LINCOLN COUNTY'S MURDER TRIAL ENDS MONDAY NIGHT--JURY DELIBERATED 45 MINUTES

Father and Son Convicted Of First Degree Murder

Judge Frenger Sentences Ben Mixon and Son, Randall, to Die in Electric Chair

On Monday, December 19, 1938, For the Brutal Murder of George Roberts and His Young Helper, E. D. Ferguson, at the Former's Store in Ancho

Trial of the State vs. the Mixons charged with the murder of Geo. Roberts, Ancho merchant, and his helper, E. D. Ferguson, on the night of July 22 was continued on Sept. 16.

Dr. Dwight W. Rife, Santa Fe ballistic expert, testified the 45 shell found at the scene of the crime was fired from the pistol owned by Lawrence Randall Mixon. Thirty exhibits were shown by the state including the 30 shot rifle, the 45 pistol and holster, wrapped in gray cloth all bundled into some burlap bags, which were found on the Mixon ranch after the double slaying of Geo. Roberts and E. D. Ferguson.

Attorney Sutherland was constantly on his guard to protect his clients. He objected to showing most of the exhibits, which he claimed were confusing and of no value. In fact he objected consistently and conscientiously to almost everything.

Dr. Rife, who is medical examiner for the State police, and also medical examiner for the 1st Judicial district, having been appointed by Judge Otero, would have permitted the jurors to examine the gun shells through his microscope, but Mr. Sutherland objected.

At this stage of the trial Mr. Sutherland requested that Lewis Mixon be released as he had no connection with the crime committed, other than ownership of a gun, which he hadn't had in his possession for some time. Judge Frenger instructed Mr. Peebles, the foreman of the jury, to sign his release. Dismissal of charges against Lewis left as defendants, Ben Mixon, father, age 53, and his son, Lawrence Randall Mixon, age 21.

At Friday afternoon's session Ben Mixon testified that on the 22nd day of July he remained at home and fixed a cultivator. Randall testified Friday night that he bought a 45 caliber pistol from Mr. Kelley on the 9th day of July, and that Mr. Lutz was present at the time of purchase of weapon. He also testified he did not have quite enough money to pay for same, so he hunted up his father, Ben Mixon, who was also in town that day. His father went back to Kelley's store with him and loaned him $2 or $3 to finish paying for the gun. Also on that date Randall purchased seven 45 caliber cartridges. Court adjourned until 10 o'clock Saturday morning, at which time Randall was again on the stand for cross examination by Mr. Threet. Randall testified that he traded the pistol off shortly after its purchase to Cecil Tickle (or Teakell) for a rifle. This trade, he stated, took place on the streets of Carrizozo, near the bank.

Several contradictions and conflicting testimony occurred concerning the age and appearance of Cecil Tickle. It came out in cross examination that if this exchange of guns had been effected with Tickle, that Randall would have owned the pistol an hour or less time before he traded it off.

After young Mixon left the stand Saturday morning witnesses who testified were: Messrs. Henry Lutz and E. L. Jarnigan. Court then adjourned for noon and reopened Saturday p. m. at 2 o'clock. First witness called was young Mixon's wife, Mrs. Edna Mixon. She was followed on the stand by Charlie Page, Jack Chaney and A. R. Dean, all of whom testified as to some horse tracks which led to the home of Nick Maes.

Court recessed at 5:40 p. m. Saturday and reconvened Monday morning. Witnesses Monday were: Messrs. McCamant, Geo. Goodson, Tom Grimmett and Doc. Kennedy. At 11:30 Monday morning, as all witnesses had testified, both sides rested.

In the afternoon Judge Frenger instructed the jury, after which Assistant District Attorney, Cuba Clayton, summed up the evidence. He was followed by Mr. Sutherland, who made a strong plea for the defendants. He talked from 4:10 to 6:00 p. m. and made some strong points in their behalf. This left Mr. Threet for the evening session. In his eloquent and convincing manner, he spoke of the finding of indisputable evidence. Everyone listened in rapt silence as he called attention to discrepancies and contradictions which had been made by the defense. Case went to the jury about 9 p. m. They deliberated about 45 minutes and returned a verdict of murder in the first degree.

The Mixons moved to Ancho from Oklahoma in 1928, where they filed on some homesteads and have made their home there ever since. Judge Frenger read sentence on the two Mixons Tuesday at 2 p. m. Sentence was death by electrocution, to take place on Monday, December 19, 1938.

In the case of the State vs. Dan Jackson, et ux, charged with the murder of Mrs. L. W. Leadingham, Mr. Jackson pleaded

Lincoln County Fair and Rodeo A Great Success--Many Floats

The annual Lincoln County Fair and Frontier Days was held in Carrizozo Sept. 16-17.

Rodeo events included calf roping; wild cow milking, bronc and bareback riding, and the usual rodeo events.

Events were "jack pot" and divided three ways--first, 50 percent; 2nd, 30 percent; and 3rd, 20 percent.

The parade Friday morning, which contained all contestants was quite a success. We especially took note of the City Dads float. These dignified gentlemen in top hats and beards, and so on were very "old-timey." They deserve something more than mere mention, but we must make it a brief story.

The American Legion Auxiliary float made a favorable impression on the big crowd of onlookers.

Lou Fink's orchestra and float were very good. Mr. Fink has one of the best and most up-to-date orchestras in this part of the state and did not compete in the hill-billy class. His orchestra was riding in a new truck decorated in CCC colors.

Capitan school floats, the WPA and Indian tepee; and from some of the grade schools in different communities came some very attractive cars and trucks. Mr. Vidaurri's store was represented by an especially-attractive float with the musicians dressed Spanish style and singing Spanish songs with guitar accompaniment. Mitchell's float of registered Herefords; White Oaks Coal; Capitan Coal; Jicarilla school bus covered with pine cones; White Oaks grade school; Commercial Department school floats; Ziegler Bros., Titsworth Inc., Capitan Economy Store, English, and a long string of decorated cars and pickups deserve special mention.

Judges for the parade were: Mr. G. T. McQuillen, Miss Birkland, county nurse, and Mrs. Nichols, of Roswell, wife of Patrolman Nicho's, who awarded prizes to the following people: Oldest resident of Lincoln county to ride in the parade was Mrs. Sarah Hughes; Mr. Ben Rentfrow won two prizes as, being not only the oldest cow man in the parade, but the oldest rider as well; the youngest rider was Veda Lou Branum, little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Claud Branum; Hilbeck's Hill Billy band from Corona was awarded first prize; the best dressed lady rider was Mrs. Evelyn Roberts. She was dressed cow girl style. The Sambo grade school float was awarded a prize; the oldest vehicle was the Barnes Chevrolet.

Among the citations which comprise the Lesson-Sermon is the following from the Bible: "The fear of the Lord is the beginning of wisdom: and the knowledge of the body is understanding." (Prov. 9:10.)

The Lesson-Sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "The one Mind, God, contains no mortal opinions. All that is real is included in this immortal Mind."

War Clouds Over Sudeten Harvest Festival

Uniformed Sudeten Germans marched in the parade which featured the harvest festival celebrations at Oberleutendorf, Czechoslovakia, a short time before Adolf Hitler's momentous Nuremberg address. Konrad Henlein, Sudeten leader, was scheduled to address the thousands who attended, but was forced to cancel his appearance after being summoned by Lord Runciman to a parley in an attempt to settle the crisis. Declared Herr Frank, substituting for Henlein: "We have carried on a struggle for 20 years and the final battle is in sight."

PITT STAR READY

They March With Spirit of Youth

Despite their advanced age these two Civil war veterans, with aid from younger arms, proudly marched in the G. A. R. parade, covering a distance of 15 blocks. Thirteen of the 15 veteran "youngsters" who participated in the parade successfully marched the entire route. Photograph shows two of the hardy ones: O. S. Pearce, 91, left, of Minneapolis, and W. O. Fisher, 89, of St. Paul.

