Democratic Accomplishments

Five or six years ago this country was in the throes of a terrific economic disaster. Hungry people had to be fed, re-employment was a desperate necessity, and business, screaming in its agony of almost complete collapse had to be braced up. So a lot of money was spent, and some millions of people were put back at work, the entries on innumerable ledgers were changed from red into black, and profits and dividends and solvent banks became the ordinary incidents of our economic life. Anybody listening to those who would like to succeed the Roosevelt administration with another Hooversque period might believe that the billions dispersed by the government were thrown into the sea.

They shut their eyes to the vast stretches of highways constructed throughout the country, to the public buildings that have been erected, to fifty thousand new schools, to the improvement of the forests and their protection against great fires, to all the work of the CCC camps, and the profit in material improvements but in the salvation of a million or two boys from the perils and misery of being jobless, and to a thousand city and state improvements in the creation of which these funds had a great part.

These things, and the circumstances that we came through a desperate period without violence and with American institutions intact, give the real picture of what money spending is. If the program were half a success, the country can throw up its hat and cheer, despite the melancholy forebodings of those who take the position that whatever the Democratic administration does is unmixed evil.

R. H. Traylor

Friends were shocked and grieved when it became known that Mr. R. H. Traylor, well known and popular citizen of the Alto community, had passed away last Thursday, about 5:30 p. m. from pneumonia.

Mr. Traylor had been ill only a few days. He entered the Turner hospital April 16, where everything possible was done to save his life, but to no avail.

He was an upright, conscientious citizen, who was ever willing to lend a helping hand. He loved his home, his family and his friends. Few men have ever lived in Lincoln County who made and held friends as did Mr. Traylor. He was a man of genial personality and unflinching integrity, a member of the Baptist church, he ever observed the tenets of his faith.

Richard Herbert Traylor was born in Mora, Texas, April 17, 1886; was reared and educated there. He was married to Miss Emma Teague Sept. 8, 1906. Four children were born to the union. He moved with his family to New Mexico in 1913 and has resided here continuously since that time. Since coming to New Mexico he had held responsible positions for The Titsworth Co., and others. At the time of his death, he was fire guard in the National forest service.

Besides his widow, Mrs. Emma Traylor, he is survived by four sons, Herbert Lee, R. V., Elmo and Earl, all of Alto, N. M. also his mother, five sisters and three brothers, all of whom reside in Texas.

Funeral services were conducted at Angus, Friday, April 22, 1938, by Rev. J. C. Vandiver, pastor of the Baptist church.

Pall bearers were Messrs. Lee Bell, Gordon J. Grey, Charles L. Peebles, Rayford B. Burnett, R. Irving Brooke, and David T. Schryer.

The esteem in which Mr. Traylor was held was well attested by the immense crowd which gathered at Angus, to pay their last tribute and by the many lovely floral offerings.

The bereaved ones have the deepest sympathy of friends.

A Letter To The News

Albuquerque, N. M.
April 18, 1938
The Lincoln County News
Carrizozo, N. M.

Dear Mrs. Smith

Have just returned from a trip to El Paso, San Antonio, Bryan and Houston, Texas to visit relatives. Drove 2,800 miles and had a dandy trip. Outstanding were the fine roads, roadside parks between towns, and the beautiful flowers, especially the blue bonnets, which are unusually lovely on account of plenty of moisture this year.

My son, C. D. Mulcahy, Jr., took leave from the Forest and joined Mrs. Mulcahy and myself on the trip; and Mrs. H. D. Burton, our daughter, joined us in El Paso where she lives and made the trip with us.

I am located in Albuquerque, in the State Office of the Department of Public Welfare.

Mrs. Mulcahy will return to our place on Mon Jeap about June 1st for the summer.

Yours very truly,
C. D. Mulcahy

Mr. John P. Wall of Nogal was a business visitor here yesterday.

American Legion Dance

Community Hall was decorated in the National colors last Saturday night for the American Legion costume ball. The dance was an unmitigated success from the grand march to the home waltz. Everyone entered into the spirit of the occasion in the whole-hearted way which spells success for anything. Prizes for best costumes went to Mrs. Gallacher, for the ladies; and to Mr. Jack Cleghorn for the men. Some of the costumes were especially striking, as were also the women's hair dresses, long curls, men's mustaches and boots.

About two hundred dancers were on the floor and as many or more were spectators. Corona, Ancho, Lincoln, and Captain were represented as were other communities.

The Committee wishes to thank the members, their friends, and everyone for their assistance, co-operation and patronage, and to state the money will be used for charitable purposes to assist widows and orphans of ex-service men who are in distress.

White Oaks Notes

Lovely, lovely Springtime—with her skirt tipped with tiny green shoots and her arms filled to overflowing with purple and cream colored Iris.

The Ladies Aid met last Thursday at the home of Mrs. Lloyd Hulbert. Co-hostesses with Mrs. Hulbert were Mesdames Cleghorn and Collier. A light lunch of cream puffs and coffee were served. Business and pleasure were combined, making it a delightful meeting.

Bailey Bert age three, an old authority on Spanish, stood watching his mother dress the tiny baby who was cooing in that non-understandable language of goo goo. The mother said, "Bailey Bert, I wonder what the baby is talking about?" "I guess he is talking Spanish," replied B. B.

Mr. Roy Ward and son Billy spent the past week end at the ranch.

Young Mr. and Mrs. Rob Leslie are making preparations for a possible move to Colorado. Mrs. Leslie is an active member of the Ladies Aid and will be greatly missed for her presence and artistry with the drawing pencil.

J. V. Edwards

Mr. Herbert Edwards was at Oscura and Carrizozo Sunday on the way to his home in Michigan. He had been to Williams, Arizona to attend the funeral of his father Mr. J. V. Edwards, who was a former resident of Oscura. Mr. Edwards ran a general store and hotel at Oscura in the early days. While here, Mr. Edwards was a guest of Dr. and Mrs. R. E. Blaney. In Oscura he visited his father-in-law, Mr. C. H. Thornton.

Mrs. Alvin Carl visited friends in Capitán, Monday of this week.

Pioneering Notes

When fun is fastest and a Paul Jones is the maddest, then comes the clear call of a crow. You can bet Wayne Van Schock Sr., age 68 is entirely happy when he gives this very perfect imitation of the crow. A man's man is he, with his humorous tales of yesterday and today.

Born of Pennsylvania Dutch parents, and a descendant of a long line of farmers, Wayne and several of his kin came to N. M. in 1890 bringing seed potatoes, corn, etc., for planting but the ground was so infertile not a thing came up. Wayne tells an amusing (now) and almost unbelievable incident that happened during his stay in Punta de Agua. In his word, he says, "There was a ruling in the County—a constable must notify people of election day. My kin and I (all Democrats) and several Republicans not realizing that voting was compulsory, failed to appear at the polls; and the next day the constable came in an ox drawn cart, arrested us and took us before the Justice of Peace. Given our choice of a fine (five dollars) or stay in jail, we chose to pay the fine—being afraid of the Spanish-American people. Next election day we four Democrats voted a straight Republican ticket there being no Democratic Ballots, and we were broke."

Since coming West Wayne has worked in sawmills, trailed cattle herded sheep; but has been in the Mercantile business for the past twenty years. He first came to W. O. in 1895 when the town was still at fever heat. The two saloons were going full blast—raw gold being staked on games of chance. A big sawmill once stood in Dark canyon. W. O. was the most talked of town in N. M. Albuquerque appearing then about as Carrizozo looks now.

School Notes

Mrs. Kelley's piano recital was given in the form of a chapel program Thursday afternoon. Many visitors were present. The program was somewhat shortened due to the illness of two pupils. The affair was enjoyed by all.

