H. E. Brubaker

After a lingering illness, Mr. H. E. Brubaker, age 85, passed away early Wednesday morning in Capitan at the home of his son, Mr. J. A. Brubaker. Mr. Brubaker came to Capitan from Otero county and has made his home there for some time. The remains were taken to Alamogordo where funeral services were held yesterday afternoon, followed by interment there.

Applications for Grazing Privileges Under Taylor Grazing Act

All renewal requests and new applications for 1938 grazing season must be filed in the office of the Director of Grazing, Box 575, Albuquerque, New Mexico, prior to January 15, 1938. No applications will be received after this date. Blanks if not received may be obtained from members of local Advisory Boards.

Attention is called to the fact that after license is issued no adjustment in fees will be made except for reasons beyond control of licensee. No licenses will be issued unless all assessed grazing fees have been paid.

Where non-use is granted, it must continue for the full license period.

Company Pays Dividends

Employees of Continental Oil Company today shared with stockholders in the Company's 1937 earnings, with distribution of a bonus that was equivalent to almost an extra month's salary, it was announced here by President Dan Moran. This will be followed by payment of a 25 cent dividend on December 20th, to stockholders of record on November 29th, he said.

"Continental Oil Company's business in 1937 has been the greatest history of the Company and we are gratified to distribute this bonus in recognition of the contribution made by each employee."

To Improve Telephone Service

"A new 128 gauge copper phantom group will be completed between Carrizozo and Roswell, New Mexico, about December 24, 1937. These facilities, together with re-arrangements of existing facilities, will provide the following additional circuits:

Terminals	Distance	Present		New
		No. of cks.	Add'l	Total	Total
Albuquerque-Roswell	254 mi.	1	1	2	2
Roswell-Capitan	69 "	1	1	2	2
Carrizozo-Capitan	21 "	1	1	2	2
Carrizozo-Nogal-Mesa	17 "	0	1	1	1

"Transmission on the Roswell-Capitan and Carrizozo-Capitan circuits will be improved by the replacement of iron wire with 104 copper wire. Nogal and Mesa are now bridged on the one existing Carrizozo-Capitan circuit, and the provision of the direct circuit mentioned above will provide improved service and transmission to these exchanges. This project, which includes new toll entrance cables at Carrizozo and Roswell, will cost approximately $33,000. In connection with this job, about 8 miles of our line is being rebuilt in new locations to clear the new highway between Carrizozo and Roswell at an additional cost of $3,400."

A tree will be erected and Santa Claus will be on hand to see that each child is share of the good things.

RESOLUTION

Lincoln County Educational Association in convention assembled at Lincoln, N. M., November 10, 1937.

We, the members of the Lincoln County Educational Association, do hereby wish to express the following:

1. Resolved: That we shall express our appreciation to the Eastern New Mexico Normal, Portales and New Mexico State Teachers' College, Silver City for their co-operation and kindness in furnishing the convention with such able and interesting speakers.

2. Resolved: That appreciation be extended to Dr. H. W. James, President Donald MacKay, Mr. George Barber, Miss Snipes, Miss Herr, and Miss Holtman for their splendid addresses and general helpfulness.

3. Resolved: That appreciation be given the Board of Education, Faculty, and patrons of Lincoln for use of the building, and their co-operation and hospitality during the day.

4. Resolved: That we hereby express our appreciation to the P. T. A. of Lincoln for the complimentary luncheon at 12 o'clock and the splendid banquet at 6 P. M. today.

5. Resolved: That appreciation be extended to Mrs. Nickels and other teachers of music in the County for the splendid music during the day.

6. Resolved: That thanks be offered to each participant on today's program. May each have the satisfaction of knowing their task was well done and a real service rendered.

7. Resolved: That appreciation be extended to our President, Mrs. Irene Hart, Vice-President R. V. Traylor, and Secretary and Treasurer, Gertrude Pearce, for their sincere efforts in formulating and carrying out a constructive program of the day.

8. Resolved: That we appreciate and commend to all thinking educators and the State Department of Education for their interest and work in the field of curricular revision; to the end that the public schools will better fit the students for complete living.

9. Resolved: That a copy of these resolutions be sent to the following publications and one copy be retained for the files of the Association:

New Mexico School Review.

Mrs. Jennie H. Baldwin.
Unanimously approved.

Bill Compton was in El Paso on business the first of the week.

School Notes

The Carrizozo Glee Club, went to Lincoln Friday. They sang some lovely songs, which were liked by everyone.

Mrs. Sammons and Miss Cole, both teachers in Carrizozo schools, spent Saturday in Albuquerque.

Geraldine Sweet is leaving school for the rest of the week to go to Oklahoma for the Christmas vacation.

Jack Claunch is leaving soon, to make his home in Tulsa, Oklahoma. We are sorry to lose a good student like Jack.

The teachers went to Lincoln, Friday December 10 for a County Teacher's meeting. We all learned that the teachers had a very nice time. Each teacher learned new tricks to make students work.

The Carrizozo Public School will be dismissed for its Christmas vacation on December 23, 1937, and will not take up again until January 3, of 1938. There will be a whole ten-day vacation for all students.

The Business Men's Club of Carrizozo gave a banquet at the Carrizozo Eating House for the Athletic Association. All the boys had a very good time.

The High School Basketball team was not successful in winning the game from Corona. The score was 18 to 19. The CC Camp also beat the second team. The score was 12 to 29.

The school has taken a new magazine for the school library. It is the "Scholastic" Weekly. It is liked by all the students. This makes a total of 11 good publications accessible to the student body.

The Home Economics Club gave a party Thursday, the 16th.

There was a play given in the High School Auditorium last Thursday by the fifth grade. There were also songs by the eighth grade and the High School Glee Club.

Biology is very interesting this week. The students are segmenting cray fish and drawing the specimens in the Biology manuals.

The Sophomore class of Carrizozo High School has lost two students, Miss Laura Griego and Miss Arsenis McKinley.

Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Cathey of Ancho were shopping in Carrizozo yesterday.

Mrs. Jimmie Duncan and Miss Dixie Harmon spent Tuesday and Wednesday in El Paso with friends.

Quite a number have already taken advantage of our fountain pen offer which starts today and ends Jan. 15, 1938.

Messrs. Murel Burnett, Gene Dow and Bradley Smith were in El Paso last Tuesday.

The Woman's club food sale and Bazaar held last Saturday at the English Hardware Store was a success. The coffee and tea served on the Mezzanine floor attracted much attention. The committee thanks all who assisted in making this a success.

Mr. Roy Shafer of the Carrizozo Auto Company, left Wednesday morning for Denver, to bring back the new Fords for 1938.

We Had An Idea

That a store doing a large volume of business on a small margin of profit would pay

WE WERE WRONG

We did not get the large volume. We will quit business Dec. 31, 1937 and will sell out everything at cost. We had some really honest to goodness customers and we thank them for the loyal support they gave us.

Fine Wool Robes and Hostess Gowns

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

CONSIDERING fashion from a fabric angle, the big news is the outstanding importance attached to the use of fine wool weaves not only for daytime clothes, as one would naturally expect, but that which is the thrill of thrills in the widespread use of rich wool materials for the evening apparel.

If you have the right slant on that which is truly high style you will wear over your prettiest formal gown to the opera, horse show, or to your favorite dine-and-dance rendezvous, a floor length cape (three-quarter length if you prefer) of broadcloth, duvetyn, or nubby tweed or even fine jersey, as some few Paris designers now sponsor.

