CARRIZOZO, NEW MEXICO, FRIDAY, OCTOBER 21, 1938

NUMBER 17

American Legion

The American Legion Frontier Days at Carrizozo in September was well attended from all over the county. The Capitan Auxiliary paraded in regulation uniforms, thanks to our Auxiliary sisters of the Carrizozo unit, who allowed us to ride on their lovely float.

The community chest sewing on Wednesday was held at the beautiful Nogal Mesa home of Mrs. Fred Pfingsten. Twelve members and three guests were present. The guests were Mrs. Smith, mother of our president, Mrs. J. L. Merchant, and Mrs. A. Anning, mother of Mrs. Bert Pfingsten, and Mrs. McClain. As usual a delicious luncheon was served before the sewing began. Work is progressing on the infant layettes. Our unit has also helped to clothe several small school children. The American Legion Auxiliary stands for child welfare in whatever form it may appear.

At our regular monthly business meeting in the Capitan grade school gym on October 6th, plans for improving our room were discussed. The Carrizozo ladies have a very attractive hut and after some of our members visited them, we decided to do something about our room. Mrs. Mac Conley, of Carrizozo, was a guest at this meeting.

On November 23, at the High School Gym, the Auxiliary will give a Spanish supper and show, followed by a dance. The supper will be served from 5:30 to 8:00 p. m. and the price will be 50 cents per person.

The next monthly sewing will be on Wednesday, October 19, at the home of Edna Pfingsten Purcell in Lincoln. We expect a good attendance.

Ethel Howard, Publicity Chairman.

Glencoe Woman's Club

The Glencoe Woman's Club met at the Community Club House on October 5.

The program leader, Mrs. J. V. Tully, had an interesting article by Mr. Tom Charles, custodian of the White Sands National Monument.

Miss Burdette, of Ruidosa, gave a book review on "The Importance of Living," and Mrs. Herrick Johnson sang several songs that were greatly enjoyed by the members and guests.

The public is invited to a benefit dance and box supper at the Bonnell Ranch on October 22.

Western Union Moves

Mrs. Dudley, manager of the local Western Union office states that the Western Union has had a corner partitioned off in the depot and from now on her local headquarters will be at the Southern Pacific depot.

Lamb-Woodall

Miss Audrey Lamb and Mr. Troy Woodall of Carrizozo were united in marriage at Lovington, New Mexico, Oct. 14, 1938.

Mrs. Woodall is the attractive daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Lamb. Mr. Woodall is mess sergeant at the local CCC camp. Both young people are popular and well respected by a host of friends who extend congratulations. They will live up stairs in the Harkey building next door to the lumber yard.

News Notes of the Carrizozo Schools

(Omitted Last Week.)

Each of the High School classes met their sponsor Wednesday in the morning for 20 minutes. During this period each class arranged for their "CODE OF ETHICS," Class Songs and Yells, and their Assembly Program. The class sponsor and all of class participating in the above three points is a most valuable experience to all concerned. We students wish that more often we could meet with our sponsor and work on such practical problems.

Our foot ball boys showed great skill in beating Alamogordo week before last to the tune of 9 to 0.

The Carrizozo Alumni Association gave a complimentary party for all teachers of Lincoln County at the Community Hall last Saturday. The program included a floor-show and dancing.

Thursday October 13 during the second hour a program was given under the Freshman class which was enjoyed by all students and many guests. The high points of the program were;

Professor Quiz - Given by Dewey Stokes

Tap Dance by Charlene Page, and accompanied by Ethel Dow. My Trip To Alaska - Mrs. John E. Hall

Dramatization - Gentlemen Prefer Bonds - by Margaret Elliott and Mary Freeman.

The Junior Class is beginning to raise money for their class functions in connection with next Commencement week. A Junior Dance is being planned. Lou Fink's Orchestra will furnish the music.

A new tennis court is being constructed on the south east corner of the school ground. The work is being supervised by Messrs. Caton and Bright. This will be a valuable thing for both boys and girls as tennis is a game suited to all. Just as soon as poles for uprights can be secured six swings will be installed for the little folks. Places are being arranged west of the school building for Base ball playing.

Mr. Carpenter announced the following memory gem, which should be committed by Freshmen and applied by all students, "YOU CAN NEVER GET AHEAD OF A FELLOW IF YOU SPEND YOUR TIME TRYING TO GET EVEN WITH HIM."

"CODE OF ETHICS OF JUNIOR CLASS"

We the Junior Class of Carrizozo High School have adopted the following code of ethics in our regular class meeting; Hence we will strive to live up to the following aims.

1. We will try to make Carrizozo High School the best high school in the State of New Mexico.
2. We will be loyal to the school and try to maintain a spirit of the highest school spirit.
3. We will respect and demand that others respect the school property.
4. We will try to maintain a spirit of cooperation throughout the school year.
5. At all times we will be kind and courteous to our teachers and classmates.
6. Realizing that a good sport always wins, we will try to be good sports in all walks of life.
7. Since "Honesty is the best policy", we will always be honest in our work to our teachers and fellow classmen.
8. We will conduct ourselves as ladies and gentlemen at all school functions.
9. We will make the best use of our time and material.
10. We will do nothing of which we will be ashamed.
11. We will strive to uphold the morals of our country.

Well Known Pioneer Lady Called Home Friday Evening

Mrs. Mary Elizabeth Burleson passed away at the home of her daughter, Mrs. F. A. English at 5 p. m. October 14, 1938. After many months of illness the Angel of Death tenderly, lovingly freed her spirit; no truer friend and no more devoted parent ever lived in Lincoln county. The world is a good place in which to live because souls like Mrs. Burleson are in it.

She was a widow of Mr. Pete Burleson who passed away in 1925.

Mary Elizabeth Chittendon was born in Marysville, Mo., April 18, 1860. Her parents joined a wagon train in 1865, which came to Colfax county, New Mexico where she grew to womanhood. She was married to Mr. Pete Burleson in Trinidad, Colorado in 1877. Mr. Burleson served as sheriff of Colfax county. In 1891 they moved to Lincoln county and have resided here ever since.

Mrs. Burleson is survived by one daughter, Mrs. F. A. English, of Carrizozo and two sons, Mr. Tom Burleson of Fort Stanton and Mr. Fred Burleson of El Rito. She is also survived by several grand children and great grand children.

Funeral services were conducted last Monday afternoon at the Lincoln church.

Mrs. Burleson was one of Lincoln county's best known and most highly respected pioneer citizens. The church was filled and a great many were compelled to stand outside. She was dearly beloved all over the county as was attested by the magnificent array of floral offerings and the many tear-filled eyes.

Rev. Howdon, Episcopal minister of Roswell conducted services at the church. Mrs. Edna Pfingsten Purcell, sang "Safe in the Arms of Jesus."

She was laid to rest in the Lincoln cemetery, amidst the picturesque mountains where her earlier years had been so happily spent.

Mrs. Burleson was an Eastern Star, and emulated the teachings of that order at all times, members of the Carrizozo chapter had charge of services at the grave, and also acted as flower women. Pall bearers were Messrs. Larry Dow, Rinaldo Duran, Willie Norman, Lloyd C. Hulbert, H. E. Keller and C. W. Lyons.

We have a tribute to Mrs. Burleson, written by Mrs. L. A. McCall of El Paso, which will be published next week.

A Very Pretty Wedding Takes Place Monday at Fort Stanton

Miss Mary Ellen Sellers, attractive and accomplished daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Sellers of Pajarito ranch, Glencoe, became the bride of Mr. Louis George Fiorina of Santa Fe last Monday morning at Sacred Heart chapel in Fort Stanton, with Rev. Fr. J. A. O'Hara officiating.

A program of special nuptial music was given before and during the ceremony, with Mrs. Albritton at the organ.

The bride wore a beautiful white satin wedding gown, made long. Her veil, which was of white georgette, caught with orange blossoms, was the same, one worn by her mother when she was married in 1911.

The maid of honor, Miss Lucy Balling of Santa Fe, wore pink lace over pink satin. Bridesmaids were dressed in pastel shades. Miss Velma Burleson wore pink; Miss Dolores Forsyth wore blue georgette; Miss Emma Lou Templeton wore pale green, Miss Carmen Martinez wore a peach net trimmed in narrow ribbon made over peach satin.

The two little candle bearers were dressed in white satin, men of the wedding party all wore dark suits.

Mrs. Fiorina is a graduate of Loretto Academy in Santa Fe, where she was president of her class and a leader of school activities. Her parents are prominent in social and political circles of Lincoln county, her mother having been honored at the Democratic convention last Saturday, by receiving the nomination for representative from Lincoln county.

The groom is a son of Mr. and Mrs. George Fiorina of Raton and Santa Fe. Mr. Fiorina's father conducts a large business in Raton and also in Santa Fe.

At 10 o'clock a wedding breakfast was served at the Burleson home in Fort Stanton to about seventy guests. The three tiered bride's cake centered the large dining table.

Guests were present from Santa Fe, Albuquerque, Raton, Amarillo and different points in Lincoln county.