Miss America Of 1938 Crowned At Atlantic City

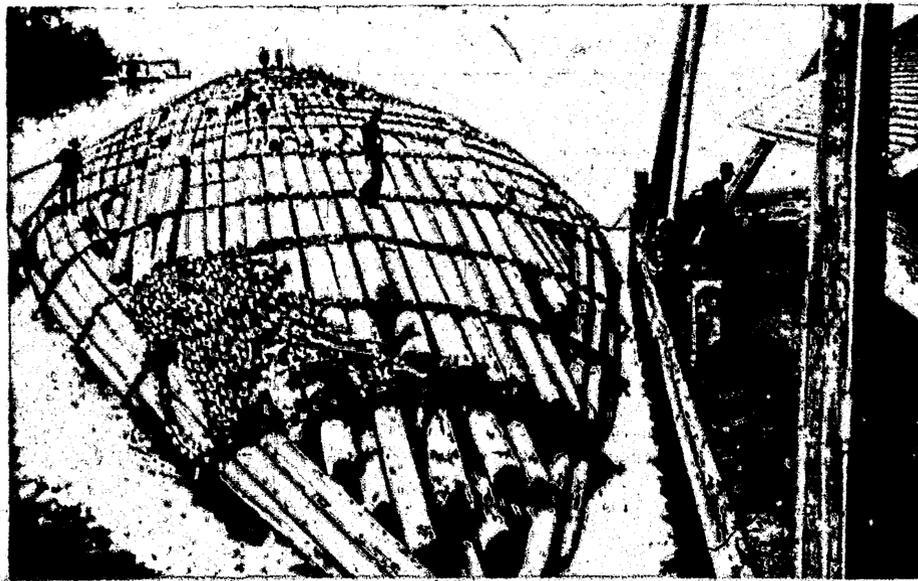

The title of Miss America 1938 was awarded to blonde Marilyn Mesek of Marion, Ohio, at the national beauty pageant in Atlantic City. Miss Mesek, previously adjudged the "most perfect model," won the top title over a field of more than 50 American beauties. Claire James, "Miss California," walked out on the ceremonies because judges placed her second. Third place went to Muriel La Von Goodspeed of Salt Lake City, Utah.

Not a sea monster, but one of the famed "benzon rafts" is this enormous cigar-shaped bundle of logs. From the Columbia river in Oregon, these cargo-carrier rafts now travel 1,100 miles in the open Pacific to San Diego, Calif. Each raft is 835 feet long, 58 feet wide and 28 feet deep, carrying 5,000,000 board feet of lumber, or enough to build 250 houses.

Fruits Always Are Hard to Resist

Nothing Makes Lovelier Centerpiece Than Grapes

By EDITH M. BARBER

IF YOU are anything like me, you find it hard to resist the purchase of a variety of fruits at this time of year when you go to market. I just must have my fruit bowl filled with blushing green pears, red, yellow and blue plums and golden peaches, with a red apple or two. Then there are red and white grapes for a final garnish. Nothing makes a lovelier centerpiece for the dinner table. At the same time the decorations may furnish the dessert.

The pears, which may be too hard to eat when purchased, can go on ripening in the fruit bowl. Just be sure not to let them overripen. These hard pears are, of course, well adapted for cooking. They may be baked or "poached" in a syrup which may be given color and flavor by means of a dash of grenadine. I also like to cook a few slices of lemons in the syrup, both on account of the flavor which the tartness provides, and because of the garnish which they give. You may like to stud the pears with cloves before cooking and to add a piece of stick cinnamon to the syrup.

When pears are low in price, you will begin to think about canning them in syrup and spicing them for use during winter. Occasionally this fruit is used for marmalade, but always in combination with other fruits of more distinctive flavor. The same is true when the sliced or diced fruit is used as a cup for a first course.

On the other hand, plums seem to have been designed especially for marmalade, particularly those which are acid in flavor. They may, of course, be canned and spiced and nothing is better for cobblers. At least that is my opinion. By the way, have you ever used plums to flavor ice cream? Down in Virginia recently I tasted for the first time green gage ice cream, which is a local specialty.

- 5 firm pears
- 2 cups sugar

Household Hints

By BETTY WELLS

MOIRA M. is just another lady with a house like the rest of us. With a bright capable husband she adores and a little boy she dotes on.

But besides running a pleasant home and doing a good job with her family, she's practically a czar in the chintz industry. At least she has the last word—as well as the first—in planning patterns and selecting colors for the new materials that are brought out by one of the leading manufacturers of fabrics for home decorating. The point is this—when the designs are selected by a girl like Moira, she gives them the same once-over that you and I would. Will they fit in? Are they practical? Will they wear? How much do they cost?

Besides such questions as that, Moira brings expert judgment too, for she's a stylist who knows whether designs are going to be getting bigger or smaller during the next few seasons . . . who has an eye for color trends . . . who knows all those technicalities about printing and dyeing that have everything to do with the type of patterns and colors we'll be buying over the counter this season or next.

We had lunch with Moira the other day, then went back to her office with her to look at "strike-offs" or the first samples of new patterns. And we saw some beauties. Fruits are invading the chintz field, too—we loved an old-time fruit bowl pattern on either parchment or plum ground. The prettiest floral had a bouquet with ribbon bows fluttering over the background—charming in light blue and lavender on palest gray ground. The newest designs get quite a modern effect by leaving out the fine shadings. By contrast there are charming detailed designs of botany prints—our favorite of these was a lilac spray on a choice of white or plum grounds.

Don't Worry About Smudges. "My little girl isn't yet three," writes Mrs. J. C., "which is the reason I'm hesitating about having my light oak woodwork painted. But I'm having the room done over and would like your advice about both walls and woodwork. The living room connects with the dining room by an arch and there are a good many doors, leaving not much wall space. The effect at present seems much too cluttered and figured. I want to do these rooms over so that they will be different and completely refreshing. I am somewhat limited as to money, but want to plan them ahead so that each thing I buy will build toward a really lovely home."

"The rugs are figured wiltons, which I hope to replace eventually with plain broadloom, either room size or all-over carpet. Which is better? In the dining room I have Eighteenth century mahogany furniture with Chinese blue chair seats Makes finger marks on light wood-work.

... which I think is a lovely suite. In the living room, I have one chair in rose-rust mohair which I will keep—the other chair and sofa I will either replace or recover. They aren't too big and have nice lines.

"And what about the alcove by the stairs? I'd like to do something interesting there. Here are some of my ideas—gray carpet throughout both rooms, a softer gray for the walls, blue sofa, striped chair in yellow, gray and rose-rust, yellow draperies. Would you have Venetian blinds? Would you paper two walls plain and two figured? And what to do with two short windows that don't match the others? I'd like to cut them out larger later, but for the present, what? Thanks for any help you can give me."

We'd paint the woodwork in spite of your three-year-old. We have one too, so we know the fingerwork problem. But enameled woodwork is so easy to wipe off.

As for colors, we think the plan you outline is about as nice as any we could think of.

ZOOM! BOOM!

Music-Mad America 'Eats Up' New Tunes Faster Than Composers Can Write Them; The Song You Hum Today Will Be a Headache Next Week!

By JOSEPH W. LaBINE

It's not so many years since you heard a good phonograph record at your neighbor's house, thereupon rushing right down to the music store to buy a copy for your own gramophone. Maybe it was one of Gene Austin's remarkably successful songs—remember?

In those days, a composer could write "Yes, We Have No Bananas" or "Margie" and settle back to watch the profits roll in from sheet music, recordings and dance orchestras. For a year or more, "Carolina Moon" swept the nation and nobody tired of it; indeed, we haven't tired of it yet.

But that was long ago—maybe 10 years—in the dim, halcyon days before home was not the same without a radio, before music became a high-speed industry instead of a leisurely profession. Nowadays you get shivers up the back one week from "A-ticket, A-ticket" and the following week you scream whenever anyone hums it. The first time you hear "Flat Foot Floogie" it has a novel catch; but after it's been smashed all over your living room by every band from Benny Goodman to the Hot Shot Six, "Flat Foot Floogie" really falls flat.

