Extravagance of Speed

The extravagance of speed, a new safe driving appeal, that strikes directly at the motorist's pocketbook is being shown by The Etna Casualty & Surety Company at the annual convention of the American Road Builders Association being held this week.

Illuminated mechanical displays, prepared from Etna's recently released safe driving booklet, "Are You Paying A Speed Tax", effectively illustrates that excessive speed not only endangers life and property, but also adds a direct tax to operating costs of a car.

Included in the displays are animated charts showing how gasoline and oil consumption increase with the rate of speed, and how fast driving causes excessive wear on brakes and tires.

In addition to the speed tax demonstration, the Etna exhibit includes the internationally known driving tests for determining reaction time and steering ability, a newly devised Clarometer for measuring susceptibility to head-glare and a demonstration of the Harger Drunkometer which is being used by police departments in determining intoxication.

Why of Hollywood

Movie companies first settled in Hollywood in 1910 for two reasons. Early movies were made in sunlight, and Hollywood, then a small suburb of Los Angeles, offered plenty. Secondly, that region had a greater variety of free scenery than any other in the United States. Today Hollywood, while officially the "movie capital," is well settled and many studios have located in Los Angeles proper or in other suburbs.

Does a Big Job

Advertising of canned fruits and vegetables created demand, produced competition, made large and economical production possible, provided markets for the farmers and owners of orchards, and jobs for many thousands of people. The consumer profits by better quality and lower prices. Without advertising, these things could not have happened.

AROUND the HOUSE

Items of Interest to the Housewife

A Winter Salad.—Chopped raw cabbage, apple and raisins, served with mayonnaise, make a delicious winter salad.

Hanging Out Clothes.—Before hanging clothes on the line in freezing weather, put pins on clothes in the house, then snap on line with double clothes pins.

Judging Cod.—Cod should be judged by the redness of the gills, the whiteness, stiffness and firmness of the flesh, and the clear freshness of the eyes. These are the infallible proofs of its being good. The whole fish should be thick and firm.

Nut Cakes.—One-half cup of butter, three-quarter cup sugar, one-third cup milk, two eggs, one and one-third cups flour, two teaspoons baking powder, one-half teaspoon salt, one cup almonds, blanched and cut in pieces. Cream butter, add sugar and continue beating. Add well beaten yolks and then milk, sifted dry ingredients and nuts alternately. Fold in stiffly beaten whites. Bake in individual tins 20 minutes in a hot oven. Plain icing, sugar or nuts can finish off cup cakes with the proper touch.

To Bake Potatoes.—Potatoes will bake more quickly if cut in halves. Melt a little butter in a baking pan, place halved potatoes cut side down in it and bake.

Work on Yourself

Deep-Focus Quakes Not So Destructive as Surface Types

By DR. FRANK THONE
Washington. — Deep-focus earthquakes, disturbances whose actual centers are scores or hundreds of miles underground, account for about ten per cent of all recorded shocks. They release tremendous amounts of energy, yet seldom cause the death and destruction for which the more numerous surface earthquakes are responsible.

A summary study of deep-focus earthquakes has recently been made by Drs. Andrew Leith, of the University of Wisconsin, and J. A. Sharpe, of the Los Angeles laboratory of the Western Geophysical company. They are convinced that except for factors introduced by the great depths themselves, there is no essential difference between the deep and the shallow earthquakes.

Two Great Earthquake Zones. Both types occur in the same general regions of the earth—one a great horseshoe-shaped zone roughly arching about the Pacific, the other stretching in a long line from Portugal to Formosa. Both types vary greatly in amount of energy released. Due largely to their great depths, the deep class of earthquakes have surface results more widespread and diffuse, hence less destructive, than the shallow-focus disturbances.

Deep-focus earthquakes may occur at all depths from 100 kilometers beneath the surface to 700 kilometers—the greatest depth for any earthquake thus far on record.

Where the vast stresses needed to power such earthquakes come from is still pretty much of a riddle. Cycles of deep earthquakes have been correlated with the forces resulting from the moon's movements and other outside factors, but the stresses involved in these are so small that their action is undoubtedly that of triggers rather than of main cause.

Alaska Flowers Reveal Prehistoric Villages

Washington.—Flowers that bloom in Alaska can help explorers detect prehistoric American villages, hidden underground.

Importance of this botanic clue in re-discovering the past is stressed by Dr. Ales Hrdlicka of the Smithsonian institution in a report to Science.

At the village trash heaps and ruins, the earth is mixed with animal bones, shells, ashes, rotted wood, and organic refuse, and in this distinctly different soil spring up plants different from those dominant in the neighborhood. At Agatu, at the western end of the Aleutian island chain, Dr. Hrdlicka found village sites covered with high stub grass on the slopes, and a thicket of wild parsnip, monkshood and other flowering plants over the top.

In locating hundreds of these sites for archeological exploration, Dr. Hrdlicka learned to detect an old village site, by its plant covering, as far away as he could see it clearly.

Diver 420 Feet Down, Pressure 320 Tons

Milwaukee.—Max E. Nohl, diver, who descended to a depth of 420 feet in Lake Michigan recently, withstood a pressure on his body of 320 tons more at that depth than he did at the surface.

Atmospheric pressure of 15 pounds to the square inch adds up to about twelve tons when all the 3,500 square inches of the average man's skin are considered. At 420 feet the pressure is about 197 pounds to the square inch.

Dissolved gases in the human blood stream and body cells enable us to resist the pressure of the atmosphere. At shallow depths, compressed air helps a diver to resist water pressure, but as the pressure increases, nitrogen from the air dissolves in the blood stream, causing trouble if the diver comes to the surface too rapidly. "Bends," or caisson disease, a common and serious illness of divers, is caused by collecting nitrogen bubbles in the capillaries. These bubbles act as blood clots.

Leadleaf for Paints

Cambridge, Mass.—Lead, long used in paint in the form of its oxides, is now coming into use as the main ingredient of a protective paint that is somewhat like familiar aluminum paint. The lead is in the form of foil broken up into fine individual flakes and the vehicle employed is tung oil or some synthetic resin.

Early Man's Relics Found in Brittany by Two Scientists

Paris.—Traces of early man's existence have turned up in a new part of the world—Brittany, that upper left-hand corner of France that is washed by the English channel on the north and the Atlantic ocean on the west.

Evidence that prehistoric human beings lived or visited in this region, in the days when crude stone tools were man's most typical handiwork, is beginning to come to light.

The first discovery, made recently, consisted of such tools, some about 30,000 years old, others perhaps 60,000.

These blasted the theory that human beings never reached this part of Europe in their wanderings until the New Stone age, a mere 8,000 years ago.

Now two French archeologists, M. and Mme. St. Just Pequant, have searched small islands off the Brittany coast, where prehistoric man's relics, if any, would escape the destruction wrought by farming and other activities of civilization.

