Grizzlies Victorious

26 to 6 In Final Game of the Season on Capitan Gridiron

Carrizozo's Grizzlies trounced the Capitan eleven on the Capitan gridiron yesterday afternoon to the tune of 26 to 6, in the most exciting and hard fought game of the season.

The Grizzlies made two touchdowns in the first 8 minutes of play, from then until the half it was anybody's ball game but neither team pushed over a goal.

Coming back in at the half, Capitan was determined to bring up the score and the Grizzlies were equally determined that they weren't. Carrizozo threw a long pass to left end, to score another touchdown. Then on a line plunge our man got free, making the fourth touchdown.

Things looked bad for Capitan when their runner pushed over a single touchdown.

This was the third game these two teams have played this year. While bloody and hard fought, splendid sportsmanship was displayed by both teams.

Appreciation

"A word to the people of Carrizozo, and the Baptist Church"

On last Tuesday evening, Nov. 23rd, the pastor of the Baptist Church, and his family were invited to the church building on the pretense, that we were about to have a singing. When we entered the building, the finest pounding that I have ever seen was looking us right in the face. We have received many poundings, but never one like unto this. We found many of our friends and church members waiting to receive us. We did sing several songs, but who couldn't sing after a reception like that one.

We wish it were possible to thank every one for these splendid gifts, but since we can not, it is our desire to use this means of expressing our thanks to each and every one. No town could have done a better job at pounding a minister than Carrizozo has done. Permit me to extend to every one of you an invitation to attend our church. We hold services every first and third Sunday. Morning service at eleven o'clock, and evening service at seven-thirty.

Rev. J. C. Vandiver, pastor Baptist Church, Carrizozo.

Public Health Column

Conducted by Charles M. Croo
Director of Public Health Education

A CHARITABLE MAN IS THE TRUE LOVER OF GOD

Every year at about the time of the annual Thanksgiving an appeal is made by the State Tuberculosis Association to the general public to support the annual Seal Sale Campaign, the funds from which represent virtually the entire source of support of the organization.

The cooperative value of the work of the association is very marked and a great deal of importance must be attached to their activities.

Some of the work of the association is in connection with education designed to further tuberculosis control, some of it with the promotion of case finding by means of tuberculin testing and X-ray programs; some of it is in connection with fact finding for the reason that it is difficult to combat a condition in which the facts are not fairly clearly established, and there are a large number of other activities of greater or lesser import.

Tuberculosis is to be considered as an infectious disease but it is different from other such diseases in that it is acquired in general not by one specific exposure to infection but by a prolonged exposure to such infections.

The initial infection is often incurred at quite an early age but owing to the character of the disease it may not become fully manifest until nearly adult life. In order to assure a cure it is most important that the presence of an active infection be observed at the earliest possible moment. Tuberculosis can be cured but an early diagnosis is more than desirable for the reason that in the primary stages the cure is comparatively quickly effected while prolonged delay in the provision of treatment the disease becomes more and more strongly entrenched and consequently more difficult to erase.

Much of the trouble in connection with tuberculosis is caused by the ignorance of the people with regard to it. Infected parents will live in the closest possible contact with healthy members of their family and will finally infect all of them: Family, friends, and neighbors all become the recipients of infection from careless or the ignorant.

Education therefore is most necessary and this is a factor upon which the association lay considerable stress.

I could write indefinitely of the work of the association and the benefits thereby accruing. It is not my purpose, however, to indulge in eulogy. It is only my

Wild Turkey

Santa Fe, Nov. 25-- Conservation of wild turkeys will aid materially in assisting New Mexico farmers to eradicate the grasshopper pest, it was pointed out today by Dr. W. B. McDougall, Wildlife Technician of the National Park Service.

All types of insects, he said, are grieved to the mill of this bird, which is hatched with a seemingly full-grown appetite that shows a strong preference for "hoppers."

"The key to the restoration of the turkey, as in the case of other wildlife," Dr. McDougall said, "is to provide adequate sanctuary, protection, and food supplies. Hyde Memorial State Park, just above Santa Fe, where CCC development work is being carried on under National Park Service supervision, is a wildlife refuge, as are all State Parks. Turkeys are known to be present in Hyde Park. With continued protection they will increase in numbers."

Wild turkeys prefer yellow pines as roosting places. In New Mexico, the birds are limited almost entirely to yellow pine forested areas.

"The history of the wild turkey," Dr. McDougall added, "is in a very real sense the history of American wildlife in general. By nature, he is a denizen of the forest. He will use open fields as a feeding ground, but he prefers that they be small enough that the tall trees are always within easy running distance. Equipped with acute vision and hearing, he is rarely caught napping by even the cleverest stalkers. Possessing strong flight muscles and the endurance of a marathon runner, he is able to survive in spite of any and all predators in his native homeland."

Civil Service Exam.

intention to ask all those to whom the title of this article may apply and those who realize the value of the work which the association is doing, to add what may be their "mite" to buy the association seals and to do their part to support a very worthy and worthwhile endeavor.

School Notes

Mr. J. W. Diefendorf, inspector for the North Central Association, inspected our high school Wednesday and reported everything to be of a high degree of satisfaction.

A beautiful colored picture of a turkey adorned the bulletin board of the high school Wednesday to remind the students of the Thanksgiving season. The Junior-high celebrated the event with a program, Wednesday afternoon.

The Red Cross drive is well under way. Miss Eliza Hobbie is showing unusual ability in securing new members.

A Photographer visited our school Tuesday. Every student had the opportunity to have their picture taken.

Our two days' vacation was welcomed by all the students, and teachers too.

I. O. O. F. Notes

Next Tuesday night the initiatory degree is to be conferred on Mr. Fred Hendricks of Ancho. All members are urged to be on hand as election of the new officers is to be held at this meeting.

Traffic Dangers Face Pedestrians

November and December are months in which there is usually a marked rise in deaths and injuries among pedestrians in traffic accidents, says a statement by the safety department of Rocky Mountain Motorists, the AAA Automobile Club. The motorists organization stressed the need for increased alertness and obedience to law on the part of those who walk in traffic.

Heavy street traffic and pedestrian movement by throngs of shoppers during the approaching holiday season, together with the hazards of winter weather, make it necessary to walk with greater caution, the statement emphasized. Safety rules which pedestrians should observe were listed as follows:

Look both ways before crossing a street and cross at corners only. Stay inside pedestrian lanes. Avoid jaywalking or crossing in the middle of the block.

At traffic-controlled crossings, cross on the "Go" signal only. Do not stand in the street while waiting for the signal to turn, but remain on the sidewalk.

While crossing, watch the movements of others on foot as well as vehicles that may be turning a corner. Make a prompt, continuous crossing and do not loiter.

In stormy weather keep head up and vision unobstructed. Do not bury head under umbrella or eyes under pulled-down hat. Make allowance for greater stopping distance required by vehicles on wet or icy pavements.

Where there are no signals, do not step off the curb without first making sure that no vehicles are dangerously near.

Do not step off the sidewalk between parked cars.

On country roads, walk facing traffic as required by law and at night wear or display something white to help motorists see your presence.

Apply For Your Social Security Number

Albuquerque, Nov. 24. Persons who expect to work temporarily in stores, shops, and other business establishments during the holiday season were urged to obtain their social security account numbers now and "avoid the Christmas rush," by Martin I. Snelus, manager of the Albuquerque office of the social Security Board.

"Thousands of extra workers will be employed in the various retail lines between now and the end of the year, and all of this employment is covered by the old-age insurance provisions of the Social Security Act," Snelus said. "The fact that these workers are being employed only temporarily does not exclude them from participating in the program."