For the more casual and workmanlike modes, smartly patterned flannels are shown in gay young stripes, checks and geometrical designs that yield to flattering tailored treatment emphasizing square-shouldered lines with mannish details to accent, by way of contrast, the femininity of the beautifully molded silhouette. To the left in the picture you will see just such a garment. It is of deep wine flannel with a smart white pin stripe, the same distinctively tailored in a wraparound robe which is at once chic and practical. It has broad padded shoulders, slit pockets and tailored shawl collar and is built on graceful fitted and flared lines. A self-fabric sash is tied casually at the waist.

In keeping with the mood for elegance that dominates current styles, there is a decided tendency to embellish these lovely at-home flannels with glistening trimmings and bright metallic touches also lavish embroidery, beading and fringe that contrasts to perfection the smooth richness of the fabric. For closings all the fashion world loves the new decorative slide fasteners that run the full length of the garment. See centered in the group the slender sculptured lines of a fitted woolen robe in rich blue flannel enlivened with contrasting tri-colored bands that make a perfect setting for the neck-to-hemline slide fastener that gleams so brightly against its gaily colorful background.

A diagonal zipper glittering with gold sequins striking against the jet black of a gracefully draped robe in soft lightweight flannel, as shown to the right in the group. From a slender, high-built waist the wraparound skirt falls in soft flowing lines and the well-cut sleeves are slightly puffed at the shoulders. Silk cord with gold pointed ends ties at the neck for fluttering effect.

STREAMLINE GOWN

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

Streamliners are what they call the stunning party dresses that made their bow with the opening of the New York automobile show. The handsomely gowned young woman here pictured was photographed as she stood admiring one of the new-model streamline cars. She is wearing a dinner suit of uncut black silk velvet with emphasis on the word silk for there is an insistent and increasing demand for materials of sterling quality that bear an air of distinction. The smart fitted jacket has appliques of gold kid flowers. The applique idea is a fashion highlight this winter, carried out not only in gold on black which leads, but other very effective designing is being achieved with patent leather or suede applied motifs. The hat worn with this regal costume is a black Persian corset.

DESIGNER SETS OUT FASHION SIGNPOSTS

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

From no less an authority than the renowned Schiaporelli comes this foreword in regard to fashions on the way. Says this distinguished style creator: "Signposts signal a new class distinction for black tailored suits, giving them first place in fashion's relay."

They flash "go" to innumerable jersey stockings to match sports blouses in same material; pailletted bowknots; all the tinsel decorations of a Christmas tree directed in fashion channels.

The signals tell us the road lies straight ahead to long legs, a higher waistline and a covered throat, to draped sleeves and draped blouses, to bust length jackets, to jewels you never saw before made to flash from jacket lapels and so the story of fashion unfolds.

Coat Silhouettes Varied

in Fashions for Winter

Coats for the coming winter have refused to conform to any one silhouette. Paris designers show sheath-like tubular coats that are sometimes edged with a band of fox at the bottom; straight, loose coats that are full-length and occasionally made with extra fullness in the back; or of classic lines, nipped in at the waist and flared to the hemline.

Generally speaking, broad shoulders have given way to a more natural line, waistlines frequently are accented, and plain, close-fitting necklines are new. Fur panels often give importance to straight-cut skirts, and lavish use of fur is seen at all of the leading fashion houses

Leopard and Green Used

in Smart Paris Costume

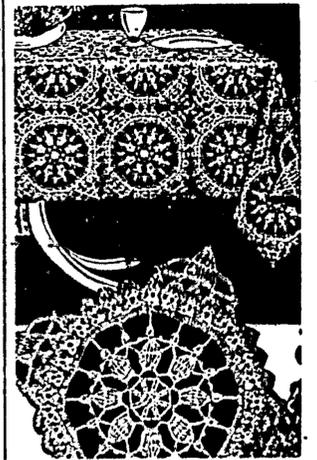

Touches of fine fur on wool dresses are important as trimming now. One smart form-fitting ensemble seen in a Paris collection is of soft deep green wool with long slide fastener closing at the front, slightly accentuated shoulders and bows of leopard at throat and belt fastening. It is worn with boxy leopard jacket and matching green turban, leopard trimmed. It is "sporty" enough to cheer your favorite football team on to victory and smart enough for any afternoon function.

Sentinels of Health

Don't Neglect Them!

Nature designed the kidneys to do a marvelous job. Their task is to keep the flowing blood stream free of an excess of toxic impurities. The act of filtering the blood is constantly producing waste matter the kidneys must remove from the blood if good health is to endure. When the kidneys fail to function as Nature intended, there is retention of waste that may cause body-wide distress. One may suffer nagging headaches, persistent backache, attacks of dizziness, getting up at night, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—feel tired, nervous, all were out.

Frequent, scanty or burning passages may be further evidence of kidney or bladder disturbance.

The recognized and proper treatment is a diuretic medicine to help the kidneys get rid of excess poisons body waste. Use Doan's Pills. They have had more than forty years of public approval. Are endorsed by the country over. Look for Doan's. Sold at all drug stores.

Keeping Up With Science

Hand That Rocks the Cradle Also Brings Home Bacon

Women Produce Big Part of the Family Living

Washington.—The hand that rocks the cradle not only rules the world but brings home the bacon.

Women in America today, whether they pound a typewriter or cook the family dinner, produce a large share of the family living. Miss Mary Elizabeth Pidgeon, chief of the research division of the Women's Bureau, United States Department of Labor, has found. Her investigations of woman's economic status and contributions are contained in a report just made public.

Women are at the head of one out of every 10 families in the United States, she found. Probably more than one-tenth of the nearly 11,000,000 employed women are the entire support of families of two or more persons. More than a third of these are home-makers as well.

High Money Value of Her Work.

The housewife herself, working at least a 50-hour week every week of the year, makes an enormous contribution to the family income, but one that is difficult to put into dollars and cents. The cost of her labor in preparing the family meals according to one estimate is $1,107 a year. This is based on 15 cents worth of labor per meal—a very cheap estimate, Miss Pidgeon points out. If preparing the family meals represents about one-third of the housewife's services, then the money value of her work would run to over $3,500 a year.

Women, by going into industry and taking jobs outside the home, have not forced men out of jobs, it appears from Miss Pidgeon's findings. Women found employment outside the home primarily because of the shift from household to factory manufacture or from hand skills of women to machine processes. It is not a question of women's taking jobs from men but of the adaptation of the sexes to the work of the world.

"Ordinarily the jobs performed by the two sexes differ and hence replacement as such does not occur," she states.

When employment of women does increase though that of men may decline, it is due, Miss Pidgeon finds, to changes in process and the lower wage customarily paid women.

Australopithecus May Be the Ancestor of Man

Pretoria, S. A.—Man is related to the ape stock through Australopithecus, a strikingly man-like extinct ape represented by two fossil skulls discovered in South Africa, declares Dr. R. Broom of the Transvaal museum here, in a communication to the British science weekly, Nature.

Dr. Broom's case for Australopithecus as a direct ancestor of man is based in part on a newly discovered molar tooth from a lower jaw, found in the same cave where he unearthed one of the two skulls. This tooth combines primitive human and ape characters in a remarkable way. In size, however, it is anything but human; it is as big as a gorilla's, and far larger than that of a human being or a chimpanzee.

Intentional Collisions to Test Railway Cars

Columbus, Ohio.—Heavy railway cars crashing into each other in "collisions by arrangement" are the newest laboratory apparatus used in equipment engineering tests. These drastic experiments were described here at the second industrial research conference of the Ohio State University Research foundation.

Both passenger and freight cars are used. L. W. Wallace of the Association of American Railroads reported. Fully loaded, they weigh 84 tons each on the rails. Instruments set into them at 120 places on top and sides measure the strains developed in the crash.