Mr. and Mrs. Fiorina left at once for a wedding trip to Mexico City. Upon their return they will reside in Santa Fe.

OBITUARY

R. A. A. Chase Passes Away

Bessie B. Williams was born October 30, 1889, at Creston, Iowa. At the age of six she moved with her parents to Kansas, where she grew to womanhood. Here by her winsome ways and friendly disposition she numbered her friends by the legions. She united with the First Presbyterian church, of Garnett, Kansas, on December 12, 1909, and remained a steadfast and devoted member of the church until her last day of earthly existence.

September 5, 1910, she was united in marriage to James M. Carpenter. To this union were born three children; James Medray, now in the service of Mesa Verde National Park, Colorado; Junior Ide, now principal of schools, of Cahone, Colorado; and Elinor Fern, now of Carrizozo, New Mexico; all of whom are with their mother's mortal remains today (at funeral service).

Mrs. Bessie B. Williams-Carpenter belonged to two fraternal organizations at the time of her departure. She joined the Royal Neighbors of America February 23, 1911. Her alert mind, with quickness to commit to memory, made a valuable acquisition to that order as was evidenced by the fact that she was frequently called on to exemplify the work in many lodges in Kansas and Colorado. Her most loved fraternal order was the Order of the Eastern Star which she joined ten years ago. She became very conversant in the ritualistic work and was at the height of joy when exemplifying the work. The principals of these two orders she practiced in her daily walks of life. Among her last words were, "I have found joy in the faith of Martha."

Mrs. Carpenter had a broad interest in affairs of life as the following quotations from the newspaper of Springfield, Colorado will bear witness.

Quotation: "I have been requested by a host of citizens of Baca county, Colorado to call a county-wide reception in honor of the James M. Carpenter family; they have lived, labored and won a place, during the past seven years, into the lives of the people of this county. Hence, citizens and friends of the Carpenter family are invited to the county-wide meeting in the High School Gymnasium, Friday evening August 25, 1938.

Signed: Paul M. Mitchell, Co. Supt. of Schools.

Mrs. Carpenter moved to Carrizozo August 17, 1937 where she won a large number of friends. She was an inspiration to all who knew her for her ideals, honesty, seasoned judgment and constant example of right living. She loved her home and was a devoted wife and a patient mother. Her generous spirit departed from her body at 1:15 p. m. October 17, 1938 and took its flight through the portal of death to the more abundant life in a glorious eternity where all is perfect peace and happiness reigns supreme.

Her philosophy of life can be found in a verse which she copied in one of her school books, probably at the age of fourteen, "with malice toward none, with charity for all, with firmness in the right as God gives us, to see the right; let us carry on."

Funeral services were conducted by Rev. R. A. Crawford Wednesday afternoon at the Methodist church at 2 o'clock for Mrs. James Carpenter who passed away Monday afternoon after an illness of about 14 weeks. A quartet of ladies sang two beautiful songs after which the Eastern Stars took charge. The remains were shipped to Garnett, Kansas, accompanied by her husband and children.

R. A. A. Chase passed away at his home in Capitan last Saturday, Oct. 15, at 1:30 p. m. after an illness of only a few hours.

Mr. Chase came to Carrizozo about 4 years ago, as director of music at the CCC Camp and later he was employed by the High School in the same capacity. In addition to his love of his profession he took an active and aggressive interest in church affairs and lodge work.

Mr. Chase was born in Portland, Maine, on May 27, 1868. He came west when a young man. In May, 1910, he was married to Mrs. Owen, of Roswell, who survives him. He is also survived by one sister, who lives in Connecticut, and by two stepsons and two stepdaughters. He was conducting a music class in Capitan at the time of his death. Funeral services were held at the church in Capitan by Rev. R. A. Crawford. A choir sang "Safe in the Arms of Jesus," "The Garden of Love" and "Nearer My God to Thee." After services at the church interment was in the Capitan cemetery with the Odd Fellows in charge. Messrs. James Carpenter, Herman Kell, A. L. Burke, C. Carl, W. J. Langston, Larry Dow, Jim Tom and Eugene C. Dow, Jr., were pallbearers.

A number of people from Carrizozo attended the funeral.

Joe Mitchell & Sons shipped a car of steers to the market in Los Angeles, Cal., Saturday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Skinner and grandson, Jackie Payne, were in town on business today.

Household Hints

By BETTY WELLS

THOSE things that make a vacant lot a potential homestead cannot be measured by a surveyor nor guaranteed with the abstract. And it's just as well not to take a real estate agent's word for the vital points about a piece of property . . . look them up yourself. For the neighbors, the schools, the transportation are as important as the big oak tree or the clump of lilac bushes in your future satisfaction with the lot.

Are the people nearby the type you want to live among? From visits to the schools and the churches, investigations of the clubs and local civic organizations, inspection of the parks and the library, you can glean a fairly accurate idea of the people in the district. Not only the scholastic rating of the school system, but the nearness of the school and the absence of dangerous crossings, convenience to church, park, library and shopping are added advantages.

Is the street a quiet side-by-way with light traffic or is it a noisy dusty main thoroughfare? In the alley safe and well kept? What about building regulations that govern the type of structure and the distance it may be set back from the street? Look into pipelg, curbing and paving improvements and the extent of indebtedness remaining on them. Boundary lines, liability for assessments and taxes, title examination are matters to go over with an attorney, and get with the deed an abstract from a reliable abstract company that proves the title.

Only after these dull details have been settled may you turn to the more interesting part of considering your home site—the personality of the ground itself. Then it is time to gloat over it . . . whether you choose a wooded, tangled spot on a hill or an open rolling elevation for a stretch of velvety lawn. Whether you choose a secluded lot or a convenient one.

Spinning With Rustic Ideas.

Roaming among old farms has set us off on our annual spree of day dreaming about returning to the simple life. You know—get away from it all and settle back in a little gray cottage somewhere or other in the backwoods.

We'd better break down and confess that half the lure is in the idea of remodeling some run-down house that has possibilities. So we're spinning with rustic ideas. Here's our masterpiece:

We'd kalsomine the walls in white—working right over the old wall paper if it was in fairly good condition and we had to cut corners, which we would. And do the wood-work white too, a crisp starch white. This would be for both living room and dining room. Then we'd go over the old floors with a coat of light green paint and add white window shades and white dotted swiss tie-back curtains made very full and frilly. Maybe we'd have valances and tie-backs of flowered cretonne or chintz on a white ground. For rugs, we'd like oval flowered hooks and for the sofa a slip cover in some sturdy washable material in light green; we'd probably add odd sofa cushions of the flowered material! We'd have flowered cushions for an old patent rocker, while two easy chairs we'd cover in light green. We'd prefer white lamp bases with shades of the flowered stuff (we'd make the shades ourselves).

The furniture would be odds and ends of course—the pieces of good wood we'd rub down to their natural finish and wax. The nondescript pieces in the living room we'd paint white. For accent perhaps we'd get some ruby glass to have about. In the dining room we'd like to have a big round flowered hooked rug; then we'd paint the dining table and chairs in light green. And use white fringed mats and napkins (why couldn't they be made out of worn out linen damask table cloths?). We'd no doubt want glass shelves set in the top part of the dining-room windows to hold rows of unusual ruby glass. Flower prints framed in green would just about cover one wall, and chair pads for the chairs would be of the flowered material used in the living room.

Bacon an Addition To Various Dishes

Methods of Cooking All A Matter of Choice

By EDITH M. BARBER

"WHAT is the best method of cooking bacon?" asks a reader. There probably isn't any best way, although now that fall is here and we do not mind the kitchen heated by a hot oven, a very fine method is to arrange the strips on a rack in the baking pan and then just leave them alone, until they are a delicate brown. They will then be dry and crisp and keep in very good form.

If you prefer the frying pan, you may use one of two methods. You may put the strips of bacon in the pan and cook over a moderate flame, turning frequently. As they shrink, you may add more strips. Pour off the fat as it accumulates, so that the pan keeps fairly dry. By the other method, you may put in two or three layers, then cover your pan and let the bacon cook in a low flame, in the fat, which is drawn out gradually. Turn once or twice during the process, so that each strip is evenly done.

Bacon is an addition to many dishes. For instance, there are bacon muffins, corn bread with bacon, the recipe for which is being published herewith, bacon combination sandwiches, and many dishes made with corn, rice, noodles, spaghetti and eggs, to which this pliant meat adds its delicious flavor.

Bran Corn Bread With Bacon.

- 2 eggs
- 1/4 cup sugar
- 1/2 cup bran
- 1 cup corn meal
- 1 cup milk
- 3/4 cup flour
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 2 teaspoons baking powder
- 1/4 pound bacon, diced

Combine eggs and sugar thoroughly; add bran, corn meal, and milk. Sift dry ingredients, add to first mixture and pour into greased pan. Sprinkle bacon over top. Bake in a hot oven, 400 degrees, for about 20 minutes, then place pan under broiler for about 3 minutes, to brown the crust and to crisp the bacon.

