Personnel of Vera Cruz Mine Give Picnic Sunday Over 100 Visitors Take Trip Through Tunnel of Famous Old Mine.

One hundred visitors attended a picnic and barbecue at the Vera Cruz mine last Sunday.

A good road has been built to the mine, so that cars can drive up the mountain to within 200 feet of the entrance shaft. Others were invited, besides those who attended the picnic, but on account of the big rain, did not go, so consequently much of the refreshments and drinks were left over.

Hosts and hostesses were: Mr. R. W. Hopkins, of Denver, Colo., Mr. and Mrs. John A. Pratt and daughter, and Mr. A. G. Skero, superintendent of the mine.

"The Carrizozo Mining Company," a recently organized company, has leased from Mr. Tom McDonald and his associates, the Vera Cruz mine. The lease started in September, 1937, and operations have been in progress since November 15, 1937. Four men have been busy continually since that date. Vera Cruz, a mountain of fair grade ore, lies about eight miles from Carrizozo in the Tiscon (pronounced Tyson) group of mountains. As far back as 1909 the former owners constructed a fine milling plant and a first class electric power plant. The Vera Cruz mine has been the scene of much activity, and again has suffered periods of depression common to all mining projects.

The present company feel that the resources of the mine have just been scratched. They are already in 50 feet of ore, which is valued at $5.00 and $6.00 per ton. The tunnel is 925 feet down, and they intend to make it 250 feet deeper, then up another 250 feet, and down another 250 feet. There will be at least two thousand more feet of drifting and crosscutting; latest type air compressors are in use.

The contractors are Lill Bros., of Delores, Colorado.

Directors of the Carrizozo Mining Company are: John A. Pratt and Robert Hopkins, Denver; C. A. Harbaugh, Kansas; Allen B. Williams, Chicago; John T. Fuller, consulting engineer, Homestead, Penn. Mr. Fuller is also consulting engineer of the Aluminum Company of America; Mr. Williams, General Sales Manager of the Sales Department, is also with the Aluminum Company of America; Mr. Skero, the superintendent, was with the Federal Mining Company, of Idaho, for seven years. Messrs Hopkins, Harbaugh and Williams are well known mining men who are also connected with the Hesperus Mining Company of Colorado, and with the San Juan Milling and Refining Corporation, of Colorado. These gentlemen are installing up-to-date machinery and expect to have a new 500-ton mill in operation by March 1, 1939.

Raise Food at Home

Farm Families - Who is paying your grocery bills this winter?

Mrs. Dorothy Whitman, Home Management Supervisor with Farm Security Administration has charge of Lincoln and Otero Counties with headquarters at Alamogordo. She is encouraging all families under her supervision to have gardens which will be sufficient for home use, have plenty to can, and store through the winter.

Mrs. Whitman is planning a large canning program this year. She is making every effort to teach those underprivileged families to plan for winter food supply. Accurate figures have been kept by Farm Security Administration people in connection with providing food supplies and it has definitely been decided that farm families should be encouraged to develop a "live at home" program.

The following is a good recipe which can be used where families do not have sufficient containers to use.

Dried String Beans

Cook fresh string beans until tender in salt water. Remove from fire and drain. String each pod on a string and hang in a shaded place to dry. When dry store in a flour sack in a dry place.

To use in the winter soak beans two hours, cook and season as you would fresh beans.

Walter Grumbles, Jr., who has been suffering from a nervous breakdown is very much improved. He is visiting his mother in Tucumcari at present.

Mrs. Agnes Bonnell

Mrs. Agnes Coe Bonnell, age 49 passed away in the Ft. Stanton hospital Saturday July 9, 1938, from acute appendicitis after an illness of only a few days. She was married in 1908 to Mr. Nelson Bonnell who died in November, 1935.

She is survived by eight children to whom sympathy is extended.

Funeral services were held Sunday June 10, in St. Ann's Chapel at Glencoe by Rev. Howdon of Roswell.

Tombstone to Sell

The once booming mining town of Tombstone, Ariz., is willing to sell itself, lock, stock and barrel, to the movie industry for $75,000.

The purchase price includes the hitching posts, but not the post-office, said Producer Harry Sherman.

The whole plan would be to turn the now decaying cluster of weather-beaten buildings over to the movies as a permanent site for location purposes.

Back in 1902, a booming town of 7,000 persons, Tombstone population today is approximately 500.

Excursion to Old Mexico

A special excursion to Mexico City will leave El Paso July 30, arriving in Mexico City August 3, after stop over at following points: Chihuahua City, Torreon, Guadalajara, Uruapan, Patzcuaro Lake, Morelio. The trip will include 3,200 miles at a cost of $35.00 American Currency. Exchange rate at this time is five pesos for one American dollar.

American Legion Elects New Officers

On July 14, 1938, at a special meeting of the Post, called for the purpose of electing officers, the following officers were duly elected:

Commander—Joe West.
1st Vice Com.—Pete Johnson.
2nd Vice Com.—David W. Stewart.

Post Historian Chaplin—Clyde M. Luckey.

Sergeant-at-Arms—Julio Hernandez.

In addition to the above officers, Henry Hoffman and A. J. Scharf were elected on the executive committee. Floyd L. Rowland was re-appointed Post Adjutant. Delegates to State Convention in Raton, Aug. 4th, 5th and 6th were elected as follows: Commander Joe West, Delegate, and Floyd L. Rowland, Alternate

Boy Scout Camps

To complete the summer camping activities in the Eastern New Mexico Area Council, Boy Scouts of America, three water camps will be conducted by the Council. The first one will be at Lake Van, Dexter, New Mexico, August 8-11; the next one to be at Carlsbad, New Mexico, August 15-18; and the final one probably at Clovis, New Mexico, August 22-25. These short term camps, with a program based on water activities, have proven very popular. They are conducted on the Camp-O-Ral basis, which means that the boys bring their own food and shelter and do their own cooking. There is a registration fee of twenty-five cents (25c) for each boy. This type of camp has permitted hundreds of Scouts, financially unable to attend Camp We-hin-ah-pay, to experience several days in the open with all the benefits involved. C. K. Eisler, Field Executive of the Council, located at Hobbs, will direct the first two camps and M. G. King, Field Executive, will direct the Clovis camp.

"Puddin' Head Jones"

The popular Gray Company's show was here last Friday night and put on "Puddin' Head Jones" at Community Hall, after which a dance was enjoyed. It rained in torrents at different times, and in different localities all day Friday, but in spite of the rain, the play and dance were quite successful. The Rainbow Order for Girls sponsored the show and dance and of course everyone knows rainbows are always brightest just after a rain and the Carrizozo Rainbows were no exception to the rule. The dance was a complete success socially and a fair sum was cleared for their treasury.

Mr. and Mrs. Gray had their infant son, Erman, jr., along. He is a bright-eyed handsome youngster—a prize-winner we should say. He takes the show business philosophically and as a matter of course—smiling his way into every one's heart. He may be a star comedian, and a good actor too, one of these days, like his dad.

Losses Appeal

C. W. Van Sickle, carpenter and builder of Lincoln county, who says he built a house for a man and his wife with the understanding that they would board him for the rest of his life and give him a suitable burial when he died, has lost his appeal in the state supreme court.

In an opinion by Justice Brice, the supreme court affirms District Judge Nana C. Frenger's decree dismissing Van Sickle's bill, reserving to him, however, his right of action at law or by creditor's bill if he so elects. Justice Hudspeth dissents, but the other four members of the court concur with Brice.