Last Thursday the Seniors went to Ruidoso where they had a very enjoyable time. This was Senior Picnic Day and they gave the rest of the students a great surprise by not being present in classes on that day. Faculty members helped to plan the picnic.

A model "Clipper Ship" is on display in the English room it was lent to the classes by Chas. Carl. The article "The Clipper Ships" by H. W. Van Loon has been the inspiration for a research study in literature regarding these romantic sea vessels.

The English Literature students are advancing rapidly in their study of Literature in order to cover all the most important things. The work has been very enjoyable.

The Senior class left this afternoon to go to Carlsbad. They will go through the cavern tomorrow which is Governor's Day. All the class members are going to attend but two. We are proud of this representation and all hope to be Seniors some day.

The Junior-Senior banquet and Prom will be held May 18th. The banquet will be held at the Southern Pacific Hotel at seven o'clock. The prom will be at the Community Hall immediately following the banquet.

The seniors for 1938 are almost ready for graduation. We have our pictures, invitations, and are expecting our caps and gowns which we will wear at the commencement exercises.

Rev. J. C. Vandiver, Pastor of 1st Baptist Church has accepted the invitation of the senior class to give the Baccalaureate sermon. Sunday 8 p. m. May 15th. A splendid program is being arranged.

The College extension class is planning a pageant for May 16, entitled the "Pageant of States". About 65 students will demonstrate the chief events in American History from adoption of constitution until present day. This Patriotic Pageant should attract every citizen of the community.

What to Eat and Why

C. Houston Goudiss Discusses LAXATIVE FOODS ★

Nationally Known Authority on Food Shows How Right Diet Can Help You to Avoid Health Hazards of Faulty Elimination

By C. HOUSTON GOUDISS
6 East 39th Street, New York.

THOUSANDS of men, women and children are alive today because we have learned how to prevent many types of infections and how to cure diseases which once caused untimely deaths.

We have reason to be proud of the achievements of science in fighting disease and lengthening the span of life. But we should be ashamed of the fact that hundreds of thousands of individuals are not getting the most out of life—indeed they are not realizing half their potentialities—because improper eating and faulty habits of hygiene cause them to suffer from that great evil of civilization—constipation.

EVILS OF CONSTIPATION

Someone has called constipation the most deadly disease, and while this may seem like an extreme statement, it becomes justifiable when one realizes the untold misery and wretchedness that may result when food residues remain to stagnate and putrefy in the body.

Constipation muddies the complexion, dulls the eye and befools the brain. It causes a general feeling of discomfort and fullness in the abdomen, lack of appetite, bad breath, coated tongue, a feeling of lassitude and a tendency to become easily fatigued.

By weakening resistance, it opens the way to numberless diseases. Serious complications, such as irritation of the appendix, may occur as a result of the friction of hard masses of waste against the delicate walls of the intestine. Piles have frequently been laid at the door of faulty elimination.

Do you wonder that I consider prompt, regular elimination the keystone of good health. Its importance is readily understood when you consider the processes by which food is digested and absorbed.

FATE OF FOOD IN THE BODY

From the mouth, food passes down the esophagus into the stomach, where it is penetrated by the gastric juice. It then passes into the small intestine where it is mixed with the secretions of the liver and the pancreas. Here the nutritive elements are absorbed by minute, hair-like tubes which line the intestinal walls. These tubes converge into the blood vessels and lymphatics which transport nourishment to all parts of the body.

Undigested residues pass into the large intestine or colon, where they are normally moved along by a series of muscular contractions known as peristalsis, and finally evacuated.

The amount of the evacuation varies in bulk with the amount of indigestible roughage contained in the food. When there is insufficient bulk to promote normal peristalsis, waste accumulates and we have the condition known as constipation with all its resulting evils. Bacteria prey upon the stagnating material, producing poisons which may be absorbed by the body.

There is not the slightest excuse for allowing this condition to develop. For the misery and wretchedness of constipation may easily be avoided by including in the daily diet sufficient laxative foods, that is, those rich in fiber or cellulose.

BULK OR FIBER ESSENTIAL

Because of their fibrous framework, plant foods are our chief source of cellulose or bulk, and therefore, our greatest aid in promoting normal elimination. Vegetables and fruits are sworn foes of constipation, and unrefined cereals are also extremely valuable.

SOME LAXATIVE FOODS

Foods with an exceptionally high residue include raw fruits, especially those with skins and seeds; dried fruits, as apricots, prunes, figs and raisins; raw vegetables; such cooked vegetables as onions and leafy greens; the legumes, that is, dried peas and beans; whole grain cereals and bran.

Among the vegetables, don't overlook cabbage, lettuce, celery, spinach, brussels sprouts, string beans and green peas.

Foods which tend to form a little gas in the intestines, including spinach, onions and cauliflower, are also useful stimulants to intestinal movement.

In addition to providing cellulose, the acid fruits, such as oranges, lemons and grapefruit, act as a mild stimulus to increased peristaltic motions.

NEED FOR VITAMIN B

Another important factor in promoting normal elimination is vitamin B, which has been shown to be essential for good muscular tone and activity of the digestive tract. Investigations with experimental animals have demonstrated that it requires twice as long to empty the large intestine when the diet is deficient in vitamin B. Yeast, egg yolk, milk, whole grain cereals, liver and green leafy vegetables are good sources of this vitamin.

LIQUIDS ESSENTIAL

A sufficient quantity of liquids is likewise necessary to prevent the contents of the lower intestine from becoming too hard for easy evacuation. In addition to water, the diet should therefore contain an abundance of milk, fruit juices and other beverages. Acidophilus milk and buttermilk are especially beneficial.

Fats and oils, used in moderation, act as gentle lubricants.

REGULAR HABITS

It is most important to eat at regular hours and to establish regular times for evacuation, as this is a great aid to body rhythm.

Guard carefully against over-eating, for this practice is a frequent cause of constipation. When the digestive system is overworked, none of its functions can be efficiently performed.

The homemaker is largely responsible for safeguarding her family against the dangers of faulty elimination. For she has it in her power to plan meals that will help normal individuals to avoid the curse of constipation.

Questions Answered

Mrs. B. T. M.—Do not worry if your child prefers the egg yolk to the white. The white is chiefly protein, and he can easily obtain protein from other foods, especially milk. But the yolk contains an abundance of minerals and vitamins in addition to protein and fat. Nutritionists have determined that the inclusion of one egg yolk daily in an otherwise adequate diet is an effective method of balancing the intake and output of iron in a child's diet.

Miss S. B.—No, the generous use of cream cannot be considered as a substitute for taking milk as a beverage or in cooked dishes. Cream is much higher in fat and contains less protein, minerals and vitamins, with the exception of vitamin A. Cream deserves to be included in the diet for its vitamin A content, but it should not replace milk.

Mrs. A. McK.—Strawberries contain vitamins A, B and C. Recent experiments indicate that they rank with citrus fruits and tomatoes as a source of vitamin C.

Hidden Benefits

Few housewives realize the underlying advantage of the use of a good light-oil furniture polish! Most polish is used only for the luster it bestows on the chairs, tables, piano, woodwork in the home. Rubbing the polish on cleaning the furniture—works up a glow—and the outward effect is fresh and sparkling! But that is only part of the housewife's reward. Far out of this domestic routine comes definite benefit to the furniture! A reputable polish, with a light oil base, does what is known as "feeding" the finish. The "massage" causes the oil to penetrate, seep into the pores of the wood—just enough to lubricate—and keep it healthy! Here, it is important to note that cheap polishes are made with a heavy oil base—and are "greasy" and unpleasant to use. The best polish—made with a fine light-oil base—is never greasy. Applied on a damp cloth (according to directions), it is neat to use and proves a boon to the furniture! Lack of polishing—or the use of a poor polish—will cause the finest wood to dry out, crack, split—for wood is a product of Nature and needs a certain amount of oily moisture. So polish the furniture regularly! Use a quality oil polish—it pays! For not only does the furniture look better—it is better! Its life is preserved!