Koala Stages Comeback

Sydney, Australia.—Koalas or native bears, appealing, furry little tree-dwelling animals that look like live Teddys, are staging a comeback in the wild. This gratifying result of 20 years of effort for protection of these unique animals is reported by the Wild Life Preservation society of Australia.

Use for Sewage Grease

Berlin.—Grease contained in sewage disposal is being recovered here for soap and other industrial purposes.

Children May Seek Death Because of Lack of Affection

Reasons for Suicide Studied in Bellevue

By MARJORIE VAN DE WATER
New York.—Little children are not all joyous, carefree sprites filled with life and the joy of living. For some who are hardly beyond infancy, this world has already become an unbearable place.

In Bellevue hospital in a children's ward are little youngsters aged from a mere six years to thirteen who have attempted suicide and are, in the formal words of the physicians, "preoccupied with death."

Child suicides seem to have had but a slender hold on life. The reasons given for death attempts often appear trivial to an adult. Perhaps it was a bad report card and a parent's hasty reproof afterward. Maybe just disappointment at being unable to attend the circus or a party. Why should such a silly little matter precipitate such tragic action, we ask.

Looking behind the precipitating action, the underlying cause of child suicides has been sought by Drs. Lauretta Bender and Paul Schilder who have watched those children "preoccupied with death" at Bellevue's children's ward.

You will be surprised at the answer they have found.

For Spite or Lack of Love.

Children attempt suicide because of spite. The child suicide wants to get even. Unconsciously, he may say to himself as so many children have said aloud, "You'll be sorry when I die!"

And that leads to another reason for child suicide—or rather the reason for spite—urgent need for, and a feeling of lack of, love. Many of the children who go to Bellevue preoccupied with death are orphans. Some are unwanted children. Some feel that they are rejected because of physical disabilities.

Perhaps in their hearts these youngsters do not want to die. They may want only to try to kill themselves. They dream wistfully of hearts awakened at last to love and swift hands reached out to thwart them. To children, death is not irreversible; they may hope that death will serve to set their lives right again. For the orphans, these physicians suggest that the attempted suicide probably represents the desire to be again with the parents.

How Would You Like Clothes Made From Fiber of Soybean?

Urbana, Ill.—Have you ordered your new suit of soybean clothes yet? There's no rush, but still the time is coming when the correct garb for the well-dressed person may possibly be a garment made from ancient China's wizard vegetable, the soybean.

In a quiet corner of the University of Illinois campus here scientists have started a research project to see what can be done about it. What they hope to achieve is a synthetic textile fiber made from the protein element with which the soybean is so liberally supplied.

The work is being conducted in the United States regional soybean industrial products laboratory in which the federal government and 12 midwestern state agricultural colleges are co-operating.

First Get the Protein.

The study of the possibilities for production of fibers from soybean protein is one of four which have been set up in the soybean meal section of the laboratory, according to Dr. O. E. May, director of the research program.

"Our first project," he explained, "deals with production and study of purified protein fractions from soybean meal. This is a broad subject and probably will consist of fundamental studies which will find application in our more practical projects."

"Our second project deals with the utilization of soybean meal in production of plastic materials. A third project is a study of the utility of soybean meal and protein in production of adhesives, glues, size and coatings. The fourth project seeks to determine if it is possible to produce textile fibers from the soybean protein."

Hairnet and Sunbonnet Worn in Ancient Egypt

Chicago.—Hairnets are old-fashioned, for women in Egypt wore them about 1,600 years ago. But such hairnets!

A hairnet of that era, exhibited here at the Field Museum of Natural History in a collection of ancient textiles, is a knitted cap of bright red wool with tie-strings. The style was to swath the hair in linen veils and stretch the net over that.

Sunbonnets are Egyptian, too. One displayed has embroidered lines of brown silk making a plaid effect on tan linen.

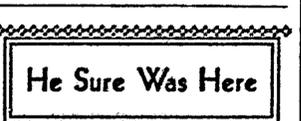

MRS. GREENE sighed as she rummaged through the old trunk for the Christmas decorations. Sighed, and also felt ashamed. For why should she be lonely, with two fine grown cubs, successful enough to satisfy any mother?

But Mrs. Greene missed her tousled-headed lads, and as she fingered the battered drum, the outgrown mittens, the books and souvenirs, she felt a deep pang that no one needed her any longer.

She found the decorations and bustled down. Mary, the housekeeper the boys provided, had finished. There was really nothing left to be done. She thought of other tired Christmas eves, and could stand the oppression of memories no longer. "I'm going out," she said, and with no other explanation set out into the night.

It was crisp and starlit, and she walked far. The light and warmth of a cafe attracted her, and she stopped for tea. Over the rim of her teacup her eyes met those of a small boy just outside the window. He drew back shyly, leaving a moist spot where his nose had touched the pane. He looked very hungry, not just the healthy hunger which her sons had brought home from school, but as though he were really in need. Mrs. Greene smiled and beckoned. "Come in," she invited. The boy shook his head, started to go, but the temptation of warmth and food was too much.

"That's better," Mrs. Greene approved, when he was seated opposite her, with a great bowl of soup. "I just needed someone to talk to." And before long she had heard the boy's whole story. Having no folks, he lived with an uncle, but he wanted to get out on his own. There

OLD SANTA CLAUS—
Some don't believe in him because He makes them spend.
They like to borrow, but never lend
That Christmas cheer
Which permeates this time of year.

They are tight-fisted cynics, these,
They never know how presents please
The little kids, and others:
The sisters and the brothers;
The care-worn dads and weary mothers.

They never learned to live
Because they never learned to give.
You've got to plant before you reap.
If all you get you keep
Your soul gets barren, sterile, sour,
It takes the power
Of cheerful giving
To give a zest to living.

night seem brighter. They left together.

There was more than the bicycle. It seemed a shame, Mrs. Greene said, for mittens not to be used, and these books, now, and—well, why not? Mary would be scandalized, and her sons might not understand—but there was their room, never opened now—

"Listen, lad," she said. "I've been aching my heart out for a son. And you need a home. Couldn't we give ourselves to each other for a Christmas present? Won't you be my son?"

"Geel!" cried the boy, voicing a wonder of love and gratitude. "You can sure have me, and Merry Christmas! Merry, Merry Christmas, Mother!"

ENGLISH PLUM PUDDING

THERE are those to whom Christmas dinner would not be Christmas dinner without ending with plum pudding. Scald 2½ cups stale breadcrumbs with 1 cup cream. Cream ½ pound beef suet and add to it ½ cup brown sugar, ½ cup corn syrup, 5 well-beaten eggs, ½ pound chopped citron, ½ pound currants, 2 teaspoons baking powder and ½ cup brandy or rum. Turn into a buttered mold and steam for 24 hours, 12 hours one day and 12 hours the next. Turn into a tin and seal until ready for use, when it must be reheated for serving. Serve with a sauce of choice.

I've Heard It Said, But Wouldn't Believe It

Henry George of single tax memory was noted for his indifference to dress, says his biographer, Louis F. Post, in "The Prophet of San Francisco." On one occasion he happened to be the sole passenger on a sleeping car. The negro porter lamented to Mr. George "the poyness of business." The reformer was inspired to hand him a large tip.

Looking from the money to Mr. George's not over-fastidious clothes and then back to the money, the porter exclaimed incredulously:

"Dat all fo' me? Well, you sure never can tell 'bout a frog till yo' see him leap."

Office of Senator Chavez

Washington, D. C., Dec. 11, 1937. Sen. Chavez, Commissioner of Indian Affairs, was a speaker at the office of Senator Chavez. Mr. Collier, who has in the past considered the task of administering the affairs of the American Indians, takes time from his usual many other duties to attend to the duties of the office. He is especially interested in the work of the Indian Departmental Commission which at the present time is making a study of the social and economic conditions of the Indians.

