News Notes of

Carrizozo Schools

Assembly was held Tuesday at 9 a. m. It was given by the Music and Physical Education departments. It included selections by the band, tap dancing, reading and baton twirling. It was quite interesting.

The Home Economics girls are going to the District meeting in Tularosa on Saturday, April 15.

The assembly program Tuesday of this week was very interesting. Cosch Caton gave the basket ball letters to the ones who earned them.

Dr. Barnie Caton visited our school Thursday. He peped the seniors up on attending the N. M. N. U. next year.

A Spanish play under Mr. Martinez direction is to be given tonight, April 14, in the high school auditorium.

Mr. and Mrs. Martinez and family and Supt. James M. Carpenter spent the week-end in Juarez, Mexico.

HISTORICAL JARABE

Behind the colorful Mexican hat dance, which is to be given by the Spanish department at the high school auditorium, is a very interesting history. The Jarabe embodies the blending of the Spanish rhythm with the native Mexican steps. The interpretation of this dance is necessarily based on the fact that it is a courtship dance. In it, the charro expresses his enthusiasm for the girl he has chosen as his future mate. She in turn, returns the interest, by playing shy and hard to approach. The tempo slows up for the expression rhythmic movements of the dance and finally, when the hat exchanges hands (or heads) the betrothal is complete. The dance was at one time staged in Mexico. Now, however, school children are taught them in the school.

Methodist Church Notes

The Sunday School had the largest attendance last Sunday, Easter, of recent months. A total of eighty-two were present. A special program was rendered by Mrs. J. P. Turner's class.

Several months ago the Sunday School was reorganized, and now has a full corps of teachers, and the attendance is growing each week.

A business meeting was held at the home of Mr. E. M. Brickley Monday evening by the stewards and teachers and officers of the Sunday School of the Methodist church for the purpose of making plans for raising funds to cover the benevolences of the church. Also other plans for the future improvement of the church and school.

Those present were: Mr. and Mrs. Brickley, Mr. J. E. Hall, Frank Adams, Mrs. Jane Turner, Mrs. Clara Snyder, and the Rev. Glazier, pastor.

Music News Item

Mr. Barney Caton, Director of the New Mexico Normal University Extension Department at Las Vegas, was entertained by the newly organized thirty-five piece Carrizozo High School Band Thursday morning. While highly complimenting the band, the students enjoyed Mr. Caton's winning personality.

In appreciation of the fine work done by the music department this year, Mr. Caton promised Carrizozo a concert by the famous 85 piece capella choir of the Normal University.

Mr. Caton told the music department that there was a $200 music scholarship awaiting any worthy Carrizozo High School senior music student at the Normal.

A Note of Thanks

The Methodist Church wishes to express its appreciation to all persons who took part in "The Resurrection Story" and made it a success.

To Mrs. Burns, who so ably accompanied at the piano, is due a special word of gratitude for her untiring efforts in practicing with the group as a whole, as well as with those who had special numbers in the cantata.

A large, appreciative audience attended the presentation. The free will offering was sufficient to cover all expenses.

Mrs. Dick Willis is spending two weeks with her parents, then will return to Bisbee, Arizona, where her husband is stationed.

Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Hemphill came home from El Paso last Wednesday, where Mr. Hemphill was under treatment.

the honor roll for this six weeks period: Grade 1, Margarita Gonzales, Jake Herrera; Grade 4, Dolores McKinley; Grade 5, Joe Candelario; Grade 8, Mary Vindaurri, Dometrio Candelario.

BANKING LOOKS AHEAD

Streamlined Service

Modern industrial design utilizes streamlining to increase efficiency and decrease costs. Modern banking trends toward "streamlined service" with these same two objectives.

As a private individual or business man, you will find this bank's services helpful in adding to your personal efficiency and in cutting down the cost of transacting your daily financial business.

Progressive individuals, with an eye to the future, are invited to open accounts and to establish friendly, cooperative relationships with this bank.

The Past Matrons Club will give a "Gordito Supper" on Tuesday, April 18th, in the dining room of the Masonic Temple, beginning at 5:30 p. m. Price 85c. Everybody come!

Mrs. Blaney and Lemon Hostesses

A lovely pre Easter social event was the one o'clock luncheon given at the Southern Pacific hotel last Saturday afternoon by Mrs. R. E. Blaney and Mrs. R. E. Lemon.

After the delicious luncheon, which was enjoyed by forty-four guests, nine tables played contract bridge, and two tables played Chinese checkers.

In contract first prize was won by Mrs. Payman of Fort Stanton. The prize was a lovely Easter lily with two blossoms on it; 2nd prize was won by Mrs. L. J. Adams, while third prize went to Mrs. Eddie Long of Capitan. For cut prize four different ones got the ace of spades on first cut, but on the second cut Mrs. Wm. Gallacher won.

In the Chinese checker games, Mrs. Peterson was awarded first prize, and Mrs. L. A. Boone of Capitan received second.

Besides Carrizozo residents, ladies were present from Capitan, Lincoln and Ft. Stanton.

T. & G. Grocery

The Burnett grocery changed hands this week, he having sold out to his brother-in-law and nephew, Messrs. J. L. Thornton and Doss Galloway. The new owners invite the patronage of the people. They will conduct the business on a strictly cash basis, and at rock bottom prices.

Baseball Manufacturers Show How It's Done

Even the manufacturing of baseballs calls for mass production. These pictures show the construction of balls used by the American and National leagues. Not exactly a plaything for kiddies, this toy automobile is said to burn up the road at 80 miles per hour. It was one of the most popular exhibits at the show. Children's toys, according to manufacturers, can be educational as well as interesting. Modern toys are largely mechanical, and many require skill to operate.

Focal Points in Italo-French Crisis

Arrows indicate key Mediterranean and African territories where Italy is pressing concessions from France. In Tunisia, with almost as many Italian residents as French, Paris is willing to grant sovereignty rights to the followers of Premier Mussolini. Italy also wants equal administration rights over the Suez canal, "Helme" to her East African territory, and control over the railroad which runs from Djibouti, in French Somaliland, to Addis Ababa, in the heart of Italian East Africa. The island of Corsica, for which an unofficial Italian campaign has been started, will likely remain French territory.

Whether bird houses look like hats, or hats look like bird houses is a debatable question. The spring bird house hat was demonstrated by Dorothy Higgins in a Detroit, Mich., hat house contest.

Household Hints

By BETTY WELLS

FOLDING beds are literally as old as Egypt. . . they're mentioned in most all early stories of furniture. So we needn't think we're being so modern when we get some trick number that vanishes when you say "abracadabra." And we've called attention before to that early chair-bed of England—from all I can gather it was a cross between the wing chair and the Morris chair. Just the same we were impressed to death with a new bed-in-a-chest that turned up at the recent furniture market in Chicago. It is as trim as you please by day, hidden away in a small dignified chest; but at night, out comes a full length comfortable bed. Fine for unexpected guests in the small menage, or in a push a member of the family could use it all the time.

Bed-in-a-chest.

And Egypt never had the likes of the sofa-beds that are available today. Well tailored, with smart slender lines of period design, they open out easily into full sized comfortable beds. There are now love seats that open into beds, as well as chairs that stretch out to make amazingly comfortable beds. The in-a-door beds are holding their own, and of course the studio couch that turns into a double bed or two single beds is a hardy perennial.