Scrambled Rice and Bacon.

- 3/4 pound sliced bacon
- 3 cups rice, cooked
- 3 eggs, well-beaten
- 3 tablespoons milk
- 1 teaspoon salt
- Pepper

Fry bacon until crisp; remove from pan and keep hot. Turn rice into fat and add the remaining ingredients, which have been mixed together. Stir rice and eggs and cook over low heat until eggs thicken slightly. Remove to serving platter and garnish with the crisp bacon.

WORTH TRYING.

Peach Pudding.

- 1 tablespoon shortening
- 2 cups sugar
- 2 eggs
- 1 cup milk
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 2 cups flour
- 1 1/2 teaspoons baking powder
- 1/2 teaspoon mace or nutmeg
- 1 quart peaches

Cream the shortening and the sugar together; add eggs well beaten and the milk. Mix and sift the flour, salt, baking powder and mace together. Add half to the first mixture. Mix the remaining flour with the peaches and add. Place on a well-greased pan and bake half an hour in a moderate oven (375 degrees Fahrenheit). Serve with a sauce or cream.

Scalloped Cabbage.

- 4 cups shredded cabbage.
- 1/2 cup butter, or butter substitute
- 1/2 cup flour
- 2 cups milk
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- Pepper
- 1/2 cup buttered crumbs

Cook cabbage eight to ten minutes in boiling, salted water and drain. Melt butter and stir in flour. When well browned, stir in milk and seasoning. Stir over fire until smooth and thick. Add cabbage, put in greased baking dish and cover with buttered crumbs and bake 10 minutes in a hot oven, 450 degrees Fahrenheit, until crumbs are browned.

Dainty Rice Pudding.

- 1 1/2 cups cooked rice
 - 1 cup sugar
 - 1 cup crushed pineapple
 - 1 cup cream, whipped
- Mix all ingredients together, put into sherbet glasses and chill thoroughly before serving.

Bolled Tongue.

A smoked tongue should be soaked in cold water several hours before cooking while a fresh tongue may be placed at once in boiling water. Cook slowly until tender; three or four hours; cool in the water and then remove the skin. Tongue may be served with caper, tartare or horseradish sauce, hot or cold sliced.

Fine Frocks of Real Silk Bespeak Ladylike Trends

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

THIS fall a new type of woman has come into fashion, a type more feminine, more enchanting, more discerning—a woman whose personality requires a wardrobe of individuality, quality and ladylike elegance.

Superb collections are available in the best shops, to be sure, but if the dress of milady's choice happens to go beyond her budget, what then? Many smart women have found their answer in pattern dresses made by themselves or by "little dressmakers."

They get the very best of material and glory in its elegance. In purchasing silk they demand none other than "pure silk," knowing it can be depended upon for sewability, drapability, cleanability and wearability. The result is an individualized gown that flatters the face and figure, is hand finished and costs only a fraction of the better custom-made gowns. Small wonder is it then, that the woman who does her own sewing, or who has a dressmaker, does not look standardized, commonplace or uninteresting.

What a treasure chest of sumptuous silk weaves are at her disposal this fall! For, according to the great silk parade of fall fashions that takes place nationally each year in stores throughout the country, the silks from which she can make her selection, are simply fascinating and that versatile there's a silk tuned to every phase of fashion.

At the fashion and silk merchandise forum held recently in New York, Manhattan's most charming mannikin paraded in gowns made of the season's swankiest silks, ensembled and accessorized in a manner that spelt Paris. While these dresses had a highstyle custom look seen only in the great salons the inspiring message conveyed in regard to them was that they can be made by the most inexperienced sewer with patterns available even in small communities.

Here are a few "pointers" gleaned at the great silk forum fabric revue that should help in carrying out a home-sewing program. Daytime dresses are in plain and novelty silk crepe, silk satin, silk jersey, silk twills and silk duvetyne such as yield gracefully to supple, slender silhouette treatments. Skirts keep a slim line with interest centered in sleeves and bodice. Silk crepes look smart when combined with a contrasting color in the same wave, carrying out the now-so-chic bi-color scheme. Paris says "fitted" is the word for most bodices, waistlines are slender, and yokes are strongly characteristic of dresses reflecting 1930 influence. Evening gowns are either slim and supple or stiff and bouffant.

Appropos of the simple dress that you can make yourself of elegant fabric, we call your attention to the shirtwaist frock (Paris still adores shirtwaist types) to the right in the picture. It is of handsome black satin and has brilliant buttons. Note the below-the-elbow sleeve. Paris also says shirtwaist frocks of glamorous materials for gala evenings. So why not make two shirtwaist frocks, one of black satin for practical wear and another of shimmering lame or gold-threaded silk weave for formal dates.

Very likable to copy is the model to the left. Here a gown simply fashioned of a novelty ribbed heavy silk sheer takes on dolman sleeves of black and gold silk lame in a coat-of-mail effect—ever so smart for bridge, matinee, cocktails, and "don't dress evenings."

Costume Jewelry Still Is Popular

Costume jewelry and lots of it is the sentiment expressed throughout the newer fashions. Many of the gadgets are of the heavy massive sort—huge fobs and lockets, also clips that are of the dangling type.

Smart styled jewelry is interpreted in close-fitting about-the-throat effects. The new dog-collar versions are liked by those who can wear them becomingly and, for those who do not like the extreme, there are plastrons and round collar items that encircle the neckline close up but not high. A simple black foundation dress is transformed into a gown de luxe under the magic of these dramatic gold jewelry neckwear novelties.

Belts in gold designing complement the costume jewelry gadgets and necklaces and bracelets.

Braid Is Revived In Fall Fashions

Braids and all their ramifications are present in profusion to remind grandmother of her deb days and to add a new zest to the fashions of the "younger generation" who have never had a chance to know what glorious effects braids can give.

From thread-fine soutaches to the heaviest of flat braids, the revived trimming has a place at the top of the detail list in every big fall fashion collection.

Your First Fall Hat

Your first fall hat is apt to be velvet. For immediate wear the beret of black velvet that shoots high to one side is a favorite.

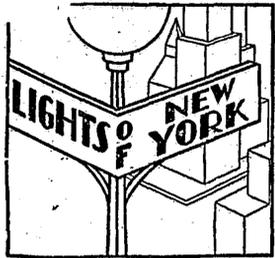

Spring Hues Reappear

Spring tints of pinks, greens and yellows are a surprising feature of the new clothes.

Afternoon Lace

In a showing of all lace fashions from Paris which took place in New York recently, it was interesting to note afternoon dresses of lace created by leading couturiers. This one by Marcelle Dormoy is of venise type lace which has just the right body to drape well. Note the new length of the sleeves and the slightly draped line of the bodice, contrasting with the more fully draped girdle around the waist. One of the new violet purples is used here.

City Life: Each evening at twilight, two gray-haired women come out of one of those old-law tenements away down on the lower East Side and sit on the shabby stoop with their backs turned to each other. Both widows and living across the hall from each other on the third floor, for years they were the closest friends, sharing everything from a batch of cookies to gossip picked up on the sidewalks, the grocer's or the butcher's. But in the house was a young man who was a practical joker. He would go to one with tales the other supposedly had told and then go back to the other with more stories. At first, neither would believe the slanders. But the poison took effect and they stopped speaking. That was five years ago. The joker has long since moved away. But the two former friends still sit silently on the stoop evening after evening.

Start: Frank Black, music director of the NBC, appeared with the Philadelphia Symphony orchestra when he was only 10 years old. But not as an instrumentalist. Though he had never sung a note before, he applied for an audition as a boy soprano with St. Clement's choir in Philadelphia. His enterprising disposition as well as his love for music won him a place and for the next two years he was a member of the organization which was often heard with the symphony orchestra. And while in a white surplice, little did he dream that some day he would stand on a podium and conduct a symphony orchestra as large as the one with which he was singing.

Slips: In one of Nadine Conner's scrapbooks is an account of her appearance at a church festival. The editor of the weekly paper wrote, "Miss Conner, in our opinion, today is one of the best singers." But when it came out in print, the "g" in singers had changed to an "n." Then there is one that Al Donahue prizes. He had entertained at a prison benefit and the notice was written, "He is one of radio's outstanding singers and players." But a typo made players, "slayers." Genevieve Ross keeps one which a reporter wrote, "Genevieve Ross stands out among Wooster folks who have made good. Some say she is the best." Of course the "b" in best became "p." Alice Cornett's prize tells of an amateur contest which she reached late. One comment was, "The amateurs were well but Judge Alice Cornett was missing for half an hour." And in some manner, "missing" became "hissing."

Noise: A New Yorker, who sought to get away from it all by buying a place up in Connecticut, is back in his midtown apartment. The few rocky acres at first seemed like the fulfillment of a dream. That was while he was still living in the city and a somewhat costly house was taking shape. But after he moved out to the quiet countryside he maintains that he found it anything but that. A swampy place not far away was the home of a large colony of frogs that kept him awake just about all night. Then when he finally did drop off, the birds started in and he popped up wide-eyed. One month was enough. So he sold out at a loss and came back to where there are only taxi collisions, night clubs turning out singing patrons early in the morning, fire sirens and other night sound to which his ears long since became dulled.