Senator Chavez was advised by the State Reclamation Administration that a cooperative project had been formed in Curry County. A partial allotment of $14,000 of a request for $100,000 has been made. The project is for 1 1/2 miles of power lines to be used for irrigated pastures in Curry and Quay counties. The allotment has been made contingent upon the location of a Board of Directors. The board of power will probably be the Texas-New Mexico Electric Company.

Senator Chavez is anxiously awaiting the meeting of the Board of Directors of the Rio Grande Concomancy District. The Board has been asked to consider the project of the private landowners in relinquishing the land to the public. He feels that the project is a very important one and that it is of great importance to the people of the district. He is hopeful that the Board will back to the human element and turn down the proposal of the bondholders. He points out that throughout the country investors in irrigation bonds have accepted a scaling down of their investment. The Middle Rio Grande Concomancy should not be made an exception especially in view of the immense harm that will result if it is not done.

Both houses of Congress have been occupied with farm bills this week. The Senate has been considering the Pope-McGill Bill, while the House took up and passed its own measure. The House now turns to the Wages and Hours Bill. Western Senators continued to fight for an amendment which would protect western irrigation cotton regions. As the end of the week approached they were waiting anxiously for discussion of that particular section in the bill which concerns itself with cotton so that Senator Hayden might present the protecting amendment. The sponsored amendment will provide that the marketing quota of cotton apportioned to any state shall not be less than 70 percent of the normal yield per acre planted within said state in 1937. Senator Chavez conferred by wire representatives of the Carlsbad and Elephant Butte projects. Both places agreed that if that is the best that can be obtained it should be adopted.

Although Senator Chavez is going to support the amendment vigorously, he is determined to support the Johnson amendment which is even more lenient. Work Program Administration officials arrived in Washington to discuss New Mexico conditions.

State Land Sale
Lincoln County

Office of Commissioner of Public Lands
Santa Fe, New Mexico

Notice is hereby given that pursuant to the provisions of the Act of Congress approved June 20, 1910, and the laws of the State of New Mexico and the rules and regulations of the State Land Office, the Commissioner of Public Lands will offer at public sale to the highest bidder at 1:00 p. m. on February 25th, 1938, at the front door of the Court House in the town of Carrizozo, county seat of Lincoln County, New Mexico, the following described tracts of land to-wit:

SALE NO. 2555

NW 1/4 SW 1/4, Section 7, Township 13N, Range 18E, containing 160 acres.

No bid will be accepted on the above described lands for less than Three and No-100 $3.00 Dollars per acre and successful bidder will be required to pay at the time of sale five per cent of the amount of the bid, the value of the improvements and costs of sale. The balance of the price offered will be payable in three years with interest in all deferred payments at the rate of four per cent per annum payable in advance, in accordance with the terms of the contract to be entered into by the successful bidder, form of which will be furnished on request.

All minerals on the said lands are reserved to the State and the Commissioner reserves the right to reject any and all bids.

Dated at Santa Fe, New Mexico, this 4th day of December, 1937.

discuss New Mexico conditions. Fred Healy, State Administrator, and R. L. Hinkley of Salt Lake City, Utah, Regional Director, conferred extensively with Senator Chavez on WPA matters. The Senator was to meet Saturday with Harry Hopkins. Mr. Healy and Mr. Hinkley, and continue the discussion of State WPA problems.

Senator Chavez was extremely interested in emphasizing the importance of the development of projects for small dams and irrigation works. He pointed out that years ago many small communities throughout the State which are now struggling desperately for existence, formerly existed prosperously through small community dams, which since have been destroyed through erosion and floods. Along with the dams went the prosperity of the people. It is Senator Chavez opinion, that as an ultimate factor in solving the relief problem, there is no plan which offers more effective rehabilitation.

Callers at the office this week in addition to the above mentioned parties were: Solomon Galahab, prominent Democratic politician of Santa Fe, N. M.; J. G. Roberts of Roswell, N. M.; Mrs. Caltenbeck and her son Albert, of Las Cruces, N. M.; and Miss Joe Bowen of Roswell.

1938 Ford V-8

Ford V-type 8-cylinder cars for 1938 go on display in Ford dealer showrooms throughout the United States. They are offered this year as two distinct lines, differing in appearance and price. Both are in the lowest price field.

One is a newly-styled standard Ford line, in coupe, Tudor and Fordor body types, powered either with the 85 or the 60 horsepower V-8 engine. The standard cars are designed to meet requirements of the many motor car owners, whose means dictate maximum economy in first cost, as well as in maintenance and operating costs.

The other is a newly-designed DeLuxe line for owners who desire additional style and appointments. Powered only with the 85 horsepower V-8 engine, the line includes eight body types, the coupe, Tudor and Fordor sedans, as well as the club coupe, convertible cabriolet convertible sedan and the phaeton.

James V. Taylor, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. J. V. Taylor of Oscura, is expected home for the Christmas vacation about December 18. Young Taylor is a student in the Junior College, and is one of the one hundred thirty-three boys from New Mexico enrolled at New Mexico Military Institute, Roswell, this year.

STANDARD FORD V-8... 112" wheelbase; 85 or 60 horsepower engine; Improved Easy-Action Safety Brakes; Center-Poise Ride; All-steel body; Broadcloth or Mohair upholstery, Mohair extra in '60"; Mahogany-finished trim; One tail light, sun visor; Twin horns; 3 body types; 3 colors.

Ford offers two new cars for 1938—the Standard Ford V-8 and the De Luxe Ford V-8. They are different in appearance—but built to the same high standard of mechanical excellence—on the same chassis.

Because people liked our 1937 car so well, they bought more than of any other make. They liked its looks, its smooth performance, and the way it handled. We have improved on that car in the newly styled Standard Ford V-8.

But some folks wanted still more size and style, with the same Ford advantages. For them, we designed a new De Luxe line. The De Luxe Ford V-8 Sedans are longer with more room, larger luggage space, and finer appointments all around.

De Luxe cars are equipped with the 85-horsepower engine only.

The Standard is even lower priced than the De Luxe. It has graceful new lines and well-tailored interiors—with a choice of engine sizes—85 or 60 horsepower.

Before Ford made V-type 8-cylinder engines available to every one, they were used only in expensive cars. Since then, four million Ford owners have learned the genuine enjoyment of driving an eight-cylinder car with all-around economy. The thrifty "60" engine, especially, makes possible in Standard models a very low first cost and equally low operating cost. With two distinct designs, two engine sizes and two price ranges, you'll find a 1938 Ford car to fit your needs exactly.

PRICES FOR CARS DELIVERED IN DETROIT—TAXES EXTRA

Standard Ford V-8 (60 hp.)—Coupe, $599; Tudor, $644; Fordor, $639; Standard Ford V-8 (85 hp.)—Coupe, $629; Tudor, $669; Fordor, $714. De Luxe Ford V-8 (85 hp. only)—Coupe, $689; Tudor, $729; Fordor, $774; Convertible Coupe, $774; Club Coupe, $749; Convertible Club Coupe, $804; Phaeton, $824; Convertible Sedan, $904.

Standard and De Luxe cars equipped with bumpers, bumper guards, spare wheel, tire, tube, tire lock and band, cigar lighter, twin horns, and headlight beam indicator on instrument panel, at no extra charge.

In addition, De Luxe cars are equipped with extra tail light, windshield wiper, sun visor; also De Luxe steering wheel, glove compartment lock, clock, and chrome wheel bands, at no extra charge.

Gov. Tingley Back from Hot Springs

Dec. 15.—Back from Hot Springs Governor Tingley said he didn't know whether the biggest news at the hospital was the progress of the beautification project or the preparations the youngsters are making for Santa Claus.