Van Sickle sued for an interest in, and to impress equitable lien against, real estate in Lincoln county.

Herbert Tarbert

Herbert Tarbert passed away Thursday, July 14, 1938, in the Southern Pacific Hospital in San Francisco. Mr. Tarbert had been quite ill for some time. He was recently operated on for sinus trouble and an abscessed lung. He also contracted bronchial pneumonia from which he died.

Mr. Tarbert was married to Miss Helen McCammon in Arizona about eight years ago. They lived in Arizona for awhile, later moving to Fort Stanton, where Mr. Tarbert was employed. Besides his widow, he is survived by a little daughter six years old and an infant daughter, five months old, to all of whom friends extend deepest sympathy.

Mrs. D. L. Byron left this week for Arkansas to visit relatives. Mrs. Byron may settle in the Ozark mountains and not return to New Mexico.

R. A. Crawford, P. C.

Mr. Louis Nalda, manager of Red Canyon Sheep Co., was in town on business the last of the week.

"No. 54"

We've heard a lot in song and story about Highway 54.

"It's a bear." On June 27th, 1938, a big meeting of boosters for 54 was held at Corona. One hundred and ten delegates were there—all enthusiastic about making it a transcontinental and military highway. One of the main bridges washed out between here and Oscura in the big rain of three weeks ago. To date nothing has been done, not even to repair the washed out bridge. When you drive that way you encounter a large "detour" sign, and promptly go angling off down the canyon several hundred feet where you find the bank not too steep and angle out on the other side. Recently some of the Highway patrol went down that way to work things out. On account of this being a dry country they parked the caterpillar and grader in an arroyo where they were working, then a big rain came Monday night and just about buried the "cat" and maintainer under a ton or two of silt, boulders and debris. These conditions should not prevail. Dr. Blaney says, "No. 54 is getting no better fast." We agree unanimously.

Household Hints

By BETTY WELLS

WE'D a lot rather go shopping than go buying. Because when we just go shopping we can look to our heart's content, and the sky's the limit as to price and utility. Whereas, when we embark on an expedition to really buy this or that, well, that's something else again. We have to stick to the things we can afford for one thing. And for another, we have to consider wear, usefulness, practicability and a host of other dull and necessary points. The other day we started out bright and early on a shopping expedition with only carfare in our purse. We hadn't the slightest intention of buying so much as a paper of pins. We were just in search of bright notions and new ideas. And we found some beauties. Such as: A perfectly delicious quilt-bedspread of white quilted intricately all over with a garland flower border applied on all around the edges. Then to match, a quilted slip cover for the headboard of the bed. The one we saw had the flowers intricately shaded out of separate patches. But to save a lot of work, an enterprising lady could copy the idea by cutting out garlands from a piece of chintz or cretonne, then applying them on and outlining the flowers with quilting.

Applied flowers for a quilted bedspread.

A fresh cool-looking bedspread of pink and white striped seersucker finished with white ruffles was another find. Can you think of anything prettier, unless it would be a white and pink birthday cake and 10 party-dressed little girls around a pink and white table?

A yellow chintz dressing table petticoat with ruffles of white eyelet embroidery such as we once wore on our long-sleeved nighties. Very sunny looking.

Hassocks for the porch made out of awning striped canvas. Why wouldn't that be a good idea for recovering old bedragged hassocks? Or for padding and covering some seal-high packing boxes that might be handy around the place. Flowered chintz cushions with ruffles all around in plain color—the edges of the ruffles pinked. Looks blithe and saves hemming or binding.

What to Do With Drab Windows "Deep in the doldrums," writes Ella K., "would describe my mood. And all because my windows look so dull and drab. Yet there's no use to think that I can go in for fancy draperies. I couldn't even afford the price of fine material, much less the time to make them. So what's a lady to do? I'd like to add some simple valance to dress up the windows but I haven't an idea in my head. Can you suggest something interesting that I could do without taking too much time or money? And thereby win my undying gratitude."

We have lots of tricks up our sleeve for you. So take your choice: For a rather dignified room, arrange a swag valance hung through rings (as illustrated) which fasten to the top of the window frame. A swag like this needs to have its Rings make a draped valance easy to hang. folds very carefully arranged and basted in at the corners. The cascade at the sides that join it should be nicely draped too. Most fabrics used this way should be lined, but there are some that will fall nicely without lining. This valance can hang over sheer curtains and sheer draperies.

For an informal room, take a six-inch width of buckram and cover with a plain colored material on which have been stitched three horizontal rows of contrasting ball fringe. Attach to a flat curtain rod by sewing five curtain hooks with two-inch braces on the back of your strip. This makes a nice finish for the top of a simple curtain. You can make tie-backs to match if you like. We saw this worked out with curtains of ecru, valance covered in blue with ball fringe in ecru. Another idea for dolling up a window is to use a plain material with rows and rows of rickrack in a contrasting color—then have tie-backs to match. © Betty Wells—WNU Service.

Hints on Ways to Serve Cantaloupe

Sometimes With Ice Cream, or Other Fruit

By EDITH M. BARBER

IN SELECTING a cantaloupe, ripeness may be determined by making sure that the stem has been torn off completely. This shows that the melon was ripe when picked. There should also be a real fragrance and there should, of course, be no soft spots.

Melons should be thoroughly chilled before they are served and not filled with ice at the last moment. While our favorite method of serving them is in their own natural form after cutting and removing the seeds, we sometimes like to serve them with a ball of ice cream or with other fruits for special occasions. While melon balls are often used for salads or fruit cups, I prefer thin slices for these purposes. Cantaloupe combined with honeydew or watermelon gives an attractive color and flavor contrast.

Watermelon Pickle.

- 5 pounds pared watermelon rind
- 1 gallon lime water
- 1 gallon water
- 3 quarts brown sugar
- 1/4 cup whole cloves
- 1/4 cup whole allspice
- 2 tablespoons whole mace
- 2 sticks cinnamon

Cut melon rind into one-inch pieces and soak in lime water three hours. Drain and soak in fresh water one hour. Boil together the water and two quarts of the sugar. In this syrup cook rapidly the drained melon rind for 30 minutes. Then add the rest of the sugar and the spices, tied in a bag, and cook until the melon rind is transparent. Pack in hot jars and seal.

Orange and Melon Cups.

- Orange sections
- Mint leaves
- Melon slices

Arrange sections of orange and melon slices in sherbet glasses. Chill thoroughly. Serve garnished with mint leaves. A tablespoon of cherry may be poured over each glass before serving if desired.

OLD FAVORITES

Dressing for Green Salads.

- Livers of two chickens, boiled
- Yolks of two hard cooked eggs
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 1 teaspoon prepared mustard
- 1/2 teaspoon white pepper
- 1/2 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
- 3 tablespoons vinegar
- 1/2 cup olive oil.

Mash and mix to a paste the chicken livers and egg yolks. Add seasonings and vinegar, pour in olive oil drop by drop, stirring in the same direction until the consistency of thin mayonnaise. Mix with salad.

Spinach Salad.

- 1 pint spinach
 - 2 hard-cooked eggs
 - Special french dressing
- Chop the spinach. Chop separately the whites and yolks of the eggs and mix with the spinach. Pour over the salad the french dressing and toss well.

Raspberry Ice.

- 3 1/2 cups ripe raspberries
- 1 cup sugar
- 1 cup water
- 1 1/2 tablespoons lemon juice.