In other words, if you've any ideas about making a million by writing a popular song, get rid of them. The tide has changed so rapidly, so completely, that the modern composer starves to death unless he can grind out several new tunes a year.

Zoom Up—Boom Down.

Take "The Merry-Go-Round Broke Down"—it actually did, in three months, simply through too much radio-casting. Overnight it zoomed to nation-wide popularity; almost as fast it fell with a thud and a boom that resounded up and down New York's Tin Pan Alley. Looking at incidents like this, the American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers ("Ascap" to the trade) is trying to promulgate fair trade practice rules to stop carrying a good tune too far.

In common practice, a publisher's representative approaches a nationally broadcast dance orchestra leader like Guy Lombardo or Rudy Vallee and begs him to give every new tune a trial. It's really quite an honor, they say, to offer a number over the air for the first time. If the public likes it, the song becomes a national favorite overnight, and is thereby ruined.

What Ascap wants is control over the number of performances a new song gets over the airwaves. And though some may cry "Monopoly!" and "Unfair!" it still isn't a bad idea.

Ascap is composed of most major song writers, who complain they must now write 10 times as many songs as in pre-radio days, and even then their sheet music and recording profits are smaller.

The best index to this up-and-down trend of public acceptance is found in the radio program which asks its listeners to vote on their favorite numbers each week. No tune has ever stayed in first place more than a few weeks; seldom do they stay in the running more than two months.

Billy Hill's Experience.

Ascap, which pools all musical copyrights of its members, collects royalties and distributes them, has won some success in its campaign. In Nebraska, where Ascap was held an unconstitutional restraint of trade, an appeal brought a temporary injunction against the decision. The organization claims it simply protects its members, which could hardly be called "racketeering." Gene Buck, Ascap president, likes to tell what happened to Billy Hill, who found himself broke while his "Home on the Range" was being hummed all over the nation.

Since the public eats up new tunes so fast, composers and orchestra leaders are getting gray hair trying to meet the demand. The result has been some ingenious devices.

One method is to take an old tune and rearrange it, change it from waltz to fox-trot time and back again. "What," asked Benny Goodman recently, "can you do with a song like 'My Gal Sal' after you've played it 4,000 times? You've got to kick it around!"

Another method, which ties up with Goodman's idea, is to go back into history. Ella Fitzgerald, Negro vocalist, completely abandoned modern tunes when she saw how fast they wear out. Instead she combed through the files and revived old numbers like "Swanee River," finally reaching the nursery rhymes. As a result, "A-ticket, A-ticket" was brought into the limelight.

Schubert to Swing.

Some months ago an opera lover was amazed at the familiarity of a tune he heard being played by a jazz orchestra. The melody kept running through his mind at its fast tempo, exasperatingly, until he slowed it down and discovered the truth: An adept arranger had simply lifted an aria from the opera, "Martha." Since then, such classical composers as Mendelssohn, Schubert, Schumann and Grieg have been turned over in their graves and changed to swing time.

This, say some, is plain "robbery," yet it's very seldom that a brand new tune comes out of Tin Pan Alley. The June-moon, love-dove, blue-you idea runs through so many modern lyrics that it sometimes becomes disgusting. What's more, many a long-dead composer has furnished the inspiration for a modern song writer. A good musician can take most popular numbers apart and show what makes them run.

Radio's growing army of entertainers helps devour the new songs, so much that the average tune lasts only a few weeks before the public tires of it. At left, Rudy Vallee of "Stein Song" fame. Below, Phil Cook, song plugger extraordinary.

Frankle Masters, well-known radio orchestra leader, leads his band in rehearsing a brand new tune—or is it just an old one revamped with a few notes and another set of lyrics?

Copyright Troubles.

"The Merry-Go-Round Broke Down" had its start in a Manhattan night club where Eddie Riley and Mike Farley pulled a verse from the Ford joke book and wrote a tune to go with it. Soon a New York radio station began broadcasting from the club and overnight the song was a national favorite. The interesting sidelight here is that the Ford joke book was not copyrighted, otherwise its publisher could have collected $250 from every radio station, cafe and restaurant that used it.

Copyrights—or lack of them—have given many a composer financial trouble. Take Shelton Brooks, now pounding piano in a New York cafe. Back in 1910, while doing the same thing in Chicago, he wrote the famous "Some of These Days." No publisher would touch it, so Mr. Brooks and a friend handled it themselves. Their net profit at 10-cents a copy was $62.50. But a few months later a vaudeville trio picked it up and started it on the road to fame. Mr. Brooks sold out to Will Rossiter for $500. That's all he got out of it though "Some of These Days" went on to make a cool million dollars.

Since good song writers are few these days, publishers have grasped at a new method of protecting themselves and keeping the public happy. They're keeping in mind the fact that copyrights on the tunes that thrilled grandfather are now running out, and that it's often possible to buy renewal rights from the composers or their heirs. With new tunes so few, orchestra leaders often find it convenient—and pleasing—to insert a medley of oldtimers in their programs.

Revising the Nineties.

One of the leaders in this old tune business is Jerry Vogel, a New York publisher who got a break several years ago when George A. Cohen turned over his entire portfolio without charge. Thus, Vogel found himself sitting with full rights on such one-time hit tunes as "Forty-five Minutes From Broadway," "George Washington Jr.," and "Over There."

Sometime later a woman from near Boston dropped in and offered to sell renewal rights on the number her uncle had written, Henry J. Sayers' "Ta Ra Ra Boom Der E." Vogel snatched it up and showed it to Fred Waring, then playing on the Ford hour. Waring tried it out and Mr. Ford—a lover of old tunes—liked it so well he had the orchestra write special lyrics. They used the tune more than a year, which was a nice piece of business for Mr. Vogel on a tune which a few months before had been dead and forgotten.

But at best the revival business is only a stop-gap proposition, a matter of securing tunes that will fill in until Tin Pan Alley can turn out more "new" songs. Publishers often get pretty disgusted about the whole thing. Although they receive vast amounts of script from amateurs, the bulk of it is sent back unopened because there's seldom anything of value. An exception was the song, "Springtime in the Rockies," which a San Francisco publisher bought from an amateur several years ago. It was a terrific smash.

Again, publishers are often the victims of their own disgust or smugness, call it what you will. Hoagy Carmichael wrote "Star Dust" quite a few years ago but it gathered dust in the drawer until someone tried it out, having nothing else to do on a rainy afternoon. You know what happened. Similarly, another publisher tossed "If I Could Be With You One Hour Tonight" on the shelf until it was forgotten. Finally somebody wrote a new arrangement of it and a highly successful recording was made.

What to Eat and Why

C. Houston Goudiss Describes Diet After Middle Age; Shows How Right Food Can Prolong the Vigorous Years

By C. HOUSTON GOUDISS

ONE of the best prescriptions ever offered for longevity was advanced by the wise man who said: In the twenties, prepare for the thirties; in the thirties, prepare for the forties; and after that—prepare for a long and vigorous old age!

That advice is well worth following, for it has been estimated that by taking into account all the newer knowledge of nutrition, it is possible not only to improve health, but to add a number of years to the normal life span.

A Man Is as Young as He Feels

It has been well said that "the age of man has small relation to his years," for it has been demonstrated, both clinically and in the scientist's laboratory, that old age is a physiological condition rather than an accumulation of years.

In grandmother's day, a woman of 50 was considered old. Today that age is regarded as young, and much of the important work of the world is being done by men and women who can see 50 only by looking over their shoulder.

Importance of Correct Diet
On the other hand, thousands of Americans are unknowingly impairing their efficiency and shortening their lives through the misuse of food. They are eating the wrong kind of food—and what is equally disastrous—they are over-eating! They do not seem to realize that eating too much does not strengthen the body, but exhausts it with the labors of digestion. The surplus nourishment clogs the system and may be indirectly responsible for headache, dyspepsia, biliousness and mental dullness.

