Governor Miles to Open Campaign Monday

Santa Fe, Aug. 15. Governor John E. Miles today announced the platform on which he will seek re-election.

The platform includes pledges of no new taxes, continuance of the highway construction program on a competitive bid basis, divorce of schools from politics, extension of the merit system, increases of payments to the aged to an ultimate minimum of $20 a month.

The Governor plans to open his campaign Monday night at Socorro. His first campaign talk will be carried on a radio hook-up.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Greer were in town Wednesday and Thursday from the Greer ranch.

Republicans use Hatch Act As Smoke Screen

Santa Fe, August 15, 1940.—Benj. D. Luchini, Democratic state chairman, today took issue with Republican charges alleging violations of the Hatch Act in New Mexico. Pointing out that charges and counter charges hurled during political campaigns were usually manufactured out of thin air, Luchini said that if any violations of the act were known they should be reported to the proper officials, not the newspapers. Luchini said that as far as he knew every state department head whose employees come under the provisions of the ban on politics were making a sincere effort to see that all the provisions of the law were complied with.

The Democratic chairman added that in the almost total absence of campaign issues it was only natural that the Republicans should seize upon the Hatch Act as a smokescreen to cover their shortcomings. "As far as I know," Luchini said, "the head of every state department coming under the provisions of the Hatch Act is making an honest effort to see that the law is scrupulously observed. As rapidly as opinions are handed down concerning the application of the law necessary adjustments will be made and instructions issued to state employees who come under its provisions.

"The Democratic administration has been an excellent one and it is only natural that the Republicans, short of legitimate campaign issues should seize upon the Hatch Act as a smokescreen to cover their own shortcomings. These charges and counter-charges are a part of every New Mexico political campaign and are not very impressive.

"The Democratic candidates will campaign for office on the record that the Democrats of New Mexico have made. The Hatch Act will be observed and the thinking people of New Mexico will not be diverted from the real issues of the campaign by the charges being made out of thin air and hurled by minority party leaders. Any violations of the Hatch Act and proper proof should be presented to the authorities, not to the newspapers."

Preparedness Is Speeding Ahead, Says F.D.R.

Visiting the U. S. naval stations, aerial and ship yards in the Norfolk, Va., area, and the naval and army bases in the Hampton Roads, Va., area, President Roosevelt expressed his pleasure over the advancing state of armament preparations. At left, the President is shown some 37 millimeter anti-aircraft shells by Lieut. E. H. Waller at Fort Monroe. At right, the President is shown arriving at the Norfolk navy yard with his naval aide, Capt. Daniel J. Callaghan. The presidential yacht Potomac is in background.

Skull Practice Perfects A.R.P. Wardens' Work

Efficient rescue work by air raid precautions wardens in England following bombings by Nazis is due to their rigid training. Above is shown a squad of wardens during a "skull drill" in a tactical table in one of the air headquarters in London. By using this table the men are carefully drilled in handling traffic, administering aid to the injured and extinguishing fires during the raids. Credit for an unusually low casualty rate during the raids on England following France's capitulation was given them.

Bottle Tops Make Guns for Tommies

Miss Lillian Hall, a London clothes model, appointed herself a committee of one to collect all the metal bottle tops she could find. Her quest was in response to the government's appeal for old metal to be transformed into guns and munitions with which to meet the onslaught of the Nazis. Among other articles being collected are pots, pans, old cannon and tin cans. The movement which was started in London spread to other cities in the British Isles.

Free Competition in Foreign Trade Ends For U. S. if Britain Falls, Says Lippmann

(Released by Western Newspaper Union.)
DECLARING "that a free economy, such as Americans have known, cannot survive in a world that is elsewhere under a regime of military socialism," Walter Lippmann, writing in Life, emphasizes that there are four great industrial concentrations in the world, the American, the European, the Russian and the Japanese; that if Britain is conquered "the European, the Russian and the Asiatic industrial systems will all be operated by military governments as severely regimented collectivist systems. The following is a summary of the ideas presented by Walter Lippmann.

The American manufacturing area—around such centers as Chicago, Detroit, Cleveland, Pittsburgh, Wilmington, New York, Birmingham and so forth—may soon contain the only primary workshops on earth in which private property still persists under constitutional guarantees; in which the managers, the workers, the shareholders are not under the direct command of an all-powerful National Socialist or Communist government. In this American industrial region alone private firms may still be bargaining collectively; workers may still be free to quit their jobs and great industrialists like Henry Ford may still be free to refuse to make the airplane motors that government policy calls for; banks, insurance companies and private capitalists may still be free to invest or not to invest in this or that enterprise.