What a far cry are these from the old folding bed of our childhood. Remember those imposing wardrobe-beds, the kind that would start clogging up if you got too far down at the foot of the bed?

A White Garden.

Helen always looks so pretty at her gardening that it's hard to believe she's so good at the job. But in her flowered housecoat she has the magic touch and could make things grow on a sidewalk I do believe if she really put her hand to it. But hers is no hit or miss effect—it's an all white garden which is charming with her red brick house.

Helen looks so pretty at her gardening.

She's gotten to be quite an authority on white flowers for all the seasons. There's method in her madness. Not only do white flowers look dramatic outside the house but they're just right for cutting and arranging inside. The living room has pale green walls and light green carpet, furniture covering in the peach-copper-gold-brown family of colors and curtains in gold-colored taffeta that lights up dramatically when the sun streaks through them. So you can see how lovely accents of white would be here.

The dining room has darker green walls, peach carpet and white nixon curtains made to hang in wide sweeping lines. The wall opposite the windows has a pair of gold brackets that hold Helen's white flowers to complete the design of the room.

Helen's own bedroom is in yellow with aqua carpet, honey maple furniture, white swivel curtains and spread of white chenille. White flowers seem to pull this room together and give it just the right style and finish.

Grouped Furniture Makes An Effective Arrangement

Furniture in the living room should be arranged in groups and not just strewn around the walls. In even a small living room a better arrangement may be worked out if the furniture is placed in related groups. In a family where there are children of varying ages and consequently different interests, there can be an arrangement of the living room furniture which will accommodate the needs of all if it is properly grouped. Remember that many a living room is spoiled by having the furniture lined up all around the walls, with too much space in the center.

Furnish Living Room to Meet Needs of the Family

The living room is primarily a room for the entire family and should be furnished as such. Every member of the family is entitled to his or her own chair. If there are six members in your household your living room is incomplete without six comfortable chairs, with six small tables beside them and enough lamps to give adequate reading light. Living room furniture should be the sort that is easily moved. Chairs should have coasters on them to permit of easy sliding around.

Serve Baked Fish For a Quick Meal

Use Fillets With Plenty Of Butter in Stuffing

By EDITH M. BARBER

BAKED stuffed fish for a quick meal? Yes, indeed, it is possible, if you use fish fillets which may be rolled and fastened with toothpicks and the centers stuffed before baking. Stuffing seems to belong with fish as well as with poultry. While we usually associate it with a large fish, you will like it with fillets and with small pickerel or perch, which may be suitable for a small family.

For fish stuffing, I like to use plenty of butter, parsley and lemon juice besides the salt and pepper. I generally omit onion, although if you are a devotee of this particular flavor, you may use it discreetly. Chopped pickle is another good addition.

One of the easiest and best ways to prepare fish is by what is known as the Spencer method. For this the fish fillets are dipped in milk, then in fine crumbs or rolled cornflakes and sprinkled with oil or melted butter before baking in a hot oven for 10 minutes.

Of course, fish may be broiled very quickly and nothing is better if it is dipped in well-seasoned salad oil before it is put under the broiling flame. The oil will keep it moist and tender. While the flavor of pan-fried fish is delicious, fillets do not keep in shape so well as when they are baked or broiled, or fried in deep fat.

A tartare sauce is often served with broiled or fried fish, while a thinner sauce is generally chosen for baked fish. The latter is flavored often pleasantly with lemon juice or made with a tomato base.

Baked Stuffed Fillets.

- 2 1/2 cups soft bread crumbs
- 1 teaspoon salt
- Pepper
- 1/4 cup melted butter
- 2 tablespoons lemon juice
- 1 tablespoon chopped parsley
- 2 pounds fish fillets

Mix bread crumbs with salt, pepper, butter, lemon juice and parsley. Shape fillets into rings, secure with toothpicks and arrange on a greased baking pan. Fill centers with stuffing, piling it high in centers. Brush fish with salad oil and bake in a hot oven 15 to 20 minutes until fish flakes when tested with a fork.

Baked Fish Spencer.

Dip fish fillets in salted milk, using one tablespoon of salt for each cup of milk. Dip into fine dried bread crumbs or corn flake crumbs.

Arrange on well-oiled baking sheet and sprinkle liberally with oil. Bake in a very hot oven (500 degrees Fahrenheit) for about ten minutes.

Codfish Balls.

- 4 to 5 medium sized potatoes
- 1 cup pickled salt cod
- 1 tablespoon melted butter
- Pepper
- 1 egg

Pare and slice potatoes. Put cod in a strainer and rinse with boiling water. Cook cod and potatoes in boiling water until potatoes are tender. Drain, mash potatoes and shred codfish. Mix together, add butter, egg and pepper and beat until light. Drop by tablespoonfuls into very hot fat (385 degrees Fahrenheit) and cook until light brown. Cook a few at a time. Drain on soft paper.

Oyster Pie.

- 6 tablespoons butter
- 1 cup sliced mushrooms
- 7 tablespoons flour
- 1 1/2 teaspoons salt

Pastry (1 1/2 cups flour, 1/2 cup shortening, 1/2 teaspoon salt, water to moisten)

- 1/2 teaspoon nutmeg
- 1/4 teaspoon celery salt
- 3 1/2 cups milk
- 1 pint oysters
- Pepper

Melt the butter, add mushrooms and cook two minutes. Stir in flour and seasonings and when well blended add milk. Stir over low fire until smooth and thick. Add drained oysters and pour into individual baking dishes or into a large casserole.

Cover with pastry, making two or three slits in pastry and bake in a hot oven (450 degrees Fahrenheit) about 10 minutes until brown.

Baked Salt Mackerel.

Soak mackerel over night. Drain, dredge well with flour and pepper. Arrange on a greased pan and half cover with rich milk. Bake in a moderately hot oven (400 degrees Fahrenheit) about 10 minutes, until fish is tender. Add one-fourth cup of cream and cook five minutes more.

Kipped Herring With Cream.

- 2 onions, sliced
- 3 tablespoons butter
- 1 can kipped herring
- 1/2 cup thick cream
- Paprika

Fry onion in butter until light brown, then remove from the pan. Drain the herring and fry lightly on both sides in the same pan. Add cream, heat well. Serve garnished with onion and a dash of paprika.

Chicken Pasta Sandwiches

- 1 jar chicken paste
- 1 teaspoon onion juice
- 2 tablespoons minced parsley
- Cream

White and whole wheat bread. Mix chicken paste with seasonings and a little cream. Spread on buttered slices of whole wheat bread, cover with white bread and cut into fancy shapes.

It's Most Exciting Blouse Season Known in Years

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

WHEN it comes to drawing the crowds it's the blouse sections that are doing it these days—most exciting blouse season known for years.

The main reason for this stampede in the blouse direction is that suits rank ace-high in importance this spring and as every woman and her sisters and her cousins and her aunts well know, the proper upkeep of a suit calls for one chic blouse after another. However, the fact that suits are "tops" this season is not the only reason for the mad rush blouseward that is going on. It's the blouses themselves that are the magnet that draws, from the standpoint of "style" color and material they are simply not to be resisted.

The interest displayed in sterling pure silk weaves for the blouse this season is especially significant. Simply tailored blouses like the one shown below to the right in the illustration are indispensable with your tweeds. This model, a Lelong creation, is tailored of a heavy exotic silk crepe in rich deep red. It has a tucked shirt front fastened with leather things that clasp into gilt "croquet wickets."