Unless they change their habits of eating, they will inevitably become victims of their own indiscretions. For while it is folly to neglect the health at any age, to do so in middle life is to open the way to an early death or to an old age marred by sickness.

Keep Down the Weight

The first 25 years of man's life are devoted to growth. During this period of youth, the body usually has a large fund of reserve energy which can be called upon in times of stress. During the next 25 or 30 years, the weight should remain constant. If the diet is properly regulated, and sound habits of hygiene are followed, a man or woman will come into middle age full of vigor and with mental and physical capacities undiminished.

Unfortunately, however, the laws of hygiene and nutrition are often broken during the active middle years. As a result, bodily reserves are depleted and middle age finds many men and women near the danger line, no longer able to resist infections and the degenerative diseases.

That is why it is so desirable—if you hope to be vigorous at 50 and after—that you begin to plan for it many years earlier.

Live sensibly. Avoid overwork. Regularly take a moderate amount of exercise.—Get enough sleep so that you avoid that chronic "tired feeling." Above all, eat enough, but not too much, of the foods that build and maintain health: milk; eggs; fruits and vegetables; protein foods in amounts just sufficient to meet your requirements, so that there is no excess to be eliminated; enough fuel foods to give you plenty of pep and power, but not in amounts that will cause the weight increase which many people erroneously believe inevitable during the middle years.

Curb the Appetite for Rich Foods

It is most important to avoid overeating. For muscular activity decreases with the passing years. The middle aged individual often rides where a younger person might walk or observes active sports from the sidelines where he formerly played them with zeal. Unfortunately, however, the appetite seldom diminishes in proportion to the lessened fuel needs. That is why every individual who has entered upon

Uncle Phil Says:

Without Puffing
Don't get too swift; you can walk farther in a day than you can run.

Efficiency that begins with mere skimming is no efficiency at all.

After a sensitive man has been blown about for years by the winds of chance, he looks for a rut.

Guessing is 'great sport and so many of our "convictions" depend on it.

Sort of Magic in It

It is great fun making people who you know dislike you, like you.

Human nature is never changed; it is only better controlled, due to the reasoning of century after century, with an occasional throw-back.

Five or six small meals are more easily digested than three large ones. Each person should discover what meal schedule best suits individual requirements and then abide by it. For it is indeed true that middle age—and the years beyond—are largely what you make them!

Questions Answered

Mrs. J. A. H.—Milk, fruits and vegetables supply a large part, but not all of the minerals required by the body daily. The diet must be supplemented with whole grain bread or cereals, eggs and some meat.

Fall Styles That Flatter

HERE are two charming fashions with the crisp, slim-waisted, very feminine look that proves they are now and smart! And you'll notice that the sleeves are proudly puffed up, not out—they give height, not width, to the shoulders. These two simple designs, each accompanied by a do-tailed sew chart, make it very, very easy for you to have two leading fashions of the coming season at very little cost.

Two-Piece With Jacket Blouse.

This charming fashion is extremely good this fall. It's tailored or dressy, according to the materials in which you make it up. The skirt is slim and plain. The jacket-blouse as youthful and becoming as it can be. For street, make it of wool crepe, flannel or faille. For afternoon, choose velvet or broadcloth for the skirt; satin, velvet or silver cloth for the jacket blouse.

With Smart, Slenderizing Lines.

Notice that the front panel of the skirt is cut in one with the midriff section—that's a smart detail that you see in expensive models, and it's excellent for large women. You can trust the suave, slick lines of this dress to make you look several pounds slimmer. It fits beautifully. Shoulder darts, and gathers above the waistline, ease it over the bust, without any hint of bulkiness. Make this of satin, silk crepe, velvet or sheer wool, and you'll like it better than any dress you've had for a long time.

1477 is designed for sizes 14, 16, 18, 20, 40 and 42. Size 16 requires

2 yards of 39 inch material for the jacket-blouse; 2 yards for the skirt.

1595 is designed for sizes 30, 32, 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46, 48, 50 and 52. Size 30 requires 5 1/2 yards of 39 inch material for long-sleeved dress; 4 1/2 yards for short-sleeved.

Fall and Winter Fashion Book.

The new 32-page Fall and Winter Pattern Book which shows photographs of the dresses being worn is now out. (One pattern and the Fall and Winter Pattern Book—25 cents.) You can order the book separately for 15 cents.

Send your order to The Sewing Circle Pattern Dept., Room 1020, 211 W. Wacker Dr., Chicago, Ill. Price of patterns, 15 cents (in coin) each.

HOUSEHOLD QUESTIONS

Safety Measure.—To fill a steaming teakettle place a small funnel in the spout to prevent burning your hands in taking off the cover.

Preserving Scrub Brushes.—Never put scrubbing brushes away until they have been thoroughly washed, rinsed and shaken, so that most of the moisture has been removed.

For Scuffed Furniture.—If you will take a soft flannel cloth, dip it in iodine, then rub gently over scuffed mahogany furniture, when it dries the scratches will be almost unnoticeable. Then when iodine is dry, apply a liberal coating of a good furniture oil.

For Stiff Leather Straps.—Leather luggage-straps that have become hard may be softened by soaking for several hours in hot, soapy water. Allow to dry in a cool place while still soapy, and finally rub with a cloth dipped in linseed oil.

A Twine Holder.—A funnel makes an excellent holder for a ball of twine. Choose one large enough to hold a good-sized ball. Put the end of the string through the neck of the funnel.

The Livestock Situation

By J. A. McNaughton

Los Angeles Union Stock Yards, Sept. 21. Livestock markets are performing in a very satisfactory manner, indicating a broad demand for meats and a generally satisfactory retail meat situation. Hog prices have been particularly favorable in view of the relatively low prices on grains and to date, those who have marketed grain through the medium of pork have received a considerably higher price than those who sold the grain as such. More and more, western grain growers and farmers are looking to livestock as a means of merchandizing their pastures and grains. Undoubtedly, by and large, those who sell their hay and grain through meat channels have the most stable market of any agriculturalists.

The $10 hog made reappearances on the Los Angeles market during the past week, which means $30 per head for 20-lb. market hogs. Assuming that on the average, 500 lbs. of barley is required to produce 100 lbs. of live pork, the man who receives 10 cents a pound for his hogs is actually selling his barley in concentrated form at about $2 a cwt., or at least double the present market price of the grain. While hog growers can hardly expect such a favorable market situation to continue if hog population increases materially, it still seems quite certain that the western grain grower is likely to find pork production his most profitable means of marketing barley for a long time to come.

Students of the livestock markets are optimistic as to the immediate future of the fat cattle market. Supplies of strictly fat, grain-fed cattle are known to be somewhat limited in the entire Los Angeles trade area. The market shows considerable strength, and prices of fat steers and cows were strong to higher on last week's market. While increased marketings of range cattle are to be expected during the next 90 days, most of these cattle are likely to be marketed as stockers and feeders. A broad demand for such cattle is in prospect on the Los Angeles market, as California cattlemen will need large numbers of cattle for replacement on ranges and in feedlots.

Local Teachers to Attend Convention in Hot Springs

Mrs. Irene Hart, local superintendent of schools, who is serving as a member of the Advisory Committee of the Southwestern New Mexico Educational Association, announced this week that a good representation of the local teachers will attend the annual convention in Hot Springs on September 30-October 1.

About six hundred teachers from the nine southwestern counties are expected to attend the annual convention.

Entertainment features of the convention include a free fish fry, trips through the Elephant Butte Dam and Carrie Tingley Hospital; a free picture show, and a free night football game between Alamogordo and Hot Springs.