Mash the berries through a coarse sieve or a potato ricer. Cook the sugar and water together, allowing it to boil for three minutes. Cool. Add to the raspberry juice and the lemon juice and freeze. Since raspberries are of such varying sweetness it is best to taste the mixture before freezing to make sure sufficient sugar has been added. It should be sweeter than you wish the finished ice to be, since it loses sweetness during freezing.

Maple Parfait.

- 4 egg yolks
- 1 cup hot maple syrup
- 1 pint cream

Beat the egg yolks slightly and pour on slowly the maple syrup. Cook over hot water until the mixture thickens; cool, and add the cream, beaten until stiff. Mold, pack in salt and ice, using two parts of ice to one part of salt, and let stand four hours. Or freeze in tray in automatic refrigerator.

Maple Frosting.

- 1 cup maple sugar
- 1/2 cup boiling water
- 6 marshmallows or two tablespoons marshmallow cream
- 2 egg whites
- 1/2 teaspoon vanilla

Cook sugar and water together, stirring until sugar is dissolved. Cook without stirring to the soft-ball stage, 238 degrees Fahrenheit, add the marshmallow to hot syrup. Stir until smooth. Pour syrup onto stiffly beaten egg whites, beating constantly until stiff enough to spread; add vanilla. Cool before spreading. © Bell Syndicate.—WNU Service.

HELP KIDNEYS

To Get Rid of Acid and Poisonous Waste Your kidneys help to keep you well by constantly filtering waste matter from the blood. If your kidneys get functionally disordered, they may be removed excess impurities, there may be poisoning of the whole system and body-wide distress. Burning, scanty or too frequent urination may be a warning of some kidney or bladder disturbance. You may suffer from backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—feet swell, nervous, all played out. In such cases it is better to rely on a medicine that has been country-wide acclaimed than on some more or less probably known. Use Doan's Pills. A testimonial of grateful people recommends Doan's. No one would think of going about in midsummer wearing the same garments that were worn all winter. Yet many women continue to serve the same type of meals which were required to keep the body warm in winter...

Beating the Heat There are several factors to bear in mind when planning the hot-weather diet. The first secret of keeping cool is to supply the body machinery with food fuel that can be utilized with the least expenditure of energy.

Warm weather is responsible for muscular relaxation in the digestive tract, as well as other parts of the body. And you run the risk of digestive upsets, with their discomfort and health hazards, unless you make every effort to lessen the work of your digestive system.

Eat lightly of rich fatty meats, pastries, rich cakes, sauces and gravies. At all times, choose easily digestible foods.

Overeating Saps Vitality Don't overeat. The task of handling excess food is a burden to the body at any season. In hot weather, it will cause the body temperature to mount along with the thermometer, and may result in a serious upset...

Need for Body-Building Foods The protein requirement remains the same summer and winter. Some people think that meat should not be eaten in summer, or should be reduced to a minimum. But there is no closed season for growth in children, and moreover, they play so constantly and indulge in such strenuous exercise that they break down body tissue very rapidly...

It is desirable, however, to avoid rich, fatty meats and to select protein foods that are more easily digestible, as chicken, lamb, lean beef and lean fish. Special emphasis should be placed on milk, cheese and eggs.

Liquids Essential To help you keep cool, the summer diet must include an abundance of liquids. These are necessary to make up for the large amounts of moisture lost from the body through increased perspiration.

Liquids may be taken in the form of milk, fruit juices and cooling drinks made from pure water and packaged beverage crystals containing dextrose, fruit acid, flavoring and coloring.

Hot Weather and Vitamin C Two European investigators recently found that exposure to high temperatures causes a 50 per cent loss in vitamin C from the body tissues. And lowered vitamin C reserves are partially responsible for that tired feeling so often experienced in warm weather.

Choose Cold Drinks Carefully A cold drink is comforting on a hot day. And in addition, sweetened beverages help to relieve fatigue, for their carbohydrate content supplies available energy. Sugar is the least heating of the energy producing foods, for less than one-sixteenth of the energy it supplies to the body is converted into heat. The rest goes into brain and muscle power.

Therefore, one good way to prevent needless fatigue in summer is to take a cool, moderately sweetened drink whenever you feel tired during the day.

Too highly sweetened beverages, however, may be heating to the body, though they are cooling to the palate. For this reason, it is advisable for homemakers to mix their own cool drinks so that they can control the amount of sweetening used.

Excellent idea, especially in households where there are children, for the home-made drink antisepsis thirst, provides needed energy and discourages them from buying bottled beverages of doubtful purity.

Summary of Wool Situation

Although little change in domestic wool prices is expected in the immediate future, some strengthening in prices may occur before the end of the year, the U. S. Bureau of Agricultural Economics reports. Stocks of finished and semi-finished goods probably have been sharply reduced in recent months, and some recovery in mill consumption of wool from present low levels appears likely for the late summer and fall. Prices in foreign markets may continue steady in view of prospects for some decrease in production in the Southern Hemisphere.

Supplies of raw wool in the United States at the present time are considerably larger than at the same time in 1936 and 1937. But if imports remain small, as now appears likely, an increase in consumption in the latter part of 1938 over that of a year earlier might result in smaller stocks of wool on January 1, 1939, than at the beginning of the current year, but stocks probably will remain relatively large.

The weekly rate of mill consumption of apparel wool in the United States during May was the highest reported since last September. The May consumption, however, was 43 per cent lower than in May, 1937. Consumption in the first 2 months of the year was only half as large as in the same months of last year and was about 30 per cent smaller than the average consumption for those months in the 5 years, 1932-1936.

Although present indications point to a fairly large carry-over into the 1938-1939 season in the Southern Hemisphere, this may be largely off-set by a decrease in production. Supplies for the 1938-39 season, therefore, may be no larger than in 1937-38. The new Australian clip will amount to approximately 960 million pounds, grease equivalent, according to a preliminary estimate. There is a decrease of about 6 per cent compared with the 1937-38 clip and will be the smallest clip since 1930.

From such information as is available it appears that supplies of raw wool in European countries are not large, but apparently are adequate for current mill requirements, which are at a reduced level. Stocks of raw wool in Japan are the smallest in many years. Imports into that country are likely to continue relatively small but perhaps not so small as in the season now closing.

OUTLOOK FOR DOMESTIC PRICES: Current factors in the domestic wool situation indicate little change for domestic prices in the immediate future. Prospects for the fall and winter, however, appear somewhat more favorable.

Since retail sales of wool goods have not dropped so much as mill consumption of wool, stocks of finished and semi-finished goods probably have been sharply reduced in recent months.

The proposed purchase of made-up garments by the W. P. A. should further reduce stocks of finished and semi-finished goods in the domestic wool manufacturing industry, and an increase in mill consumption in late summer and fall appears probable. Such an increase would be in contrast to the second half of 1937 when consumption declined rapidly.

Stocks of wool in the United States at the present time are considerably larger than at the same time in 1936 and 1937, but the increase over a year earlier is no greater, if as great as on January 1. If imports remain small, as now appears likely, an increase in consumption in the latter part of the year over that of 1937 might result in smaller stocks of wool on January 1, 1939, than in January of this year. The carry-over at the beginning of 1938, however, was relatively large.

The spread between foreign and domestic wool prices is now somewhat less than the tariff. If foreign prices remain fairly stable as now seems likely, a moderate advance in wool prices in the United States could occur without causing much increase in imports.

Present prospects indicate that foreign prices will remain firm, at least until the new Southern Hemisphere clip becomes available next fall. The relatively large carry-over of wool now in prospect in the Southern Hemisphere is expected to be about offset by a decline in production. Foreign supplies in the 1938-39 season, therefore, may be no larger than in 1937-38.

