Hospital Trip Ends in Death

A visit to her husband, ill in William Beaumont General Hospital, El Paso, Texas, ended in death for Mrs. Magdalena Lueraz 41, formerly of Carrizo.

She was drowned when the car in which she was riding, driven by Miss Elida Apodaca, 25, of Socorro, Texas, overturned in a canal near San Elizario Monday. Miss Apodaca failed to make a turn onto the canal bridge. Water was three feet deep in the canal and the car landed bottom up.

Miss Apodaca is in City-County Hospital, suffering from shock and exposure.

Officers who investigated the accident believe Mrs. Lueraz was knocked unconscious when the car overturned.

Her body was taken to Martin Mortuary, following a coroner's verdict by Peace Justice Palm of Clint of accidental death by drowning.—Herald Post.

She was buried at San Elizario Wednesday. She leaves to mourn her death her mother, three sisters, three brothers and her husband, Mr. Lupe Lueraz, son of Mr. Andres Lueraz of Carrizo.

Their many friends here extend sympathy to the bereaved family.

"Junior Homemakers"

The Home Economic Club inflated the following members Nov. 17, 1939: Bertha Chavez, Lillian Crumly, Carmel DeLaRosa, Jane Gallacher, Frances Hoffmann, Magdalena Madrid, Margy Melton, Adela Meza, Pansy Peacock, Kathleen Smith, Mabel St. John, Mary Vidaurri.

Nov. 10th, Mrs. Hall gave an interesting talk on Mexico. She showed the girls many fantastic articles which she had purchased on her trip last summer.

For Nov. 23rd, the girls had a Thanksgiving program, and served candy which the refreshment committee had made.

The girls are planning a theatre party for the month of November.

Mr. Roy Aubrey and family have moved here from Albuquerque to live. Mr. Aubrey is employed by Mr. Will Norman at his pool hall.

Messrs. L. J. Adams and Henry Hoffman spent last Tuesday here with their families.

Notice I. O. O. F.

The members of Carrizo Lodge No. 30 I. O. O. F. and their Degree Staff are invited to Alamogordo next Monday night Nov. 27, 1939 to confer the Second Degree.

The honor guest will be Grand Master C. H. Glover of Roswell.

All members should meet at I. O. O. F. Hall by 6 p. m. Monday evening and attend.

James M. Carpenter, N. G. Wm. J. Langston, Sec.

The Modern Chevrolet

The modern automobile's almost complete independence of weather conditions may account for the skeptical looks on the faces of the younger generation when some old-timer, recounting life as it was lived 40 years ago, tells how the forerunners of today's motor cars were laid away in the barn at the first approach of winter, there to remain disused and abandoned until the return of Spring.

Plenty of people still in middle life can remember the technique clearly. All four wheels were jacked up to take the car's weight off the tires. Frequently the wheels themselves were removed, and the axles, and any other exposed metal, smeared with grease to prevent rusting. Lamps were drained of oil and cleaned, radiator cocks were opened, and, as a final precaution, a tarpaulin or an old sheet was thrown over the whole car to keep out the dust.

Up to rather recent years prospective buyers of automobiles have been inclined to defer such buying until Spring the idea being to spare their new cars the wear imposed by winter driving.

Those who plan to drive their present cars through cold weather face no such problems as existed in the early days, however.

First and foremost, of course, is the matter of anti-freeze solution. Radiator and cooling system should be flushed before this is added, to be sure that they are entirely free of rust, corrosion, and sludge. Crankcase lubricants should be changed to the grade recommended by the manufacturer and the same is true of the grease in the transmission and the rear end. Then the whole car should be greased with a lubricant of the right grade for winter.

Cars not equipped with heavy-duty generator and automatic voltage control should have their charging rates stepped up to offset the heaviest drain on the battery which cold weather at-

Can Exhibit and Contest Held in Farm Security Office

A canning contest and exhibit held Monday afternoon for all FSA women of Lincoln County according to Mrs. Grace L. Dyer, Home Supervisor. There were over 300 entries in the different classes.

Mrs. Dyer reports to date 28,000 quarts being canned. Some of these farm women have canned for the first time, and each family is being encouraged to plant larger gardens and can more for the next year.

The 25 best jars selected from Lincoln County will be entered in the district and later in the State Contest at Las Cruces on November 27 and 28.

Miss Opal Forse, Home Economics teacher of Carrizo High School, and Mrs. Melvin Waters, graduate from Ames Iowa, judged the local contest.

The following women placed first in the different classes:

- 1. Fruits: Peaches: Mrs. Manuela Fritz; Plums: Mrs. Ruben Gonzales; Cherries: Mrs. Sidney Tiffin; Rhubarb: Mrs. Mary Coe.

- 2. Vegetables: Green Beans: Mrs. John Inman; Peas: Mrs. Newton C. Souder; Corn: Mrs. John Inman; Beets: Mrs. Tom Ruiz; Soup Mixture: Mrs. Curtis Page; Chili: Mrs. Roy Dean; Cabbage: Mrs. Newton C. Souder; Squash: Mrs. Paul Lara.

- 3. Tomatoes: Mrs. Victor Lueraz.

- 4. Meats: Chicken: Mrs. Jerry P. Guthrie; Beef: Mrs. George Hagee; Mutton: Mrs. George Romero.

- 5. Pickles: Sour Pickles: Mrs. Geo. McCoy; Bread and Butter: Mrs. Earl E. Maupin; Mustard: Mrs. Jerry P. Guthrie.

- 6. Relishes: Chow Chow: Mrs. Roy Dean; Cabbage: Mrs. Ruben Gonzales; Catsup: Mrs. Newton C. Souder.

- 7. Jelly: Apple Jelly: Mrs. George Hagee.

- 8. Butter and Preserves: Pear Preserves: Mrs. Pearl Pruitt; Plum Butter: Mrs. Theodore Burr.

Mrs. Dyer and Mr. Waters, local Supervisors; feel that all families who entered this contest should be highly commended on the quality of the foods submitted and hope all will try even harder next year to can more and better products.

School Notes

Our Junior Class had two additions recently. Joseph Forsyth and Trinidad Martinez who came to us from Albuquerque are splendid additions to the band as well as being good students otherwise. We are glad to welcome them to our schools.

The football boys plan on scoring a victory over Hondo High School team this. The previous game was a tie. The Junior High six-man football team will play San Patricio Friday afternoon on local field.

The Public Schools will be closed Nov. 30th, and Dec. 1st. in accordance with a resolution of the Municipal Board of Education. This is in keeping with the proclamation of Gov. John Miles.

Mr. Carpenter was asked by a student: "What caused the first Thanksgiving?" He replied, "The Pilgrims and several others may have entered into the cause of a National Thanksgiving. However I would not have you neglect the part that Alexander Hamilton played in establishing the National Day." History gives us this interesting fact; Alexander Hamilton sent a letter to George Washington under date Oct. 1, 1789, urging Pres. Washington to issue a proclamation establishing the National Thanksgiving Day. (in order to unify the sentiments of the American people.) Pres. Washington issued his first National Thanksgiving Proclamation on October 3, 1789 calling the people of the young nation to set aside November 26th, of that year to assemble in respective places of worship and give thanks to Almighty God for his goodness to the young Nation.

The Gray Musical Company will provide an entertainment at the Community Hall Dec. 1st. Their orchestra will furnish music for dance. Everybody come. The senior class is sponsoring this program.

Lincoln County Educational Association for Dec. 8th, is attracting many leading educators of the state. State Supt. Corrigan and others of her staff, also several college professors will be in attendance.

Turkey Day Game of Football will be played between Capitan High School and Carrizo Team at two p. m. on local field.

The following students have been ill a portion of last week: R. D. Truax, Tony Marrojo, Margy Melton, Verna Ruth Johnson, George Sanchez.

Supt. Williams of Capitan Union High School visited our high school Wednesday.

Play at Tularosa

Mrs. C. P. Huppertz directed a play the "Star Speaks" at Tularosa last Monday night, put on by the Past Matrons' Club. Mrs. Nettie Lemon was to have done the singing, but due to illness, could not go, so Mrs. Tom Carr of Alamogordo did the singing. Mrs. Ben S. Burns played the accompaniments.

Those who went were: Mesdames Paul Mayer, C. D. Mayer, Mrs. Ben Stimmel, Mrs. S. O. Sproles, Mrs. Phipps, Mrs. Dan Elliott, Mrs. Sam Nickels, Mrs. Ben Burns, Mr. and Mrs. C. P. Huppertz, Dr. and Mrs. R. E. Blaney and Mr. and Mrs. Vance Smith of Oscuro.