Teachers who attend the Southwestern New Mexico Educational Association in Hot Springs on September 30-October 1, are being shown every consideration possible by Mayor Leo F. Smith, Chamber of Commerce Secretary, M. L. Hurley, and the Hot Springs Board of Education. Those who arrive by bus will be met by free taxi, and those who drive their cars are invited to store them and make use of the free taxi service, which will be available during the two days.

"Teacher taxi" in all that visiting teachers in Hot Springs will have to say on the street or over the telephone at the annual meeting in order to be taken any place in the city at almost any time without charge.

The Hot Springs Chamber of Commerce through its Secretary, Mr. M. L. Hurley, has announced that the businessmen of Hot Springs are going to cooperate in providing the teachers of the southwest with a free fish fry on Friday afternoon, Sept. 30, at Elephant Butte Dam Lake, on the opening day of the Southwestern New Mexico Educational Association. During and after the fish fry teachers will be taken for motor boat rides on the lake and inspection trips through the Elephant Butte Dam.

WHO'S NEWS THIS WEEK

By LEMUEL F. PARTON

NEW YORK.—In 1918, the Bolsheviks were fixing to shoot Maj. Alexander P. de Seversky, but he persuaded them to let him go to America so he could get a new wooden leg. He got it, also a beautiful wife, a $5,000,000 airplane factory, and a lot of flying records, culminating in his new east-west transcontinental record of 10 hours and 3 minutes, from New York to Los Angeles.

Flying for Imperial Russia in the World war, he engaged in more than 100 dogfights with the Germans and dropped 13 of them. But one day they dropped him—into the Baltic. A forty-pound bomb, which he had failed to release, exploded as the ship struck the water, and blew it to bits.

Recovering consciousness later, he discovered that, witless as he was, he had been clinging to a pontoon. The water was red around him. Bluffing his good leg over the pontoon, he made a tourniquet of his torn trouser leg. He swooned again, as a Russian destroyer picked him up. He crow-hopped the Chinese border on his wooden leg, as a stupid border guard refused to recognize his papers.

Washington received him hospitably, in April, 1919, and made him a consulting engineer for the army air service. He later experienced some rough going, but the only real crack-up in his career was encompassed in that drop into the Baltic. He was steadily on the uptake, designing planes, flying and bringing through his factory. In 1933, he designed and built an amphibian plane which made a record of 177.70 miles per hour. Trained in the Imperial Naval academy, he has contributed greatly to aviation engineering and design.

Several years ago, using an alarm clock and few electrical odds and ends, he made a waiting plane, swaying rhythmically with band music from below. His waiting days were over and he found this a satisfactory substitute.

SIMON LAKE, the inventor of the submarine, 72 years old, hopes some day to get an under-sea peck at the sunken continent of Atlantis.

Lake Out to Redeem the Submarine
In a mid-town hotel in New York, he is up to his knees in blueprints of submarine adaptations and gadgets which he hopes will be found useful by the deep sea boulevardier. His father is 91; his grandfather lived to the age of 90 and his sister to 102. Although his once red hair is white, he thinks he is just now getting his start in life.

His 25 basic patents alone made the submarine possible. Like many, possibly most, inventors, he could devise a scheme for almost anything except getting what was coming to him. So, in his genial, casual way, he is broke.

Reading Jules Verne, when he was 10 years old, led him to capsize a rowboat on the Toms river in New Jersey and test his staying powers in the submerged air chamber. In 1934, he made a wooden submarine 14 feet long, with a soda water tank supplying compressed air. It worked nicely. In 1934, he made the Argonaut, Jr., in which he cruised under the water for thousands of miles on Chesapeake bay.

Like the Wright brothers, he aroused little attention. He finally got Washington interested when he telephoned to the capital from the bottom of the sea. His working submarine came through. Washington didn't seem to care much what he did, so he took his invention to foreign capitals. Czarist Russia made him some impressive offers but he decided they were a dissolute lot and, as a self-respecting American business man, he wouldn't have anything to do with them.

All in all, he became fed up with bureaucrats and red tape and governments in general and turned to deep sea treasure hunts. The submarines, of course, destroyed much more treasure than they ever dredged up. This troubles him. Vigorous and energetic, with a wrinkled, knobby weather-beaten face, genial and friendly, he plugs along alone in his hotel to redeem the submarine by making it a general cargo and passenger carrier.

Plaids, Stripes and Prints Radiant With Fall Colors

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

AN EPIDEMIC of plaids is gripping the entire fashion world. It matters not whether you are a grown-up or a juvenile, or a junior or a between-age, you will never be able to remain immune to the wiles and winning ways of the gorgeous plaids that have come out in such brilliant array at the dawn of this new fall season. For that matter who wants to if they could resist the witchery of anything so intriguing as are the new plaids. So if you would be fashion-wise enter into the spirit of the current mode and "go in" for plaids with a will.

It certainly is an exciting story that the new plaids are telling. The plot carries on and on in endless variety via costume suits that are smartly tailored of glorified plaids and as to the separate skirts that are fashioned of plaid you couldn't keep count of their vast number if you tried. Then there are the cunning flattering shirtmaker dresses, the skirts of which radiate tucks or pleats from a slim waistline. Almost invariably the sleeves of these youthful frocks are short in defiance of most fashion reports that forecast "long sleeves for fall and winter."

The separate plaid jacket that is tailored to a nicety is also an important item and as for the plaid blouse, it's the rage whether in fine wool weave, or a synthetic material such as rayon or it may be of taffeta. Nor does the present plaid craze stop at the costume proper, but it carries on full force into the accessory area. With your sweater and plaid skirt if you play the game of fashion as it should be played on campus and in spectator sports-womanhood at the gridiron series, you'll see to it that your costume is completed with a jaunty cap and bag of matching plaid.

In the illustration we are showing a plaid, a stripe and a gay print school-girl model. These fetching fashions had their initial showing at a preview showing of fall styles recently presented at the Merchandise Mart in Chicago.

Off to school is the young miss to the left in a clever Scotch costume. The skirt is a red and black plaid, with a matching Scotch cap and purse. The sweater is also red.

"The Barber of Seville" is the appropriate name given to the gaily striped wool afternoon dress centered in the picture. The skirt is pleated and the new longer-than-formerly-shown jacket is striped in jungle green and dregs of wine (much exploited color this season). A green ascot tie completes the dress.

The peasant dress still dominates in dresses for the young for fall, as the model illustrated to the right portrays. The dress is navy blue broadcloth with splashy yellow and red flowers, over which is worn a brilliant-front-located peasant bodice. The Scotch plaid dress pictured in the inset below is typical of present-day trends in wear-to-school fashions.

Bi-Color Suede

Suede gains in style importance. Now that this supple beautifully colorful medium is being worked just like fabric, the fashion-minded are calling for it increasingly each season. Here, as pictured, an oriole orange suede jacket is worn by Gloria Stuart of cinema renown, over a simple one-piece dress of paradise blue suede. Short sleeves and a scalloped collar give the frock a youthful look. The blue suede cap is ideal for informal knockabout wear.

Autumn Costumes Favor Boxy Coats

Although the edict of finger-tip length jackets is general for first autumn suits, several French designers are defying this rule by introducing short, boxy ones to wear with contrasting dresses.

One of these brief coats is little more than waistline length and flares in all directions. Its roomy shoulder line and wide sleeves contribute to the carefree impression. Some striking color combinations are achieved with these jackets of light weight wool worn over wool dresses. Since mauve and violet tones continue to be popular they are being used extensively, often in alliance with blue or dark red.

The suit which has a jacket resembling an overblouse or a brief tunic is the one which designers regard with favor and which looks so much like a dress that it may be worn during cold weather under a fur coat.

Lights of New York

by L. L. STEVENSON

Dates: What with an escort service for lonely women visitors to New York and a more recent similar service for lonely New York male visitors, now comes an "introduction service" for young men and young women. The announcements state: "introductions so correct your grandmother would approve . . . which make your life in New York as vivid and exciting as a Disney cartoon." Applicants for membership must give references which are "tactfully but carefully" investigated. They must also submit to an interview in which their backgrounds and hobbies are learned. Character sketches and photographs are filed and those wishing company merely have to thumb through the files until a suitable candidate is found. Membership costs $3 and thereafter, a charge of a buck for each introduction. Thus a boy or a girl with only a small cash capital need no longer be lonely in the great city.