El Capitan Mountain Club met July 12th at the attractive ranch home of Mrs. Leroy Merchant. A delicious luncheon was served at noon to members and guests. Mrs. Guy Nix had charge of the afternoon program which included an article on fire prevention, reading of poetry and games.

President Boosts Favorites in Kentucky, Oklahoma and Elsewhere in His Trip to the West Coast

Edward W. Pickard SUMMARIZES THE WORLD'S WEEK

President on Tour

MARIETTA, Ohio, was the first stop in President Roosevelt's transcontinental tour. There he dedicated a memorial to "the start westward of the nation," in his address paying tribute to the pioneers and, rather incidentally, to Senator Robert J. Barkley, who seeks renomination and is opposed by George White.

Sen. Barkley

With this off his mind, the President resumed his other role of head of the Democratic party and jumped into the primary campaign with both feet. His avowed purpose was to further the election of members of congress, especially senators, whom he terms liberals. Beyond this he was undertaking to maintain his control of the party up to and through the presidential campaign of 1940.

Crossing from Ohio into Kentucky, where Senator Barkley, staunch New Deal supporter, is engaged in a hot fight with Gov. A. B. Chandler for his senate seat, Mr. Roosevelt found it advisable not to utter a word of the ambition of "Happy" as the governor is known. In a speech at the Latonia race track in Covington he said he had no doubt Chandler would make a good senator, but added: "But I think he would be the first to acknowledge that as a very junior member of the senate, it would take him many, many years to match the national knowledge, the experience, and the acknowledged leadership in the affairs of your nation of that son of Kentucky, of whom the whole nation is proud, Alben Barkley."

At Bowling Green and at Louisville Mr. Roosevelt made platform speeches in which he urged the renomination of Barkley.

The special train raced through Tennessee in the night without a stop and this was taken as inferential disapproval of Senator George Berry, whose marble claims caused the TVA so much trouble.

Oklahoma City came next, and there Mr. Roosevelt told an enormous crowd what a help Senator Elmer Thomas had been to him and how much the senator had done for the state. His commendation of Thomas was called lukewarm, however, and much of his speech was devoted to criticizing the senator's rivals, Representative Gomer Smith and Gov. E. W. Marland. Smith had the support of the Townsendites and many conservatives. Marland has at times been too conservative to please the White House.

McAlester and Wister heard the President from the back platform, and then at Booneville, Ark., he found time to speak kind words about Senator Hattie Caraway, who seeks another term.

The Chief Executive spent the week-end resting at the ranch of his son Elliot 17 miles from Fort Worth, Texas. Then his special rolled northward to Amarillo, where he stopped long enough to make an auto trip about the city. Next day he arrived in Pueblo, Colo., on his way to San Francisco, San Diego and the cruiser Houston which was to carry him through the Panama canal.

During a brief stop at Wichita Falls, Texas, the President announced that he was appointing Gov. James V. Allred to a vacancy in the federal court for the southern district of Texas. This was a complete surprise to Senators Tom Connally and Morris Sheppard.

TVA Inquiry Opens

INVESTIGATION of the activities of the TVA by a congressional joint committee was opened in Knoxville, Tenn., with Chairman Vic Donahey presiding. After an executive session the investigators started on an inspection tour of the projects involved. Public hearings in Knoxville were next on the program, and Donahey said these would continue "until we run out of money."

It was indicated that former Chairman A. E. Morgan would be the first witness called. He was granted permission to go into TVA files to prepare his testimony.

Shortly before the inquiry began, Dr. Morgan filed a mandamus suit in a Knoxville court asking that he be reinstated as member and chairman of the TVA and be paid back salary. He never has recognized the President's right to remove him from the chairmanship.

Hughes Flies the Atlantic

HOWARD HUGHES, wealthy young sportsman and aviator, with four companions made successfully the first non-stop flight from New York to Paris since Lindbergh's epochal feat in 1927. His time was 10 hours and 38 minutes, less than half the time made by Lindbergh.

Howard Hughes

The big plane, named "New York World's Fair 1939," appeared over Le Bourget field long before it was expected but Ambassador Bullitt and a big crowd were waiting to greet the daring aviator. As the twin-motored machine rolled to a stop, Bullitt ran forward, opened the door and shouted: "Congratulations; did you have a good trip?"

Hughes and his fellow adventurers, Ed Lund, Harry Connor, T. L. Thurlow and Richard Stoddard, weary and cramped, climbed out of the cockpit and were eagerly taken in hand by the enthusiastic French.

After resting and refueling their plane, the fliers took off on the second leg of their projected flight around the world, reaching Moscow in less than eight hours. Their hope was to beat the record made in 1933 by Wiley Post.

Hughes' big plane, specially rebuilt and equipped with a multitude of gadgets, carried a gross weight of 25,000 pounds. It had three radios and was in communication with the ground practically all the time. The only worry the fliers had was the danger of running out of fuel before Paris was reached.

Justice Cardozo Dies

BENJAMIN N. CARDOZO, associate justice of the United States Supreme court, died at Fort Chester, N. Y., of a chronic heart ailment that had kept him from work on the bench since last December. He was sixty-eight years old. Descended from Spanish Jews who came to America in 1750, he was born in New York city and educated at Columbia university. He was appointed to the Supreme court by President Hoover in 1932 and lined up with the liberal minority. His scholarship and hard work won the highest respect. Chief Justice Hughes, informed of Cardozo's death in Italy said: "It is an irreparable loss to the court and the nation. He was a jurist of the highest rank and noble spirit."

Sen. Wagner

Probably President Roosevelt will not appoint Cardozo's successor before fall, for the court is in recess until October. Fut speculation as to his choice began immediately. The name most frequently heard in the discussions in Washington was that of Sen. Robert Wagner of New York, one of the President's chief lieutenants in the field of social legislation. Other New Yorkers mentioned are Ferdinand Pecora and Samuel Rosenman, state Supreme court justices, and Solicitor General Robert H. Jackson. The Far West is not now represented on the court.

Huge Wheat Crop

IN ITS first general crop estimate of the year the department of agriculture predicted the second largest wheat crop in American history. The forecast was for 967,412,000 bushels. A sharp slash in acreage to be planted to wheat must be called for by the Agricultural Adjustment administration as a result. Acreage cuts, plus wheat loans, are now automatic and mandatory under the new farm act.

The department predicted a corn crop of 2,483,102,000 bushels, an oats production of 1,093,829,000 bushels, a barley crop of 239,375,000 bushels, and a rye crop of 51,327,000 bushels. Tobacco production was forecast at 1,496,000,000 pounds and rice production at 53,330,000 bushels.

Japan Warns of Bombings

REPRESENTATIVES of the United States and other foreign powers at Shanghai were handed notes by the Japanese urging them to evacuate their citizens from half a dozen Yangtze valley cities listed as probable targets for further widespread bombings.

Two previous notes urged that all foreign vessels and foreigners along the Yangtze river in the path of the Japanese advance on Hankow be removed.

The United States gunboat Monocacy and the British gunboat Cockchafer were reported to have moved three miles up the Yangtze from Kiukiang as Japanese warships shelled Chinese defenses of the city.

Disorders in Palestine

PALESTINE was in turmoil over a recrudescence of the anti-Jewish riots, and the police and British troops were having a hard time suppressing the bloody-minded Arabs. Fights, bombings and fires resulted in numerous deaths. Near Mount Tabor a patrol of British soldiers, and Jewish constables was ambushed and suffered heavy casualties.

