News of Carrizozo Schools

The Carrizozo Boys Basketball Team is playing in Socorro tonight Friday. Saturday tomorrow night they will play Hagerman on the local court.

The game Saturday on local court will be one of the finest of the season because Hagerman has a fine record. Hagerman recently beat Roswell, Artesia and Lake Arthur.

The final examination given Thursday and Friday proved to very popular as students and teachers stayed with them during the full scheduled time.

The Junior Class is staging a contest selling tickets to their play, "You Wouldn't Fool Me."

A Poster showing the various activities of Americanization Week has been issued in a two color scheme. Patrons and Pupils should secure a poster and plan early on attending all the events.

Mr. Caton, Athletic Coach, is driving a new Buick Sedan.

Miss Forse who was ill last week returned to her class work Monday.

Mr. Stiles is walking on a cane this week as a result of an injury to his right knee, incurred while practicing Basketball.

Mr. Carpenter spent the last week-end with his daughter in Taos.

A piccolo band is being organized in the sixth and fifth grades. This is a definite step in the musical education of the children in that they come in contact with instrumental music. Thus for a very small fee, children start instrumental work.

Mr. Hildebrand is an exemplary young man and has a pleasing personality.

A host of friends extend congratulations and wishes for the best of everything in life.

Protect Your Child And Others

There is impending an epidemic of Measles in Lincoln County. Its size will depend to a very great extent upon the cooperation of parents. Owing to a common "Cold" in its beginning one is liable to disregard its nature and significance. It is during this period, lasting some four or five days, that it is most highly transmissible to others. The rash appears about four or five days after its onset. It is still communicable during the period when the rash is present. The rash also lasts about four or five days.

If your child feels out of sorts, develops a slight hacking cough, headache, slightly feverish condition, eyes watery and later red you might reasonably expect that he is coming down with measles.

Measles is a dangerous disease, particularly for children under five years of age and for those who are older but who are liable to be exposed to inclement weather. Pneumonia usually results in these and, it is most always fatal. Sometimes Tuberculosis results, either very soon after an attack or a few years thereafter.

If your child becomes ill keep him to himself, away from his brothers and sisters and from others. By all means, keep him away from school, if he is a school child and report the situation to the teacher or the Health Department.

Brownfield-Nunn

The Methodist church at Deming was the scene of the wedding Sunday of Miss Beth Brownfield, daughter of A. D. Brownfield, of Florida, Luna county, and P. W. Nunn, son of Mr. and Mrs. Pryor Nunn of Hillsboro, the Rev. L. L. Thurston, pastor, officiating. Immediate members of the two families and intimate friends attended the ceremony.

The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Jane Brownfield, and was given in marriage by her father. A brother of the groom, Richard Nunn, was the best man. After the wedding, the couple left for a motor honeymoon trip to Tucson, and Phoenix, Arizona. They will make their home on the Nunn ranch near Hillsboro.

Mrs. Nunn taught school last year at Florida. She studied at Southern Methodist University, Texas College of Mines and was graduated from the University of New Mexico, where she was a member of Kappa Kappa Gamma sorority.

Mr. Nunn, with his father operates the Box T ranch near Hillsboro, and the Flying Y ranch east of Deming. He is one of the best known young ranchmen and livestock raisers in the state.—Deming Graphic.

Fight Infantile Paralysis

Infantile paralysis cases in New Mexico in 1939 led the 47 other states with a total of 107 victims, it is reported by the State Health Department.

With this in mind, Drive Chairman Clyde Tingley declared, "Residents of New Mexico require no outside testimony to awaken them to the necessity of a mighty drive against infantile paralysis and the most expert care of its victims."

"The national figure for the first 48 weeks showed 6,803 cases as compared with the 1,596 for the same period last year. The citizen has not done his or her part who does not join the fight in some manner."

Fifty per cent of the proceeds will be left in the county where raised, for the benefit of the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis embracing that county. The remaining 50 per cent will be turned over to the committee of the National Foundation.

HOW BANKS SERVE

IN CASE OF EMERGENCY

WHEN a sudden need for money arises, such as sickness in the family, it is mighty comforting to have a substantial bank balance. And even if such emergencies never arise, there is satisfaction in the knowledge that you are ready, come what may. Have you an ample cash reserve? If not, start building one now.

Radio Sound Men Fool Public
With Strange Noise Gadgets

RADIO'S demand for sound effects that make a storm or police raid sound real to millions of listeners has created a new profession of sound effects men who, on a moment's notice, can fill any request—no matter how crazy—from a producer. Harry Saz, with the National Broadcasting company at Hollywood, illustrates in these pictures how the great deception is accomplished:

Picture Parade

When asked to reproduce the sound of a beating heart, Saz spent hours experimenting, then decided to try the real thing. Above: He strips to the waist and applies the microphone to his own heart, getting the desired result. Left: A conquering army invades a city and the marching feet of the military is reproduced with this gadget.

Rain pattering on a tin roof for the radio audience. Harry Saz is shown creating this effect by dropping grape seeds from a sprinkling can onto a piece of paper.

Below: Here comes the show boat! Saz blows a riverboat horn and churns a box of water with a crank that turns small wooden paddles.

Above: A thunderstorm over the prairies. Saz uses a huge drum made of a single piece of steer hide.

Christmas chimes didn't sound like the real thing over the radio, so Saz tried hitting a discarded brake drum with a small hammer. It worked, and that's what you hear over the radio each Yuletide.

Fifteen thousand records of different sounds in this library!

MORE ABOUT THOSE HATS
 How to tell whether the snood is part of the hat or the hat part of the snood is a major difficulty. In either case it gives a woman the appearance of having become tangled in some mosquito netting while putting on her bonnet.

Still, the snood isn't entirely to blame for the comic angle in 1939 millinery. It's the hats themselves. They have gone babyish. They look like those little things that used to be used as ornaments on birthday cakes.

