CARRIZOZO, NEW MEXICO, FRIDAY, OCTOBER 14, 1938

NUMBER 16

Sunday's Singing Convention at Capitan

Before an estimated crowd of over 300, singers from New Mexico and Texas last Sunday, held the Lincoln County Singing Convention at Capitan. The feature attraction of the convention was the Lubbock Quartet, West Texas' representatives of the Stamps-Baxter Music Company of Dallas. The quartet was present Saturday night and all day Sunday, which speaks well for the Lincoln County organization, as these men are constantly in demand by larger conventions than our own.

Representatives from Roosevelt, Quay, Curry, Guadalupe and Torrance counties were present and contributed to the program.

New officers were elected for the coming year. Mrs. Don English succeeds Mr. F. E. Meek of Fort Stanton, as president; Colonel Jones was elected vice president and Mr. W. J. Ferguson remains secretary of the convention.

The next meeting of the Lincoln County Singing Convention will be held at Carrizozo on the fourth Sunday of March, 1939. Plans are being made for the largest and best program of Gospel music this county has ever had. -- Contributed.

Former Resident Dies in California

Mr. and Mrs. Dan Tiffany received a message Sunday that Mr. John Canning had passed away at his home in Oxnard, California, at 3:30 Saturday afternoon, Oct. 8. Mr. Canning became ill at his office Saturday, while apparently enjoying his usual good health. Funeral services were held at Santa Clara Catholic church, Tuesday, October 11th, at 9:30 a. m.

Mr. Canning was quite well known here, where he was in business a long time. He was former owner of the Carrizozo Trading Company which did a flourishing business here for many years. He sold out and went to California in 1912, where they have since resided. Friends express sorrow at his sudden and untimely death.

Appreciation

We are profoundly grateful to our friends for their many kind deeds, expressions of sympathy and the lovely floral offerings in the dark hour of our sorrow, when our dear wife and mother passed away. Especially do we thank the Ladies Aid of White Oaks for their loyal untiring kindness.

Mr. Sam Wells, Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Wells, Mrs. Cherille Coe and family, Mr. and Mrs. L. E. Hunt and sons, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Palmer and family, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Douglas and Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Severance.

Mrs. Alice Albro

On Wednesday, September 21, Mrs. Alice Albro, age about 70, became extremely ill at her home near Alto. Her daughter, Miss Ollie Albro brought her to the Turner hospital in Carrizozo, where everything possible was done, but she passed away that same night.

Mrs. Albro was a splendid woman, a good neighbor and friend. She had been suffering from partial blindness of late years, but was quite patient and endured her suffering with Christian fortitude.

Funeral services were conducted at Angus, Friday, September 23, followed by interment in the Angus cemetery.

Mrs. Albro is survived by one daughter, Miss Ollie, to whom deepest sympathy is extended; and is also survived by many friends who regret her passing.

Jane Clayton, New Mexico's Movie Actress Married Sunday

Miss Jane Clayton arrived Wednesday from Hollywood to make arrangements for her marriage to Russel Hayden, film star, at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Verger Clayton, at Tularosa, Sunday, October 9, at 2 p. m.

Miss Clayton told friends of the wedding plans here Thursday, and issued verbal invitations to the wedding and to the wedding supper to be given at the home of her parents Saturday evening.

Jane has just completed a series of western pictures with her fiancé and "Hopalong Cassidy" (Bill Boyd) and received a try-out for a role in "Gone With The Wind," which is being adapted for a motion picture. -- Alamogordo News.

Democratic Rally at Community Hall Wednesday Evening---Good Speaking

Two youthful singers sang some songs to guitar accompaniment; County Chairman, Wayne Richard introduced the speakers. J. R. Gallegos spoke in Spanish, followed by Henry Eagar, candidate for corporation commissioner. Mrs. Grace Corrigan, candidate for superintendent of public instruction, J. M. Murray, candidate for lieutenant-governor, and Judge Tom Neal, all made excellent speeches. Mr. Gallegos acted as interpreter all the way through. A Mr. Hall gave a witty speech midway of the addresses. He followed the style of Senator Fishback of radio fame and brought the house down with his remarks. Judge Neal was driving home some truths about the Republican platform and was nailing them when the fire whistle sounded. In spite of the startling interruption the judge finished his talk and the majority stayed to hear him through.

This was the opening gun of the campaign in Lincoln county, and all candidates were well received and made a favorable impression.

Mr. Miles, candidate for governor, could not be present on account of illness, but his candidate referred to his popularity and capability.

The house was well filled and the audience attentive. All in all Democratic prospects are unusually bright in Lincoln county. All factions have buried the hatchet and a united front is being presented.

Disastrous Fire at Nogal Wed. Night Carrizozo Department to the Rescue

The Carrizozo fire department we have had the opportunity to covered themselves with glory really try out our handsome new Wednesday night when they were called to Nogal to fight a blaze of considerable proportions.

The old store building which had weathered 51 years, and which had housed the Nogal Mercantile Company all these years, was wiped out, as were all the adjoining buildings, except the filling station upon which the fire department concentrated and saved. This is the first time we have had the opportunity to really try out our handsome new equipment with its own storage tank and pump. The pump was placed in Eloy Skinner's storage tank and furnished a good stream of water. Buildings destroyed were all frame and burned rapidly. It is thought that an oil burning refrigerator exploded and caused the fire. McDaniels, who own and operate the store were at the picture show in Carrizozo.

The Red Cross is calling on YOU to renew your membership during the annual roll call from November 11th through Thanksgiving day.

Funeral Services

For Mrs. Sam Wells

Funeral services were conducted last Saturday afternoon at 2:30 for Mrs. Sam Wells at the White Oaks church by Rev. R. A. Crawford of Carrizozo.

A choir composed of Mrs. W. W. Smith and daughter, Mrs. Tommy Hughes, and Mrs. Ed. Queen and daughter, Mrs. Leonard Whitwell sang some beautiful songs, accompanied by Mrs. Van Schoyok at the organ. All of Mrs. Wells' children were present except Mmes. Wm. Douglas and Wm. Severance of Los Angeles, and Mrs. Clarence Palmer, of Oklahoma; the last named came but arrived too late for her mother's funeral.

The death of Mrs. Wells, in its suddenness, came as a shock to family and friends. She was a mother of whom any child might well be proud; as a friend and neighbor she was loyal and kind; as a Christian she was deeply imbued with the ideals and teachings of Christ. Her many good qualities are deeply etched in the hearts and lives of her loved ones and her kindness and sympathy will be cherished by all. Floral offerings were many and beautiful. Pall-bearers were Messrs. Oscar Bamberger, Herman Kelt, Ernest Key, R. L. Huffmyer, L. H. Dow and Ed. Queen. Interment was in the White Oaks cemetery.

