag your name into it. You and I've talked of what we'd do if he died; you can't deny that, if they put you on oath! Everyone knows what we've been to each other; you had a motive for giving me something that would put him to sleep. He told Dr. Cudworth here that I wanted to get rid of him."

"Vic, do you want to stay?" Quentin asked in an undertone, as the breathless voice died to silence. "This isn't your sort of thing."

"No, Vic won't go," Serena said at white heat. "You don't think Vic doesn't know that you love me, that you've been following me, making me presents, writing me letters?"

Quentin looked at Vicky, looked away; he spoke quietly.

"Vicky knows just how badly I've treated her, Serena," he said. "She's always known, from the beginning. I'm not trying to wriggle out of that. If you were really fool enough to give Spencer sleeping powders or anything else, I'm in it with you. There's no question that you can drag my name and my children's names in the mud, if you want to. You can take those letters into court."

"Letters saying, 'If it weren't for Spencer...'" Serena interrupted him.

"Letters saying everything," Quentin said in a low voice, with a level glance at her. "Letters saying everything!" he repeated. "But one thing isn't true," he went on slowly. "I've never loved but one woman in all my life; never, no matter what I said or wrote or did. I've always loved my wife, always, always held her in a place by herself!"

Vicky went over to him and dropped her hand into his, but he did not glance at her or seem to know that she was there.

"How nice!" Serena said. "So I pay the bill alone. How very nice!"

"No, you and I'll both pay!" Quentin said. "And she'll pay, too. It means disgrace for us all."

There was a sound at the door of the invalid's room; the amah came out with an agitated face, shaking her head. Serena gave a short ejaculation and, turning, went across the hall to her own room and went into it and closed the door. The two doctors and Vicky faced the Chinese woman as she came toward them. Her jargon was unintelligible to Quentin. The promised nurse, hatted, coated, cold, rosy, came upstairs.

"Amah says Spencer heard your voice and wants to speak to you," Vicky interpreted.

"My God, when I saw her face I thought the poor fellow was gone!" Dr. Cudworth ejaculated.

"So did I!" Vicky said. "Do you mean—" Quentin had clutched her arm; his fingers bit into it like a vise, he was almost shouting. "What'd you mean? Isn't he gone?"

"Oh, no; but Quentin, there's no hope," Vicky said. "Master say other doctor come now," the amah said in a singsong.

"Yes, come in with me, for God's sake, Hardisty, and see what you think!" Cudworth said, as they all went together to Spencer's door.

"I've Got an Even Break!" Spencer Asked.

Vicky heard Quentin mutter as if he spoke to himself: "We all stand there talking while the poor fellow dies!"

Then they were in the sickroom; Vicky watching her husband's, rather than the patient's, face, her own face reflecting the fluctuations of feeling she saw there.

"Quentin," the sick man said, clutching at his hand, all personal feeling forgotten in the grips of life and death, "you can do something for me, can't you? For God's sake get me out of this, operate, do anything! That ass there," he whispered, with a sickening glance at that agitated Cudworth, "tells me I'm washed up. There's something you can do?"

Quentin spoke urgently, definitely.

"Vic, get to a telephone and tell Anna to come over right away with that big package that's on my desk; it's from Lengfeld's—she can't miss it. Rush it! And just as soon as you've done that, get the amah to get plenty of hot water, boiling water. I suppose there's a table here, a long table, flat—"

"You think so, Doctor?" faltered the other doctor.

"I know so!" Quentin shouted, suddenly mad with impatience. "Just lie quiet there, Spencer," he added to the patient, "and we'll get you out of this if we can."

"I've got an even break?" Spencer asked.

"Not quite so good. We won't know quite what chance you've got until we've gone a little further. Ah, here's our nurse. We want a surgical bath here, nurse, as fast as you can manage it; we've no time to waste."