AROUND THE HOUSE

Hemming Sash Curtains.—Make the hems of sash curtains the same at the top and bottom. You can then use them either end up.

Preserving the Oilcloth.—Bind the edges of oilcloth used for table coverings with bias tape. This will keep the edges from tearing or becoming ragged.

Rinse Silks Well.—Silk underthings should be washed in water that is barely warm, and should be rinsed in at least three fresh rinsing waters.

When Someone Is Ill.—Always wrap a rubber hotwater bottle in soft cloth before placing in a patient's bed. Place the bottle near but not against the patient's flesh. If placed, too close the patient may be burned before realizing it.

To Retain Juices in Meats.—To keep flavor and juices in meat when baking or frying, expose it to extreme heat first, then reduce the temperature and cook more slowly.

For That Musty Odor.—To remove a musty odor from a room, put a drop of oil of lavender into the corners.

WHO'S NEWS THIS WEEK

By LEMUEL F. PARTON

NEW YORK.—The Nazis haven't bothered Frau Katherina Schrott. Unlike the Pompadours and Montespanns, usually among the first victims of political upheavals, Austria's "Gnaedige Frau," as Emperor Francis Joseph called her, has ridden the surf-board of dynastic and political change for nearly 60 years. She is now eighty-two, doing crossword puzzles, disclaiming knowledge of the current cataclysm, but longing for the "good old days."

In those days, she was pretty Katie Schrott, a dancer in the Burg theater, which was under the patronage of the emperor. After a hit performance, with the emperor attending, she obtained an audience.

"Sire," she said, with a low curtsy, "we cannot maintain ourselves on the salaries you pay. I owe $50,000 for my costumes."

The emperor promised a new benefice for the theater and said he would help her take care of her debts. She was backing gracefully to the door when the emperor said: "Gnaedige Frau, why do you leave us?"

She stayed 40 years, in a snug little villa by the palace gates. The emperor, after a hard day swinging the scepter, used to drop in at Frau Katie's, split a bottle of Pilsener and sing a few songs. She knew all the mellow old tunes which he particularly liked. She used to darn his coats and tell him when he needed a hair cut.

She refused to accept gowns or jewels, always remaining the "Gnaedige Frau," but the emperor, by an amusing artifice, induced her to accept a fortune in gems. He was a famous huntsman. He told her he was sending her a wild boar he had killed.

She saw no harm in that. When it arrived, it had diamond earrings, a diamond necklace and bracelets and a diamond breast pin, and its back was studded with precious Hapsburg jewels. The money lenders got them, after the emperor's death.

Keenly fashion-alert women are doing just that—dressing in suede from head to foot.

After you have bought a suit and a soft afternoon or sports dress of lovely suede you will begin to look about for accessories and here is where you will cast away all restraint. You will find that a hat and matching scarf of suede will top off any costume you choose to wear it with, to perfection. Pictured above in the illustration Mary Carlisle of Hollywood fame shows her yen for suede in that she is wearing a hat and scarf in Egyptian clay-color suede which stunningly contrasts her pale blue three-quarter swaggar coat.

One of the suede accessory items that will lay siege to your heart is a separate bolero of colorful suede. Wear it with any costume you will and it will take on new glory. The one pictured is quite simply tailored but it is possible to get suede boleros with decorative scalloped edges. You can get these in dark tones or entrancing ice-cream or bon bon colors. If it is from a sportswear viewpoint you are choosing, ask to see the lumber jacket type in suede or perhaps one of the sweater pullover models with wool sleeves as pictured in the group will be your style. With plaid pleated skirts they make the costume ideal.

It gives a dress or a coat an unmistakable air of chic to enliven it with a collar and cuff suede "soot" or newer still is the collar and tie-girdle twosome of colorful suede. Some are finished with self-suede fringe in the cowboy manner as pictured, and still others have distinctive diamond cutouts bordering the collar and sash ends. These ensembles are to be had in such luscious colors as raspberry red, oriole orange, gold nugget, yankee blue and cavalry red, honey beige and others.

VEIL-TRIMMED HAT

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

Milliners are not only using veils as veils but the hat that is trimmed with veiling is a favorite type that is showing in great numbers. It is a navy colored veil that perks up the white straw as here shown. Furthermore, fashion declares that no costume is really complete without its flower accent this spring. This printed pique jacket worn over a navy dress uses a bunch of nasturtium-red flowers and, what's more, to complete the color scheme the young woman's nail polish is in matching nasturtium to carry out the flower motif.

LINGERIE BLOUSE IN STELLAR ROLE

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

This is a suit season and a suit season means that the blouse is called upon to play a stellar role. A fashion of utmost importance is the revival of the exquisitely fine and daintily feminine sheer handmade lingerie blouse. We have not worn these charming blouses for seasons and seasons past to any extent but this spring they are the last word in chic. The finely pin-tucked batiste type is an outstanding favorite. In fact there is almost sure to be a showing of pin tucks somewhere about the blouse, be it lace-trimmed or not. Sprightly jabots are showing their trilly cascades between jackets from openings and even with the conservative tweeds these dainty blouses are correct as the feminine touch is a fashion "must" this season.

Best Dressed Brides Will Be Arrayed in Lace Gowns

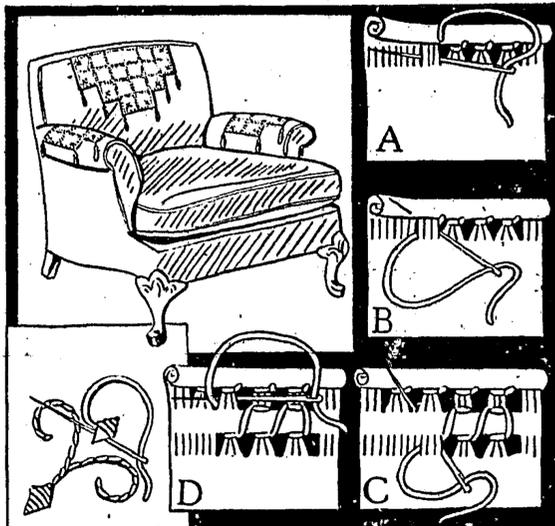

The very best dressed brides this spring will most likely walk down the aisle in lace—maybe in their grandmothers' lace dresses or in the new 1938 laces that are so enchanting. Every bride, whether she be married in church or in the garden or just "quietly," can have a lace bridal dress fit for a queen, and this may mean the cowbeby Chantilly laces, or the angel skin patterns, or the sheer lace with cord outlines. The church bride, in a truly romantic manner, may wear a gown hinting of an earlier era made up of row on row of narrow lace with quaint puffed sleeves and square neck.

Daytime Styles

Daytime coats with elbow-length sleeves, short bolero jackets and smart zipper fastenings are popular.

Italian Hemstitching for a Chair Set

THE chair set shown here is made of an even meshed cream linen, marked off in squares of Italian hemstitching. Tiny scrolls in outline stitch with two diamonds in satin stitch are embroidered in all the outside corners. The scroll motif is shown at lower left. The tassels are made by raveling strips of the material and then rolling them.