Coronado Cuarto Centennial

Albuquerque Nov. 22. Lincoln County school superintendents and supervisors, representatives from women's clubs and civic organizations and other groups interested in revitalization and development of folk material for the Coronado Cuarto Centennial celebration will meet Sunday Nov. 26 at 2 p. m. at the old Lincoln County court house in Lincoln to discuss folk festival plans with Miss Sarah Gertrude Knott, Coronado folk festival supervisor. Mrs. Wilbur F. Coe, Glencoe, chairman of Lincoln folk festivals arranged the meeting.

Notice of Hearing of Final Report and Account

In the Probate Court of Lincoln County, State of New Mexico in the Matter of the Last Will and Testament of Frances McDonald Spencer, Deceased.

HE KNOWS WHERE TO LOOK

There is little use trying to hide your valuables from the professional burglar. He has an uncanny ability to find hidden valuables. There is one place, though, that is completely beyond the reach of his grasping fingers. For a nominal sum you can rent a safe deposit box and give your property the protection of our strong vault, not only against theft but against fire and misplacement as well.

ways brings about. Remember that lights are in use much later in the morning, and much earlier at night, than in summer, in addition to which, heaters and defrosters are an added electrical load. Moreover, the fact that the engine turns over harder in cold weather results in harder work for the starter, and heavier current consumption.

See that battery cables, ignition harness, distributor points, coil, and spark plugs are all in first-class shape. Remember that if such units fail at all, it invariably and logically, happens at the most inopportune moment, when the weather is coldest, or wettest, and the demands on them consequently greatest. A small expenditure, either for an individual check of these units, or for the over-all job of putting the car in shape for winter driving, is a regular item on the motorist's budget of more and more wise drivers.

WHO'S NEWS THIS WEEK

By LEMUEL F. PARTON

NEW YORK.—Rudolf Friml, maker of melodies for 25 years, finally gives credit to his collaborators. With the ouiji board, he's always talking shop with great...

His career, from the start on down to his present fifty-ninth year, is a testimonial to occult guidance, in planting him always in the highway of Lady Luck. In Prague, his birthplace, his father worked in a bakery. One day, his mother gave his father money to buy wood. Fates or phantoms guided him instead to a pawn shop, where he made a down payment on a tiny piano. Rudolf's mother was so angry she wanted to chop it to pieces, but the boy persuaded her to let him keep it. One day the owner of the bakery passed by, heard the lad playing beautifully and helped groove him into his musical career.

At the age of 10, he had published a barcarolle. In the musical conservatory of Prague, where he studied under Antonin Dvorak, he teamed up with Jan Kubelik. They were playing at a concert which Daniel Frohman happened opportunistically to attend. He took them to the United States for a tour of 60 cities.

Whether or not Mr. Friml was just an amanuensis for spirits, his compositions streamed along rapidly—"Gloriana," "The Fiery," "Kalinka," "High Jinks," "Music Hath Charms," "The Vagabond King," and a whole album of others, none of them seeming to be of ghostly inspiration. Hollywood still keeps him busy and successful.

H. GORDON SELFRIDGE, the Anglo-American merchant prince, visiting this country, makes it a tussle between communism and ruinous taxation. Queried about communism overrunning Europe after the war, he asks, "What of it? What is the difference between communism and a society where a tax takes half of the income and a surtax the other half?"

He says the day of initiative and enterprise is past. He is an authority on that subject. Sixty-two years ago, he swept out a store in Ripon, Wis. Two years later, he was an errand boy for Marshall Field & Co. in Chicago, and a partner when he quit, in 1904. Punch ribbed him mercilessly when he opened his store in London, and the smart saloons were full of clever jests about the American invader. He made them like him. He hired as head of his dress department Lady Athick, who had thought up the cleverest jokes about him.

Here in 1937, he was optimistic about Europe and the world in general. Now he says, "The opportunity to achieve and to show results has been eliminated all over the world."

ALBERT SARRAUT, French minister of interior, swings on the French Reds with a spiked club. He looks them with the Germans and promises to sweep them from all villages, municipalities, cities and towns. And he means to do just that.

M. Sarraut, as governor-general of French Indo-China, was regarded as a hard-fisted and implacable colonial administrator. Returning to his country villa in France, he read Tolstoy and renounced all belief in force. When he became minister of interior, his enemies, watching him thus off guard, swarmed all over him. He resigned from the ministry and said:

"I had now that I have no desire to smite him and thigh those who do not think as I do. You gentlemen take over the job and see what you can do with it."

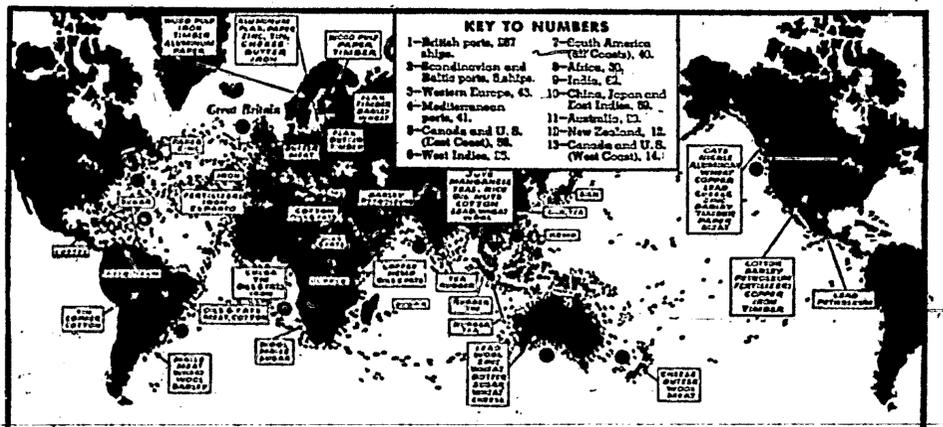

He again became minister of the interior, but offered his resignation when King Alexander was assassinated in Belgrade. Not taking the premiership, he again swung his war club, belying his obstinate pacifism and pacifism. Already tough and combative, he is a veteran of the rough and tumble of French politics. A victim in his garden, where he is seen in reading and meditating, is apt to bring on the Tolstoyan mood.

Mother Takes Witness Stand Before Dies Committee

A boast that Communists would take over the government and armed forces of the United States was told to Martin Dies, right, of Texas, chairman of the Dies committee investigating un-American activities, by Mrs. Dollie Crawford, left, of Frederick, Md. Mrs. Crawford's son, William McCauston, was arrested recently in connection with a New Orleans murder, and the man who "tipped off" the police that her son could be apprehended made the boast to her, according to Mrs. Crawford.

As British Merchant Ships Swarm the Seven Seas

Swarming over the seven seas on any given day are 1,545 British merchant ships, easy prey for Nazi submarines. Another 785 British merchantmen are in foreign ports on the same day. As vital to British lifelines as her navy, the cargo-carrying vessels cruise over 90,000 miles of ocean and sea lanes. To peace-time England the merchant fleet carries almost 48 per cent of all her food. Today it must bring the same food, plus steel, oil, guns, planes and war essentials. It's a huge job for England to convey those 1,545 ships daily. Key to the numbers on the map shows in inset.

'Now, Here's the Way It Appears to Me'

It must have been a matter of grave consequence judging from the facial expression of Rep. Luther A. Johnson of Texas, right, who whipsers into the ear of Rep. James A. Shanley of Connecticut. Johnson probably wears a happier look now, for the arms embargo repeal, which he backed, was adopted. Shanley advocated retention of existing embargo legislation.

'Somebody Please Throw That Man Out'

When the cameraman snapped Communist Barbara Bolton Hangeron, left, and Bob Swancy, her new heart interest, while dining in a New York hotel, their companion, Communist Dorothy D'Amico, jumped to the rescue and threw her for peace over "Bob's" back, re-voicing that the cameraman be thrown out. Swancy was too busy looking.

Soldier's Return

Eager to help England win the war was Charles Conner, 14, of Chicago. He stayed away on board a transatlantic liner, then jumped the ship when it reached a British contract inspection point. Authorities restrained him from joining the army and sent him home.

Red Cross Worker

Helen Keller, famous blind scholar and lecturer, has her new Red Cross banner adjusted by nine-year-old Betty Lou Morris. Miss Keller added to her other activities by joining the organization of the red and white workers' rally held in Philadelphia.