"Since many of these workers will be entering employment for the first time, it will be necessary for them to obtain social security account numbers as they take their jobs. In fact, many employers are now requiring new employees to secure account numbers as a prerequisite to going to work. Therefore, prospective workers—and particularly those who live outside Albuquerque and must communicate with this office by mail—should apply for account numbers now in order that their account cards may be issued to them without delay."

"Application forms, available in Albuquerque at the Social Security Board office, and elsewhere in this area at local post offices, should be filled out and returned to the Social Security Board, 109 Federal Building, Albuquerque, New Mexico. To those who apply at our office personally, we are able to issue an account card in just a few minutes. Account cards are forwarded for applications received by mail on the same day they are received, provided they are properly executed," Snelus said.

It was explained that persons who already have established social security accounts should not apply for another number. Snelus emphasized that a worker keeps his one social security account number, reporting it to each of his employers, throughout his working life, regardless of the number of firms by whom he may be employed.

September Morn

DO YOU remember back to the days when college and prep school boys shocked their elders by displaying on the walls of their rooms the picture of a nude girl standing in a pool of water? It was called "September Morn" and, although it was considered "highly improper" in those days, it became the most famous picture in America—thanks to a press agent named Harry Reichenbach, who was out of a job, and Anthony Comstock, head of the Anti-Vice society of New York. It came about in this way: The original painting had been rejected for a brewer's calendar and was hung in the window of a New York art shop which offered reproductions of it for ten cents. But few people were interested enough to buy these copies until Reichenbach came along and saw the possibilities in it. He needed $45 to pay his room rent and the art shop promised to pay it if he could think of an idea for disposing of the 2,000 copies in its stock.

Reichenbach had a large display of the picture put in the window and then, pretending to be an outraged citizen, phoned Comstock about it. He persuaded others to do the same thing and they all declared that the picture was undermining the morals of the youth of the city. Down to the shop marched the virtuous Anthony. He found a group of ruffians (hired by Reichenbach) loitering around in front of the shop and making leering remarks about the picture.

Convinced that "September Morn" was indeed a menace to the youth of the city, Comstock immediately appealed to the courts to stop the sale of the reproductions. The result was just what Reichenbach had hoped for. In fact, the picture became something of a national issue and before the excitement over it died down 7,000,000 copies had been sold at $1.00 each.

The Magic Stone

"CAN the Ethiopian change his skin, or the leopard his spots?"

About 30 years ago a great many people evidently believed that the first half of that question could be answered "yes" and, for a time, this belief threatened to give Tulsa, Okla., the largest negro population of any city in the United States.

It came about when J. Burr Gibbons, a reporter for the Tulsa Democrat, wrote a news story announcing the discovery of a negro having an oil lease near Sapulpa who had succeeded in making a white man out of himself. According to the story, the transformation resulted because the negro drank from a mineral spring on his lease. At first, white spots began to appear on his body. Then they gradually spread until he was as white-skinned as any man of Caucasian origin.

When this story was widely reprinted in other papers, an avalanche of mail descended upon the Democrat. It almost swamped the Tulsa post office. It came from negroes all over the United States who wanted to know more about this magic spring, what were the chances for finding employment in Tulsa so they could bathe in it and enjoy its wonder-working powers, etc.

Of course, they were doomed to disappointment but it was a long time before the last inquirer was convinced that there was no such spring and before the last echoes of the reporter's hoax died away.

The Hoaxer Hoaxed

TO PHINEAS T. BARNUM one day came a letter from a man in Vermont saying that he had a sensational attraction for his American Museum on Broadway. It was a cherry-colored cat which he would sell for $200 but the terms were cash-in-advance and immediate acceptance of the offer.

Always eager to obtain some new wonder, Barnum promptly sent on the $200. When the "wonder" arrived, he discovered that it was only an ordinary large black cat. Attached to its neck was a card which read: "I forgot to tell you that the cherries up here are black ones."

At first Barnum was furious at the deception. Then he saw the humor of the situation and decided to turn it to his own advantage. He displayed the animal in his museum and gave wide publicity to his acquisition of a "genuine cherry-colored cat from Vermont."

If a customer, upon seeing the animal, complained that he had been deceived and showed his money back, the salesman explained that he had bought the animal in good faith and that, furthermore, it really was the color of cherries, only they were Vermont black cherries. Usually, however, visitors to the museum were so delighted to see how the master hoaxer had been hoaxed that they did not complain. Instead they were inclined to consider it a good joke on themselves—that they had been taken in by Barnum's claim to own a cherry-colored cat.

SEASON IS HERE FOR MINCE PIES

Pumpkin Pie Also Really Belongs to This Time.

By EDITH M. BARBER

EVEN the most modern of us have a few old-fashioned prejudices, and I admit to mine! Glad as I am to have most foods ignore local seasons, there are certain dishes that I, for one, am glad are usually reserved for certain months of the year. Mince pie is an outstanding example of a dessert which belongs with cold weather. While pumpkin pie might well be served at any time of year, it still belongs among our cold weather desserts by custom whether it is of the old-fashioned custard type or that even more delicate chiffon pie.

In a bygone day the making of mince meat in the early fall was just as common as fall pickling and preserving. Today, most of us are content to buy one of the ready-to-use mixes which, however, we may like to make individual through the addition of candied cherries, nuts, bits of left-over canned fruit, with brandy or some other liquor for special flavor accent. It is a good idea to keep a covered jar in the refrigerator which may be gradually filled with any fruit or juice which remains after cherries, apricots, pineapple or other fruits have been served for dessert. This jar can be called upon to add additional flavor when the mince pie is in the making.

Pastry for mince pie should be good and rich. By the way, have you seen the gorgeous chromium rolling pins which can be filled with ice? The metal and the ice between them make it possible to roll rich pastry easily.

By the way, I had a pie which was new to me not long ago at a dinner party. Have you tasted egg nog pie, flavored as the name shows with rum?

Mince Meat.

- 1 pound lean beef
- 1/2 pound suet
- 3 large tart apples
- 1 1/2 ounces citron
- 2 pounds raisins
- 1 pound currants
- 1/2 tablespoon cinnamon
- 1/2 teaspoon mace
- 1/2 teaspoon cloves
- 1/2 teaspoon allspice
- 1/2 tablespoon salt
- 1 pound brown sugar
- 1 quart cider

Cover meat with boiling water and simmer until tender. Cut suet in small pieces and let stand in cold water 1 hour. Drain. Grind meat suet, apples and citron in the meat chopper. Add raisins, currants and spices mixed with the sugar. Add cider and cook slowly 2 hours, stirring frequently to prevent burning. Seal in hot, air-tight jars. When ready to make pies, add more chopped apples, water, cider or brandy.

This recipe makes seven pints mince meat.

Egg Nog Pie.

- 1/2 cup cold water
- 4 egg yolks
- 1/2 cup sugar
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 1/2 cup hot water
- 3 tablespoons rum
- 4 egg whites, beaten stiff
- 1/2 cup sugar
- Whipped cream
- Nutmeg

Soak gelatin in cold water. Cook egg yolks, sugar, salt and hot water in top part of double boiler until of custard consistency, stirring constantly. Stir in softened gelatin and when dissolved add rum and beat well. Allow mixture to cool and when it starts to congeal fold in stiffly beaten egg whites and sugar. Pour into baked pie shell and chill in refrigerator. When ready to serve spread with a thin layer of whipped cream and sprinkle with grated nutmeg.

HOUSEHOLD QUESTIONS

Washing Voile.—Voile frocks will not shrink if you use a tablespoonful of epsom salts to every gallon of water when washing them.

For Dry Shoe Polish.—Shoe polish which has become hard and dry should be moistened with a little vinegar.

Ten-Minute Sweet.—Line a buttered pie dish with breadcrumbs. Into a pint of milk whisk 2 eggs, 4 tablespoonfuls of sugar and a dash of vanilla essence. Four over the crumbs and bake for 10 minutes.