Collarless jacket suits frequently have the jacket lined in the same silk print (jacket is often reversible) as fashions the blouse. Dotted silks are the rage for this sort of styling. If it is something out of the ordinary you are wanting to fit into the scheme of things take note of the stunning "bib blouse" pictured to the left below. It classifies under ingenue or schoolgirl type, which does not mean that it is restricted to teen-age wear, for it's the fashion to wear young looking clothes this spring that belle age counted in years. The clever big effect is achieved via an insert of bold big dots contrasting the "yindot-print."

The revival of the ornate dressy blouse reflects the influence of the gay nineties. See the model in the upper left corner of the picture. In creating this lady-type blouse for dinner or cocktail hours Lanvin alternates bands of black silk georgette and val lace finishing it off with highband neck and turnover collar.

The revival of the white blouse with the dark suit is one of fashion's top-most highlights. The Gibson girl blouse pictured above to the right is in white silk organdy with lace-trimmed "jabot" coming high at the neck. The bishop sleeve with its lace-trimmed frill at the wrists gives this blouse the new look that is copied from the old.

For the be-frilled and lace edged, tucked and finely hand-worked white blouse now so fashionable, this silks such as silk organdy or silk triple sheers that will wash well and keep their whiteness are highly recommended.

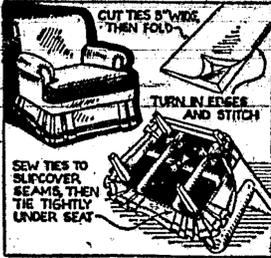

Perhaps the biggest sensation in the present vogue is the white peasant blouse with full-to-the-wrist long sleeves that are worn into a tight band such as are garter with the very new gypsy skirts fashioned of vivid striped or plaid silk. For this blouse, designers use washable white silk chiffon or white silk organdy with gratifying results.

In the color madness that has gripped the world of fashion blouses are playing a dramatic role. Sarah silk is a great favorite, printed or plain, stressing chateaux, fuchsia, yellow gold, rust, violet, mustard and citrus colors.

HOW TO SEW

by Ruth Wyeth Spears

"DEAR MRS. SPEARS: My living room is looking very smart and gay; the clear sketches on how to fit and make slipcovers in your Book 1, SEWING, for the Home Decorator, have been a great help.

"I think you would especially like one slipcover I have made. While shopping in a drapery department I found some braid 1 1/2 inches wide in bright blue, green and red. I was so attracted by it that I had to find a way to use it. The result is a chair covered in plain blue glazed chintz with green seam bindings and the blue, green and red braid around the cushion and the bottom ruffle. It is very stunning and everyone admires it. My problem now is keeping my slipcovers firmly anchored in place. How should this be done?"

Here is a sketch of the chair that was inspired by a shopping tour. I have also sketched a method that is often used by professionals for anchoring slipcovers.

Give your house a fresh start with new curtains; slipcovers, lampshades and other smart new touches which you will find in Book 1, SEWING for the Home Decorator. Book 2, Gifts, Novelties and Embroidery, illustrates ninety embroidery stitches and many ways to use them. They are 25 cents each; with each order for both books, Rag Rug Leaflet is included FREE. Address Mrs. Spears, 210 S. Desplaines St., Chicago, Ill.

Smiles

Sooner the better. "What was the concert like that Hammerlonga, the pianist, gave?" "It was over by nine o'clock." "And did you like it?" "Oh, very much. My only fear was that it would go on until ten."

Trying Him Out "Mary, this morning I saw the milkman kiss you. Tomorrow I will take the milk myself." "Very good, ma'am. It will be interesting to see if he's true to me."

We aren't all good judges—but we lay down the law just the same.

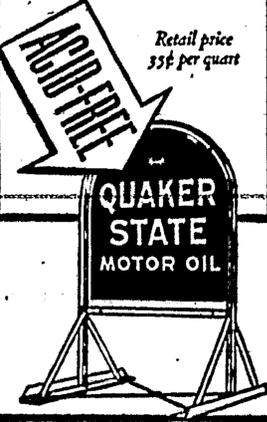

And It Worked? "How did you like the sample of my homemade marmalade I sent you?"

"Was that marmalade? Oh, my dear, I'm so sorry. My little boy is using it for sticking stamps in his album."

History REPEATS itself!

Twenty-five years of scientific research made it possible for Quaker State in 1914, to produce the only motor oil which successfully lubricated the hottest running motor of its time... the Franklin Air-cooled engine. Twenty-five more years of research enables Acid-Free Quaker State Motor Oil to meet the most difficult problems of lubricating the 1939 models. Insure the performance of your new car! TIPS to Gardeners

Fertilizer Usage

GARDENS can't go on producing excellent flowers and vegetables year after year without an application of fertilizer now and then. Because stable manure is difficult to obtain, a complete commercial fertilizer recommended by your dealer will prove most satisfactory. Before applying fertilizer, however, give consideration to a few simple, practical hints.

First, be cautious! Never apply fertilizer recklessly or over-abundantly. Don't be like the man who saw a neighbor get good results from a sparing use of fertilizer. He proceeded to apply 10 times as much, but expecting 10 times as good results—but his garden proved worthless.

Broadcast the complete fertilizer over the soil 10 days before planting, using about three pounds per square rod. Three or four weeks after planting, if the garden seems a bit backward, apply a side dressing. Sprinkle fertilizer lightly alongside the rows, about six inches from the plants; then cultivate. Apply only from one to two pounds per square rod of garden.

From Happiness—

"As you hold loving thoughts toward every person and animal and even toward plants, stars, oceans, rivers and hills, and as you are helpful and of service to the world, so you will find yourself growing more happy each day, and with the happiness comes health and everything you want." —Luther Burbank.

Patterns SEWING CIRCLE

A SMART button-front dress that you'll want in street materials like wool crepe, flax crepe and silk prints, as well as in house-keeping cottons, is No. 1723. Simplicity itself, it has lines that are very flattering to the figure. The pattern skirt makes your waist and hips look slim; the tucked and gathered bodice gives a nice rounded bust line. It's just absurdly simple to make—a pattern you'll use time and again.

A Stock of Aprons. With a busy summer coming on, you'll need a fresh supply of pretty and protective aprons, and here's a new pattern (1622) that gives you three different ways to make them. Two pinafore styles, and a dainty tie-around, they are all full and flaring, so that they look smart as your frocks. Gingham, percale, broadcloth and linen are nice materials for aprons like these.

The Patterns. No. 1723 is designed for sizes 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46 and 48. Size 36 requires 4 1/2 yards of 35-inch material and 1/2 yard for contrasting collar, if desired.

No. 1622 is designed for sizes 32, 34, 36, 38, 40, 42 and 44. Size 34 takes, for apron No. 1, 2 1/2 yards of 35-inch material and 6 yards of braid. For No. 2, 2 1/2 yards, and 1/2 yard contrasting; for No. 3, 2 1/2 yards, and 1 yard plaiting or ruffling.