Chaco Arbitration

BOLIVIA and Paraguay have finally agreed to let their dispute over the Chaco territory be settled by arbitration.

Spruille Braden, young American business man, is given most of the credit for this settlement of the long and bloody quarrel, and it is said in Washington that he will be rewarded by appointment as minister to Colombia.

'Purge' Is Hard Hit

TWO long distance messages came from Manila, from Paul V. McNutt, governor general of the Philippines and reputed boss of the Democrats of Indiana. Thereupon the New Dealers of the Hoosier state decided they could not win in November unless they renominated Frederick Van Nuys for the senate. That gentleman had been marked for elimination by Tommy Corcoran and his fellow managers of the proposed "purge" of those who had opposed any major New Deal policies and Governor Townsend had publicly announced Van Nuys could not be renominated. The senator was planning to run as an independent. After hearing from McNutt, the governor invited the senator to present his candidacy to the state convention, and Van Nuys accepted in the interests of party harmony.

Senator Van Nuys

Corcoran's purge appears to have bogged down elsewhere, too. Senator George of Georgia and Senator E. D. Smith of South Carolina seem likely to win renomination. In New York city Tammany decided to support Congressman John J. O'Connor, who led the fight against the reorganization bill, and several other New York members of the lower house whom Corcoran had listed for defeat.

Problem of the South

RE-ESTABLISHING a balanced economic system in the southern states is considered by President Roosevelt the No. 1 problem of the nation and he says it must and can be done. He appealed to 25 southern leaders, assembled in Washington at his request, to draft plans for the economic restoration of their section of the country. Lewis Mellett, director of the National Emergency council, presided over the conference and read Mr. Roosevelt's letter.

Though he did not comment on the effect that the new wages and hours law may have on southern industry, he did say that one of the great problems in the South is that of labor and employment. He spoke also of problems "growing out of the new industrial era and, again, of absentee ownership of the new industries."

"It is my conviction," the President wrote to Mellett, "that the South presents right now the nation's number one economic problem—the nation's problem, not merely the South's. For we have an economic imbalance in the nation as a whole, due to this very condition of the South."

"The purpose of your conference is to produce a restatement of the economic conditions of the South and their relation to the rest of the country that we may do something about it."

CHILD LABOR

Climaxing a long battle by humanitarian forces, the new wage-hour bill recently enacted carries a provision outlawing child laborers under fourteen years of age except in seasonal and other specified industries. For years the practice of exploiting youngsters has resulted in undermined physiques and poorly developed minds. But in defense of the practice parents have claimed their own salaries were insufficient to keep the family. Certainly a just amount of hard work never hurt any child, but cases shown here are exceptional. Long hours in mills, carrying heavy bundles to and from the cleaner or laboring under a tropical sun to cultivate sugar beets are unquestionably detrimental to any growing child.

Let childhood be set aside for physical and mental development, with laboring days to come later, is the plea of child welfare workers. But this youngster must become a breadwinner as soon as she is capable.

Oldsters may scoff at child labor legislation. This boy would probably be happier at play, but who can draw the line between healthful work and harmful work?

Mountain Climbing's Foolish, He Says

CAMBRIDGE, MASS.—Attacks on Mt. Everest, 29,141-foot world summit, are of little scientific value, states John E. Burchard. With nothing of scientific value known or likely to be found above 20,000 feet, the crampon-shod feet of the oxygen-starved climbers wearily plod upward through a barren region, containing nothing but ice and snow.

WHO'S NEWS THIS WEEK

By LEMUEL F. PARTON

NEW YORK—Several years before Romain Rolland finished "Jean Christophe," Leo Tolstol called him the warden of the conscience of Europe. In his quarter-century exile in Switzerland, he has remained "above the battle," warning of war, decrying hatred, pleading for peace and understanding. His has been a voice crying in the wilderness. His exile ended, he returns to France, "an old man, broken and despairing," as the news dispatches report. The world seems to have little heeded his impassioned appeals. He wants to die in Clamecy, the village where he was born.

The greatest novel of a century, possibly of many centuries, "Jean Christophe" has been called by great critics and multitudes of lesser lights. It was published in 1913. This writer has found few young persons, even those majoring in literature, who have read it.

He has found others who have never heard of Romain Rolland, the Nobel peace prize winner exiled from his country, while Carl von Ossietzky, German Nobel peace prize winner, was impoverished, jailed and hurried to his death in the name "years between." There is in this age swift obsolescence in the spiritual heritage as well as in technique.

But another, even greater teacher, looking sadly down on the multitude from a hill in Jerusalem, was also unheeded:

Jerusalem, was also unheeded: "How often would I have gathered thy children together, even as a hen gathereth her chickens under her wings, and ye would not!" There is in this age swift obsolescence in the spiritual heritage as well as in technique.

When he was exiled from France, vast sums of money were offered him if he would go to America, to write and lecture. Publicly, or any form of self-exploitation, is to him profoundly distasteful. He withdrew to a secluded villa near Zurich, Switzerland.

There is one definite attitude in all these post-war writings. He had no faith in "movements," in "ideologies," right or left. He repudiated Henri Barbusse, his clarite group and the various "united fronts," as he did the emissaries of bloody reaction from the right. He knew that the righteous can be as cruel as the wicked, once they find reliance on force.

Like the great German Fichte, whom he esteemed, he believed only in the "inner light"—never in organization or force. But he was not a "political agnostic." He fought, and suffered, to arouse the world conscience, as the dying Tolstol had enjoined him.

He is a tall, spare, pallid old man, with thinning hair and sad, deep-set eyes as he returns to France at the age of seventy-two. Educated in music, at the Ecole Normale, he became a devotee of Wagner, whose genius inspired his life—then of Tolstol and Shakespeare. He has written many times in the last few years that he sees little hope that the world will escape a last devastating war.

IT WAS reported that Sir John Reith, director general of the British Broadcasting corporation, was badly licked in that international Arab crooning contest a while back. Virtually all observers gave the decision to Italy. If so, it probably was the only time he ever lost a contest.

The tall, bald, grim Scotsman is upped to the job of running the Imperial Airways, as a civil arm of rearmament, with a sizeable hike in salary. It is now $30,000 a year, instead of $25,000.

He is an engineer, and in 1916 was here with 600 technicians checking on war material contracts. He didn't like America or Americans but eased up on us later on. Running British radio, he has been excoriated as a tyrant, but he has held to his line and confounded all his adversaries. His views on radio programs were outlined by him as follows: "To set out to give the public what it wants, as the saying is, is a dangerous and fallacious policy."

Lou Howard lay on a bunk staring at the ceiling. Buck Conrad, his guard, had turned in for the night. He was sullen and despondent. Why was his father not doing something to get him out of this trouble? He knew Sperm had sent a messenger to Chiswick threatening reprisals if any harm happened to his son. But why didn't he do something instead of just talk?

The prisoner could not get to sleep. He was worried. The best he could hope for was a term in the penitentiary, unless his father could work out some slick scheme for getting him off. The only escape from this was to turn state's evidence. If he did this, his name would be a hissing by-word. He would have to get out of the country.

A faint tapping on the window reached him. He sat up, as well as he could for his bonds, his stomach muscles tightening. A pricking of the skin ran over him.

A voice murmured, "That you, Lou?"

"Yes. Who is it?" he whispered. The saw ripped through a resinous knot, died down for a moment, and attacked another.