When Washing Blankets: Never leave any soap in blankets as this will turn them yellow. Allow half a cupful of vinegar to each gallon of final rinsing water; this will clear all soap from them.

Improving Flavor of Bacon.—When boiling bacon or any kind of salted meat, the flavor will be improved if six cloves, a dessert-spoonful of lemon juice, a table-spoonful of brown sugar, a sprig of mint, and a grating of nutmeg are added to the water.

Savory Salmon Dish.—Turn out a small tin of salmon, remove skin and bones and flake the fish. Season with pepper and salt. Mix 2 cupfuls of breadcrumbs with 2 ounces of flour, stir in 2 well-beaten eggs and the salmon. Mix well, then form into the shape of a fresh salmon steak. Fry in a little hot fat until brown, turning carefully so that both sides are cooked. Serve garnished with sliced lemon or tomatoes.

When Sales Drop

Between 1929 and 1933 the expenditure for advertising in newspapers and periodicals dropped 50 per cent, but the value of manufactured products showed a much greater reduction percentage.

Constipated?

Don't Let Gas, Nerve Pressure Keep You Miserable

When you are constipated two things happen. FIRST: Gases swell up the bowels and press on nerves in the digestive tract. This nerve pressure causes headache, a dull, lazy feeling, irritability, loss of appetite and dizziness. SECOND: The fairly dried food starts to decay forming GAS, bringing on sour stomach (acid indigestion), and heartburn, bloating you up until you sometimes gasp for breath.

Then you spend many miserable days. You can't eat. You can't sleep. Your stomach is full. You feel tired out, cranky and miserable.

To get the complete relief you seek you must do TWO things. 1. You must remove the GAS. 2. You must clear the bowels and GET THAT PRESSURE OFF THE NERVES. As soon as the clearing wastes are washed out you feel nervously refreshed, blue again, the world looks bright again.

There is only one product on the market that gives you the PUBLIC ACTION you need. It is ADLERIK. This efficient cathartic relieves that awful GAS at once. It often removes bowel congestion in half an hour. No waiting for overnight relief. Adlerik acts on the stomach and both bowels. Ordinary laxatives act on the lower bowels only. Adlerik has been recommended by many doctors and druggists for 25 years. No griping, no after effects. Just QUICK relief. Try Adlerik today. You'll say you have never used such an efficient intestinal cleanser.

Ecuador Indians Were Skillful in Handling Platinum

By EMILY C. DAVIS

New York.—One prehistoric people mastered the difficult metal, platinum, and they were Indians of northern Ecuador. They were part of the great golden Incan empire, although last to be absorbed into the vast Indian political machine before Spanish conquest ended its amazing progress.

These ancients of Ecuador made platinum jewelry. Apparently, they were the only ones to use this metal ornamentally until recent times. They made rings and tools of it, but mostly they plated gold with it to form dangling, shiny platelets, to catch the light.

The extraordinary point, though, is that they could blend the soft platinum with other metal to make a harder alloy. It took our civilization about a century to master that problem. We force the platinum to melt by intense heat, only possible with modern technical appliances.

Alloy of Platinum and Gold. That Indians actually achieved a platinum alloy was discovered by Dr. Paul Bergsøe, vice president of the Danish Association for Metallurgical Research. He found a clue in some half-finished work, abandoned over 400 years ago. He declares it compels modern science to have new respect for Indian metallurgy.

The Indian method was to mix platinum grains with gold dust and heat it until the gold ran and plated the platinum grains. Then they heated it further by blowpipe until gold and platinum mingled enough to form a pasty mass that could be hammered when hot. So, by alternately forging and heating they contrived an alloy—not up to modern ones, but good enough for modern metallurgists to think it was pure platinum. Chemical analysis revealed the artificial blend.

The Indians apparently took their secret to the grave. Had treasure-hunting Spaniards observed the technique, says Dr. Bergsøe, the story of platinum in Europe might have taken a different turn.

Teeth in the Stone Age Were Very Much Like Ours

Berlin.—Late Stone age people had very much the same kind of jaws and teeth that we have nowadays, except that in modern man caries, or tooth cavities, has become very much more numerous. This, in summary, represents the findings of Prof. Herman Euler of the University of Breslau, who has made a special study of a large number of skulls found in Silesian village sites of 4,000 years ago, when central Europe was still in the Neolithic age.

As compared with modern times, the low incidence of caries is very striking. The Silesian skulls show only 0.7 per cent of children's teeth with cavities, as against 82 per cent of carious teeth in modern children. For adults, the figures are 1.76 and 92 per cent, respectively.

In size and condition of wisdom teeth, however, moderns have a decided advantage of their Neolithic predecessors. Professor Euler's research disclosed. Of the skulls from the ancient Silesian graves, 26.8 per cent had no wisdom teeth at all, whereas a check-up on German university students showed suppression of wisdom teeth in only 1.3 per cent. In general, wisdom teeth and other molars are larger and stouter in moderns than in the Neolithic skulls. X-ray studies show that pulp cavities are larger in the ancient teeth.

Ship-Lizard Fossil Is in Harvard's Museum

Cambridge, Mass.—One of the world's oldest and oddest animals, the ship-lizard, is now on display here in Harvard's Museum of Comparative Zoology.

It lived in Texas some 225,000,000 years ago and its fossil remains were discovered and collected from the famous Texas red-beds by Prof. Alfred S. Romer, L. I. Price and R. V. Witter.

This ancient lizard, forerunner of the giant dinosaurs, gets its name from a sail-fin, two feet long, that runs along its backbone. It is about eight feet long, half tail and half body, and its head is only half a foot long. Scientists call it Edaphosaurus.

New Disease With Severe Effects and Very Long Name

New York.—A new disease, which may have affected as many as one out of every five adults in the country without their knowing what they had, came in for discussion at the meeting of the American Public Health association here.

The disease has the jaw-breaking name lymphocytic choriomeningitis. It is caused by a virus. In about half the cases it causes fever and symptoms similar to influenza. In the other half it affects the membranes that cover the brain and causes more severe symptoms, such as bad headaches, stiff neck, nausea and vomiting and even slight, temporary paralysis. So far, no death has been reported in a proved case of this disease.

It is difficult or impossible to distinguish this new disease by clinical means alone from another brain membrane inflammation, acute aseptic meningitis, Dr. R. D. Baird and Thomas M. Rivers of the hospital of the Rockefeller Institute for Medical Research pointed out.

Its Virus Is Isolated. The disease was discovered and its virus isolated by Drs. Charles Armstrong and R. D. Lillie of the United States National Institute of Health. They found the virus while studying viruses from St. Louis encephalitis epidemic patients in 1934. Two years before this Commander Paul F. Dickens of the United States Navy medical corps had reported two cases of what looked like acute aseptic meningitis but which he thought might be another disease caused by a virus. Since then the virus has been recovered from patients and from monkeys, mice and other animals in this country, England and France.

Diagnosis of the disease, say Dr. Armstrong, Drs. Baird and Rivers and others who have studied it, depends on examination of the spinal fluid and on a mouse protection test. This consists in mixing the patient's serum with the virus and injecting it into mice. If the patient had the disease, his blood would have antibodies in it that neutralize the virus. In that case the mouse would remain well. But if the mouse gets sick, it shows that the patient's blood had no virus-neutralizing antibodies, and therefore that he did not have lymphocytic choriomeningitis.

Dr. Armstrong and associates made this test on blood from nearly 2,000 well persons who were having routine blood tests for other reasons. They found that among the adults, almost 20 per cent had neutralizing antibodies in their blood, although none of them recalled being sick with symptoms of any brain or nerve disease. This indicates that nearly one out of every five adults may have had the disease. The reason it had been missed in these patients is probably because when it does not affect the brain it behaves so much like influenza that it would be diagnosed as such.