Vicky ran downstairs, ran upstairs for sheets; Serena was not in evidence, and nobody asked for her. The nurse suggested a rubber sheet, and Anna panting in with the big bundle, was sent flying back to the Hardistys' for one. Presently there was nothing for Vicky to do except sit on a chair in the hall and wait—and think—and wait.

Quentin came out with a nurse's white apron tied on him back to front and asked for soda, just plain kitchen soda.

"And you might as well go home, Vic; this'll take it out of you."

"No, I'll wait. Quent, has he a chance?"

"I'm afraid not, but we'll try. They're putting him under now; we'll know in an hour."

"She couldn't!" Vicky glanced at the closed door of Serena's room—whispered.

"I don't know. But it's not for him I'm fighting, Vic," Quentin said. "It's for all of us. It's touch, and go now; if he lives, we live, and if he dies, I may have gotten you into something you'll never get out of, my dear."

"You'll be in it, too!"

"I'll be in it, too. Oh, she couldn't get me in as an accomplice," Quent tin said. "But she could do enough to ruin us all. We'd have to go away, Vic."

"We'd go away."

"And the story would follow us, and follow the children. That's all I've done to you!" Quentin said.

"The woman—the amah—has produced a bottle, half full, that would kill ten men. Our one hope is that it was about a ten-times dose, and in lemonade. Lemon is the only anti-acid that touches it! If anything saves him, that'll save him—that is, if we get to the kidney in time."

"You will!" Vicky said, with her faithful eyes on his and her world rocking about her and her lips white.

"You believe in God, don't you?" Quent asked, almost absentmindedly.

"I do."

"Then—while I'm in there, you pray, Vic." He kissed her without smiling, without seeming even to see her; released her from his arms. "My God, you are a tower of strength to me," he said. "You are a rock of help! Pray for everything we've got, while I'm in there—the kids and the home—everything! I always thought—I always thought," Quentin muttered, turning away, "that I'd like my boys to be proud of their father. My kids."

He went into the sickroom, and Vicky waited. There was a big Spanish chair in the upper hall of the Morrison place, and she sat in it and clasped her hands to keep them still and prayed. A Navajo blanket, richly striped with yellow and black and scarlet, had been hanging over the black iron railing of the stairway; she wrapped it about her; the night was bitterly cold.

CHAPTER XV

Silence and night and vigil. Unseen somewhere a clock struck the hours and the half-hours; outside in the dark a rising wind whined unceasingly, and now and then a broken branch skittered on the tiling of the roof. In the upper hallways of the Morrison house one lamp burned softly, steadily; from the half-open door that led into Spencer's room came sounds: Low voices, the creaking of a bed and the clinking of ice, and once a sort of bubbling groan that made Vicky's heart stop for a moment in terror.

She prayed, trying not to think, drowsed, awakened with a start to find that it was not all a strange dream. She really was here in the Morrison house in the middle of the night, Quentin was behind that bedroom door, bringing all his skill, every ounce of strength and knowledge and inspiration that he could muster to the saving of Spencer Morrison's life, and Serena was in her bedroom only a few feet away somehow living through the hours that would decide whether or not she would be tried on a charge of murder.

What was she doing? Vicky wondered. She had swept away from the group hours earlier, had closed her bedroom door upon whatever she was experiencing, suffering, furious with fear, the accusing eyes of both doctors upon her, their flat refusals to perjure themselves in protecting her still ringing in her astounded ears, and Spencer struggling in death throes of her causing, she had angrily withdrawn. Had she flung herself down on her bed and fallen into dreamless sleep? Vic wondered.

"But I'm just magnifying the whole thing into an absolute bugaboo!" Victoria told herself. "It won't happen that way! Spencer will die of an operation, Quentin can sign a certificate about that, anyway, and Cudworth won't talk, he's got his own professional reputation to protect, he doesn't want to be mixed into any murder trial! She'll go away, and this time next year we'll be worrying about something else!"