The chair back piece measures 15 by 10 inches finished, and the chair arm pieces 7 1/2 by 7 1/2 inches. Allow 3/8-inch at all edges for the rolled hems. The hemstitched squares measure 2 1/2 inches. Mark them in pencil. The method of hemstitching the rolled edges is shown here at A and B. Remember that a moist thumb always helps in rolling an edge evenly. Italian hemstitching is really just two rows worked together as shown at C and D. To prepare the rows, draw two threads, skip four and then draw two more.

FRIDAY, APRIL 29, 1938

Office of Senator Chavez

Washington, D. C., April 22, 1938. Senator Chavez has returned to Washington from his brief visit to New Mexico and Mexico. He described the situation in Mexico as excellent. He declined to discuss Mexican politics other than to say that President Cardenas had the united support of the people in his latest move. The Senator predicted that an adjustment satisfactory to both the United States and Mexico would be worked out. He praised the manner in which American officials of the State Department had handled the delicate subject contrasting it with imperialist policies of other Administrations.

Highlight of this week's activities was the visit of Senator Chavez and Congressman Dempsey to the White House. The visit was for the purpose of discussing with President Roosevelt New Mexico's part in the proposed new pump priming program. Carefully discussed was the situation of many municipalities in New Mexico which already have voted bonds in order to participate in Federal Public Works. These are scheduled to share in the new program. Continuation of the school building and small dam and road construction was agreed upon. The new program calls for injection of new life of PWA which should provide needed relief for skilled labor in the state.

Nothing is of greater concern to the small sheep and cattle grower than the pressing need for pasture. The precarious situation of the small native communities in the Rio Puerco is typical. While at the White House some three weeks ago Senator Chavez talked over the problem with the President. On the visit this week a decision was reached that land would be provided. "In all likelihood the Ojo del Espiritu Santo Grant will be used for this purpose," the Senator said on leaving the White House.

Wednesday Senator and Mrs. Chavez attended the dinner and musical given at the White House by the President and Mrs. Roosevelt.

At the suggestion of Senator Chavez the conferees on the Interior Department Appropriation Bill struck from the bill an item of $29,000 for the purchase of additional lands for the Albuquerque Indian School. Senator Chavez had joined in sponsoring the appropriation on information that it represented the fair value of the land but subsequent information developed that the property involved was assessed for tax purposes in Bernalillo County at $1,665.00. The property belonged to A. R. Hebenstreit of Albuquerque.

On the way to New Mexico for Alfredo Ortiz, newly elected Democratic Mayor of Santa Fe, are two handsome photographs of President Roosevelt and Postmaster General Farley. They are each autographed personally to Mr. Ortiz.

This week end Senator and Mrs. Chavez are leaving for Charleston, South Carolina where they are to be the guests of Senator and Mrs. Byrnes at the famous Azalea festival.

Petitions from Navajos from the different chapters on the Reservation continue to pour into Senator Chavez requesting a Senate investigation of conditions on the Navajo Reservation.

Treaty for Friendship in Which France May Join . . . Roosevelt's Spending Plan Starts Big Battle

Emergency rationing of troops by airplane and parachute was successfully accomplished in Texas by the army air corps during maneuvers. This picture shows metal food container for personnel rations, bale of hay and a 130-pound sack of oats, with parachutes attached, ready to be loaded on the bomb racks of the Martin bomber seen in background.

Move Toward Peace

NEVILLE CHAMBERLAIN'S dream of security for peace in Europe through amicable arrangements of the democratic governments with the dictators may yet be realized. Anyhow, consummation of the ideal was brought nearer when Lord Perth, British ambassador to Rome, and Italian Foreign Minister Ciano signed the treaty of friendship which had been under negotiation for weeks. The pact is designed to end the long feud between the two nations, and it is probable France will join in after negotiations with Mussolini already suggested by Foreign Minister Bonnet. The British prime minister, of course, hopes that later Hitler can be brought into the group and that there will be formed a London-Paris-Rome Berlin quadrangle in place of the Berlin-Rome axis.

Temporarily, the treaty provides for friendly relations between Britain and Italy in the Mediterranean and the Near East, but it does not go into full effect until "such date as the two governments together shall determine." In other words, Italy must first have withdrawn its troops from Spain and Britain must have recognized Italy's conquest of Ethiopia. The former may be delayed until France has won final victory. The latter depends upon permission from the League of Nations council, which has been asked by Chamberlain.

In essence, the treaty is a promise by each side not to attempt to change the status quo in the Mediterranean or Red sea areas nor to injure each other's interests there in any way.

Italy is to reduce her forces in Libya to peace time strength, and will adhere to the London naval treaty limiting the size of warships. The Suez canal is to be open to all nations equally in war or peace. Italy will abide by the international nonintervention committee's ruling on volunteers in the Spanish war and in case to withdraw from Spain entirely when the war is ended. Italy declares it has no territorial or political aims and seeks no privileged economic position in Spain, the Balearic islands, Spanish Morocco or Spanish possessions overseas.

Political leaders in Berlin did not minimize the importance of the Anglo-Italian pact, but insisted that the Berlin-Rome axis was not weakened. They were awaiting somewhat anxiously the visit of Premier Daladier and Foreign Minister Bonnet to London, scheduled for late in April. There were no indications in London or Paris that Britain and France were ready yet to deal with Hitler. But it was rumored that Poland might join them and Italy in a four-power pact.

Ready for Battle

BIG spenders and little spenders lined up rapidly for the congressional fight over President Roosevelt's program for pump-priming and relief, for which he asked congress to provide nearly seven billion dollars.

Senator Vandenberg's proposals, and administration leaders in both branches of congress laid plans to expedite the passage of the necessary legislation, still hoping for adjournment by May 14. Sam Rayburn said all were agreed on handling the legislation as an omnibus bill. He was confident it would go through the house quickly, and also confident of the defeat of attempts to earmark the recovery funds to assure congressional control over them. Opponents of the pump-priming led off with vigorous radio addresses by Chairman John Hamilton of the Republican national committee and Senator Vandenberg of Michigan. Hamilton came to the conclusion that "the President and the New Deal are far more interested in priming the pumps than in priming the pumps of industry." Vandenberg said the plan, whatever its temporary benefit, would work a "long run disaster."

The priming plan, Vandenberg said, means trying to spend the country into better times on borrowed money, trying to buy prosperity.

In his message to congress and in a radio talk to the nation, the President proposed three groups of measures. The first involves mainly additional appropriations for the coming fiscal year, as follows:

One billion two hundred and fifty million dollars for the Works Progress administration; $175,000,000 for the Farm Security administration; $75,000,000 for the National Youth administration, $50,000,000 for the Civilian Conservation corps, and the $1,500,000,000 already made available to the Reconstruction Corporation for lending to business enterprises.

In a second group of measures Mr. Roosevelt asked:

Three hundred million dollars for immediate expansion of the housing and slum-clearance work of the United States Housing authority; $1,450,000,000 for public works loans and grants; an additional $100,000,000 for public roads; an additional $37,000,000 for flood control and reclamation projects already authorized and an additional $25,000,000 for federal buildings.

A third group listed by the Chief Executive referred to private credit. It involved destitute of $1,400,000,000 of gold and a reduction by the Federal Reserve board of member bank reserve requirements which would add another $750,000,000 to the credit resources of the nation's banks. With these actions Mr. Roosevelt coupled a simplification of Security commission regulations.

Barcelona in Peril

SPANISH insurgents, having reached the Mediterranean at the port of Vinaroz, spread north and south along the coast and eventually cut off Catalonia from the rest of loyalist Spain. Veteran Spanish and Italian troops, led by Gen. Garcia Valino and Gen. Miguel Aranda, blasted their way into Vinaroz in a single day of severe combat, and Valino then started a northward drive on Tortosa, where important coastal highways converge.