Carbon Dioxide Filled Lamps Supply Daylight

Lake Placid, N. Y.—Carbon dioxide filled incandescent lamps, providing an artificial daylight claimed to be a wide improvement over any previous type of artificial daylight lamp, have been commercially perfected, the Optical Society of America was told here.

The lamp is suitable for matching colors, the test which has proved the undoing of most previous artificial lights, Dr. Thomas J. Killian declared.

Previous attempts to use carbon dioxide in lamps, a long-sought goal because of its white spectrum, have failed because of the tendency of the gas to break down under the electric charge sent through it, with consequent changes in its pressure and behavior. A simple electronic control for the pressure is the new feature of the light.

Whiskers Grow Faster When Weather Is Warm

Jacksonville, Fla.—The whisker crop grows faster in hot weather. This is not hearsay. Scientific evidence, carefully gathered hair by hair, appears in the journal, Science. The crop report was made by Dr. Paul Eaton of the Florida state board of health and Mary Wright Eaton.

The evidence was gathered in an experiment involving "the measurement of the hair shaved from the same part of the face at approximately the same hour and with the same technique every day for one year," the report states.

Russia Wants Muskrats

Moscow.—Muskrats, immigrant animals from America, are regarded as pests in western Europe, but in the U. S. S. R. they are being encouraged to colonize the vast northern marsh lands, as an addition to Russian fur resources.

What Irvin S. Cobb Thinks about

The Law's Injustice. SANTA MONICA, CALIF.—Had it happened in another country, we'd say, "What curious ideas foreigners have of law enforcement."

A footpad with an evil record held up a victim. A bystander saw the crime, identified the thief.

The ruffian was held under indictment. But he could give bond. The spectator was "detained" as a material witness—a gentle way of saying he was locked up, exactly as though he had been the criminal. Well, he was guilty of being poor.

Irvin S. Cobb

Six months later came the trial. The defendant, having been out all that time on bail, looked hale and hearty. The prosecution's witness was produced under guard, pale and sickly from close confinement. It didn't help his health any when the crook's attorney browbeat him, yelled at him, practically accused him of perjury.

The citizen sued the state for false imprisonment, for loss of wages, for separation from his family, for all he'd suffered. Under the statutes he had no standing. They threw his case out.

Meanwhile, the convicted crook had been released by the parole board and was free as a bird.

Aquatic Novelties

INTERESTING discoveries were made in Hawaiian waters by government ichthyologists. For fear the similarity of sound may lead to wrong impressions, let me state that this department has nothing to do with Secretary Ickes, although, since ichthyology pertains to fish, Mrs. Secretary Perkins might possibly have a contrary view on this point. Because they do say there are moments in the cabinet when all is not sweetness and accord. However, the point is that Uncle Sam's piscatorial charms dredged up a fish that is most delectable for six months of the year, but poisonous the other six months. So at least they've found a creature emblematic of the California climate.

Let this be regarded around here as treason. I will state that I'm as loyal a native son as any that ever came out of Iowa, having been here long enough now to join in passing resolutions endorsing the scenery and at intervals uttering three loud ringing cheers for the sunsets.

Also let envious Florida refrain from gloating. To typify Florida's climate that fish would be good only four months of the year and powerfully hard to put up with the rest of the time.

Lecturing Adventures

IN ALABAMA is a sect which forbids its converts to laugh or even smile. Now I know who it was bought out the house when I delivered a humorous lecture down there.

The other day a chap asked me why I didn't go back on the lecture platform. I told him I'd appeared in practically every sizable town in America, and, though it was years ago and probably popular indignation had abated now, still I wasn't taking any chances—I was waiting for some new towns to be built.

Once I tried the experiment of slipping around to the front door to hear what the crowd said, coming out. That was the night I attempted suicide by gas, but was saved when someone, passing through the hotel corridor, smelled something that smelled even worse than the hotel smelled.

A lecturer's lot is not a happy one. But usually it's the audience that suffers most.

Eating Oysters

THERE'S a brand-new movement called eat-oysters-in-any-month-you-please movement, or, unless you're working on space rates, it may be called E. O. I. A. M. Y. P. M., for short. Its sponsor says the prejudice against eating oysters in months having an "r" in them is a fallacy dating back 2,000 years when, between hiccoughs, a Roman senator said: "Oysters should be eaten only in certain seasons."

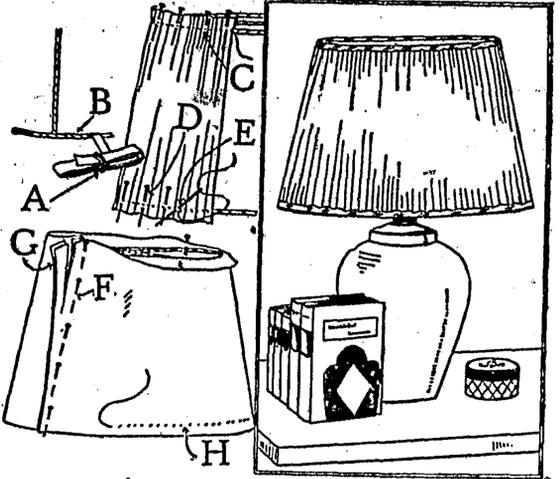

So it appears we've been penalizing ourselves ever since then for the indigestion of a Roman senator, although, so far as eating the California oyster is concerned—he runs around forty to the dozen—I personally could refrain for the whole year, without any undue longings. The California oyster looks something like a brass overall button suffering from vertigo.

Still, maybe it's all for the best. Because during May, June, July and August is when the oyster does practically all his courting. There's little enough romance left in the world—and anyhow, who am I to come between an oyster and his love-life? He doesn't seem to have any too much fun the rest of the time.

HOW TO SEW

by Ruth Wyeth Spears

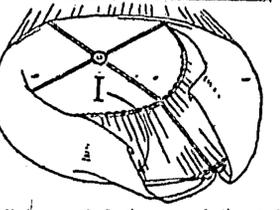

Silk Shades Give a Soft Glow

THERE is subtlety in the light that glows through a silk shade, and many decorators are using them for the room that needs the softness of plaited folds and the mellowness obtained by placing two tones of fabric one over the other.

Two tones of China silk, one to be used for a plain lining and the other for a gathered outside covering will make an attractive shade. Try samples in daytime and over artificial light. You will also need a roll of silk binding tape matching the top color of the shade. This tape is to wrap the wire frame. And fancy braid either in gold, silver or a harmonizing tone of silk is used to bind the top and bottom of the shade. Use cotton thread to match the outside tone of the silk.

Slip the binding tape off the roll and wrap a rubber band around it as shown here at A. Working from the inside end of the tape wrap the frame as shown at B. The outside layer of silk is put on next. This is gathered both top and bottom and pinned to the wire covering as at C and D so that it is stretched quite tight. Joinings in the outside covering need not be sewed but may be hidden under the folds. This material is sewed in place as at E.

Next, cut a straight strip for the lining and fit it around the outside of the frame as shown here at F. Trim the joining allowing a seam as shown at G. Sew to the frame at the bottom as at H. Trim quite close at the bottom. Turn lining to inside as at I. Slip stitch the joining. Turn in raw edges at top and whip around top of frame. Pin the binding around and then sew it with stitches buried in the mesh of the braid.

Every Homemaker should have a copy of Mrs. Spears' new book, SEWING. Forty-eight pages of step-by-step directions for making slipcovers and dressing tables; restoring and upholstering chairs, couches; making curtains for every type of room and purpose. Making lampshades, rugs, ottomans and other useful articles for the home. Readers wishing a copy should send name and address, enclosing 25 cents, to Mrs. Spears, 210 South Desplaines St., Chicago, Illinois.

