Saturday's Fire

The fire department was called out to West's Dairy last Saturday afternoon to fight a fire in some outbuildings which gained such rapid headway that it threatened to destroy the house. As it was quick reponse and fast work on the part of Fire Chief Beck and his entire force extinguished the flames in a short time and saved the building.

White Oaks Notes

I can't find that Springtime just now- it has perhaps "Gone With the Wind".

Helen Marie age 3 given a nickel for Sunday School returned home with the same nickel. Her mother much surprised asked, "Why Helen Marie where did you get the nickel?" And H. M. stoughtly declared, "They didn't give a card so I didn't give 'em my money."

Mr. and Mrs. Ray Lemon spent Sunday afternoon with Mr. and Mrs. Ed Queen.

Mothers Day Plans are in the making.

The Ladies Aid met last Thursday at the home of Mrs. Jake Fulmer. Mrs. W. W. Smith assisted Mrs. Fulmer in the entertaining. Delicious refreshments of chicken, salad, coffee and ice tea were served. The meeting was gay and full of fun.

Big Dance! Swell time! Great music! and no wall flowers at the CCC Dance last Saturday nite in Cleghorn Hall.

The Misses Alameda Bowlin and Margaret Elliott spent the past week end with Miss Lois Smith.

Mr. and Mrs. D. L. Jackson had quite a blow-up at their home-- a hot water heater exploded and shattered things in the kitchen, quite unexpectedly.

Mr. Arthur Mathews, Sr., had a slight but rather painful injury to his left foot while working in his coal mine.

White Oaks Pioneering Notes

"Now dearie, I have lived around white people all my life and they have always treated me white," Mrs. Mary Jackson, age some sixty odd years, declared in all sincerity. Tho' her color be dark she is "white" thru and thru. A ture Christian, she lives her religion in ministering to the sick and needy. Her body racked with pain most of the time now; she is still a blessing to the Community and beloved by everyone. Doctors, lawyers, judges and preachers have sat at her table and she speaks of them with pride because of their kindess to her.

Mrs. Jackson was born of farming people in Hitchcock, Texas, but has lived in N.M. since 1899. Looking back thru the years two incidents stand out most vividely in her mind- when Town Hall burned and the cave-in of the North Homestake shaft. The Town Hall a two story wood frame building stood near where the Cleghorn Hall now stands. There, was held the moving pictures, the dances and the home talent plays. She well remembers one play which had such outstanding amateurs as Mr. and Mrs. Albert Ziegler, Mr. and Mrs. Jno. McCourt, and Mrs. Melvin Stewart. The Hall caught fire in February 1910 and burned down so quickly-- a bucket brigade was hopeless from the start.

The North homestake shaft located in the Baxter Mts. caved-in about twenty years ago. The miners had only been out of the shaft five minutes when this mighty deluge of rock began falling. To see the site of this cave-in is to realize just what that five minutes meant in the lives of these miners.

Last Monday afternoon Mr. and Mrs. Ed Dixon gave a birthday party at the Garrard hotel in honor of their little daughter, Geraldine's birthday. A white and pink birthday cake graced the center of the table.

The party wished to be with the father on his first evening ... retirement from the Southern Pacific service. A very happy family reunion was held until the "wee small" hours of the a. m. before they were able to snatch a bit of "shut eye". Pop Frame and the Mrs. were very happy to have their sons and daughters, the in-laws and grandchildren with them at this time.

Mr. J. M. Frame Retires

A gay Saturday from 2 until 5 p. m. was spent at the beautiful home of Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Frame. A surprise party was given by Mrs. Frame, her sons Paul and Pete and her daughter Thelma in honor of Mr. Frame's retirement after 48 years of railroading.

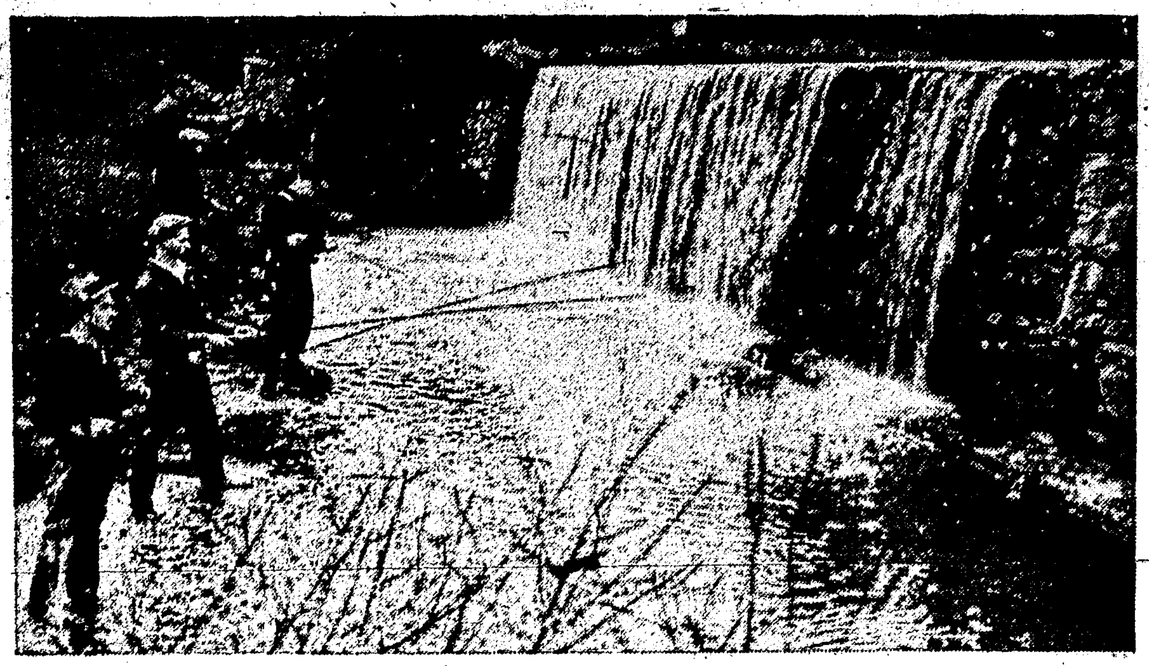
Mr. Frame was born April 24, 1873 at Kimbalton, Ohio. He went to Texas in 1890, where he worked for the Texas Pacific until 1916. Mr. Frame and his family moved to Corona, where he spent two years working for the El Paso and Southwestern. Then they moved to Ancho, where Mr. Frame has been an faithful and obliging agent and operator for twenty years. He worked his last shift the 28th day of April 1938 for the Southern Pacific Company.

The centerpieces of each table were locomotives from the old-timers to the present stream-line beauties. Place cards were miniature engines which read as follows: "Pop Frame, 1890- 1938 T. P., E.P. & S.W. & S.P. Ancho, New Mexico, 4-30-38. The table covers, cups, plates and napkins were a beautiful shade of yellow and gold.

Refreshments were delicious sandwiches, potato chips, olives, angel food cake, lemonade and ice cream. The ice cream was moulded into a perfectly shaped engine, especially made in Dallas, Texas. Mrs. Paul Frame, Mrs. Pete Frame and Mrs. Bert Penix served. Members of the family were all present. In the receiving line were two granddaughters, Misses Mary Catherine Penix and Mary Fern Frame, who were especially beautiful in their evening dresses, the former in white satin and the latter in rose taffeta.

Memebers of the family who were named above, and the guests present made 46 in all, who joined in hearty congratulations and in wishing Mr. and Mrs. Frame the best of everything, and a most pleasant summer at their cabin, "Done Workin," at Ruidoso. Their friends at Ancho and vicinity will welcome them home after their stay at Ruidoso.

Early Anglers Make Bid for Trout



This picturesque scene was witnessed at the foot of the waterfall at Valley Stream near Paoli, Pa., as the trout fishing season opened in Pennsylvania. Anglers from the adjoining areas and nearby states were on hand to try their luck.

CHANGED OLYMPICS

Dr. Jogoro Kano, Japanese member of the International Olympic committee, who changed the date of the international games in Tokyo from August 24 to September 21, 1940. The shift creates a serious conflict for American collegiate runners who should be attending classes. Many athletic authorities favor changing the 1940 Olympic site from Japan to London, Helsingfors or any other place.

Striking Sailors Stage Riot

A private battle was staged by the two men at right during a riot between sailors and longshoremen in San Francisco. The riot started when three gangs of longshoremen broke through the picket line established by the Sailor's Union of the Pacific.

Nutmeg Furnishes Flavor for Menus

Expert Gives Some Tips About the Use of Spices

By EDITH M. BARBER

A CASTLE in Spain and a home in the Spice islands have always been symbols of the longings which all of us have for the life which we would choose to lead if the world allowed us to dream true. The events of today have deprived us of our first symbol, but the Spice islands remain.

The beauty and quiet which we associate with them is still ours, although since the world discovered that spices provide an accent for food there was for many centuries anything but a calm, peaceful life for the native inhabitants.