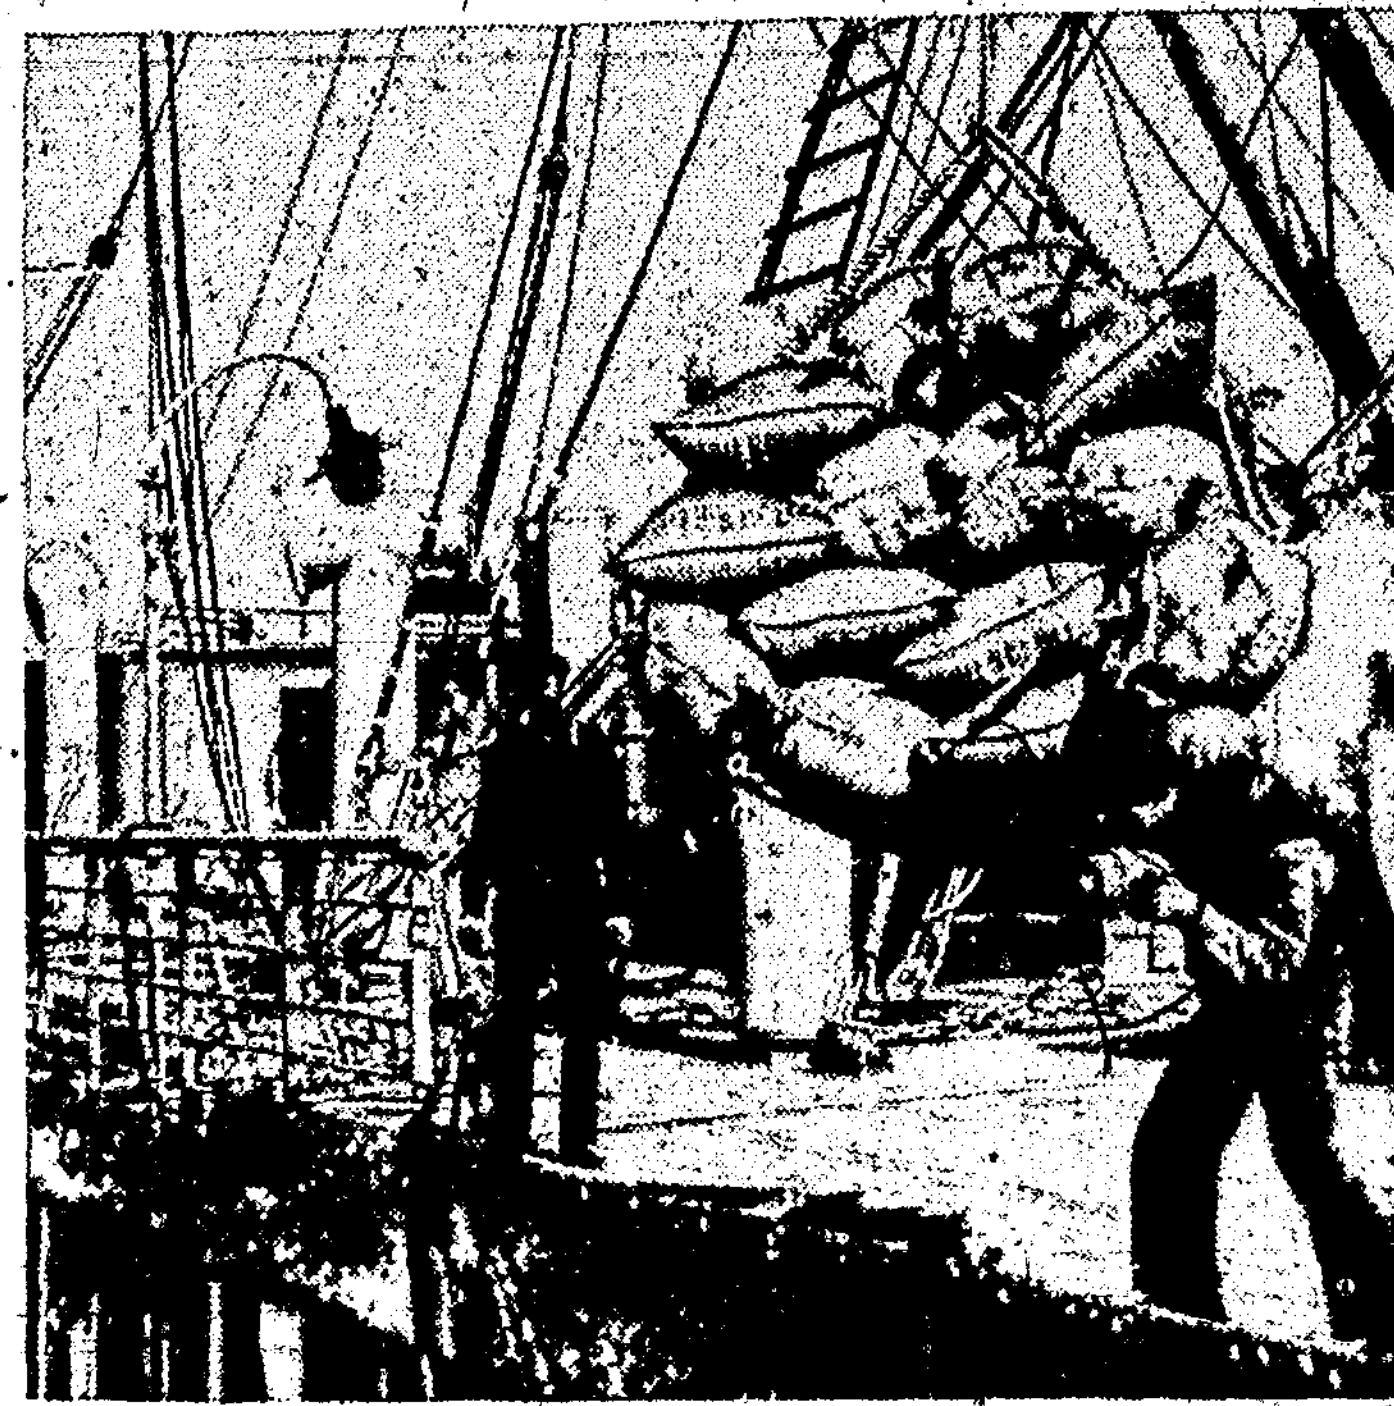

In the other industrial regions none of these liberties remain, and if the British commonwealth is conquered and subjugated and revolutionized, none of these liberties which are normal in the American way of conducting industry will be re-established.

No Private Rights. Even though nominally and in appearance come of the outward forms of capitalism may still survive, in fact totalitarian industry is regimented and directed by a dictatorial government.

There is property. But it has no rights as against the government.

There are contracts. But there are no contracts, private or public, that the government may not modify or break.

There is no competition among exporters and importers except that which the state cartels and the government which controls foreign exchange will permit. The export prices of goods are controlled by the government.

Loading of ships with American products for sale abroad may become a rarity if the British empire falls before the onslaught of the Axis powers, for the export markets of the world will then be dominated by the totalitarian industrial monopolies and America will face a menacing economical future. This is the belief of Walter Lippmann, noted writer and economist.

Imports are controlled by the government; imports are not bought by business men but by political agents of the government.

The wages of labor, the hours of labor, the movements of labor are set by the decrees of the government. The conquered peoples work as prisoners of war.

Industry as a whole is directed for the purposes of the state—to produce armaments, to obtain supplies abroad, to establish political power abroad.

Trade by Government Monopolies.

If this system established itself finally in Europe and Asia, our own manufacturers, our own farmers and miners and the farmers and miners of South America will no longer be trading and competing with private firms and private producers. They will be competing and trading with these gigantic government monopolies managed by dictators and backed by enormous armed forces. Under these conditions it is absurd to imagine that American manufacturers, farmers, miners, working men and investors can return to normalcy and do business as usual.

If the rest of the world's industry accepts or sinks under totalitarian rule, no doubt we shall have something to do some business with the rest of the world. But for any public man to tell the people that they can do normal business by normal methods in such an absolutely abnormal condition of affairs is to mislead the people cruelly, to blind them to the need for the extraordinary measures of protection that they will have to have, to render them defenseless and then to take them down the road to ruin.

The plain fact of the matter is that if Britain falls, then Europe, Asia and Africa will be ruled from Berlin, Moscow and Tokyo. The American manufacturers will then be allowed to supply the totalitarian hemisphere with those products in which the totalitarian empires are temporarily deficient—as a matter of fact, to supply them with those products which will be immediately necessary in order to make totalitarian industry entirely independent of American industry.