Camping Ground Found. On one barren islet called Tevlec they have found what they wanted. It is a camping ground where prehistoric men lived, and buried their dead. These people were not so ancient as the ones whose stone tools were found on the Brittany mainland. They lived in the Mesolithic, or Middle Stone, age, sandwiched between the Old Stone age and the New, making them perhaps 15,000 years old.

The French archeologists found quantities of the kitchen refuse of those Middle Stone age people, including the bones of animals they ate, shells, fragments of broken pottery dishes. Their flint implements have also come to light. They left no trace of houses, and probably lived in tents.

Subsea Canyons Clue Found in Great Lakes

Urbana, Ill.—Ice-carved lake basins in North America and Europe may supply clues that will solve the problem of the subsea canyons which have excited the interest of geologists recently. In reviewing the evidence of ice-cutting of the basins of the Great Lakes and other lake basins, Dr. Francis P. Shepard, University of Illinois geologist, points out that an average thickness of the continental ice of four miles or more during the most recent glacial period would account for both the cutting of the deep lake basins in the northern parts of Europe and America and a lowering of sea level sufficient to account for the submerged canyons.

Supporting the theory that the basins of the Great Lakes were largely cut out by glacial ice, Dr. Shepard cites the evidence of large amounts of fresh rock piled on the southern shores of the lakes. The ice came from the north, and the rock almost certainly came from somewhere in the present lake basins.

Fuzzless Peach Developed After Years of Research

Blacksburg, Va.—Peaches with smooth, waxy skins like plums, quite free from the fuzz which many persons find objectionable, can now be grown, as a result of a quarter of a century of patient breeding work by Dr. Fred W. Hofmann, research horticulturist of the Virginia agricultural experiment station here.

Dr. Hofmann crossed plum-peach with Elberta, and then crossed the hybrid offspring with the J. H. Hale peach, believed to be a seedling variety of Elberta. Further breeding produced, finally, the peach Dr. Hofmann was looking for: waxy-skinned, fuzzless, good-sized, round and evenly shaped. The flesh is yellowish-cream colored, changing to reddish around the pit, stone free and small, flavor and texture superior. The skin color is reddish orange, yellow, with a wash of attractive dark carmine.

Don't Talk So Loud When Speaking to the Deaf

Iowa City, Iowa.—Deaf people do not enjoy loud talk.

When allowed to adjust the loudness of the voice to which they are listening, individuals with normal ears prefer to have it 38 decibels, or loudness units, above the level at which it is audible. Hard-of-hearing persons will adjust the same speech at a loudness only 23 to 20 decibels above their threshold of hearing. This was discovered in experiments at the University of Iowa by Dr. Noble H. Kelley.

Deaf ears function differently from normal ears, Dr. Kelley found. In speaking to those with normal hearing you will have most difficulty in making your consonant sounds understood; vowel sounds are most intelligible. For the deafened, the consonants are recognized practically as easily as the vowels.

WHO'S NEWS THIS WEEK... By Lemuel F. Parton

NEW YORK.—One of this department's favorite monarchs has long been Jeff Davis, king of the hoboes of America, who now leads his following of nearly 1,000,000 in a plan to erect a national memorial to John Howard Payne, author of "Home, Sweet Home."

Hoboes Will Pay Honor to Bard of Home. There is perhaps a bit of personal pride involved, as your correspondent helped establish the dynasty. That was many years ago, when a series of hobo stories in the Chicago Tribune elevated Dr. Ben Reitman to the kingship. Dr. Reitman, however, was a backslider, turning at first furtively and then brazenly to regular work, went into politics in Chicago and became a cautious and solvent citizen, too fat to ride the rods.

I saw him last at the house of the late Jack London, in Sonoma county, Calif., and, if I remember correctly, Mr. London reproached him as one recreant to his ideals and in danger of succumbing to industry and ambition. Until a few years ago, I used to get letters from the hoboes of America, on letter-heads like those of any national bank, carrying the names of the "jungle judges," "shacks" (organizers) and "track walkers" and "supreme knights of the road."

They had to do with some misunderstanding in the organization over the lingering sovereignty of Dr. Reitman, but that is all cleared up now. Mr. Davis' rule is undisputed and his name appears on the letter-head as "Jungle Judge, King of the Hoboes, elected for Life."

Mr. Davis, now fifty-three years old, has covered his first 1,000,000 miles on the road, and plans to start his second million on an organizing trip in Europe, early this year. His father, James Davis, who died in Cincinnati a year ago at the age of ninety, had been vaguely identified as a newspaper man, working on several Cincinnati newspapers, but with no news as to what department.

Young Jeff, born in Cincinnati, started rambling when he was thirteen and now fetches up with a round forty years on the road. Bald and genial, working harder at the hobo trade than do most men on their regular jobs, he campaigns for better migrating and loafing conditions for his subjects.

He wants the railroads to establish a one-cent-a-mile rate for box car passengers. He says the plan has worked fine in France. He moves about the country, fighting the bum blockades set up by various states. He denounces the "fuzzy-tails" in his following—hoboes who talk a lot but never toss anything into the jungle stew.

CORRESPONDENTS on the British-Italian radio war front in Arabia report a victory in the first engagement for Abdul Wahab, the desert Rudy Vallee, crooning for Italy. The sheiks, according to news accounts, tuned out Britain's broadcast, which included news of a death sentence for an Arab found in possession of arms, and tuned in Italy's cheerful crooner.

The Italians also were one-up on the Britons, due to the fact that the former had supplied many of the radio sets and taken precautions to rig them against Britain's thirty-one-meter wavelength.

Sir John C. W. Reith, grim, purposeful and, incidentally, Scottish, director general of the British Broadcasting corporation, led off for England, paced by Big Ben and "God Save the King." Abdul countered with "Just a Little Oasis for Two," and "Aldebaran and You," in Arabic. It was no contest after that, say the news reports.

Sir John's last appearance was at Edward's solemn valedictory. The tall, bald, frothy mogul of British Broadcasting, lord of the empire air waves, takes the microphone only when imperial interests demand it. Recently he said: "To set out to give the public what it wants, as the saying is, is a dangerous and fallacious policy."

Those who know him say he will go on giving the Arabs what he thinks they ought to want, and probably get away with it. He has been lambasted as a dictator all over the empire, but has ridden through labor and conservative administrations and keeps the B. B. C. steadily advancing.

Lord of Air Keeps B.B.C. Out in Front. He is the most inaccessible man in England, forty-seven years old, the son of an old-line Scotch clergyman, trained in engineering at the Royal College of Glasgow, successful as an engineer in London, before becoming general manager of the B. B. C. in 1922. His salary is $25,000 a year.

Explains Who Can Be a Dietitian

Necessary Qualifications Set Fourth in Summary

By EDITH M. BARBER
DIETITIAN! The word is so new that it is not to be found in all the abridged editions of dictionaries. In some, the preferred spelling is dietician, although the members of the profession all use the "t." At one of the sessions of the recent annual meeting of the American Dietetic association, Dr. W. T. Sanger, president of the Medical College of Virginia, chose as his subject, "The Importance of the Trained Dietitian."