GAS SO BAD CROWDS HEART

"My nerves were so shaky and my stomach so bad I was miserable. Spasms came on me, and I could not eat. I tried Adelin. Oh, what relief! The first dose worked like magic. Adelin cleared the gas and broke the acid and my stomach felt so good." —Mrs. S. A. MIA. If gas in your stomach and bowels bothers you, you will pay for breath, take a 15-cent bottle of Adelin and notice how the stomach GAS is relieved almost at once. Adelin often moves the bowels in less than two hours. Adelin is 100% carbohydrate and cathartic, non-stimulant to the stomach and equal GAS, cathartics to clear the bowels and relieve intestinal nerve pressure. Recommended by many doctors for 16 years. Get genuine Adelin today. Sold at all drug stores.

Cloque Organdy

A multi-color floral print Swiss cloque organdy with a permanent crinkle that won't come out in the wash makes this lovely and practical dress for a little girl. The round ruffled collar is of white organdy inset and edged with val lace to match the lace edge finish of the puffed sleeves. The velvet ribbon sash is of soft blue to harmonize with the deeper blue background of the skirt. There will be quantities of cloque printed organdy need during the coming months.

Cottons Have New Roles This Spring

Cottons have new roles in the creation of spring fashions. Pique and linen, for example, are used for white togues and sailors to wear with navy blue suits. These fabrics also are important for collar and cuff sets that are attached to dark evening dresses. Gloves also are being made of these washable materials.

Gingham accents are equally as popular and unusual in their application to newest costumes. Plaid gingham pipings appear as trimming on navy blue reefer suits and also make matching blouses.

New Hairdress Is Becoming Popular

A new hairdress covers the entire head in flat curls that remind of a boyish bob. It is very youthful and is referred to as the "little girl" hairdress. The high-do for hair is seen less in the daytime but still persists for formal occasion. At the immediate moment hair worn page-boy fashion is popular. A pleasing compromise is the arrangement that brings curls or puffs to the front in somewhat of a pompadour effect, with the almost shoulder-length end-curl bob at the back.

A Town Bag for You

One of the new handbags in rough straw braid is a navy town bag in plain rectangular shape with thick base, having a heavy gold chain around it near the top to simulate drawstrings.

The well-known Prince Albert tobacco, grand for "makin's" cigarettes—easy to roll—long-burning—with the real taste of quality

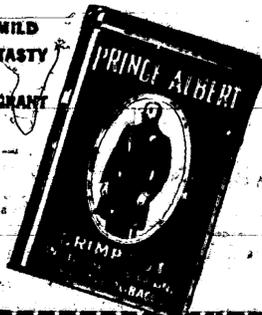

I SAY, THERE'S NO OTHER TOBACCO LIKE PRINCE ALBERT FOR GETTING ALL THE SMOKING JOY THERE IS IN A 'MAKIN'S' CIGARETTE

JOHN DURKIN, busy hotel man, stopped outside with a friend who snapped this photo of him with his pocket tin of Prince Albert. "I've been enjoying P.A. for 5 years now," Durkin says, "and for easy rollin', taste, and mildness nothing beats P.A." Well, that's what you expect from a finer grade of tobacco, "crimp cut" for rollin' 'em, and treated to remove tongue-bite. Try a pocket tin as a starter—you'll never know how good P.A. is in a "makin's" cigarette unless you try it. No risk—just take hold of the iron-clad money-back offer. See reminder at right.

FRIDAY, APRIL 14, 1939.

Mrs. Era B. Smith, Editor and Publisher

We clip the following editorial from the Albuquerque Journal of April 7th. It is something to cause serious thought on the part of every mother who has reared a son since those dark days—22 years ago. My own son, my neighbors' sons, all have grown to young manhood since the World War.

others in fighting injustice which does not yet concern us intimately, we consider a course which may determine destiny for our sons:

That destiny may be a marble cross on a foreign hillside.

This is not a time when we ought to be giving ourselves to the enjoyment of expressing hatred for men or institutions. We can too easily convince ourselves that ours is the mission of righting a world's wrongs.

We can do that, because we have done it before.

But it is our sons who must fight for us, and die for us.

Let us be certain that no other course, in honor, is open to us before we commit them to so dolorous a destiny.

Twenty-Two Years After

Since that April 6, 1917 when the United States declared war on Germany a generation has been born and has grown to manhood.

And because ours is a big nation we do not lack young men who are capable of bearing arms in a time of crisis.

That fact should hearten us. We have the men who will defend our own.

In retrospection of the day which committed us to the sending of millions of young men to give battle on foreign soil we ought to consider seriously whether we want, again, to make a similar commitment.

These young men do not remember that day, so long ago. Has it been so long . . . 22 years? So much has happened since. The years have hurried past us. New crises, new problems, have crowded memory of that day into the background. But there are those of us who do remember still.

Because our young men do not remember, and because they have the heritage of their fathers, high courage and high ideals, they will go unafraid to meet whatever destiny we determine for them.

What destiny is it that we do want for them?

Is it a happy destiny in which they will find mates and build homes and rear children, or is it a destiny which will leave many of them broken under a strange sky in a pitiful attempt to mend others' quarrels?

They are our sons. We ought not to forget that they are our sons.

We may feel our gorge rise when we contemplate the apparent success of monstrous injustices in the world.

But when we contemplate a course of action, commitments if you will, which will bind us to aid

Flash! Dog Flags Train to Save Pal

Maybe we're wrong, but while we're waiting for a man to make news by biting a dog, we're under the impression that it's news when a dog flags a train.

Anyway, here's the yarn, vouchered for by E. L. King, superintendent of Southern Pacific's Portland division, who had it straight from Engineer Roy Hall and Fireman J. K. Mills.

"Recently," said King, "while Hall and Mills were piloting a freight train over Southern Pacific's Springfield-Woodburn branch, they noticed a large collie dog sitting between the rails a short distance ahead.

"As the train approached, the dog ran to a thicket alongside the right-of-way, then back to the center of the track, where it remained until the engine was about 50 feet away.

"The peculiar actions of the animal prompted the engineer to reduce his speed, whereupon the fireman observed a nother dog trapped in the strands of the wire fence. Stopping their train, the engine crew released the captive, a shepherd, which was slowly choking to death.

"And believe it or not, Engineer Hall and Fireman Mills are certain that the collie and the shepherd said 'Thanks, pals' before trotting happily away."—S. P. News Bureau.

Farmers Should Report Damage to Wheat Crop

Wheat growers in New Mexico who have taken out "all-risk" crop insurance on their 1939 crop have been notified that any damage to insured wheat acreage should be reported promptly to the County Committee, in order that adjustments may be made.

A farmer who believes his insured wheat crop has been damaged to the extent that he may claim an indemnity, can start the adjustment machinery working by advising the county committee on a form provided for that purpose, FCI-7, "Notice of Damage During Growing Season," according to C. V. Hemphill, member of the State Conservation Committee. "If a policy holder believes his entire crop is damaged beyond recovery," states Mr. Hemphill, "and wants to use the land for some other purpose, he should fill out form FCI-8, "Notice Before Harvest of Removal, Transfer, or Other Use of Wheat Crop." Both of these forms have been furnished to all policy holders.

According to a recent adjustment procedure issued by the Federal Crop Insurance Corporation, crop losses classified as "total crop losses" suffered by insured growers can be adjusted prior to harvest. In the case of total losses, it will be possible for the farmer to submit proof of loss statement for the entire insured amount. In case of a loss which makes it impractical further to care for the crop, proof of loss which takes into account the amount of production that might be expected from the damaged crop. After the adjustment of the loss, the grower may put the land to other use.