"The kids told us they are all being real good until after Christmas," the governor said.

With preparations being made for Christmas the hospital in taking on a holiday atmosphere and the crippled youngsters can hardly wait for the Christmas parties and the visit of Santa Claus. For some youngsters it will be the happiest Christmas they ever had because for the first time they will be able to use hands and legs to play with Christmas toys.

The beautification project has started to move along rapidly, the governor said. About a hundred men are working on the landscaping project, putting in water lines, pump, curbing, finishing the superintendent's home, and other phases of the beautification program. The program is expected to be completed in February.

What Irvin S. Cobb Thinks about

Prehistoric Lore.

DEL RIO, TEXAS.—According to the scientists, who have a great way of naming earthly phenomena without inquiring into the wishes of the phenomena, we are now living in a terrestrial era known as the Holocene period.

This will be news to a lot of people who rather suspected we were living through a stage which might be called Chaos.

Still, it's no wonder that the word hasn't got around generally yet, because this present era is quite a young one as eras go. It's merely a few million years old, which, to our true geologist, is the same as yesterday.

Mention a few million years to him and he'll say "phew!" and just snap his fingers—like that.

I wonder if the authorities would pardon a suggestion from a poor ignoramus whose acquaintance with geology is largely limited to two of its surface phases, namely: Regular paved roads and those derelict detours. When we consider most of the humorous illustrations and the bulk of the humorous text printed in the average smart magazine of today, and the even spicier lines heard in smart modern plays, wouldn't it be more fitting to call it, not the Holocene, but the Obscene period?

The Law's Long Arm. THE long arm of the law—it's a grand phrase, isn't it? So mouth-filling, so satisfying to the honest citizen's soul!

It conjures up visions of unrelenting warfare against crime, inevitable punishment for the guilty. It's the bunk!

It's the bunk because of crooked lawyers; venal policemen; complacent prosecutors; soft-hearted or corrupted jurors; witnesses, bribed or intimidated; the law's delays; reversals of fair verdicts on foolish technicalities; a false sentimentality which forgets the widow and orphan of the victim and thinks only of the family of the killer; most often of all, abuse of the powers to commute and to pardon and to parole.

These days, when I see a sentenced offender handcuffed to an officer, I find myself saying to myself, "Chances are that fellow, literally or figuratively, is wearing that decoration only temporarily."

The Passing Years. EVERY new-born year is a rosy prospect just as nearly every dying year is a dun-colored disappointment. But without revived hope what could we look forward to except being measured for a shroud?

It seems only yesterday when 1937 was busting in, a radiant, bouncing baby-child, his arms burdened with promises, bless his little soul! After several false starts, happy days were here again. Nobody was aiming to remodel the Supreme court. Senator Ashurst told us so, and didn't he know? He didn't.

Secretary Wallace, slightly assisted by Divine Providence, would immediately have the crop situation well in hand. Grass would grow only in the street leading to the almshouse. The Wall Street boys were expecting two suckers in every pot. And the song of the Bulbul was heard in the land—ah, the bulbul!

Within the 12-month the Republican party again would be a going concern. Well, if it's a going concern, the question is, who's?

And now, laden with future gifts, comes 1938. How time flies! Why, before you know it, Siatto will be old enough to take a job with the radio and Buzzie will be signing testimonials.

Gambling Houses.

ONCE famous card-sharp—not reformed, but retired—said to me:

"Show me a professional gambling house where the roulette wheel isn't crooked, where any other mechanical device is on the square, where the operatives from the bosses on down won't skin a customer—call him a sucker, if you want to; the terms are interchangeable—and I'll drop dead from shock, because no such outfit ever existed nor ever will, not so long as games can be tricked, as all of them can, and gamblers are out for the coin, as they naturally are, and the hand is quicker than the eye, which it is."

"But how about the mathematical percentage in favor of the bank— isn't that enough?" I asked.

"How about the mathematical percentage of crooked law-enforcement officers who have to be bribed?" he countered. "There's never enough coming in to satisfy those babies."

Edward W. Pickard SUMMARIZES THE WORLD'S WEEK

Stormy Days in Capital

RETURNING from his fishing trip in Florida waters with an infected gum, President Roosevelt was confronted with a situation that was decidedly disconcerting. What has been called the Roosevelt depression was becoming still more depressed and congress seemingly couldn't make up its mind what to do about it. The demand for tax revisions that would assist business out of the slump was insistent, and so was the necessity of balancing the budget. Passage of the four administration "must" measures appeared to be impossible during the extraordinary session. All of them were opposed by various blocs of the majority party as well as by the Republican minority.

The senate's farm bill seemed to have the best chance to get through, but it differed so radically from the house measure that it was certain a conference committee would have to try to find a common ground.

Secretary Wallace was reported dissatisfied with both senate and house bills. One official close to him said Wallace might urge President Roosevelt to veto any bill finally enacted which approximated either the senate or house measure.

Democrats were so badly split over the wage-hour bill that hope of passing it before the regular session of congress was about abandoned. Labor, too, was divided concerning this measure, the A. F. of L. opposing it and the C. I. O. advocating its own version, calling for a flat 40 cents an hour minimum wage and a 40 hour maximum work week. The house bill was finally rescued from the rules committee by petition. House Majority Leader Sam Rayburn, Democrat, Texas, went ahead with plans to whip administration support behind the house measure. He said that fewer than 100 votes would be cast against the bill in its present form but warned that amendments which would make its wage-hour provisions more rigid might shunt the measure back to the labor committee and delay a vote indefinitely.

Tax Sotup Needs Revision

DANIEL C. ROPER, secretary of commerce, says the entire tax structure of the United States should be revised. He was speaking at a banquet of the Business Advisory Council in Chicago, and his statements appeared to meet with general approval.

"A general revision is necessary to simplify determination of tax liability, to distribute the burden of taxation more equitably, and to broaden the base of taxation to include a larger percentage of our earning population," Secretary Roper said.

He asserted that the undistributed profits tax had not entirely fulfilled its proponents' expectations that it would "bring about a higher velocity of money through larger and more widespread distribution of corporate earnings."

Mr. Roper expressed confidence that a "constructive approach will be found to the solution of the utilities dilemma and that significant results will be forthcoming."

That this confidence has a sound basis was indicated by two announcements made the same day by prominent utility executives. Floyd L. Carlisle, chairman of the Consolidated Edison company, told the New York state public service commission that his company plans a $25,000,000 expansion program. The development came during hearings concerning a proposed $30,000,000 bond issue.

Back from submitting to the President a formula for better understanding between utilities and the administration, Wendell L. Willkie, president of Commonwealth and Southern corporation, proposed a general truce between business and the Roosevelt administration. Willkie's company has been involved in some of the bitterest controversies with Washington.

Lindbergs Come Back

AFTER two years of self-imposed exile in England, Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh returned to the United States. Presumably they came over to spend the holidays at the home of Mrs. Lindbergh's mother, Mrs. Dwight Morrow, in Englewood, N. J. Dispatches from London said the colonel also had some business to transact in America. He is associated in an advisory capacity with Pan-American Airways.

The landing of the Lindberghs at New York was accomplished with such secrecy that they almost escaped the notice of reporters and news photographers. One of the officers of the liner on which they came said they planned to return to England immediately after Christmas.

Infantry Comes First

IN WAR operations on land the infantry is still the most important branch of the service, says Gen. Malin Craig, chief of staff of the army, in his annual report. Lessons learned by skilled observers of the civil war in Spain and the China-Japanese war have modified the American defense program, but says the general, it is still the infantry that renders the decision in the final analysis. Airplanes and tanks are valuable auxiliaries to the infantry, but they cannot bring about a decision in land operations.