The idea seems to be to get an adult into a hat designed for kindergarten wear.

We have seen old-fashioned pen wipers that would make ideal bonnets for misses' and ladies' wear this season.

 Middle-aged stranger who can't remember his name. Semi-hysterical condition. Constantly cries, "Ouch!" "Stop it!" and "You got me!" When not pulling covers over his head demands that he be allowed to hide in closet. Has numerous wounds, cuts and abrasions. Diagnosis: Probably a parent with three or more male children, two of whom got bows and arrows and air rifles for Christmas.

Case No. II.
 Pfaff, Mr. and Mrs. Felix E., about 23 years of age; were brought to psychopathic ward together in state of complete nervous collapse. Can get nothing from them except the words, "Never again!" Diagnosis: A young married couple who didn't know any better than to give Junior a drum.

Case No. III.
 Unidentified man, white, 51, says he is one of the Van Sweringen Brothers; covered with adhesive tape and temporary Red Cross bandages; talks incessantly and unintelligibly about "crossovers," "yards," "freight depots," and "main lines." And from time to time demands "Where's the ambulance? Didn't I tell you there was a big wreck?" Diagnosis: Obviously has been playing with Junior's electric train set ever since 5 a. m. Christmas morning.

Revival of Brocade Tunes to
Vogue for Fabric Elegance

By CLERIE NICHOLAS

WHEN in a dress-up mood, what to wear is the question. The revival of brocade among fabrics of high fashion, as announced for spring, may well be regarded as a perfectly good answer to the query.

The big news is the neat-patterned brocades in necktie silk effects that make up into most wearable daytime frocks that are dressy at the same time that they are eminently practical.

If you are looking for a daytime frock that will guarantee style distinction take note of the three swank afternoon types here illustrated. The material used for this trio of exceptionally smart fashions is the new-this-season brocade of damask-woven bemberg rayon.

You can get it in monotone or two-color effects, its high and low luster filaments producing a handsome brocade patterning. If you are your own seamstress, buy a few yards of this attractive brocade, provide yourself with a reliable pattern and turn on power for your electric sewing machine. However, if you are not enamored with the thought of being your own dressmaker you will find modes similar to the ones pictured easily available in shops and dress sections throughout style centers.

Looking at the illustration you sense at a glance that the new brocades yield perfectly to high-styling. Add a handbag of the same brocade and the ensemble will prove a delight to the eye. One even sees shoes made of brocade, likewise scarfs and belts.

The jacket suit made of the neat necktie-patterned brocade will be featured later on in the spring, its charm accented with the prettiness of a blouse of the daintiest lace-trimmed lingerie type.

For example the gown to the right says it with "style" definitely. This peplum dress in figure-fitting and flattering. The brocade that fashions it is in a violet-leaf motif damask-woven patterning. A self-fabric bow at the belt and the high neck closing is the only ornamentation, for material such as this handsome brocade exemplifies the thought that "beauty unadorned is adorned the most."

Centered in the picture is one of the season's best-loved fashions—the princess silhouette that is artfully fitted at the waistline with the skirt that is gently flared. A flower-patterned damask of bemberg rayon is used for this model.

To the left a figure-molding afternoon dress in a richly brocaded ballet dancing patterning holds forth in the illustration. The high-necked bodice is enhanced with a large old-fashioned brooch.

Designers are making varied uses of brocade. Milliners welcome this new damask-woven material as perfect for the very stylish draped turbans for which everybody is calling. These bright colorful bits of headwear are charming with winter furs.

Disseminated by Western Newspaper Union.

New-Length Sleeve

Sleeve lengths grow capricious. The type most called for and one new in the field today is the bracelet-length sleeve. The dress pictured is so sleeved. Another feature in current styling is that dresses are subtly designed to achieve "lines" that take inches off the strategic points so as to slim the figure according to fashion's way of thinking. Details that accomplish this feat in the gown pictured are wide shoulders so as to make the waistline look smaller in comparison, darts above the waistline to accent the new "nipped in" look, and smoothness around the hips. Sou-tache scrolls trim this frock which is fashioned of moss-green sheer wool.

Pastel Lane Turbans
 For a glowing accompaniment to a dark dinner suit, oriental turbans of draped pastel lame are a new suggestion.

Red Shoes Novel
Touch at Resorts

If you would keep tab on coming events that cast their shadows before, watch the style parade that is traveling the highways and beaches in southern sun-bright resorts. One thing your amazed eyes will see is red shoes. They are being worn with all types of costumes.

Worn with slacks they add a most zestful novelty touch. Look too clever for words with simple little gingham dresses, in fact with any type of casual daytime frocks, also good-looking with white afternoon dresses and tailleurs.

Now comes the sequence of this fashion story. As everybody knows, what's worn at the southern resorts in midwinter sets precedent for spring and summer fashions to come. Wherefore, the message that red shoes will be worn with tailored kerge or navy street costumes has already swung its way northward. So if you crave fashion thrills, buy a pair of red shoes.

Fruit Motifs of
Pasted Feathers

For a gay splash of color on your hat ask your milliner to show you the new fruit trims, done in pasted feathers. Plums, apples, pears, bahanas, and so on are down the list. These motifs, in realistic colors, are to be applied on crown or brim or where you will on your hat. Buy an extra one to attach to the lapel of your coat.

Cloth Joined Up
With Surah Print

Considerable emphasis is given in the advance costume displays to ensembles that are made of cloth combined with surah print, the latter used for, perhaps, the blouse, to line the coat and to serve as color accent on pocket, neckline and sleeve finishings.

Glove Note
 Even short gloves this season may be fastened with elaborate buttons. Screen Player Virginia Vale has a pair made of black suede, buttoned with tiny gold filigree beads.