Right or Wrong?

Here is a little test for you

1. The current used to transmit the voice by telephone is the most delicate current in common use.
RIGHT WRONG

2. Wire in use in the Bell System would go around the world more than 3000 times.
RIGHT WRONG

The answers are shown below and here is the answer for quick, satisfactory communication. When you want to reach someone in another town, for business or social purposes, telephone. It not only takes your voice to the person you want to reach but brings back an immediate spoken reply.

The operator will be glad to tell you any out-of-town rates.

Answers . . .
Don't look until you've guessed—

1. RIGHT. It is so delicate that Dr. Bell once talked through the bodies of six college professors hooked up as part of the circuit.

2. RIGHT. It would go around the world more than 3200 times.

WHO'S NEWS THIS WEEK

By LEMUEL F. PARTON

NEW YORK.—Just a year ago, Will H. Hays noted a possibly regrettable tendency of the movies toward "escapism." This led to suggestions that he was succumbing to the verbal enchantments of the Hollywood intelligentsia.

In his annual report as president of the Motion Picture Producers & Distributors of America, Mr. Hays cites with satisfaction the record box-office success of "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs."

Practicing law in Sullivan, Ind., the homespun, sagacious Mr. Hays was no rising young eudemonist. That came later.

For seventeen years now, he has headed the moving picture industry. "Czar is Out, Prefers 'Bill' As His Handle"

In his county seat town, he inherited his father's land-law business. A fragile man, with a slight limp and outstanding ears, he has the mannerisms of the country lawyer.

Sullivan, Indiana, is still home base for Mr. Hays and he is the town's favorite son, in spite of his philological flare-up.

IT WOULD be fine if we had a cash register which would ring up a true prophecy when it was turned in. About a year and a half ago, George Messersmith called Hitler's moves early general at Berlin, called Adolf Hitler's next moves as clearly and accurately as a speller for an old-fashioned barn dance.

The Nazis can't say it was a prophetic opinion. When Hitler was emerging, Mr. Messersmith thought "evolution would follow revolution," and everything would work out nicely.

He returned to his present post in July, 1936. He was for 14 years superintendent of the Delaware schools before entering the copular service.

Men's Fashion 'Authorities' Find Their Clients Stubborn; Colorful Clothes Still Taboo

Stylists Fight Century of 'Drabness' to Deck Mere Male in Modern Raiment This Spring; Mild Green Hues Win Favor

First off, there's nothing wrong with that blue serge Sunday-go-to-meetin' suit. But it's spring, and as usual the irrepressible men's fashion arbiters must have their say.

For 10 years this valiant crew has been trying to make the American male conscious of style and color, but the American male is stubborn. It's expensive enough, he says, to keep the wife fashionably dressed without being a clothes horse yourself.

George Bryan Brummell, better known as Beau, died in 1840. Since then the prevailing colors of men's clothes, as if in mourning, have been somber black, dark blue, dull gray and subdued browns.

This trend, however, is in the incubation stage. So timid is man in his dress life and the use of color that he limits his indulgence to brightly hued pajamas, a red bathing suit and an occasional green necktie.

There's ample precedent for men's fashions, though let's hope the Twentieth century male doesn't become so vain as that of the Eighteenth century whose wardrobe is described by the historian, H. Dennis Bradley.

Beau Brummell Brought Order. Later in the century Beau Brummell introduced a semblance of taste to this profusion of color. Employing fewer hues and blending them expertly, he strove for quiet good taste and introduced what is considered today to be the essence of style—the ability to wear clothes with an unconscious flair.

American men's clothing hasn't always been dull. While the early Puritan fathers were straight-laced they were sufficiently style conscious to clothe themselves tastefully.

Beginning in the 1850s, and influenced by the industrial revolution in England and America, men's clothes—and women's too, of course—reflected the drabness of the times. Machinery tended to standardize all domains of life, not omitting fashion.

Now that Victorianism has passed, fashion experts think man will become "emancipated," as did women earlier in the century. Take it or leave it, here's a thumbnail sketch of modern men's fashions. Obviously they were not designed to replace the time-tested overall!

Mixed suits and trousers are fashionable, with liberal use of color such as dark green coat with willow green slacks. Right now big yards tweed is the rage on the Pacific coast, which is becoming the creative center in both men's and women's sports wear.

process which not only sheds rain but defies the laundryman or dry-cleaner.

Hats of Tyrolean shapes, with sharp curl brim and conical crown, bedecked with trimmings like pins, badge brushes, braided and corded bands, are increasingly popular.

Shirts for spring and summer will have lighter grounds with simple stripes more widely spaced. Collar models are lower in front with a moderate spread to the points.

Lighter fabrics are the rule and green in several shades, particularly in the stripes, is once more prominent.

Ties Go Fashionable.

Ties, as might be expected, are made of the suiting fabrics—and green pops up again. Grenadine types of open-weaved net fabric are popular.

The sports trend is particularly strong in history, and naturally the colors are brighter and the materials lighter. Bright plaids and checks are much in evidence.

Shoes? Influenced by sports, they'll be stubbler looking this summer since the tip and vamp have been shortened. Most popular, and most comfortable, will be the semi-sports shoe and the town and country type characterized by its crepe rubber sole.

Summerlin, U. S. Protocol Chief, Prepares for Busiest Summer

This summer the White House sees the greatest invasion of foreign monarchs in American history. In April, May and June the representatives of five nations will descend on Washington and their reception is the personal problem of George Summerlin, chief of the state department's division of protocol.

The visitors: King George and Queen Elizabeth of England, June 8 and 9, arriving on a cruiser with an entourage of 40 persons and about 200 trunks.

Gen. Anastasio Somoza, president of Nicaragua, and Senora de Somoza, May 5. Crown Prince Olaf and Crown Princess Martha of Norway, to visit the Roosevelts at Hyde Park on April 27, also stopping at Washington.

Representatives of Summerlin's department, or the chief officer himself, will escort each foreign dignitary's party from the time it enters the United States until it leaves. Already most details of the English "invasion" have been worked out, even to the time cameramen and newsmen are assigned for photographing the royal couple on its arrival at the Washington Union station.

ADVENTUROUS AMERICANS

By Elmo Scott Watson

'Father' of the Santa Fe Trail

IN 1821 Capt. William Becknell set out from Franklin, Mo., with four companions to trade with the Comanche Indians. Near the mountains they met a party of Mexicans who told them of Mexico's successful revolt against Spain and invited them to come to Santa Fe to trade.

Accompanied by a party of 30 men, Becknell set out for Santa Fe the next spring. When this caravan reached the Caches on the Upper Arkansas, he made a momentous decision. Instead of continuing up the Arkansas into what is now Colorado, then going south by way of Taos, he decided to attempt a short cut. It would take him through an unexplored country but it would avoid the long and circuitous mountain route of his first trip.

Counting on finding springs or streams along the route, the party took only a two days' supply of water. At the end of that time they were in a desert country, suffering the tortures of thirst. In their extremity they first killed their dogs to drink their blood, then cut off their mules' ears for the same purpose.

Near the Cimarron river they discovered an old buffalo bull. They killed him and drank the water from his stomach. By this time Becknell had enough of the "short cut."

He led his party north until they struck the Arkansas and, following that stream, arrived at last at Taos. Despite their failure, the route which Becknell had tried later became a favorite one for many trading parties and he is remembered as the "father" of the Santa Fe trail.