Franco's next great objective was Barcelona. His forces were beginning a new movement against that city from the west, and his naval and air fleets left their bases to cooperate. After Barcelona falls, as it seems likely to do, Valencia will be attacked; and then Franco plans a final effort to take Madrid.

Dr. Townsend Pardoned

DR. FRANCES E. TOWNSEND, carrying a pair of socks and a typewriter, arrived at the jail in Washington, ready to serve his thirty day term for contempt of congress and become a martyr. But the old age pension planner was informed that President Roosevelt had pardoned him. The pardon was issued upon the urgent request of Representative C. Jasper Bell, chairman of the investigating committee before which Dr. Townsend refused to testify.

Won't Accept Pay Cut

WHILE congress and various government agencies were trying to find a way to save hard-pressed railroads from bankruptcy, the Association of American Railroads, represented by President John J. Pelley, and railway labor, represented by George M. Harrison, president of the Railway Labor Executives' association, conferred in vain over the desire of the managers to reduce the pay of the workers. The latter rejected the idea with scorn, and defied a threat by management representatives that railroads will invoke the railroad mediation act to enforce consideration of pay cuts.

"Wage cuts are out of the question," Harrison said. "I never heard of such a silly thing in my life. Management is trying to reduce buying power at the same time President Roosevelt is pouring out 4 1/2 billion dollars in an attempt to increase buying power. They aren't going to get one cent from us. That's all there is to that."

Benes Grants Amnesty

PRESIDENT BENES of Czechoslovakia contributed toward his country's inner tranquility and the peace of central Europe by proclaiming an Easter amnesty for about 4,000 political offenders, most of them agitators for German and other minorities. Excluded were Sudeten Germans who have fled abroad. Benes also made a radio address in which he said his government was ready to meet any situation arising from the troubled state of Europe, but was ready also to go as far as any of its neighbors in establishing good relations. He denied German charges that Czechoslovakia is going communist.

Congressman Vexed

WHILE committees of the senate and house were still trying to reconcile the widely differing versions of the tax bill passed by the two houses, President Roosevelt sent to the chairman a long letter urging retention of the tax on undistributed profits, which had been eliminated by the senate. Many members of congress thought the Chief Executive was intimating that he would veto the bill if this feature were omitted. That would leave in effect the present law carrying a severe tax which has been widely attacked as one of the causes of the prevailing business depression.

The intervention by Mr. Roosevelt at this time and in this manner was considered unprecedented and aroused many expressions of amazement and indignation, especially among the senate conferees. Senator Pat Harrison, their leader and the chairman of the senate finance committee, obviously displeased, said:

"The senate conferees will insist in conference on the amendments adopted in the senate."

"I believe that the repealing of the undistributed profits tax and the modifications of the capital gains tax, as adopted by the senate, will help business."

Three Now Saints

POPE PIUS took part in elaborate Easter ceremonies in St. Peter's church, Rome, and bestowed his blessing on an immense throng gathered before the basilica. He also formally canonized three new saints, these being Andrea Bobola of Poland, Salvador de Horta of Spain and Giovanni Leonardi of Italy.

In Jerusalem British troops and police kept order among Christians, Jews and Moslems, for all of whom Easter was a holy day.

Orville Wright Honored

MORE than 200 of America's leading figures in aeronautics gathered in Detroit on the invitation of Henry and Edsel Ford to pay tribute to Orville Wright, first man ever to fly an airplane.

The celebration, dedicating the newly restored group of Wright buildings at Ford's Greenwich Village, was in honor of Orville Wright and in memory of his brother Wilbur, who died in 1912.

Mayor Dore Is Dead

SEATTLE'S spectacular mayor, John F. Dore, died after a long illness. He had failed of re-nomination in the recent primaries. Dore was a brilliant lawyer and a fighting executive. He was allied politically with Dave Beck, labor leader.

Will Defend Peace

PAN-AMERICAN day was marked by an address by President Roosevelt, broadcast throughout the world, in which he warned all nations that the peoples of the American republics will not permit aggressor nations to threaten the peace of this hemisphere. All of them, he asserted, are firmly resolved to maintain peace, though this might entail sacrifices—even the sacrifice of life.

He reiterated this country's "good neighbor" policy in its relations with Central and South American countries and cited this hemisphere's successful "demonstration that the rule of justice and law can be substituted for the rule of force."

Household Hints

By BETTY WELLS

GOODNESS ME, we're always hearing about people who "come into" a little money, but we don't often meet one of them face to face. But now that one of our readers has come into a few hundred, we feel as if it were in the family, so to speak, and we are all of a flutter because we are going to have a chance to help spend it, at least she's written to ask us to tell her how! There's nothing we like to do more!

"I am up a tree," she writes. "I want a new rug and a living room set but am worried about the colors I should get. You see, I want the colors to fit in easily with the rest of my things in the living room and dining room. So perhaps I'd better give you an outline of our present picture:

"We have a little girl of two, so anything we get must be durable. Already we have a gold brocade barrel chair and a rust occasional chair which will have a new cover. The tables and incidental chairs are mahogany; the lamps are green and gold. The dining furniture is Eighteenth century mahogany with oyster white leatherette seats. The rug is plain teal green and the draperies are cream and green with shades of rose in the flowers. Most of the rest of the house is fully furnished and now we want to get the living room in order. Since we're new housekeepers, we'd appreciate any ideas on colors, accessories, wall paper, etc. Though we're mainly concerned about the rug and the living-room set."

Since the dining room is permanently committed to green because of the rug, we'd suggest a plan for the living room that would be congenial with this color. Of course you could have the same green in the living room, though it might be more interesting to use something in a little different tone. How would you like a textural rug in a much lighter green? That still wouldn't show foot marks and would be harmonious with the dining room. Then you could have your new sofa in a good purple burgundy which would be lovely with that light green in the rug. Then you might consider a very pale gray for the walls if the room is sunny enough. For draperies you could use the same linen as you have on that chair, and for accessories some interesting pieces of pewter and brass.

Red and Rose.

"I was digging in an old trunk the other day," writes Mrs. M. S. S., "and I ran across a piece of glazed chintz more than a hundred years old. It's a wonderful fabric in dark red with large rose colored flowers scattered over it. So I'm using it in doing over one of my bedrooms into what I call my old-fashioned room, using family heirlooms. I have a canopy poster bed, a chest of drawers, washstand, several old mahogany mirrors and three ladder back chairs.

"I have had the walls papered in a pale pink with a pattern of old time dark red and tan flowers. How shall I curtain the windows? There are two of them side by side. What use shall I make of the chintz? I have a piece seven yards long and twenty-two inches wide. The chest is mahogany. The chairs will have to be painted as the wood isn't good enough for a natural finish. The bed, I found after removing the varnish, is maple. Shall I stain it mahogany color? The natural maple is lovely, but I suppose it wouldn't go with the other woods. What kind of spreads and curtains shall I have for the bed?"

How lucky to have that old chintz! I think it would do nicely for the bedspread.

For the windows, you could get light blue window shades, then use sheer lace net curtains over them, looped in lovely wide swoops. Then if you could have a soft gray-blue plain rug, that would be nice. You could use light gray-blue in quilted material for slip covers for a pair of easy chairs—if you've any red chintz left, you can add little fat round cushions of it.

Leave the bed maple. I think it will be quite all right with the other woods—in fact I'd like it.