She could reassure herself for a moment; then the solitude and silence of the night began to work their spell again, and Victoria felt with a sort of desperation that if Quentin didn't come out of that room pretty soon—

The amah appeared presently, looking like a little old mahogany carving in a black-and-white cotton coat.

Interchurch World Movement

The interchurch world movement originated in 1918, and projected the raising of a vast amount of money—one billion dollars—for the spread of the gospel and Christian religion on entirely undenominational lines. It also projected the use of the influence of the church in bettering social, economic and industrial conditions, and for this end caused surveys to be financed and made. The movement was not successful and collapsed in 1921.

Make Your Own Lace Accessories

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

MISS COLLEGE GIRL. Miss Debutante and matrons young and not so young who being active in social affairs need must "dress up" to occasion, here's telling you how to economically acquire that air of elegance which fashion demands for this fall and winter. No matter how ungenerous your clothes allowance may happen to be you can have a whole collection of lace "pretties" such as the sketches here show at comparatively trifling cost. In fact the idea that prompts this illustration, together with its story, is to give you "pointers" on dressing smartly and handsomely on a limited allowance.

A touch of lace will do it! Transform your simplest demure and unpretentious gown into a costume of distinction. And now that we've told you, the first step is either to let your favorite dressmaker in on the secret (show her these sketches) or perhaps you prefer to thrifflily adopt the "make it yourself" course of action. Not that you have to be an expert with the needle, for, provided with carefully selected patterns, there is no reason why, if you can sew even a little bit, that you should not successfully copy these charming fantasies. No matter how many you make of these lovely lace items you can't ever have too many.

Here's a word of friendly advice: don't stint in getting the best type laces for the finer and more exquisite the lace you use in making these dainty fashions the more conclusively will they carry a message of high-style prestige.

If you are clever and have a knack of your own a pattern will not be necessary for the cape for it is cut along simple circular lines. However, a pattern similar to the model shown should be easily available. It has little tailored epaulet effects on the shoulders and cunning wee buttons with tiny thread-crochet loops to fasten it down the front. You can get it hemstitched about the edge or finish with roll hem. As an evening wrap this cape of black Chantilly may be worn over the fashionable all-black gown or over the dress done in lovely pastels.

Have you heard the news about the stunning blouse and skirt or jacket and skirt formals that designers are featuring this season? They are quite the talk in fashion realms. The jacket is supposed to be of sumptuous fabric or lace in contrast color to the monotone skirt. Choose black lace if you want it to "go with everything," although metal lace is wonderfully effective, or if you cherish a color scheme why not a lace jacket in the new spruce green with a crepe skirt in darker rich green, or suppose we say any color just so the jacket is lace? It is no trick at all to get a simple basque-jacket pattern of the type pictured and it will be found easy to make.

The little white cotton lace bolero is very popular and it can be made up so inexpensively it is worth while to keep two or three in waiting for emergency calls. Wear it over simple afternoon dresses or over a floor length crepe sheath which transforms it into an evening ensemble. Jeff of London has made an effective accessory ensemble of black Chantilly lace. (See sketch to right bottom.) The jabot with its high neckline matches a pair of gauntlets of the same black Chantilly, and together they give the essential feminine look to the most tailored of suits.

SILHOUETTE TRENDS FOR EVENING DRESS

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

Outside of that the pencil-slim Directoire with its high slit skirt and the revival of the Empress Eugenia, there is a definite tendency in many houses to a Spanish type of dress. This is usually marked by flounce ruffles. And one must not forget the gently widened skirt as evidenced also in the afternoon clothes. The most startling bit of material used in this has been the placing of various types of lace over lame to give the firmness and stiffness required. One more skirt—and the silhouette can be settled. That is the short front. This varies from the gradation effect to those cut off clear to the knees in front to show a filmy petticoat of ruffled net. A cross between this and the Directoire are skirts which are cut-away like a man's coat, to the knees and then come down to the ground at either side seam.