The First Land Agent

AFTER the Revolution, New York, disregarding the right of the Iroquois Indians to the land south of Lake Ontario, ceded 6,000,000 acres to Massachusetts who promptly disposed of these lands to Oliver Phelps and Nathaniel Gorham, for a million dollars.

In 1788 Phelps left Massachusetts with a party to explore the vast territory which he had acquired. After a 130-mile trip through what was then a wilderness, he reached the shores of Canandaigua lake where he called the Iroquois to a council.

For two days the negotiations proceeded smoothly. Then the great Seneca orator, Red Jacket, arose. He recalled the sufferings of his people during the Revolution, and stirred his auditors up to such a fury that the little group of white men began to fear for their lives.

Fortunately for them, another chief named Farmer's Brother halted the council until their passions died down and the next day a satisfactory treaty was concluded. Then Phelps began surveying his land into tracts, called ranges, and subdividing these into townships, six miles square. Thus he became the pioneer in the system of land surveying used in this country.

In 1790 he achieved another distinction. He opened a land office in Canandaigua, said to have been the first in this country for the sale of forest lands to settlers, and thus helped settle western New York.

Adventure After Death

VICTOR TREVITT was a native of New Hampshire, who at the age of 14 ran away from home and became a printer in Chillicothe, Ohio. By the time he was 30 he had been in the army and had many close calls in the Mexican war.

He emigrated to Oregon City, Ore., in 1854, became territorial printer, newspaper man and clerk in the house of representatives. Next he took to exploring up the Columbia river, after which he returned to Dallas City and opened a tavern that catered to prospectors. As the town grew, he opened two more taverns. Soon he was one of its leading citizens and was sent to the state capital to serve as senator.

When he returned to Dallas City, he found that the free spending era was over and his taverns were no longer profitable. This led him to gambling at which he made a considerable fortune. He died on January 23, 1883, but this was only the start of another adventure.

He had made arrangements to be buried on Memorial Island, the burying ground for one of the neighboring Indian tribes. Burial in the same ground with a white man was considered "bad medicine" by the Indians. The day after Trevitt was buried there, all who had relatives in the Memorial graveyard dug them up and buried them on the mainland. To-day, said the scattered bones of Indians who have no descendants to remove them, the body of Victor Trevitt, adventurer, still rests.

MOUNTAIN MAN

A Banner Fiction Serial
By HAROLD CHANNING WIRE

© H. C. Wire—WNU Service

SYNOPSIS

Jim Cotter, forest ranger, had been mysteriously killed in the pursuit of his duties. Gordon Breck, his best friend, takes over Cotter's job, hoping to avenge his murder. "Dad" Cook, forest superintendent, warns Breck that the Tillson brothers, mountain mountaineers, are apt to give him trouble. Before leaving for his mountain station, Breck buys an outfit and decides to attend the public dance run by the Tillsons in Lone-Trip. At the dance, Breck dances with Louise Temple, pretty "cowgirl" for whom he takes a liking. Unknown to Breck, she is being courted by Art Tillson, youngest of the three Tillson brothers. Angered by Breck's attentions to the girl, he picks a fight which ends indecisively when someone sets fire to the hall. Breck and his chief set out for the mountain station. Halfway, they are met by Sierra Slim, moss-back mountaineer who is also in the forest service. Around the campfire that night, Breck learns from Sierra that tracking down Jim Cotter's murderer must be done cautiously and by various methods. Cook, Breck and Sierra continue their ascent of the mountain. Stopping to rest, they sight the Tillsons, returning to their hideaway. Next day, Cook sends Breck and Sierra in one direction to repair the ledge rope line, while he takes another. Over the campfire at night Sierra tells Breck more about Louise Temple.

"You'd say Louy belongs here," Sierra explained, "because you found her here. That kid's a thoroughbred. Let me tell you. There's been four generations of Temples grazing their stuff on Temple Meadow. Then along came a girl and the old man tried to make her over into a boy. Didn't work at all. Louy went to school and got ideas about paintin' pictures and then told Tom she was clearin' out, goin' to the city and learn more. She did too, went plumb to New York—studyin'. I seen some of her pictures and they're pretty, sure enough."

"Then two years ago her old man got thrown and is crippled for the rest of his days. Did Louy keep up her fight with him? Not any! She ain't scrappin' a fellow when he's down. That's why she's back here, ridin' range the way Tom has always wanted her to ride. But the poor kid! God, I know she's given up everything!"

Breck sat with thoughts nashing back to reconstruct their meeting at the dance. Again he heard Louise say, "I hope we Rubes haven't disappointed you." Now he began to realize her meaning. He had taken too much for granted that night.

"Will she be up here?" he asked. "Yep; with the drive on the fifteenth." Sierra's gaze speculated upon him for some time. Suddenly he said, "You know, you ought to marry that girl! Yes sir, you two would mate right well."

Breck laughed. Sierra's putting it like that gave him a queer start. He shrugged to pass off the feeling. "What about Art Tillson, Slim?"

"That's a fact. She favors him some."

"Can you tell me why?"

"God knows. Unless she thinks she can help him. Art's in the wrong corral."

From what Breck had seen he considered young Tillson the same sort as his two brothers. He said so.

"You haven't studied em enough," Sierra asserted. "Ain't none of them three alike. Jud, he's a fightin' man and don't claim to be nothin' else. I can't help but admire that sort. Hep, he's the skunk. Sneakin', low-down in every way. Art's just a kid, and if he had a chance he'd make a good straight cowman. He don't know it himself. Right now he struts around and feels important as part of the Tillson gang, but there's something under all that. Look at his eyes, close, next time you come together."

For an hour Breck lay back on his saddle, while Sierra Slim, talking on, looked deep into the lives of mountain folk and saw there traits that they themselves might not understand.

They reached the end of their line at Kern River, and swinging back, turned toward headquarters station by way of Sulphur Creek.

Most of the return line was badly down, delaying them past the allotted week. It was the twelfth of June when they rode into headquarters.

"Breck," Cook said over the table that night, "you can figure on moving to Rock House day after tomorrow. That's the fourteenth, just one night ahead of the cattle drive. Sierra stays on patrol here. Tomorrow the Kern Peak lookout will be coming in. You and Slim will pack him to the top."

It was a lean-bodied man with iron gray hair that rode into headquarters the next morning astride a government mule and leading two packs.

"Hello, Donny!" Cook hailed him, then introduced him to Breck. "This is Donaldson, the man who spots fires for you to fight. You'll cuss him out plenty before the season ends!"

Donaldson swung from his mule. Breck looked into eyes as cold and keen as steel bullet points. The man had a hermit's brows expressionless face, and his voice was this from long disuse. "Howdy," was his only remark.

As progressed on the desert, Cook had explained, spending the winter there alone, and each summer came onto this even more lonely lookout post.

CHAPTER VII

There had been some thunder during the night, and as Breck threw back his tarp at dawn, a storm threatened south over the country into which he was to move. A cloud curled through the morning sky like a black fist with forearm resting on the eastern summit. It expanded quickly. Pink flashes played on the upper side. By the time he had wrangled up his animals and was ready to pack, that one cloud covered the whole range.

"Sharpen up your axes and inspect your tools first thing," Cook advised him. "There's fire up yonder, though this is pretty early for lightning to strike us."