"They are not dead--our friends that sleep serene and wakeless on the hill Where grave grass grows and wild vines creep Above the earth so stark and still; Grown tired they gently closed their eyes, "In a sleep that comes to all, "Passed to the vestibule of Paradise "To await the future call."

American Legion Auxiliary

Carrizozo American Legion Auxiliary, No. 11, met for their monthly business meeting, Thursday evening, October 6th at the Legion Hall.

Members present were Mmes. Walker, West, Carl, Grieson, Reilly, Peters, Scharf, Bamberger and Conley. After the minutes came the report from our treasurer, Mrs. Walker. Mrs. Nellie Reilly was elected chairman of the membership drive which starts this month. A motion was made toward the purchase of a cook stove for the hut. Motion carried. The ladies decided at this meeting to meet and have a covered dish luncheon every third Thursday of the month and sew for charity purposes. Plans are being swiftly carried out to complete the furnishing of the Legion Hut. We want to make special mention that the Auxiliary and Post are sponsoring the Young Folks' Recreation night, one night each week in the Hut. The young folks will be chaperoned by Legionnaires and Auxiliary members and we want the young'uns to enjoy the Hut as much as the oldsters do.

Tentative plans were discussed for the coming dance and a possible program Nov. 11. We're expecting a 100 per cent representation from the Capitan Post and Unit. We want every one to come and help us celebrate on this date. There'll be more details about this dance later. So watch the papers. -- Reporter.

Maine Governor Wins Potato-Picking Duel

Republican Gov. Lewis O. Barrows of Maine, left, and Democratic Gov. Bazille W. Clark of Idaho are shown as they competed for the gubernatorial potato-picking championship of the western hemisphere in "Bot" Smith's hilltop field at Fort Fairfield, Maine. The chief executive of the Pine Tree state, with height and reach on his side, picked 201 pounds of potatoes in five minutes, compared with 197 pounds by the Westerner. A crowd of 4,000 persons stood in the rain to watch the unprecedented contest.

It Must Be Admitted Waiter Was Not Tactful

The customer was raging and fuming as the manager came up. "What is the matter, sir?" asked the manager.

"Discharge that waiter at once!" demanded the diner. "Regarding the boiled egg which had been served, the manager said:

"I'm very sorry about this egg, sir, but I can't discharge the waiter for that. After all, he wasn't to know that there was a chicken in it."

"Perhaps not," snapped the customer. "But when I told him there was, he needn't have taken away my spoon and brought me a knife and fork."

Norse Seamen

Hardy, indeed, are Norway's seamen. Though Norway ranks but forty-seventh in population among the major nations, her merchant marine is fourth largest in the world. Since the days of the Vikings, Norwegian seamen have specialized in long ocean trips. Even today they carry most of the cargoes from America's Gulf states to Europe.

In the days of sailing ships, too, Norwegian skippers began taking their families to sea because ocean voyages took many months.

The sailors' superstition that women are bad luck to a ship never bothered them.

'Hill-Climbing' Boats

A unique steamship service operates between the East Prussian towns of Eibing and Deutsch Eylau, a distance of 40 miles. Part of the trip is made on a canal and part on a railroad, whose specially designed trucks pick up the little vessels and quickly carry them over four long hills. These "hill-climbing boats" have rendered unnecessary the construction of 20 locks.—Collier's Weekly.

Most anyone will agree that it is wise to use only the very best motor oil in an expensive car. Buy it does not follow that cheap oil should be used in lower priced cars. The experience of millions of owners of Ford, Chevrolet and Plymouth cars proves that Acid-Free Quaker State Motor Oils makes their cars run better, last longer.—Adv.

How Women in Their 40's Can Attract Men

Here's good advice for a woman during her change (usually from 38 to 42), who fears she'll lose her appeal to men, who worries about hot flashes, loss of pep, dizzy spells, upset nerves and moody spells. Get more fresh air, 8 hrs. sleep and if you need a good general system tonic take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made especially for women. It helps Nature build up physical resistance, thus helps give more vivacity to enjoy life and assist calming jittery nerves and disturbing symptoms that often accompany change of life. Sentinels of Health

"Don't Neglect Them!" Nature designed the kidneys to do a marvelous job. Their task is to keep the flowing blood stream free of an excess of toxic impurities. The act of living—life itself—is constantly producing waste matter that the kidneys must remove from the blood if good health is to endure. When the kidneys fail to function as Nature intended, there is retention of waste that may cause body-wide distress. One may suffer nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—feel tired, nervous, all worn out. Frequent, scanty or burning passages may be further evidence of kidney or bladder disturbance. The recognized and proper treatment is a diuretic medicine to help the kidneys get rid of excess poisonous body waste. Use Doan's Pills. They have had more than forty years of public approval. Are endorsed by the country over. Insist on Doan's. Sold at all drug stores.

WHO'S NEWS THIS WEEK

By LEMUEL F. PARTON

NEW YORK.—G. Ward Price, British war correspondent, who is Adolf Hitler's friend and supporter, and who has traveled, lunched, dined and visited with him off and on for years, is England's most authentic news source as to Der Fuehrer's plans. Lord Rothermere's paper, the London Daily Mail, which employs Mr. Price, has been scooping the ears of the other London sheets on Hitler stories.

Mr. Price previously has related how he and Lord Rothermere were two of four guests at Mr. Hitler's first formal dinner party after he seized power. That was December 10, 1934. It was about this time that Lord Rothermere, reaching 80 per cent of the British reading public, through his newspapers and press associations, began his unceasing campaign for fascism in England. A third guest at the dinner was E. W. D. Tennant, of the Anglo-German fellowship, a fellowship which Lord Rothermere and Mr. Price have diligently fostered, with their Apologia Fascisma.

Mr. Price, educated at Cambridge university, is a seasoned and richly garlanded British war correspondent. As foreign correspondent of the Daily Mail, he was with the Turkish army in the first Balkan war; he was an official correspondent at the Dardanelles, he was with the British army at Salonika. He has long been a quasi-official reporter for the British empire. He writes concisely, clearly and expertly, with a keen alertness for revealing little human touches and with little concern for the dry imponderables of political or economic theory.

His book, "I Know These Dictators," published in this country last year, was, in the view of this writer, big news, and should have stirred up a lot of excitement. Principally about Adolf Hitler and Benito Mussolini, it bulks out of intimately observed minutiae of their minds and persons a synthesis of virtue, charm and heroism.