Value of Calcium in Bone Building

Minerals Have Important Part in Body Structure

By EDITH M. BARBER

BRICKS cannot be made without straw. Neither can bodies grow and develop without certain mineral elements which are sometimes known as the ash constituents of the body. If the total amount of mineral content in the bones, tissues and blood should be weighed, there would not be much by weight, but this would be no indication of the importance.

While it is not possible to differentiate among minerals as to which of the number are most necessary, there is none which bears a more important relation to the structure of the body than calcium. Ninety-nine per cent of this mineral is found in the bone, and if the calcium and phosphorus are removed from bone we find only flexible tissue remaining. Sometimes bones will continue to grow in size when this element is taken in too small quantities, and in this case bowed legs and other deformities result.

Calcium is also necessary for other body processes, such as the regulation of the way the heart beats and the manner in which the nerves react. It also enables the blood to clot quickly, after wounds either accidental or the result of an operation.

We find in milk, both in its fresh or evaporated form, our most liberal source of calcium. This is one of the reasons why milk is so important in the infant's diet. Certain vegetables, such as beans, beets, cabbage, carrots, cauliflower, peas and others, provide us with a certain amount of calcium. Some nuts and some fruits, such as those of the citrus family and a few others, also contribute. Egg yolk ranks next to milk when scored for calcium content. Cheese, as you would expect, equals milk on this count.

Cheese With Vegetables.

- 1 tablespoon butter
- 2 cups grated cheese
- 3/4 cups canned corn
- 1 pimiento
- 2 egg yolks
- 1/2 cup tomato juice
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1/2 teaspoon paprika
- 6 slices bread
- 1 clove garlic or onion to suit taste

In the melted butter stir the cheese until it is melted. Then add the corn and pimiento; stir for a moment and add the egg yolks beaten and mixed with the tomato juice and the salt and paprika. Have ready the bread toasted on one side and very lightly rubbed on untoasted side with garlic or onion. Pour the mixture over untoasted side of bread and serve at once.

Baked Onions With Milk.

Peel onions, put in baking dish. Sprinkle with salt and pepper, cover and bake in moderate oven (375 degrees Fahrenheit) half an hour. Add two cups of milk and continue baking for another half hour.

Toasted Cheese.

- 1/2 pound American cheese
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1/2 teaspoon mustard
- Paprika
- 1 egg
- 1/2 to 1 cup milk

Cut the cheese into small pieces. Place in a greased pan, sprinkle with mixed seasonings. Beat the egg in slightly and add one-half cup milk; add enough more milk to cover. Put pan in another pan of hot water and bake in a moderate oven about 20 minutes, until cheese is brown.

Cheese Filling.

- 1 tablespoon butter
- 2 tablespoons flour
- 1/2 cup milk
- 1/2 cup grated cheese
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- Pepper
- Cayenne
- 1 egg

Melt butter, stir in flour, add milk and stir constantly over low fire until mixtures boil. Add cheese and seasonings mixed with slightly beaten egg and stir until smooth. Use as a filling for small cream puffs or tiny pastry tart shells.

- 2 tablespoons flour
- 2 cups milk
- 2 tablespoons grated cheese
- 1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
- 6 eggs hard cooked
- Salt
- Pepper
- Paprika
- 1/2 pound mushrooms

Make a cream sauce by melting butter, adding flour, then milk. Cook until thickened, stirring constantly, add Worcestershire sauce, grated cheese and the chopped egg whites, and seasonings. Wash and skin mushrooms, chop and cook in a little butter for five minutes and add to sauce. Serve on toast; sprinkle grated egg yolks in the center add a dash of paprika and garnish with parsley or celery tops.

SYNOPSIS

Ruth Chiswick of L C ranch, obsessed by fear of danger to her outspoken father, Lee, from a band of lawless rustlers headed by Sperm Howard, decides to save him by eloping with young Lou Howard, Sperm's son, and comes to the town of Tall Holt to meet him. While in Yell Sanger's store, a crook-nosed stranger, sizes up the situation, and when a drunken cowboy, Jim Pender, rides in and starts shooting, protects Ruth, while Lou Howard hides. Disgusted with Lou's cowardice, Ruth calls off the elopement, and sends the stranger for her father at the gambling house across the street. There the stranger, calling himself Jeff Gray, meets Morgan Norris, a killer. Curly Connor, Kansas, Mile High, Sid Hunt and other rustlers, and Sperm Howard, Lee Chiswick enters, with his foreman, Dan Brand, and tells Sperm Howard of his orders to shoot rustlers at sight. Jeff Gray returns to Ruth and coldly reassures her of her father's safety. At supper, Ruth introduces Jeff to her father and Brand, and in Sanger's store later she speaks cordially to Curly Connor. Later, Ruth and Lee are greeted by sudden gunfire. Lee is wounded, and Jeff Gray appears with a smoking revolver. Two days later, Ruth tells her father of her projected elopement with Jeff Gray. Later, Ruth meets Sperm Howard who wants to see him. He shows Howard a poster with his picture, with the name of Clint Duke, wanted as the leader of a band of outlaws. The rest of the band arrives. Jeff shows the outlaws the poster and asks their confidence, and tells them Ruth shot him. They agree to allow him to stay. Another raid on the L C cattle causes Lee to line up his men in pursuit, and to send his son Frank to town to reconnoiter.

"I'll find out what I can," Frank said.

"Be careful about asking questions, and don't get into trouble with these thieves. If anyone wants to know what you are doing there, say you have come to meet a buyer we are expecting from New Mexico."

Frank cut back to the ranch while the others rode up Box canyon. It was already beginning to drizzle when the posse pushed into the high lands above the gorge. Before night fell it was raining steadily. Chiswick made camp on Stampede creek, well up toward the headwaters.

All through the night rain poured down. The campers rose in the morning wet and stiff. They warmed themselves at the fire, dried off as best they could, and caddised as a chill ran broke through the mist.

Chiswick divided his men. One half of them he sent with Dan Brand to comb the Flat-Tops. His can Bob and Sorley stayed with him. They dropped in on half a dozen mountain ranches on the far chance they might hear or see something of the missing stock. The owners of two or three of these were away from home. The others showed no pleasure at sight of the L C men.

Lee questioned them sharply. The answers were either evasive or sulky. They had no information to give him. For all he knew his cattle might be hidden in some gulch or hollow less than a mile distant.

Late in the day he joined Brand and his men at an appointed spot. The foreman had made a wide sweep of country without seeing any L C stuff. Wearily the riders returned to the ranch, getting in late at night.

Ruth knew from her father's dejection that they had been unsuccessful. She waited until after he had eaten to ask questions. While he smoked his pipe he told her of the expedition.

"This fellow Gray was in it," he said abruptly, when he had apparently finished.

She was clearing away the dishes and turned, slim figure alertly poised, to find out how he knew.

"Pat had checked up on his horse and knew the hoofprints," Chiswick explained. "They must have sent him here ahead of them to locate a good bunch to run off."

"And I believed his lies," Ruth said bitterly.

"Don't blame yourself for that. He might have fooled me too. The fellow looks you right in the eye when he talks. He doesn't look like a sneaking coyote. Well, we live and learn, girl."

Frank Chiswick took a room at Ma Presnall's, the only place at Tall Holt which offered accommodations. He could see that he was eyed with surprise by one or two men who knew him, but he took no overt notice of that. To Curly he mentioned casually that he was waiting for an expected cattle-buyer whom he was going to take back with him to the ranch. This information, he felt sure, would reach Sperm Howard and his rustler friends.

Once he caught sight of Lou Howard in the distance, and at that young man's strutting arrogance felt his fists involuntarily clinch. He had an urge to change the contour temporarily of the man's vapid, good-looking face, but he was under orders to keep out of trouble.