American farmers and miners will be allowed to supply the totalitarian empires with the food and raw materials temporarily needed to tide them over until they can make themselves independent of American supplies. And these temporary supplies will be paid for either in goods manufactured by the enslaved labor of Europe or in gold obtained by conquest (gold that we shall then have to bury in Kentucky) or on credit asked of us in the name of humanity and of reconstruction, credit that will never be and can never be repaid.

At the same time the totalitarian industrial monopolies will take possession of the export markets of the world.

Finally, our domestic economy in the U. S. will face unprecedented difficulties. The disposal of the surpluses of agriculture, mining, and industry will have to be done in competition with the products of the enslaved, subjugated or vassal regions of Europe, Asia, Africa and South America.

The important raw materials in which we are deficient will have to be obtained from the totalitarian monopolists. Inevitably we shall have to transform into armament industries many industries that now produce for export. Inevitably we shall have to take hold of our food and raw-material surpluses and use them as instruments of economic warfare.

To do this we shall inevitably have to bring all foreign trade under government control. Inevitably we shall therefore have to bring domestic industry under a control that fixes quotas, allocates raw materials and regulates prices. Inevitably we shall have to reduce the American standard of life.

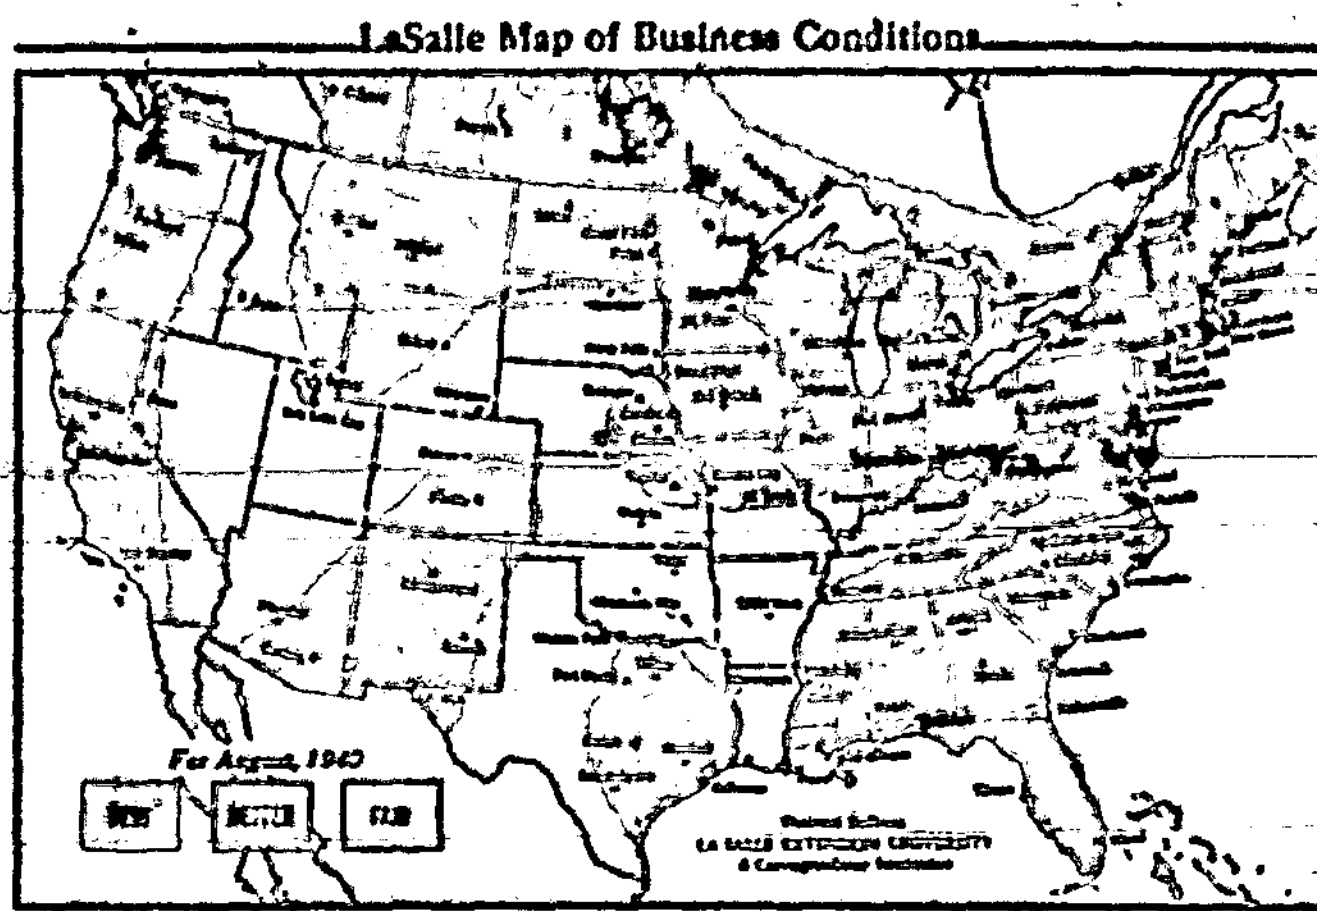

The Price of Independence.