Garment Bags Made
From Odds and Ends

By RUTH WYETH SPEARS
 "DEAR MRS. SPEARS: I thought you might be interested in how I made garment bags for each member of my family, almost entirely from things I had on hand. The foundation part of each was made of 1/2-inch board; a screw-eye; a hook from a hanger; and five small screw hooks underneath. For the bag, I combined muslin flour sacks with odds and ends of figured cottons and trimmed the joinings with bias tape. I followed your directions in SEWING Book 2, for initials of bias tape to mark the bags." At the upper left is sketched the foundation that this reader used. If a zipper is used for the opening, the 36-inch length is best. If you put it in a curved line, you will have a wider opening. Each step in applying the zipper in this way is shown here.

NOTE: The Sewing Basket in every thrifty household should contain a copy of Mrs. Spears' Sewing Book 2, in which she illustrates the five standard methods of repairing all kinds of fabrics. Thirty-two pages to delight every lover of fine handwork. To get your copy send 10 cents in coin to Mrs. Spears, Drawer 10, Bedford Hills, New York, to cover cost.

Chinese Boy Thought One
Letup Deserved Another

In a Shanghai bungalow shared by several young Englishmen, the Chinese houseboy had a perfectly round head which he kept shaved and polished like a billiard ball. The young men were always taking pot shots at this tempting target with paper pellets or giving it a pat as they passed by. To all of which the Chinese said nothing. One day they decided it was a shame to keep worrying the boy, so they called him in and told him they had decided to stop doing it. He replied: "Thank you, masters. I very pleased. Now I not make your coffee with dishwasher any more."

 To quickly relieve chest cold misery and muscular aches and pains due to colds it takes MORE than "just a salve"—you need a warming, soothing "counter-irritant" like good old reliable MUSTEROLE—used by millions for over 30 years. CONSTIPATED?
Don't Let Gas, Nerve Pressure Keep You Miserable

When constipated two things may happen. FIRST: Accumulated wastes clog the bowels and press on nerves in the digestive tract. This may produce other serious conditions, a dull, aching, loss of appetite, and dizziness. SECOND: Partly digested food starts to decay forming GAS, leading to flatulence, acid indigestion, and heartburn, bloating you to the point you sometimes gasp for breath. Then you can't eat. You can't sleep. Your stomach is sour. You feel tired, irritable, and miserable. BALANCED Adulterin containing three laxatives and five cathartics gives you DOUBLE ACTION. It relieves that awful GAS almost at once, and usually clears the bowels in less than two hours. No waiting for overnight relief. Sold at all drug stores.

WHO'S NEWS THIS WEEK

By LEMUEL F. PARTON

NEW YORK.—Word comes from London that Sir Seymour Hicks, who, last September, became official backer-up of British civilians, sailors and soldiers, is exploding laugh-bombs all over the kingdom, which eventually may blow down the Siegfried wall like the trumpets of Jericho.

Sir Seymour, who had a similar job in the World war, is England's favorite light comedy actor, a leading producer and actor-manager, a writer of consequence and a rallying point for both masses and classes, as they both claim him as their own. He is 78 years old and last month celebrated his fifty-second year on the stage.

He started life as a call boy in a London theater. His next job was as an undertaker's mite, a hired mourner, sometimes filling in as an emergency pall-bearer and the like. He wore black well and did nicely in his new career, until his memories of the theater obtruded at an unfortunate moment. He was walking solemnly behind a hearse, when a distant band struck up a tune, which carried him back-stage again. He swung open the door of the hearse and called out, "The overture begins now, sir."

That chunted him right back to the theater, which, by all accounts, he never should have left. He has written and produced 64 plays and is the author of eight books of reminiscence, comment and criticism. He was knighted in 1935, and Mayfair made a tremendous fuss over him, with similar cheers from the populace. In the World war he organized concerts and shows for the soldiers and kept up a drum-fire of spirited humor which roused him as the leading empire morale-builder.

Grady Sticks to Secretary Old-Time Free Trade Religion
 He is Secretary Hull's Jephthah, girded to smite the Ammonites hip and thigh as they accede the secretary's trade agreements program.

Mr. Grady, 57-year-old Cello and incurably optimistic specialist in foreign trade, is assistant secretary of state and has taken over the job of expounding and putting forward the agreements. The law authorizing the plan will expire June 12, and the continuation of this trade policy will be an early and exciting kick-off in congress.

Mr. Grady, a San Franciscan, educated at St. Mary's university, Baltimore, is a man of encyclopedic learning in trade matters, a lecturer at many universities, the author of many books and treatises and a member of many learned societies. He boils down a mountain of data and statistics to his vehement insistence that, no matter how we may tinker with tariffs and quotas, the only helpful reality is the flux of good through the international bloodstream.

THE Russian Baltic drive, bide-tracked by the Finns, was, according to the meager evidence obtainable, the pet idea of Andrei Zhdanov, frequently referred to in the last two years as Stalin's possible successor. Later news is that Stalin has other ideas about Mr. Zhdanov's future, as the latter takes the rap for the debacle in Finland.

He was designated secretary of the Leningrad Communist party committee on December 16, 1934. That made him a virtual dictator of the Leningrad district, the Pittsburgh of Russia. M. Zhdanov has been particularly bitter against Britain, and several correspondents have attributed to him the disruption of last summer's negotiations of the allied powers with the Soviets.

He is 43 years old, a Revolutionist since 1912, when he left school to engage in agitation against the czarist government. Until 1917, he was chiefly occupied dodging the police and joined the army as a permanent carrier for the Bolsheviks. In the early revolutionary years, he was one of the leading organizers of party propaganda and was thrown into close association with Josef Stalin. It was the beginning of a beautiful friendship, which, quite possibly, the skiing Finns have dynamited. He is of a middle class family, one of the cleverest word-smiths of Red Russia.