America Owes Much to Poles

Play Big Part in Building United States Since Colonial Times.

WASHINGTON.—Although Poland again has been eclipsed in Europe, the spirit of the Poles lives on in the geography, history and economy of the United States, says the National Geographic society. "Since colonial times Poles have played an important part in the building of America. Poles were among the settlers led by Capt. John Smith at Jamestown, Va., in 1607 and instigated what was doubtless one of America's first strikes when they were not permitted to vote for members of the house of burgesses. "Peter Stuyvesant, recognizing Poles as colonists, induced them to settle in New Holland (New York). As early as 1662 Dr. Alexander Kurcysz founded in New York one of the first institutions of higher learning in America. John Sadowski set up a trading post in 1735 that was the forerunner of the busy industrial city of Sandusky, Ohio. His two sons were companions of Daniel Boone in many of his exploits. Active in Colonies.

"Poles were generously sprinkled in the 13 colonies at the time of the Revolution, contributing to the ultimate freedom of America. They had been in Delaware as early as 1650 and William Penn numbered them among his loyal settlers. Most famous among the early Polish-Americans was Kosciuszko, who entered the Colonial army in 1770, rose to the rank of colonel of artillery and became General Washington's adjutant. In 1783 congress officially thanked him for his service, conferred upon him American citizenship, a pension with landed estates, and the rank of brigadier general.

"Polish migration on a large scale did not begin until about 1832 after a political uprising in Poland. In that year, in 1848, and in the eighties, economic and political disturbances in the Old world lent impetus to normal immigration. Today there are about 4,000,000 Poles widely distributed in the United States. About 80 per cent of them are naturalized citizens.

"A recent census shows that Chicago has the largest Polish population of any city in the United States, with about half a million.

"Most of the immigrants from Poland were landed peasants, laborers, and small tradesmen in the 'old country.' While Polish farmers are to be found in states from coast to coast, only one out of ten Poles in this country now till the soil. The largest number of Poles are employed in industry, particularly in sugar refineries, cotton mills, furniture factories, mines, steel mills, automobile plants and in the lumber industry of the Northwest.

"Higher Walks of Life. "But agriculture and industry have not, by any means, absorbed all the Poles. Since the time of Kosciuszko and Pulaski, the latter also famed in American history for his military pursuits, and Haym Salomon's generous contribution of funds which was a factor in the success of the American Revolution, the Poles have risen to prominent places in the professional, industrial and commercial life of the United States.

"Their names glare from marquees of American concert halls, motion picture theaters and opera houses. Paderewski, whose piano has thrilled millions, is a Pole. Pola Negri, Ganna Walska and Gilda Gray are among the Polish celebrities of screen and stage. Leopold Stokowski, Arthur Rubinstein, Arthur Rodzinski and Joseph Hofman are but a few of the Poles who have entertained American music lovers. Besides these, Polish painters, sculptors, financiers, college professors, preachers and priests, teachers and business men have had a part in the makeup of modern America. In state and national government men and women of Polish extraction have and are holding offices of responsibility."

Boy in Swimming Hole Killed by Falling Plane

GREENSBURG, PA.—One boy was killed and another injured in a swimming hole seven miles southwest of Greensburg when an airplane occupied by two men crashed into the hole.

Peter Kodylak, 13 years old, of Greensburg, was crushed to death by the plane. Joseph Woyets, 15, of Armstrong, suffered a concussion. Pilot David Patterson, of Greensburg, climbed uninjured from the wreckage. Nicholas Plevia, of Monongahela River Lock No. 4, a student pilot, received only a bruised knee.

Fewer Trailers Noted in Yellowstone Park

YELLOWSTONE PARK, WYO.—People no longer are dragging their homes behind them when they come to visit scenic Yellowstone National park. The forest service said only 1.43 per cent of the cars entering the park this year pulled trailers, compared with 1.78 per cent in the peak year of 1937. Early season visitors showed more of a tendency to live in trailers than those who came later in the season, the report said.

U. S. Aviation Industry Is Growing Up, But Don't Dare Call It a War Boom!

Seven West Coast Plants Working at Full Steam; Employ 30,000 Men.

By GREGORY LANDIS
(Released by Western Newspaper Union.)
LOS ANGELES.—Late one afternoon the news sped out of Washington that congress had lifted the arms embargo. Next day President Roosevelt's proclamation placed "cash-and-carry" in effect. Within a few minutes huge bombers were moving on barges from New York's North Beach airport to waiting freighters which would carry them through war-infested waters to Great Britain.

This was the "gunning" signal for American aviation, but it was not unexpected. Early this year France and Britain began buying war planes from firms like Lockheed, Douglas, Vultee, Ryan and Consolidated. In fact those were nine American-made French planes which engaged 27 Nazi craft in the first dog-fight of World War II a few days ago.

Airplane manufacturers aren't going off half-cocked just because the arms embargo has been lifted. Nor is their expansion during 1939 being based on a wild hope for war profits. But Uncle Sam has placed enough orders with them to bring his air force to something like 5,500 planes by 1941, and this, coupled with commercial orders and those from abroad, has changed the industry from a starving infant into a strapping youngster.

Many Foreign Orders.
Lockheed is a good example of the seven major plane factories scattered up and down our Pacific coast. Lockheed is located at Burbank and as you approach from the air it looks like a giant factory whose walls have been knocked out by the pressure of expansion from within. Which is just about the case.

Lockheed has completed most of the 250 big bombers ordered by Britain before the war started and is starting on an order of 80 similar planes for the Australian government. In addition the plant is turning out about 10 commercial transports each month. A year ago last month Lockheed had 2,700 employees. Last March there were 4,500 and this fall it was stepped up to 6,700, with a monthly payroll exceeding a million dollars.

U. S. Orders Come First.
Lockheed's military "backlog" of orders last month stood at about $7,025,000, including quite a few of the XP-38 interceptor pursuit planes which the United States army has ordered. American army and naval aircraft, manufacturers are careful to point out, is not being given second position to foreign orders. A meticulous group of government inspectors to be on hand in each factory, keeping things moving and—equally important—keeping them secret.

Lockheed's physical problem is typical. Her 523,000 square feet of floor space is double the capacity of last year, but there still isn't enough room. But the plane manufacturer ers are wise enough to look forward a few years. They'd rather put on the finishing touches outdoors than invest in new factories which a few years hence might be ghosts.

Down south, at San Diego, you'll find the same bustling at Ryan and Consolidated factories. Ryan, which got its start in 1920 when a slim young fellow named Lindbergh asked for a plane capable of flying 3,000 miles, specializes in teaching pilots and building training planes.

Ships Get Bigger, Too.
Consolidated, right next door to Ryan, and Boeing up in Seattle are building most of Uncle Sam's marmoth planes. In side-by-side assembly lines at Consolidated you'll find army and navy bombers almost as big as the Yankee Clipper. The army plane has wheels that stand 4½ feet high—the largest ever used on a ship.

Those "flying fortresses" you've read about come from Boeing, which also builds Pan American clippers and "stratolliners." Up Seattle way they used to make great ado about christening new ships and watching them take the air for the first time. But nowadays it's men's routine.

Boeing has 39 flying fortresses of the B-17-B type to turn out for the army, about one-third of which are already finished. They'll soon start on an $8,000,000 order for more fortresses of the B-17-C type. Sandwiched in are nine stratolliners at $350,000 a copy (minus the engines) and six more clippers for Pan-America at a total cost of $3,000,000.

The manufacturers themselves, taking the entire matter in stride, are inclined to lean back in their chairs and talk about the effect it will have on aviation's future. A few years ago, they point out, the industry was just limping along without money for experimentation and new developments. Then—look what happened—along came Uncle Sam with a lot of new ideas and a fetish for making his air force the world's best. Today everybody's glib-minded from the kids in college to their grandmothers. You can't stop a boom like that.

Experienced 'Exile' Heads Polish State Founded in France

PARIS.—A life of exile is nothing new to the new president of Poland in exile—that chap with the tongue-twisting name of Wladyslaw Raczkiewicz.