Until very recently spices were luxuries available only to the wealthy, except in countries where they were produced. The adventurers who sailed the seas ranked spices with gold and precious stones and hoped to bring back cargoes for sale at their home ports. The Egyptians, Greeks and Romans, as the records show, valued spices highly, but they did not come into use in western Europe until the end of the Middle ages.

From the nutmeg tree come two important spices. In its fruit are found mace, which surround the hard brown shell which incloses the kernel which we know as nutmeg. Both mace and the nutmeg itself are dried before they are shipped. Today we purchase them in grated form. For many years, because of the adulterations often in ground spices, there was a prejudice against them. Now, however, we can be sure that they are pure products, sold at a reasonable price, quite different from an earlier day when a pound of mace was worth as much as three sheep.

Baked Custard.

3 eggs
Salt
3 cups milk
3 tablespoons sugar
1 teaspoon vanilla
Nutmeg

Beat eggs enough to mix the yolks and whites and add the other ingredients. Pour into custard cups and set in a pan of hot water. Bake in a moderate oven (375 degrees Fahrenheit) 40 minutes, or (300 degrees Fahrenheit) 60 minutes, until custard is set. Test by trying with a knife, and if the mixture is jellied it is ready to remove from the oven. Cool quickly and chill in refrigerator.

Rice Croquettes.

1 teaspoon finely minced onion
3 tablespoons butter
3 cups boiled rice
½ teaspoon nutmeg
1 egg
Salt and pepper

Cook the onion one minute in the butter and stir in the rice and nutmeg. Add the egg slightly beaten and season to taste. Spread on a platter to cool. Form into croquettes and dip in finely sifted crumbs, egg diluted slightly with water, and then in crumbs again. Fry in deep hot fat (395 degrees Fahrenheit) until light brown. Serve with a cream sauce flavored with nutmeg, or with cheese sauce.

Household Hints

By BETTY WELLS

YOUR butler will look down his nose at the casual furniture now in fashion. If you have a butler. But informality is the order of the day, in decoration as in manners, and current exhibitions of new interiors stress this trend with a dash. Even informality has its moods, however, and the mid-winter's fashions make a paradoxical point of sophisticated provincial on one hand and provincial modern on the other.

You'll see maple, plenty of it, but it's done with a lot of contemporary style. For instance, in a little bedroom we noted the other day, the poster bed and chest were of a honey color maple and the wall paper was a mellow little old diamond-checked flower design with a good deal of rose in it, some green and an ivory ground. A white bedspread, very crisp and starched looking, white voile curtains and a quilt in white and green, all carried out the pleasant New England character of the room. But for accent there were two button back upholstered slipper chairs in chartreuse green finished with a wide cotton rope fringe. They gave the room its tongue-in-cheek smartness and put it right into the current decorating picture.

The Butler May Disapprove.

And Aurelia Hunt, a friend of ours, has just designed some exuberant modern-provincial pieces, also for a bedroom. They're of Swedish inspiration with modern lines and painted decorations of peasant origin in a brilliant orange and a clear sparkling blue.

Another unexpected combination of peasant with modern was a bedroom with slender blond furniture complemented by a painted Swiss chest, by a painted peasant decoration on the alcove wall above the bed and by the comfortably patterned American hooked rug on the floor. The walls were painted in a dusty apricot color, with turquoise wood trim; the curtains were plaid with lamp shades of the same fabric.

Framing Pictures.

It's too bad that we can't all own original Titians and Rembrandts. But an ambitious painting takes a lot of living up to, and so for a simple informal house, maybe it's just as well to be glad we have incidental pictures to choose from. Flower, fruit or bird prints, for instance. Or reproductions of sunny water colors, or prints of scintillating Van Goghs or Ganguins.

Part of the success of the picture will be the framing of it. Here are recent news notes we've collected on that subject:

Shadow box frames, even for smallish pictures, are seen often. Though they are some more expensive, they give added importance to small pictures.

Victorian velvet ribbon is seen here and there to hang pictures by. Red or purple or black ribbon about the width ladies used to tie around their necks! If you add a gold tassel at the point where the cord is hung, you'll get just the quaint and fussy effect you want. Add, if you like, a satin covered mat (made by covering the cardboard mat with satin).

Another new idea for an informal picture (that will go in a provincial or some other very informal room) is to use a piece of calico or gingham for the mat. Add a plain molding frame of unfinished wood which acquires a lovely tone if you wax or oil it. (Maybe the man in your life can make this frame for you.) Or use a pie pan! Cut the gingham the size of the pan, paste the picture on gingham and gingham on pie pan. Tack a small wooden panel to the back to hold screws and there you are.

Have you got in your attic one or more old wood frames in oval shape? Get them out and polish them up and use the natural wood color or paint them white or dull pink. Get striped or sprigged brocade or wall paper and paste a cut-out flower design of chintz or wall paper or an old print and frame in the old oval frame.

If you have a wide old square frame, cut a piece of heavy cardboard to fit in it. Over the cardboard paste gold paper, then a large lace paper doilie, then in the center of this a sweet picture of your favorite baby.

Fritz Ryan, well known advertising executive, tells of Joe Cook's butler. When a visitor arrives at Sleepless Hollow, over at Lake Hopatcong, he is received by a very dignified servant whom Cook calls Watkins. After about half an hour, Cook remarks, "Watkins, you look tired. Go upstairs and take a rest and tell Atwood to come down." Watkins disappears and Atwood appears. The guest looks tiwce. There is something familiar about Atwood. Later he discovers something familiar about the bartender, the waiter, the chauffeur and other Cook employees. There should be. While the guest is there, the same man fills all the jobs.

Jack Fulton, in New York for a fast visit to a business he runs in addition to his singing, was walking along Madison avenue when a small delivery truck pulled up alongside him. The driver, speaking in a low voice, informed Fulton that he worked for a clothing establishment and had "lifted" an expensive suit which he would sell for fifteen dollars or "what do you want to offer?" Fulton took one look and walked on. Fulton's New York business enterprise is one of the most exclusive tailoring establishments in town, and that one glance told him the supposed bargain wasn't worth even five dollars.

Since it has been declared that a story is new until it is told, I can hark back to the Music hall engagement of "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs," which brought out multitudes. One of the town's more clever bridge players after waiting sometime, finally managed to get inside the huge playhouse, and much to her delight, spotted several empty seats well down in front, But before she could seat herself, an usher stopped her with the declaration that those seats were being held for the deaf.

"What'd you say?" she asked cupping her ear.

"Those seats are for the deaf."

"Deaf, eh? Where can I get my ear-piece?"

The usher brought her one and she saw the film from a most advantageous position. Incidentally, she can hear a whisper across the room. And when it comes to making psychic bids, she's tops.

Many a young author, who with high hopes sends a manuscript to a magazine, wonders why it and an accompanying rejection slip come back so quickly. Plagiarists are the main reason. In magazine offices, unsolicited manuscripts by unknown writers, which come through the mails by the thousands, are known as "slush." In one organization, controlling 18 magazines, "slush" is never read, but is returned immediately. Having become involved in four cases of plagiarism within a month, the order went out to buy only from known writers or established agencies. In another office, an editor, ever on the lookout for new talent, in five years bought three stories he found in the "slush." Two of those were stolen. And so, another hurdle in the hard path of the young writer.

Then there was that out-of-town newspaper man, here on an assignment, who lost his hat. It was in a mid-town establishment much frequented by newspaper men, artists, writers and Broadwayites. It seems that a gambler, in a fit of absent-mindedness—he must have been awfully absent-minded to take a newspaper man's hat—had made a swap and left behind one of those green lids popular in his profession. The proprietor telephoned all over town, but failed to find the gambler. So the newspaper man wore the green hat to Boston. From there friends received a note from him saying that at the time of the hat exchange, he had either lost or given away his wrist watch, and if he had given it away, the possessor was to be informed that he hadn't meant to do it.

Comma Makes It Illegal to Sleep in Dakota Hotel

Bismarck, N. D.—Slips in phraseology on the part of legislators often result in amusing statutes.

For instance, it is illegal to sleep in a North Dakota hotel.

The 1929 legislature approved a law on hotel inspection. A slip in punctuation made it read like this:

"No hotel, restaurant, dining room, or kitchen shall be used as a sleeping or dressing room by an employee or other persons."

Eliminate the comma after the word hotel and the section makes some sense. However, judges say it would take a legislative amendment to get rid of that comma.

Wash Frocks Set High Style Record

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

WITH each succeeding season dresses and jacket costumes smartly styled of swank wash materials reach a new high in fashion importance. The current modes developed in voguish cottons, linens, rayons and hosts of intriguing novelty weaves that "wash like new," give you a dressed-up appearance that tunes to any occasion.

Especially in the matter of smart daytime suits and afternoon frocks the trend is to style simple materials that will launder perfectly with as flattering details and meticulous finesse as you would expect in higher priced apparel. To prove our point that dresses and costume suits made of wash materials look every inch patrician we are picturing three models that received curtain calls at a recent preview of spring and summer fashions recently held in the Merchandise Mart of Chicago.

These attractive dresses are just such as you will find available in leading stores in most communities. You will like to know about the congo cloth that fashions the two light-with-bright-contrast costumes in the illustration. It is just what every woman is eagerly seeking, a material that keeps its whiteness or clear natural tone, does not shrink and is as non-wrinkable as modern science can make it.