QUICK-FROZEN FOODS A WISE CHOICE
 (See Recipes Below)

'Sing a Song of Seasons'

In the not too-distant past, we sang a song of seasons in food—oysters in the "R" months; fresh vegetables in spring and summer; juicy berries in June, July, and August; and tender turkeys in the fall. But the newest method of preserving foods—quick-freezing—means "open season" on most foods at any time of year—fresh berries in January, oysters in June, and choice chicken or turkey whenever you choose!

Quick-frozen foods are harvested at the height of the season, when flavor and quality are at their best; freezing is done so close to the place where the food is harvested, caught, or killed, and the cleaning, cutting or slicing are done so rapidly, that there is no chance for the food to lose its flavor and freshness.

Quick-frozen foods are a good tip for the homemaker who values her leisure and her manures! All the grubby preparation tasks are done before the freezing, so kitchen duty is practically cut in half! That means that frozen or quick-frozen foods are a wise choice when you're entertaining. By the way, you can use them for most of the recipes in my booklet, "Easy Entertaining." With quick-frozen foods to cut down the work and "Easy Entertaining" to give you menus and recipes that are practical and different, company meals are a simple matter!

Cream Gravy.
 Drain all but about 1/4 cup of fat from the frying pan. Add 1/2 cup flour and blend well. Gradually stir in 1 1/2 cups of rich milk (or half milk and half cream). Cook over low flame, stirring constantly, until the gravy thickens. Season with salt and pepper, if desired.

Asparagus With Lemon-Butter Sauce.
 1 package quick-frozen asparagus
 1/2 cup butter
 1 tablespoon lemon juice
 Cook quick-frozen asparagus in boiling water, as directed on the package. Drain. Cream butter and add lemon juice gradually. Pour over the hot asparagus and serve at once.

Red Raspberry Shortcake.
 (Serves 4)
 1 box (10 ounces) quick-frozen red raspberries (thawed)
 1/2 cup sugar
 4 tablespoons water
 4 hot shortcake biscuits, split and buttered
 1/2 cup cream (whipped)
 Mix raspberries with 1/2 cup sugar and 4 tablespoons water and crush slightly. Let stand 1/2 hour, stirring occasionally. Spread raspberries on lower halves of hot shortcake biscuits; top with upper halves and additional berries. Garnish with whipped cream.

French Fried Shrimp.
 (Serves 4-5)
 1 package quick-frozen cooked and cleaned shrimp
 Seasoned crumbs
 1 egg
 1 tablespoon water
 Thaw the shrimp as directed. Dip in the seasoned crumbs, then in the egg beaten with the water and back in the crumbs. Fry in deep fat (380 degrees) for 2 to 3 minutes, or until the shrimp are well browned. Serve hot with tartar sauce.

Deep Dish Blueberry Pies.
 (Serves 4-5)
 1 package quick-frozen blueberries
 1/2 cup sugar
 1/2 teaspoon salt
 1 tablespoon butter
 Plain pastry
 Combine berries (it is not necessary to thaw them first), sugar, salt, and butter. Place in individual baking dishes (with no under crust). Cut rounds of pastry, slightly larger than the tops of the baking dishes. Place a round of pastry on each baking dish, and pinch the pastry to the edge of the dish. Bake in a hot oven (450 degrees) for 10 minutes; then reduce the heat (350 degrees) and bake about 25 minutes longer.

Shortcake Biscuits.
 (Makes 4 large biscuits).
 1 cup flour
 2 teaspoons baking powder
 1/4 teaspoon salt
 2 teaspoons sugar
 2 1/2 tablespoons butter
 3/4 cup milk

Sift dry ingredients together. Cut in the butter and add milk gradually. Turn onto floured board and knead gently for about 8 seconds. Pat out, and cut into 4 large rounds. Brush with melted butter. Bake in a hot oven (450 degrees) for about 20 minutes. While the biscuits are still warm, split, and spread with soft cream.

New-Fashioned Fried Chicken With Cream Gravy.
 Thaw one quick-frozen chicken enough to separate; cut into pieces for serving.
 Sprinkle with salt and pepper and roll in flour. Melt fat in heavy skillet, having the fat 1/4 to 1/2 inch deep. Brown the chicken in this, turning frequently. Reduce the heat slightly and fry for about 25 minutes longer, turning frequently. Remove chicken to a hot platter.

It's fun to give parties when you've a copy of "Easy Entertaining" to guide you in every step—from planning your work to serving a delicious meal. Eleanor Howe's cook book, "Easy Entertaining," gives you menus and recipes for parties of every kind—from a Valentine luncheon to a reception for the bride. There are suggestions for children's parties, too—parties for "teen age groups as well as toddlers. Send 10 cents in coin to "Easy Entertaining," care of Eleanor Howe, 918 North Michigan Avenue, Chicago, Illinois, and add a copy of this helpful booklet to your kitchen library.

'Just Good Food.'
 Good food plays such an important part in the health and happiness of the family! In this column next week Eleanor Howe will give you some of her hints on planning and preparing really delicious foods—tricks in making pastry that's tender and flaky; a hint or two on roasting meats to just the proper turn; and suggestions for seasoning soups and sauces.

TIPS FOR HOUSEWIFE
 Lamp shades of painted tin combine well with pottery bases. Before adding sugar to cake mixture always sift through a fine strainer.
 For iced coffee you should be a little more generous with your coffee measure.
 Mend leaks in gas or water pipes by winding long strips of cloth dipped in hot paraffin.
 Left-over sandwiches need not be discarded. Brush with melted butter and saute to a golden brown on each side.
 One tablespoon of cooked oatmeal thoroughly beaten into the mixture for pumpkin pie saves one egg and cannot be detected.
 Chill plates, dishes and glasses in which cold foods and drinks are to be served. The food and drink will stay cold much longer.
 To remove ink from fingers, dip fingers and an unburned sulphur match in water. Rub the match over the ink spot until it vanishes.
 When buying canned goods for emergency shelf, immediately write on the label the month, date, year and price. This enables one to use the older things first and so keep your stock fresh.