When the Polish government fled bombarded Warsaw and established its new headquarters in the Paris embassy, Raczkiewicz was a good choice to lead this homeless state. He knows what it's like to be a man without a country; he was even born in exile. His name is pronounced "Ratch-kye-veech" with accent on the middle syllable. He was born in an outpost of Russia called Kutais, where his father, a Polish nobleman, had been sent by the tsar for political activity. Raczkiewicz is very familiar with his homeland's Russian conquerors. He learned law at the University of Dorpat, practiced two years in Minsk, and entered the Russian army as a reserve officer in 1914. He was among the first Poles to see a chance for freedom when the Russian revolution broke in 1917. Throwing himself into a combined political-military activity, he organized a secret Polish military force on Russian soil. This group paved the way for organized resistance to the Soviet in eastern Poland.

WILHELMINA Dutch Queen Works for Peace But Shuns Red Tape Diplomacy

"IT WILL be my life's endeavor to reign as is expected from a queen of the House of Orange. Faithful to the constitution, I wish to enhance the respect for the name and flag of the Netherlands. I wish to be a just ruler over the possessions and colonies... and to contribute to your personal and spiritual welfare to the best of my ability. Trusting in God and praying that He will strengthen me, I take the reins of government."

Forty-one years ago a handsome lass of 18 stood on the royal balcony in Amsterdam and gave her pledge to the 8,500,000 subjects who dwell in a nation no larger than Maryland, and to 64,000,000 subjects in the Dutch East Indies.

Today 53-year-old Queen Wilhelmina faces a more desperate international situation with the same pledge, hoping to escape invasion by the French, British or Germans.

Knows Her People.
The queen popped into headlines recently when she joined King Leopold of Belgium in offering her mediation services to the warring nations. The offer was refused and a few days later a border clash occurred between Dutch and Nazi nationals—strongly reminiscent of the disputes leading to Poland's invasion.

WILHELMINA—Plain, unassuming, the Dutch queen's social consciousness is her greatest asset in procuring the Netherlands' neutrality. She has few troubles on her frontiers.

Through this crisis, as in 1914, Wilhelmina has stood firm knowing that no aggressor could expect any help from factions within the Dutch frontiers. Her subjects know her as a "housewife queen" who, in 1910, was clever enough to turn a threatened revolution into a love feast. The day her socialist subjects planned to revolt, she issued a proclamation announcing important social and economic reforms.

As a result the Netherlands now has a successful system of poor relief and workmen's compensation. The Zuider Zee has been reclaimed until the Dutch have a new province.

She has held her throne longer than any other European ruler. Known as the "Dutch Victoria," she takes her place as the only woman to sit around the continent's table. This is a signal success for the experienced ruler of 41 years ago who took charge of a nation where monarchy was on the wane.

"You Belong to Them."
Wilhelmina got her first taste of royal life when still a wee child. Led to the palace balcony by her mother, she looked down on a sea of subjects and asked, "Mama, do all those people belong to me?" Her mother replied quietly, "No, dear, you belong to them."

Wilhelmina's father, William III, was the son of a Russian princess. Willful like all Romanoffs, he became discouraged when he could not conquer the indomitable spirit of his Dutch subjects. Broken, he withdrew from active governmental participation and lived abroad many of his later years. The dowager Queen Emma retrieved much of the Orange popularity after his death, but it was Wilhelmina's task to stem the upsurge of revolution.

Rejected Nazi Protest.
Wilhelmina's neutrality wasn't even jarred by the marriage of her daughter, Princess Juliana, to Germany's Prince Bernhard zu Lippe-Biesterfeld. When the Nazis objected to her demanding passports of German guests at the wedding she answered coldly: "This is the marriage of my daughter to the man she loves; it is not the marriage of Holland and Germany."

Gay Scottie Pattern For Pillow or Toy

By RUTH WYETH SPEARS
BY FAR the most admired toy in a gay and modern nursery was a red and black striped Scottie with a gleam in his pearl-button eye. A college girl in the family pilfered the pup for a mascot which she kept perched on her desk. The baby cried, and another Scottie had to be made. The

A Penny a Tablet Now

buys famous BAYER ASPIRIN's Fast relief from muscular pains

The quick modern way to ease headache, and neuritic and rheumatic pain.

We feature the fact that Bayer Aspirin costs only 1¢ a tablet, to drive home the point that there's no reason even for the most budget-minded person to accept anything less than genuine fast-acting Bayer Aspirin.

For at the most, it costs—but a few pennies to get hours of relief from the pains of neuritis, rheumatism or headache... and get it with the speedy action for which Bayer Aspirin is world famous.

Try this way once and you'll know almost instantly why people everywhere praise it. It has rapidly replaced expensive "pain remedies" in thousands of cases. Ask for genuine "Bayer Aspirin" by its full name when you buy... never ask for "aspirin" alone.

WINTER DOUBLES DRIVING ACCIDENTS

When winter dumps snow and ice on roads and highways, the crash rate goes up. Lives are lost. People are injured. Cars and trucks require expensive repairs. Accident costs are tremendous. Even the most careful drivers are in danger. A quick, safe stop may be necessary any second. Play safe. Don't gamble. Keep tire chains in your car and truck and be ready for stormy weather.

U. S. Navy Recruiting Station

NAUTICAL NOTES

Above Board: This slang-term for honesty, originated in the day when pirates would sometimes hide most of their crew behind bulwarks, in order to lure some unsuspecting victim into thinking him an honest merchantman. In reverse, therefore, anyone who displayed all his crew openly on deck, was obviously an honest seaman.

On Norman ships of war in the twelfth century, wooden towers were placed on the main deck to fight from. The one forward was the forward castle and the other the after castle. The after castles have long since disappeared from naval vessels but the word forecastle still survives.

The rull used by boatwains' mates to "show a leg" is derived from the days when women were carried at sea on men-of-war.

The wives of seamen who put out a stockings leg in the morning were not required to turn out at reveille.

It is possible for an airplane to fly lower than a submarine can dive. The Sea of Galilee, where sea level is six hundred and eighty feet below sea level, far beyond the record depth for undersea boats. A naval tactic invented by an American naval officer in the Spanish War in '98, was the means of saving more Allied lives and shipping in the World War than any other naval or military discovery. (The Zigzag tactic, first used by Richard P. Leary, commanding the U. S. S. Ban Francisco. She zigzagged to safety when fired on by Moro Castle guns.) This tactic also saved British cruisers and destroyers at Jutland, according to admissions made by their captans.

Lavish Embroidery Bespeaks Fashion Trend to Elegance

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

THIS is a season of elegances and niceties such as bespeak gracious-lady fashions. One of the surest signs that the luxury note is being sounded is the lavish use designers are making of rich embroidery and other fastidious surface decorations, such as intricate applique design, exquisite beadwork and resplendent sequins, embellishment, also (very important in the new) latest costume collections declare the revival of handsome old-fashioned, now new-fashioned, passementerie.

Been treasuring for years a bit of precious passementerie that adorned grandmother's wedding gown, or perhaps her best Sunday-go-to-meeting dress? Now's the big moment to bring it out. If it is just a single ornament, applique it near your heart on your smartest blouse or frock and it will serve as effectively as a jewelry gadget. If it's a motif of a kind you've hoarded, one stop each sleeve will bring infinite style prestige to your best gown.

Embroidery is wielding its magic in every direction, enhancing with gaily decorated sleeves afternoon gowns of silk crepe, sheer wool or velvet, electrifying the formal evening gown with resplendent glittering note, adding intrigue to sport sweaters with yarn-worked posies, stressing the sumptuous trend in formal evening sweaters (now so stylish) with all sorts of dazzling gadgetry.

Speaking from the necessary standpoint, ornate with embroidery will your gloves and your handbag be this year, your mittens and your scarf, your wide corset-like girdle and even your chapeau will not be immune from the epidemic of embroidery.

The charming gold tissue lame evening gown to the left in the picture will, no doubt, prove one of the loveliest that goes to parties during the winter social season. It subscribes to the embroidery vogue in that the cunning little gray lida cloth jacket that is worn with it is embroidered with sequins and gold cord.

It's a gay and very formal sweater that you see portrayed in the oval inset. The sweater is of sheer-knit fuchsia wool, tuned-to-evening formality with embroidery worked with sparkling-gold sequins in a leaf pattern.

A foremost topic in fashion circles is the floor-length evening coats made of handsome wool material. See centered in the group a gorgeous affair styled of red broadcloth enhanced with massive gold applique done in gold kid with embroidered accents.