Because I have had in the last few months several inquiries as to what training is necessary for the dietitic profession, it may be well to state that every member of this association must have a B. S. degree with specified courses in nutrition, chemistry and the other sciences as well as courses in food preparation and selection. All graduates who plan to become hospital dietitians must have courses in hospital administration and serve six months as student dietitians in hospitals whose courses have been approved by the American Dietetic association. Only students of accredited colleges are accepted for these courses.

There are, however, teachers, food writers, social workers and home economics women who have entered the business field, eligible for membership in this association. They must, however, have just as much scientific training and a certain amount of practical experience to obtain this membership.

It should be noted that no course which guarantees to turn out dietitians in one year should be considered by any one who wishes to earn living through a profession. Hospitals and other organizations which employ trained women use the standards of the American Dietetic association.

Something for Everybody

SEW-YOUR-OWN spells economy and a better wardrobe for all the family, as these patterns indicate. You can sew at home during brisk winter days and have a new dress for all the family in no time at all and at very little expense. When you sew, you spend only a fraction of what you would usually pay for dresses of this character. Enlist the family's enthusiasm, and you can make winter days cheery for all of you by planning something new to wear.

For Big Sister. A charming Princess frock on trim and tailored lines. Note that it buttons from neck to hem and that the waistline is belted to add a snug line. This is a young-looking dress with plenty of swish for the most fashion-knowing college girl. Make it up for Spring in thin wool, alpaca or print crepe. You'll like its clean-cut lines.

For Little Sister. A copy of the popular Big Apple frock with the same flaring skirt, fitted bodice and short, puffed sleeves. The dress that your little girl will adore wearing, for she likes these copy-cat fashions. Make it for Spring school days of chambray, percale or cotton broadcloth. For immediate wear, try it in serge or flannel. It is a dress that has flaring, graceful lines.

For Mother. This slenderizing coat frock is one which you will find becoming and comfortable to wear. Designed on Princess lines with long surplice collar and two button closing at waistline, it is as easy to get into as a coat and as easy to wear. Make it up in rayon crepe, alpaca or one of the better cottons. You'll use it again and again throughout the coming season.

The Patterns. Pattern 1347 is designed for sizes 14 to 42 (32 to 42 bust). Size

Favorite Recipe of the Week
Baked Peaches for Garnish or Dessert.

CANNED peach halves baked in their own syrup with the addition of sugar, butter and a suspicion of cinnamon make an ideal fruit to feature with the meat course or they are equally delicious to have for dessert. Serve them hot or cold but hot fruit during the winter months is especially good.

Baked Peaches.
1 No. 2 1/2 can peach halves
3 tablespoons butter
1/2 cup brown sugar
Cinnamon

Pour the peaches and the syrup into a shallow pan, a cake pan is convenient to use. Turn the peach halves so the cut side is up. Sprinkle the sugar over the peaches, place a piece of butter in each peach where the pit was removed and sprinkle them ever so lightly with cinnamon. Bake in a hot oven (450 degrees) until the sugar on the edges of the peach begins to brown, or about 30 minutes. If you wish a more pronounced brown edge, set the pan of peaches under the broiler for a few minutes.

Canned pear halves are delicious prepared in this same manner.

If the fruit is served as a dessert, plain cream is nice to serve with it.

Greatest Man. The greatest man is he who chooses the right with invincible resolution; who resists the sorest temptations from within and without; who is calmest in storms, and whose reliance on truth, on virtue, on God, is the most unfaltering.—Channing

ARE YOU ONLY A 3/4 WIFE?

Men can never understand a three-quarter wife—a wife who is lovable for three weeks of the month—but a full one for the fourth. No matter how your back aches—no matter how loudly your nerves scream—don't take it out on your husband. For three generations one woman has told another how to go "smiling through" with Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It helps Nature tone up the system, thus lessening the discomforts from the functional disorders which women must endure. Make a note NOW to get a bottle of Pinkham's today. IT COULD SAVE YOU from your druggist—more than a million women have written letters reporting benefit. Why not you? LYDIA E. PINKHAM'S VEGETABLE COMPOUND!

Minnesota's 100 Years Traced to Indian Pact

St. Paul.—Recent celebration of the one hundredth anniversary of what is called the founding of the state of Minnesota recalls the bargain the white man drove with the Indians for a wedge of land between the St. Croix and Mississippi rivers.
The wedge was ceded to the United States by the Sioux in consideration for annuities of food, goods and miscellaneous provisions. In addition, the government took over outstanding debts of the Indians concerned.
This wedge was the first land in Minnesota to be opened to white settlement and is considered the "origin" of the state.

Bonuses for Larger Nazi Families Proves Failure

Berlin.—How economic factors are frustrating Nazi efforts to increase the German population by paying marriage bonuses and giving special concessions for large families was revealed in the official vital statistics for the first half of the current year. A decline which set in during the first half of 1936 was maintained this year when the number of births was 4,000 fewer than during the first half of 1935. The number of marriages also steadily has declined since the boom year, 1934, when they numbered 338,083 for the first six months. From January to June of this year there were only 294,967.

Governor Tingley said today that as state chairman of the celebrations for the President's birthday he wanted to express his thanks to every person who helped make the celebrations a money raising success.

"I don't know yet how much New Mexico raised, but all reports indicate a new record," the Governor said. "I want to thank all the county and local committees for their fine work and I want to thank every person who donated to the fund."

The governor urged that chairmen send their funds immediately to New York to aid in a quick audit of funds.

"No funds will be distributed until a complete audit is made," the governor said. "And the sooner this is accomplished the campaign to fight infantile paralysis will get under way."

ALADDIN LIGHT SAVES EYESIGHT

Getting Lessons Made More Pleasant

Here's a school girl's own comment on Aladdin light: "It has helped my school work by creating a desire to study. What student likes dim light?" No wonder teachers say that their brightest pupils come from Aladdin homes. Aladdin lamps help avoid eye strain, which to so many thousands of rural folks has brought the expense of an eye specialist, and glasses; and often permanent injury to eyes.

Modern White Light

Fills Your Rooms Pays for Itself... Aladdin brings brightness and happiness into homes... Restful light for those who want to read, sew or study, and for the smaller children to enjoy their games. It is not surpassed by electric light for whiteness and steadiness. Aladdin runs 50 hours on one gallon of ordinary coal oil (kerosene), gives a whole evening of light for about a penny's worth of oil. It's so safe a child can operate it. No noise, pumping up or pressure. Not smelly or smoky. The colorful new Aladdin shades decorate a room by night or day.

OIL LEADERS CONVICTED

Government Wins Anti-Trust Case . . . A. E. Morgan Opposes President's Plan for More TVA Set-Ups

Senator Allen J. Ellender of Louisiana is here seen in action as he established a record for long talking in the senate, at least in modern times. Engaged in the filibuster against the anti-lynching bill, this successor of Huey Long spoke for 27 hours and 45 minutes—and he confined himself strictly to his views on the measure.