Several large American firms, one of which is the F. W. Woolworth company, pay their chief executives only once a year.

National Truck Week

The country-wide observance by Chevrolet dealers and salesmen of National Truck Week Jan. 8-13, focuses attention on the diversified roles which commercial cars have come to play in the American business picture. From the small retail grocery to the manufacturer of locomotives, from coast to coast and border to border, from the Iowa farm to New York's docks, trucks are called upon to transport a vast share of the nation's products.

As the manufacturer of the broadest range of commercial car equipment offered for 1940, 56 models on nine different wheel base lengths, Chevrolet is the supplier of transport equipment for widely-varying fields. Some Chevrolet trucks, for example, run on rails in boggy lands where roads will not hold up. Others ride the rails as locomotives, serving short railway lines. On every highway, Chevrolet maintenance trucks bearing their specialized equipment, serve the nation's motorists. In the forests, on the farms, at the mines, Chevrolet trucks wait for their loads. In the cities, and between urban centers, refrigerator units rush their perishable loads. To and from school, safe, comfortable buses take their precious cargo of youngsters. The range of the truck's usefulness is virtually unlimited.

TRUTH about ADVERTISING

By CHARLES B. ROTH

KEEP YOUR SALT CELLARS CLEAN

THE other day I read of an eccentric old woman, rich and socially prominent, who went from house to house judging the occupants by the condition of the salt cellars on their tables.

If these were clean and well kept she put her stamp of approval on the household, but if they were not, regardless of the gracefulness and charm of her hostess, she put them down as dowdy folks.

Charles Roth

Not all of us, fortunately, are quite so critical, but in one sense we are. And it is good that we are. We are critical of the merchandise we buy and of the merchants from whom we buy it. It is our criticism which keeps the standards of goods and stores high.

One of the many advantages of advertising is that it invites us to be critical of the goods being advertised.

The advertiser assures us that his goods are good. He invites us to compare them with others. We do. If he relaxes for a minute and lets his standards drop, we disagree. We tell others. We cease buying his product.

He knows that even the finest of commercial reputations will suffer if a mere handful of people get wind of the fact that the goods are sub-standard. They will tell their friends. Soon a whispering campaign is under way. He suffers.

It is only by being careful at every minute of the day that his goods and services are up to high standard that the man who advertises can succeed.

You expect more of him than you do of the man who does not advertise. The non-advertising manufacturer or merchant can fall down in delivering quality and service. You may expect him to. But the man who advertises has to live up to his high obligation.

So you see that advertising is a great vigilance committee, established and maintained in your interest, to see that the man who aspires to sell you will always be worthy of your trade.

The merchant who advertises must treat you better than the merchant who does not. He must treat you as though you were the most important person in town.

As a matter of fact you are. You hold the destiny of his business in your hands. He knows it. He shows it. And you benefit by good service, by courteous treatment, by good value—and by lower prices.

Be critical of advertised goods and stores which advertise. They want you to be critical. Advertising invites you to compare before you buy. It stands or falls on value alone.

'ZANY' NO MORE Martin Dies Grows in U. S. Esteem As 'Ism' Investigation Bears Fruit

By HOWARD LANCASTER
(Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

WASHINGTON.—"The only thing that counts in these investigations is what gets into the papers."

That was Martin Dies' credo the moment he opened the first hearing before his congressional committee investigating un-American activities and propaganda.

Within a few weeks most of the nation was laughing at him. Strip-Teaser Gypsy Rose Lee offered to bare all for the committee, and Imita Shifley Temple was labeled a Communist decoy by one of Mr. Dies' witnesses.

It seems strange, therefore, that much of America is laughing on the other side of its face today. There are still plenty of people who think the committee's early investigations were a farce (and Dies admits he got a few crackpot witnesses), but a peculiar combination of circumstances has placed the un-Americanism committee front and center on the Washington stage.

This month, having submitted a report on its second year's investigation, the committee is asking congress for a new appropriation. Here's why it happened:

First, you have the correct combination of men and times. Dies is the 39-year-old Texan with heavy hands and yellow hair whose sole claim to fame after seven lean years in congress was his penchant for speech-making and a hatred for "isms."

Two other men instrumental in this affair were New York's Nazi-hating Rep. Samuel Dickstein and Vice President Jack Garner. Dickstein used to have a habit of baiting Hitler from the house floor and reading long lists of citizens whom he accused of being Nazi. His fellow Jews thought he was doing the race more harm than good, and the house didn't like to be embarrassed. So the rules committee (of which Dies was a member) decided to silence Dickstein by stealing his thunder.

Jack Garner's place in this affair is mysterious, but possibly very important. Being a fellow Texan and a friend of Dies, he might have seen an opportunity for poking the red-hot spotlight of publicity into left-wing elements of the New Deal, thus paving the way for his own candidacy in 1940.

By 1939 the shirt crowd—black shirts, brown shirts, silver shirts, etc.—were getting to be a dirty shirt crowd. When Martin Dies read about Bundsfuehrer Fritz Kuhn, his shirt and his camps, his blue eyes saw red.

Another reason was the LaFollette civil liberties committee, which had been accusing industrialists of employing spies to prevent their employees from organizing. To provide an offsetting influence, many congressmen thought somebody should investigate subversive influences.

Finally, there was the Dies mania for publicity. It's rumored that he called off an important hearing last autumn because the world series was monopolizing the headlines. And he's not ashamed to admit it: "The good that this committee does depends on how many people read the testimony in newspapers. Who in the world is going to bother about the official record?"