Breck's start was later than he had hoped. Ascent was slow. At noon he ate in his saddle, pushed on until he crossed the divide, and about three o'clock halted to scan the new country.

It was not an inviting area. From this view it was apparently impassable, except afoot, where a man must go over the cliffs on ropes and trust to luck. Yet the Tillsons used it, and they were not walking men. Breck unfolded his contour map, reading the lines that denoted the meadows and canyons. At Sulphur Creek was a blank patch marked "Unsurveyed."

They reached the end of their line at Kern River.

He thrust the map impatiently into his pocket. Time was too short today for a ride very far down, but then, gauging with his eyes, he picked up a transverse ridge that left the bank of Sulphur Canyon a short distance below its head, and turning south dropped toward Rock House. It looked like an easy route. He could explore a little of the country down there, then follow the ridge back to his main trail.

Goof objected. Breck took a loop of the lead rope around his saddle horn and snaked him. Soon they were sliding from the summit on a long swale of loose rock. Upon reaching the canyon he entered abruptly into twilight.

Presently he came to a small, yellow-crust pool. A little further on a waterfall blocked the canyon bottom, forcing him to dismount and lead his train to the next level. When he mounted again, Goof suddenly threw up his head and faced the opposite bank, ears pointing. Breck let himself back to the ground.

He stood tense, watching across the hollow of his saddle. Nothing showed in the pines. Only a far-off roar broke the silence. It sounded like another waterfall, yet it grew louder, approaching from above. Abruptly a new note joined in; a wall that rose and diminished. Black clouds resting on the canyon top began to flow like a river down between the walls. The roar increased, though muffled still, as if all the winds of the heavens were penned behind great doors that were about to be swung wide.

Again Breck raised himself to his stirrup. The sharp crack that sounded instantly might have been the first charge of thunder, save for the whine past his head. He dodged. The lead rope burned through his hand as Goof reared. Custer lunged with him. They broke away together, bucking at their packs as they raced down the canyon.

Kit showed his mountain breeding. He lowered his head and stood motionless as Breck leveled his gun over the saddle and aimed at a rock where he had caught a flash of fire. But that first shot was not repeated.

Their trail was distinct for half a mile, but soon rain broke in spots and after that he rode by chance, hoping to find his mules in a row of halved with lead ropes tangled in down timber. He saw nothing until, having descended to a shelf, he found a white patch of Goof's tarpaulin. Nearby was one small hoofprint.

He followed on. Black night came before he passed a growth of yearling pine and glimpsed ahead the open space of a meadow. He dismounted, tied Kit and continued on afoot. Where trees ended and grass began, something sharp struck his arm. He leaped back, gun drawn, then realized it was the barbed wire of a fence.

That meant a pasture and perhaps a cabin. He was rain-soaked; the wind now was close to freezing. Deciding to leave his horse hidden in the trees, he moved on alone. Half an hour of feeling along the fence brought him to a corral. Beyond loomed a small log house.

It was deserted, even from where he stopped he could make out the door swinging on a loose hinge. Yet he approached with gun ready and stood near the casement before peering in. When he struck a match the room showed wet and empty.

In the flash of light he looked into all corners, then to the ceiling. Small logs placed across the beams formed a loft that dripped with water from a poor roof. The whole place was flooded, but offered shelter from the wind, and there was an iron stove at the further end.

Suddenly he paused in his search. Something in the wind? Its moaning

This one spoke abruptly. "He ain't here yet."

Reply came in a low mutter from beyond the doorway. "We can wait. Let's get in out of the rain."

Breck knew this last was Jud Tillson.

CHAPTER VIII

The horses thumped on again. Presently there sounded the creak of a corral gate being opened and closed. Then both men returned to the cabin.

"Hell of a night," one began. "He ort to be here. Ain't no—"

"Shut up your grumbling and rustle some wood!" This was Jud again.

The other tramped out. The cabin was as quiet and dark as if deserted. Breck peered through the crack between loft poles, knowing he was within a yard or two of the man down there, yet could see nothing. Clumping of boots returned. Wood crashed down. Stove lids rattled. A match flared and soon after that the room was flooded in red light, for the men left a lid off and warmed their hands over the open flame.

In a moment, when they took off their hats, hanging them to dry on pegs behind the stove, Breck had his first full look at Hep.

His head was bent a little, but his face was clearly revealed in the firelight. Dark hair fell in strings over a flat, narrow forehead. He had the same thin features as the other brothers, yet weaker than theirs, with a loose, puffed-out mouth.

Both men stood through a time of silence. Hep spoke first, sullenly. "He ortn't keep us waitin' like this!"

Jud said nothing.

"Maybe he ain't goin' to come at all," Hep persisted.

"I told him to," Jud answered.

"Yeah, but Art's gettin' damned independent these days. He needs a good handlin'."

"Whatever Art's getting is none of your business," Jud said evenly. "And if any handling is to be done, I'll do it. See?"

Hep's gaze shifted before his brother's. His loose lips opened, closed. He glowered as he rolled a cigarette.

Rain leaked down upon Breck's back, trickled along his sides and fell through the logs where he lay. Not much of the stove's heat came up to him. His outstretched arms grew numb.

He was certain that more than an hour passed. Jud and Hep smoked, stamped their feet, said nothing, until abruptly Jud threw down his cigarette.

"Cover the stove!" The lid slipped over the hole. Instantly the room was dark. Breck heard the men move outside and took advantage of that to shift his body.

Soon a low whistle came from the distance.

Jud spoke from close beyond the door. "All right, Art. We're here." He and Hep returned, followed in a moment by the brother who pushed back the stove lid as they had done, swung the rain from his hat and hung it on a peg.

"Well," Jud asked at once, "did you?"

"I stopped him—yes."

"What do you mean—'stopped him'?"

"Just what I say. I turned him from Sulphur. His packs broke loose and God knows where they led him."

"You dam' fool!" Hep cut in. "You didn't get him?"

Breck saw Art's young face, red above the stove, harden in scornful lines. "I ain't shootin' in the back," he sneered. "Like you do!"

What to Eat and Why

C. Houston Goudiss Explains How Food Can Make You Fat or Thin; Offers Tips on Gaining Weight

By C. HOUSTON GOUDISS

TO NEARLY every adult, weight is a matter of great concern. Thin people step on the scales in the hope of finding that they have gained a pound or two. Fat people sometimes weigh themselves several times a day, trusting each time that the arrow will point to a slightly lower figure. In many cases, the reason for this absorbing interest is vanity—a desire to look better. But the real objective should be to attain the weight at which one feels better, for few people realize that to weigh neither too much nor too little is one of the best possible aids to buoyant health. Moreover, the secret of weight control for normal individuals lies in the kind and amount of food consumed.

The science of nutrition teaches us that all body fat originates as surplus fuel—that is, food which has been consumed over and above the immediate requirements of the body machine. It therefore follows that in general the problem of gaining or losing weight is concerned with an increase or reduction in the total fuel value of the diet.

Shortage or Surplus of Fuel Those who find it difficult, after 30, to avoid taking on excess pounds must learn to reduce the total fuel intake. Otherwise, they may find themselves burdened with a mounting surplus of fat, which not only destroys beauty, but impairs health, and tends to decrease both mental and physical efficiency. On the other hand, those who feel that they must struggle to keep their weight up to normal—who declare that they simply cannot gain, no matter how much they eat, should acquaint themselves with the high-calorie foods and make a persistent effort each day to eat a little more than enough to meet their needs. If a gain is achieved, the result will be well worth the effort. For just as overweight is a handicap to health and efficiency, so have nutritionists observed that physical efficiency may be definitely decreased when the weight falls more than 10 per cent below the average for one's height.