Puzzle: Writes C. C. C. from Dallas: "During a recent visit in New York, I was craning my neck trying to see the top of the Empire State building when I accidentally bumped into a sawed-off stranger. He glared at me and told me to go back to Brooklyn where I belonged. As I was born and raised down here, ever since then I've been wondering if he was trying to kid me. As I left my 45 at home, it really didn't make much difference."

Bang: Allen Prescott claims he knows a Broadwaite who's such a bore that sheep when they want to go to sleep count him.

Soldier for 31 Years Now Becomes a Citizen

COVINGTON, KY.—For 31 years Frank Frank has served in the United States army, but only recently did he become an American citizen. Frank, a warrant officer and band leader at Fort Thomas, appeared before Federal Judge John H. Druffel last month, renounced his allegiance to his native Rumania and pledged it to the United States.

Frank, who served with the army of occupation in Germany, had failed to take advantage of a privilege accorded foreigners that enlisted in the army whereby he could have appeared before immigration authorities in company with a superior officer and won citizenship. With that channel closed, Frank went through the regular prescribed routine

WHAT to EAT and WHY

C. Houston Goudiss Discusses Vitamins And Vision; Explains How and Why You Should Feed Your Eyes

By C. HOUSTON GOUDISS

FOR a number of years, scientists have stressed the importance of a well-balanced diet as a means of maintaining health, promoting growth and preventing disease. Recently, an even more significant development has occurred. It has been determined that a carefully chosen diet is absolutely necessary to preserve the general health and efficiency of every bodily function and that there is a close relationship between a good diet and good eyesight.

Your Food and Your Eyes

Many people regard their eyesight as one of the five senses which operate in some mysterious manner of their own! If they suffer from indigestion, they recognize that it is quite apt to be due to something they ate. If they are troubled with stomach, liver or kidney complaints, they quickly appreciate that prolonged dietary indiscretions may be at the root of the trouble. But it never occurs to them that what they eat may affect the eyes just as profoundly as it affects the internal organs.

It is not uncommon, during an attack of biliousness, to suffer a disturbance of the vision. But that disturbance usually disappears with the disorder that caused it. On the other hand, a deficient diet may produce eye troubles that have a far reaching effect upon health, efficiency, and even personal safety.

Night Blindness Explained

For example, it has been established that there is a definite relation between your vision and the vitamins in your diet; between your ability to drive a car safely at night, and the amount of vitamin A-containing foods that you consume.

To understand this astonishing fact, it is necessary to know that vision under faint illumination is accomplished by means of chemical changes in the pigment at the back of the eye. This is known as the "visual purple" of the retina and one of its important components is carotene, which is the active form of vitamin A.

The visual purple might be compared to the film in a camera. When you are in a dim light and the eyes are suddenly exposed to bright light, the visual purple is greatly reduced or bleached. This change results in a stimulation of the optic nerve and enables you to see clearly.

When an adequate supply of vitamin A is present in the body, the visual purple is rapidly regenerated. But when the supply is inadequate, a much longer period elapses before the corrective chemical change takes place. During the intervening time, many people find it difficult to see.

A Common Complaint

Unfortunately, the prevalence of night blindness is not generally recognized, though it is held that urban dwellers are more conscious of it than those living in the rural areas. This is borne out by the fact that peculiar disorders from vitamin deficiency are less common in urban than in rural areas.

Children Often Victims

Since the discovery of the close connection between vitamin A and the ability to see in dim light, scientists have tested large numbers of school children to determine whether vitamin A was present in their diet in adequate amounts. It was revealed that from 28 to 70 per cent of the children examined had incipient night blindness. The same deplorable conditions were found among adults. Mild to moderate degrees of vitamin A deficiency were present in from 10 to over 50 per cent of each group tested.

Yet here is the remarkable thing—in nearly every case, a diet rich in vitamin A for a few weeks restored the vision to normal.

A Significant Experiment

An even more striking example of the power of food to affect the eyesight is to be found in the report of an experiment in which breeding sows were given food in abundance but lacking vitamin A for 160 days before, and for 30 days after breeding. In three litters of 35 pigs, all were blind, in another litter of 14 pigs, all were sightless. But under normal feeding, the same animals produced litters of pigs with normal eyes and vision. This experiment justifies the conclusion of one of our most noted food scientists, that the deficiency of essential food elements may so alter vital processes that even pre-natal changes may occur.

Cause of Other Eye Disorders

Night blindness is not the only eye disease caused by an improper diet. Xerophthalmia or conjunctivitis, characterized by excessive dryness of the eyeball, has long been known to be caused by a vitamin A deficiency. It is also well known that a liberal amount of this vitamin will prevent that serious disease and will even effect a cure where destruction of the cornea has not progressed too far.

This suggests the tremendous importance of including in the diet foods rich in vitamin A—cod and other fish-liver oils; milk and other dairy products; green leafy and yellow vegetables; and egg yolk.

Experiments with rats, whose dietary requirements are similar to those of man, show a close connection between catarrh and a deficiency of another vitamin—vitamin G. This is found most abundantly in meat, milk, eggs, fruit and vegetables.

Were she concerned about protecting the blessing of good eyesight alone, that would be sufficient reason why every homemaker should plan meals that are rich in vitamins. But it is not only the eyes which are dependent upon vitamins, for they have many other functions to perform.

An improper diet may cause people to drive automobiles blindly at night so that they are dangerous not only to themselves and their passengers, but to everyone on the streets and roads. A deficient diet will also send them through life with half-efficient bodies, half-efficient brains, half-efficient senses.

That is why I urge you to learn everything you can about food, so that in planning meals you will not only feed your eyes, your husband's eyes and your children's eyes, but will take advantage of the wonderful discoveries of nutritional science to make every member of the family so efficient that they will enjoy the best of health each day of their lives.

How You Can Look Slimmer

IF YOU take a woman's size, you'll certainly enjoy having both of these smart, new, slenderizing styles. They're extremely becoming, and made up in materials and colors of your own choosing, they will be the joy of your life, one for house work, and the other for afternoon and dinner engagements. Both of these dresses are so very simple to make that you'll thoroughly enjoy doing it.

Each pattern includes a detailed sew chart for the guidance of beginners.

The House Dress

Notice how very practical and comfortable this dress is, with every detail you want for working freedom and slim lines. Darts make the waistline slim and neat, but not tight. The armholes are ample, the sleeves very short, and slashed for greater freedom. The skirt has sufficient unhampering fullness at the hem. It's a diagram design, that you can finish in a few hours. For this, choose percale, calico, or gingham.

The Afternoon Dress

Just wait to see how nice and slim your hips look, in this cleverly designed dress, with just a little fullness above the waist to emphasize the sleek, smooth cut below. This design gives you the fashionable bodice detailing, in soft, lengthening jabot drapes that have a dressy, but not a fussy, look. Bishop sleeves are another new and very becoming style, most flattering to large women. This dress will be lovely in velvet, crepe satin, thin wool or silk crepe.

The Patterns. 1559 is designed for sizes 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46 and 48. Size 36 requires 4 1/2 yards of 35 inch material. 2 1/2 yards of rickrack braid.

1613 is designed for sizes 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46, 48, 50 and 52. With long sleeves, size 38 requires 5 yards of 39 inch material; with short sleeves, 4 1/2 yards. Collar and jabot in contrast would take 1/2 yard.

Fall and Winter Fashion Book. The new 32-page Fall and Winter Pattern Book which shows photographs of the dresses being worn is now out. (One pattern and the Fall and Winter Pattern Book—25 cents.) You can order the book separately for 15 cents.

Send your order to The Sewing Circle Pattern Dept., Room 1629, 211 W. Wacker Dr., Chicago, Ill. Price of patterns, 15 cents (in coin) each.

We Hope They Got Home Before Moon Came Up!

A young farmer had bought a horse which was a wonderful jumper, and was riding him home. They came to a gate 10 feet high. The horse pricked up his ears, wagged his tail and gracefully jumped over.

A little farther on they came to a gate 14 feet high, and again the horse pricked up his ears, wagged his tail and sailed over with equal ease.

Farther on still they came to a railway bridge. Again the horse pricked up his ears, wagged his tail, but the squire shouted nervously, "Whoa, under this one, not over."

"Honesty is the Best Policy"

Three hundred years ago Cervantes wrote that "honesty is the best policy." English colonists were, at that time, making honest and heroic efforts to make homes for themselves in the Virginia and Massachusetts wilderness.

From the beginning the major problem in the New World has been the distribution of the land. Millions upon millions of settlers have landed on our shores from foreign countries: first from the British Isles and Scandinavia.

Later on other European nationalities swarmed among us. Following the Civil War the distribution of the land was conducted on the theory that Uncle Sam would give free homes to all, and Uncle Sam never went back on a homestead.