Aid: Loneliness is not the only New York enemy against which an organized campaign is being waged. A new institution is designed to minimize the handicaps of bachelorhood. For a fee, buttons will be sewed on, socks mended and other chores usually performed by wives, mothers and sisters will be done. Not only that but apartments will be looked after, beds made, clothes sent out to be pressed and if desired, arrangements made for parties. Withal bachelors may have many of the benefits of matrimony without being called on to make explanations when they come home showing the effects of foolish water or if they happen to stay out extra late.

City Life: On Fifty-fifth street, near Sixth avenue, a dancing Negro . . . His clothing covered with ribbons and artificial flowers . . . Safety pins stuck in his bare feet . . . As he shuffles about, he accompanies himself on a more or less musical instrument fashioned from a tin can.

His reward, an occasional penny . . . A self-absorbed sailor walking along Forty-eighth street playing a tune on a toy piccolo . . . At Times square and Forty-fifth street, a young man hurrying to the assistance of a drunk who isn't doing a good job of escorting a blind man across the street . . . On Forty-second street, between Fifth and Sixth avenues, bootblacks grabbing their chairs and shine boxes at sight of a cop, running into a subway entrance to hide and emerging and resuming business when the coast is clear.

Dark: The object of most sun-starved New Yorkers, especially feminine ones, is to acquire as much tan as possible during the summer months. Early in the season, boiled lobster complexions are common because of a Sunday at Coney. But as the Sundays pass, with perhaps two weeks' vacation up in the Catskills or down at the shore, the little stenographer achieves the shade of an aborigine, the coat of suntan oil and various sunburn soothing ointments merely being regarded as overhead. In the past, I was diverted by tracing suntan patterns on the bodies of chorus girls when they resumed work in the fall. Such pastime is impossible now. They wear more on the stage than they do on the beaches.

Sights: These old eyes have become more or less accustomed to the various spectacles witnessed daily on the streets of New York. But the other afternoon while strolling along Park avenue and wishing that paragraphs would write themselves, I stopped and rubbed my eyes. Advancing toward me was an exceedingly fine lady, glittering with precious stones and clinking with gold circlets on wrists and ankles while in her hand was a pink ribbon. At the end of the ribbon was a pompous goose wearing a gold collar and gold anklets. By the time I had recovered enough to ask questions, the lady and the goose were gone.

Luck: When a man bought some smokes in a Times square cigar store, the clerk shoved back a $10 bill he offered. Said Uncle Sam hadn't made it. So the customer, heaving a sigh, shoved the counterfelt into his coat pocket, produced another bill, paid, and went out. On Forty-second street, a young man bumped into him, apologized and was gone. So was the bum bill. And the man is wondering what the pickpocket will do with it.

Missionaries in Liberia

Make Long Jungle Treks
WASHINGTON.—In the performance of their duties, American missionaries in Liberia travel hundreds of miles each year through the steaming jungles in hammocks borne by natives, according to the Right Reverend Leopold Krull, Protestant Episcopal bishop to the African republic.

For six months of the year the bishop and his assistants explore the jungle or travel up and down 450 miles of coastline in the bishop's launch, seeking to convert the natives. In the other six months, Bishop Krull said, torrential rains make missionary work impossible except along a small strip of coast.

Puget Sound Fish Roundup

Picture Parade

IN WASHINGTON'S Puget Sound, fishermen catch salmon by cowboy tactics, building a "fence" around them and reducing the size of their corral until the salmon can be lifted out of the seine into the boat or tender. Nineteen hundred feet of net are strung over the side, held up by cork floats, kept down by lead weights.

Going in a circle about 575 feet in diameter, the net soon encloses a school of salmon. The bottom of the net is closed by drawing the purse line which operates just like the string of a purse. Soon the net will be drawn in, bringing its cargo of fresh salmon.

Here in a closeup of taking in the net. The man in the foreground is handling the purse line, which is usually drawn in by steam power because of its tremendous weight. Thus modern steam winches have greatly increased the speed of fishing, enabling boats to surround and capture a school of salmon in quick order.

Here the salmon are being brailled aboard with a net. Once aboard the boat, the salmon are rushed to the cannery or transferred to a cannery tender which carries thousands of the silvery fish to plants located on the shores of Puget Sound. Less than 24 hours later the fish are in cans, cooked, labeled and ready for shipment to your corner grocery. Puget Sound's delicious salmon are not taken in excessive numbers. Fishermen and the government co-operate to restrict each annual catch.

The grand finale takes place on your own dining-room table. Here's a delicious gift of the sea, steamed salmon pudding, one of the attractive new dishes which add nourishing protein, deep sea minerals and vitamins to your diet.

SYNOPSIS

Barbara Sentry, seeking to sober up her escort, Johnnie Boyd, on the way home from a party, slaps him, and attracts the attention of a policeman, whom the boy knocks down. As he arrests him, Professor Brace of Harvard comes to the rescue and drives Barbara home. On the way they see Barbara's father driving from the direction of his office at 12:45, but when he gets home he tells his wife it is 11:15 and that he's been playing bridge at the club. Next morning, while Barbara is telling her mother about her adventure, an urgent phone call comes from Mr. Sentry's office after his departure. Arriving home in the late afternoon, Sentry reports his office has been robbed and a Miss Wines, former temporary employee, killed. The evening papers juridically confirm the story, and Sentry takes it hard. Mary, elder daughter, in love with Nell Ray, young interne at the hospital where she works, goes off to dinner at Gus Lorran's, Sentry's partner, with Mrs. Lorran's brother, Jimmy Endie, Mr. and Mrs. Sentry call on old Mrs. Sentry, and Barbara, alone, receives Dan Fisher, reporter, who advises her not to talk. Phil Sentry, son at Yale, is disturbed at the possible implications and suspicion of Miss Wines' absence from her rooms for three days during August.

CHAPTER III—Continued

He decided to go home for a day or two; to surprise them. He dressed, packed his bag, had breakfast, and took a train for Boston. If he had sent word ahead, old Eli would have met him; but since Phil did not do so, there was no one at the station. A taxi would have taken him quickly home, but as though he had himself been guilty of some misdemeanor, he was suddenly reluctant to face them all. To put off the hour of that encounter, he walked over to Trinity Place and waited for a suburban train that would deposit him near his home. He remembered that his grandmother, old Mrs. Sentry, always came out for Sunday dinner and stayed through the afternoon and for supper, and he was glad she would be there. She was always sensible and shrewd.

The train arrived and he got aboard, and after the short run alighted. It was dusk when, bag in hand, he set out to walk to his home, his feet lagging miserably. Then a car pulled in at the curb beside him, and someone called in a laughing tone: "Carry your bag, Mister? Taxi, Mister?"

It was Linda Dane. There had been comradeship between them, a real affection, since they were children. He tossed his bag into the rumble, climbed in beside her.

"Hullo, Lin," he said, gripping her hand. "Gosh, I'm glad to see you!"

"Me too," she agreed. "Where've you been? Where you going? What are you home for?" She hesitated. "Oh, this beastly thing in the papers, of course. Isn't it rotten! I hope they get whoever did it and just—just skin him alive. But it's a shame you all have to be dragged into it!" She touched his hand. "Never mind. It won't last long. I'll take you home. How's Joe?"

"Fine," Phil told her. "Saw him yesterday."

"Wasn't it wonderful that you won? The game must have been just thrilling." She turned into his street.

"Drive around a while, can you?" he asked. "I don't want to go in yet."

She looked at him quickly. "Phil? Are you in a jam? She laughed softly. "Is it something disgraceful? Shouldn't I be seen with you?"