After you have satisfied yourself as to the good service the material itself offers, consider the style-high "looks" which you may be sure will make instant appeal, for designers are turning out perfectly stunning tub frocks this season. Note the accent on color contrast in each of the two light outfits shown. This matter of using dark with light in sharp contrast is important news.

Because it is champagne color, because it is a new fabric, congo cloth to be explicit, and because the top of the dress is of the same fabric in chevron stripes of yellow, royal and polo blue, the model to the right is a noteworthy example of what's newest for spring and summer. It is a perfect choice to wear in the way of a spectator sports costume on a sunny afternoon.

Very definitely does the other dress announce the smartness of dark with light. The manner of combining navy with white as here shown is characteristic of this season's new styling. In some instances the latest dresses go fifty-fifty white or light with dark brown or perhaps the new copper tone or deep red as the case may be.

The peasant dirndl full-skirted models have emerged from play clothes fashions being shown in the new spring dresses for street and general wear. Note the dirndl frock in the foreground. It is a sure-enough winner. Made of navy linen this dress with white braid ornamentation has the typical high bust line of the authentic dirndl as worn by mid-Europe peasants. The matching kerchief scarf worn on the head is a young fashion that persists among the sorority of school age—gives the picturesque peasant atmosphere and is flattering in the extreme.

GIBSON GIRL VOGUE

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

The air is rife with news in regard to the revival of Gibson-girl fashions. And if you think there is any doubt as to the reality of this style movement see here pictured a lady of fashion, year 1938, as will grace the immediate spring and summer style scene. The rough straw sailor hat with huge decorative pin and crisp veil is true to an honest-to-goodness original Gibson type. The demure blouse of shadow-printed Swiss organdie with cascading jabot frill and high-tucked band collar is reminiscent of the early 1900's. The smart wool suit in the picture has a straight navy skirt with action pleats at front and back. The fitted jacket which she carries is of matching blue wool fabric, chalk-striped in white.

BANGLE BRACELET STYLE HIGHLIGHT

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

In the way of a novelty bangle bracelet here's one that makes appeal to women of discriminating taste. If you inquire at the jewelry counter you will find that the bangle bracelet is a style highlight this season. One of the cleverest types yet designed has little gadgets of all-American inspiration dangling from a slender gilt chain. Exquisite workmanship marks the motifs in that each is defined in dainty rhinestone solid settings. The bangles consist of an American eagle, Independence bell, covered wagon, a happy Indian figure, and cunning-as-can-be wee "Yankee Doodle come to town riding on a pony." This bracelet by Lester Gaba will add a most pleasing accent to any costume in that the entire scheme is carried out with consummate artistry.

Twelfth Century Lending Glamor to Glove Fashions

The fine glove, tabards and even shields used by Robin's noblemen enemies are contributing ideas to the early spring style picture. The gloves all have picturesque gauntlets and many of the finer ones are embroidered in silver or gold.

This is an idea which should blossom around cocktail time or even after dinner. The tabard of the Twelfth century was a long, oblong piece of cloth which had a hole cut in the center. The head was thrust through the hole, the waistline was girded and the result was a dashing tunic. Usually the front of these were elaborately embroidered in metallic thread. The tabard is a clever way to dress up lounging pajamas or to give a tunic effect to any gown.

WHAT to EAT and WHY

C. Houston Goudiss Discusses FOOD PRESERVATION and Explains How to Protect Your Family Against the DANGERS of TAINTED FOOD

By C. HOUSTON GOUDISS

6 East 39th Street, New York.

A DISTINGUISHED nutritional scientist once remarked that it is a small favor to keep people alive on a poorly chosen diet. For with the wrong food, they may not get one-fifth of their potential efficiency into their lives; they will drag themselves through miserable days, never knowing the joys of physical fitness nor enjoying the abundant health that comes from a perfect balance of nutriment.

The Perfect Diet May Not Be Safe to Eat

But even the homemaker who plans an ideal diet may be undermining the health of her family by feeding them spoiled or tainted food which carries the deadly germs of disease.

We frequently hear stories of death or serious illness caused by food contamination. And it is significant that the improper care of food in the home is most often responsible. One physician has gone so far as to state that there is no estimating the number of persons who, while not sick in bed, feel "rather poorly," "not strong," or "kind of run down" because improperly preserved food gives them insufficient nourishment and their strength is exhausted in combatting the action of germs.

Homemaker's Responsibility For Food Sanitation

An enormous amount of time and money is expended to put foodstuffs in your kitchen in a fresh, palatable and safe form. Laws govern the manufacture, transportation and merchandising of every food product and an elaborate system is maintained for the inspection of meat. But all this care can be undone if food is not adequately refrigerated in the home.

From the moment that meats, fruits, vegetables and groceries reach your kitchen, the responsibility is yours, and you will be guilty if your husband and children suffer ill effects from eating tainted food.

Causes of Food Spoilage

Spoilage in food is due to the ravages of a vast army of micro-organisms which cause it to sour, decay or putrefy, depending upon the nature of the food.

There are three classes of micro-organisms which develop in food—bacteria, molds and yeasts. All three are notable for their minute size, rapid growth and wide distribution. Yeasts and bacteria can only be seen with the aid of a microscope.

Not all micro-organisms are the enemies of man; some are useful in the preparation of foods such as cheese, sauerkraut and bread. These need not concern the homemaker. But the harmful bacteria will flourish wherever conditions are favorable to their growth.

There are two important factors governing food preservation. One is the maintenance of a constant temperature of from 40 to 50 degrees Fahrenheit—under no circumstances should food be stored at a temperature higher than 50 degrees, or bacteria will multiply so rapidly as to make it unsafe to eat. The other is to maintain the proper degree of moisture in the air—neither too much, which encourages the growth of micro-organisms, nor too little, which dehydrates fruits and vegetables.

Appearance of Food May Be Deceptive

The great danger of food that is improperly stored is that it may become spoiled without advertising that fact. Appearance is seldom a reliable guide and unless your refrigerator is efficient, food may become unfit for consumption before spoilage can be noted by sight, taste or smell.

All types of protein foods harbor bacteria which multiply rapidly at temperatures higher than 50 degrees. Under favorable conditions of moisture and temperature, bacteria double their number every 20 to 30 minutes, and a single bacterium can produce a million bacteria in 15 hours.

Safeguard Children's Milk

Milk is the most perishable of all foods, because it is an ideal medium for bacterial growth. If this master food is to be kept safe for children, it must be stored at a temperature not higher than 45 degrees.

Careful studies show that there is very little increase in bacteria when milk is held for as long as 48 hours at a temperature of 40 degrees. But when the temperature was allowed to rise to 50 degrees, almost 30 times as many bacteria developed, and at 60 degrees, the bacteria multiplied more than 3,000 times in the same period.

Foods That Spoil Easily

The rapid multiplication of bacteria also occurs in other foods having a high protein content, including meat, meat broths, fish, gelatin, custards, creamed foods, peas and beans. It is important that all these foods, as well as milk, be kept in the coldest part of the refrigerator, as a few degrees in temperature make a great deal of difference in preventing spoilage.

Once food has begun to deteriorate, it must be discarded or it may endanger health. Cooking will not make spoiled foods fit for consumption.

How to Prevent Mold

Molds are another form of spoilage that the homemaker must constantly battle. Mold will grow on almost any substance, but is particularly likely to occur on acid foods, as lemons, oranges, tomatoes and berries; on neutral foods, such as bread and meat; on sweets, notably jellies and preserves, and on salty foods, including ham or bacon.

Molds may develop quickly or slowly, depending upon the temperature and degree of moisture. They thrive under the influence of warmth and moisture and may remain invisible to the naked eye for as long as 36 hours. All molds are white at first, but as they mature they change color, becoming blue, red, or assuming various shades of brown.

To the bacteriologist, these colors have different meanings. To the homemaker, they all tell the same story—that through improper storage food has lost its appetite appeal and palatability.

Mold growths may be destroyed by boiling temperatures. They may be retarded by keeping food in the cold, dry circulating air provided by an efficient refrigerator.

A good refrigerator is the best investment a family can make. It enables you to take advantage of bargain prices to buy food in quantity. And it safeguards health by preventing contaminated food from finding its way to your table.

An efficient refrigerator also preserves the flavor and texture of meats, fruits and vegetables, so that you enjoy these foods at their best. But its greatest contribution to human welfare is the preservation of food so that it will nourish your body instead of poisoning it.

Have You a Question? Ask C. Houston Goudiss

C. Houston Goudiss has put at the disposal of readers of this newspaper all the facilities of his famous Experimental Kitchen Laboratory in New York City. He will gladly answer questions concerning foods, diet, nutrition, and their relation to health. You are also invited to consult him in matters of personal hygiene. It's not necessary to write a letter unless you desire, for postcard inquiries will receive the same careful attention. Address him at 6 East 39th Street, New York City.