TAX REVISION IS COMING

President's Message Outlines Program Designed to Assist Small Business

Looking as if he had just bitten into a sour, very sour, pickle, Norman H. Davis, chief of the American delegation to the nine-power conference in Brussels, is pictured chatting with British foreign minister Anthony Eden (left) and French foreign minister Yvon Delbos (right). The conference has accomplished nothing towards solving the Sino-Japanese tangle.

Extra Session Opens

WITH the evident intention of doing what it can to aid business, congress began its extraordinary session.

President Roosevelt

Its first business was to listen to a rather long message from Mr. Roosevelt in which the Chief Executive committed himself to limited tax law revision for the purpose of removing admitted injustices suffered especially by small business and non-speculative investors.

Mr. Roosevelt proposed tax "modifications adequate to encourage productive enterprise," but explained that he sought primarily to aid at the expense of individual or partnership undertaking.

The President said exercise of "ordinary prudence" would protect the nation against prolonged business recession.

He reiterated his intention to balance the next fiscal year budget, and demanded that congress find and provide new revenue for any added expenditures authorized now.

The President asked congress to provide:

1. Wages and hours legislation
2. An "all-weather" crop control program
3. Reorganization of executive departments.
4. National planning for better use of natural resources.

It appeared certain that a vigorous opposition to all or part of this program would arise, but nearly everywhere seemed in favor of tax law revision.

"Fireside Chat"

CALLING on the nation for full cooperation in the taking of the voluntary census of the unemployed, taken by the Post Office department, President Roosevelt in a "fireside chat" by radio said that permanent cure of the unemployment problem lies in finding jobs in industry and agriculture. Nevertheless, he said, it is still the policy of the administration that no one shall starve through lack of government aid.

He gave assurance that the government will try to stimulate private industry enough to enable it to re-absorb the jobless; and after the results of the census are tabulated, a long-range program will be launched. This program, he said, will apply to employers as well as to workers, and in this was perceived a note of encouragement to business.

The President said prosperity of the nation depended upon national purchasing power, and added:

"Our far-sighted industrial leaders now recognize that a very substantial share of corporate earnings must be paid out in wages, or the soil from which these industries grow will soon become impoverished. Our farmers recognize that their largest customers are the workers for wages, and that farm markets cannot be maintained except through widespread purchasing power."

Mr. Roosevelt emphasized that America will not try to solve the employment problem by a huge armament program, as other nations are doing.

Here's Wallace's Program

SECRETARY WALLACE offered a program which he said would "promote security for both farmers and consumers" in his annual report to the President. To finance it he recommended a moderate producer tax on cotton only. Crop con-rol when necessary, and the "ever-normal granary" are parts of his plan.

These are the six points of the program which Wallace said would harmonize with the general welfare:

1. Farmers should have a share in the national income to re-establish the prewar ratio of the average farmer's purchasing power to that of the average non-farmer.
2. The people who live on the land must have security of tenure, either as owners of land or renters on a long-time basis.
3. The soil must be used properly and conserved for future farmers and future city dwellers.
4. Farmers through sound co-operatives must come into control of those marketing, processing, purchasing and service functions which they can manage efficiently.
5. Family sized farms should be favored by federal programs, benefit payments and other such aids to rural income.
6. Federal and state funds should continue to be spent to promote agricultural research and farm efficiency.

Leaving It Up to Uncle Sam

UNLESS congress changes the neutrality act, it is probable the nations that signed and adhered to the nine-power Pacific treaty will take no positive action against Japan for violating that pact. The delegates to the Brussels conference, with the exception of Italy, voted to censure the Japanese for making war on China, and then adjourned to get further instructions from their governments.

Great Britain and France agreed to join in any effort "short of war" which the United States may decide should be made, this meaning economic sanctions against Japan. But the isolationist policy of this country would have to be abandoned if such sanctions were to be of any avail.

A long document was submitted to the conference by China asking that the war be ended by the infliction of penalties against Japan. The memorandum gave statistical tables that showed economic sanctions could halt Japan because of that nation's dependence on foreign markets and foreign sources of supply.

Norman H. Davis, chief American delegate, in addressing the conference, was rather conciliatory toward Japan, but he said:

"The question in its final analysis, is whether international relations shall be determined by arbitrary force or by law and respect for international treaties. In fact, that seems to be the greatest issue facing the world today, and one of the most momentous problems that mankind has been called on to solve."

Plot to Kill Stalin?

FROM foreign diplomats stationed in Moscow came reports that a plot by German agents to assassinate Dictator Stalin of Russia had been uncovered, and that it might compromise Maxim Litvinov, foreign commissar, who left the Brussels conference suddenly and apparently seriously worried. Investigations by the G. P. U. already have resulted in the recall or disappearance of many leading Russian diplomats. The German consul general in Leningrad was ordered to leave the country immediately. It is believed two German agents arrested some weeks ago confessed the conspiracy to murder Stalin, and involve the country in a civil war.

Lewis Back from Europe

SENATOR LEWIS of Illinois returned from a tour of Germany in which he sought to arrange for payments to American holders of German municipal bonds. The group of which he was a member has submitted a report to Secretary of State Hull.

In France, England, and Germany, the senator said he found a strong increase in American exports to the three countries but expressed himself at a loss to see how the nations could pay for their purchases, because they are all in debt as a result of feverish preparations for or against war.

Grim Tragedy at Sea

THE Greek freighter Tzeny Chandris foundered off Cape Hatteras, and for hours the members of the crew, clinging to life rafts and wreckage, fought off a horde of sharks. They were sighted by aviators from Norfolk and most of them were picked up by the coast guard cutter Mendota and the tanker Swiftsure. One of the survivors, the third engineer, charged that the first S O S was sent from the vessel only after he drew a knife and threatened to kill, the radio operator unless he called for aid.

Death of Atee Pomerene

PNEUMONIA put an end to the career of Atee Pomerene, former senator from Ohio. He died in Cleveland at the age of seventy-three years. Pomerene gained fame as a special prosecutor in the Teapot Dome oil inquiry, and President Hoover made him chairman of the Reconstruction Finance corporation.

Balance Budget: Morgenthau

BUSINESS men of America received a cheering message, presumably direct from the administration, delivered by Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau.

Secretary Morgenthau

Addressing the Academy of Political Sciences in New York, Mr. Morgenthau declared the time had come for balancing the budget, but said this should be accomplished without additional taxation.

Encouragement for industry and business was also given: "The laws should be so written and administered that the taxpayer can continue to make a reasonable profit with a minimum of interference from his federal government."

Moreover, the treasury head went on record as opposed to a continuance of the era of unlimited government spending. Said he: "The basic need today is to foster the full application of the driving force of private capital. We want to see capital go into the productive channels of private industry. We want to see private business expand."

The plan advanced by Mr. Morgenthau for balancing the budget was to bring next year's expenditures, under the 1933 budget which takes effect next July 1, within this year's revenues. To achieve a balance, exclusive of debt retirement payments, the present scale of expenditures would have to be sliced $700,000,000, he added.

While he urged against tax increases, Mr. Morgenthau suggested that a broader base for income taxes, increasing the number of taxpayers above the present 3,000,000 would be a more equitable substitute for the present federal taxes on consumers—the so-called nuisance taxes.

Reasons for Thanks

AMERICA can be thankful for the blessing of peace, President Roosevelt asserted in a proclamation designating November 23 as Thanksgiving day.

"A period unhappily marked in many parts of the world by strife and threats of war finds our people enjoying the blessing of peace," he said. "We have no selfish designs against other nations."

At the outset of the proclamation the President said, "the harvests of our fields have been abundant and many men and women have been given the blessing of stable employment."

Bloch to Head Navy

ABOUT the first of next February the American navy will have a new commander-in-chief in the person of Admiral Claude Charles Bloch, nominated by Secretary Swanson to succeed Admiral Hepburn. The son of a Czechoslovakian immigrant and a native of Woodbury, Ky., he is now fifty-nine years old.