"Morg Norris. Listen. Where does this Gray sleep?"

"He's gone to town. Get me out of here, Morg—please."

A second voice asked hoarsely, "Only one fellow in the dog-house with you?"

"Yes. Buck Conrad. All right. I'll tell him."

Conrad awakened at the sound of young Howard's urgent voice.

"What's eatin' you?" he asked sleepily.

"Someone has been calling you. Sounds like Chiswick."

Buck sat up and listened. Someone outside shouted his name. He went to the door, not waiting to light a lamp, and threw it open.

"Who wants me?" he asked.

They were his last words. Two guns roared. The cowpuncher caught at the jamb, and slid down, his knees buckling under him. Morg Norris ran forward and flung another bullet into the prone body. The face of the outlaw was distorted with rage. He had nothing personal against Buck, but the fury of the kill was on him. He spat out a venomous epithet.

"Get out your knife and cut me free," implored Howard.

The second man came into the room. With a jackknife he severed the rope that bound the prisoner. Lou Howard was surprised to note that the sinister face bent over him was unfamiliar.

"Hurry!" urged the young man. "They'll hear the shots and be on us in a minute. We got to get out sudden."

"Let 'em come," boasted Norris, with an imprecation. "We're ready to swap lead with them."

"Anyone else with you?" Lou asked, rising from the bunk.

"No more. We came to get Gray. Lucky for him he's not here. Don't need an army, do we?" the killer wanted to know. He added, cruel laughter in his voice: "Wish it had been the spy Gray we had croaked instead of this dumbskull here."

The three men passed swiftly out of the cabin. Already they could hear voices and the sound of men running. It was time to be gone. Someone came out on the porch of the big house and wanted to know who was there.

Norris was in the saddle. He galloped up to the porch and fired at the man standing there. Out of the foreman's cottage came Dan Brand, sketchily dressed. He blazed away at the young outlaw with a rifle. The bandit wheeled his horse and cantered back to his companions.

"Hit the grit, boys," he ordered. "Gonna be hot here if we stick around."

The stranger gave Lou a foot for a rest and Howard swung to his saddle behind him. As the horses pounded down the road, the roar of guns followed them. Howard looked back anxiously, his heart thumping with fear. Framed in a window, he saw the face of Ruth Chiswick.

The fugitives headed for Tail Holt. They kept to the road. Pursuit would probably be useless, since the outlaws could turn into the brush whenever they heard the sound of riders back of them.

The lights were still blazing in the Golden Nugget when they drew up at the hitchrack. Norris walked into the gambling-house, the other two at his heels.

Mile High and some others were at the bar drinking. A man who started to lift his glass put it down instantly.

"Morg Norris!" he exclaimed.

The card game was suspended. The wheel ceased to turn. All eyes turned upon the three who had just entered the place.

"Don't get on the prod, boys," warned Norris. "I'm here peacefully. Listen to what I've got to spill before you start foggin.' I been out to the L C ranch for a ll' call on Lee Chiswick. I bumped off one of his warriors and brought back with me Lou Howard. I got to apologize for not getting that spy Gray. He wasn't there."

"Didn't I have something to do with all this?" sneered Clint Duke. "Sure. You went along with me. But I thought of it. I ran the show." The killer swaggered to the bar.

Mile High said, not lifting his eyes from Norris: "You got quite some explaining to do, fellow. Kansas?"

"He was aimin' to give me up to Chiswick's warriors. I had to get him before he got me. Same with Curly. He was firing at me when I wounded him, I could of killed him, but I didn't."

"And I reckon you ran away with the young lady for a joke."

"No, sir—I made a mistake there, but I was taking her back home when Gray's posse bumped into me. She'll tell you I didn't hurt her any. Send for Sperm. We'll have a powwow and fix things up."

"You run hog-wild, then come back and say, 'Forget it, boys.' I got a better memory than that," Mile High flung back.

Morg slid an ugly look at him. But he spoke with unusual restraint. This was not the time to indulge a bad temper.

"I went out to the L C with Duke here and rescued Lou, didn't I,

"Where's he at?" asked Norris.

while you lads were talking about what a heluva hole he was in?"

"That's what he did," young Howard said. "Someone go get Father. We got trouble enough on our hands without fussing among ourselves. Show that bottle this way, Pete."

The tension relaxed. A Mexican boy was sent to bring Sperm Howard. To an admiring but not altogether friendly audience Norris narrated his adventures. They lost nothing in the telling.

Howard, senior, arrived ten minutes later. With him came a leather-faced man known as Yorky. The fat man looked at his son, then at Norris, no expression in his wooden face.

"So you're back," he said to the latter.

"Y'betcha! All set for the fatted calf, Sperm."

Howard ignored the attempted blitheness. "I'll listen to you, Morg," he said.

The killer swept a hand in the direction of the rescued man. "Lou, he'll do my talkin' for me," he boasted. "While you were sleeping comfortable, me and Clint risked our hides to get yore boy for you. We had to bump off an L C rider and fight a battle with Chiswick's gang, but we brought Lou back with us."

"Fine. We would have had Lou, anyhow, in a day or two." The fathomless eyes of Howard rested in those of Norris. "Did you bring Kansas back with you too?"

Norris began to bristle. "Kansas was a double-crossing son-of-a-gun." "You told me the other day a posse killed him. That right?"

The killer hesitated. There was no use holding to that story, since everybody knew that Ruth Chiswick had refuted it. "A fellow has to go through," he said sulkily. "Kansas was fixing to throw me down. It was him or me. I had to beat him to it."

Pete, the bartender, threw in a low-voiced suggestion. "That's right, Sperm. The young lady says Kansas back with you too?"

"Like to have a little talk with Lou," that young man's father said. "Afterward I want to see you and Mile High, Morg."

Lou followed Sperm into the little room Curt Dubbs used as an office. The big man closed the door. He sat down ponderously in a chair.

"What you want to see me about?" his son asked nervously.

The older man spread plump white hands. His expressionless eyes were fixed on the other.

"Come clean, Lou," he ordered. "What does this Gray know? What did you tell him?"

Tiny beads of perspiration began to stand out on the forehead of the younger man. "You didn't do a thing for me," he protested, with the violence of weakness. "Left me there to be hanged. If they hadn't got Ruth home safe, that's what would have happened to me, too. You look after your own hide mighty well, but you don't want me to do the same."

"I was doing all I could for you, but never mind that. I've got to know where we stand. What did you tell Gray and Chiswick?"

"What I told under fear of death doesn't count," Lou evaded. "Maybe I said more'n I should. So would you have. So would anyone."

"I'm listening."

Lou told what he had confessed, bit by bit, his father sweating the story out of him.

After the son had finished, the older man sat staring in front of him, piecing together the things that he knew and those that he suspected. What Lou had told Chiswick did not matter so much. It had been general, and it had dealt only with the attack on the Mexicans. But what he had admitted to the United States marshal would hang or put behind bars half a dozen of the Tail Holt outlaws. The questions Gray had put showed that he had plenty of information and was only seeking confirmation.

Sperm Howard knew he must act quickly. He had to destroy Gray before the marshal closed the net on him. Tomorrow might be too late.

"Tell Morg and Mile High I want to see them in here," he ordered. "You go home and go to bed. Keep your mouth padlocked. Don't tell anybody else what you've told me. If you do, someone is liable to fill you full of lead."

Howard waved the two outlaws to chairs when they entered the room.

"We've got to get busy, boys," he told them. "Lou is right. This fellow Gray is dangerous. While he was at the L C, Lou picked up one or two bits of information. Gray knows a lot more than we think."