Mr. Price, in this book, reports that Adolf Hitler is genteel, humorous, courageous, chivalrous, abominable, profoundly intellectual, kindly, forgiving, unselfish, tender, a clever story-teller, and loves dogs and children.

DR. NORBERT WIENER challenges Milton, or Pope or whoever it was that observed, "Chaos umpire sits, and by decision more embroils the fray." Scientists can't predict the future, says this famous savant of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, "can now predict what will happen in states of complete confusion."

As Dr. Wiener explains the new outreach of the calculus, at the fourth international congress for applied mechanics at Cambridge, it seems to clock everything, from a case of hiccoughs to Adolf Hitler, just so long as it is "pure" chaos and not a mere adulteration. That ought to let in most of Europe.

He read English at the age of three and Latin at five, and entered Tufts college at the age of 11, finishing in the class of 1910. He took his master's degree in 1912 and his doctor's in 1913, both at Harvard.

At the age of 19, he was an assistant professor at Harvard, lecturing on "The Theory of Knowledge." Dr. Wiener has kept on steadily gathering laurels in the groves of Academe.

EVENTS of the last few weeks have, of course, flushed many half-pint Hitlers in Europe, chief among them being young Leon Degrelle, of Belgium. A Petticoat Putsch Is New Threat Counted out last year, he now bounces back with some show of power; enough, at any rate, to make a martial stir of men and horse in Brussels, with word that he might start delivery on the "terror" which he has been promising for several years.

Thirty-two years old, of the type of a healthy and husky high-school lad, he is the best-looking of all the Hitler apprentices, and there's no knowing but that he might start the world's first great petticoat putsch. Comely young women have flocked to his banner in shoals, and much of his support has come from women. He has both allure and showmanship and few of the stigmas of the paranoiac, unless it be his apparent determination to scare everybody to death.

He tried to seize Brussels in October, 1936, stirring up considerable violence. His party is the "Rexist." Consolidated News Features. WNU Service.

Each of us has a place in life's line, to do with what we will. Are you making the most of yours?

By WINIFRED WILLARD

HE WASN'T much to look at—short, squatty and a bit sinister. But he was something to remember. It was St. Louis, the ticket window of the Union station. I rushed for tickets. Ominous line ahead. Nothing to do but take my place and wait my turn. Through slow fifteen minutes, we had itched along until I stood second from the ticket agent. As the one ahead took his change and stepped from line, this other man slid in ahead of me. "It is my turn," I said. Looking me full in the face, he leered. "Well, what you going to do about it?"

I might have tried what the woman in Washington did one matinee afternoon last winter. It was Christmas time. We were to see "Little Women." Our hearts were in the proper state of sublimation for renewing acquaintance with Beth and Jo and Meg and Mother March. But office furniture moving in and heavy pedestrian traffic broke the box office line. We stopped to see where it really was, then stepped into what we supposed was our proper place. No sooner done than a militant woman hurled herself at us—didn't we know we belonged at the end of the line? Who did we think we were to break in like that? Why didn't we stay at home until we knew how to get into a line? Efforts to explain our right intentions fell flat in the face of her wrath. I wonder whether this striding woman has a husband. If so, the Lord have mercy on his soul!

Manners

We were all in a hurry to get our letters one day last summer and to be in our seats before the morning symphony began. Eight ahead of me was a man. Down the plaza, up the steps we moved with the measured pace of such a queue. My eighth-ahead man was all right until at a distance he saw somebody whom he wanted to see close range. So, saying that he guessed his mail could wait, he left his place in the line. We bristled up, considerably encouraged. He found his friend, delivered his message, chatted with half a dozen others, then came back to the letter line and as if by merit of right, stepped into his former place. He knew better. He showed the embarrassment that goes with doing a trick like that. We were a well-mannered group. Nobody said a word. But who can deny there was a heap of 'thinkin'?"

Isn't a line a section of life? Isn't a line a stage where we play our parts, informally and often unaware? And aren't we revealing of our inmost selves in the ways we play? Have I more right to take your place in the line of life than to rifle your purse? Neither belongs to me.

Life Gives Us Much

One of the lovely things life gives us is a place, each for himself, to make what he may of it. Some people make beauty spots out of their life places. Some let theirs stay all dreary and bare, putting no plan, no thought, no work, no love into them. Whatever my place is in life's line, it's mine! And that is much! I decide by the way I handle it whether it shall be insignificant or something greatly to be desired.

Good fortune to somebody else often devours us with envy. I had two college mates like that. To this day, they can't endure to know that anything fine and gracious has come to anybody else. They want their places in the line to be the best and themselves to be the biggest. Of course they're unhappy. Of course they're lonely.

Box office, railroad ticket or mail delivery waiting lines have their unwritten ethics to the end of an even chance for everybody. The line of life is not so simple. It often gets tangled and twisted, sometimes all but out of hand. But in it, I have my place. If yours is better, I can take that as example and standard by which to make mine measure up. I can work hard and be loyal and fair and faithful in my own place. And I shall not break the rule of the line by taking what does not belong to me.

Oglethorpe Trail Dates

Back Before Revolution

The old Indian trail and highway known as the "Oglethorpe Trail," dates back to pre-Revolutionary war days when General Oglethorpe, founder of the state of Georgia, established a thoroughfare from Savannah to Augusta in 1733, following his famous treaty conference with the Creek Indians at Coweta.

The British designated the trail in 1780 as a military road, and in 1791 President George Washington traveled the road during his southern tour.

Rich in scenic sites which pass through deep, jungle-like river swamps abounding with game and fish, the trail also winds through rolling hill territory and along the banks of the Savannah river.

A Slim Waist for Glamour

HERE are two charming new designs that give you the tiny, Victorian waistline—almost an hour-glass effect—that's so fashionable right now. Both accentuate it, too, with perked-up sleeves and full skirts. Both give you a most feminine and appealing look! And it's so easy to make these carefully simplified designs. Each includes a detailed sew big buttons down the bodice, Victorian sleeves and (a highlight of charm!) the shirred waistline that looks so delightful on young and supple figures. For this, choose challis, silk print, taffeta or cashmere—preferable in some of the new, rich, warm, lively colorings.

The Patterns.

1498 is designed for sizes 14, 16, 18, 20, 42 and 44. For long coat, size 16 requires 4 3/4 yards of 39-inch material. For short, 4 1/4 yards. 1 1/4 yards frog grain ribbon to trim.

Hearthside Coat. You can relax so thoroughly in this charming design. It will give you the inward peace that comes of knowing you look particularly pretty. The fitted-in waistline, the sweep of the full skirt, are too flattering for words! Make it of taffeta, flannel, challis, moire or velveteen—choosing colors that do nice things to your eyes and hair. This pattern is perforated for short length, too.