Paying $5 a day and traveling expenses for each witness eats up a $25,000 appropriation like a cat lapping up milk. Which is one reason the committee's first year was a perfect model of what congressional investigations shouldn't be. Dies had no counsel, no co-operation from the administration and no reason to expect any.

But he did get publicity, and last year an alarmed citizenry demanded that these un-American upstarts be ferreted out and shot at surprise. Result: A $100,000 appropriation.

Dies couldn't fight a world series but he used a much bigger competitive news story as a stopladder to fame. That story was World War II. The Communist-Nazi pact last August gave him new stature, for it proved the swastikas were blood brothers to the hammers-and-sickles.

Since the war started America has tried to lock its gates against foreign propagandists, and has begun wondering if Martin Dies isn't something of a prophet. Suddenly the nation has realized that—despite his blustering and apparently misdirected efforts—this red-baiter has actually hung quite a few scapls outside his wigwam.

In 1939 he pointed the committee's guns westward from Washington and helped mow down 45 Democratic congressmen. Dies charged that Frank Murphy failed to carry out his gubernatorial duties in the Flint sit-down strike back in 1937, and the resultant rumpus contributed to Murphy's defeat when he sought re-election.

Even the administration has started to co-operate. President Roosevelt called it "sordid procedure" when the committee published names of 555 government employees on the mailing list of the American League for Peace and Democracy, the inference being that these people were Communists. But a few days later Dies' charges against Communist Earl Browder took shape in a federal indictment. Bundsfuehrer Fritz Kuhn, limelighted by the committee, was sent to Sing Sing by New York District Attorney Tom Dewey.

The case of Harry Bridges, radical west coast labor leader, was shouted from the rooftops until Madame Secretary Perkins agreed to a hearing on charges that Bridges was an undesirable alien. A decision is now pending.

Glaring at labor, Martin Dies accused the unions of harboring foreign agents. He now claims one of the largest unions is quietly purging its ranks. He was partially responsible for the recent house investigation of the National Labor Relations board, in which unsavory reports were aired.

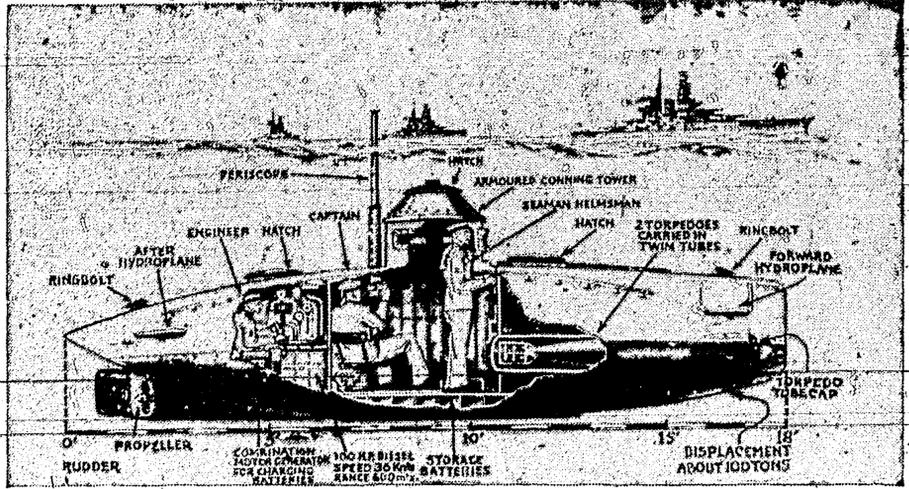

Dies put a stop to the WPA federal theater project, which he said was alive with Communists. He also talked congress into halving the appropriation of Senator LaFollette's civil liberties committee, which is working the other side of the "ism" street.

Even his most severe critics now admit Martin Dies is coming of age, though they still notice a lot of rough edges that need polishing. Oblivious to criticism, Dies has made his report to congress and started campaigning for more funds.

Here's his view of it: He's proved conclusively the existence of "isms" in the United States. Therefore the next logical step is to get at the cause of these radical movements. To this end he would ask congress for funds to interview share-croppers, laborers, sailors, dispossessed farmers, bootblacks and all other unhappy Americans who come within ear shot.

It would be the biggest show on earth, with Martin Dies as ringmaster.

Pocket Submarine May Be Powerful Jap Sea Threat

According to reports reaching London from Tokyo, the Japanese navy finally has put an oft-reported three-man submarine into mass production. Dispatches say the boats are being turned out in mass production at a cost of $5,500 each. The craft, depicted here by an artist, measures 18 feet overall. The average modern submarine is 30 feet in length. Its displacement is 100 tons, compared to the usual 2,500 tons. It is reported that the new boat can submerge to an almost unbelievable depth of 1,800 feet. It carries only one torpedo. But one torpedo has a potential nuisance value of millions of dollars.

To Assist President in World Peace Problems

Hopes for world peace on the part of President Roosevelt have resulted in two recent far-reaching moves. First was the President's appointment of Myron C. Taylor, left, former head of United States Steel, as this country's representative to the Vatican to work with Pope Pius for peace. Second was his invitation to religious leaders to confer with him. Invitations went to Rabbi Cyrus Adler, center, president of the Jewish Theological Seminary of America, and to Dr. George A. Buttrick, right, president of the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America. Archbishop Spellman of New York City was expected to be named as representative of Catholics in the peace conference.

The Fury of Martin Dies Fell On:

FRITZ KUHN
New York became interested in his German-American bond after the Dies committee had polished him off. Result: He's now serving time at Sing Sing.

JAMES A. FARLEY
His national Democratic education suffered in 1939 when 70 congressional seats were lost, most of thanks to Martin Dies' activity in critical states.

EARL BROWDER
His admitted traveling abroad on a fake passport in testimony before the Dies committee. Now America's No. 1 Communist is under federal indictment.