"Oh, no. I just want to—"

They passed his home without stopping and went on. "Where shall I drive?" she asked.

"Around the park, James!" he told her, grinning; and he asked, "Lin, how are they all taking it?"

She hesitated. "Pretty hard, I'm afraid."

"How's Barb?"

"I was with her when she first saw the papers. She was scared, Phil. But she's trying to—keep them cheered up now."

"Sure! She would!"

"I went home with her. She hoped you would come."

"I thought I'd better." He said: "You and Barb and I will have to stick together. We always have, haven't we?"

She looked straight ahead, smiling faintly. "You need someone to take along, Phil," she said gently. "You're not a very steady craft, yourself, when high seas are running."

"I know. A good time is apt to go to my head. You've brought me down to earth more than once."

She chuckled. "Both feet on the ground?"

"Funny," he reflected, "that you and I have never been—sentimental about each other. I kid around with other girls, and probably you have your moments too. But we don't get that way. I wonder why."

"I wonder," she echoed, eyes on the road.

"We're just darned good friends. But whenever I've got anything on my mind, I like to talk it over with you."

"Me too," she agreed, and swung into the drive in front of his house. "Here we are, Phil." She stopped the car and looked at him, waiting for him to get out; and he looked at her, and hesitated, and after a moment she laughed softly and asked, "Is this what you're thinking?" And leaned toward him.

He kissed her. "Thanks, Lin."

"Since you took up nursing you're keen on symptoms! No wonder doctors' families always have something the matter with them, with someone like you around."

There was a moment's silence; and then Mr. Sentry asked quietly, "Sure there's nothing wrong, Phil?"

"No, father. I just felt like seeing you all."

And Grandmother Sentry demanded, "Why shouldn't he come home if he wants to, Arthur?"

Mr. Sentry said, "Well, after all, college is his job right now." The doorbell rang, and Barbara went to answer it. "But of course we're glad to see you, Phil."

There were voices in the hall. They watched the door. Then Barbara came back, pale terror in her eyes. "Father, it's Inspector Irons," she said in low tones. "He—"

The Inspector, without waiting, came in past her; and a second man followed him. Mr. Sentry stood up, holding to the back of his chair. The second man stopped at his elbow. Mr. Sentry said, "Good evening, Inspector."

The Inspector said, "Mr. Sentry, I'll ask you to come along with me."

Phil stared at his father, felt his own cheeks stiffen. Mr. Sentry licked his lips. "Where to, Inspector?" he asked, in a hoarse voice.

"After all, it's Sunday evening—"

The Inspector hesitated uncomfortably. "I'd rather talk about it at Headquarters," he said. "That will be easier, all around."

Then the other man touched Mr. Sentry's arm.

For a moment after the man in plain clothes touched Mr. Sentry's arm, the room was still as ice. Then Mr. Sentry nodded, almost with relief; and he said quietly to Mrs. Sentry, "I'll have to go. Ellen. To Phil: 'You can take mother in town when she's ready.'"

Phil nodded, and looked toward old Mrs. Sentry, and he uttered a low ejaculation. Her head had dropped forward, her chin was resting on her chest, and her eyes were closed. At his exclamation, Mary went quickly toward the older woman, and Mrs. Sentry without moving said, "Barbara, get my smelling salts!" Barbara darted up the stairs.

Inspector Irons spoke to Mr. Sentry; they moved away. Mrs. Sentry tried to follow; but she seemed to stumble, and stopped. Only Phil went with his father out into the hall; and, standing in the open doorway, he saw Mr. Sentry get into the police car, into the rear seat. Inspector Irons sat on one side of him, the man in plain clothes on the other. There were policemen in uniform in front, and Phil noticed abstractedly the radio antenna, like an old-fashioned buggy whip, projecting above the roof. He thought in a dull way that his father must be crowded in the narrow seat; since the Inspector was a big man, and so was his companion. The car drove away.

When Phil went back into the house, into the dining-room, old Mrs. Sentry was herself again. He asked, "All right, grandmother?"

"All right? Of course I'm all right," she said sharply. "I was all right all the time. I just did it to give you all something to think about. You were standing around like a lot of statues, scared silly!"

"Your color's come back," Phil commented.

"It was never gone," she insisted.

Mrs. Sentry rose, and she said in a low tone, thinking of the servants, "Come into the living-room."

They followed her quietly, not speaking, not daring to speak. The others sat down, but Phil remained standing. His cheeks were still stiff; his lips felt thick and clumsy. Yet—here were four of them, four women, his sisters, his mother, his grandmother. He was the only man; he must do something, say something.

He said, groping: "How about a rubber of bridge you don't want to go home yet, do you, grandmother?"

Old Mrs. Sentry said sharply: "Don't be an idiot, Phil! Don't try to stick your head in the sand. All our heads. Face the fact! They think your father killed that girl!"

Barbara gasped, looking from one to another, her eyes beseeching them to deny this. Mrs. Sentry made an indignant sound; and Phil argued unconvincingly: "Oh, I don't think so! They probably just want some more information or something. Maybe they've arrested someone and want father to identify him."

"Nonsense! I'm too old to fool myself, or to be fooled!"

Barbara's eyes were streaming, yet she made no sound. Mary was red as flame. Mrs. Sentry said resentfully, "But mother, you surely don't believe—"

The older woman said curtly: "The police aren't fools! If they had arrested Arthur, be sure they had good reason!"

"I hope you won't talk like that before outsiders!"

"Outsiders!" Grandmother Sentry snorted. "Ellen, you're a plain snob!"

"I have some pride," Mrs. Sentry said composedly.

"This will shake it out of you!" the old woman predicted, almost with a relish. "I don't know whether Arthur killed this girl or not; but it wouldn't surprise me! It's a wonder to me he hasn't got mixed up with some woman long ago. I don't know how he lives in the same house with you and your pride!"

Mrs. Sentry smiled patiently, thinking: She was always a scold, a harrier, and Arthur's father lost his head and married her. Then she saw Barbara staring at them both through tears, and she protested, "Really, mother!"

Grandmother Sentry said more gently: "There, Ellen, I'm sorry! We can't mend the past now, I suppose. After all—"

She stopped, for tires hissed on gravel, in the drive outside, and while they listened rigidly, someone came up the steps and rang the bell. Phil cried in a great relief, "There, he's back already!" He went to the door, the two girls on his heels.

Noted Inventor Points Out Helicopter Value in Warfare, Should It Be Needed

The helicopter would prove invaluable as a war defense machine should the United States enter armed conflict, Ivan Eremeeff, Philadelphia inventor, believes, writes a Philadelphia correspondent in the Los Angeles Times.

Eremeeff said the vertical-ascending craft "is ideal for observation purposes, for it is not nearly so easy to see from a distance as an observation balloon."

The War department has a complete record of the development and design of the helicopter, the inventor said, and in event of war probably would immediately begin perfection of the peculiar ship.

Pointing out the benefit of the craft's vertical lifting power—it has whirling horizontal blades in place of the conventional wings—Eremeeff said it "can land anywhere, even on a house roof, or in the branches of a tree, and ascend vertically from the same spots."

Because of its ability to ascend straight up, field hospitals would use the helicopter extensively, mainly by picking up dead and wounded from battlefields, Eremeeff said.

The inventor, who supervised the construction of the first successful helicopter for the United States army eighteen years ago, believes that the big problem in helicopter design lies in control. He said as long as the craft remains level, it is under perfect control, but a steep incline will send it crashing to earth.

Eremeeff said he is planning to design a blade for the helicopter which will control the slip, as well as propel it.

The Great Pyramid of Egypt

It is believed that the Great Pyramid of Egypt was built by King Cheops in 4700-B.-C., and that 100,000 men were employed for ten years in making a causeway 3,000 feet long to facilitate the transportation of stone from adjacent quarries and the same number of men worked 20 years more to complete the pyramid.

PRICE OF PERFECTION . . .

If being "tops" in your line cost you nothing, it would be worth just that much to you!