And now comes the climax of our story—the allover embroidered daytime coat! When Jane Alden, Chicago stylist, flew back from Paris following a week-end to week-end flight—she arrived just as you see her pictured to the right in the illustration. Her hurried trip was made to work out special styles with Madame Bruyere of the Maison Bruyere, for use in her talks before the Four-H clubs throughout the United States. She stepped out of the plane wearing a dark green kid hat, in a small design, with matching kid gaiters, a black dress of the new one-side fringed apron type and an allover-embroidered gray coat by Bruyere. You sense the exquisite detail of the coat at first glance, and you are at once impressed with its quiet elegance. The embroidery reflects consummate art in its refined handling and although it is done in an allover patterning the effect is smartly conservative and practical because of the soft gray coloring of the embroidery that blends into the background in perfect sympathy.

By L. L. STEVENSON

Superstition, coupled with a little salt, all but caused an international incident at the Belgian Pavilion at the world's fair the other evening—or at least for a few minutes it looked as if it might. A young woman and a young man were quietly enjoying their dinner when the young woman accidentally upset the salt shaker. Having heard—since childhood that spilled salt meant a fight, she picked up the shaker and shook it over her left shoulder three times. Then believing ill fortune averted, she was about to resume eating when the waiter rushed up. He made a most careful inspection of the salt shaker and apparently finding it intact inquired most courteously as to what was wrong. The young woman told him that everything was all right. But the waiter persisted and so she explained about spilled salt. The waiter shook his head sadly and went away.

When he came back, he had a captain with him. The captain made some courteous inquiries and received an explanation. He asked that it be repeated slowly. That was done. With a puzzled look on his face, he went away and came back with a head waiter. The young woman, no end abashed because so much attention was being attracted, explained very carefully that it was an American belief if salt were spilled the only way to avoid a fight was to throw some over the left shoulder.

Then the head waiter, with deference in voice and manner, inquired, "But with whom does mademoiselle desire to fight?" "No one!" all but shouted the young woman almost driven to desperation by the fact that the eyes of all diners were directed toward her table. "No one in the world."

"That is good," returned the head waiter and departed with the captain.

From then on, all might have been peace if it hadn't been for the young man. Everyone was looking at the young couple as if they were crazy, he averred. The only thing to do was to pay the check, skip the rest of the meal and get out fast. But getting out wasn't so easy. Everyone from the head waiter on down seemed to take their decision as an affront. So, in English and French, there was more argument—and more stares. The couple finally escaped. But never more will the young woman throw salt over her shoulder. It didn't prevent a fight—she and the young man battled all the rest of the evening and haven't spoken since.

Speaking of international matters there is that "puzzle" which is rolling heavily on the lower East Side, up in the Bronx, and on Broadway. The price is a nickel straight on the East Side and in the Bronx but on Broadway some of the vendors ask a nickel for two. Nevertheless, the Bronx and East Side sales are the heaviest, the demand being so great it is difficult in some instances to replenish stocks. The puzzle is simple—merely four pigs printed on a piece of paper along with directions as to how to fold the paper to make a fifth—and when the paper is folded correctly, there is a picture of Hitler.

Getting away from the international, what is perhaps one of the shortest police-escorted trips on record is now being given the comedians, Abbott and Costello, every Friday night. On that evening, they have a broadcast at the CBS Playhouse on Forty-fifth street at 8:45 p. m. To get there is a simple matter. But their first scene in "The Streets of Paris" also comes at 8:45 p. m. So "The Streets of Paris" producers, already having held the curtain 10 minutes, take no chances on further delay. After the broadcast, Abbott and Costello are police escorted with all possible haste to the Broadhurst theater—which is the very next block.

Knitting Tails for Cow Odd Occupation
SAN FRANCISCO, CALIF.—Research workers of the federal writers' project have uncovered records of one of the most original occupations ever developed in the early history of California. It is the story of a blind Spanish grandmother living near Phoenix lake who devoted her entire time to knitting woolen tails for the family cow. The cow, it developed, was tailless and defenseless against flies and other insects.

'TEEN-AGE GIRLS ENJOY MAKING HOMEMADE BREADS (Recipes Below.)

Homemade Breads— Hot and Cold

Yes, even girls in the 'teen age or younger enjoy making homemade breads of various types and who in all the world does not enjoy eating them? Bread after all is still very much the staff of life and fortunately our modern up-to-date experimental food kitchens are constantly developing for all of us a large number of brand new—good-to-eat, hot or cold, bread recipes of the broadest possible variety.

The making of yeast breads the modern simplified way is certainly a far cry from some of the difficulties that our grandmothers or even our mothers may have experienced when they made it regularly—years ago.

In the first place, yeast is now readily obtainable both in moist or dry form. Furthermore we now know that we can help to regulate the rapidity with which the whole bread-making process can proceed by adding more or less yeast—more if we want to hurry the rising—less if there is no particular reason for speed.

Then too, we have learned to watch the temperature of the dough a little more carefully and we know that if kept at the just right temperature, neither too hot nor too cold, the bread can be trusted to rise as it should and to develop, while rising, the best possible homemade bread flavor.

Then we have learned some modern recipe adaptations of those never-to-be-forgotten butter-catch rolls, parker house rolls and coffee-cakes that our mothers used to make. All of which brings me to sharing with you now some of my favorite yeast and baking powder, hot and cold bread recipes. Here they are:

Yeast Bread.

- (Makes 3 medium loaves)
- 2 cups milk
- 1 1/2 teaspoons salt
- 1 1/2 tablespoons sugar
- 2 tablespoons shortening
- 2 cakes compressed yeast
- 1/2 cup lukewarm water
- 1/2 cup bread flour

Scald milk and to it add the salt, sugar, and shortening. Cool until lukewarm. Soften yeast in warm water and add to the scalded milk mixture. Add just enough flour to make a stiff batter and beat well. Then add enough more flour to make a firm but soft dough. Mix well, turn out on a floured board, and knead until the dough is smooth and elastic and until small blisters form on the dough itself. Place in a well-greased bowl and brush with melted fat. Cover and place in a warm (not hot) place to rise. When dough has a little more than doubled in bulk, knead it down lightly and let it rise again. When light again, shape into loaves and place in well-greased bread tins. Grease top of loaves with melted fat. Let rise until bread has again doubled in volume. Bake 40-45 minutes in a hot oven (425 degrees).

Miracle Rolls.

- 1 cups boiling water
- 1/2 cup and 1 teaspoon sugar
- 1 tablespoon salt
- 1/2 cup fat
- 2 cakes yeast
- 1/2 cup lukewarm water
- 2 eggs
- 8 cups bread flour

Mix together boiling water, 1/2 cup sugar, salt, and fat and stir until dissolved. Cool until mixture is lukewarm. Dissolve yeast and remaining 1/2 teaspoon sugar in the lukewarm water and add to first mixture. Add eggs and one-half of the flour; beat thoroughly. Then add remaining 4 cups of flour. Mix well.

Place in refrigerator. When ready to bake, make into rolls and allow to rise in a warm place about 1 hour or until doubled in size. Bake in hot oven (400 degrees) approximately 20 minutes.

Bishop's Bread.

- (Makes 1 loaf)
- 1/2 cup shortening
- 1 cup brown sugar
- 2 1/2 cups bread flour
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 1 teaspoon cinnamon
- 1/2 teaspoon soda
- 1/2 teaspoon baking powder
- 1 egg
- 1/2 cup sour milk

Cream shortening and slowly add the sugar, flour, and salt, mixing very thoroughly. Reserve 1/2 cup of this mixture for top crumbs to be used on bread while baking. To the remainder, add the soda, baking powder, egg and sour milk and beat until batter is smooth. Pour into well-greased loaf pan, sprinkle sugar and flour mixture on top and bake 25 minutes in a hot oven (400 degrees). Raisins and nuts may be added if desired.

Hot Cinnamon Rolls.

- (Makes 10 rolls)
- 1 cup milk (scalded)
- 2 tablespoons sugar
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 1/2 cup fat
- 1 yeast cake
- 1/2 cup warm water
- 3 to 4 cups general purpose flour
- Molten butter
- Granulated sugar
- Cinnamon

Scald milk and add to it the sugar, salt, and fat. Cool until lukewarm and add yeast which has been softened in the warm water. Add a sufficient amount of flour to enable handling as a dough. Knead thoroughly, and allow dough to rise until it doubles in volume. Knead lightly, and allow the dough to double in bulk a second time. Then knead lightly and roll dough into a sheet—1/2-inch thick. Spread with melted butter and sprinkle with cinnamon and granulated sugar. Roll like a jelly roll and cut in slices one inch thick. Place on a well-greased baking sheet and allow to rise until light. Bake in a hot oven (400 degrees) approximately 20 minutes. This basic recipe may be used to make any kind of coffee cake or sweet roll.