For these measures, which are inexorably necessary if the nation is to maintain its independence, are the inevitable price we shall have to pay for deciding to let ourselves become isolated in a totalitarian world. Americans attempting to do business under a free, competitive, unorganized and unmanaged industrial system would be like naked soldiers trying to stop a charge of tanks.

In this condition of acute economic distress, the country will be invaded by foreign agents seeking to make deals with helpless, frightened, ignorant and shortsighted private interests. These deals will be at the expense of other private interests. They will set one section of the country against another, one industry against other industries.

Private industries that do manage to sell to the totalitarian agents can be paid only by imports, produced by enslaved labor, which will compete ruinously in the domestic market for other American industries. Or these private interests will be paid in stolen gold that cannot be spent and will have to be buried. And if the oppressed industries that are threatened by this competition object, then the few interests that might have done business with the totalitarian agents will clamor and complain.

Preparedness Sets Business Pace

The above map accompanying the August bulletin of U. S. business conditions issued by LaSalle Extension university, illustrates the current trade picture in various sections of the country. Business activity continues to expand; new orders in several industries are greater than output; volume of trade is 7 per cent above 1939.

By L. G. ELLIOTT

CHICAGO.—The expansion of business which began in the latter part of April continues to gain momentum. The rate of production is now close to the highest point of the year, and in some lines it is not far from the peak that was reached last December.

The steel industry has been the leader in the improvement which has already taken place. Operations have increased from 60 per cent of capacity in the early part of April, to 83 per cent. Domestic buying is active, and foreign orders have been received in large volume. These are expected to push the rate several per cent higher during the coming weeks.

Even if foreign orders should decline, the reduction will be more than counterbalanced by added preparedness expenditures. When the defense program gets under way the increase in government spending will provide as large market for industry as has the export trade during the first part of this year.

The building industry has also been moving ahead steadily. The greatest gains have been made in engineering construction. Recently contracts awarded for this type of construction have reached the highest level in history. This program includes projects in nearly all parts of the United States, and will stimulate activity in many lines.

In the textile industry activity has been considerably increased at the woolen mills, and the output of the cotton mills has been maintained at a higher rate than usual. Production of rayon continues to be large.

Prices of commodities have remained relatively stable with only small declines in the general average since the sharp upward spurt at the outbreak of war last September. Farm prices have held firm and total farm income for the first five months of the year was 10 per cent higher than during the corresponding period last year. Crop prospects are promising, and the estimates are that total output this year will be above the 10-year average. The vigor with which industry has progressed indicates the basic strength of our economic system.

COSTLY BRIDGE

The war department says Boston must continue to furnish drawbridge service at night on three bridges over Fort Point channel, although it costs the city $2,200 per boat. During the first eight months of 1939 only five vessels passed the bridges during those hours with payroll expenses totaling $11,368. The war department denied the city's petition for closing drawbridges from 10 p. m. to 6 a. m.

Financing For Gain

Farm financing through the agencies of the Farm Credit Administration of Wichita totaled $16,704,425 during the first half of 1940, a healthy increase over the first half of 1939, Acting General Agent Pepperell stated today.

The Federal Land Bank of Wichita and the Land Bank Commissioner lent $3,656,700. Currently the land bank is making a larger percentage of its loans to finance the purchase of farms than at any time in its history.

Loans to cooperatives from the Wichita Bank for Cooperatives, Pepperell said, also increased from $1,420,911 in loans made during the first half of 1939, to $1,702,397 in the like period of 1940.

In the field of short term crop and livestock financing, the 41 production credit associations in Kansas, Oklahoma, Colorado, and New Mexico, advanced $11,448,519 during the first half of the year, which was the largest volume in any similar period since organization.

They Deserve Your Respect and Honor

The recruiting officer was here the 7th asking for volunteers. He only got one young man for the army.