Huge Loss Laid to C.I.O.

FROM the lips of Mayor J. K. Carson of Portland, Ore., the senate's joint committee on commerce and labor learned that the activities of the C. I. O. and Harry Bridges, its leader in that region, have cost the people there more than a billion dollars in the last three years. This was due to strikes and maritime tieups.

Harry Bridges

"Bridges cannot even vote in this country," said Mayor Carson, "yet he exercises more power over the maritime industry of the Pacific coast than all the ship owners and all the seamen combined."

Bridges, who came from Australia, is not naturalized. He is a Communist and his deportation has been requested by the inspectors of the bureau of immigration and naturalization, but issuance of a warrant has been prevented by Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins.

Mayor Carson said the shipping and fruit industries of the West Coast had suffered not only because of maritime strikes but also because of tie-ups caused by the longshoremen's unions, which are controlled by Bridges.

"The fruit industry is endangered by the present attitude of maritime labor," Mayor Carson said. "The continued disruption of deliveries has resulted in a lack of confidence in our ability to fulfill orders, causing us to lose our European markets to Argentina and South Africa."

Every Tenth Worker Idle

STATISTICS released by Secretary of Labor Perkins showed that every tenth worker in the country is without employment. Her findings were disclosed as the senate unemployment and relief committee called state and local relief administrators to testify on increased demands for aid during the recession. Approximately 1,102,000 persons filed unemployment compensation claims for benefits during the first week of January when 21 states and the District of Columbia began this new plan, the secretary reported.

Chautemps in Again

FRANCE'S latest governmental crisis ended with the return of Camille Chautemps to the post of premier. He and his Popular Front cabinet had resigned because of financial and labor troubles. Several old timers tried in vain to form a new government and Chautemps was again called on for the job. His new cabinet was much like the former one and it was believed it would not need the support of the communists. Eighteen of the twenty ministers were Radical-Socialists. Chautemps was drawing up plans for extensive social reforms.

Camille Chautemps

Continuation of France's vast armament program seemed assured, what with Foreign Minister Yvon Delbos and Defense Minister Edouard Deladier retaining their posts in the new cabinet.

More Woe for Jews

RUMANIA'S government, headed by Premier Octavian Goga, is so anti-Semitic that thousands of Jews are seeking means of escape from the country. Jewish committees visited foreign consulates in Bucharest to ask about the possibility of emigration to Brazil, Ethiopia, Madagascar, Mexico, or Australia. One of the latest moves of the government is the issuance of orders that make virtually impossible the intermarriage of Jews and gentiles.

All alien Jews not engaged in farming were given 30 days in which to quit Ecuador, under a decree by the provisional military government of Col. Alberto Enriquez.

Egypt's King Weds

FAROUK, king of Egypt, was married in Cairo to Miss Fraida Zulfikar as cannon boomed a salute. The city was thronged with natives, but they had no glimpse of the bride, because the Moslem clergy were in control and would not permit her even to be present at the ceremony. They did, however, consent to a semi-public reception afterward in the Abdine palace at which the seventeen-year-old queen made an appearance.

Stalin Checks the Purge

NOT a single bit of legislative work was accomplished by the first session of the new parliament in Soviet Russia. But there was a lot of speech making, and external enemies, especially Japan, were denounced and defied. Dictator Josef Stalin, through the central committee, ordered an end to the mass expulsion of Communist party members, which has usually been followed by death, banishment or loss of jobs.

Pravda, the Communist party newspaper, indicated satisfaction with the results of the purge, but assailed "rotten leaders" who played into the enemy's hands. "Under the mask of false vigilance agents of Fascism sought to break up and out from the ranks our bolshevik personnel," Pravda said.

As to Brocades and Embroideries

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

If YOU happen to have a bit of choice brocade or rare embroidery perhaps treasured for years among wrappings of tissue paper, the psychological moment has arrived in which to make use of it. You will be right in fashion if you wear a dress, a wrap, a waistcoat mayhap, a hat or carry a bag that is made of rich brocade or if not brocade then try a touch of Oriental embroidery to give high-style accent.

The best of it is if your fair ancestresses failed to you their brocades or embroideries you can be in vogue regardless of their sins of omission, for the craze for these feminine vanities is flourishing to an extent that you can find the most exquisite weaves and in endless variety throughout the silk showings now on display.

Perhaps one of the most interesting chapters that has to do with the story of brocades relates to their importance as a medium for handsome evening coats. The model portrayed above to the right in the illustration is typical of the wraps best-dressed women are wearing to formal midwinter dinners and theaters, the opera and other gala events. This princess evening wrap is of black and silver brocade with silver fox collar. A black sequin and red feather ornament is worn in the hair.

For party frocks brocades are ever so fashionable. In order to emphasize the exquisite beauty of the fabric the styling is simple at all times. For their coming-out parties many debutantes chose to wear brocade the winter and for mid-season festive occasion brocade is an outstanding favorite. Shown below to the left is a very charming gown of luxurious blue metallized weighted silk brocade in calla lily pattern with bouffant skirt and the new camisole and halter décolletage.

There are endless ways in which brocades are being used other than for entire gowns and wraps. One of the smartest fashions that we know is the tailored waistcoat of upholstery brocade done in tiny neat colorful design.

Volumes could also be written about the handsome embroideries that are playing so spectacular a role in current fashion. Perhaps the most exciting news is in regard to the perfectly charming little hats turned out for midseason wear. These hats are "darling" to wear with winter coats and they also stress the trend to Chinese influence in resort millinery. The hats pictured are representative types of this new trend, by Louislander. The one above is a gold velvet-surfaced knitted silk jersey draped turban with band of antique Chinese silk embroidery said to be from a lord's coat over a hundred years old. The gloves are gold colored to match the hat. Note the silver Geril collar. The other model is of white velvet-surfaced knitted silk jersey with high front cuff of antique Chinese silk embroidery. The Chinese bracelet which adds such an effective note is wide in accordance with fashion's demand.

"AT HOME" IN LACE

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

House coats, or hostess gowns, have been steadily increasing in importance in the feminine wardrobe, and it is not enough these days to have just a negligee. The idea of the house coat has taken vast hold in the realm of "at home" fashions. The lace itself, which makes this delectable garment, is so luxurious looking it calls for simplest-cut lines sans superfluous trimming. The model pictured is cut on fairly tailored lines, with zipper fastening from neck to hem and little turn-back collar.

BLUE WILL LEAD AS COLOR FOR SPRING

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

From a study of fashion trends here and abroad, a group of stylists and merchandise executives from department stores and buying offices, has decided that blues will be the most prevalent volume color in coats and suits purchased in retail stores next spring. After the blues, feminine shoppers are expected to buy their coats and suits in these colors, named in order of their anticipated popularity: beige, tans and browns; black, rose tones, gray, violet tones, gold and green.