One may disregard a prejudice if he knows it to be such. To determine upon attainment is frequently attainment itself.

We need critics or this world would be a place of futile mush and gush.

GAS SO BAD CROWDS HEART

"My boys were so sluggish and my stomach so bad I was just miserable. Some time gas bloated me until it crowded my heart. I tried Adierka. Oh, what relief. The first dose worked like magic. Adierka removed the gas and waste matter and my stomach felt so good."—Mrs. S. A. McCall. If gas in your stomach and bowels beats you up until you gasp for breath, take a tablespoonful of Adierka and notice how the stomach GAS is relieved almost at once. Adierka often moves the bowels in less than two hours. Adierka is BOTH carminative and cathartic, carminative to warm and soothe the stomach and expel GAS, cathartic to clear the bowels and restore intestinal nerve pressure. Recommended by many doctors for 35 years. Get genuine Adierka today. Sold at all drug stores.

The Livestock Situation

Los Angeles Union Stock Yards, Oct. 12.—Decline in hog prices during the early part of October were not surprising, as the usual seasonal trend is towards lower values during the fall season. Prices paid for hogs represent a very favorable return on grain fed, and it seems logical to assume that the ratio may continue on a fairly favorable basis, due to the fact that hog numbers are still considerably below normal.

A man who has just returned from the middle west says that hog feeders are more than satisfied with the present market situation. It will be recalled that for many years, hog feeders considered a fair price for hogs to be about 12 times the price of corn; thus with 50 cent corn in the middle west, it would mean that somewhere around $6 a cwt. would represent a satisfactory price. During September, with best hogs selling in the middle west at around $9 a cwt., this meant a return of about 75 cents a bushel on corn.

There is some revival in the export demand for pork and lard, and, if we are to enjoy a period of peace in world affairs, undoubtedly this demand would be stimulated. Large stocks of pork products are considerably below normal, and there should be a very broad buying of hogs for storage purposes if prices decline to any great extent. But the fact is, most members of the trade are inclined to look for a fairly satisfactory market situation, and possibly some improvement in demand if consumer buying power continues to improve. A good many California cattlemen are inclined to stock pastures and ranges with livestock, partly due to the fact that a good many steers and feeder steers which usually come west are now going east to the Corn Belt; and partly because there has been a more stable outlet for shestock than for steers. A check of prices paid on the Los Angeles market during the past year or so indicates a remarkably stable price situation on cows and heifers, while prices of all grades of steers, and particularly the better grades, have fluctuated considerably.

It would not surprise many people in the trade if we should have something of a scarcity of good quality steers through 1939, for there appears to be a definite move on the part of many cattlemen to restock with shestock as a more conservative speculation. Los Angeles has always been a good cow market, but it is to be hoped that the better beef program will not be retarded by too great a swing towards the lower-costing grades and classes.

Hitler, Germany's Man of Mystery, Founded His Success on Psychology

Czech Crisis Presented First Test of 'Bluff' Game That Won Him Power Over Reich.

By JOSEPH W. LaBINE

The greatest mystery of our modern times is Adolf Hitler, who feels within himself a god-like mandate to guide Germany's destiny. Perhaps that very mystery is what gives him strength, for men have always stood in awe of that which they cannot understand.

Behind the mustache and frowning eyes lies a mind that is both brilliant and irrational. Adolf Hitler is at once a master of other men and a slave to himself. He is an inveterate brooder, and though brooders seldom have power over other men, Der Fuehrer is master of the Reich.

He is a bluffer who has stubbornly waved a two-edged sword at world democracy, refusing to give an inch because dictators cannot afford to change their minds.

But it cannot be said that Hitler's power has gone to his head, for he demonstrated this same stubbornness long before the Munich beer-cellar putsch, long before the late President von Hindenburg grudgingly made him chancellor.

To know the man you must follow his growth, a story in whose every chapter is a trace of the bitterness that can only come from misguided genius. It is the story of a potential giant who stumbled through his early years, groping desperately for an anchor.

Austrian by Birth

His ancestral home is Spittal, Austria, once on the frontier, where poverty and inbreeding have long been the peasants' tragedy. His father was Alois Schicklgruber-Hitler, a strong-willed cobbler whose first wife brought him money, whose second wife died shortly after her marriage, and whose third wife was the first Mrs. Hitler's housemaid. It was to this third wife that the child Adolf was born, a weak, sensitive child who disliked his father, and who probably learned to brood through this same dislike.

He lived within himself, so much that his former playmates have pictured him standing on a hillside at night, bawling a political speech at two fruit trees while school chums giggled in the nearby bushes. He was expelled from school for smoking, a strange trick in view of the adult Adolf Hitler's strict abstinence.

And it was at Vienna, when 17, that the future Reichsfuehrer first felt life's reality. Twice refused admission to an art school, forced to earn his bread and beer by painting houses and hanging paper, he suffered for five years the agonies of a man who feels himself unwanted by society. But this bitterness was enough to set him thinking. In "Mein Kampf," the autobiography he was to write later while sulking in a German prison, he attempts frantically to explain the Vienna failure by heaping scorn on the effete Hapsburgs, on Jewish capitalists and unpatriotic Socialists.

In 1912 he left Vienna for Munich, turning his back on the Austria he was destined one day to rule. In the world war he served four years, mostly as an orderly carrying messages. Comrades describe him as a recluse who loved war and boasted how he would conduct Germany's offensive. The comrades laughed and called Adolf Hitler "ein Spinner," which is Bavarian dialect for one who is cracked.

Shortly before the armistice, on October 14, 1918, he was gassed and taken to the hospital. There, while peace was signed, while Germany suffered degradation, he closed his eyes and remained blind three months. A psychologist has said he took refuge in blindness, a nervous reaction in which he did not allow himself to see Germany's shame.

Finds His Tongue

Peace brought Socialists, Communists and reactionaries to Germany, men who loved to orate from soap boxes. In such an electrified element Hitler found his tongue, developed oratorical tricks and learned to control his audience like a magician. The bitterness of youth was giving way to the vengeful spirit of manhood. Adolf Hitler was on beer cellars. Thus came the famous beer cellar putsch, an almost-fatal blunder through which he sought a short cut to power.

Leading 2,000 Nazis, he swung into the square facing Munich's historic Feldherrenhalle, where local police killed 14 of his followers. But the dynamics of Hitlerism had taken effect. Sentenced to five years in prison, he was released six months later by a warden who whispered: "Herr Hitler, you have made a Nazi out of me."