Americans are free in the criticism of their own government, but they never have had occasion to face a proposition for a "redistribution of the land," without pay. Isn't it the "redistribution" of the land that now threatens the peace of Europe? The same "redistribution" of the land has brought about many a crisis in Latin-America. Mexico has seized 10 million dollars worth of farm land owned by citizens of the United States.

Our Government has had Canadian boundary disputes but they have been settled by peaceful arbitration. The age-old principle that "honesty is the best policy" has been part of our Nation's religion.

The exciting interest in the European situation diverting attention from the Mexican situation. It is a strange coincidence that Germany and Mexico have become rough and disorderly again at the same time—just as German intrigue in the continent centered in Mexico during the World War.

It is impossible to overlook the fact that Germany demands territory that belongs to the most progressive Republic that ever has been established in Europe.

Germany and Mexico need to learn that "honesty is the best policy among Nations."

Miss Madeline L. Stevens, Field Representative of the National Recreation Association, will conduct three recreational schools in New Mexico in co-operation with the Extension Service. The schools will begin November 29. Miss Stevens was for ten years Field Director and Supervisor of the Parks and Playgrounds Association of New York. She was later Director of School of Playground and Recreation, and with Extension classes in recreation at New York University.

This is the second consecutive year that Miss Stevens has been in charge of the schools in the state. The first school conducted by Miss Stevens will be at Portales, November 29, 30, December 1, 2. The counties which are represented are Quay, Curry, Roosevelt, Chaves, Lea and Eddy.

The second school will be at Silver City, December 6-9. Catron, Sierra, Dona Ana, Luna, Hidalgo and Grant counties will be represented here.

The third and last school will be at Albuquerque, December 12-15. The counties which will send delegates are San Juan, McKinley, Valencia, Sandoval, Torrance, Guadalupe and Bernalillo.

The program carried on at this time will be divided into several sections. First, administrative features. Under this topic essentials of leadership will be discussed. Then activities under which games of different type will be taught. Other features will be material on festivals and special celebrations, story telling and suggested programs for handicraft projects.

County Extension Agents and representatives from their respective counties will attend these schools; after attending they will assist with recreation in their respective counties.

THE LINCOLN COUNTY NEWS

Los Angeles Union Stock Yards, October 20.--Californians are eating more meat than ever before, according to figures just released by the California cooperative slaughter service. Based upon official slaughter records, the state for the first eight months of 1938 required a total of 971,000 hogs as compared with 868,000 for the same period last year. Sheep and lamb slaughter also shows a sizeable increase, the total for eight months being 1,667,000 head, as compared with 1,631,000 last year and 1,583,000 average for the corresponding period from 1932 to 1936. There has been a reduction in the reduction of cattle and calves as compared with last year, but a substantial gain over the five-year average from 1932 to 1936. Slaughter records indicate a total of 714,000 cattle inspected during the first eight months of the year, against 724,000 a year ago and 590,000 for the five-year average. Calf slaughter dropped from 311,000 in 1937 to 321,000 in 1938, but gained over the 301,000 five-year average.

Thus on the whole, it will be seen that Californians are consuming more meat than ever before. Meat prices at wholesale, and presumably at retail, are well below prices of a year ago.

For example, hogs and lambs on foot are bringing producers on the west coast about 2 cents a pound less than in October, 1937, fed steers are 1 cent a pound lower, while cows, bulls and the plainer grades of cattle generally are selling about in line with last October.

To many in the trade, the livestock markets present a situation almost the opposite of what was true in the fall of 1937. At this time last year, livestock markets generally were on a decisive downward trend. However, at this time, there are many reassuring features now. Business and industrial conditions appear to be on the mend, and it seems certain that consumer buying power will be of greater volume as the winter progresses. Just the opposite was true a year ago. It appears that the period of heavy marketing of fat lambs has about run its course, and winter and early spring prospects are for less burdensome supplies on the markets. The intense competition between the middle west and the west coast for stocker and feeder cattle is adding underlying strength to the cattle market. Hog prices have worked lower on a seasonal basis, yet there appears to be strong demand and growers are getting better prices for feed marketed via the pork route than can be had in any other way.

Colonial Furniture
 Colonial refers merely to the time before the Union was formed. New England and Virginia were settled by the English, New York by the Dutch and Louisiana by the French. The Colonial furniture of each section resembled the furniture which had been brought to that part of the country. Almost all Colonial furniture was a simplified reproduction of the more elaborate furniture made abroad. A few designs originated in this country.

Wheat Quotas

Under provisions of the 1938 Agricultural Adjustment Act, wheat marketing quotas have been invoked by the Secretary of Agriculture to be in effect with the 1939 wheat crops. This quota provides that a marketing penalty will be assessed against producers of wheat who market wheat in excess of the quota allotments as determined by the County A. C. P. Committees.

Quotas will not be effective on farms marketing less than 100 bushels of wheat in 1939. Producers who anticipate seeding wheat for market in excess of 100 bushels during 1939 should contact the County A. C. P. Committee at their earliest opportunity in order that their acreage can be placed on record and marketing quota secured.

State Highway Laboratory

Albuquerque, October 20.--The New Mexico State Highway testing laboratory, formerly located at State Center, Las Cruces, has been moved to the University of New Mexico and installed in the Engineering school of the State University, it was learned today.

The State Highway testing laboratory was established at State College in 1921.

Reason given for the move according to reports from Las Cruces was the more accessible location at Albuquerque.

docket were discussed by farmers and ranchers. Members of county ACP and program planning committees, from practically all counties of the State. County agents, members of the State AAA Committee, and members of the State Extension staff were also in attendance.

Senator Carl A. Hatch was present at the meeting for the purpose of obtaining first hand information relative to the attitude of producers toward the present AAA program and its administration in New Mexico.

Mr. Harold P. Schwartz, Field Representative, Western Division, AAA, Palo Alto, took an active part in discussion and was especially helpful in giving producers information relative to the progress of the preparation of the docket for 1939.

Mr. G. R. Quesenberry, Director of Extension, appointed seven committees of representatives from various counties to make recommendations relative to the changes in the law and the docket in connection with cotton, wheat, grain, sugarcane, products of high altitude counties, small groups, range, and county program planning.

These various committees prepared recommendations relative to changes in the law and docket, as well as recommending a number of additions to the 1939 docket. These recommendations were placed before the general meeting. The group, as a whole, were unanimous in their recommendation that the program be simplified. The wheat section recommended that the law be changed so that wheat acreage allotments might be used for marketing quota purposes instead of an allotment in bushels, enabling the farmer to sell all wheat produced on his allotted acreage, as the cotton farmer is now permitted to sell all cotton produced on his allotted acreage without a penalty tax.

It was voted unanimously by the group to retain the present law, with minor amendments, rather than risk any radical change in the farm program. The group also recommended that more authority be allowed State and county committees, especially to county committees in making ad-

NEW YORK—As America looks to its air defenses, it finds, as acting chief of the army air corps, a pioneer technician in the adaptation of "the airplane to war uses. Well Qualified For Air Chief" Arnold seems to be the man. He is Brig. Gen. H. H. Arnold, assuming command of the corps after the death of Maj. Gen. Oscar Westover, in a plane wreck.

Soon after the Wright brothers had made their first few faltering air jumps, young Lieutenant Arnold was sent to Dayton, Ohio, not only to learn to fly, but to make technical studies of the possibilities of aircraft for observation and fighting. He was among the earliest of the army's trained fliers, and, in 1912, won the Mackay medal for a triangular flight, 30 miles to the leg, from College Point, Md., over Washington and Fort Meyer. In 1935, he again won this trophy for his exploit of the previous year in leading a flight of 10 bombing planes from Washington to Fairbanks, Alaska.

He has been an aggressive champion of aerial defense, reprimanded in 1926 for what was considered an excess of zeal for air armament. In 1917, he organized and commanded the Panama Canal air defense, and was with the A. E. F. in France, in the closing months of the World war, on inspection duty. He became assistant chief of the air corps in January, 1930. His technical studies have included photography, special means for topographical observations, and aerial map tactics, as well as engineering problems of flying.

He is 51 years old, a native of Gladwyn, Pa., graduated from West Point in 1907.

IN HIS Washington garden, Robert E. Bondy has come late-blooming roses and chrysantheums, which are now in bud. The hurricane never touched them. He has had to turn his back on his garden for a time, as his world outside of it became mostly chaos.

As national director of disaster relief for the Red Cross, he's been doing a heroic work in New England. His plans may be one kind of act of God, but his business is mainly with the other kind. Swambrone's "Forgotten Garden," where "wild waves and spent winds labor."

He was a letter man on the University of Chicago baseball team and a police reporter for a Chicago newspaper. On the latter job, he had a ring-side seat at man-made disasters, but, in his later career, took up with the more elemental ups and downs.

For 10 years, he has organized disaster relief for the Red Cross in the Lake, Southern and Washington divisions. He is one of our most seasoned and efficient battlers against all the ills and dangers that come in the wake of flood, fire, earthquake or any other widespread run. He is a native of Minnesota, in his early forties, his hair thinning—and no wonder.