It is often said that it is easier to lose weight than to gain it, and in many cases this is true. For the overweight person who consistently cuts down the fuel value of the diet, should, under normal circumstances, be able to reduce gradually, comfortably and effectively. But the individual who is underweight often has a small appetite and therefore has little desire to eat the increased quantities of food that are required in order to gain.

Influence of Body Build Nutritionists have observed that many people who find it difficult to gain have a tall, slender type of body build. It has been determined that in people of this type, the digestive tract is usually shorter than in those having a stocky build. Moreover, they tend to be more tense, more active and of a more nervous temperament. As a result, the passage of food through the digestive tract may be so rapid that it leaves the body before all the available nutrients can be utilized. At the same time, these active people tend to burn up more of their food for energy, so it is not surprising that they fail to store body fat, unless the diet is especially planned to meet their needs.

Concentrated Foods Desirable The well balanced diet, with its full quota of minerals and vitamins is basic to good health for all. But in order to produce a gain in weight, the diet of individuals belonging to the slender type should be composed of easily digested foods, which can be utilized by the body with a minimum of effort; and it should include generous amounts of concentrated and highly nourishing foods.

Included in this classification are eggs, cheese, cream, butter or margarine, bacon, bread, cereals, cream soups, custards, ice cream, rice and tapioca puddings. The addition of two or three glasses of milk to the regular meals will be found useful in increasing the fuel value of the diet. Milk also belongs in the reducing diet, but there it is used to replace other high-calorie foods. Fruit juices will be found useful in stimulating the appetite of those who desire to gain; and the fuel value of these beverages may be increased by the addition of milk or cream.

An Extra Meal Very often it is possible to get extra nourishment into the diet by way of a light lunch in the morning, mid-afternoon or both—provided it does not interfere with the appetite for the regular meals. This may take the form of fruit juice and crackers; malted milk; cocoa; egg nog or plain milk. A between-meal snack is regarded as especially desirable for thin people whose work is fatiguing. It will help them to sustain energy and prevent them from coming to their regular meals too tired to enjoy or profit by food.

C. HOUSTON GOUDISS

Importance of Rest

Since thin people have a tendency to tire quickly, they are advised to get plenty of rest. There should be long hours of sleep at night, and nutritionists have also observed that the food is apt to be better utilized if a short rest is taken before meals.

Questions Answered

Miss G. L. D.—It has been estimated that one quart of fluid skim milk and one-and-one-half ounces of butter may be considered as approximately the equivalent in food value to a quart of fluid whole milk.

Mrs. G. M. P.—Liver contains four vitamins, A, B, C and G, though the vitamin C is mostly destroyed in cooking. It is also notable as a source of the blood-building mineral iron, and of copper, which is necessary for the proper utilization of iron. Muscle meats are considered a significant source of vitamin G, and contain some vitamin B. Pork has a considerably higher content of the B vitamin than lamb, mutton or beef.

SAFETY TALKS

At the Crossroads

THE "dirty work at the crossroads" of fable and story has a counterpart in the pattern of modern automobile accidents.

The National Safety council reports that in 1937 about 53 per cent of all injury accidents in cities occurred at intersections.

In rural areas, however, only about 24 per cent of the injury accidents occur at intersections.

The council said 52 per cent of the intersection accidents that involved two motor vehicles were right-angle collisions.

Life's Composition

Life is made up, not of great sacrifices or duties, but of little things, in which smiles and kindnesses, and small obligations, given habitually, are what win and preserve the heart and secure comfort.—Sir H. Davy.

Why Let Yourself Get Constipated?

Why endure those dull headachy days due to constipation, plus the inevitable trips to the medicine chest if you can avoid both by getting at the cause of the trouble?

If your constipation, like that of millions, is due to lack of "bulk" in the diet, the "better way" is to eat Kellogg's All-Bran.

This crunchy toasted breakfast cereal is the cause of prevention that's worth a pound of emergency relief. It helps you not only to get regular but to keep regular, day after day and month after month, by the pleasant means you ever know.

Eat Kellogg's All-Bran every day, drink plenty of water, and see if you don't forget all about constipation. Made by Kellogg's in Battle Creek, Mich. by every grocer.

Bell Presented to Illinois Church by King of France Towed Up River by Hand

Closely associated with the early history of Illinois is an old church bell, cast in the year 1741. It was presented to the congregation of the Catholic church at Kaskaskia by the king of France. It required two years' time for the bell to make the journey from France to Illinois. It was shipped to New Orleans, and from there it was towed up the Mississippi river by manpower, the men walking along the river bank and pulling by ropes the raft containing the bell.

The historic bell, whose mellow tones were the first of the kind to be heard in the Upper Mississippi valley, weighs 650 pounds and is 22 inches high. One side is ornamented with the royal coat of arms of France in relief. The other side bears a cross and pedestal, the top and arms of the cross terminating in grouped fleur de lis. The bell also carries the following inscription in French: "To the people of Illinois country for their adoration."

Since its arrival at Kaskaskia nearly two centuries ago, writes an Avon, Ill., correspondent in the St. Louis Globe-Democrat, the bell has served under the flags of France, England and the United States.

Doubtless one of the most dramatic events associated with it occurred on the night of July 4, 1778, when Kaskaskia was captured from the British by Col. George Rogers Clark.

Because of his small force, Clark was compelled to terrorize the citizens of Kaskaskia and they were made to believe that a horrible fate awaited them. On the following morning a mournful farewell meeting was held in the church, after which several prominent members of the congregation called on Clark and informed him they were ready to meet their doom. The officer then undeceived them by disclosing his true intentions. He also assured them they had nothing to fear if they would support the American cause. In his memoirs Clark states that this announcement turned sorrow into great joy and an elaborate celebration was held. On this occasion the bell pealed forth "long and loud."

of millions of Americans as they turn on a light, shave, drive to work, telephone, write a letter, listen to the radio, occasionally fly about the country, and see motion pictures.

These common but seldom noticed words relate to some part, if not all, of most appliances and gadgets that make possible the modern way of life. They are silent police that warn of the right of the originator to prevent exploitation by others.

Invention is a field of pioneering that remains as a frontier now that our geographical frontiers are extinct. The individual leads on this frontier as on those of old, for more ideas still come from the garrets and workshops of individuals than from the industrial laboratories either large or small.
And who of us can say what new and unthought of inventions are cooking in the future to bring us more and better living, making new industries and new jobs?

Who knows most about Building cars?

Ford has built more than one-third of all the automobiles ever built in the world

THERE are more Ford cars in use today than any other make. And there are more Ford V-8s than any other 8-cylinder car.

The 1939 Ford V-8 represents the broadest experience in building cars any manufacturer ever had.
You will find values in it far beyond what any other make can put into a car at the low Ford price.

Ford performance, traditional for a generation, has reached new heights in the 1939 V-8.

And now Ford style leadership is equally outstanding. "The smartest cars on the road" is the way owners describe their new Fords. Smartest in action. Smartest in appearance. Leaders, as they deserve to be.