Inventories of armament, motorization, mechanization and equipment, in the light of the lessons abroad, show several vital needs of the first line forces, General Craig declared. These include better weapons to combat aircraft and tanks, as well as more efficient guns for the planes and tanks.

Edgerton Backs Water

CONFIRMATION of the appointment of Henry W. Edgerton of Cornell university as associate justice of the District of Columbia Court of Appeals was endangered because it was thought from his writings that he did not believe in judicial review. However, he appeared before the senate sub-committee, consisting of Senators Borah, Burke and Van Nuys and repudiated his previous utterances. Of the power of courts to declare legislative enactments unconstitutional he said:

"I regard it as not only thoroughly established as a legitimate part of our constitutional system, but which was intended by the great majority of the men who framed our Constitution. I think it was properly established by John Marshall and I haven't the least criticism of any court for any declaration of the validity of that part of our constitutional system."

Leviathan to Be Junked

JAPAN made a bid for the Leviathan, huge liner seized from Germany in the World war, but the United States Lines rejected it and sold the vessel to Metal Industries, Ltd., of London for $800,000. It will go to England under its own power and will be junked.

The Leviathan cost ten millions to build and the American government spent more than eight millions to recondition it; and also paid Germany $16,688,000 for its seizure.

Propaganda Goes Gruesome

THE World war not only made more people aware of the word "propaganda" than they had ever been before but the use of this instrument in "molding public opinion" reached greater heights—or descended to lower levels, whichever way you wish to look at it—than ever before. One of the classic propaganda stories, broadcast all over the world, was that the Germans were using their dead to manufacture soap. This story was first circulated in China (where ancestor worship is strong) to win that country to the side of the Allies.

The story had its origin in a curious coincidence. One day two photographs were delivered to the office of Brig. Gen. J. V. Charters of the British Army Intelligence staff. One of them showed some dead German soldiers being hauled away to be buried. The other was a picture of dead horses on the way to a soap factory.

Whether or not what took place next was deliberate or accidental has never been definitely established. But the fact remains that the captions on the two pictures were switched and the one showing the dead German soldiers declared that they were "on their way to the soap factory."

Propagandists saw in this picture an opportunity for further exploiting the idea of "German ruthlessness," as well as evidence of the desperate condition of Germany and the picture was reprinted all over the world with that caption under it. Despite indignant denials by the Germans, many people still believe that they did indeed use their dead to manufacture soap during the World war.

Boomerang

WHEN Eugene Field joined the staff of the Chicago Daily News in August, 1893, and began writing his column "Sharps and Flats," he learned that it was the custom of the News to give each employee a turkey as a Christmas present. Thereupon he wrote a note to Melville E. Stone, the publisher (later famous as the head of the Associated Press) saying that he didn't like turkey but he could use a new suit of clothes.

The day before Christmas, when the other News workers were getting turkeys Field was handed a bundle. When he opened it, he discovered that it contained a convict's suit, resplendent in its black and white stripes. Field gravely thanked Stone for the present and the next day appeared at the office wearing the suit. In fact, he wore it every day, much to Stone's distress. For whenever the editor happened to have distinguished callers in his office, Field was sure to walk in, attired in his convict's suit, even to the cap, and pretend to be busy attending to the coal stove in the office. Naturally, it caused the visitor to wonder why a "convict" should be working around the News office and it required considerable explaining on the part of the publisher.

It wasn't long until Stone was heartily sick of the joke he had played on his columnist. He tried to get Field to give up the suit but the humorist insisted that nothing could make him part with "Mr. Stone's gift." Finally in desperation, the publisher arranged with one of the News employees to steal the suit from Field's rooms and that ended Stone's joke which had proved to be such a boomerang.

The Lamplight Funeral

THE late Arthur Brisbane was once unintentionally responsible for circulating a story which turned out to be a hoax but which stirred the whole state of Georgia to the deepest indignation. It was the story of holding the funeral of a young girl in a Georgia cotton mill at night to permit her fellow workers to attend because the mill owners refused to allow its employees to leave during working hours.

The Atlanta Constitution immediately began an investigation and discovered (1) that, instead of a girl, it was a woman of twenty-five whose funeral had been held at night; (2) that she had never worked in the cotton mill; (3) that the funeral was held at night to meet a family exigency; (4) that many of the employees of the mill were present at the burial, which was held next day; and (5) that the man who had given Brisbane his "facts" had admitted being in error.

The famous columnist, however, refused to back down on his story and accused Clark Howell, editor of the Constitution, of trying to "cover up" bad working conditions in the textile industries of the South. Thereupon Howell produced signed statements from the minister who officiated at the funeral, the mayor of Covington, Ga., where it was held, the editor of the News, the local paper, and the president of the cotton mill to prove that the whole story was a hoax perpetrated by some one who wished to damage the textile industry.

Making Over a Chair of the Ginger-Bread Era.

TO modernize the old wudnut chair at the right the pieces under the arms were removed and most of the carving covered up. The padding at the back was removed entirely and replaced by a fiber board which was covered by a loose cotton filled cushion tufted like an old fashioned bed comfort except that the tied thread ends of the tufting were left on the wrong side.

This back cushion was fastened in place with tapes that slipped over the knobs at the ends of the upper carving. If the knobs to hold the cushion had been lacking it could have been tacked in place along the top on the under side by using a strip of heavy cardboard to keep the tacks from pulling through the fabric as shown here for tacking the box pleated ruffle around the seat as at A. A plain rust colored heavy cotton upholstery material was used for the covering.

HOUSEHOLD QUESTIONS

Watering House Plants.—Rinse water from milk bottles will make house plants healthy and vigorous.

Preparing Starch.—Stir a piece of lard about as big as a five-cent piece into your starch while it is boiling. Your clothes will take on a nice gloss, and the iron will not stick.

For Meringues.—Eggs that are several days old make better meringues than fresh ones.

For Cooling Cakes.—An ordinary wire dish-drying rack makes a good cake cooling rack when turned upside down.

Stuffed Celery.—Blend two tablespoons of peanut butter with two tablespoons of butter and one-quarter pound of grated cheese. Work until smooth, then add one-quarter teaspoon of Worcestershire sauce and paprika, then stuff crisp celery hearts. This mixture is also delicious as a sandwich spread or to use for stuffing dates or prunes.

Preserving Stockings.—Because perspiration acids are among the worst enemies of good hose, clothing experts advise washing stockings after each wearing—in lukewarm water with mild soap.

SEWING. Forty-eight pages of step-by-step directions for making slipcovers and dressing tables; restoring and upholstering chairs, couches; making curtains for every type of room and purpose. Making lampshades, rugs, ottomans and other useful articles for the home. Readers wishing a copy should send name and address, enclosing 25 cents, to Mrs. Spears, 210 South Desplaines St., Chicago, Illinois.