IN WASHINGTON, Congressman Lucius N. Littauer of New York used to beat even Uncle Joe Cannon in the house poker games. And just a little something out of the kitty is the $2,250,000 graduate school of public administration, which he handed Harvard and which recently opened.

Mr. Littauer is the widely known glove-potentate of Gloverville. He is 70 years old, graduated from Harvard 59 years ago. His father, a German immigrant, founded the family glove factory. He has established many benefactions for useful public purposes, among them a gift of $1,000,000 in 1929, to "bring about a better understanding among all mankind." He provided $100,000 to recondition his old boyhood swimming hole.

Dust Bowl Looms as Proving Ground For Enlightened American Agriculture

Scientific Farming, Rain Combine to Cut Southwest's "Blow" Area Next Summer.

By JOSEPH W. LABINE

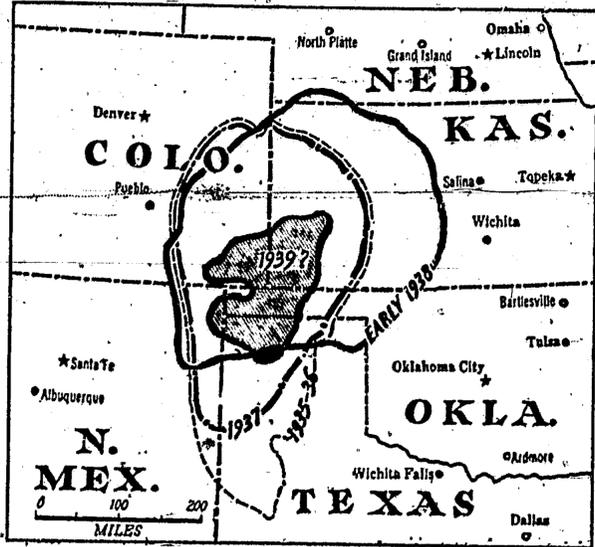

The sun is beginning to shine through America's southwestern dust clouds. Where five years ago there was drought and desolation, encouraged farmers now prick up their ears to hear rain pound on windows that were once pockmarked by sandstorms.

This is taking place in the "dust bowl" region, comprising western Kansas, eastern Colorado, the Oklahoma Panhandle and northwest Texas. But it extends northward, too, through desolate wastes of North and South Dakota where a scant few years ago farmers fed their cattle Russian thistle because nothing else would grow.

Rain has been partly responsible for this new optimism, for the depressing dry cycle of the 1930s appears to be ending. This year's Gas masks for a dust storm. Used since 1932 in the southwest, but soon they may be stored away.

How the dust bowl has been shrinking, and a fairly accurate prediction of next year's trouble-center. Contour farming, and other efforts to re-anchor the soil are responsible.

rains have been the heaviest since 1932, and like a great piece of wool, the dust bowl seems to shrink when it gets wet.

But behind the dust bowl's shrinkage is something far more fundamental than rain. It is a definite change in America's treatment of her No. 1 industry, agriculture.

New Century, New Problems. Oldtimers recall how, 50 years ago, each midwestern homestead was an independent kingdom on which the farmer lived without concern for high neighbor's well-being. The land was new and good; no problem was bigger than the homestead itself. But since free land disappeared, since year-after-year cultivation began loosening the soil from its anchors, problems have sprung up that are not localized. It all boils down to the problem of preserving our land.

This is far more important than the matter of agricultural prices and surplus. When land begins eroding and blowing away it spreads like a cancerous disease. America's cancer lies in an area that from 1920 was the "breadbasket of the nation," producing some 300,000,000 bushels of wheat a year. From 1932 to 1936 production dropped to 150,000,000 bushels. The cancer is still spreading, mostly to the northeast into Kansas' corn belt. But the encouraging factor is that man can now reconquer the original dust bowl, and is at last learning how this precious farm land should be handled.

Today's farmer admits the good earth has been misused. Through a half century of boom era farming its resources were drained and no attempt was made to restore them. Years ago there was no such thing as crop rotation, nor did a washed-out hillside cause much concern. But eventually the good earth got plain mad, dried up and blew away.

Agriculture's Proving Ground. The dust bowl offers agriculture's best example of what must be done throughout the Midwest, and what will result. In this 37,000,000 acres of wasted land—once highly productive farm territory—co-operation fostered by the United States department of agriculture is winning a painstaking battle. Though thousands have migrated, though countless farms stand deep in churning sand, the dust bowl is emerging as a proving ground for American agriculture.

It was not enough that farmers learned to leave a good ground cover during winter months, nor was it enough to learn that terracing will prevent erosion from both causes—washouts and blowing. It took money to carry out these plans.

First, the Farm Security administration offered loans to farmers who would handle their land scientifically, making further loans if they wished to lease adjacent neglected "blow land" and anchor it down. Though 220,000 dust bowl farms have been placed under good management this way, and although the Jones-Bankhead act permits the government to purchase remaining idle blow land, the new spirit of co-operative attack is best illustrated by still another method—the soil conservation district.

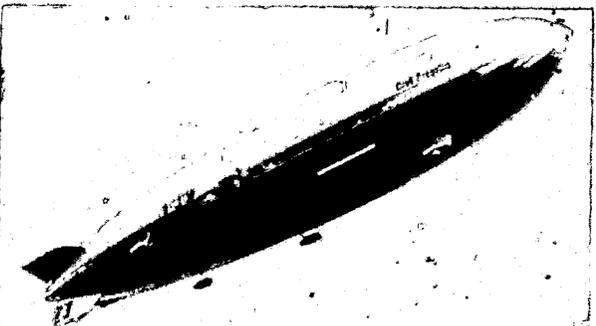

Given U. S. Assistance. This is a simple plan. Farmers in a certain area can form an association to lease abandoned land, thereby qualifying for a special payment from the Agricultural Adjustment administration. The government provides machinery to remove buried fence posts, level hummocks and put the abandoned land in shape. Funds for additional treatment come from the Farm Security administration, and this loan is repaid when AAA allotments are made to the district.

This co-operative work has been going on unnoticed in the dust-bowl and other drought areas, and this autumn the amazing results were brought to the public's attention for the first time. There is a popular misconception that the dust bowl is a new "great American desert," but farm experts are quick to point out that it is a potentially productive region of generally good soils. Most of the land is level and can be operated with modern farm machinery. It has produced bumper crops in the past and can again.

Department of agriculture officials confidently predict that a relatively small percentage of the land operated this past summer will be subject to blowing next winter and spring. They have found some of the land not suited to crops—about 6,000,000 of the 32,000,000 acres now under cultivation—and this will be put back to grass immediately, eventually becoming suitable for grazing.

The latest figures on dust bowl progress look good. Its original 97,000,000 acres are now reduced to an expected 15,000,000 acres for next year, which means the proving ground has succeeded and that similar technique can be applied to drought-ridden farms throughout the Midwest.

Germany Builds New Zeppelin, Unshaken by Past Tragedies

A year ago last May, when the giant Hindenburg exploded while landing at Lakehurst, N. J., the world thought lighter-than-air craft were a proven failure. But though one after another airship has been wrecked by structural defects, wartime shells, storms and explosions Germany still has faith.

Just launched is the new LZ-130 christened "Graf Zeppelin" after an earlier lighter-than-air ship. The new Graf Zeppelin is a sister ship of the ill-fated Hindenburg, and its outward appearance is the same. But a visit to the hangar at Friedrichshafen, Germany, offers convincing proof that the similarity ends there.

The LZ-130 is 603 feet long with a beam of 135 feet. When inflated it will hold 7,000,000 cubic feet of gas, helium if the United States government will supply it. Germany wants to avoid hydrogen, whose inflammability caused the Hindenburg's downfall.

Eckener is Leader. The guiding genius behind Germany's dirigibles is Dr. Hugo Eckener, who has devoted most of his life to lighter-than-air research. Most of the new LZ-130's new features can be attributed to him. For example, the mass of metal inside the ship is made of duralumin, an amazingly light alloy. Helium—if Germany gets it—will be stored in 16 doughnut-shaped compartments.

The ship is powered by four 1,000-horsepower motors capable of taking the ship from Germany to Lakehurst, N. J., in two-and-one-half days, returning in two. Store rooms, baggage compartments and passenger accommodations are inside the monster's belly, but actual navigation takes place in gondola-like control cars.

The Graf Zeppelin has 20 cabins, accommodating 40 passengers as compared with the Hindenburg's load of 70. The smaller load is necessitated because helium lifts slower than hydrogen. Dining quarters are located in the center of the main runway, flanked on one side by a lounge and reading room, and on the other side by another lounge, a smoking room and a bar. Promenade decks are fitted with huge slanting windows that enable passengers to watch the world below.

When regular transatlantic passenger service is inaugurated, it will cost $450 to come from Frankfurt to Lakehurst, smaller $400 on the Hindenburg. Smaller pay loads are responsible for the added fare.