At the end of the second day he went back to his boarding-house completely bored. He washed up, and went down for supper.

At the long table in the dining-room Ma Presnall put him next a crook-nosed stranger with reddish hair. Presently the man mentioned amiably that his name was Gray.

The words were a little shock to Frank. His swift gaze swept the man, down and up. He noted a certain pantherish lightness of body, a hard recklessness of face. A chill ran through young Chiswick. His first impulse was to fling out a challenge, but he remembered his father's instructions. He was not to get into trouble with their enemies.

Stiffly he answered, iron in his voice, "I am Frank Chiswick."

Two or three of those at the table were watching them.

"I reckon you don't feel friendly, Mr. Chiswick," drawled Gray.

"Would you expect me to feel friendly with a man who tried to murder my father and later helped to rustle his cattle?" Frank asked harshly.

"You've certainly got me wrong, sir," Gray replied, with unhurried courtesy. "But I don't expect I can convince you of it."

"Not in a hundred years," Frank retorted hotly. "I don't wish to talk with you, sir, or to know you when we meet."

"Short and sweet," Gray said with a smile, his manner cheerfully indifferent. "It's a blow, but I expect I'll have to get along without knowing Mr. Frank Chiswick."

He turned and began to talk with the man on the other side of him.

As soon as supper was over, Frank went to the landlady and asked her to change his seat to the other end of the table.

The day after Frank reached Tall Holt, he saw Morgan Norris and Mile High jog into town and tie at the hitchbar in front of the Golden Nugget. Young Chiswick sauntered up the street and turned in at Curt Dubbs' place. He knew he would not be exactly welcome there, but the objection to his patronage would probably be expressed only in pointed hints.

Morris and Mile High were at the bar slaking thirst after a short visit to a hidden cache. A poker game was in progress, but the wheel and the faro table were both deserted. It was too early in the day for them. Inside of an hour they would be going full blast. Around the poker table sat six men. Curly and Jeff Gray were two of them.

To Mile High his companion said, out of the corner of his mouth, "Tall Holt sure is being honored these days."

Mile High glanced at Chiswick hastily, to see if he had caught the slur. "What's eatin' you, Morg?" he said hastily. "No use raisin' a rookus."

"Am I raisin' a rookus because I'm grateful the big moguls have started drappin' in on us?" he asked offensively.

Frank moved away. He heard Norris say, without troubling to lower his voice, "I was aimin' to ask him how his old man is getting along putting down the rustlers."

The tall cowpuncher laughed, then tried to cover his mirth with a decorous cough.

Chiswick flushed angrily. The rage was still simmering in him when he passed the poker table and met the bland smile of Gray. He felt the disadvantage of youth. He was not philosophical enough to ignore insults without letting them burn him up, nor neat enough of tongue to answer them with a stinging retort that could not be construed as a challenge.

Out of the back door Frank passed into a night roofed by a star-peppered sky. He cut across a vacant lot and walked up the narrow, dusty road leading to a crooked canyon the black mouth of which opened in front of him.

In the shadow of a cottonwood he saw the figures of a man and a woman locked in embrace. The murmur of the man's low voice reached him as he passed. At the end of the road, where it terminated in a narrow trail running up the canyon, Frank turned and retraced his steps.

The girl beneath the cottonwood ran into the adjoining house and the man came out to the road. He was just behind Chiswick, whistling gaily, "Good-by, my lover, good-by." His brisk stride presently brought him abreast of Frank.

"Lo, fellow, How are cases?" he asked cheerfully.

His good spirits subsided abruptly. Lou Howard did not feel like a conquering hero when he recognized in the man beside him Frank Chiswick.

"So you're at it again," Frank said grimly.

There was a false note of heartiness in the glib reply of Howard.

"I been wanting to have a talk with you, Frank," he said. "I reckon you have done heard Ruth's side of the story. You know her better than I do—how bossy she is when she gets a notion in her head, and has to have her own way. I tried to talk her out of this eloping business, and finally I did all right. Told her to go home and behave like a good girl, which of course she is, come down to brass tacks."

"You liar," Frank said. He had heard gossip since he came to town.

Howard bristled. "Looky here. You can't talk thataway to me. I won't stand it for a minute."

"I am talking that way. I'm telling you that you're a liar and a yellow cur. Right now I'm going to whale the life out of you."

Frank weighed twenty pounds less than the other man. He was only nineteen years old and Howard was twenty-four. In actual physical strength he was no match for the Tall Holt loafer, but he had one great asset. He yearned to get at this scamp who had, according to his view, insulted Ruth and dragged her name into common talk, whereas Howard had gone panicky at the thought of a fight.

"Don't you monkey with me, fellow," blustered Lou. "My friends will make you mighty sorry if you try to do me a meanness."

"Put up yore dukes," Frank ordered.

The larger man backed away, protesting that he did not want to fight.

"But you're going to all the same," insisted Chiswick, and he drew his hand insultingly across the cheek of the other.

Howard reached for a gun. The fingers of Frank's left hand closed on his wrist and twisted the arm. With a yelp of pain Howard dropped the revolver to the ground. He broke free and tried to run. Within a dozen strides Frank landed on his back and brought him down.

As he scrambled to his feet, Chiswick crowded him against an adobe wall and lashed out at his frightened face. Feebly Howard put up his arms to defend himself. He took for five minutes a hard drubbing, then collapsed to the ground.

"For God's sake, don't!" he whined. "I've had enough. You're killing me."

"I've heard about yore talk," Frank panted, still hot with anger. "Listen. If you ever mention my sister's name again I'll beat you till you can't stand."

He turned on his heel and walked down the road.

Frank had no feeling of elation at what he had done, but he could not blame himself. To thrash a man who was too cowardly to fight was no pleasure. Yet he had at least stopped Howard from talking about Ruth. The fellow would keep his mouth shut after this.

It would be better to go back to the rooming-house; Chiswick decided. To hang around Main street now would be asking for trouble. Someone very likely would take on the quarrel for Lou. If so, it would be with guns. By morning a more reasonable point of view would obtain.

He turned into Main street down the alley beside the Golden Nugget. As he did so, he caught sight of a man at the hitchrack in front of the gambling-house. The man was Jeff Gray. Frank stopped in the shadow and watched him.

Gray was examining the hoof of a horse. He put down the foot of the animal, glanced swiftly at the door of the Golden Nugget, and moved to a second horse tied to the rack. He stooped and picked up the left hind leg of the cow-pony. Long and carefully he studied the hoof, not forgetting to look occasionally in the direction of the door. Clearly, he did not want to be caught at this inspection.

He straightened, dusted his hands, and walked into the Golden Nugget.

On his way to the lodging-house Frank asked himself questions. The horses at the hitchrack had been the ones upon which Morg Norris and Mile High had ridden into town a little while ago. What was Gray trying to find out? Why was he interested in these horses more than any others? He seemed on friendly terms with the outlaws. Yet Frank had sensed a latent hostility between the stranger and Morgan Norris. Oh, well, thieves fell out among themselves. Frank went to his room and forgot the incident. Very likely it had no importance.

Five minutes later Lou Howard pushed open the door of the Golden Nugget and moved, feet dragging, to the bar.

"Gimme a drink—a stiff one," he ordered.

The bartender stared at his bruised and bleeding face. "Holy mackerel! You been tangling with a grizzly, Lou?" he asked.

"He jumped me—when I wasn't looking," Howard said, almost weeping with self-pity.

"Who jumped you?" Morgan Norris wanted to know.

"Frank Chiswick. That's who."