After his graduation from the naval academy Bloch served under "Fighting Bob" Evans on the U. S. S. Iowa in the Spanish-American war and was cited for "meritorious" service in rescuing Spaniards from burning ships of Cervera's squadron. During the World war, as commander of the transport Plattsburg, Bloch won the navy cross for "distinguished service."

Suede Combines Smartly With Knit

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

IMPORTANT news—knit and suede have formed a partnership! If it's fashion thrills you are seeking just make a visit to the nearest display of late fall and winter knitwear fashions and see how smartly knit and suede are carrying on in their new alliance.

If you are interested in knitted apparel, and of course you are, for every woman is sensing more and more that knitted clothes not only serve most faithfully, but when it comes to "style" it's all there and—well, as we were saying, if you are interested in knitted apparel just wait before buying until you see the magic worked in the new outfits via the added touch of suede either in an accessory way such as gloves, belts, handbags, hats and shoes or by working the suede in as an integral part of the costume.

See the stunning two-pleat to the left in the picture. It demonstrates perfectly how skillfully designers are using suede with knit. The knitted fabric for this model is appropriately called "hustress tweed." The modern Diana will certainly "dress to the part" in this striking togetherness. Describing the knitted material that fashions it, there are solid colored cotton nubs splattered throughout a vertical rib stitch. The jacket front is of soft suede in a contrasting color and a zipper closure. The silk scarf matches the tailored suede belt in color, and the little skull cap worn snugly at the back of the head is of the same knitted material as the skirt.

As to the costume centered in the group, all the way from Tibet comes the fine soft cashmere wool so emphatically in vogue in knitted sportswear this season. Being well styled, this cashmere knitted dress will prove chic and comfortable at outdoor sports at the same time that it underwrites a promise of being well-dressed at afternoon functions. There are suede accents with gold eyelets and a suede belt with a gold buckle. The skirt is four-gored and flares gracefully.

Cashmere does service to smartness, comfort and sports style in the two-piece knitted dress shown to the right. There is a shirred yoke effect in the front part of the blouse, mounted by a neckline drawn up and bowed with a grosgrain ribbon in peasant fashion. The belt is suede. The wide hip-band emphasizes the youthful silhouette and is surmounted by novelty pockets posed on the diagonal.

Which reminds us, the pocket theme is an important one. Watch the newest little jackets and see how decoratively and amusingly they are being pocketed this season. Furthermore, advance news is to the effect that designers are going to continue to "say it" for the new spring fashions in terms of novel and numerous pockets.

If you are assembling a suede accessory ensemble, look up the smart new belts made of cutout leaves in multi colors riveted together with metal eyelets. They tone up the simplest knit dress to perfection.

Another way to carry out a successful partnership of suede with knit is to top the knitted dress with a knee-length somewhat flaring coat of bright suede. This type costume is proving a campus favorite. Also to wear about town there's nothing swankier.

As to sweaters and twin sets (some of the latter top the knit pull-on blouse with a cunning knit bolero instead of the usual sweater jacket) they yield to the new embellishment of suede most gladly.

IN BLACK AND GOLD

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

Black and gold, black and gold! Style creators and designers are singing the refrain in clarion tones while the vast throng of fashion followers join in a mighty chorus that resounds throughout the fall and winter mode. With the season's highlight of black and gold in mind, Madame Jolles of Vienna, noted for handbags, especially exquisite petit point as well as other media, designs the elegant bag which you see in the picture of black antelope with an imported dome-shaped gold frame and a circular center lock topped with a ruby red stone.

FASHION RUNS WILD IN USE OF FLOWERS

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

It all started back in the days of the Restoration, when ladies tied be-guiling bonnets underneath their chins, with flowers tucked at the brim to complete the picture of feminine charm.

Now the designers are giving us bonnets, flowers and femininity, based on Restoration styles. And we're using flowers where we never thought of using them before: nose-gays pinned to chiffon handkerchiefs, violets on a black suede glove, velvet neck-bands finished with forget-me-nots, flower jewelry, and flower polishes for fingertips.

It's all part of the back-to-femininity movement, which started the cropping up of flowers and the softened, subtle nail polish shades that make the hands look really feminine. It's especially smart to match up your polish to the flower you wear—clover polish with a silver-violet flower in your hair, tulip with a brilliant tulip pinned to your black gown, thistle with a bunch of faun-colored thistles on the lapel of your brown fur coat.

Safe Counsel: Use Chains For Bad Weather Driving

SAFE counsel for bad driving weather, according to police officials and safety engineers, is to use tire chains.

This warning was issued today, with winter driving conditions prevailing, after the report of the National Safety council that 28,140 persons died in traffic accidents during the first nine months of 1937, an increase of 9 per cent over the same period last year. With greater driving danger in winter because of ice and snow, police officials and safety engineers warned that tire chains provide the most positive anti-skid and traction yet developed.

The Contest board of the American Automobile association, in official test No. 3143, conclusively proved the greater margin of safety and stopping ability provided by Weed tire chains. Vividly illustrating their imperative necessity on snow or ice, the AAA test showed that chains, on rear wheels only, stopped a car in 45.8 per cent less distance than when no chains were used, and in 66.8 per cent less distance where chains were used on all four wheels!

Overdone Politeness

From early childhood, the Chinese are taught so thoroughly to mind their own business that they rarely render assistance when a person is drowning, a house is burning or a store is being robbed. In fact, purse-snatching in broad daylight is a common occurrence on the streets of Chinese cities because thieves are fairly certain that no one will interfere.—Collier's Weekly.

Cattle Kingdom

SYNOPSIS

Billy Wheeler, wealthy young cattleman, arrives at the 94 ranch, summoned by his friend Horse Dunn, its elderly and quick-tempered owner, because of a mysterious murder. Billy is in love with Dunn's niece Marian, who has not seen him for two years. She had rejected his suit and is still aloof. The 94 ranch is surrounded by enemies, including Link Bender, Pinto Halliday and Sam Caldwell, whom he has defeated in his efforts to build a cattle kingdom. Dunn directs his cow hands, Val Douglas, Tulare Callahan and others to search for the killer's horse. He explains to Billy that the morning before he had come upon bloodstained ground at Short Creek and found the trail of a shod and unshod horse. The shod horse's rider had been killed. The body had disappeared. Link Bender had arrived at the scene and read the signs the way he had. Dunn reveals that because of a financial crisis the ranch may be in jeopardy; his enemies may make trouble since Sheriff Walt Amos is friendly with them. He says he has asked Old Man Coffee, the country's best trader, to join them. Dunn and Billy meet Amos, Link Bender, his son "the Kid" and Cayuse Cayetano, an Indian trader, at Short Creek. Bender has found the slain man's horse, but the saddle is missing. Almost supernaturally, he is attracted to the scene by the blood-stained ground, stamp out all the traces. Dunn is angered when Amos tells him not to leave the county. Following an argument, Bender draws his gun, but Dunn wounds him in the arm. Back at the ranch Old Man Coffee arrives, with a pack of hounds. Coffee goes in search of the dead man's saddle. Dunn tells Billy that Bender is innocent of him for trying to settle disputes by bloodshed. He reveals that the ranch is really here, also that he recently sold his own ranch in Arizona and that his partner, Bob Flagg, is en route to the territory. Billy accompanies Marian on a ride to Short Creek. "Kid" Bender, now a deputy, rides up. They have an argument.

Kid Bender's quilt-marked hand flashed to his gun. For the second time in two days Wheeler forgot his own unaccustomed weapon. The horse were neck to neck, facing each other; and now Wheeler, clamping the reins into his own pony, grabbed at the spade bit of Kid Bender's horse.