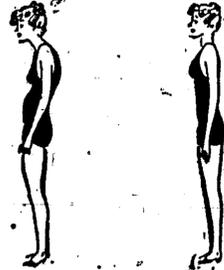

Strong in her faith, Germany is already planning the LZ-131, to be larger still. America's contribution to the dirigible field will be a $3,000,000 U. S. Navy training ship, authorized by congress last year. The principal reason it has not been started is that engineers cannot decide whether it shall be covered with metal or fabric.

Look Young By Striving For Posture

By PATRICIA LINDSAY

THE way you carry yourself is not only indicative of what sort of person you are, but it either adds years to you or makes you look younger.

When wealthy ladies pay high prices for courses in self-improvement in the leading salons, the first lesson they get is a posture lesson. And the course does not proceed until the women have learned how to walk correctly and to sit correctly.

"Walk proudly," "grow tall from the midriff" and "tuck in your buttocks" as if you had been spanked, are the three most simple rules to remember as you walk. "Sit in the entire seat of a chair," "tuck in your tummy while sitting," and "don't cross your knees," will take you far in sitting posture if you will but remember them.

Authority Advises These Exercises

From one of the leading salons, that of Miss Dorothy Nye, I secured these two corrective exercises, which, if practiced daily, will firm the abdominal muscles and give flexibility to the hip region. Both are necessary to acquire an erect and agile carriage.

EXERCISE 1

1. On back with right knee pulled back to chest and both hands clasped around knee.
2. Swing left leg back over head as far as you can, then come to sitting-up position. Pull from hands around knees and flatten back, keep neck and head high.
Repeat with right three times. Then left three times. Twelve times altogether.

EXERCISE 2

1. On knees, head, back, hands clasped back of body and stretch downward.
2. Bend slowly forward, keeping head up and back flat until sitting on heels. Drop head to floor and relax.
3. Keeping head down, round the back, pull in abdominal muscles, and slowly raise the body. Movement begins at lowest vertebrae and slowly lifts thighs away from heels at same time.
Head and shoulders rise last to original position. Repeat five times, working up to fifteen times altogether in a few days.

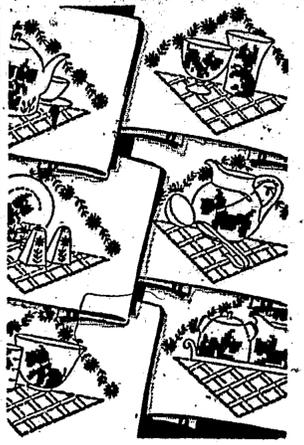

Not difficult are they? Try going through them every day for a month.

HINT-OF-THE-DAY

If a child possesses his own aids to body health and cleanliness he is more likely to use them. "My very own hair brush"—"My very own tooth paste"—makes him proud. If he is taught how to use them and why he must use them, a mother will have little difficulty in getting him to do so.

Of course all children go through that obstinate age when any suggestion is vetoed, when every request calls for a lengthy argument. But even during this stage of growing pains the child is quite likely to slip off and do what he has been told to do after he has satisfied his ego by displaying his obstinance, that is, providing his earlier years have included a daily grooming routine.

SYNOPSIS

Barbara Sentry, seeking to sober up her escort, Johnnie Boy, on the way home from a party, staps him, and attracts the attention of a policeman, whom the boy knocks down. As he arrests him, Professor Brace of Harvard comes to the rescue and drives Barbara home. On the way they see Barbara's father driving from the direction of his office at 12:45, but when he gets home he tells his wife it is 11:15 and that he's been playing bridge at the club. Next day Sentry reports his office has been robbed and a Miss Wines, former temporary employee, killed. The evening papers luridly confirm the story, and Sentry takes it hard. Mary, elder daughter, in love with Nell Ray, young interne at the hospital where she works, goes off to dinner at Gus Loran's, Sentry's partner, with Mrs. Loran's brother, Jimmy Endicott. Mr. and Mrs. Sentry call on old Mrs. Sentry, and Barbara alone, receives Dan Fisher, reporter, who advises her not to talk. Phil Sentry, son at Yale, is disturbed at the possible implications and suspicion of Miss Wines' absence from her rooms for three days during August. He goes home to help. Sentry is arrested and booked for murder. Dan Fisher explains the evidence against him—that the robbery was a fake, the safe opened by one who knew the combination, changed since Miss Wines' employment there—that a back door key, a duplicate of Sentry's, was found in the girl's purse, and that Sentry, too, had been away those three days in August. Brace calls, and backs up Barbara in her denial that Sentry could have done it, because of the discrepancy of time between the slaying and their seeing Sentry on the road. Phil, showing the police over the house, finds his strong box forced open and his gun, which only his father knew of, gone.

CHAPTER IV—Continued

Irons looked at him for a moment soberly. Then he took Phil's arm. "Steady, Mr. Sentry," he said. "The folks upstairs will need all you've got."

Phil said chokingly, "Damn you, what is it?"

"Somebody's burned a lot of money in the furnace," the Inspector told him. "You can still read the printing on the ashes of some of the bills."

"What of it?" Phil inquired.

"And there's an envelope, a long one, only half burned, with the firm name on it. Sentry and Loran. Whoever tried to burn it was in a hurry, didn't finish the job."

Phil protested, "But I don't see—"

Irons said quietly: "Someone took some money out of your father's safe, Thursday night. We've been wondering what they did with it. Where it had gone."

For the rest of that day, Phil was like a man dazed by an actual physical blow. He had, till he saw that rifled metal box in the recess under the window seat, not even contemplated the possibility of his father's guilt. That possibility had been, perhaps, in the back of his mind; but he had not faced it. His faculties had been concentrated upon the fact of Mr. Sentry's arrest, with all the terrors that arrest implied; and upon the fact that his sisters, his mother, his grandmother looked to him now for strength and heartening.

He felt himself young and futile and inadequate to the task imposed; he tried to grow in a moment from an irresponsible boy into the man the situation demanded. He thought more of them than of his father till, looking over the Inspector's shoulder, seeing the metal box that had been forced open, remembering what it had contained, remembering that Miss Wines had been shot, he heard himself lying by instinct, blindly, clumsily. And he saw a moment later that the Inspector knew he had lied; and while panic filled him, Sergeant Kane appeared and led them to the cellar—where worse appeared.

Someone had stolen his gun, and none but his father knew where it was! Someone had burned money in the furnace, and none but his father could have done that! And Inspector Irons had felt this evidence to be conclusive. That certainty was clear in the older man's eyes, plain for Phil to read.

The Inspector's sureness, more than his own senses, convinced Phil; drove home to him the shattering realization. His father was a murderer.

Phil might have been proud of his bearing that morning. When he and Inspector Irons came up from the cellar, Oscar spoke to him, said Mrs. Sentry would like him to drive her to town to see Mr. Sentry; and Phil said, "Right!" He could not for a moment face his mother; so he called to her from the hall, "I'll bring the car around."

He went to do so, brought the small car, the one his father always drove. At the front door he blew his horn; and his mother and Barbara presently came out, and Barbara kissed Mrs. Sentry, hugged her tight.

"Give father a big kiss for me," she directed. "Tell him I love him and I think he's grand and I'll come see him tomorrow sure!" And she called to Phil, "Drive carefully!"

Phil tried his voice, and its very familiarity was reassuring. That at least was unchanged. He had thought the world was changed.

She pulled the door shut. "Mr. Hare said to come to his office, Phil," she directed.

And Phil got the car under way; and he told her how much seeing her would cheer his father. "You're always so strong and steady and sure," he said. "Ever since I was a youngster, it always made me feel better to come dump my troubles in your lap. All of us."

He talked so much about her and about his father that it did not occur to her to think of Phil himself. Her thoughts already cast forward to the interview that lay ahead. She dreaded it so terribly; yet it must be faced, must be gone through.

When after a dazed half hour of preliminaries she found herself waiting for Arthur to be brought to her, she looked at her surroundings with an almost impersonal curiosity. They seemed to her hideous; a small room, a table, two chairs. A grill of slender bars at the one window, a smell of disinfectants. . . . She was to see Arthur alone; but the door would be open, and an officer in a position to watch them through the open door. It did not occur to her that the District Attorney's old friendship for Arthur had led him to permit her unusual consideration. Dean Hare had warned her they would be watched; she thought this hard enough.

Arthur came in. A man walked up this morning," she assented, "just to say we could count on them in every way."

"He's all right." "I'd like him better if Mrs. Loran were nicer. She and I don't speak the same language. You heard Mary tell how she behaved the other night, at that dinner when Mr. Loran wasn't there. As if she were a burlesque actress, Mary said."

"Mary always hated Gus. He used to kiss her and Barbara whenever he saw them when they were youngsters, and Mary always hated to be kissed. Gus did it to tease her, as much as anything." He added, after a moment, "I expect Mary takes it—all this—pretty hard. She's the sort who would."