The army is the very backbone to our country. It is an honor to wear the uniform of your country and to live up to what it represents. No other class of men on earth are regarded so highly, some envious civilians to the contrary notwithstanding.

We are proud of our flag and and we are proud of the Army and Navy that uphold the honor of our flag. The parents who speak slighting of the army or the uniform in the presence of their young sons are guilty of planting seeds of disloyalty and disrespect to the greatest men on earth, the soldiers of all the ages. Six times the men of our country have been called to arms. Six times they have unselfishly given their time, services, and their lives, and then for some ignorant cheese to say slighting things about the men they will have to depend upon for protection makes my blood boil.

The delicacy of the human eye is indicated clearly by the fact that the muscles moving it weigh from one-hundredth to one-fourth of an ounce.

Nautical Notes

The Navy was in charge of light houses until 1912 when they were taken over by the Department of Commerce.

Cooperation Requested: At the time of the Squalus disaster, smoke bombs were observed by fishermen thought the bombs were some form of drill so made no report of them. A submarine of the Navy which may be in need of assistance releases a red smoke bomb. A submarine which may be compelled to come to the surface in the vicinity of surface craft releases a yellow smoke bomb. Surface vessels should keep clear of these yellow smoke bombs. Any person sighting a red smoke bomb on the surface of the water should report the time and the location immediately to the nearest Naval authority or Coast Guard Unit.

George Washington Almost A Sailor: "The Father of his Country" was a land lubber no fault of his own. As a young man he was so determined to join the Navy (in spite of parental objections) that he allowed himself to be taken in a water front saloon by the press gang. However, he was doomed to disappointment, for the officer in charge of the press recognized him as the son of an influential citizen and sent him home-much to his chagrin.

First Naval Battle: The first naval battle was fought in 480 B.C., when 366 Greek ships outfought and overpowered 600 Persian vessels at the Battle of Salamis.

Coffin Ships: This term is in no way descriptive of vessels loaded with wooden kimonos. It is a maritime insurance designation and refers to the corrupt custom of over insuring unseaworthy hulls, and sending them on a voyage with the sinister purpose of deliberately losing them.

Industry Stands Ready

The city of Flint, Michigan, recently celebrated what might be termed its annual harvest festival. Since Flint is probably the most distinctly automotive city in the world, with one-fourth of its total population employed in motor plants, the crop for which thanks were given was, approximately enough, automobiles.

The Flint Motor Festival, although only three years old, is fast becoming a tradition in the automotive world. But this year it was significance to the entire nation. Flint set an example that other communities can well emulate.

Taking cognizance of the storm clouds gathering on the nation's horizons, Flint built this year's Festival around the theme, "Industry Stands Ready -- For National Defense." To give concrete expression to this theme a campaign was launched to obtain signatures to a pledge that "We, the undersigned citizens of Flint, Michigan, stand ready to do our part as workers in American industry to defend and preserve the peace of our country."

Today that campaign reposes in the White House -- a massive volume of 1,018 pages containing the signatures of 48,454 citizens of Flint. The book bears impressive witness to the willingness of the workers of one industrial community to forget their local differences and stand united for the tasks of defense.

Last Friday after the paper was printed we noticed that the shippers had gotten their addresses exchanged and we had the Outlook continued story and vice versa. That was alright--only the Lincoln County News had about two columns about Wendell Wilkie which we had no intention of publishing. But accidents do happen in the best regulated of newspaper offices.

As one of the festival speakers well said "We do not yet know what role we shall be assigned. It may well be that our greatest contribution will be to see that the wheels of our normal industrial economy continue to turn. To our factories running, our people prosperous and our moral high is just as important as to keep our powder dry. But, whatever tasks are set for us, we stand ready."

And we are sure that, not only in Flint but in every city in the land, "Industry Stands Ready."

Searchers for the Western Sea

TWO CENTURIES after Coronado made his unsuccessful attempt to find the "Seven Cities of Cibola," a French Canadian fur trader, Pierre Gauthier de Varennes de la Verendrye, and his sons, explored the wilderness of our mountain country, attempting to find a northwest passage to the Pacific Ocean.

After eight years of exploration, fierce encounters with Indians of many tribes, and the loss of a son, a nephew and many others of his party, he turned back discouraged.

In the spring of 1742 his two sons tried once more. Although their exploration was a failure in the same sense that Coronado's was, to the Verendryes belongs the credit of being the first white men to see the Rocky or "Shining Mountains."

There are pioneers today just as there were centuries ago--in business, in medicine, in engineering, in telephony.