Pecan Muffins.

- (Makes 12 medium-sized muffins)
  - 1/2 cup light brown sugar
  - 1 cup graham flour
  - 1/2 cup general purpose flour
  - 1/2 teaspoon salt
  - 4 teaspoons baking powder
  - 1 cup milk
  - 2 eggs
  - 1/2 cup shortening (melted)
  - 1/2 cup pecan nut meats (chopped)
- Place brown sugar and graham flour in a mixing bowl and mix thoroughly. Mix and sift general purpose flour, salt, and baking powder and add to the brown sugar mixture. Beat milk and eggs together and to them add the melted shortening. Pour this liquid mixture into the dry ingredients and mix as gently as possible with a fork. Do not stir or beat. Add nut meats. Place in well-greased muffin tins and bake in a very hot oven (475 degrees) for approximately 15 minutes.

Watch Your Kidneys!

Help Them Cleanse the Blood of Harmful Body Wastes
Your Kidneys are constantly filtering waste matter from the blood stream. If your kidneys are not working properly, they will not act as Nature intended—fail to remove impurities that, if retained, may poison the system and upset the whole body machinery.
Symptoms may be itching backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, retching up nights, swollen feet, puffiness under the eye—a feeling of nervous anxiety and loss of sex and strength.
Other signs of kidney or bladder trouble are sometimes burning, stinging or too frequent urination.
You should be so clean that you can't see your feet. Don't have been winning new friends for more than forty years. They have a million-dollar reputation. Are recommended by great doctors in the country over. Ask your neighbor!

Breakfast Jacket

The knitter who is thinking in terms of Christmas presents for her friends will do well to take note of this winsome breakfast jacket. You can make it in no time, for it is knitted in an easy effective drop stitch.

Dame Fashion Now Goes Star Gazing

It's star gazing we will be enjoying this winter, for the latest is star-shaped nailheads and sequins, scattered over bags, shoes, gloves, dresses and whatever sparkles attracts adora. Milk prints with star patterns are also shown.

Jewelry Vogue Is For Diamonds Now

Diamonds have entered a new era of popularity, both as jewelry and as personal possessions of marketable value. In several style shows recently staged many of the manikins wore this sparkling type of jewelry in preference to the spectacular gold effects.

New earrings from a noted Paris house are called "opposites," in that one earring is a diamond flower set with sapphires, the other a sapphire surrounded by diamonds. Which do you wear in which ear? Well, that makes no difference, but to have a touch of sapphire blue repeated in your dress somewhere scores high in allure.

Diamonds can be worn for day or evening. One fine piece such as a brooch or a clip can be used on the coat lapel, at the neckline of a dress, at the center of the velvet neckband or even in the coiffure.

Leather Important In Style Picture

It has come to the point that suede is regarded as important a medium for wearing apparel and fetching accessories as any fabric might be. The loveliest suede items imaginable are being turned out—hats, bags, dresses, coats, bolero jackets, tailored classic jackets, and so on. Seeing that suede brings into the fashion picture a wealth of color unsurpassed, small wonder is it that it has come to be considered "top" in fashion. Leather trappings on wool sports togs include smart leather buttons, stitched applique of leather, leather bindings, belts and an endless list of the uses of leather too numerous to mention.

Jeff looked at the little group on the porch. He spoke softly, "Ain't no use rushin' him; he'll shoot an' kill somebody. But if we was to kind of separate . . ."

"What-do-you mean, Jeff?"

"Go ev'ry which way. Sneak up on him from both sides."

Clem Ross shook his head. "He's bound to kill somebody. A feller don't bluff when he's a-fixin' to git hung."

Babe Henkel broke in, "Scared?"

"No'm," whined Clem, "we ain't skeered ezackly, but—"

"But you are. You're eight men against one." She whirled on Jeff Butler, her black eyes snapping.

"Did you come here to talk or to act? Are you letting three women frighten you away . . .?"

One of the swamp angels spoke. "He ought to be hung, ma'am, but it ain't safe goin' after him. If them wimmin wasn't there . . ."

"Well, they are. And if you don't get him now, you'll never get him."

The mob was not valiant. Mobs never are. They work in a frenzy of hysteria; they demand safety. Walking in on a loaded gun is not part of the plan. No man in that crowd had contemplated personal danger.

Upholding the honor and purity of Beauregard County was all right, but not worth serious injury. Jeff Butler knew the temper of these men. He knew that he had worked well, that he had fanned them into a homicidal fury. But Barney Hamilton's calmness, his readiness . . .

were frightening them away. And Jeff realized that Babe had spoken truly. There could never be a second lynching-party. It was now or never. Mr. Butler took refuge in loud talk . . . fearful of the future. If they went home now, if the mob disintegrated—Barney would be free. There would be trouble. And always the danger that the Kirk Reynolds matter would continue to weigh on the mind of an inquisitive public.

Jeff said, "You better come down, Barney Hamilton."

No answer. The tableau held. Grim and futile.

Jeff experienced a sudden anger. He addressed his companions, "We come to git that feller an' we're a-goin' to git him. If them wimmin won't git off the porch, let 'em git hurt."

There was an angry murmur of endorsement. "They're askin' for it."

"Come on!" yelled Jeff. "Ev'rybody!"

He gestured valiantly toward the veranda. Three or four of the men stepped forward—tentatively. The butt of Barney's gun moved—ever so little—toward his shoulder. He said, calmly—"Just one more step . . ."

They backed away. "Ain't no use gittin' kilt," said someone.

"Skeered!" railed Jeff.

"Didn't see you rushin' forward none, Jeff Butler."

Mr. Butler broke into oratory. He recounted the evil which had been inflicted upon the county by Cathedral Gardens, by Barney Hamilton. He urged action, but failed to supply the leadership. Babe swung on Dan Creedon. "Why don't you go first?" she asked.

"Because I'm not a fool. That kid means business."

Jeff was frightened. He knew that the mob frenzy had passed its peak. He tried to rouse them again. His voice was shrill and harsh. They listened apathetically. Then they heard Barney speaking.

Barney said, "I don't know any of you except Jeff Butler. But I do know why he's here. He came to get me because I whipped him in a fight one day."

"That's a lie. I come after you because the law is lettin' you git away with murder . . . and them that take human life had ought to be strung up."

Barney again, talking to the others. "I didn't kill Kirk Reynolds . . . but it doesn't matter whether you believe me or not. You're lettin' yourself get tricked by this man, Butler. He's yellow all through . . ."

"Yaller!" Jeff raised bony arms high into the night. He shrieked with fury. "Yaller! Callin' me yaller . . . when you're the yallerest man there is." He faced his friends. "You ain't got nothin' to be skeered of. There ain't nobody mo' yaller than Barney Hamilton."

Somebody asked, "How you know, Jeff?"

"I got reason to know. He's bluffin', that's what. He's a coward. There wouldn't nobody but a coward hit a man who was wearin' glasses."

A voice queried, "What man?"

"Kirk Reynolds!" howled Jeff. "Barney Hamilton hit Kirk Reynolds befo' he stobbed him, an' Reynolds was wearin' glasses!"

The night was suddenly still. There was a tenseness—then a murmur. The mob edgited and moved definitely toward the veranda. Barney's gun snapped to his shoulder.

Then Babe stepped forward, Babe Henkel—eyes bright and angry. Her voice crackled. She said, "Wait a minute!"

They waited. Babe took three steps forward. She stood before Jeff Butler.

She said, "How did you know that Kirk Reynolds was wearing glasses that night?"

Jeff's head moved uncertainly on his long, thin neck. He said, "Why, ma'am . . . I know he was wearin' glasses."

Babe's words were quiet. They carried accusation and conviction.

She said, "Yes, Kirk was wearing glasses. But listen—all of you: only three persons in the world knew that he was wearing them. One was Kirk. One was me. And the third person who knew was the man who killed him." Her finger went out toward the big swamp angel. "That was you," she accused—"It was you that killed him, Jeff Butler!"

Looking down from the veranda upon men with guns and a woman with blazing eyes, Kay Forrest found herself thinking, "Why, of course it was Jeff Butler who killed Kirk." There was no reason why she should think that, no reason why she should be thinking clearly at all, except perhaps that the past twenty minutes had been too dreadful for her really to be afraid.