Questions Answered

Mrs. S. T.—When thoroughly chewed and given a proper place in the diet, cheese is usually well digested. Experiments performed by the United States Department of Agriculture demonstrated that an average of 95 per cent of the protein and over 95 per cent of the fat of cheese were digested and absorbed.

Mr. B. M. G.—Yes, cooking vegetables leads to a reduction of their energy values, as well as mineral salts. In general, there is a reduction of from one-third to one-half of the carbohydrate after cooking in water. Frequent reheating cannot be recommended as thrice-boiled vegetables contain little available carbohydrate, and the greater part of their minerals and flavor is also lost.

WPA in New Mexico and the proposed new works program occupied the attention of Congressman Dempsey and Senator Chavez this week. Conferences with Harry Hopkins held this week are expected to be resumed Monday.

Senator Chavez announced that the hyhro-electric project which has been approved for Albuquerque would receive his hearty endorsement. He said that the project would be a progressive step towards the readjustment of utility rates in New Mexico. He indicated, however, that he did not expect city officials to suppo r the project.

Captian E H Simons, of the El Paso Chamber of Commerce was a visitor to the office this week. He is much excited about doing something for the Coronado Cuarto Centennial. He is arranging a meeting of the Congressional Delegation with Gutzon Borglum in order to discuss the possibility of obtaining Federal assistance for the celebration. Mr. Borglum, the world famous sculptor, is associated with the Arizona Cuarto Centennial Commission.

Robert Six, President of the Continental Airlines, which serves New Mexico with connections to Denver and El Paso, visited Senator Chavez this week. Mrs. H. A. Kiker of Santa Fe; Miss Elizabeth Briggs of Raton and N. B. Phillips of Las Cruces were also visitors to the office.

Senator Coe Speaker

Senator Louise H. Coe of New Mexico, now serving her fourth consecutive term, delivered an address on "Is Demecracy the Best Form of Government?" before the El Paso Open Forum, Williams at Rio Grande street, last Sunday at 8 p. m.

"In the United States both Fascism and Communism have been advocated by small groups for more than a century," said Senator Coe. "They have gained small headway. The vast body of Americans are still democratic. Moreover, there is no possibility of a radical change unless there should be an economic breakdown. Then millions might turn to the advocating of other systems. All of us who wish to avoid change in direction of either Communism or Fascism can best realize that hope and purpose by maintaining stability and prosperity—seeing to it that the masses of the people realize their desires for opportunity, well being and security."

Today the annual activity day is being held in Capitan for the grade schools of the County. Many of the students and teachers from here are in attendance.

America's Greatest Food Authority Now Writes for This Paper

C. Houston Goudiss

We announce with pride a new feature in this issue, "What You Eat and Why," by C. Houston Goudiss, noted food authority, radio speaker, author and lecturer, famous as the man who knows food "from soil to serving, from table to tissue."

One of these articles will appear each week, and we know housewives and mothers will look forward to them for the accurate, worthwhile information they contain on foods and their relation to health. This is not a recipe column. Mr. Goudiss has designed it to serve as a link between laboratory and layman in the food field, interpreting modern scientific knowledge in the language of the home maker, giving her the elemental facts regarding new discoveries and the part played by food in building and maintaining health.

Every woman wants to know what foods will benefit her family and why, and that is just the information that Mr. Goudiss will give. Watch for the articles each week, make a scrap book of them for ready reference. They contain valuable information every home maker has been wanting.

Roosevelt Spending or Hitler Spending?

Chairman John Hamilton of the Republican National Committee, Ex-Governor Landon of Kansas, who some people will remember ran for the Presidency, and Dr. Glenn Frank, who heads the Republican Program Committee, are all agreed that the relief program the President has proposed to take care of the rising tide of unemployment, etc., is a wicked thing. On the other hand George D. Aiken, Republican Governor of Vermont, came out with a speech at Dartmouth College in which he said that it was "poor business to leave an impression that the Republican party would cut off relief spending," and accused Chairman Hamilton of incompetent politics in the latter's discussion of the program.

The most notable thing about the eloquence of the minority party Chairman, the forlorn-hope leader in the last campaign, and the program chief, who hasn't any program, is the unanimity with which they fail to suggest any alternative to the "pump priming" process. Obviously, the only possible method of bringing about re-employment is to create more jobs. Hence the plan of more public buildings, highways, bridges, and other works, in which the government must engage as an alternative to the unemployed and their families on the relief rolls.

"Considering the President's proposal, the country has three propositions before it. One is to spend as Roosevelt has been spending. Another is to spend as Hitler has been spending" (that is to have a standing army huge enough to absorb the surplus workers) "And the third is to stop spending altogether."

Then he points out that nobody would seriously consider the raising and maintaining of such an army in peace times, that to let unemployment continue to increase would mean an era of food riots and that sort of thing; and he concludes that "we have to go with Roosevelt for the simple, but sufficient, reason that there isn't anywhere else to go".

As the outcome of it all, this writer's philosophy is that the borrowing may be expected to end "for if the country really became prosperous again the present taxes would supply the spending money."

Socorro Sanatorium

New Mexico is assuming its responsibility for the care of its tuberculous who are unable to provide themselves with hospitalization, as evidenced by the development of the State Tuberculosis Sanatorium operated by the Department of Public Welfare at Socorro.

From a row of wooden barracks abandoned by the CCC, the institution has grown into a modern sanatorium with operating and x-ray rooms, beds for 65 patients and a competent staff of doctors, nurses and attendants.

The camp, which has been used successively by the CCC and the Transient Service, was taken over by the Welfare Department in July, 1936. Using WPA labor, a building housing modern operating rooms and wards was built. The original barracks are now being torn down. Present value of the buildings is estimated at $75,000. This figure will be increased when a new dining room and kitchen unit, valued at $40,000 is completed next month. This was also built with the aid of a WPA project.

Although the institution was started less than two years ago, it has already won the approval of the American Hospital Association, by being placed on the approved list of institutions. This means approval not only of the institution's equipment and wards but of its personnel and method of handling patients.

The sanatorium has about 25 employees, headed by Mrs. Jessie Rawlings, Superintendent. Dr. R. R. Bartels, who moved to Socorro several months ago from Chicago, is resident physician. Tuberculosis specialist is Dr. Carl Muiky of Albuquerque, recognized as an expert on pulmonary diseases. He makes weekly trips to Socorro to examine the patients.

The sanatorium is located three miles north of Socorro. Its altitude of 4,570 feet and its dry, sunny climate are big factors in aiding recovery of patients.

Applications for entrance are made to the county welfare departments. Applicants are examined, and if eligible to enter the institution and in need of treatment, are placed on a waiting list. Persons on the waiting list are assigned to the sanatoriums as vacancies occur.

The Board of County Commissioners held a very successful meeting at the Court house last Monday.

Office of Senator Chavez

Washington, D. C., May 4, 38 Howard Acton, Vice Presi- nt of the National Press Club d prominent Washington news- aper man, lauded most highly e speech which Senator Chavez elivered at Summerville, South arolina, Sunday. Mr. Acton ccompanied the group of mem ers of Congress who were invited o attend the Azalea Festival at harleston. He said that it was ery well received by the history oving audience. Senator Chavez poke on Spanish Exploration and olonization in Southern and outhwestern United States.

Senator Hatch and Senator Chavez are engaged in drafting an amendment to the Taylor Grazing Act by which they seek to give additional protection to the small stock raisers in N. Mex. They expect to introduce the bill immediately.

WPA in New Mexico and the proposed new works program occupied the attention of Congressman Dempsey and Senator Chavez this week. Conferences with Harry Hopkins held this week are expected to be resumed Monday.

Senator Chavez announced that the hydro-electric project which has been approved for Albuquerque would receive his hearty endorsement. He said that the project would be a progressive step towards the readjustment of utility rates in New Mexico. He indicated, however, that he did not expect city officials to support the project.

Captain E H Simons, of the El Paso Chamber of Commerce was a visitor to the office this week. He is much excited about doing something for the Coronado Cuarto Centennial. He is arranging a meeting of the Congressional Delegation with Gutzon Borglum in order to discuss the possibility of obtaining Federal assistance for the celebration. Mr. Borglum, the world famous sculptor, is associated with the Arizona Cuarto Centennial Commission.

Robert Six, President of the Continental Airlines, which serves New Mexico with connections to Denver and El Paso, visited Senator Chavez this week. Mrs. H. A. Kiker of Santa Fe; Miss Elizabeth Briggs of Raton and N. B. Phillips of Las Cruces were also visitors to the office.

Senator Coe Speaker

Senator Louise H. Coe of New Mexico, now serving her fourth consecutive term, delivered an address on "Is Democracy the Best Form of Government?" before the El Paso Open Forum, Williams at Rio Grande street, last Sunday at 8 p. m.

"In the United States both Fascism and Communism have been advocated by small groups for more than a century," said Senator Coe. "They have gained small headway. The vast body of Americans are still democratic. Moreover, there is no possibility of a radical change unless there should be an economic breakdown. Then millions might turn to the advocating of other systems. All of us who wish to avoid change in direction of either Communism or Fascism can best realize that hope and purpose by maintaining stability and prosperity—seeing to it that the masses of the people realize their desires for opportunity, well being and security."