Kid Bender's gun exploded skyward as the Kid's horse reared straight up, driven over backwards by the plunge of Wheeler's pony against the cruel bit. For an instant Bender's pony fought for its balance on its hind legs. Then together horse and man went down.

Wheeler whirled his pony aside; and now he drew at last, and turned the muzzle of his cocked gun upward, ready.

Bender's horse struggled up and bolted, bucking against the loosened saddle; but the man lay quiet where he had gone down.

CHAPTER IV

Val Douglas, wagon boss for the 94, leaned against the red rock fireplace of the main room of the ranch house, and looked at Billy Wheeler without admiration. "Now you've done it," he said; "oh, you've done it now, all right!"

"I won't ask you what you'd have done in my place," Wheeler said, "because I don't give a hoot. But I'll say this—if you had done much differently it would be because you're a worse fool than I thought."

It was many hours now since Billy Wheeler had upset Kid Bender's horse, pinning that newly-made deputy sheriff under the saddle; the long peculiarly lucid twilight of the Red Hills country now lay cool and lingering upon the range. But report of the clash with Kid Bender had been delayed by Horse Dunn's absence.

Horse Dunn and his wagon boss had now heard the story of the order Kid Bender had given Wheeler, and Wheeler's refusal; and of how the Kid had tried to trick Wheeler into glancing away while he drew. There had been a bad moment for Wheeler after he had overthrown the Kid's horse, for at first Kid Bender had looked as if he might be dead, saddle-crushed by his fallen mount.

Kid Bender, though, had come to with only a broken leg and a dirty crack on the head to show. And Pinto Halliday, shifty-eyed, lanky, had appeared from the Short Creek cuts to take Kid Bender off of Wheeler's embarrassed hands. Halliday, it appeared, was another newly-made deputy. Evidently he had been the other half of the Short Creek patrol.

"No show-off play like that ever does any good," Douglas said. "It only stacks trouble onto plenty we already got."

At the window Horse Dunn stirred impatiently. "Understand this, Val," he said. "Billy done just what I would have done in a like case. I'll back Billy's play to the limit, and that goes for any other play he wants to make!"

"Sure," said Douglas. "What else can we do?"

Wheeler sat up, angering again. "Now just a minute!" Horse Dunn whirled. "Cut it out," he snapped. "Val, that was Old Man Coffee just come in; go take care of his horse, and see that there's grub laid out at the cook shack."

When Val Douglas had gone out Billy Wheeler's anger left him. "He's mostly right, Horse," he said. "You're mostly right, Horse," he said.

ers with enough guts in their bellies to—" His thunder subsided; Wheeler noticed how all the hard fire went out of this old man in the presence of his niece, Marian Dunn sat relaxed at the other window, her eyes in the far hills; and her profile was as motionless as if she were carved of cream-colored marble. Billy Wheeler had that day seen horror and antipathy in her eyes after he had downed Kid Bender; and he no longer wondered why Horse Dunn lost spirit sometimes when she was there.

Horse Dunn mumbled in obscure apology, "We're right sorry. Things sometimes go like this. But sometimes we can't help it if they do. If only Bob Flagg would get here—"

Marian Dunn gave no sign of having heard, and there was an awkward silence. Then Old Man Coffee came strolling across from the corral, dropped a saddle from his hip to the gallery floor, and let himself in.

"Val Douglas says that Billy Wheeler, here, stirred up a little extra hell today," he said without preliminaries.

Horse Dunn grunted, and Wheeler briefly explained to the old lion hunter what had happened.

"Well," Old Man Coffee said, "I reckon Marian can testify she seen him go for his gun."

Marian did not verify this. After a moment Horse Dunn said, "I suppose you didn't find anything, or you'd be saying so."

"I'd sure like to catch up with that Cayuse Cayetano," Coffee said.

"How'd You Lay Hands on That?"

"Today I seen him riding a horse to death, some northward, toward the Red Sleep. I'd sure like to know what he was at."

"You worry plenty about that Indian, don't you?"

"He knows too much, too soon," Coffee complained. "Why wasn't he promoting the Short Creek trails, like me? Something funny about this Cayuse, Horse."

"So you lost out," Horse accused him.

Old Man Coffee eased himself onto the most uncomfortable chair in the room, and there draped himself angularly. "If there's anything in the world makes me mad," he said morosely, "it's a cussed fool hound."

The droop-eared old lion dog which had followed Coffee in looked at him mournfully, and flopped to the floor with a great rattle of elbows, but made no remark. (I set out to trail the killer's horse," Coffee went on. "I took off down-creek; Rock seeking the trail where it come out of the water. Pretty soon he says he's got it, and sets up a beller, and away we go, inching along about two miles an hour. That fool hound takes anyway six, eight miles, all the time hollering just as confident as if he knew what he was at."

Old Man Coffee crammed cut plug into an ancient pipe, the bowl of which was carved to represent hearts and flowers!

"Well?" Dunn demanded at last. "All this time," Coffee said, "I hadn't been able to make out a decent track; but I was getting kind of suspicious because of the way the trail wandered around. Then finally we come on a soft place, where I could see plain. And it was the wrong trail."

"I thought this dog couldn't be fooled," Dunn grunted.

"He was sure fooled this time. The trail your wagon boss showed me was off a cup-hoofed pony; the hoofs showed nail splits. But old Rock took after a pony that was flat-footed as a duck—his feet wore down right onto the frog."

"So," Horse Dunn said, "you ended up empty-handed, same as us ordinary folks!"

"Not altogether and complete," Coffee retorted. "Rock quit said—" wouldn't work no more. But I took and unraveled the other trail by hand." He stepped out onto the gallery and came back with the saddle, which he now threw down among them in a tangle of broken strap-page. "There," he said casually, "is the death saddle you was inquiring after."

Billy Wheeler heard Marian's breath jerk through her teeth. In the falling light her eyes looked surprisingly dark.

"Good Lord!" said Dunn. "How'd you lay hands on that?"

"Why, I followed the trail of the dead man's horse, until I come to the place he rolled loose from it. How'd you suppose?"

Horse Dunn had dropped to his knees beside the saddle. None of them had realized how deep the room was in twilight until it was brightened by the flare of the match he struck. For a long moment Horse Dunn studied the old worn leather, until the flame burned to his finger tips and went out. He stood up slowly. "You know that saddle?"

"No," said Wheeler. "Do you?"

Behind Horse Dunn's shaggy face the muscles were stiffening slowly, so that although his features remained in some sense a mask, his eyes presently began to gleam with the white heat of the anger which he could not repress. "Yes," he said.

Yet he did not immediately answer their unspoken question. He turned to the window again, and for a little while stood looking out as if he could not yet trust himself to speak. Out behind the barns, Coffee's five other hounds were churning the quiet twilight with mournful bellowings, and for a little while they all seemed to be listening to that. Then Marian got up and went quietly from the room, and for once her uncle seemed glad to have her go.

"Here they're setting out to put the hooks to me," Horse Dunn said at last—"hunting a strangle bolt on my brand. And it's a shameful thing that this should come onto us because somebody rubbed out may-be the most worthless character that ever rode the Red Hills range."

"You know the name?" said Old Man Coffee.

"What's his name matter?" Horse Dunn exploded. "His name was Lon Magoon—and what of it? A cow thief—in a small, cheap way. He'd go around on different ranges, and he'd steal a beef here, and another there; skin 'em and sell 'em to some butcher a hundred miles away for half price."

"Horse," said Coffee, "who would have killed this man?"

"Anybody!" Horse Dunn roared. "Any cowman with enough guts to rub out a cow thief! I ought to've killed him myself last time I caught him with the carcass of a 94 cow!"

"Did you know he was operating on this range?"

"What's the difference if I did or not? We know it now. Billy, you take that saddle, and kick it under my bunk!"