SYNOPSIS

Billy Wheeler, wealthy young cattleman, arrives at the 94 ranch, summoned by his friend Horse Dunn, its elderly and quick-tempered owner, because of a mysterious murder. Billy is in love with Dunn's niece Marian, whom he has not seen for two years. She had rejected his suit and is still aloof. Dunn's ranch is surrounded by enemies, including Link Bender, Pinto Halliday and Sam Caldwell, whom he has defeated in his efforts to buy a cattle kingdom. Dunn directs his cow hands, Val Douglas, Tulsa Callahan and others to search for the killer's horse. He explains to Billy that the morning before he had come upon blood-stained ground at Short Creek and found the trail of a shod and unshod horse. The shod horse's rider had been killed. The body had disappeared. Link Bender had arrived at the scene and read the signs the way he had. Dunn reveals that because of a financial crisis the ranch may be in jeopardy; his enemies may make trouble, since Sheriff Walt Amos is friendly with them. He says he has asked Old Man Coffee, the country's best trailer, to join them. Dunn and Billy meet Amos. Link Bender, his son "the Kid" and Cayuse Cayetano, an Indian trailer, at Short Creek. Bender has found the slain man's horse, but the saddle is missing. Almost supernaturally, cattle attracted to the scene by the blood-stained ground, stamp out all the traces. Dunn is angered when Amos tells him not to leave the county. Following an argument, Bender draws his gun, but Dunn wounds him in the arm. Back at the ranch Old Man Coffee arrives with a pack of hounds. Coffee goes in search of the dead man's saddle. Dunn tells Billy that Marian is incensed at him for trying to settle disputes by bloodshed. He reveals that the ranch is really here, also that he recently sold his own ranch in Arizona and that his partner, Bob Flagg, is en route with the money. Billy accompanies Marian on a ride to Short Creek. "Kid" Bender, now a deputy, rides with them. An argument, and by a trick Bender tries to shoot him. Billy saves himself by plunging against Bender's pony and "the Kid" is injured. Coffee returns to the ranch with the saddle and reveals that Cayuse Cayetano is on the trail for Sheriff Amos. The saddle belonged to Lon Magoon a small-time cattle thief. Billy learns he is to be arrested for assaulting "Kid" Bender. On the sheriff's orders, Billy and the ranchmen drive into Inspiration. On the way, Coffee tells him that the murder victim was not shot by the man riding with him. Billy is disturbed when Marian seems to be interested in Val Douglas. At a hearing before Justice Shafer, the sheriff, aided by Dunn's enemies, tries to incriminate Billy for attacking "Kid" Bender.

They were at the point of the whole thing, now. If the 94 had a chance, it depended on the activity of Wheeler, who, with his credit and his cow finance connections, might gain time for Horse Dunn. Not the danger of ultimate conviction, but delay on a trumped-up charge was what Wheeler feared.

Horse Dunn snarled in his throat, and there was an instant's silence. Nothing could have shown the force of the man, and the resented power he held, better than that "Order!" said Judge Shafer, looking startled. "Order in the court!" His command sounded fantastic in that quiet room, for Dunn said nothing.

"This," Amos went on, "is a wealthy man, so folks around here go. And he's lined up with a wealthy outfit. But it's people like him that raise the hell around here, always water-hogging, always roughing the range. We can't hardly get through a season any more without some poor feller gets dry-gulched. One's been killed only just this week. Now if this guy can pull a gun on an officer, and put him out of business, and then walk out of here, free and easy—then we aren't going to have any law at all, and I can't answer for it. That's all I got to say."

"You want to say anything, Wheeler?" Shafer asked.

"Judge, if it's got so a man can't even put up his ball while he waits for a trial in district court, then there's no justice left."

"I'll decide that," Shafer said tartly. "If it's come to a pass where—"

"Now you look here," Horse Dunn boomed.

"Quiet here!" Shafer snapped. "I can't see but what the sheriff's position is reasonable, and more than reasonable. The statement sworn to by Kid Bender and the statement by the defendant is two different things; but there's a witness backing up Kid Bender. There's been altogether too much gun-toting and general ructions on this range. I—"

"Just a minute," Marian Dunn said.

Judge Shafer halted in full career; and abruptly a new motionless silence came over the people packed into that room, at the sound of the girl's voice. "Heh?" said Shafer.

"I'll testify."

For a moment Shafer seemed not to comprehend, and there was a moment more of that dense heavy quiet.

Sheriff Walt Amos spoke, his voice flat, ironic, and his contempt for the judge was in it—the contempt of a quick-thinking man for a slow one. "She can't testify."

"Why can't she?"

"Because she hasn't been called by either side."

"I want you people to know," said Judge Shafer, "that I'm running this court!"

In the heavy quiet while Shafer still hesitated, Wheeler watched the faces of Horse Dunn's enemies. The young cowboys were unwillingly friendly to the girl, swayed by an inevitable attraction. But in the faces of the cow bosses Wheeler saw a strange thing. These older, amblered men were seeing Marian not as a girl but as a part of the 94.

He noticed the dark, hard gaze of Link Bender, and the unforgettable green eyes of Rufe Deane, the man who blamed Dunn for the death of his son.

"This court means to serve out right and justice, not technicalities," Shafer decided. "And if Miss Dunn wants to testify, I'll call her as a witness for the court."

There was a moment's pause. "I was at Short Creek," Marian said.

"Go ahead, Miss Dunn—just tell the court what you saw, in your own words."

Marian Dunn still sat with her cheek rested upon her hand; her eyes flicked to Horse Dunn, then to Billy Wheeler, but conveyed nothing. "I was only a little distance away—I saw all of it. Kid Bender rode up out of the bed of the creek, running his horse so hard he had to slide it to keep from knocking Wheeler's horse over. They sat there talking; Kid Bender seemed to be threatening Wheeler. Finally—"

"Now why do you say 'seemed'?" Walt Amos broke in. "Either you heard what was said or you didn't."

"Let her tell her story!"

"Finally," Marian continued, "Kid Bender motioned with his head toward where I was sitting, and Billy Wheeler turned, as if to see where

"You Want Me to Finish With Cross-Questioning This Witness?"

I was. While Billy Wheeler was turned away Kid Bender jerked out his gun. It was the most unfair, unwarranted thing you could possibly imagine."

"You mean to say—"

"Be still!" said Shafer.

"Wheeler saw the gun just in time. He half dropped out of the saddle—evidently trying to avoid the shot; he seemed to try to get the neck of Bender's horse between himself and the gun. Just then Bender's gun went off. Both horses jumped; but Bender's reared, and fell over backwards."

"Well, when did Wheeler fire?"

"He didn't fire at all."

"But what about this gunsmoke?"

"I didn't see any smoke. There was a lot of dust going up from the ground, but that was all."

"This is remarkable," said Shafer.

"It's an almighty funny thing," Amos said, "that this wasn't put in by the defendant in the first place!"

"You want to cross-examine, Amos?"

"I certainly do," said the sheriff. "Look here, Miss Dunn! How long have you known this man Wheeler?"

"What's the point to that?" Wheeler demanded.

"Judge," said Amos, "I claim this woman is—"

"Watch yourself!" said Billy Wheeler.

There was a general stir through all that dense press of men. "Come to order!" said Shafer. "I—"

"I don't mean," Billy Wheeler began, "to let this—"

"Will you come to order," said Shafer, "or take a contempt of court?"

Outside there now rose a disturbance as a dust-crusted car came careening down the street; it half spun as it skidded to a stop in the middle of the roadway in front of Shafer's office. Sam Caldwell, square-set, heavy-necked ally of Link Bender, forged his way through the crowd and came shouldering up the steps. Inside and outside the quiet broke into mumbling disorder.

"You want me to finish with cross-questioning this witness," the sheriff was demanding of the judge, "or not? If you want me to clear this court—"

"I've never had to clear a court yet," said Shafer. "I—what's going on here?"

He sat back and stared, watching at the disturbance which set the whole room in motion as Sam Caldwell thrust his way through the door and up to the table. Reaching it, Caldwell jerked off his big hat, and threw it on the table like an old-time fighter throwing his hat into the ring. His face was steaming red, marked with dust-muddied sweat.

Caldwell looked at Judge Shafer heavily, with the dislike that hard-riding cattlemen have for men whom they consider ineffectual. "There's a man been killed—another, by God!" he said. "Cut-in-two with a shotgun at Ace Springs."

Walt Amos said sharply, "Sam, who's killed?"

"Cayuse Cayetano! Dead, since yesterday."