Today the annual activity day is being held in Capitan for the grade schools of the County. Many of the students and teachers from here are in attendance.

America's Greatest Food Authority Now Writes for This Paper

C. Houston Goudiss

We announce with pride a new feature in this issue, "What You Eat and Why," by C. Houston Goudiss, noted food authority, radio speaker, author and lecturer, famous as the man who knows food "from soil to serving, from table to tissue."

One of these articles will appear each week, and we know housewives and mothers will look forward to them for the accurate, worthwhile information they contain on foods and their relation to health. This is not a recipe column. Mr. Goudiss has designed it to serve as a link between laboratory and layman in the food field, interpreting modern scientific knowledge in the language of the home maker, giving her the elemental facts regarding new discoveries and the part played by food in building and maintaining health.

Every woman wants to know what foods will benefit her family and why, and that is just the information that Mr. Goudiss will give. Watch for the articles each week, make a scrap book of them for ready reference. They contain valuable information every home maker has been wanting.

Roosevelt Spending or Hitler Spending?

Chairman John Hamilton of the Republican National Committee, Ex-Governor Landon of Kansas, who some people will remember ran for the Presidency, and Dr. Glenn Frank, who heads the Republican Program Committee, are all agreed that the relief program the President has proposed to take care of the rising tide of unemployment, etc., is a wicked thing. On the other hand George D. Aiken, Republican Governor of Vermont, came out with a speech at Dartmouth College in which he said that it was "poor business to leave an impression that the Republican party would cut off relief spending," and accused Chairman Hamilton of incompetent politics in the latter's discussion of the program.

The most notable thing about the eloquence of the minority party Chairman, the forlorn-hope leader in the last campaign, and the program chief, who hasn't any program, is the unanimity with which they fail to suggest any alternative to the "pump priming" process. Obviously the only possible method of bringing about re-employment is to create more jobs. Hence the plan of more public buildings, highways, bridges, and other works, in which the government must engage as an alternative to the unemployed and their families on the relief rolls.

"Considering the President's proposal, the country has three propositions before it. One is to spend as Roosevelt has been spending. Another is to spend as Hitler has been spending" (that is to have a standing army huge enough to absorb the surplus workers) "And the third is to stop spending altogether."

Then he points out that nobody would seriously consider the raising and maintaining of such an army in peace times, that to let unemployment continue to increase would mean an era of food riots and that sort of thing; and he concludes that "we have to go with Roosevelt for the simple, but sufficient, reason that there isn't anywhere else to go".

As the outcome of it all, this writer's philosophy is that the borrowing may be expected to end "for if the country really became prosperous again the present taxes would supply the spending money."

Socorro Sanatorium

New Mexico is assuming its responsibility for the care of its tuberculous who are unable to provide themselves with hospitalization, as evidenced by the development of the State Tuberculosis Sanatorium operated by the Department of Public Welfare at Socorro.

From a row of wooden barracks abandoned by the CCC, the institution has grown into a modern sanatorium with operating and x-ray rooms, beds for 65 patients and a competent staff of doctors, nurses and attendants.

The camp, which has been used successively by the CCC and the Transient Service, was taken over by the Welfare Department in July, 1936. Using WPA labor, a building housing modern operating rooms and wards was built. The original barracks are now being torn down. Present value of the buildings is estimated at $75,000. This figure will be increased when a new dining room and kitchen unit, valued at $40,000 is completed next month. This was also built with the aid of a WPA project.

Although the institution was started less than two years ago, it has already won the approval of the American Hospital Association, by being placed on the approved list of institutions. This means approval not only of the institution's equipment and wards but of its personnel and method of handling patients.

The sanatorium has about 25 employees, headed by Mrs. Jessie Rawlings, Superintendent. Dr. R. R. Bartels, who moved to Socorro several months ago from Chicago, is resident physician. Tuberculosis specialist is Dr. Carl Muiky of Albuquerque, recognized as an expert on pulmonary diseases. He makes weekly trips to Socorro to examine the patients.

The sanatorium is located three miles north of Socorro. Its altitude of 4,570 feet and its dry, sunny climate are big factors in aiding recovery of patients.

Applications for entrance are made to the county welfare departments. Applicants are examined, and if eligible to enter the institution and in need of treatment, are placed on a waiting list. Persons on the waiting list are assigned to the sanatorium as vacancies occur.

The Board of County Commissioners held a very successful meeting at the Court house last Monday.

STANDARD OIL COMPANY OF TEXAS

WHO'S NEWS THIS WEEK

By LEMUEL F. PARTON

NEW YORK.—Gen. Saturnio Cedillo, the feudal chieftain of the province of San Luis Potosi, is moving out of the ruck as the No. 1 menace to the Cardenas administration, according to all one can glean at this crossroads.

Gen. Cedillo No. 1 Menace to Cardenas

A friend of this writer, an oil operator who has reasons for remaining anonymous, brings news from Mexico that the big, swarthy Mestizo, the most conspicuous hold-out on the state agrarian program, is gaining a following in a long sweep of Mexican provinces, and, in this view, dissident factions will swarm in behind him, if there is a further drift toward civil war.

He has the friendship and backing of various foreign interests, according to my informant, and around his huge, stolid, grim person there is gathering powerful opposition to the government.

He is a self-made fighting man who served his apprenticeship in various minor work-outs, before the big upheaval of 1910, when old Porfirio Diaz was overthrown. He joined this revolt, but called himself a "conservative revolutionist."

He never liquidated his personal army, now numbering about 10,000, and his autocratic state is firmly encysted in the constitutional commonwealth. When he resigned as secretary of agriculture on August 1, of last year, it was reported that he had made a truce with President Cardenas, but that talk seems to have been premature.

He Keeps Up Own Army of 10,000 Men

He was a member of the National Revolutionary party committee of 1934, which drafted Mexico's six-year agrarian and economic plan, but has been a determined and effective opponent of such fixings, particularly the Cardenas agrarian plan.

My friend picks Senora Cardenas and Cedillo as the two strong men of Mexico, one being driven left and the other right by the present social tension.

THE Swiss bell-ringers, the one-armed trap-drummer, the circus ring-master and all such supposedly busy and preoccupied people are just snoozing along compared to Dr. Morris Fishbein, goal-keeper against medical quacks, heresies, panaceas, innovations, utopias and unsanctioned experiments.

Tap-Drummer Has Nothing on Fishbein

When Dr. James H. Means, retiring president of the American College of Physicians, drops a few provocative words about self-imposed medical reform, they scarcely hit a press wire before Dr. Fishbein swings a devastating counter-assertion

Dr. Fishbein is elaborately equipped and organized for timely blasts against any encroachment of subsidized or socialized medicine. As editor of the Journal of the American Medical Association, with headquarters in Chicago, he commands a large staff of secretaries and assistant secretaries, trained like a fast ball club to field any challenge or dissent.

He is undoubtedly the most highly publicized medical man in America. Through the journal, he reaches the nation's 125,000 doctors; through Hygeia, the more popularized medical publication, he carries his message to many more thousands and is a prolific writer for national magazines.

He wolfs hundreds of exchanges and eight or ten medical books every week, lectures, speaks on the radio, reviews books, writes books and, always enjoying a fight, keeps up a fast running fight against the quacks.

Finds Time for Fights on Quacks

When he finished Rush Medical school, at the age of twenty-three, he had the choice of becoming a pathologist for the state of Indiana, or an assistant editor of the Journal of Medicine.

He chose the latter. Mrs. Fishbein, who was Anna Mantel, serves through the war with him, traveling with him and assisting him in the biggest and busiest job of medical journalism ever attempted. They have three children.

Dr. Fishbein, plump, affable, bald, and forty-eight years old, also is deep in art, music, literature, the drama, bridge, golf and public affairs, exercising a sharp critical judgment in all these fields. He is a magnificent demonstration of how a knowing doctor can build up his basal metabolisms.

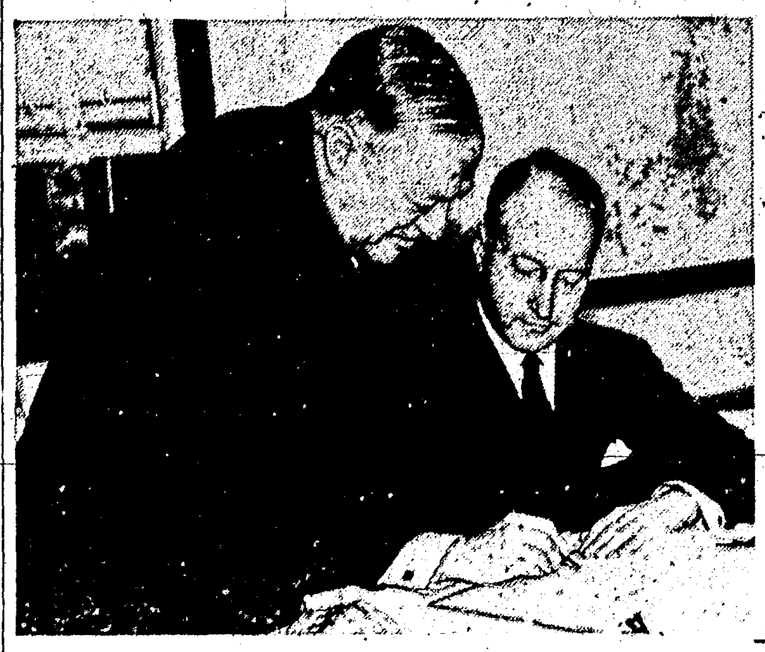
WPA WASTE ASSAILED

Senators Lodge and Davis Make Vigorous Minority Report on Unemployment Relief



Loan contracts totaling $30,657,000 for four cities, covering not more than 90 per cent of the cost of proposed slum-clearance and low-rent-housing, were approved by President Roosevelt upon the recommendation of Nathan Straus, administrator of the housing authority. These will provide approximately 6,667 family dwelling units for over 20,000 slum dwellers. The photograph shows Senator Robert Wagner of New York watching Mr. Straus sign the loan contracts.