BOB LA FOLLETTE
His civil liberties committee is accused by Dies of coddling undesirables. As a result, LaFollette's committee received a smaller fund last year.

HARRY BRIDGES
Dies hammered against this alien west coast labor leader until Madame Secretary Perkins was forced to hold an extradition hearing. Decision is pending.

FRANK MURPHY
He lost his Michigan gubernatorial re-election campaign, mostly because the Dies committee charged he shirked his duty in connection with a sidown strike.

SYNOPSIS

On board the Nord-Express, with Ostend as his immediate destination, Dr. David Jebb is bound for America. With him is five-year-old Cynthia Thatcher, his temporary ward. On the train they meet Bill Gaines, former classmate of David's. David tells Gaines of his outstanding weakness—an overwhelming desire to drink. He feels the urge coming to him again, and wants to safeguard the child, who is returning to America with him. During a stop, Gaines leaves the train to buy Cynthia a present. The train leaves without him. Then Jebb is painfully injured in a minor accident. A fellow passenger revives him with a drink, which makes his desire for liquor all the stronger. At the next stop David and Cynthia leave the train. David begins drinking. The next thing he is conscious of is a strange sort of chanting. He looks around, dazed and sick. A door opens and in walks a strange Negro, closely followed by a woman, heavily veiled and dressed in flowing robes. She tells him that he is in Ustak, that her name is Miruma, and that she is the "gift wife" of the Pasha, who has another wife, and who is husband in name only to Miruma. She knows nothing of the missing child. Learning that David is a surgeon, Miruma tells him of a powerful man in Ustak, Akef Bey, whose son is slowly dying. Jebb calls to examine the youth.

CHAPTER IV—Continued

The boy led them up a broad stairway to a large hall with a cushioned divan along three sides, with low, carved tables, mirrors, and Turkish hangings.

On a low platform covered with bedding, a boy of fifteen lay writhing. Jebb saw nothing, looked at nothing, but his patient. He took out the hypodermic syringe and said:

"Could I have some hot water?" Jebb knelt at the bedside and examined the glowing body. He noted the right leg drawn up close. The boy told, and Hellwald translated, the history of the case.

Jebb glanced toward Hellwald with one word: "Appendicitis."

By this time someone was kneeling at his side with a ewer of steaming water and a basin. He filled the chamber of the hypodermic needle and paused for the tablet to dissolve. Then he looked about for the first time.

In the background hovered a young man in a shabby European costume. Jebb decided he was a Scotchman.

When the opiate was dissolved, Jebb made ready for the injection. The terrified boy fought him away but Jebb overcame the boy's feeble resistance and thrust the needle in the shivering flesh. Gani Bey screamed as if he had a death-wound, and the women echoed him piercingly. Even the father closed his eyes and toppled against the wall.

Jebb alone was calm. He was almost smiling at his success in inserting the opiate so near the center of pain. He took under his thumb the boy's wrist and mechanically felt for his watch. It was not there. He turned to Hellwald:

"Bitte, wie viel Uhr ist's?" Before Hellwald could answer, Jebb heard someone say:

"Fourteen minutes to eleven, doctor."

And a watch was placed in his palm, by a hand that lingered to clasp his, as the doctor spoke:

"I am glad to see a real doctor here, doctor. You are an American, I presume. My name is Murison, Donald Murison. I am a Presbyterian missionary, not a physician. I have done my best, but it is not much."

"Had you thought an operation was indicated?"

"Yes, I supposed so, but I couldn't trust myself to make one. And there is no decent surgeon nearer than Salonica. I have a set of instruments, but—"

"Thanks, I may need them," said Jebb.

Under the spell of the drug the boy permitted Jebb to make a careful examination and confirm the theory suggested by the other symptoms. He turned to Murison:

"Tell them the relief is only temporary. The boy is very sick, and the pain will come back on him with renewed violence. The cyst will burst and flood his body with poison and he will die, unless—unless the danger is removed at once and for all time."

"By an operation?"

"That is the one hope. It would be murder to neglect it. I should be a criminal unless I urged it."

With much circumlocution Murison broached the subject to the parents and they were frightened at the thought. Jebb explained it to Hellwald and he joined forces with Murison. Akef Bey was converted at last, and gave his consent. Akef Bey put all the servants of his household at Jebb's command and Hellwald forgot the affairs of Austria to act as interpreter, while Murison hastened to fetch the instruments.

Hellwald could not forget the lost child whose name he could not pronounce, and he brought up the subject of the fee that Jebb should demand.

The upshot of it was that Hellwald settled upon one hundred pounds Turkish as the fee for the operation, whether successful or not. He accepted Akef Bey's word of honor as equivalent to a deposit in gold.

By this time he was ready with the ether and, smiling courage into the brave eyes of the little stoic, he hid them under the hood and watched the deep breathing of the obedient youth till the drugged soul had ceased to murmur.

Then he lifted the body, limp with mimic death, and carried it across the hall to the room prepared for the operation. Hellwald sat outside on the divan trying to divert Akef Bey with conversation. As Murison went in with Jebb he looked back with doleful eyes at the shivering father. Then he let the curtain at the door fall.

It seemed many hours, but it was hardly the half of one when Murison lifted the curtain again for Jebb, who reappeared carrying in his arm the burden still peacefully unaware of its new wounds and bandages.

The surgeon's face wore a look of quiet triumph and Murison as he lifted the curtain at the door of the boy's room turned back to murmur:

"Ajayib!" which is to say, "Wonderful!"

The father, the mother, and the sister crowded at once to the room to find their idol still alive, breathing raucously, and beginning to mutter sleepy nonsense as he came back to the world.