"You better turn it in to the sheriff, Horse," Coffee said. "You'll be suppressing evidence if you keep it here."

"Damned if I will!" Horse Dunn said. "All they want is to hang this thing on the 94—on me. You think I called you in to help 'em? No, by God!"

Tulare Callahan was a small man, very wiry, with a cheerfully hard face. He had relieved Steve Hurley, who for three days had kept an eye on the state of affairs at the county seat of Inspiration, and he now came roaring into the 94 lay-out in Horse Dunn's heavy old touring car. He was grinning with the delight of an action-hungry man who smells smoke at last.

"I hear Billy Wheeler like to murdered a guy," said he. "Billy Wheeler slapped Kid Bender with a horse," Dunn said. "You come all the way back here to tell us that?" "I thought maybe you might want to hear the upshot," Tulare said. "The sheriff's coming out to get Wheeler, either tonight or first thing in the morning. He's going to throw him in the jug."

"What's the charge against Billy?" Horse asked. "Assault with a deadly weapon."

"Billy didn't assault him with anything!" "The heck he didn't," Old Man Coffee put in. "Didn't he hurl the Kid's horse at him?"

"The town is full of small-time cowmen and their professional calf thieves," Tulare reported. "Seems like every guy in the country that has it in for the 94 is swarming into Inspiration. I bet there's 20 guys that's tried to get themselves made deputies. If Walt Amos called for a posse he could easy raise a hundred men."

"So they figure to arrest Billy Wheeler," Dunn said. "They can't hold him," Coffee said. "I suppose Kid Bender will run in Pinto Halliday as a witness, and they'll all lie to beat the cards. But what good will it do 'em? Marian was there. Billy's got a witness that can make a fool of 'em in any court in the world."

Marian Dunn said, almost under her breath but very clearly, "I can't testify."

Horse Dunn looked startled. "What's that?" he demanded. "I didn't see anything," Marian said. "I don't know how the fight started. Billy just suddenly jumped his horse at the other horse, and it went over backward. That's all I saw."

Horse Dunn turned to her. He seemed puzzled, but very quiet. "Marian," he said, "didn't you hear Billy tell what happened? How Kid Bender went for his gun?"

The girl said, "Yes, I heard him." "I've known Billy Wheeler since he had to shin up a horse's leg to get on. You think he'd lie to us here?"

"No; I didn't say I thought he lied."

"Then what's to stop you from backing him up?"

In the girl's eyes showed something Billy Wheeler had never seen there before. Her face was as gentle and lucid as the face of a child; but though her eyes were troubled there was a cober strength behind them as immutable in its way as the rocky wall of Horse Dunn.

"I can't swear to something I didn't see."

Horse Dunn looked at her, then turned away and let his hands fall in a gesture of utter futility. His eyes turned to Billy Wheeler. "You see?" he said. "You see?"

Old Man Coffee broke the awkward pause. "Look here," he said. "There's something about this I don't get. Yesterday you shot Link Bender through the arm, Horse, right before the sheriff's eyes. Nothing comes of that. How is it the sheriff lets that pass, yet jumps in with both feet the minute Billy Wheeler raises his hand in self-defense?"

"You want to know the answer?" Horse Dunn demanded. "He didn't take me because he hasn't got the guts to take me. What, haul me in on a charge like that? He knows it can't be done! What he fails to allow for now is that the 94 will back Billy Wheeler just the same as if he'd been here all his life. When he finds that out you'll see him drop back!"

"I'm not so sure," said Old Man Coffee again. "You're not sure? Look at it, man!"

"Skin" Divers Still Seek Pearls in California Gulf; Suit Is Introduced

Diving for pearls in the Gulf of Lower California is carried on by "skin" divers in the same way in which their ancestors sought for pearls in the days long before the Spanish conquest. Doubtless the pearls, "big as pigeon eggs," that were found among the jade and gold ornaments in the tomb of an Indian chief opened at Monte Alban during 1931, were taken from the waters of this gulf, observes a writer in the New York Times. In recent years pearls found in these waters have equaled those found at Monte Alban in beauty but not in size.

The divers, armed only with a knife, descend feet first to a distance about twice their own height, then turn and swim to the bottom. Some can stay submerged for two to three minutes at a depth of about 100 feet, but the average diver does not remain under water for more than a minute at a time. It is a hazardous life, for not only is there extreme physical hardship but also constant danger from sharks and octopuses.

The physical hardship has brought Sullivan's Last Fight. The last fight of the famous John L. Sullivan was in defense of London prize ring title on July 8, 1889. He fought Jake Kilrain in Richburg, Miss., and he won the fight in the seventy-fifth round.

about the introduction of a simple diving suit that not only allows the diver a longer time to gather oyster shells but lessens the danger of paralysis. Too, sharks are more easily eluded by the man in a diver's suit. But these suits are relatively expensive and boys most often start as "skin" divers. Any day may bring wealth to the diver, so there is a certain elan in the air that is felt through the time when diving brings merely a bare living.

Mexican government experts are supervising the propagation of pearl oysters in the bay near La Paz. It takes years for the tiny granule of sand or parasite which is the base of the pearl to be coated with nacre by the oyster. The value of the pearl depends upon its symmetry, luster and tint.

A Germ Today . . . A SCOURGE TOMORROW!

Only the skill of a trained scientist can control such things. Modern research has made unnecessary the great plagues which swept Europe in medieval times . . . simply because men have learned how microscopic germs can be checked in their horrible path of destruction.

But bacteriology is only one of the studies which keep scientists busy today. They study the stars and their influence on our world . . . they split the atom to see what gives it energy . . . they discover new methods of making our lives easier and happier.

Yes, their work DOES hold an interest for you, because without the aid of science many of your pleasures, safeguards and comforts would be impossible. Science recognizes its obligation in acquainting the public with its work, hence the world's leading research men contribute regularly to "Keeping Up With Science," a popular feature of this newspaper. It is written in layman's language that you can understand, not in the technical style of the scientist himself. You'll find it one of the most fascinating features of this publication.

The Livestock Situation

Los Angeles, November 24.—Despite near record receipts of cattle last week at the Los Angeles Union Stock Yards, the market is holding steady and prices of all grades and classes of cattle and calves are about in line with two weeks ago. The answer to this situation is that people are consuming a larger quantity of beef than ever before, and that California range and feedlot operators are buying approximately 40 per cent of the receipts as replacements.

It is apparent at this time that the year's total slaughter of cattle in the Los Angeles area will exceed the 1936 record total of more than 657,000 cattle and calves. During two months of 1937, packers in the metropolitan Los Angeles area have slaughtered more than 47,000 cattle and indications are that the November total will be the largest of the year. And this means that the total consumption of beef in this area is the greatest in all history, because beef is relatively cheaper as a meat food than almost any other commodity. Of course, the real answer to the growth of metropolitan Los Angeles as a meat slaughtering and distributing center is the fact that population is increasing each year. The 1937 industrial development undoubtedly will prove to have been by far the greatest recorded and thousands upon thousands of new workers are on industrial payrolls.

Generous rainfall in central and northern California have brought early green feed and replacements are being made on a large scale. So far, rainfall has been very light in Southern California as far north as Merced in the San Joaquin Valley and up to Salinas on the Coast.

Hog prices slumped badly on eastern markets during the last few days and these declines are reflected in a 50 to 75c decline on the Los Angeles market. For the first time in more than a year, best hogs sold below $8.00 a hundredweight on a certain middle western market at the close of last week. On the Los Angeles market at the close of the week, best grain-fed hogs were selling at $9.00 to $9.60 a hundredweight. Packers have been losing a great deal of money on hog products, according to all trade reports, and their determination to stop losses in pork departments may be partly the reason for sharp declines this fall. On the other hand, there has been strong consumer resistance to relatively high pork prices, and a tendency to turn to other foods.