Lodge and Davis Strike

HENRY CABOT LODGE, JR., of Massachusetts and James J. Davis of Pennsylvania made a minority report of the senate committee on unemployment and relief in which they vigorously attacked administration business and relief policies and condemned the majority report for failure to investigate alleged waste in the WPA administration.

Senator Lodge

The two Republican senators demanded that administration leaders stop making "extravagant utterances, in which whole classes of people are insulted and nameless individuals are lambasted over the radio instead of being prosecuted in the courts."

They then offered these further suggestions for immediate action:

1. Repeal of the undistributed profits tax and modification of the capital gains tax as proposed in the senate tax bill and general tax reduction wherever possible.
2. Encourage that which is good in business.
3. Stop congress from "wasting its time" over consideration of "such schemes" as the Supreme court enlargement bill and the government reorganization bill and allow the legislators to concentrate on the relief and unemployment problem
4. Eliminate tax exempt securities and reduce unnecessary and burdensome social security taxes.
5. A true unemployment census should be taken to serve as a basis for scientific treatment of the question of wages and hours on a national scale.
6. End executive discretion in tariff matters and return to congress the control of the currency.
7. Reorganization of the agencies of unemployment and relief.
8. Initiation of a new inquiry into the relief problem during which all persons who have constructive criticism of the operations of the present unemployment relief system would be heard.

Wallace Is Rebuked

SECRETARY OF AGRICULTURE WALLACE was rebuked for star chamber methods by the Supreme court in a decision reversing his order of June 14, 1933, fixing maximum rates to be charged by marketing agencies at the Kansas City stockyards.

The court's opinion, written by Chief Justice Hughes, reverses a decree of a three judge district court in Kansas City, upholding the order, on the ground that the commission men were denied a fair and open hearing and that Secretary Wallace accepted the "findings" of the government prosecutors without even reading the evidence.

In other decisions the Supreme court upheld the municipal bankruptcy act of 1937, and the 1923 filled milk act which bars interstate shipment of milk to which other oils or fats have been added.

"End Tax Exemptions"

PROMPT legislation was asked of congress by President Roosevelt to remove tax exemptions on income from all future government bonds, federal, state and local, and on all government salaries.

In his special message the President said existing exemptions resulted from judicial decisions and could be eliminated by a "short and simple statute" which he felt the courts would uphold.

Mr. Roosevelt said: "Tax exemptions through the ownership of government securities have operated against the fair or effective collection of progressive surtaxes. Indeed, I think it is fair to say that these exemptions have violated the spirit of the tax law itself by actually giving a greater advantage to those with large incomes than to those with small incomes. . . .

"The same principles of just taxation apply to tax exemptions of official salaries. The federal government does not now levy income taxes on the hundreds of thousands of state, county and municipal employees. Nor do the states, under existing decisions, levy income taxes on the salaries of the hundreds of thousands of federal employees. Justice in a great democracy should treat those who earn their livelihood from government in the same way as it treats those who earn their livelihood in private employ."

Won't Deal With Hitler

FRENCH PREMIER DALADIER let it be known that his government will not enter into any four power European treaty that includes Nazi Germany. In consequence, it was understood in Paris, Prime Minister Chamberlain of Great Britain had given up that plan for the present. Daladier and Foreign Minister Bonnet went to London and discussed Anglo-British relations and other matters relating to the peace of Europe.

Henlein Warns Czechs

KONRAD HENLEIN, leader of Czechoslovakia's 3,500,000 Sudeten Germans, warned the government of "war internally or from the outside" in a militant speech which quarters close to the government believed bore the approval of Fuehrer Adolf Hitler.

Henlein openly proclaimed that German Nazism is the "guiding principle" of his Sudetens and demanded that Czechoslovakia's foreign policies be revised immediately as regards Germany.

He warned the Prague government against placing reliance in its military alliances with France and Soviet Russia, and frankly asserted that Czechoslovakia must cease resisting Germany's ambitions toward the east.

An emergency meeting of the cabinet council was called to consider the grave situation created by Henlein's demands.

In Budapest 20,000 Hungarians demanded the dismemberment of Czechoslovakia at a rally of the Hungarian Revision league.

Anglo-Irish Agreement

PRIME MINISTER EAMON DE VALERA of Ireland and Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain of Great Britain met again in London and signed an agreement that brings to a close the six-year tariff and trade war between the two countries. The quarrel began when Ireland refused to pay England land tithes amounting to $25,000,000.

The agreement leaves for later settlement the question of incorporation of North Ireland, or Ulster, into the Irish republic. This now seems possible of accomplishment for both parties in Ireland have nominated for first president of the state under the new constitution Dr. Douglas Hyde, a Protestant. Hyde is the country's most distinguished Gaelic scholar. He is the son of a former Protestant rector in County Roscommon and is seventy-eight years old.

Chemurgy for Production

MEMBERS of the National Farm Chemurgic council, holding their fourth annual meeting in Omaha, challenged the view of President Roosevelt that the country's economic troubles are due to overproduction.

"There need be no limits," said Wheeler McMillen, editor of Country Home and president of the council, in his opening address, "to the wealth we can produce. Freeing farmers from the narrowness of food and export markets, the soil can be enabled to produce houses for the ill-housed and the innumerable desires of a great free people. The processes of production can create the purchasing power for consumption.

"In no other way than by the creation of wealth can there be wealth for all. Chemurgy calls, not upon government, but on the triple powers of agriculture, industry and science. We reject the cowardly counsels of national poverty and pessimism. We propose to apply science and capital and labor to the soil and its products. Chemurgy's challenge to Americans is a challenge to share in wealth by creating wealth."

Mine Blast Kills 45

EXPLOSION of dust in a coal mine on Keen mountain 12 miles from Grundy, Va., buried the night force of 45 men under thousands of tons of slate and rock, wrecked the equipment and filled up the passages to the drifts. Hundreds of rescuers worked frantically for 20 hours and finally recovered the bodies of the victims. Not one of the gang survived. The mine was opened only last November and was considered one of the most modern and safest in the United States.

For Annual Wage Guarantee

WHILE Henry Ford was lunching at the White House by invitation of President Roosevelt, the officials of his company were considering a plan for the guarantee of an annual minimum wage, offered by the Ford Brotherhood of America, an independent labor organization. Establishment of such a plan has not before been asked, but it has been advocated by Mr. Roosevelt and Gov. Frank Murphy of Michigan.

Henry Ford

The brotherhood's goal is at least $1,500 a year for every hourly-rate worker in the mammoth River Rouge plant of the Ford Motor company in Dearborn, where it claims a membership of 21,400. During peak production periods the factory has nearly 90,000 employees.

William S. McDowell, Sr., brotherhood attorney, said that in return for the proposed wage guarantee F. B. A. members would sign an agreement that each would purchase a new car from the company every two years at the same price at which they are sold to dealers.

Hard Fighting in China

JAPAN'S reorganized forces in Shantung province were forcing the Chinese back steadily despite desperate resistance. The invaders even crossed the border into Kiangsu province for the first time. The defenders claimed the Japanese suffered a severe setback north of Taierchwang; they also asserted they had recaptured 15 important towns in Shansi, Honan and Hopei provinces.

One in Seven on Relief

TWELVE million American workers are totally unemployed. More than 10,000,000 persons, or one-seventh of the population of the country, are receiving public assistance from the federal, state or local governments. From 1933 to 1937 inclusive the federal and state governments have spent $19,400,000,000 for work relief and other forms of public assistance.

Harry Hopkins

These far from cheerful figures were in a preliminary report of the senate committee on relief and unemployment submitted by Chairman Byrnes.

At the time the report came in, Harry Hopkins, WPA administrator, was telling the house appropriations committee, holding hearings on the administration's recovery-relief program, that the proposed $1,250,000,000 relief appropriation would enable 200,000 to be added to federal aid rolls, bringing the total number to 2,800,000 persons.

This money, he said, would last only for the first seven months of the coming fiscal year

The senate committee report in general absolved the WPA from charges of graft, waste and inefficiency, but in some respects it sharply criticized the administration's relief policies.