She confessed: "I think she's worried about what Nell Ray's attitude will be. He's father—prig. But Mary loves him."

"It will all clear up in a few days," he predicted. "I hope so." She spoke after a moment, in a tone curiously humble. "But Arthur—I think we have to be honest with each other. I know what time you came home. He stared at her; and she saw his cheek drawn and pale. She said: "It was quarter of one."

After a long while he spoke, very slowly, in a low tone. He said: "Yes, Ellen. It was quarter of one, half-past twelve, about that, anywretchedly. "She was—she lay there—I don't know how she got there, Ellen, or who killed her. I lost my head. I ought to have called the police, but I was afraid to. I left her there, went home. I thought if no one saw me—"

She said, gently: "You always were afraid of things, Arthur. You found her there dead?"

"Yes." "Just—lying there?" "There was someone with her. A man. They had robbed the safe, taken the money. He ran past me in the dark as I came up the stairs." And he said again, in a helpless resignation: "Barbara must tell them the truth if they ask her. None of you must lie." He made a bitter gesture. "It will be hard enough to make them believe the truth—that I lost my head, ran away, left her there."

Mrs. Sentry said: "Barbara has already told them. She told Mr. Flood."

"Told—Already?" He was white. "She thought that if Miss Wines was really killed at about one, as the papers said, you couldn't have done it. So she told him you were at home before that, to prove to him that you didn't do it."

"Miss Wines was killed about twelve o'clock," he said, half to himself.

"How do you know?" He stared at her. "She was killed before that," he amended suddenly. "Before I got there. Bob Flood knows—" He rose in haste. "You'd better go, Ellen," he said. "Tell Dean Hare I must see him right away. You see, I've told them, up to now, that I was at home at eleven fifteen. I hoped I could—lie out of it. But now I may have to tell them the truth."

She rose to face him; she asked softly, "You didn't kill her, Arthur?"

"Of course not! Ellen, don't you believe—"

"You can tell me!" He hesitated. He said then, in a quickly mustered anger, "I told you, I didn't!" But she had felt his hesitation; she watched him pitifully, and he cried: "What are you waiting for? Go on. Tell Dean Hare—"

And she said, submitting: "Very well, Arthur, I'll tell Dean. I'll do whatever you say."

He turned abruptly toward the door. The policeman came to meet him. She thought he went away almost eagerly, as though glad to escape the question in her eyes.

She waited for a while after he had gone, in that hideous little room, fighting for self-control. Arthur's hesitation had been like confession. His mustered anger at her insistence had been eloquent. She knew now surely that he was guilty. She faced the future, dazed, feeling nothing. A dreadful time, a lifetime that must be endured.

She thought, almost amused: I've always been so proud. And she remembered something she had said to Arthur long ago, something about a scandal. I could not forgive a scandal, she had warned him then.

There was no question of forgiveness now. Too late for that. Just, somehow, to endure, to live.

But Arthur had given her a message for Dean Hare, wished to see Dean right away. And—Phil was waiting for her. She rose and moved.

In the car, Phil asked, "Well, how is he?"

"Oh, he's fine," she said. "Don't worry, Phil, he's fine!" Whatever her own certainty, the children need not know.

become him, stopped with him in the doorway, and she heard the click of metal. But she heard it at a great distance, all her senses concentrated in her eyes.

He was so little changed! Except perhaps that he seemed tired, and that his eyes were inflamed, he had not changed at all. Yet he had been gone so long. She tried to remember how long, and realized incredulously that it was no more than a matter of hours.

He came toward her, rubbing his wrist with his hand. He stopped, facing her. He said, from a little distance: "Well, Ellen I'm glad you came."

She said: "We must sit down, Dean says, with the table between us, and our hands in sight. On the table, perhaps."

He nodded. "They have to be careful, I suppose." They sat down; and he said, "How are the children, all right?"

"We're—distressed, of course. The policeman is watching us, Arthur."

"I suppose so." His eyes held hers. He said: "Ellen—I'd have done anything possible to spare you all this. The whole thing is so—intimidable. Just a series of miraculous coincidences."

"It is incredible, yes." "Of course, it will straighten out in a day or two. I had nothing to do with that girl, Ellen. But you know that, of course."

"You've told them so?" "Of course. Why, Ellen, they say themselves that she was killed about one o'clock. I was home long before that." She felt, almost to her own surprise, a deep compassion in her heart. He said urgently: "You know that, yourself. You were awake when I came home."

She hesitated. "No, Arthur," she amended. "I wasn't awake. I woke up, asked you what time it was."

"Well, I told you. It was quarter past eleven."

She tried to speak, but her throat was tight. He tapped the table between them with his fingertips. "Good of you to come," he repeated, and he said: "Gus came last night, late. He came over from New York on the five o'clock and saw an extra at the station, and hurried right up here. It helped to see him. You feel pretty touch a pariah, in jail, you know."

way." He asked, "How did you know?"

"Barbara saw you." "Barbara?" Sudden panic in the word.

"Yes." His eyes were flickering with rapid thought. His fists clenched on the table; he lifted one and lowered it again, and sweat was on his brow.

"I hoped no one saw me," he admitted. "Barbara?" She did not speak; and he said at last, hopelessly: "Well, if they ask her, she must tell them. None of you must lie, Ellen. Tell them the truth."

"Tell me the truth, Arthur," she pleaded.

"I had nothing to do with the girl, Ellen! I didn't—murder her!"

She asked no question; and after a moment he went on, hurriedly: "This is what happened. I went to the office, after the bridge game broke up, to get that coffee-pot of yours. I'd forgotten it when I left in the afternoon." His lips twisted

Marble Floor of Library of Congress Given Care Equal to That of Costly Gem

People think they take good care of their biggest diamond ring. The chances are ten to one they take less care of it than the Library of Congress takes with its floors. People wash their rings in any soap, and bump them against metal objects. There is no such "rough stuff" with the classically beautiful marble floors in the Library of Congress.

Those floors cannot even be scrubbed with a mop, for fear of the metal palls chipping the edges of the marble slabs, according to W. C. Bond, superintendent of the building. Instead, a corps of char-women each night goes over the shining marble with soft cloths, scrubbing the stone with painstaking care, writes a United Press correspondent in the Chicago Daily News.

Not only that, but no soaps or washing powders touch the floor until they are thoroughly tested by the bureau of standards to determine that they contain no abrasives such as sand, which would scratch the finely polished surfaces.

Before the bureau of standards was established, the library force used to take a piece of marble and soak it in a solution of soap to determine if the soap contained acids. "The acids might stain the marble," Bond explained.

"The marble is priceless," he said. "I would not estimate what it would cost to replace it. For instance, we have two mantelpieces. They cost about $3,300 originally. But you can't get that kind of marble now. It has been said they are worth many thousands of dollars."

Bond has just one trouble—he can't stop a person who has metal heelplates, and he lives in constant fear that the scraping of metal plates will chip the marble.

But he has taken some precautions. When a person carries a cane into the library, he must check it, and the library gives him another which is shod with a rubber tip. If he carries an umbrella, he must check that. No tap-tapping on the marble flags with metal.

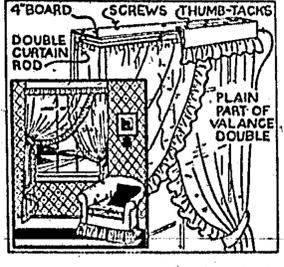

Shave Hindu Boy's Head Between the ages of nine and twelve the orthodox Hindu boy has his head shaved, leaving a small strand of hair on top. He is then invested with the sacred thread and thus formally admitted into the practice of Hinduism.

Try This With Your New Ruffled Curtains

By RUTH WYETH SPEARS

DEAR Mrs. Spears:—I want to thank you for the clear diagram of how to hang draw curtains in your Book 1—SEWING for the Home Decorator. This was just what I have been needing as we have casement windows and no shades in our living room. With a pull of the cord my new curtains shut out the light or the outside view. I wonder if you would help me with another problem? I do not want to make the curtains for the rest of the house. Thought I would buy ruffled net ones. Do you think they would be too commonplace? J. T.

Answer: Here is a suggestion for hanging ruffled curtains that will make your windows a little different from those of your neighbors and lend no end of style to your rooms. Double curtain rods are needed to give the crossed effect and a valance board is added to the top of the window as shown. Here the valance is the sort that comes with ready made curtains and the top is folded back to make it double. In thumbtacking it to the valance board, do not stretch it—just "ease it on" so that it hangs well. If you feel that the windows need color, the valance and tie-backs may be of plain glazed chintz that repeats the strongest color in your room color scheme. A contracting valance may be either plain or gathered.

Let Father and Young Son and Little Sister help you make the home a center of interest. Book 1—SEWING, for the Home Decorator contains many useful things that every one may take a hand in making. Book 2 shows you with pictures how to make many novelty gifts. Books are 25 cents each. Order both books today and get the patchwork quilt leaflet picturing 30 authentic embroidery stitches free. Address: Mrs. Spears, 210 S. Desplaines St., Chicago, Ill.