Nazism to Power

That was in 1924, and the next six years found Germany prospering, then succumbing to depression. Fat from defeat, though still brooding, Hitler had realized his Munich blunder and was building a stronger party. On the night of September 14, 1930, the world gasped to learn he had won 107 deputies in the Reichstag election, placing the Nazi party second in power. Two years later he was reluctantly made chancellor by President von Hindenburg and the conquest was complete.

All but one thing, Nazism's rise had produced faithless followers, one of them Ernst Roehm. On June 30, 1934, he and at least 70 others were quietly liquidated and the world knew Adolf Hitler was supreme in Germany.

Why? Is it his remarkable gift of oratory, his personality, his program or fear? Is it Germany's appreciation of the Fuehrer who has led them confidently from one conquest to another?

Probably a combination of these qualities, but behind them all is the most important secret: Adolf Hitler is a master psychologist. He threw over the Versailles treaty and walked into the Rhineland when Great Britain and France were busy watching Premier Mussolini's conquest of Ethiopia. He took possession of Austria when Britain and France were busy with internal strife. His game of foreign conquest has been a continuous bluff, until it seemed certain that no power would challenge his occupation of Czechoslovakia.

He was mistaken there, but the bluff continued with amazing success. He turned down repeated offers of peaceful settlement, confident that Britain and France would eventually capitulate. When they refused, he caused a war scare that threw all Europe into a turmoil. At the last moment, when there seemed no way to avoid armed conflict, he summoned a meeting of powers to discuss a peaceful settlement. History will say he won again.

Psychology Triumphant

He uses psychology in oratory, knowing that emotion is a stronger appeal than common sense. The words come in torrents, at first high-pitched, then intense, then breaking into a sob.

He uses psychology in showmanship. At the recent Munich party congress he kept the air charged with constant expectation. Soldiers marched and bands blared. Loud-speakers announced Der Fuehrer's every movement as he left the hotel, began driving to the stadium and began mounting the platform. Here was a show to bring tears of pride to any Nazi's eyes.

He uses psychology in his program. Though Germans work hard and have little to show for it, the hazy promise of a greater Reich hangs constantly before their eyes. By girding his nation for war, Der Fuehrer has reduced unemployment and busy people seldom complain, especially when the world's greatest propaganda machine directs their thought and effort.

Lastly, he uses psychology in selling his personality. To Germany, Adolf Hitler is a man of mystery, strong-chinned giant who once told them: "You are mine and I am yours, as long as I shall live!"

The modern Adolf Hitler, a ravine speechmaker who believes that masses are unintelligent, that they will learn only by constant repetition.

his way, planning craftily like a press agent for the build-up that would eventually bring him to power.

From Austria's ancient national socialism he took the swastika, a good luck sign of antiquity. From his party, the "workers national socialist" group, he took the initials, which, in German, spelled "Nazi." From Mussolini, who was about to "march" on Rome in a Pullman car, he borrowed the "shirt" idea because he knew Germans loved uniforms. His program, aimed at the nebulous objective of building a great nation, had as its cardinal principles the ousting of Jews, repudiation of war guilt, reparations and the Versailles treaty.

His stronghold was Munich, and there he began drawing huge crowds at speeches delivered wherever there was an audience, usually in

WHAT to EAT and WHY

C. Houston Goudiss Discusses Significance of Fruits and Vegetables; Tells the Truth About Canned Foods

By C. HOUSTON GOUDISS

A GENERATION ago, except in mid-summer, fruits were a luxury that only appeared, with nuts, at the end of a festive meal, and vegetables, except for the root crops, had no regular place in the daily diet. But when scientists established the importance of mineral salts in human nutrition, these two groups of foods assumed a position of commanding importance, because next to milk and eggs, they are the chief conveyors of minerals from the soil to man.

With the discovery of vitamins they achieved new distinction, because in their content of these vital substances, they rank with milk and eggs as "protective" foods.

Foods That Safeguard Health

In addition to providing nutrients that are indispensable for buoyant health and normal growth, they possess another important virtue: the indigestible cellulose or bulk yielded by the fibrous framework of the leaves, stems and fruits of plants, has a natural laxative value which helps to insure normal elimination. And finally, they are extremely useful in helping to maintain the acid-base balance of the body, for all vegetables and most fruits yield an alkaline-ash following digestion.

Green Vegetables for Iron

Fruits and vegetables supply varying amounts of practically every mineral element the body requires.

They do not compare with milk as a source of calcium, but substantial amounts of this bone-and-tooth-building substance are to be found in leaf and stem vegetables, carrots, oranges, figs and strawberries. Moreover, investigations have demonstrated that calcium from vegetables is well utilized by adults.

Green vegetables, in general, are outstanding as a source of iron. And it has been further established that their iron is better absorbed and becomes more completely available for nutrition than iron from some other sources. Some fruits are also valued for their iron content, the more notable including oranges; tomatoes, which are botanically a fruit, though they are classed as a vegetable; strawberries, blackberries, raspberries and huckleberries; and dried figs, dates and prunes.

Vegetables for Vitamin A

We usually think of milk and other dairy products as our most important sources of vitamin A. But recently, it has been determined that the thin green leaves of vegetables are also outstanding in this respect. Weight for weight, when fresh, escarole is more than five times as rich as butter. Young green peas and green string beans are also a good source of this vitamin as are tomatoes, carrots, and sweet potatoes.

ources of Vitamin C

Vitamin C, which is essential for maintaining the health of teeth and gums and for preventing the degeneration of muscle fibers generally, is obtained almost entirely from fruits and vegetables. The principal sources of this vitamin are the citrus fruits; raw and canned tomatoes and canned tomato juice; strawberries; raw carrots, onions and yellow turnips.

As this vitamin is easily destroyed by heat in the presence of oxygen, the amount present in any fruit or vegetable is greatly reduced by the average home cooking methods. On the other hand, this and other vitamins, as well as minerals, are usually well retained in commercially canned fruits and vegetables.

What About Canned Foods?

I frequently receive letters from readers who question the merits of canned foods. They ask whether it is true that canned foods are devoid of vitamins; whether canned foods are wholesome for children; whether or not canned foods may spoil on the grocer's shelves; and if it is dangerous to eat foods that have stood in the can for a few minutes after being opened.

To discount the value of modern canned foods is to display a lack of knowledge as to how these foods are harvested, prepared and packed. And the failure to use them may result in depriving your family of essential minerals and vitamins.

There are available in cans today, 40 varieties of vegetables, 33 kinds of fruit, and 10 different juices, besides soups, numerous specialties and several kinds of fish. Every one of these presents a healthful and nutritious food in a form that is often superior to the same foods cooked at home. That is partly because of the methods employed and partly because canned foods are processed at the peak of their flavor and freshness.