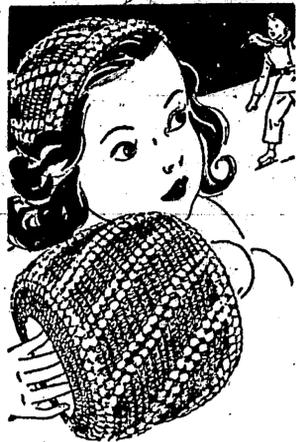

In strictly dress coats and suits, black is predicted as the most popular color for spring, with navy, beige, brown and gray obtaining customer acceptance in that order. Beiges and tans are looked upon to be the leading volume shades in casual coats and suits, with blues, black, gray, gold, violet tones and green following in that order. Beiges, tans and coppers are expected to be seen most frequently in sports type coats and suits, but blues, rose tones, violet tones, gray, and green will also lead in customer demand.

Navy is singled out to be the predominant volume color in spring silk dresses. Next to navy, women's preferences in silk dresses will run to black, blues other than navy, beiges, rose, copper and lilac. Colors for wool dresses are listed for consumer acceptance in this order: blues, beiges and tans, black, violet tones, gold and green.

Pleats and Stripes Pleats and stripes are fashion-right regardless of whether they appear alone or together.

Short Jacket A short jacket that deviates from the rule of boleros resembles a brief tuxedo.

Edward W. Pickard SUMMARIZES THE WORLD'S WEEK

"Guilty" Is Oil Verdict

UNCLE SAM won the long drawn out trial of oil concerns and their executives before Federal Judge Stone in Madison, Wis. Sixteen oil companies operating in 10 Middle West states and 30 individuals were found guilty of conspiring to violate the Sherman anti-trust law. Prominent among the men convicted are Henry M. Dawes of Pure Oil, E. G. Seubert of Standard Oil of Indiana, Jacob France of Mid-Continent Petroleum, I. A. Shaughnessy of Globe Oil and Refining, Dan Moran of Continental Oil and Frank Phillips of Phillips Petroleum.

Formal motion for a new trial was filed but will not be ruled on for several weeks. Probably the case will be taken to the Supreme court.

The defendants were accused of entering into a secret agreement to purchase quantities of oil from independent oil producers at artificially high prices. These prices were then quoted as the market price to jobbers, who had signed contracts with the defendants to purchase the fuel at the spot (or daily) market price. The defense denied having artificially influenced the market and pleaded unsuccessfully that the companies merely bought distress gasoline to save the independent refiners from failure and did so in accordance with a policy approved by President Roosevelt and Interior Secretary Harold I. Ickes.

Huge Relief Expenditures

SOCIAL securities board announced that government agencies spent $2,135,417,000 for public relief in the first eleven months of 1937, a decline of $251,021,000 from the corresponding period of 1936.

Payments to relief recipients in November were $129,071,000, a drop of $30,000,000 from November, 1936, but $15,000,000 more than in October, 1937.

The figures include payments to recipients under all types of public assistance.

Morgan Hits Power Plan

ARTHUR E. MORGAN, chairman of the Tennessee Valley authority, in secret testimony before the house rivers and harbors committee, declared his opposition to the President's program for the establishment of other watersheds of agencies patterned after the TVA. Water power development, he asserted, "has become an obsession with some men."

In place of the regional resources, A. E. Morgan agencies proposed by Mr. Roosevelt, Morgan recommended that interstate water control districts be set up. "It would seem better," said he, "to deal with the ownership of remaining water power resources in separate legislation rather than to encumber general water control legislation with the problem, possibly with the result of defeating that more inclusive purpose."

"No More Regulation Laws"

GEORGE H. DAVIS, president of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, sent to the senate unemployment committee a plea for assurances that there will be passed at this session of congress no more laws for regulating business. "The real cause of the present recession," said Davis, "is lack of confidence in the future, caused cumulatively by the passage of laws culminating in the undistributed profits tax and the threat of the wages and hours bill."

There is no question in the minds of business men, he said, that these steps would restore confidence:

- 1. Repeal of the undivided profits tax
2. A sharp modification in the amount of capital gains tax.
3. Liberalization of the security exchange and commodity exchange rules to provide more liquid markets.
4. Assurance that, at this session at least, there will be no additional laws passed further regulating business, such as the wage-hour bill.

Business at White House

FIFTY members of the business advisory council of the Department of Commerce, all of them leaders of the nation's business and industry, went to the White House for a long conference with the President, and told him what they believed to be responsible for the current "recession." Then they promised to co-operate with him in combating the slump on condition that he made clear the course he intends to follow.

The business men specified that necessities to aid in the struggle were limitation to wage-hour legislation, a truce with public utilities, no general purge or holding companies and no further tinkering with the currency.

To these suggestions Mr. Roosevelt gave his approval. Others were heard by him without comment.

W. Averill, the council's chairman, issued a statement which embraced the views of his colleagues and which was read to Mr. Roosevelt.

The statement said re-employment in private industry is the critical problem now before the country. "We wish to record with you our faith in the efficacy of the principles of democracy, and yet our grave concern over the possible far-reaching effects of our present situation," the statement concluded. "Tolerance and understanding must be used by all sections and interests in the country."

At the conclusion of the conference the President announced that he will seek the formulation of a definite policy, designed to end the depression and create a framework for steady functioning of a nation's economic life through the appointment of a group representative of all the interests within the country.

The group would consist of as many as twenty-five or as few as five or six persons, who would be charged with the task of sifting over all proposals to aid business and un-garnishing all conflicts existing among the various interests with a view toward perfecting an administrative and legislative policy for business.

Flying Cadets Needed

MORE aviation cadets are urgently wanted by the War department. It announced that 232 unfilled vacancies exist for the March flying cadet class at the air corps training center, Randolph field, Texas. Only 112 qualified candidates thus far have been authorized out of the class' total of 344.

The War department ordered all regular officers in army posts to obtain blue dress uniforms before October 1. Officers buy their own outfits. The new uniforms cost about $100.

"You still think the killer's horse was here in the 94 layout after the killing, like old Rock seemed to think?"

Old Man Coffee's answer was a grunt; it might have meant one thing or the other. "You're stalled, son. You got no lead."

"Sure we've got a lead."

"And where is that?"

"Just a minute ago we were talking about the peculiar way Bob Flagg kind of eased into the Red Rock, coming in through the back way, bumming it in a cattle crate. From what we know Bob Flagg had fore-knowledge that somebody was going to make a try for him. Now, how did Bob Flagg come by that fore-knowledge?"

Old Man Coffee did not reply. Out by the corral a hound moaned in its chest; the dog called old Rock awoke by Coffee's feet, raised its head to listen, then blew out a long breath and went back to sleep again.

"Coffee—I'm thinking now that when we find out how Bob Flagg come by that fore-knowledge, we'll have caught our man."

With an impatient movement Old Man Coffee knocked out his pipe again. "You want to know what I think? I think, 'Oh, hell!' You bettor go on to bed."