Daytime Footwear for Fall

Loses Rugged Sporty Look

Most daytime shoes have lost the rugged, sporty look that formerly characterized the appropriate footwear for tailored suits. Smart, soft-toed models, many of them made with elastic insets and gores, mould the foot trimly. Others, constructed entirely of elastic leather, insure a streamlined silhouette, unmarred by gapping sides or fastenings that protrude.

These snug, form-fitting styles are as easy on the feet as bedroom slippers, partly because of their construction and partly because of their comfortable walking-height heels covered with matching materials or built up of little uncovered layers that are nick-proof and resilient.

BRIDLE-PATH CHIC

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

To dress up to the part she plays should be the ambition of every true sportswoman. It may be along scenic bridle paths that the enthusiastic guides her gallant steed or it may be in the glare of bright light and trumpet loud in the fashionable horse show arena that she will make her bow. In either event her riding togs must be correct down to the slightest detail. The picture shows a sartorially perfect outfit. We would especially call your attention to the horse's head carved from brown shell catlin that is nonchalantly pinned on her coat. During the summer it became quite a fad to wear novel carved catlin fish, frogs, snails and such, either clips or brooches, on one's bathing suit.

Refund Coming
Smith called on his parson. "Is it right for any person to profit by the mistakes of other people?" he asked. "Most certainly not," replied the parson. Smith brightened as he replied, "Very well, then, perhaps you'd like to return that $10 I paid you for marrying me."

"Look here," said the indignant woman in the post office, "your mistakes are getting too bad. My husband has gone to Philadelphia on business, and this morning I had a letter from him with an Atlantic City postmark."

AN INTRODUCTION

"It certainly seems that the most ill-natured women get the best husbands."
"Nice of you to say so, my dear—what do you want?"

One Must

"Do you believe in fate, Pat?"
"Sure, and phwat would we stand on widout 'em?"

Allowed No Insult
Snooks (fiercely)—Do you mean to call me a liar, sir?
Brooks—That is the construction which suggests itself in connection with the observation I addressed to you.
Snooks (mollified)—All right, I accept your apology.

I LEARNED TO 'BEAT' ACID INDIGESTION
ONCE LIFE WAS MISERABLE, NO APPETITE... LITTLE SLEEP... UNTIL THE DOCTOR SAID 'ALKALIZE'

BUT NOW—AT THE FIRST SIGN OF ACID-INDIGESTION I USE PHILLIPS' AND I FEEL LIKE A NEW PERSON ALMOST IMMEDIATELY!

The fastest way to "alkalize" is to carry your alkali with you. That's what thousands do now that genuine Phillips' comes in tiny, peppermint flavored tablets—in a flat tin for pocket or purse. Then you are always ready. Use it this way. Take 2 Phillips' tablets—equal in "alkalizing" effect to 2 teaspoonsful of liquid Phillips from the bottle. At once you feel "gas," "nausea," "over-crowding" from hyper-acidity begin to ease. "Acid headaches," "acid breath," "over-acid stomach" are corrected at the source. This is the quick way to ease your own distress—avoid offense to others.

Act Above Doubts Never do an act of which you doubt the justice or propriety.

Watch Your Kidneys!
Help Them Cleanse the Blood of Harmful Body Waste
Your kidneys are constantly filtering waste matter from the blood stream. But kidneys sometimes lag in their work—do not act as Nature intended—fail to remove impurities that, if retained, may poison the system and upset the whole body machinery.
Symptoms may be nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up at night swelling, puffiness under the eyes—a feeling of nervous anxiety and loss of pep and strength. Other signs of kidney bladder disease may be burning, scanty or too frequent urination.
There should be no doubt that prompt treatment is wiser than neglect. Use Doan's Pills. Doan's have been winning new friends for more than forty years. They have a national-wide reputation. Are recommended by grateful people the country over. Ask your neighbor!