A Superlative Canned Food

An outstanding example is canned salmon which has been called by one of America's leading food experts, "the cheapest and most nutritious animal food that can be had for children over six."

Very little fresh salmon finds its way into our markets and even then it may be far from "fresh" after a considerable journey packed in ice. On the other hand, salmon canneries have been established in close proximity to the waters from which salmon are taken, so that only a few hours elapse between the time the fish are removed from the water and the moment their rich nourishment is sealed in cans.

Similarly the fruits and vegetables designed for canning are allowed to mature on tree or vine. This means that they develop maximum flavor and vitamin content. Then they are picked, rushed to nearby canneries and hermetically sealed in cans. The sealed cans are then cooked at high heat so as to destroy any bacteria which might be present. Because they are protected from the air during the cooking process, and because the cooking liquors are sealed in the cans, they retain a maximum amount of minerals and vitamins. It is because canned foods are so definitely superior in this respect that physicians encouraged the canning of strained fruits and vegetables for infants and young children.

Fallacies Disproved

Canned foods will keep indefinitely without spoilage, as long as nothing occurs to make the can leak. It is not necessary to remove canned food from the container as soon as the tin is opened, though many homemakers often do so because the food presents a more attractive appearance in a dish or bowl. A hissing sound when opening does not mean that the contents of a can are spoiled, but rather that there was a vacuum in the can, which the air is rushing in to fill.

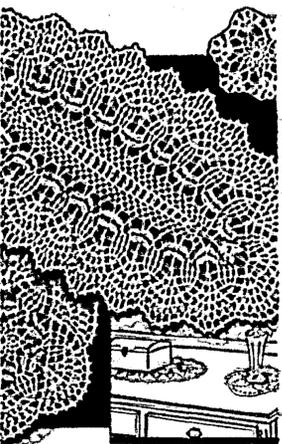

Thus canned fruits and vegetables are not only "as good as" fresh ones, but are often superior in food values. Every homemaker should see to it that she uses both liberally in the diet of every member of her family, as a means of providing liberal amounts of minerals and vitamins.

William Jennings Bryan, silver-tongued orator, used to enjoy telling of a comment which he once overheard about himself during a Chautauqua season. A local speaker preceding Mr. Bryan had talked for one hour and a half. So when Mr. Bryan finally got the floor, he simply raised his hands and pronounced the benediction. Later two old fellows were discussing the program.

SYNOPSIS

Barbara Sentry, seeking to sober up her escort, Johnny Boyd, on the way home from a party, slaps him, and attracts the attention of a policeman, whom the boy knocks down. As he arrests him, Professor Brace of Harvard comes to the rescue and drives Barbara home. On the way they see Barbara's father driving from the direction of his office at 12:45, but when he gets home he tells her he is 11:15 and that he's been playing bridge at the club. Next day Sentry reports his office has been robbed and a Miss Wines, former temporary employee, killed. The evening papers luridly confirm the story, and Sentry takes it hard. Mary, elder daughter, in love with Neil Ray, young interne at the hospital where she works, goes off to dinner at Gus Loran's, Sentry's partner, with Mrs. Loran's brother, Jimmy Endie. Mr. and Mrs. Sentry call on old Mrs. Sentry, and Barbara, alone, receives Dan Fisher, reporter, who advises her not to talk. Phil Sentry, son at Yale, is disturbed at the possible implications and suspicion of Miss Wines' absence from her rooms for three days during August. He goes home to help. Sentry is arrested and booked for murder. Dan Fisher explains the evidence against him—that the robbery was a fake, the safe opened by one who knew the combination, changed since Miss Wines' employment there—that a back door key, a duplicate of Sentry's, was found in the girl's purse, and that Sentry, too, had been away those three days. In August, Bruce calls, and backs up Barbara in her denial that Sentry could have done it, because of the discrepancy of time between the slaying and their seeing Sentry on the road.

"Arthur was always losing keys," Mrs. Sentry assented, and realized with a faint shock of terror that she had spoken of her husband in the past tense, and then, with a deeper tremor, that Hare seemed not to have noticed, as though it were natural for her to speak of him so.

She said hurriedly: "I hear the girls coming downstairs. Let's not talk about details, Dean!" Her eyes met his for a moment, held his; and his after a moment were lowered, as though some word had passed between them.

Phil argued, "But just the same—" Then he stopped as Barbara and Mary appeared in the doorway.

"Morning, children," Mrs. Sentry said lightly. "Sleepy-heads!"

Barbara saw Dean Hare; she cried: "Oh, have you seen father, Mr. Hare? When will they let him come home?"

"I'm afraid not right away, Barbara," he confessed. "You know, these things take time."

"But they know he didn't do it!" Barbara insisted.

"Well, of course we know—" "They know it, too!" the girl urged. "I told Mr. Flood—"

Mrs. Sentry spoke quickly, almost desperately. She knew what Barbara was about to say; that Mr. Sentry had come home on the night of the murder at a quarter of one. But if Barbara said that, Dean Hare would know Arthur had lied to him. She fought instinctively to protect Arthur from that discovery.

"Sit down, Barbara, Mary," she said. "After all, there's breakfast to be eaten, our routine to go on."

Barbara insisted: "But mother, I—"

"Barbara!" Barbara sat down, puzzled by her mother's manner; and Mrs. Sentry thought, amazed at herself: I'm like an ostrich, hiding my head in the sand, trying to pretend, to blind myself— She said: "We've got to keep our heads, our sense of proportion. We must go on eating, for instance!"

Mary said in a low tone: "Must we? Pretend nothing has happened? We won't fool anyone but ourselves." Mrs. Sentry ignored her. She asked the lawyer, in polite and empty tones, as one makes conversation with a strange dinner partner, "How's Olive, Dean?" Olive was Mrs. Hare.

"She wants to come over this afternoon—if you'd like."

"Of course!"

Mary said grimly: "I'm surprised she's willing to. I expect most people—"

Barbara cried, furiously: "Mary! You talk as though you thought father really did it!" And she said: "We must all go see him, right away! We'll all go together."

Mary said, "I want to see Neil!" She added, "This—he and I must decide what to do."

The doorbell rang, and Oscar went to answer it, and Phil followed him into the hall. Mrs. Sentry suggested: "Ask Neil to dinner, if you like, Mary. Or to tea?"

Mary hesitated, nodded; then Linda Dane came in with Phil. "Mother said it was too early for me to come," she confessed quietly. "She's coming a little later, Mrs. Sentry. But I didn't want to wait. I knew you'd be up."