To the discomfiture of administration leaders, the committee recommended that the senate's revenue bill repealing the undistributed profits tax and modifying the capital gains tax be adopted as a major aid to economic recovery. Retention of those taxes is in the house bill backed by President Roosevelt.

GREAT BOOKS

Rash Remark Cost Soldier His Country

By ELIZABETH C. JAMES

LIEUT. PHILLIP NOLAN, main character of Edward Everett Hale's "A Man Without a Country," was stationed in Louisiana about the time that Aaron Burr made his first trip down there. Nolan was young and lonely and was flattered by the attentions of Burr. Soon Nolan's name was linked with that of Burr, and the result was, that without any purpose of disloyalty to his country, Lieutenant Nolan was standing ready for trial by court martial.

In the progress of the trial, the judge asked Nolan if he had anything to say about his loyalty to the United States. Exasperated at the combination of events, Nolan cried out, "Damn the United States! I hope that I never hear the name again."

Elizabeth James

The judge and the court turned white. Withdrawing for discussion, they returned in 15 minutes. The judge read the verdict. "Mr. Nolan, you shall have your wish. The verdict of this court is that you will never again hear the name of your country."

The prisoner was taken aboard an American ship that sailed at once. When that ship had completed its voyage and was again nearing American waters, Mr. Nolan was transferred to another American ship, outward bound.

The prisoner was treated kindly at all times and was given the best that each ship had to offer. At each meal he was invited to dine with an officer who was responsible that no one mention the United States or anything pertaining to it.

Known as "Plain Buttons."

When the imprisonment first began, Nolan treated it with levity, but when it settled down into a routine of ships and voyages that showed no end he became sober, then remorse, then timid as a child. He lived for 50 years on the ships of the American navy, knowing personally more officers and men than any other, individual man.

From time to time during all the years of this strange punishment, there occurred several crises in the life of Nolan. He possessed a beautiful speaking voice and was often invited to read to the assembled officers. One day Nolan was asked to read from the new book by Sir Walter Scott which someone had picked up in port. Everyone was comfortably listening when Nolan reached the passage, "Breathes there a man with soul so dead, who never to himself hath said, 'This is my own, my native land.'" Nolan threw the book into the sea and rushed to his stateroom. He did not reappear for two months.

Acts as Interpreter.

During the long years of inactivity, Nolan mapped out a daily routine for himself. He followed a program of regular study and became proficient in many subjects, including foreign languages. One day the American ship came across a slave ship that had mutinied and was drifting. The slaves were freed of their chains, but they could not talk with the Americans to communicate their desires. Nolan was asked to interpret. The slaves spoke a dialect of Portuguese and they went wild with joy when they heard intelligible words. When the American officer stated that he would take them to a specific point of land and leave them, they set up a wail. No, No. Take us home! And they began to cry out the names of the members of their families that they wanted to see. Nolan was interpreting each side to the other. His voice became huskier and huskier. In desperation to end the painful scene, the American officer cried out, "All right, tell them that I will take them home!"

Nolan was more than 70 years old when he died. One night he sent for one of his friends to come to his stateroom. When the friend entered the stateroom and looked around, he saw what appeared to be a shrine to America. The American eagle had been drawn on the ceiling. On the wall was a picture of Washington, draped in an American flag. On the foot of the bed was a map of America. All of which Nolan had drawn from memory.

HALE'S VARIED CAREER

Edward Everett Hale, whose life was from 1822 to 1909, was one of the most voluminous writers of America; his works would fill ten large volumes. Although he used every type of writing except poetry, his permanent reputation rests on the two short stories, "My Double and How He Undid Me," and "The Man Without a Country."

Hale followed many kinds of work; he was a preacher, a writer, a lecturer, and an active participant in public affairs. Toward the end of his life, he was chaplain to the United States senate.

To Ride the River With

COPYRIGHT WILLIAM MACLEOD RAINE—WNU SERVICE

SYNOPSIS

Ruth Chiswick of L C ranch, obsessed by fear of danger to her outspoken father, Lee, from a band of lawless rustlers headed by Sherm Howard, decides to save him by eloping with young Lou Howard, Sherm's son, and comes to the town of Tail Holt to meet him. While in Yell Sanger's store, a crook-nosed stranger enters, sizes up the situation, and when a drunken cowboy, Jim Pender, rides in and starts shooting, protects Ruth, while Lou Howard hides. Disgusted with Lou's cowardice, Ruth calls off the elopement, and sends the stranger for her father at the gambling house across the street. There the stranger, calling himself Jeff Gray, meets Morgan Norris, a killer, Curly Connor, Kansas, Mile High, Sid Hunt, and other rustlers, and Sherm Howard. Lee Chiswick enters, with his foreman, Dan Brand, and tells Sherm Howard of his orders to shoot rustlers at sight. Jeff Gray returns to Ruth and coldly reassures her of her father's safety. At supper, Ruth introduces Jeff to her father and Brand, and in Sanger's store later she speaks cordially to Curly Connor. Coming out of the store, they are greeted by sudden gunplay, Lee is wounded, and Jeff Gray appears with a smoking revolver. Two days later, Ruth tells her father of her projected elopement and her disillusionment. Later, Ruth meets Jeff Gray, whom she thinks tried to kill her father. Ruth accidentally wounds Jeff. She takes him to Pat Sorley's camp. Ruth is credulous of Jeff's story of shooting at the assassin rather than at her father, and later pleads with Lee to listen to him. When Lee arrives at Pat Sorley's camp, he finds only a note to Pat from Jeff. Meanwhile, Jeff rides into Tail Holt and sends word to Sherm Howard he wants to see him. He shows Howard a poster with his picture, with the name of Clint Doke, wanted as the leader of a band of outlaws. The rest of the band arrives. Jeff shows the outlaws the poster and asks their confidence, and tells them Ruth shot him. They agree to allow him to stay. Another raid on the L C cattle causes Lee to line up his men in pursuit, and to send his son Frank to town to reconnoiter. Pat Sorley finds Gray's horse's hoofmarks on the trail with the suspected rustlers'.

"He didn't whop me," blustered Howard. "Didn't you hear me say he jumped me when I wasn't looking?"

"I heard you," Curly said with a skeptical grin.

"I never saw the day I couldn't comb that bird's feathers for him," the damaged man bragged.

He finished his drink and went away to repair his wounds.

Jeff Gray, watching him, caught the look that passed between young Howard and Morgan Norris. Presently the latter left the bar and sauntered back to the wash-room after Lou.

Gray also drifted in that direction. He sat down at a table close to the washroom wall and began to deal out a hand of solitaire. Intently he listened to catch anything that might be said back of the thin wall.

CHAPTER VI

Frank called "Come in," and Jeff Gray walked into the bedroom.

"What are you doing here?" Frank demanded, jumping to his feet.

"Like to have a few words with you," Gray said.

"I won't talk with you about anything!" Frank cried, excited

"Something important."

"No," the boy exploded.

"Important to you."

"I won't have you here," Chiswick barked at him. "Unless you want trouble, get out."

"I'm going to get out in just a minute. All I want is to tell you something I've heard."

Walking to the table where his gun lay, Frank shouted at him, "Get out, you double-crossing polecat."

Swiftly Gray whipped out his gun. "Don't make a mistake, Chiswick," he advised quietly.

"So that's it," Frank said. "You've come to kill me. Does yore contract call for me, too, as well as Father?"

"You damn fool!" Gray broke out in exasperation. "I never saw so crazy a family. I've come to tell you something, and you're going to listen to me whether you want to or not. Morg Norris and Lou Howard are fixing to rub you out."

"If it were so, would you be here telling me?" Frank asked, with a scornful lift of his lip.

"I am here. Boy, forget what you've got against me. I overheard some talk. You'd better light out of town before they get you."

"Are you afraid if they do you'll lose the reward for me?"

Gray shrugged his shoulders. "Have it yore own way. But listen to what I've got to say. You're going to be watched. They will try to draw you into a fuss. At the right time you'll get it. Understand?"

"I understand you ate supper with my father and tried to gun him from behind afterward," Frank told him wildly. "And that you loaded my sister with lies so she took you to one of our line-camps to be doctored up. We've got yore number, fellow. You were with the thieves who drove our stuff up Box canyon. What's the use of pulling this line of talk when I know you are in cahoots with these rustlers here—with the very scoundrels you are warning me against?"

Gray swept this aside with a gesture of the revolver. "All right. Let it lay at that. I'm a hired killer and a thief. Say I'm paying off a grudge I owe Lou Howard and Morg Norris. That would make me a double double-crosser. Put it any way you like. But get this through yore noodle. If you stick around here another day, you'll go home in a wagon covered by a sheet."

"I wouldn't believe anything in the world you told me," Frank answered.

"Then don't believe it because I tell you. Use yore head. Young Howard is no-account, but right now dangerous as a trapped rat you try to pet. He's mostly vanity, and you've hurt that cruelly. He'd go the limit to get even. Norris is one of these snake-in-the-grass killers, mean all the way through. Boy, I'm going to tell you something I can't prove. Likely you won't believe me. Morg Norris is the man who tried to kill yore father at Tail Holt. I'm 'most sure of that."