Obviously Old Man Coffee was tired of arguing. Wheeler had been trying to lead the old man out, and it had got him nowhere. He rose slowly and stretched. "Guess you're right. Seems like you might need some sleep, too."

"Slept all the way from Pahrana-gat, on the top of my rump. I'll get plenty rest sitting right here with my pipe." He added irascibly, "Or I will if the everlasting talky-talk dries up."

"Looks like it might slack off come," Wheeler grinned. He went in, fumbled his way through the dark house to his room, slung his gun belt on the floor, and lighted his lamp.

CHAPTER XIII

It was very late when Wheeler left Old Man Coffee. Without checking the hour, he knew that morning could not be far off; and he had supposed that Marian was asleep. She had ridden a long way, not to count that long climb of theirs through the dark. In her own way she outlasted the leathery strength of men and horses—and came through clear-eyed and light-footed, apparently untouched. But she seemed so fragilely made that he always underestimated the young strength of her vitality.

So, he was thinking of her as asleep, as he now sat down on the edge of his bunk and rolled a cigarette. His long-boned frame rested relaxed, but he did not look tired. All his life had been spent in the saddle, simply for the reason that the dry country has few roads—few places for roads to go—and the horse is the only means of cross country transportation across mountain ranges and sand dunes and the vast gulch-cut plains. Ten thousand miles in the saddle had hardened him until he was made of braided leather, and no less enduring than the runty, unkillable range ponies. A few more miles on the horse trails and a few nights short of sleep could not tire him now. His leanly-muscled face was as awake as ever, and his gray eyes, made to look lighter than they were by his wind-burned and weather-leathered skin, were as clear as they had been when he arrived at the 94. He let his cigarette trail from a corner of his mouth, rested his chin on one hand; and, squinting through the thin upward-moving line of smoke, considered his next moves.

He must travel—that was certain. What could be done here was done—the finding of Bob Flagg and Lon Magoon. He must trace Bob Flagg back to his sources, back through Flagstaff, perhaps to the sold-out Arizona ranch itself, seeking the truth, for he was certain that Flagg had shown more than a premonition of his death.

And he must find time to run down the 94 debts, seeking ways to avert his bankruptcy, at least for a time. He was wondering how far he dared go against Dunn's order that no penny of Wheeler money should ever be chanced in the 94. Dunn would be game to split the works wide open, if he didn't like the way salvation had been obtained. It was up to Wheeler to find ways to get around that, taking care that the girl would never guess any obligation to him. That last was what Dunn feared most.

But though his mind was laying out routes and plans far outside of the Red Rock country, he was somehow not surprised as Marian now came and joined him here. To think about any phase of this killing case, or of the imminent ruin of Horse Dunn's cow kingdom, was to think about her. After all, the 94 was her brand, and her future was interlaced with its future. So now as he looked up at the sound of her light quick step it seemed a natural, somehow expected thing to see her standing there in his door.

"This is a lonely night," she said. "Nothing anywhere in this night intends to sleep."

"I guess that's so. But it's near morning now."

Without high heels and with her hair-light and loose about her shoulders she should have looked smaller, but she did not. He thought he had never seen her so slimly tall, so gravely steady.

Perhaps that was partly the effect of what she wore. Because he had never seen her dressed as she was now, he had a sudden sense of how little he knew her, after all; just as he did not know what she wore when she slept, how could he know what went on in her mind when she was alone—or ever?

She was wearing pajamas, but their black silk was cut like a Russian smock, with a high collar of soft black silk about her throat, and close cuffs at her wrists, so that standing against the dark she was all a part of the dark, except for the bright ivory of her face and hands and the loose shimmer of her hair.

About this costume, which was strange to him, there was a barbaric dignity, as if it were not something to sleep in at all, but the ceremonial dress of some forgotten priestess. It was strange to see this vision here, standing beside a spare saddle that had been slung on the floor under a tangle of bridles on a wooden peg. Everything around her was cow country, but she—she was something else, something lovely from beyond the hills—a daughter of two worlds.

She came and sat beside him on the bunk. "Did you find out anything more from Old Man Coffee? I thought you'd get more out of him if I left you alone."

"Not very much. Old Man Coffee's been a disappointment to me in a way. Sometimes I think he doesn't know anything about it."

"I wonder."

"Marian, what are you going to do?"

"What is there for me to do? One of two things—stay here or go to Inspiration to be near Horse. Of course, he ought to be out of there in a few days."

"I wouldn't count on that, Marian. They can't make a case against him—not even the beginnings of a case. They know that. But what they want to do—and can do—is to tie up the 94 finances by making the case look as ugly as possible. They'll point out that Dunn was the main one who would be expecting Flagg there; and probably make Flagg's share of the money the motive."

Of course that's ridiculous. But for their purpose, all they need to do is to raise the question and then cause a delay in clearing it up."

Her eyes were on distance beyond the walls—smoky eyes, drowsy, even misty on the surface; but behind them was that continuing deep glow of slumbering fire, the smouldering light of a great reserve vitality.

"I'd go east now, if I were you," he told her. "We'll fight this thing out, and save out of it what we can—you can count on that. But—this isn't a good place for you any more. There won't be anyone here, except a couple of cow hands to keep an eye on things. And it would drive Horse crazy to have you in that hornets' nest in Inspiration."

"But you—?"

"I'll be gone. I have to back-track Bob Flagg a little further. I'll have to go to Flagstaff; then maybe down-country. God knows how long I'll be gone. It looks like a dim, crooked trail."

She considered this. "When are you leaving?"

"Now—before daylight. I'll send a note to Horse. I don't even dare see him in Inspiration, for fear they'll hold me there on some trumped-up charge."

away. "I'm through with hovering on the outskirts of my own life."

For a moment he wondered what provision he could make for her safety here. He no longer doubted that what she determined to do she would do, and could not be dissuaded from. He thought of consigning her safety to Old Man Coffee, or to the cowboys now searching the hills for her; but he was deeply concerned.

"Sometimes I think," Marian said, "that the answer to everything is to be found right here—here at the 94—and no place else."

He nodded moodily. "A man ought to be able to figure it out, if he was smart."

"There isn't anything more you could follow up, here? When time is so important—"

"There's one lone, slim possibility," he said.

"In heaven's name, what is it?"

"There's one thing in this case that I can't swallow. It stands out above everything else—one unbelievable thing that couldn't possibly happen. I'm thinking of those two shots that have been thrown at— you."

She was silent, and after a moment or two he went on. "Somehow those shots at you are mixed up with these other shootings; it would be too big a coincidence if the shots at you and the killing of the men were separate, yet happening at the same time."

"I can see that, all right."

"But the shots at you eliminate nearly every suspect we have. Take Val Douglas. He hasn't proved very dependable, Marian. He's been caught in lies as to where he was. Even just now, when he was sent to Pahrana-gat to check up Bob Flagg, it seems from what Coffee says that he didn't even go near there. Sometimes I've suspected Val. Even if he didn't kill Flagg to rob him, still he might have killed him by mistake, thinking it was somebody else. But one thing is certainly plain—Val Douglas would never fire on you."