"There's nothing to see!" Mary told her coldly. "We're not a side-show!"

Mrs. Sentry protested, "Mary!" But Linda said: "It's all right, Mrs. Sentry. I know how you all must feel; but—I didn't come to be curious, Mary. Please don't feel I'm prying. We've always—at least, Barbara and Phil and I have always been such good friends."

Barbara said, "Darling!" And Phil said, "Good kid, Lin!" Dean Hare rose to go, and he nodded to Phil so that the boy went with him to the car.

"Phil," he suggested then, "don't let your sisters or your mother go to see your father yet. Not today. I shouldn't even go myself, if I were you. In a day or two, yes; but just now he's terribly shocked. It would distress any of you to see him; and I think it would be harder for him to—keep his self-control."

"Gosh! I suppose so," Phil agreed, shakily. He urged, "I want him to know we're—with him, though!"

"I'll tell him," the attorney promised.

But then Mrs. Sentry came to the open door. "Oh, Dean," she called, "will you arrange for me to see Arthur, let me know when I'm to come?"

Hare looked to Phil for support; but Phil said, "I know it will do him good to see mother, Mr. Hare." And the lawyer surrendered.

"Very well," he agreed. "If you—"

Oscar came to summon Mrs. Sentry to the telephone. "Mr. Loran calling," he explained. She departed, and Hare said doubtfully: "I still think it's a mistake, Phil, for her to go. Mr. Loran came last night while I was there. He was just back from New York. Your father almost broke down, just talking to him. Mr. Loran was sympathetic, of course, and loyal, and indignant at the police; but—it does no good to take that attitude. The police aren't to blame." He hesitated, said then, "We have to face the fact that there's a lot of circumstantial evidence against your father."

"Morning, Children," Mrs. Sentry Said Lightly.

Phil said explosively, "You know darned well my father wouldn't kill anyone!"

"It's not a question of knowing. It's a question of proving."

Then he turned, for a police car came up the drive. Reporters on duty like guards at the entrance trotted after it; and Dan Fisher was among them. The police car stopped behind Dean Hare's; but Dan came along to where Phil and the lawyer stood, and he said in a low tone: "Sentry, if you and Mr. Hare are interested, Flood waited outside last night till Professor Brace came out, questioned him."

Phil nodded, only half hearing, staring at the police car, from which officers alighted. Fisher asked softly, "Who was the young lady who came in a few minutes ago?"

"One of my sister's friends."

"What's her name?"

Phil hesitated, but Dean Hare said, "Phil, the best rule with reporters is, if they're going to find out anyway, tell them."

Phil nodded ruefully, "I suppose so. She's Linda Dane."

Fisher said, "Oh! I know her brother, Joe. Someone else demanded, 'Not engaged to her, are you?' Phil shook his head, coloring with anger, and Inspector Irons alighted from the police car and said to the reporters: "All right, boys, outside. Give these folks a break. I'll see that you get anything that you ought to have."

They obeyed him, moved away, and Dean Hare asked: "Anything new, Inspector?"

"I want to have a look around inside," the Inspector explained. "If that's all right?"

"Of course."

"And I might ask some questions. Suppose you'll want to be in on that?" He added, as though apologizing for his own forbearance. "It's not the way I usually handle things, but the D. A. says to keep you in touch as we go along."

The lawyer nodded. "Thanks."

He said: "Mrs. Sentry wants to see Mr. Sentry this morning. I'll be with her. Could you hold off on the questions till this afternoon?"

Irons reflected: "Well, the Grand Jury's sitting, and the D. A.'s idea was to give them the evidence we've got, tomorrow." He looked at Hare, "I understand you and Mr. Flood agreed not to arraign him before?"

"Yes." Irons looked at Phil apologetically. "It was hunch, as much as anything, when I booked him," he confessed. "But the D. A. got some stuff last night, and—I'll want to have all the dope I can get, for the Grand Jury."

"Of course," the lawyer agreed. "But this afternoon will do, to—ask your questions. Suppose I meet you here at two."

Phil, listening, felt himself shiver; his teeth pressed hard together to keep them quiet. There was something in their tones deeply terrifying. He was almost relieved when Dean Hare drove away, and he himself was left with Inspector Irons.

When Hare departed, the other men who had come in the police car approached, and Irons introduced them to Phil. Inspector Hays, Sergeant Kane, Officer Regan, and the Inspector suggested then, ters looking to him for strength, Phil himself was stronger. His grandmother had come downstairs; they were all in the living-room. Phil explained what the Inspector wished to do, suggested they stay where they were. Inspector Hays and Sergeant Kane went toward the kitchen. Regan had remained outside. Inspector Irons and Phil went upstairs.

Phil suggested, "If there's anything special you're looking for, I might help you."

Irons hesitated. "I don't want to—put anything over on you," he said gently. "I told Mr. Hare I wouldn't ask you any questions unless he was here."

"Phil colored. 'We've nothing to hide!'" he protested.

"Sure, I know," the Inspector agreed. "But I'll just look around. I want to see everything. Whose room is this?"

"Mine," said Phil. The Inspector nodded; he opened the drawers of the chiffonier, the desk, the closet, the recess under the window seat where Phil kept rods and fishing gear.

Phil, looking over the other's shoulder, saw something there; a japanned metal box with a combination lock. And the cover of the box had somehow been forced open! His thoughts went racing. In the summer after his Freshman year, at a dude ranch in New Mexico, one of the cowboys had given him an old single-action .45 revolver, with cartridge belt and holster; had told him that the weapon had been taken off the body of a man killed in a gun battle, years before. Phil brought it home, but because Mrs. Sentry was afraid of firearms, he never showed it to his mother or his sisters, kept it here in this locked box. Only, he had showed it to his father. His father had known it was here.

Irons picked up the box, now empty, and he held it to his face and sniffed at it. The old holster had been heavy with grease and oil. Phil remembered the rich smell. He heard himself now, saying hurriedly: "That's my old tackle box. Used to keep a couple of reels in it, in leather cases." The Inspector did not turn. "I forgot the combination, had to break it open with a—"

He tried to think what tool his father might have used. "With a chisel," he said, and repeated: "Couple of reels, and come bass plugs—"

"Must have been hard on the chisel," the Inspector commented, and turned the box in his hands, and looked at Phil. Phil saw sympathy and understanding in the older man's eyes, and was sick with fear. Then Sergeant Kane said from the doorway, in an intent tone: "Hays wants you, Inspector. Down cellar."

Irons nodded. "Right," he said. With the broken box under his arm, he followed Kane.

Phil followed them. Irons once looked back, as though to bid him stay behind; but he did not speak.