"Hmp! Do you expect me to comb the brush for him?" asked Norris.

The big man slumped in the chair and an oblique look at the killer.

"If you're looking for him you can be accommodated, Morg. Gray is in town."

"In Tail Holt?" snapped Norris. "Roosting right here."

"You mean was here," corrected Mile High. "Five or six hours ago. We bumped into him, Morg, in Curly's room."

"Bumped into him and didn't knock him off," jeered Norris. "You're a fine bunch of warriors."

"Lou was still at the L C," Mile High retorted angrily. "We dassent touch the fellow, for fear Chiswick would hang Lou's hide up to dry Gray had the gall to tell us so."

"So you said 'Adios, amigo,' and walked out on him," the other young man snarled. "If it had been me, I would sure have sent him to hell in smoke."

"Keep feeling that way, Morg," said Howard evenly. "Lou isn't at the L C any more. Far as I'm concerned it's an open season on Mr. Jeff Gray. We'll all be safer when the dirt is patted down on him in Boot Hill. I'm an old man myself, and peaceable, but if you young bucks are snorting for battle, I can give a guess where you'll find him."

Four eyes fastened to those of Howard.

"You mean was here," corrected Mile High. "Five or six hours ago. We bumped into him, Morg, in Curly's room."

"Bumped into him and didn't knock him off," jeered Norris. "You're a fine bunch of warriors."

"Where's he at?" asked Norris, a sharp edge to his voice.

"Unless I'm 'way off he's spending the night with his friend Hank Ransom."

"How'd you know?"

"I don't know for sure. I'm reasonably certain. Maybe a little bird told me."

Howard was secretive by nature. It was his opinion that one made no mistake to live under his hat, as he expressed it. The habit had grown on him. When mystery was not necessary, he had an irritating way of hinting at one. There was no reason for not telling that a Mexican had brought him word he had seen Ransom catch and saddle a horse in Willard's pasture, none except that he liked to convey an impression of omniscience.

Norris swaggered to the door, followed by Mile High.

CHAPTER XIII

Lee Chiswick looked down at the body lying on the cot.

"Buck would have been alive now if I hadn't given him the job of guarding that scamp," he said sorrowfully.

"He'd been alive if he had obeyed orders," Dan Brand said. "You got to look at this right, Lee. We told him not to open the door unless he was sure who was there. I reckon he was roused from sleep and didn't stop to use his head."

Ruth stood behind her father, her gaze fixed on the still figure of the cowpuncher. "Who did it?" she asked in a low voice.

"That devil Morg Norris, answered Lee, his face set and rigid. "I recognized him when he rode up to the porch to take a crack at me."

The girl shuddered. The thought stabbed her that she was responsible for the death of Buck Conrad. If she hadn't interfered with the aim of Jeff Gray, he would have put an end to the killer.

"No use trying to follow him in the dark," her brother Frank said. "If we got close he'd take to the brush."

"They'll likely head for Tail Holt to get Lou Howard home," Brand guessed.

The eyes of Ruth grew wide with horror. The paralyzing conviction had come to her that Jeff Gray would not know until too late that the prisoner at the L C had escaped. He would carry on under the impression that he had a hostage in the camp of his friend that Sherman Howard dare not move to his destruction.

She cried out her fear to her father.

For a moment he stared at her, letting her warning sink into his mind. "You're right, girl," he answered. "I don't know how he is playin' his hand, but we've got to let him know there's nothing to keep Sperm from him now."

Lee gave curt orders. "Get the boys together, Dan. See they're armed. Frank, you and Tony run up mounts. We'll take off with what men we have. Round up the men at the line-camps, Bob, and bring them to Tail Holt. This looks like war, and we may need all the help we can get."

Five minutes later, Ruth walked into her father's office and found him examining guns and ammunition.

"What are you going to do with me and Nelly?" she asked.

He looked at her, startled at the problem posed. "By jinks, Ruth, I hadn't thought of that. Can't leave you here alone. Once was too often. And I can't spare any men to guard you. We're short-handed now. Only five of us."

Frosting a Cake for Judges to Sample

A professional cake baker, frosting one of the hundreds of cakes which were made up in the Experimental Kitchen Laboratory, maintained by C. Houston Goudiss in New York City, in the course of selecting the winners in his recent Cake Recipe Contest.

By C. HOUSTON GOUDISS

NATURALLY, I am accustomed to seeing exhibits of delicious and interesting foods in the Experimental Kitchen Laboratory that I maintain in New York City. But in all the years of its existence, it has never been a busier nor a more inviting place than during the last few weeks when the home economists on my staff have been busily testing and judging the many fine cake recipes submitted by readers of this paper in our recent Cake Recipe Contest.

Imagine, if you can, a big cheerful and colorful kitchen filled with long tables upon which row after row of handsome cakes were arranged—proudly testifying to the skill of the homemakers who cherish the recipes from which they were made.

Every Type of Cake Entered.

A whole tableful of white cakes, with and without icing. Chocolate and cocoa cakes of every possible type. All manner of cakes, fragrant and delicious—spice, ice cream, honey, caramel, maple syrup, nut, date, pineapple, orange, lemon, butterscotch, jam, banana, raisin, oatmeal, coconut and marble cakes. Cakes baked in long sheets, square cakes, round cakes, layer cakes. Old-fashioned cakes from grandmothers' recipe books. Very modern and up-to-date cakes. And even one that was said to have been a favorite with General Robert E. Lee. I've never seen anything to compare with the collection, even at the biggest State Fair!

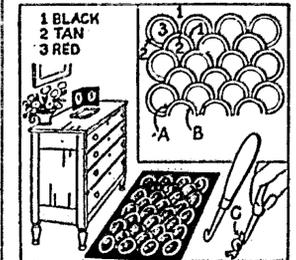

Do you wonder that the home economists on my staff required several weeks to pick the winners? For with such a wealth of exceptional cakes from which to choose, selecting those for top honors, was indeed difficult.

The cake bakers were trained for their work. They followed the recipes precisely. They measured accurately. They checked oven temperatures.

HOW to SEW RUTH WYETH SPEARS

GREAT-GRANDMOTHER made her own designs for quilts and hooked rugs and many of her most interesting patterns were developed by drawing around pieces of china. The antique rug shown here may be copied either in rags or rug yarn.

The foundation of the rug is burlap. The design is drawn on the burlap with a very soft pencil or crayon by tracing part way around a medium sized plate as at A and then a saucer as at B. Allowance should be made for a hem and the plain border. The three colors indicated in the diagram are repeated throughout this rug.

Some hook rug makers stretch the burlap foundation tightly over a wooden frame while they work. Others think they do just as well without a frame. Rug hooks of the general type shown here are for sale in department stores. The strip of material, or yarn, is held under the burlap with the left hand and the loops pulled through to the right side with the hook as shown at C.

NOTE: If you wish to use these weekly articles for reference paste them in a scrapbook, as they are not included in either Sewing Book No. 1 or 2. Book-1, "Sewing for the Home Decorator," covers curtains, slipcovers,

The scoring system was highly scientific. And we can say with conviction that no matter how close the race, the winners definitely outperformed, even their closest rivals.

First Prize Winner.

The first prize of $25.00 went to Mrs. D. F. Kelly, 1004 Charles St., Whitewater, Wis.

Second Prize Winners.