"No," Marian said, "Val could never do that."

"Or take Link Bender—a hard, bitter, violent man. Once he was boss of all this range, until Horse Dunn took hold. Link Bender might go to any length to put down the 94. But he controls this kid sheriff, and through the sheriff he's bearing down on the 94 through this killing; and he's getting away with it. His whole way of attack is orderly and thoughtful. He wouldn't try any such crazy thing as shooting a girl."

"It's pretty hard to see in what way I could stand between Link Bender and his plans."

"The same thing applies to Pinto Halliday; he's a shifty crook, but he isn't crazy. Sam Caldwell is another that it doesn't fit in with."

"The thing just won't fit together, will it?"

"Marian, it's in my mind that I should be my mother's, or Horse Dunn's. But nothing can make Horse see that. And I see now that if you're going to run cattle on a big scale out in this country, you sometimes have to be willing to fight for your range."

He stared at her, marveling. The girl who was talking to him now was not the girl he had known two years ago; she was not even the girl he had known at the beginning of the week. It was as if some false outer cloak of ideas and habits, put upon her by her mother's seaboard world, had suddenly fallen away, leaving her revealed as what she was—a daughter of the dry land. Under the pressure of the dark days and unquiet nights since the killing of Bob Flagg she had come nearer to him, becoming one of his own people.

back at Horse for the death of young Deane."

"Billy, if you're right—if you can prove that—"

"That's just the trouble. Suppose I'm right—Rufe Deane did it. We're no better off than we were in the beginning. You see, Marian, there's two parts to these killing cases; one thing is to find out who did it and why. The other thing is to prove it and get a conviction. I haven't one single thing to show against Rufe Deane; and until I can show evidence, it won't matter how sure I may be in my mind."

When he looked at her it was past his power to imagine how Rufe Deane or anyone else could ever look down the sights of a gun at Marian Dunn; she was so gently and sweetly made, so precious in his eyes. He didn't believe in Horse Dunn's creed of gun justice, for he thought that the use of violence outside the law was a costly thing, defeating its own purposes in the end. But he knew that if ever he faced Rufe Deane with anything like a decent proof in his hands, he would destroy the killer as he would destroy a sidewinder or a vinegaroon.

"I'll never be able to believe in God's world that anyone would set out to hurt you," he said. "Yet—somebody has tried. What naturally comes to mind is that somebody, some enemy of Horse Dunn, has gone out of his head. But—hard as it is to believe, there is one other possibility we have to take account of—that without knowing it you've heard something, or seen something, which would give away the Short Creek killer—if you remembered it, and recognized it for what it was."

She said, "I've thought of that."

"Marian, if you can remember seeing anything—a rider in the distance—some horse coming home at a strange time—one of the guns missing from its rack here in the house—even an empty shell that you thought nothing of—that one thing might give us the answer!"

"I've racked my brain over and over; but I can't think of anything, Billy."

"Not even a chance word, overheard somewhere—"

She shook her head. "Billy, I just can't remember anything that would answer the purpose at all."

She pressed her palms against her eyes for a moment; then lifted her head sharply, shaking out her loose hair. "It's no use. This isn't the first time I've tried to remember; I've been trying hard for two days."

"I thought it would most likely be hopeless," he admitted. "I'll have to go to Flagstaff."

"I know. I've seen that coming. I'm ready to stay here alone; without you or my uncle, I mean."

"Marian, if I could get you to pull out of here, until this is over—"

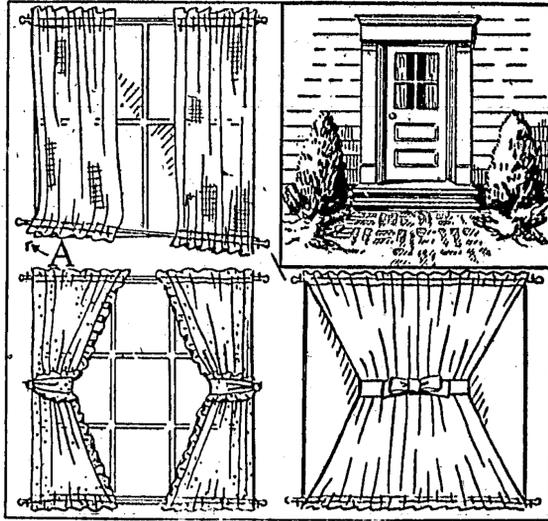

"This is my outfit, Billy. It shouldn't be my outfit; it should be my mother's, or Horse Dunn's. But nothing can make Horse see that. And I see now that if you're going to run cattle on a big scale out in this country, you sometimes have to be willing to fight for your range."

He stared at her, marveling. The girl who was talking to him now was not the girl he had known two years ago; she was not even the girl he had known at the beginning of the week. # HOW TO SEW

by Ruth Wyeth Spears

Curtaining Your Front Door.

YOUR front door greets your friends before you do. Is it dressed to look its best? Here are some simple rules that will be useful in selecting the material and style for front door curtaining.

Choose a fabric that looks well on both sides and that harmonizes with the outside color of your door as well as with the color scheme of the hall or room into which it opens. A simple net curtain material or plain silk are good to use but if your door is white on the outside think twice before you choose the usual ecru or pongee color. White net or silk of a color to match the shutters or the trim of the house will look infinitely more attractive and will not be too conspicuous. The curtains may be made double with a different color on the inside if need be. Pale yellow is another color that is always safe to use as it gives the effect of light shining through the door.

These curtains should be firmly anchored both top and bottom so that they do not blow about and catch in the door when it is opened and closed. Both bottom and top rods may be fastened over hooks as shown here at A.

Every homemaker should have a copy of Mrs. Spears' new book, SEWING. Forty-eight pages of step-by-step directions for making slipcovers and dressing tables; curtains for every type of room; lampshades, rugs, ottomans and other useful articles for the home. Readers wishing a copy should send name and address, enclosing 25 cents (coins preferred) to Mrs. Spears, 210 South Desplaines St., Chicago, Ill.

TIPS to Gardeners

Start Them Indoors

TOMATO, cabbage, broccoli, egg plant and pepper crops usually prove more satisfactory when they are started indoors from seed. The gardener thus may use seed of a known variety from a dependable source.

About eight weeks before plants are to be set in open, sow seeds a quarter inch deep in good soil in a regular florist's flat. Water thoroughly but not too frequently—preferably on bright days.

Good sunlight and good air circulation are important in preventing "damping off." Keep temperature fairly even at 70 to 75 degrees. When young plants are about one and one-half inches tall, transplant to a larger box or cold frame, spacing about three inches apart.

If the plants are grown in a box, place them indoors in the shade on six or eight mid days to harden them off. When plants are set in open soil, space them far enough apart to allow for full development.