"In the cellar, Inspector Hays stood by the furnace. The furnace door was open. The fall had been warm, these last few days unseasonably so; and there had been here no recent fire.

Irons went toward the other Inspector. Hays said quietly, "See if you see what I see."

He turned a flashlight's beam into the fire box of the furnace. Irons stopped to look in. After a moment he stood up.

"Close the door easy," he said crisply then. "Close the draughts. Any air might make the ashes crumble or muss them up. I'll get Peters and Knobble right out here. They can handle it."

Phil touched his arm. "What is it, Inspector?" he asked.

Captive Balloons Are to Help Defend English Cities Against Air Raiders

In a recent lecture, Air Commodore J. G. Hearson partly lifted the veil of secrecy surrounding the balloon barrage scheme, in which a large number of captive balloons will add to the protection of cities against air raiders, says the Illustrated London News.

Each balloon is handled by a derrick with a crew of ten. Toward the end of the World War "balloon aprons" were used in the defense of London. They were formed by tethering four or five balloons in a line and stretching a network of wires between them.

The balloon barrage of today is not in the form of "aprons," but consists merely of the cables by which the balloons are held captive. At first sight, such a defense may appear rather diaphanous; but, if simple calculations are made, it will be found to be far more effective than many might imagine.

Assuming that the span of the wings of a bomber is 70 feet, and that that bomber passes through a line of balloons tethered at 100-yard intervals, there is about one chance in four of the aircraft hitting a cable and one chance in two if it makes an "in-and-out" passage, a formidable risk which no attacker could afford to continue taking if the cables are lethal; that is, capable of destroying any airplane coming in contact with them.

The cables are so thin that they cannot be seen from a traveling airplane, even by day and in fine weather.

The role of a balloon barrage is to deny passage to aircraft below the barrage height over the defended area; thus driving the attackers to an altitude at which they can be dealt with by anti-aircraft fire and interceptor fighters.

DiETING Should Be Done in Private

Don't Talk About Your Calories, Do Something

By EDITH M. BARBER

"OH, DEAR, when I think of the calories I am adding!" How often I hear an expression of this sort in the midst of a good meal. My first objection to such a comment comes from the fact that I believe strongly that dieting should be done in private and not in public. And if you decide to break over for once, don't talk about it!

My other objection arises from the fact that there is a popular misconception in regard to the word "calorie." A calorie is merely a measure of the fuel value of food. Each one of us needs roughly about 12 hundred calories each day merely to keep the body machine running. For every activity of the day we must have an extra supply. If, however, we take more food and, therefore, produce more calories than we need for these purposes, the body stores the extra amount of food in the form of fat. All of us need a certain amount of this necessary, but much maligned, substance. Too much fat, however, is a burden which the organs of the body resent and which impairs our efficiency.

As all foods provide calories in varying amounts, our first thought should be for those which provide as well protein for building and repairing tissues and minerals and vitamins for regulating the body processes and protecting us from disease. We may then supplement with the foods which provide little else but calories.

A varied diet, containing milk, cheese, eggs, meat, plenty of fruits and vegetables, with a certain amount of butter or other fat, sweets and cereals provides health insurance.

Household Hints

By BETTY WELLS

THERE'S not much a lady can do in these troublous times to keep the world from going where everybody assures us it is headed—and that is straight to smash. And so we might as well go on about our business of making the world a pleasanter place while it lasts. That's what most of us are doing, and the funny part is that it turns out to be a big help to the state of affairs. For the more we buy, the more work people have and the better times get. So more power to our readers who write in for advice.

A. R. R. writes: "I would like advice on our living room. We have an Oriental rug with a mulberry background and a good deal of blue in the pattern. Sofa and one chair are blue while the main furniture is mahogany and the walls are white. I am planning to buy another armchair but am uncertain as to color. Also I am perplexed about the curtains. There are venetian blinds at the windows. Would you suggest draperies and if so what material and color; or what could I use for curtains instead of draperies? I thought of plain white marquisette hung straight and to the floor and finished with blue ball fringe down the center and across the bottom. Then I plan to have a wall paper border of a harmonizing color all around the window frame and to the floor as a finish for the curtains. What do you think of that? I need an extra big piece of furniture, such as a cabinet or secretary. What would be your suggestion?

I like your ideas for the windows. My only suggestion would be that ball fringe might be a little bit light and insignificant with venetian blinds. I rather think I would have a more important looking trimming, otherwise your idea sounds very nice. However, if you want to have draperies, why not have a plain beige material in a texture of interest. The extra chair I'd have in a smart shade of beige.

On Modern Furniture.

It seems that modern isn't always modern after all. No since, because it takes more than a straight line and a dearth of curlicues to make a piece of furniture modern. Anyway, that's what the strictly functionalists hold as they snoot the straight-liners, who, we might add, do plenty of snooting on their own, so no hard feelings.

Of course, both groups claim functionalism as their creed, but the real McCoy has to be designed and built for the space and not carried in by the van. At least that's how you do it scientifically, and that, by the way, speaks well for built-in furniture designed by the architect who plans the building.

We've just seen a smooth and spanking modern home created from start to finish by an architect. And we don't mind saying that it makes sense. In the small dining room, for instance, space is saved by having built-in leather sofa seats around one corner of the room with a table on gliders to fit in front of it. This corner serves graciously for meals with extra chairs for the two outer sides of the table, yet it doesn't monopolize all the space in the room. It likewise makes a pleasant corner for tea, a fine place to study, a nice place to chat or loaf, (remember how comfortable it is to sit and talk with your elbows on a table?)

Another pleasant trick was the dancing spot in the middle of the floor. There is a carpet all over the floor, but in the center space in the room, a square of carpet is seamed and snapped to the floor so that a large square of polished floor can be opened up for dancing with no trouble at all. The chairs then range themselves around this open space in sociable array.

A small house thus achieved precision of operation and a sense of spaciousness and graciousness along with the rather glib casual air that goes with smart, modern living.

IT all started with "catwalk-cooling," on the costly racing cars of Europe. They were shooting at better aerodynamics, not new styling—but they touched off something that will re-pattern cars everywhere before it's done. So let your gaze take it in. Spot the radiator grilles... down here! They're key to new-day design. They're also placed where air pressure's greatest—your engine cools under forced draft!

Under that comely bonnet is the engine with more abundant life—that quick quiet Buick Dynaflex valve-in-head straight-eight!

Under the roomy Body by Fisher are the great slow spirals of Buick Coil springing, and the true "full float" ride. And in that body, is new wide-paned visibility—up to 413 more square inches of glass. Come see it.