A man with a rope and other men with guns, incongruous against a background of azalea. Men who had come to commit mob murder; men who had been deterred only by the presence of a grim young man and three women. Kay saw things happening down there on the lawn. She saw six swamp angels step back from the man who had incited them. She saw Babe Henkel move still closer to Jeff. She heard Babe's voice, bitter, positive—venomous.

"You killed Kirk Reynolds. You probably came to get Barney Hamilton—but it was Kirk that you murdered."

Jeff Butler's loose lips were working, his Adam's apple bobbing convulsively. He was holding tight to his gun and looking around in desperate search for an ally. He whined, "I didn't do no such of a thing."

"Then how did you know he was wearing glasses?"

"I didn't know . . . I—I just thought . . ."

Babe's eyes never left Jeff's face, but she spoke to the others. "He's lying. Kirk never wore glasses until that night. Nobody else saw him."

They knew it was true. Jeff's fright was a confession of guilt. He cringed. He blustered half-heartedly. Dan Creedon stepped forward and with a sudden, sharp gesture, wrenched the shot-gun from Jeff's hand. Jeff said, "Gimme that . . . But he made no effort to retrieve it."

Then Babe Henkel spoke again—to the would-be lynchers. She said, "You came to get the man who killed Kirk Reynolds. Well, you've got him."

The swamp angels shuffled their feet uneasily. They made no move toward Jeff. They had been roused to a peak of mob fury, and now they had been dropped from that peak. The lust for violence had vanished. They were bewildered and helpless. Almost apologetic. They whispered among themselves and moved imperceptibly away from Jeff Butler and the woman who accused him.

The climax had passed. Even Kay Forrest felt the lightening of tension. And with relief came the danger of hysteria. She glanced at Mrs. Hamilton and Margaret and saw that their faces were no longer taut; that the fright had gone from their eyes, but that their lips were none too steady.

Babe said, "Aren't you going to do anything?" The swamp angels did not answer, and their silence was all she needed. She swung on Dan Creedon. "Here's the man who killed Kirk . . ."

Dan's voice was quiet. "Dettar take it easy, Babe."

"Why?"

"Because they'll convict this guy for it. Doesn't that give you what you want?"

Barney stepped down from the veranda, still cradling his shot-gun. He moved warily toward the group surrounding Jeff Butler. He was very quiet about it; very sure of himself. He raised the muzzle of his shot-gun and pressed it against Jeff's ribs. He said, "Get inside the house."

Jeff protested . . . Dan Creedon snapped, "Get a move on!"

Jeff made a last despairing plea. "You'll ain't a-goin' to leave 'em do me thisaway . . . But the swamp angels were leaving, edging away into a night which was radiant with flowers and sprinkled with stars. They knew the truth—and they were afraid. Afraid of what might have been. Afraid because they might have lynched an innocent man . . . not morally afraid, but physically—because they could conceivably have been caught and punished. They were sick of the whole affair and virtuously eager to forget it and to be forgotten. They knew—not alone from Babe's words, but also from Jeff's manner—that their friend and neighbor had killed Kirk." At the moment they hated Jeff; not because he had killed somebody, but because he had attempted to betray them.

Then they were gone. The night swallowed them. Kay heard them moving through the swamp, back toward their homes. She saw Jeff shuffling toward the house propelled by the guns of Dan Creedon and Barney Hamilton.

The queer procession moved into the hall. Barney said, "Somebody call the Sheriff. Tell him to come get this man." Mrs. Hamilton went to the telephone . . . and Barney and Dan Creedon stood there, holding Jeff prisoner. Jeff was mumbling. Tears of self-pity trickled from his weak eyes.

Kay stood by the front door. Her eyes gazed into the night and saw the figure of a woman standing alone, a vivid woman bewildered by the sudden turn of events, a woman who had been keyed to high emotional pitch. Impulsively Kay went through the door and down to the lawn.

"Mrs. Henkel . . ."

Babe turned. Her eyes were misted, her figure had sagged. She looked utterly alone and incredibly tired. Her voice was flat. She said, "Go ahead. I haven't got a comeback."

Kay said gently, "I don't blame you."

There was a lump in Babe's throat. She spoke with difficulty. "I—I was pretty crazy about Kirk. I really thought Barney Hamilton killed him."

"I understand . . ."

"It seemed like I had a right to do this." She pressed one hand against her head. "What a louse you must think I am."

"But I don't. Really. And you should feel better. You've got the man who did do it . . ."

A sharp, mirthless laugh broke from Babe's lips. "With a flash of intuition she said, 'We're fools, us women. We go crazy about some guy, and . . .'"

Kay touched her arm. "Let's dogn't talk about it. Come inside."

As they crossed the veranda Babe tried awkwardly to make amends. She said, "I'm glad it turned out like this—honest I am." She moistened dry lips. "Your boy friend certainly can't be bluffed."

Then they were inside. Mrs. Hamilton joined them and spoke gently to Babe Henkel. She was infinitely sorry for this woman who had lost everything that made life worth while for her. Mrs. Hamilton said, "The Sheriff is on the way out."

The half-hour which followed was difficult for its very lack of tense-ness. The reaction was violent. It rendered them all inarticulate. Twice Jeff Butler tried to plead with them . . . then stopped because he saw that they were not listening to him.

Sheriff Floyd Griffin arrived with two deputies. He slipped handcuffs on Jeff Butler's bony wrists. He said, with forced heartiness, "It must of been a swell party. And this guy—he'll git plenty."

Dan Creedon rested Jeff's shot-gun against a chair. He asked, "Driving into town, Sheriff?"

"Yeh. Right away."

"Got room for Miss Henkel and me?"

"Sure."

Babe rose. Her dark eyes swept the room. She opened her lips to speak and closed them again. But at the door she turned. Then she said, simply, "I'm awful sorry . . ."

and she was gone. And Dan and the Sheriff and his deputies and Jeff Butler had gone, too. And with them went doubt and fear and suspicion and uncertainty. The three women and Barney turned and looked at one another.

And because Mrs. Hamilton and Margaret wanted to stay close to Barney—to touch him and to do little things for him because they knew that they had come perilously close to losing him—because they wanted to do and say so many things . . . they actually said nothing and did the one thing which they knew he most wanted. They left him alone with Kay.

The room was quiet. Barney's gun and the gun that had belonged to Jeff Butler were the only ugly reminders of something which already seemed unreal. Barney reached out and took Kay's cold hand.

"Let's go outside." He laughed awkwardly, attempting to hide his own emotion. "I'd like to see how things look without a string-squod before me."

Kay went with him. She understood the reaction he was experiencing and realized that he was trying to get himself under control. For his sake, she fought against the instinct to break down and cry—as a little girl who has been badly frightened might cry. And for his sake, she tried to speak lightly once they were on the veranda together.

"Looks natural, doesn't it, Barney?"

"Yes . . ." He stared off into the shadows, and at the silver reflection of stars in the black waters of the lagoon. "I wish I felt natural."

She forced herself to be gay. She was gay. And if there was a faint touch of hysteria in that gaiety, it was not to be wondered at. She said, "You talked about your plans, Barney. It's too bad they have to be changed."

He tried to respond as she wished him to. "Changed? How?"

"For one thing—FOA mentioned going places, and then coming back for me come day when you got around to it." She faced him and her arms went about his neck and clung tightly. The lightness of her words was belied by the sob in her voice. "Oh, Barney!" she cried, "Try and leave this town without me. Just try!"

He held her desperately close.

"You're a stubborn wench," he said gently, "so I won't even try."

THE GIFT WIFE

Adventure, love, dramatic action—they're all a part of "The Gift Wife," Rupert Hughes' great serial. It's the story of Dr. David Jebb, skilled surgeon whose only fault is a spasmodic but overwhelming desire for drink. Because of this desire, Dr. Jebb experiences the greatest adventure of his life.

Awakening from one of his periodic jaunts, David finds himself in a strange land, inhabited by unfamiliar people. The little girl, for whom he had been acting as temporary guardian, has disappeared. He has no memory of his previous actions. Then a masked lady enters his life, guiding his confused thoughts, and helping him to recovery.

That's enough of the story—you'll want to read each exciting chapter of this thrilling serial, sold by a master teller of tales.

They left him alone with Kay.

The room was quiet. Barney's gun and the gun that had belonged to Jeff Butler were the only ugly reminders of something which already seemed unreal. Barney reached out and took Kay's cold hand.

"Let's go outside." He laughed awkwardly, attempting to hide his own emotion. "I'd like to see how things look without a string-squod before me."