The five second prizes were awarded to Mrs. H. Harshbarger of 2427 Fifth Ave., Altoona, Pa.; R. A. Williams, 12075 Rosemary Ave., Detroit, Mich.; Mrs. C. A. Burns, Box 708, Oakland, Miss.; Miss Sadie Cunningham, Avonmore, Pa.; and Mrs. Laura Meyer, 107 Pleasant St., Plymouth, Wis.

Third Prize Winners.

Mrs. T. H. Fjone, Flaxville, Mont.; Mrs. Lester Ralston, 127 South Judd St., Sioux City, Iowa; Mrs. Harry A. Kramer, 10 Marin Road, Manor, Calif.; Mrs. F. D. McDonald, Route 1, Amherst, Texas; Vera Tygar, Commodore, Pa.; Mrs. George Ahbhorn, R. D. No. 1, Mt. Pleasant, Pa.; Mrs. B. A. Robinson, Box 578, Emmett, Idaho; Jean Guthrie, 4712 Campbell St., Kansas City, Mo.; Mrs. Walter Richter, Bonduel, Wis.; Mrs. P. C. Blakely, Alden, Mich.

Honorable Mention.

Emogene Williams, Damon, Texas; Mrs. Simon Moen, Norma, N. D.; Mrs. Dick Collins, Masonville, Iowa; Mrs. B. F. Herman, Box 1118, Crosby, Miss.; Mrs. Paul Lorenz, P. O. Box 225, Strathmore, Calif.; Mrs. S. S. Arntz, Simpson, Nev.; Mrs. Vida Hilger, Box 257, Rockland, Mich.; Mrs. Grace H. Peterson, Box 335, Amherst, Wis.; Mrs. Cecil Skinner, Bedford, Wyo.; Mrs. Joe Furnace, 317 West Twentieth St., South Sioux City, Neb.

My thanks and my compliments to every homemaker who submitted a recipe. I only regret that everyone who submitted a recipe could not win a prize.

Investigation Discloses That People of Stone Age Suffered From Toothache

No you can't blame it all on the can opener. The handy gadget, called "the housewife's best friend," has been charged with direct responsibility for toothaches, gum boils and other dental atrocities just because it opened the cans whose ready-to-eat contents could be gulped down without first passing through the process called mastication.

But science has stepped forward and declared that the can opener and the gaudy hued carton are not responsible for all the tooth ills which have been charged against them. At least that is the indicated opinion of Prof. W. M. Krogman of Western Reserve university, Cleveland, Ohio.

"The widespread belief," said Dr. Krogman, "that man's dental ills are attributable solely to modern civilization—its canned and mushy foods, its unbalanced diets and dietary fads, its frantic tempo—is not wholly correct."

"An extensive study which includes thousands of prehistoric, early historic and modern dentitions has revealed that ancient man had plenty of toothaches and that primitive man today (k-to-nature savage) frequently has work for the dentist.

"It was found that in the old Stone age, over 10,000 years ago, the frequency of dental caries ranged from 5 to 20 per cent of the adult population; in the new Stone age, 20,000 years ago, the frequency ranged from 15 to 45 per cent.

"In the next succeeding ages, the frequency gradually rose until in 3500 B. C., just before the dawn of history, an early Iranian people showed as high as 75 to 80 per cent of the entire adult population afflicted with dental caries—a frequency as high as any 'civilized' group today.

"Man is paying the price not for civilization as such, but for domestication started thousands, perhaps millions of years ago. We can do, and are doing, a little something about it in our vitamin-mineral food-intake studies, but they are like inadequate thumbs in a crumbling dike."

Early Ohio Inhabitants
At the end of the Revolutionary war the only white inhabitants of what is now Ohio, with few exceptions, were Canadian fur traders.

How Women in Their 40's Can Attract Men

Here's good advice for a woman during her change (usually from 35 to 42), who fears she'll lose her appeal to men, who worries about hot flashes, loss of pep, dizzy spells, upset nerves and moody spells.
Get more fresh air, 8 hrs. sleep and if you need a good general system tonic take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made especially for women. It helps Nature build up physical resistance, thus helps give more vivacity to enjoy life and assist calming jittery nerves and disturbing symptoms that often accompany change of life. WELL WORTH TRYING!

LOCAL AND PERSONAL

Mr. Fred Velasco of El Paso was in Carrizozo yesterday enroute to Corona to visit his brother-in-law, Willie Stewart. Then he will go on to Santa Fe and Denver on business for his Insurance Company. Mr. Velasco renewed his subscription to the Lincoln County News while in town.

Mr. and Mrs. B. C. Jacobs and son from Anaconda, Montana, are guests of Mrs. Degitz at the Ziegler home. They arrived Monday.

Mrs. J. M. Beck has as guests this week her mother, Mrs. Benfield and her sister Mrs. Finch and son from Denver, Colo.

Mrs. Andy Wright's sister, Mrs. Willerth is here from Springer for a few days' visit.

Hats of Korea

With the exception of the dancing girls of the country, the Korean women wear no head covering other than their hair and this is twisted in the shape of a coil on top of the head to act as a pad in order that they may balance rather heavy bundles upon their heads. The men are rarely without the hat which is perched on top of the skull and not much of a protection. The dancing girls never appear without an elaborate headpiece, resembling a four-pointed crown, tapering to the top.

Hebrew Money

The monetary system of the Hebrews was based upon the Babylonian system of weights. The ratio of the value of gold to silver was 1:18 1/3 and prevailed over all western Asia.

Have You a Favorite Cake Recipe?—Send It In It May Win Cash Prize

WHEN you decide to give your family a real treat and you bake one of those luscious, tempting chocolate cakes, or it may be a delectable marble cake or a delicious devil's food cake, made from your favorite recipe, and the folk all reach for a second, or perhaps a third, helping—now isn't that gratifying! How amply rewarded you feel by the remarks of appreciation going around the festive board such as "Oh, boy, what a cake!" from little Willie, said with a mouthful, to "I must have another piece if I burst!" from Dad.

But here!—you may have still further reward coming to you. The very recipe that the family makes so much over may be the one to take the first prize of $25, or one of the five second prizes of $10, or one of the ten third prizes of $5 in the Cake Recipe Contest. And why not?

C. Houston Goudiss, noted food authority, who for 20 years has exerted a wide influence on the food habits of this nation through his lectures and books, and who at present conducts the food department in this newspaper known as "What to Eat and Why," is conducting a cake recipe contest with cash prizes to be given to persons submitting the best recipes. Your recipe will be judged on the basis of its nutritional and wholesome value. It need not be a marvelous creation for the eye to behold. The judges of this contest may agree with your family that your favorite recipe IS THE BEST! For further particulars see the announcement elsewhere in this issue of this newspaper. There is nothing to buy. No letter to write. Just send in your favorite cake recipe. It may win a prize.

This Week's News.

Edward W. Pickard writes of the significance of the president's cross country tour and the part he is playing in primary elections. See "Weekly News Review."

Probably not one person in a thousand has read the greatest novel of the century. Lemuel F. Parton writes about its broken and despairing author in "Who's News This Week."

"Robin Hood," this week's literary feature, is especially timely in view of the current movie version of the classical adventure tale.

BANKING LOOKS AHEAD

"How's Business?" means "How are You?"

When you greet a friend with the salutation "How's Business?" you show how closely business is identified with individual welfare.

As more people learn how closely business is related to personal income and security, closer co-operation will result on all sides.

One phase of this bank's activity is its service to business. By aiding in the development of private enterprise we not only help business, but the entire community including you and your family reap the benefits that go hand in hand with better business.