"A kid," Norris jeered. "No such thing. An' he lit on my back while I was walking down the road, then beat me up something awful."

"You sure look like a tiger had clawed you," Curly said cheerfully. "Frank certainly worked you over considerable."

He was immensely pleased at the retribution which had fallen on Howard.

"Time someone cut the comb of those Chiswicks," Norris growled. "I'll go along with you any time you say to fix this fellow's clock, Lou."

"How much help do you reckon Lou will need, Morg?" Curly inquired, with intent to insult young Howard.

"You throwin' in with the Chiswicks, Curly?" murmured Norris derisively.

"Would I have to ask yore permission, Morg?" the black-haired man demanded coolly. "Or am I free, white, and twenty-one?"

The eyes of Morgan Norris flickered over Curly. The killer leaned negligently against the bar, his body slumped, his eyes sleepy. But in him was the suggestion of violent eruption one sees in a crouched tiger.

"I like to know who my friends are, Curly," he said softly.

"Don't get you, Morg. When a kid whops a loose-mouthed scawlag bigger and older than he is, do we all have to get on the prod about it?"

First Dentistry by Family Jewelers; Blacksmiths Also Drew Aching Molars

Back in Revolutionary war days men called upon their blacksmiths when they wanted aching molars drawn. Ladies of the nicer families, garbed in flowing gowns and powdered wigs, visited their jewelers for the drawing of a tooth and for its replacement.

While the war was at its height two sly, excitable Frenchmen arrived in this country with brown leather packs containing iron forceps, wires, dog teeth human teeth and goat teeth. These two men, said a bulletin of the Dental Institute of America, were the first real dentists of professional background in America. Crude as were their methods, they were like rain on a parched field.

"What a steep road dental science has climbed in the intervening 160 years," says the Institute. "Leaders in Europe observe that we are fifty years ahead of the old world. Our 60,000 dentists are highly-skilled and of superior scientific intellect.

The foreigners point to our triumph in modern dentures, or plates. They are amazed at our successful treatment of pyorrhea in its early stages. X-ray progress here in revealing hidden infections impresses the European dentist, as does our new science of straightening teeth."

Dental experts from "Europe, studying conditions in this country, were also impressed by the extent to which specialization had entered the profession. "Dental specialists include the pedodontist who works entirely with the mouths of children, the radiodontist who X-rays teeth, the orthodontist who straightens teeth, the exodontist who specializes in extraction, the pyorrhea specialist, known as a periodontist, and the prosthodontist, who makes and fits plates. While the average dentist is proficient in most branches of the science, many practitioners now restrict their activities to special phases of the profession."

'Living Death' In Prison Cell Told by Byron

By ELIZABETH C. JAMES

LORD BYRON'S "The Prisoner of Chillon" is a story of dungeons and chains, of cruelty and death. Beside Lake Lemán in Switzerland stands a castle that once saw the imprisonment and death of the last members of a noble family. The dungeon of this castle was so deep that the water of the lake seeped through the walls and formed little pools on the prison floor. Sunlight never came into the dark prison, there was only one window and that was high and small. Through it came light during a short part of the day, but the sunshine never came through, and the distorted light gave a wan and ghostly appearance to the interior of the deep dungeon.

Elizabeth James

Into this prison were placed three brothers. They were the last members alive of their honorable family. There had been seven in the beginning, but the father had been burned at the stake, two brothers had died on the field of battle and their mother had died of a broken heart.

Placed so that they could not see each other, each man was chained to a rock pillar. Now the three of them languished in their chains which were so fastened that their bodies were soon indelibly scarred.

One Brother Dies. After a time the voice of the second brother, the active, out-of-door one, grew more and more despondent; he spoke more softly and less often. Then he did not speak at all. When the keeper came to bring their water and prison food, he found this brother dead.

The two remaining brothers, the oldest and the youngest sons of the family, talked with each other of the battles and the insurrection that had brought them to this prison. But one day the youngest of the family did not answer to his brother's call.

LORD BYRON A PLAYBOY

Two handicaps attended George Gordon, Lord Byron: his family environment and his own vanity. Gordon grew up without training, for his mother, being deserted by her willful husband, the rowdy Captain Byron, declined into melancholia so overwhelming that at times her mind seemed doomed. The parents left the boy to grow up alone.

Byron's natural pride was enhanced by his unexpected inheritance of the estate and title, for which there had been two heirs ahead of him. His attractiveness combined with his lack of principle kept him in mix-ups with women all his life.

His marriage to a lovely woman of England went happily for only a short time. Soon after their daughter was born, Lady Byron left her husband, never to return to him. She steadfastly refused to give any reason for this, but London soon heard of his behavior in a scandal. He was ostracized, and fled to Italy. Until the end of his life, Byron lived on the continent.

er's voice. There was only quietness in the dungeon, broken by the hysterical cries of the eldest son shrieking to his brother to stay with him. But he had died.

Terror, Then Calm.

For a time he was stunned with grief, he lost track of time or place. He was not conscious of anything except vague oblivions. Then gradually his senses returned to remind him that he was alone in the prison cell. When the keepers came and found that he had burst his chains they did not consider that it was worthwhile to chain him fast again, so they left him free to walk about the dungeon.

Then he wanted to see the world again, and he made steps up the side of the uneven rock wall until he could clutch the ledge of the window and pull himself up to look out through the little opening. Across the waters of Lake Lemán and opposite the castle, he saw in the distance an island, green and bright in the summer sun.

Freedom Meaningless.

Then one day he was set free. Someone came to the castle and made negotiations. After a time a keeper opened the heavy barred door and told him that he could now go free.

The prisoner stood alone on the shore of the lake. Where could he go? He had no one in the world to whom he could return. Every kinsman had been killed, there was no friend left who would welcome him. He was still as much alone as if he were yet chained to his pillar in the dungeon.

Lord Byron wrote his poem, "The Prisoner of Chillon," from a true story. There was a prisoner, one Francois Bonivard, kept for four years in the dungeon of the Castle of Chillon, near Lake Geneva.

LAST FERRYBOAT ON MISSISSIPPI GOES

Owner Finds Business Won't Pay for Repairs.

Dayton, Minn.—The last of the ferryboats which once did a thriving business on the leisurely sweep of the mighty Mississippi has been doomed.

Fate of the boat hung in the balance for a time last summer. Then elderly Capt. Duffy Martin sat down, grabbed a stub of a pencil and chewed his voluminous mustache as he figured. When he had added up the cost of a new cable and of repairing the cable towers he realized it would cost him more than he would ever get out of it.

Today the boat lies on the bank at the end of a dusty trail in Dayton, 28 miles upriver from the Twin Cities. Its floor planks are ripped up, its beams and timbers are drying in the fall sun, and its cable is wound around a pair of convenient trees.

The towers are down and the river before Martin's frame house for the first time in half a century is clear. So one of the toughest hangers-on of the old romantic river occupations on the Mississippi is gone.

Born Adolf Martin in New Brunswick, Duffy, as everyone knows him, came to Dayton in 1881. He bought the ferry in 1902. He has no idea how long it had been run prior to that time. Its total life span has been at least 50 years, he calculates.

Five owners had it before Martin got hold of it—most of them for several years at a stretch.

Of late years business hasn't been good. Travelers are only occasional. The ferry would hold two automobiles, or a team and wagon.

Time was, Martin recalls, when business was brisk on the muddy Mississippi. Travelers couldn't spend the time to drive teams to the bridges.

Martin is satisfied (at seventy-five) that he's been the last ferryman on the big river. The heavy currents used to make the cable twang like a bull fiddle string. Now it's down and put away. That's all right with Martin. He likes it better quiet now.