Kay went with him. She understood the reaction he was experiencing and realized that he was trying to get himself under control. For his sake, she fought against the instinct to break down and cry—as a little girl who has been badly frightened might cry. And for his sake, she tried to speak lightly once they were on the veranda together.

"Looks natural, doesn't it, Barney?"

"Yes . . ." He stared off into the shadows, and at the silver reflection of stars in the black waters of the lagoon. "I wish I felt natural."

She forced herself to be gay. She was gay. And if there was a faint touch of hysteria in that gaiety, it was not to be wondered at. She said, "You talked about your plans, Barney. It's too bad they have to be changed."

He tried to respond as she wished him to. "Changed? How?"

"For one thing—FOA mentioned going places, and then coming back for me come day when you got around to it." She faced him and her arms went about his neck and clung tightly. The lightness of her words was belied by the sob in her voice. "Oh, Barney!" she cried, "Try and leave this town without me. Just try!"

He held her desperately close.

"You're a stubborn wench," he said gently, "so I won't even try."

DOLLAR MAKERS
Clean Store
Will Attract
More Business

By GEORGE T. EAGER

WHEN the youngest son of a retail grocer went to work as a filling station attendant for a large oil company the father little thought that the event would increase the sales and profits of his grocery store. The boy had brought home a company sales manual to study in his spare time and the father in glancing through it found a money-making idea for his own business. "Keep the service station clean," said the sales manual. "Motorists avoid dirty, littered, unkempt stations. The one and only reason we ask you to keep your station clean is that it makes more sales."

The manual went on to point out that keeping a place of business clean is not an occasional back breaking job but more a matter of laying out a regular schedule of work to be done and doing a little each day with clock-like regularity. "If customers are attracted by cleanliness when they just buy gasoline, oil and grease to go into an automobile," said the grocer, "it's a better idea for a store where they come to buy things to put in their mouths."

The next day the following schedule was posted in the back of the grocery store:

Monday—Wash and trim display windows.

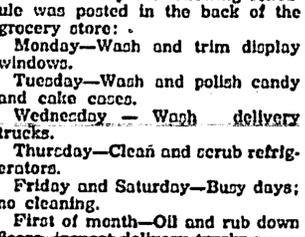

Tuesday—Wash and polish candy and cake cases.

Wednesday—Wash delivery trucks.

Thursday—Clean and scrub refrigerators.

Friday and Saturday—Busy days; no cleaning.

First of month—Oil and rub down floors, inspect delivery trucks.

MAKE MONEY ON LAZINESS

"WHAT is the best way to make a lot of money in the manufacturing business?" said a young college graduate to one of the country's leading manufacturers.

"Build a monument to laziness," said the manufacturer, "and it will make you rich. See that big bakery over there," he continued, "it is a monument to women's laziness. Most women used to bake their bread at home. Along came the commercial baker. He told women not to bother about mixing dough, bending over hot ovens but to let George do it at 10 cents a loaf. They did, have more leisure to enjoy life and a great industry is made."

"Don't walk and don't bother to hitch up a horse and buggy," said the automobile manufacturer, and Detroit became dotted with monuments to laziness which make the pyramids look like ant hills. "Don't walk up the stairs," said the elevator manufacturer and built hundreds of monuments to laziness by making the modern skyscraper possible. "Don't spend so much time cooking breakfast foods when I can pre-cook your food for you at my factory." Today's cereals require only 2 1/2 minutes home cooking time, and another monument to laziness results.

"When I say laziness I mean the normal desire to avoid useless drudgery. The politicians tell about the more abundant life but look around you and judge for yourself how much of it comes from the monuments to laziness created by business men."

'Mad Anthony's' Home

Has Historic Interest
NEW YORK.—It walls had tongues instead of ears what stories they could tell. Particularly those of Waynesborough, Pa. "Mad Anthony" Wayne's birthplace, a beautiful stone house which casts its friendly gaze through old shade trees and shrubs across broad and fertile acres.

The left wing, built in 1722 by Anthony Wayne, the general's grandfather, was the farmhouse for the 530-acre estate that this astute gentleman purchased piecemeal as he could, writes Bernice Mueller Ball in American Collector. The remaining two wings were added in 1740 by Isaac Wayne, his father. There "Mad Anthony" was born in 1746, although his political and military activities kept him away from home a great deal of the time.

Don't Put off "Alkalinizing" when you have these signs of Acid Indigestion

Check these symptoms—and if you suspect excess stomach acids, take Phillips' Milk of Magnesia. If trouble persists, See Your Doctor.

Today it's so easy to "alkalize" excess acids anywhere you are. Now when distress comes at home, all you do is take 2 tablepoonsful of liquid Phillips' Milk of Magnesia. When you are out with others, simply slip 2 Phillips' Milk of Magnesia Tablets in your mouth like you would candy mints. That's all you do to feel wonderful.

Either form of Phillips' works the same way—very quickly. You can't beat it for welcome fast relief from after-eating distress. Almost at once you feel "gas", nausea, that "lumpy" feeling from hyper-acidity begin to ease. "Acid" headaches, "acid breath" are corrected right at the source.

It's a wonderful way to free yourself from distress and embarrassment. Try it. But be sure when you buy to ask for "Phillips'". To insure getting the genuine fast-acting Phillips' article.

Author of

"The Thirteenth Commandment"

"Within These Walls"

"Cup of Fury"

"WHERE am I? How did I get here? What country is this? Who are you?"

But the answer was the same falsetto gibberish in which Jebb, who was something of a linguist, could find no kinship to any language of his acquaintance—

THAT'S THE predicament in which Dr. David Jebb found himself after one of his periodic and much-hated drinking bouts. And by the time you find out where he is, you'll know "The Gift Wife" is every bit as good as any story Rupert Hughes has ever written.

TRUTH about ADVERTISING

By CHARLES B. ROTH

'PLEASE PASS THE CUSTOMERS'

THERE'S one muscle in the human anatomy which was named by a humorist with boarding-house experience. It is called the "boarding-house muscle" because it is the muscle which enables you to extend your arm—and reach.

It took its name, of course, from the dining-tables of boarding-houses, where to reach far was to get more to eat at a table where everybody was so engrossed in his plate he didn't have the time or the inclination to pass anything to anyone else. Reach won.

In business it is reach also that wins. One of the chief values of advertising to the advertiser is that it gives him a reach for customers. Every business must both reach customers and reach for them if it is to exist.

The business man whose reach is longest or most skilled is the man who brings the most customers into his store. And those who reach the best have the best stores and can give the best values.

The chief concern of every business is its customers. Who are they? Where do they live? Why should they trade with me? How can

I tell them of the advantages of my business? Every business man asks these questions. Every successful business man answers them.

In the reach for customers, it isn't a muscle which does the trick. It is advertising.

A man starts a store. Somewhere are men and women who should buy from him. He is sincere in his desire to serve. But unless he does something about it, his store will fall before enough customers find their way to his doors.

He has to reach out for them. He begins to advertise where customers will see—in the newspaper. One reads. He is convinced. He goes to the store. He is well-treated. He buys. He likes what he bought. He returns to buy again.

Gradually, as more advertising appears, more customers come, buy, return to buy again. The reach for customers is building a great business.

But don't you see that the business man is not the only one who has benefited in the process?

Every customer who found there a better place to buy, a place where he could get a little bit better merchandise and a little bit better service at a little bit better price, also benefited.

The customer benefits as much from advertising as the business man, if not more.

WINTER'S ACCURSED 90 HOURS

—mild to your OIL-PLATED engine

5 to 8 minutes "hot" unless your cold engine is straining to start up without prompt lubrication. And less than a dozen cold starts a day can threaten an hour's lubrication delay. In the course of the Winter that could exceed 90 hours!

Let's not just hope that 90 hours or even half that won't hurt. Avoid the worst chance of this harm... change today to OIL-PLATING. Your engine becomes OIL-PLATED as you drive from Your Mileage Merchant's Conoco station with a fill of his Conoco Germ Processed oil—patented. The rare man-made substance in this Germ Processed oil effects a close bond between oil and engine parts. OIL-PLATING can't all drain down every time the car stands, and therefore OIL-PLATING isn't waiting to be restored "from scratch" every time you start up. In advance of any oil-flow, OIL-PLATING is there! . . . Lets the starter turn easy, the engine turn fast, and you're safely away. The only wait is a good long one before you add another quart of Germ Processed oil. OIL-PLATE today. Continental Oil Co.