CHAPTER VII

As word of Cayuse Cayetano's murder swept through the street, the loosely grouped crowd shifted and seemed to seethe, gathering in knots. The half-breed tracker had been loved by none, respected by none; but his trail genius was undisputed, and it had been widely rumored that he was very close to important revelations. Half a dozen men tried to follow Sam Caldwell into the already-crowded county office, forcing in through a considerable number of the crowd inside who had immediately started to make their way out.

Though it was Judge Shafer's boast that he had never had to clear a court in his life, he was induced to do so now.

"If you've got your court clear, let's have order," said Judge Shafer. "I mean to get this over with, Wheeler, is your defense finished?"

"You yourself called the only eye witness here, and the only witness worth a whoop," Wheeler said. "That ought to be defense enough for any man."

"You got anything more to say, sheriff?"

"Get it over with," snapped the sheriff. "If you're going to let in testimony like that last, I can't stop you. And I've got other work to do."

"This is an unsatisfactory case as I've ever seen on this bench," Judge Shafer said. "Something's wrong—something's very wrong. I'd like to reserve decision and think it over."

"Reserve, hell! Let's have it, one way or the other," Amos demanded.

"All right! All right! Have it your own way! Case dismissed!"

Sheriff Walt Amos angrily crashed his open hand upon the table top and stood up. "There's a sweet decision!"

"Any other court would give you a contempt for that," said Shafer waspishly. "The court stands adjourned!"

He crammed his papers into his brief case and stalked out, looking angry, insulted, and anxious to get away from there. Nobody spoke to him or interfered with him as he went down the steps and out of sight in the street, moving at a hurried amble.

Sam Caldwell came back in, bringing with him Pinto Halliday and Link Bender, their deputies' badges half hidden, but evident.

"You want me?" said Link.

"Stick around here. Where's Rufe Deane?"

"He'll be here in a minute."

"There's other work to do," said Link Bender, "that can't be done here. I better be getting at it!"

"Stay here," said Walt Amos shortly.

Link Bender stared at him a moment, then leaned against the wall, his dark hawk face hard and tight-lipped.

"If you're through with us we'll be leaving," said Horse Dunn.

"I'm not through with you. I'll tell you when I'm through."

"You'll have to let my wagon boss go, so's he can drive my niece back to the ranch," Horse Dunn told him.

The sheriff looked at Dunn for a moment, without seeming to see him; he appeared to be listening, or weighing other things. "All right. On condition that he immediately gets out of town. An hour from now I don't want to find he's still here."

"I'll be out of here, all right," Val Douglas said.

"Well, I'll see you start. You ready, Miss Dunn?"

"Better take my roadster, Marian," Billy Wheeler said. He gave her the key, and she accepted it without meeting his eyes.

After Marian and Val left Sheriff Walt-Amos spoke.

"Dunn," he said at once, "where was Val Douglas yesterday?"

"He was in Nine-Mile Valley," Dunn said.

"And that's not so far from Ace Springs, is it?"

"Not so far."

"But riding toward Santiam he'd be going just the opposite way from Ace Springs, wouldn't he?"

"What's that got to do with it?"

"Toward Santiam," said the sheriff, "was where he said he was, when I asked him a while ago. What's your answer to that?"

The two men eyed each other. "If he said he was up toward Santiam, he was probably up toward Santiam," Dunn said.

The sheriff grunted and half grinned, without humor. "How lucky. With a man dead at Ace Springs, naturally Douglas was as far away as he could get! Where were you, Wheeler?"

One by one they each gave their answers, tersely, without conciliation, as the same question was put to each.

"I want you boys," the sheriff said to his deputies, "to remember what these boys have said."

"You figure to keep us here all night?" Horse Dunn demanded.

"I'm going to turn you out of here in ten minutes," Amos said.

Rufe Deane, swinging up the wooden steps, was in time to catch the sheriff's answer. He now thrust in, his green eyes ugly under his shaggy corbel brows. "You're going to what?" he said.

"I have no intention," the sheriff said, "of holding these men on what we got against 'em so far."

Rufe Deane angered with an obvious, unexpected violence.

"These men'll never leave this town," he said.

"I decide that here," said the sheriff.

Rufe Deane stared at him a moment longer, green fury in his eyes. Suddenly he tore off his deputy's badge and threw it on the floor.

"Maybe you do," he said. He turned and went out into the street, the high heels of his boots clumping slowly, restrained; but as he disappeared from view they heard his step quicken on the board walk.

Walt Amos said, "You want that badge, Sam?"

Sam Caldwell hesitated a moment. "All right," he said.

The sheriff turned on his remaining deputies. "If either of you want to string with Rufe Deane, now's the time to say so! Because the next job of this office is to guarantee these men safe conduct out of town."

"Walk," said Link Bender, "I'm for you and I always have been; and there's mighty few jobs I'd back off from as a peace officer. But I don't know as I can bring myself to turn my hand to that!"

Horse Dunn spoke up, his voice rumbling in his chest. "Who the hell wants safe conduct?" he said contemptuously. "When you're tired of jawing, we'll move on out."

Swiss Train Dogs for Service in Army; Special Courses for Dispatch Duty

Man's best friend, the dog, has proved his worth in numerous ways and for many centuries dogs have been playing an important role in human warfare. Originally, states a correspondent in the Philadelphia Inquirer, an attempt was made to press the animals into field hospital service. The experiment did not prove satisfactory and was partially given up during the World war.

The activities of the Army dog today are chiefly confined to the dispatch service, where excellent results have been obtained. Dogs have done splendid work in the most difficult and most dangerous situations, where all other means of conveying messages or reconnoitering were impossible.

The Swiss army owes the introduction of dogs into its activities to private initiative. A few years ago a privately organized dispatch dog service was added to the First Army corps. It immediately gave proof of its usefulness. Based on these experiences, the Swiss Federal council decided on official training courses for Army dogs, and so the establishment of a permanent station for these animals. The supervision of this new service was entrusted to the commander of the First Army corps.

The dispatch dogs are chiefly assigned to officers and soldiers who volunteer for this particular service. The introductory course has a duration of four weeks and upon its conclusion each participant has a trained dog assigned to him, which he has to board and teach further. The animal remains, however, property of the confederation for a number of years.

The main difficulty is that the animals, in order to be systematically trained, must be stationed closely together.

Rouen Museum Town

Victor Hugo called France's city of Rouen the "City of a Hundred Sleeples." It is situated on the main routes from the Channel ports to Paris. It is a great museum town and has been called the "Florence of the North" because of its art treasures.

Cities Must Work On Parking Problem

Slight dents have been made in the great national parking problem but some cities are taking steps in the right direction. Clarence Werthan, manager of Rocky Mountain Motorists, the AAA Automobile Club, said today upon his return from New York, where he attended the national convention of the American Automobile Association

The AAA club manager said the efficiency and utility of the motor car is being strongly affected in every city throughout the United States due to the lack of parking facilities. The problem is reaching a head particularly in Colorado where few constructive steps toward its solution have been made.

"In Riverside, Ill.," Mr. Werthan said, "an ordinance recently enacted requires that every building erected in the future for moving picture shows or other public entertainments must provide 200 square feet of parking space for every six seats in the building. Moreover, this must not be on the site of the building, or not more than four feet away.

"The city of San Marino, Calif., requires the provision of space for one automobile for every two seats in any theatre.

"In a broader zoning ordinance, DuPage County, Illinois, prohibits the use of any building that will cause customers, employees or residents to park their cars in the street for more than one hour unless an adequate off-street parking lot is maintained in connection. The city of Los Angeles has likewise ruled that apartments must provide off-street parking for their tenants.

"These are steps in the right direction, but so far only the tiniest sort of dent has been made in what is a great national problem of serious proportions. Solution of this problem should be a number one project for our cities and towns."