Early Arc Lamps

When Charles F. Smith's arc lamps were lighted for the first time at Cleveland's public square in 1879 many people looked at them through smoked glasses. They thought the light coming from these new contraptions would injure their eyes. Many women complained that these "bright" lights would not do justice to their complexions—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Keep your body free of accumulated waste, take Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets. 60 Pellets 30 cents—Adv.

Anxiety Useless
Anxiety never yet successfully bridged over any chasm—Ruffini.

For Chest Colds

Distressing cold in chest or throat, never safe to neglect, generally ceases up when soothing, warming Muterole is applied.

Better than a mustard plaster, Muterole gets action because it's NOT just a calve. It's a "counter-irritant" stimulating, penetrating, and helpful in drawing out local congestion and pain.

Used by millions for 20 years. Recommended by many doctors and nurses. All druggists. In three strengths: Regular Strength, Children's (small), and Extra Strong. Approved by Good Housekeeping.

Dominion Over Self
You can never have a greater or a less dominion than that over yourself—Leonardo da Vinci.

Do You Suffer From Nerves?

Provo, Utah—Mrs. A. M. Haddock, Route 2, says: "I was thin and felt weak and nervous, day after day. I used Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and it certainly did me lots of good. I had a good appetite, gained weight and strength, was no longer nervous and felt just fine in every way." Day it is liquid or tablets from your druggist today.

Most of the World's Mercury Is From Almaden, Little Town in Central Spain

Since the Fifteenth century a little town in central Spain, Almaden, in Arabic simply "The Mine," has supplied most of the world with mercury, the metal which is liquid at ordinary temperatures and which dissolves other metals. It is needed in obtaining gold and silver from their ores, in scientific and manufacturing processes and in pharmacy.

California and Oregon, Texas and Nevada are intermittent producers of mercury. New Almaden, Calif., mines half of what is produced in the United States, these mines having been established about seventy-five years. Southern Austria and Italy also have some mercury ores but the Spanish rock is far richer, containing about 13 per cent compared with barely 1 per cent, says the Milwaukee Journal.

The chief ore of mercury is mercuric sulfide, commonly called cinnabar and originally the source of the pigment called the vermilion. This the women of ancient Rome used for rouge. The Roman town, Sisapo, was in the neighborhood of Almaden.

E. E. Kisch, a writer for Gegen-Angriff, the Paris weekly of the German exiles, visited Almaden some time ago and reported that mercury necrosis, anemia and other occupational diseases had made alarming inroads on the workers, who, even in youth, were mostly pale, lean, toothless and lacking in energy. At one time it was the custom to give exemption from military service to those who would serve two years as miners in Almaden.

To Spain, Almaden is far more than a gold mine," he wrote, "for it has always been the world's source of mercury. Abderrahman

III, the caliph of Cordoba, had the famous moonlight fountain made for his favorite wife, the moonlight being mercury. The knights of the Middle Ages got rid of vermin with the aid of mercury. The 'gold makers' of the Middle Ages used mercury for their tricks. Physicians in those days prescribed mercury for any digestive trouble.

For centuries thermometers and barometers have been made with the aid of mercury. Rabbit skins are prepared with mercury before they are turned into felt hats. Many dyes can be made only with mercury.

"The Christian kings of the houses of Aragon, Castile, Hapsburg and Bourbon, who had fewer riches, warriors and slaves than their Phoenician, Greek, Roman, West Gothic and Arab predecessors, could pay their creditors only with mercury."

Beginning of Purse Races

It has been customary to credit the state of Virginia with originating horse racing for prizes in this country, because it was established that there were turf contests in that state as early as April 10, 1674. But horses were raced and trophies awarded in New York beginning in 1665. It is merely presumed that a race was run in March, 1663, on the track which Col. Richard Nicolls called the New Market course, in Hempstead, Long Island. Colonel Nicolls, who arrived in America in 1664, as the first English governor of New York, called the meeting, but it is established that there was a race on March 25, 1663, because there is in Yale university's collection of old American silver a porringer given to the winner of the contest in 1663.

Office of Senator Chavez

Washington, D. C., January 29, 1938.—Senator Glass of Virginia has reported on behalf of the Committee on Appropriations, H. K. 8837, which is the Bill known as the Independent Offices Appropriations Bill.

Amongst the items of interest to New Mexico are the appropriations of money for grants to States for Old Age Assistance, $214,000,000.00; grants to States for Unemployment Compensation Administration, $40,000,000.00; grants to States for aid to dependent children $45,000,000; and grants to States for aid to the blind, $8,000,000.00. The items will be the amounts probably appropriated by this Congress as authorized by the Social Security Act of August 14, 1935, and New Mexico will get its proportionate share of said appropriations; so it does appear that the Federal Administration is interested in the aged, dependent children and the blind.

The Senate Committee on Post Offices and Post Roads, of which Senator Chavez is a member, has been holding public hearings during the week on the matter of the new Authorization Bill for Federal aid to different States in the construction of highways. Most of the witnesses appearing before the committee were members or employees of State Highway Department, mainly of the far east, every State having at least one representative. It appeared that they all know that they were about and Wednesday the committee listened to, amongst others the testimonies of Mr. Grover Conroy, State Highway Engineer for New Mexico. New Mexico, not withstanding its tremendous area of 122,000 square miles, and the fact that State revenue is limited, has a record of which it can be proud: The matter of the construction of highways.

It appeared to be the consensus of opinion of eastern State Highway officials that it was only just and proper for the Federal Government to aid the State Highway officials inasmuch as the Federal Government owns more than 50 per cent of the State areas. In New Mexico the Federal Government, through its ownership of the public domain, forest lands, National parks and Indian Reservations, owns around 65 per cent of the total area. So if New Mexico is to grow, it must protect the 35 per cent left and still insist on the Federal Government doing its full share in Federal aid.

Messrs. Roland Harwell and N. B. Phillips of the Rio Grande Irrigation District have completed final negotiations with the United States Reclamation Service for the adjustment of the construction debt for the Elephant Butte Project. The Rio Grande Irrigation District and the people thereof will save some three million dollars on construction charges under the new contract, this being brought about by deducting that amount from the water charges and charging it to the Federal Government on power development controlled by the Government.

This office is in receipt of a pamphlet called "Questions and Answers", on the Railroad Retirement Act, same being compiled by the Railroad Retirement Board. There are many persons in New Mexico interested in this Act and those who care to get a copy of same can communicate with Senator Chavez' office.

Senator Chavez was on Friday noon, together with others, guest of Senator Key Pittman of Nevada, Chairman of the Committee on Foreign Relations, he gave a luncheon in the Senate side of the Capital and where Lord and Lady Astor were guests of honor. Lady Astor was formerly Nancy Langhorne of Virginia and is now a member of the British Parliament.

Mrs. Arno Huening of Albuquerque, New Mexico, has been visiting in the city and has obtained her passport from the State Department, she being on an extended trip to India and other places of interest.