Telephone pioneers built the speech trails over the vast stretches of this country of ours. Their efforts, while less spectacular than those of the early pioneers, have had an important part in developing the vast expanses of plains, deserts, and mountains.

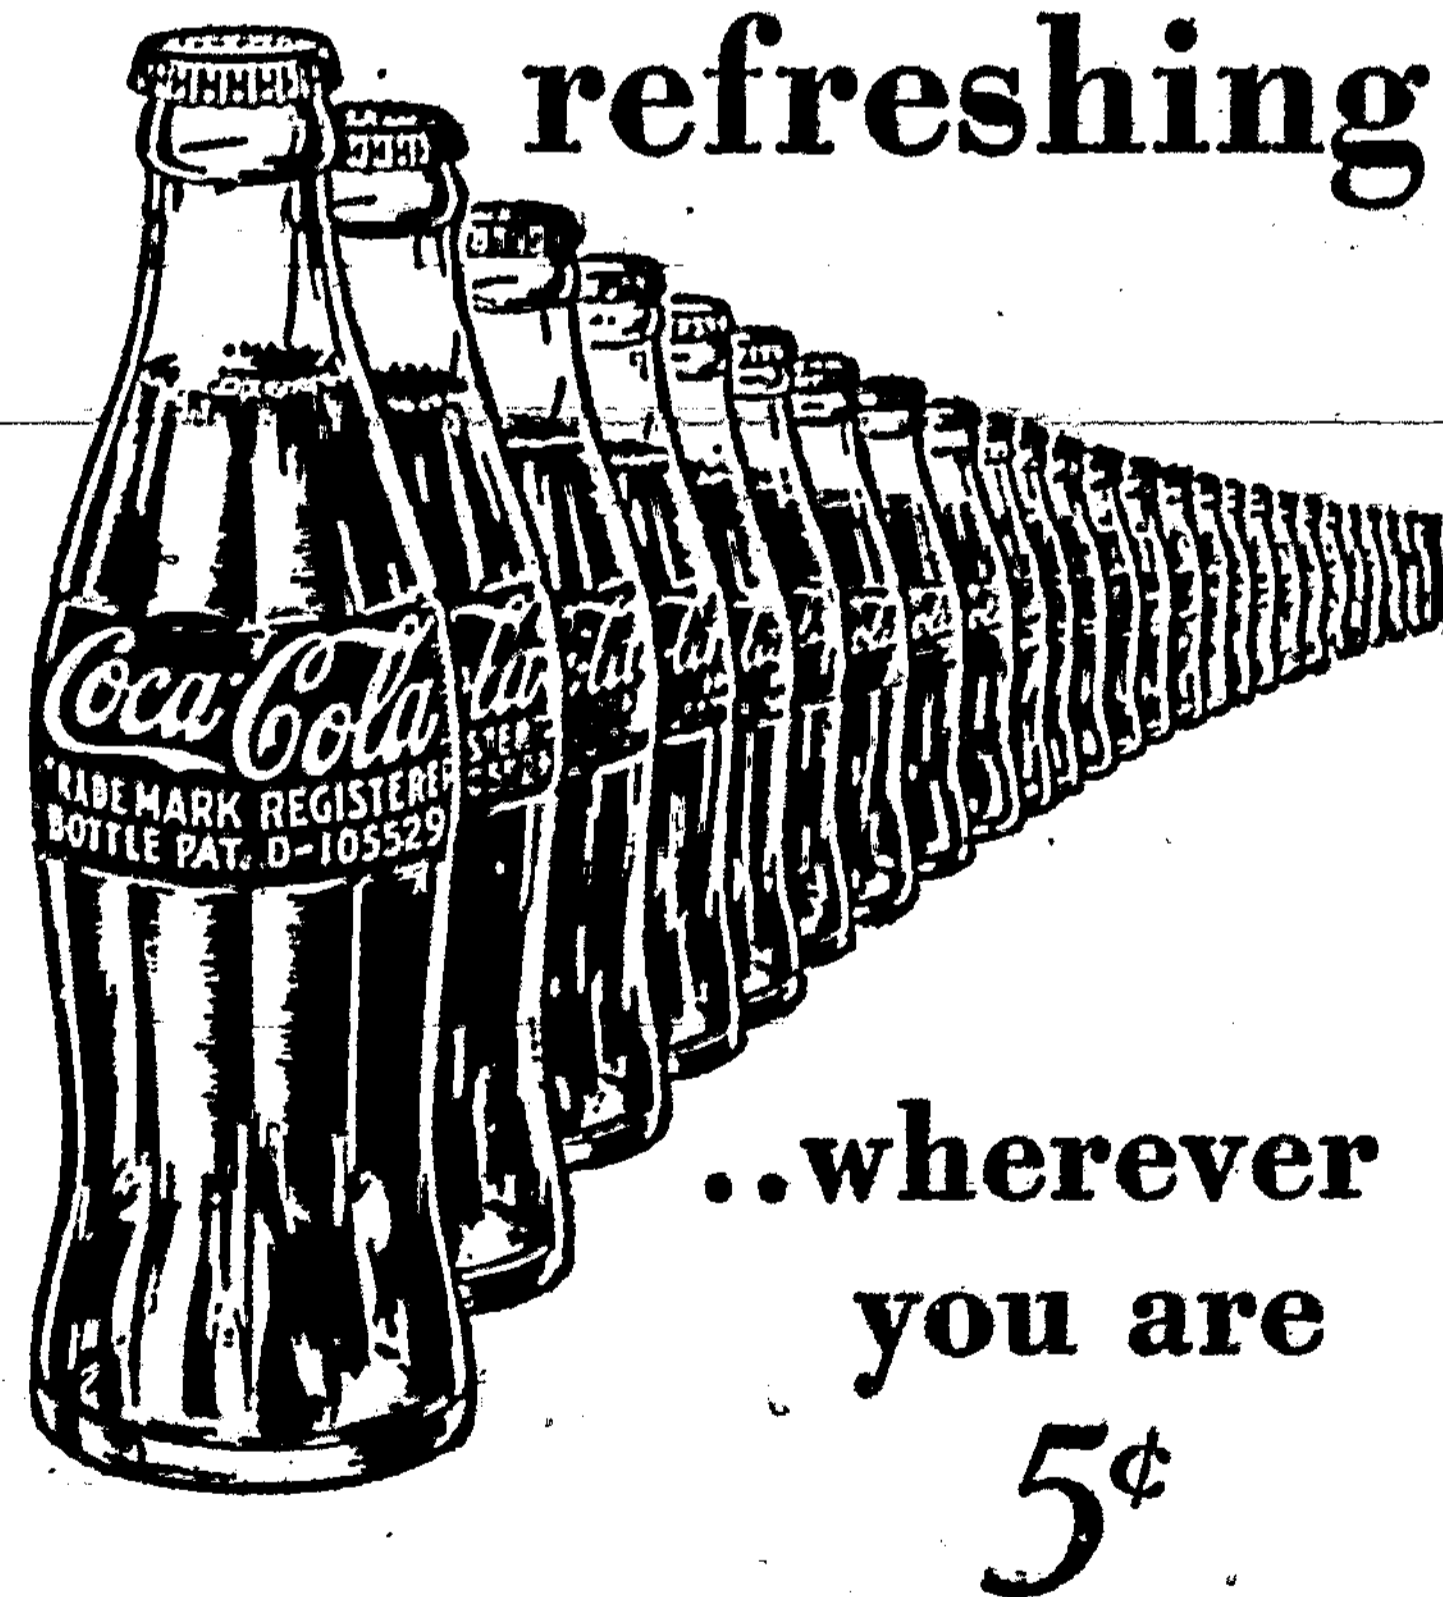

A few years ago a transoceanic call was an innovation. Today friends or business associates in sixty countries around the world are as near as your telephone.

But telephone pioneering will never cease. Its policy and goal are unchanging; the most and best possible telephone service at the least possible cost.

National Defense Projects

Washington, D. C. August 14, 1940. An Albuquerque newspaper during the week editorially inquired what New Mexico was going to get out of the National Defense Program. The program in the country is so vast that naturally everything can't be attended to at once. I know officially that several investigations are being made now as to the possibilities of establishing national defense projects in New Mexico. Our Chambers of Commerce and civic-minded citizens have been very much on the alert and have recommenced establishment of depots, airplane squadron activities, mechanic schools, the development of production of strategic and essential war materials. New Mexico, through its geographical location, its climatic advantages, its transportation facilities, its natural resources, and its enterprising citizenship is bound to and will get some of the governmental activities.

The Senate has been considering a bill to authorize the President to call out the National Guard for service, and on Friday will start considering the selected draft or conscription bill. It is the consensus of opinion that it will take the Senate three or four weeks to dispose of same, tremendous interest being shown by people from all over the country.