"You're one of this outlaw gang, but don't mind throwing down on them when it suits you," jeered Chiswick.

"Smart as a whip, you are," Gray drawled. "You'll never find out whether I am all the kinds of skunk you claim, because inside of 24 hours Morg Norris will blast you off the map."

"Maybe he sent you here to scare me. If he did, you go back and tell him I don't scare worth a cent."

"I give up," Gray said, putting away his weapon. "When a lunkhead has got hell in the neck there's nothing to do about it. You're grown stuff. If you have any last messages you had better write them out. Norris will get you sure. Don't get any other notion. You won't be one-two-three with him."

"No. I didn't really see him—He's lit the hay."

He turned and walked from the room.

Angrily Frank watched him go. An irritable resentment filled young Chiswick. He had an uneasy feeling that he had been an ungrateful boor. This was absurd. Gray was a villain. He had come here for some evil purpose of his own. No point in letting him fool another of the family. His father and sister were enough.

But there was something about the fellow that didn't tie in with the facts. He did not look like a sneaking scoundrel. He was hard as nails, a tough bad hombre. Frank did not doubt he was an outlaw. But everything about him—eyes, bearing, manner—proclaimed him game. His reckless strength gave the lie to all they had found out about him.

Frank decided to take as few chances as possible. He would sidestep any attempt of Norris or Lou Howard to get him into a quarrel. Tonight he would stay in his room.

It came to him later that perhaps Gray had been sent by Sherm Howard in the hope of driving him out of town. There might be something doing they did not want him to know about. He would stick around for another day or two at least.

After supper a Mexican came with a message for him. Lee Chiswick, the man said, was at Yell Sanger's store and wanted to see him at once.

"When did my father reach town?" Frank asked.

The man shook his head. "No sabe, senor. His horses are at the hitchrack in front of Sanger's."

"Not alone, then?"

"Senor Brand is with him."

"Tell him I'll be there pronto."

Frank went back to the bedroom for his hat. He felt as if a load had been rolled from his chest. In spite of what he had told Gray, he had been worried at the warning. He had wanted to light out for the ranch and only his sense of duty was keeping him in town. Now he could pass his fears to broader shoulders. He would not have to play a lone hand any longer.

A man coming into the house stepped to one side to let Frank out. The man was Jeff Gray.

"Wait a minute, Chiswick," he said urgently. "They're aiming to ambush you."

Frank did not answer, nor did he look back. He was not going to let this fellow influence him. But the heart under his ribs began to pound furiously. Involuntarily he quickened his pace.

"Come back, you fool!" the crook-nosed man ordered. "They're posted in the cottonwoods over there."

Chiswick did not believe him, but a queer chill ran up and down his spine. He kept going, following an adobe wall parallel to the road.

The angry bark of a revolver sounded. Frank whirled, dragging out his weapon. Swiftly he fired at Gray. He knew the shot had come from the gun of Gray.

From the cottonwoods across the road a rifle cracked. Another boomed before the echo of the first explosion had died.

Frank flung himself at the adobe wall and clambered over it, dropping the forty-four from his hand as he swarmed up. The boy hesitated an instant. Should he go back for his revolver or run the great risk of being caught defenseless? He heard the slap of running feet. If he went back over the wall, he would be the target of several gunmen. Nothing could save him. He must keep going.

In the darkness a building loomed before him. It was a large adobe stable, and it filled the whole back of the enclosure. Frank hesitated. He dared not let himself be trapped in the stable. Better go over one of the side walls.

He caught sight of a figure on top of the wall. A man was astride of it. His gun flashed twice. Then he had jumped down into the yard and was running toward Frank.

Amazement filled the mind of Chiswick. The man had not fired at him, but at someone out in the road.

"This way. Into the stable. They'll get you out in the open."

Frank followed him into the building. Why he did so he could not tell, for the man in front of him was Jeff Gray.

"Up the stairs," Gray ordered, stooping to pick something from the ground.

The two men ran up to the loft.

Gray handed Chiswick a crowbar. "Get to work and knock a hole through the wall," he said. "We're going out that way."

Frank pushed aside the hay and began to drive the crowbar into the crumbly adobe bricks. At each thrust of the pointed iron the soft wall disintegrated into sand and straw.

Footsteps sounded below. Someone shouted up a command.

"Come down from there, Chiswick, or we'll shoot you into a rag doll."

In a husky voice Frank did not recognize, Gray called down an answer. "Three of us are up here. We aim to hold the fort. Don't monkey with us unless a lot of you want to be rubbed out."

"Who are you?" the same man called to them.

"L C men," Gray replied, still in the heavy voice. "All well armed."

"Send down Chiswick and we'll let the rest of you go."

"Go chase yoreself through the brush."

A bullet crashed up through the floor. Gray fired one down in the direction from which it had come. There was a whispered conference below.

"Better give up," the spokesman advised. "We'll sure smoke you out."

Gray played for time. The crowbar was tearing into the wall.

"Will you promise not to hurt us if we do?" he asked.

"Sure. What would we want to hurt you for? We got a warrant for the arrest of Chiswick for disturbing the peace."

"Give us time to talk it over."

"Well, hurry up. And no monkey business. What's that noise up there?"

There was a rush up the stairs. In the darkness the defenders had all the advantage. Gray pistol-wiped the first man and sent him tumbling back against the others. Frank drove the point of the crowbar into the midriff of another. The attackers fell back in disorder. Hurriedly they scampered out of the barn. One of them had to be dragged.

"Back soon," Gray said grimly. "How are you getting along with that exit-hombres hole?"

With the sleeve of his shirt Frank wiped away the perspiration dripping into his eyes. It was hot in the hay under the roof. "Give me ten minutes more," he panted.

"You don't get ten minutes," Gray told him, and he handed his revolver to the younger man. "Give me that crowbar awhile."

With short swift drives the red-haired man slashed at the wall. The point of the crowbar went through. The hole grew larger.

"Why not ten minutes?" Frank asked. "Think they'll rush us again?"

"Not none. They will set fire to the hay below and burn us out."

"Good God! We'd better go down and try to hold them back from getting into the barn."

"I wouldn't say so. Three-four would get killed, including maybe me. We'll just about make it. The creek is below. We'll drop down in the brush and slip away—if we're lucky."

"And if we're not?" Frank asked.

His companion pried out an adobe brick. "I've been in a lot worse tights than this," he said.

Frank had been slammed from the saddle to the ground many times. He had been in stampedes and blizzards. These seemed to him trifling hazards compared to the danger he was in now.

"Wish it was lighter, so you could see better," he replied, emulating the coolness of the other.

"It will be light enough soon, if I don't miss my guess."

Gray stooped and worked at a loose brick with his hands.

Someone ran into the barn. From the top of the stairway Chiswick fired.

"Get him?" inquired Gray.

"No. I didn't really see him . . . He's lit the hay."

The flame leaped up. Through the loose floor it caught the hay in the loft. Frank tried to stamp out the fire. A brick crashed down from the wall into the creek outside.

"The hole is big enough," Gray cried. "Slide out, fellow."

"You first," Chiswick urged.

The smoke was pouring up in great waves.

"Do as I say," the older man ordered.

Frank wriggled through and dropped. The heat and smoke were almost unbearable. Gray worked his legs and body into the open. He dropped, landed on a stone, and rolled over and over into the bed of the dry creek.

"All right?" Chiswick asked, in a whisper.

"Yes," Gray snapped. "This way."

He ran crouching along the bed. The brush along the bank protected them from observation. Leaping flames from the stable drove back the darkness. The fugitives were brought up by a barbed-wire fence stretching across the creek. They crept between the strands.

They stood in a clump of mesquite on the edge of the creek.

History of Earth Divided Into Five "Eras," Seven "Ages" and 22 Periods

The divisions of time established by geologists are based upon the formations of strata and the advents of different forms of animal life. The history of the earth is divided into five "eras," seven "ages," 22 "periods," and the last two periods are subdivided into seven epochs. These divisions, proceeding from the fifth downward to the first, states a writer in the Cleveland Plain Dealer, are as follows:

Fifth—Psychozoic era, age of man, human period, and recent epoch.

Fourth—Cenozoic era, age of mammals, embracing the quaternary period, which comprehends the terrace, Champlain, and glacial epochs, and the tertiary period, which comprehends the pliocene, miocene, and eocene epochs.

Third—Mesozoic, or middle, era the age of reptiles, the cretaceous, jurassic and triassic periods.

Second—Paleozoic era, the carboniferous age, or age of acrogens and amphibians; the Devonian age, or age of fishes; the silurian age, or age of invertebrates, or mollusks—the names of the fourteen periods into which these ages are divided are not in common use.

First—Archean, or eozoic era; the archean age, and the Huronian and Laurentian periods. The term is restricted by the United States Geological survey and most American geologists to the earlier portion of the pre-Cambrian, represented in the record chiefly by metamorphosed igneous rocks, but subordinately by metamorphosed sedimentary beds. The Archean rocks contain carbonaceous material, iron ores, limestones, etc., which probably indicate the existence of life, but no fossils have been found. The duration of the era during which the Archean rocks were formed was very great, possibly exceeding all subsequent time.