By WINIFRED WILLARD

WE CAME at twilight to a home-like town among the hills of Maryland. There we would stop for the night. I shopped for rooms—something comfortable at modest cost. At the best looking hotel, the dapper young clerk quoted rates that would have knocked my depression purse silly. I told him so. He replied, "Well, you get just what you pay for!" It's true.

There was that symphony orchestra which we heard through the season where 60 men played as one. No out-of-tune or out-of-tune or out-of-balance. Just glorious, classic music. It looked so easy, all grace and beauty and harmony. Every note was just right. But every player there had paid hours a day, year after year of grilling work, for the power to have his part in that ensemble. The fustian, they say is premier of all in the world. He played the very heart out of us with his eerie, almost divine melodies. It seemed so simple. He is paying through all the years, the price of his continued mastery. That is what makes it so worthwhile.

If excellent cost these musicians nothing, it would be worth nothing to them. If being a topper in your line cost you nothing, it would be worth just that much to you!

Fritz Kreisler's Price

With his violin Kreisler had completed a mighty aria. Silence of utter tribute followed. Then an impulsive woman rushed up to him and exclaimed: "Oh, Mr. Kreisler, I'd give half my life to be able to play as you do!" With quiet dignity the great musician replied: "Madam, that is the very price I have paid." Not even he got his mastery except for the price.

A popular theater, full one night in Washington, was mystified and challenged by the magic that was Houdini's. We knew there must be mirrors and many tricky devices. We tried to discover them. And couldn't. As we watched his performance, the wonder of it and the marvel of him remained.

How did he do those breath-taking feats that permitted him to rank all others in his line in the world? He did them by paying their price! Not his price. But whatever the cost of doing them better than anybody else had ever done them, he paid it. He began paying when he was a boy. Steadily through the years he recognized the high cost of the skill he was set on earning. Not a finger nor a toe must bungle or fall or slip. Hard to do!

So, year after year, as Houdini talked or read or thought, those 20 agile partners were ceaselessly at work, tying and untying difficult knots and other intricate, puzzling things. Eternally of it, with all the body and mind of him! Houdini couldn't afford to fail. He paid the high price of supreme achievement. He got what he wanted.

Paderewski's Discipline

The greatest pianist of the ages is Paderewski, son of Poland, citizen of the world. We incline to think of him as a special favorite of the gods, so endowed above the earthly. Doubtless so! But the gods would have failed him unless he had done his part. He, too, must keep on paying the price. When he toposes his musical discipline one day, he sees the difference; two days and those close to him detect the lack; a week and the world is somehow conscious of the let-down of his brilliant technique. So, traveling over mountain of plain or sea, he carries a keyboard of standard piano size and action. Hour after hour as he journeys, he sits at his keyboard and pays the price of his artistry.

Few of us were designed for such outstanding front ranks as these. Mostly we have modest places in the work we must do for the world. The same law prevails. We, excel or hold our own only by continually paying. A successful young salesman was telling what a "rotten canvass" he had made the day before, how he stumbled over his story and what a poor impression he had made on the man he was trying to sell. His clear-cut explanation was that he had been doing other things for a week, hadn't worked at his job and had again to pay the price of getting back to where he was master of his situation.

I did not engage the two costly rooms at the swanky hotel in the quaint little town among the hills. But I have been glad that I shopped there and grateful to the young clerk. His vivid reply which at the time, seemed intended to put me where I belonged, has sent me exploring along many roads in the realm of life and of living—you get just what you pay for.

Ideal Hot Dish Mats Made of Cable Cord

By RUTH WYETH SPEARS

THIS mat is made of white cotton cable cord such as you buy at the notion counter for corded seams and trimmings. The original mat from which this design was taken was made of—no one of this generation would ever guess—what! Corset strings. These were once a common commodity along with collar boning, hat pins and side combs. There was quite a fad for making luncheon sets of them braided or arranged in various designs and sewn with fine stitches on the wrong side.

The design shown here is compact and, copied in rather heavy cord, makes an ideal hot dish mat. Follow the sketches for directions. Make the circles in pairs, as shown, using No. 40 cotton thread to sew them. Braid three cords together and then sew the braided strip around and around to make the center of the mat. Sew a row of the circles to the edge of this center part, then add another braided row, being careful to "ease in" the inside edge just enough to keep the mat flat. Continue adding alternate rows of circles and braiding until the mat is the size desired.

To join the ends of the braided rows, pull one end through the braiding to the wrong side of the mat; then trim the ends and sew them flat. It is not too early to begin thinking of Christmas gifts—and you will be wanting to make something a bit unusual for that next hazaar when it comes rolling around. Sewing Book 2, Embroidery, Gifts and Novelties, is full of new ideas all cleverly illustrated with step-by-step pictures. Send for it today and give life a new interest by starting some fascinating piece of hand work. Enclose 25 cents and address Mrs. Spears, 210 S. Desplaines St., Chicago, Ill.

HELP KIDNEYS

To Get Rid of Acid and Poisonous Waste
Your kidneys help to keep you well by constantly filtering waste matter from the blood. If your kidneys get functionally disordered and fail to remove excess impurities, there may be poisoning of the whole system and body-wide distress.
Burning, scanty or too frequent urination may be a warning of some kidney or bladder disturbance.
You may suffer nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, cutting urination, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—feel weak, nervous, all played out.
In such cases it is better to rely on a medicine that has been country-wide acclaim than on something less favorably known. Use Doan's Pills. A multitude of grateful people recommend Doan's. Ask your neighbor!

Executive Meeting At the University

Meeting in executive session at the University of New Mexico, Sunday, the Coronado Cuarto Centennial Commission announced the appointment of Herbert O. Brayer, as Centennial director, Dr. James E. Zimmerman, president of the Coronado Commission, announced last night.

Mr. Brayer's association with the Centennial dates almost from its inception. Granted his B. A. at the University of Southern California, he took his Master's at the University of New Mexico, where he has served as instructor in history. During a year's leave of absence Mr. Brayer completed his doctoral requirements under Dr. Herbert Eugene Bolton, at the University of California. He was subsequently awarded the Panama-Pacific Fellowship in Pacific Coast History for 1938-39, but has resigned in order to accept the Coronado Cuarto Centennial directorship. Mr. Brayer is the author of several articles on New Mexico, and is an authority on land grants and the Spanish Land System in the Southwest. His new book on Pueblo Indian Land Grants of New Mexico will be issued by the University Press this fall.

The success with which Mr. Brayer has combined his scholarship and executive acumen, applied directly to plans for the Coronado Cuarto Centennial, is attested by the complete accord given his carefully detailed Centennial plan by the Coronado Commission today. This plan, estimated to show the visitor to New Mexico the widest horizon of state interests, is built around a series of eighteen pageants to be held in cities throughout the state which will approximate, as nearly as possible, set dates for regional celebrations. Definite cooperation will be lent smaller communities in organization of auxiliary celebrations.

Present at the Commission meeting were Dr. James F. Zimmerman, President; Miss Erna M. Ferguson, Vice-President; Mr. Gilberto Espinosa, Secretary; Mr. Riley M. Edwards, Socorro; Mr. B. C. Hernandez, Mr. Charles M. Martin, Roswell; Mrs. Ruth Laughlin Alexander, Santa Fe.

"We believe that a solution to the problem of financing the Centennial has been found," announced Dr. Zimmerman, "and we assure the state that a real Centennial celebration will be held in 1940."

BANKING LOOKS AHEAD

No One Stands Alone!

In America's pioneer days, rugged men hewed a world for themselves out of a lonely wilderness. Circumstances forced them to wage the struggle alone, or in isolated groups.

But in this modern age we earn our daily bread--not alone--but by working hand in hand as a vast society of 180 million people.

Banks, business, government, the people--how can anyone separate them? We believe that what hurts one, hurts all--and what benefits one, benefits all. That is why we urge co-operation as the key to prosperity.