All the afternoon Jebb ministered to the boy and eased his pain as much as he dared. That night he had a couch spread for himself on the floor alongside, but sleep did not visit him, nor anyone else under that roof. For nature, the ceaseless, was stitching the wounds with needles of pain. But by the hour when the few swallows of the early spring woke, peace fell on the racked body and the frightened spirit of the boy. And all the household was blessed with sleep.

CHAPTER V

When Jebb had carried the young Bey sufficiently past the shoals to intrust him to the care of his mother, he went back to the Hotel Turati to wait until it was safe for him to leave town. He was immediately besieged with patients of every sort, from the poor Serb who begged him to prescribe for the cough of his sick buffalo, to the British consul who sent for him on his own account.

Meanwhile Hellwald had received a telegram from the Austrian Consulate at Salonica saying that the police had heard nothing of the lost child.

And now Jebb began to wonder if he might not have lost the child in some other city. Salonica was a long journey from his last definite memory of Cologne, and there were various ways of arriving there.

On the third day of Gani Bey's convalescence—a servant brought to his room a request that he grant an audience to Fehmi Pasha, Miruma's husband.

The name set Jebb's nerves tingle, and he stammered as he told the servant to bring the Pasha up.

He determined to make a brave front and, taking a hasty glance at his Turkish grammar, found the phrase for "Come in, sir, and sit down."

This delighted the Pasha and he launched forth into a stream of Turkish. The flood carried away all of Jebb's little phrases and he could not even remember how to say that he did not speak Turkish.

The Pasha showed his disappointment at the check, thought a while, then ventured in bad French:

"Dje parle francais on peu. Est-ce que moosoo le parle?"

And Jebb answered in worse:

"Ung poo."

Proceeding then with much caution yet with far more mangling of French grammar than Jebb realized, the Pasha explained that he had heard of Jebb's great success. His friend, Akef Bey, had told him what marvels the jerrah Jebb Effendi had wrought upon his son; and Gani Bey's mother had visited the Pasha's wife in her sick room to advise her to call him in at once; for the Pasha's wife was very ill—if Jebb Effendi would pardon a gentleman for mentioning his wife to another gentleman! She was wasting away and no one seemed to know just what or where or whence her ailment was. Perhaps—undoubtedly—Jebb Effendi would know at a glance.

Jebb was so relieved at the nature of the Pasha's visit that he consented to go at once.

Nahir Hanim was plainly suffering a mortal illness, Jebb's eyes told him that.

He found her temperature high, and her breathing fast and weak, her general condition alarming. It was important that he should know everything and have his wits about him. The struggle to torture his own thoughts into French; then to translate back into English what the sick woman whispered was top baffling and irritating to be endured.

He gave up and went back to the hall where the Pasha waited anxiously. His French was almost too lame to express its own lameness, but he managed to make clear his need of an interpreter. The Pasha exclaimed:

"If only my other wife were here. She understands English."

"Your other wife?" Jebb echoed.

"Yes," said the Pasha, apologetically, "it is my misfortune to have two wives, Moosoo Jebb. I will send for the other at once. Perhaps she can repay me now in part for the enormous expense she has put me to."

He clapped his hands. A servant appeared, whom he dispatched for his coachman. When this man arrived he was dispatched post haste to request Miruma Hanim to come at once.

"The possession of two wives, moosoo," said the Pasha, "was not my wish but my misfortune. Few Turks except the rich and dissolute have endeavored to keep more than one wife. The law permits us four, but the law does not furnish us with funds, and the prophet did not advise it. And it were easier to keep four Ugreeses in a cage, Moosoo Jebb, than four wives in a house. For Turkish women are tyrannical, moosoo, and very exacting."

"I was content with one wife. Nahir Hanim is a good woman, she has borne me many children—why should I have desired another wife? I did not. But his Imperial Majesty, the Padishah, our benefactor and enlightened master—whom Allah preserve!—in those beautiful days when I enjoyed his favor, felt greatly inclined to present me with another. My own wife—she is a noble woman, moosoo, but jealous—she threatened to destroy herself if I made the other woman, this Miruma, my real wife. I went through the ceremony, but only the ceremony. Miruma Hanim is beautiful, I am told, but I have never seen her without her veil."

"If you should grant your second wife a release she would no longer be an expense to you."

"The release is itself a great expense," said the Pasha, thinking hard. "I could not dismiss her without providing for her future or repaying her—the money I received from the Padishah as her dowry."

"Why not repay it?"

"You surgeons speak easily of amputations."

Though he could not understand the elaborate Turkish of the Pasha's greeting to Miruma, Jebb could see the mingled constraint and curiosity of his manner. There was something of the aged bridegroom in his cordiality as he seemed to try to peer through the yashmak of the woman who had been his Ye-and-No wife for years. There was something of the faithful husband, too, in his formal courtesy, for Nahir Hanim was lying in the next room and weeping weakly, a sick woman in great dismay.

The Pasha received Miruma's homage with a poor attempt at lofty majesty. Then he remembered Jebb, and spoke of him in Turkish with an evident flourish in his praise. Miruma, thus licensed, turned her eyes full upon him and the Pasha made the presentation in his best French.

Jebb bowed, Miruma lifted imaginary dust and placed it on her breast, her lips, and her brows.

Then the Pasha raised the portiere to his wife's room and Miruma went in, trembling with fear and bowing with all the deference required of a second wife before the Pasha-Kadin.

A little later Jebb was summoned. The Pasha spoke again to Miruma, evidently counseling her to talk freely to the American surgeon. Then he bowed himself out of the haremlik, leaving the foreign wife and the foreign doctor with their helpless victim.

Tortured with her own impossible position, Miruma turned to Jebb with a halting:

"What, please, am I to say or do, Jebb Effendim?"

"If you will ask her my questions, and tell me her answers—please—hanim effendim—madame. Ask her where her pain is greatest."

Miruma put the question in Turkish of evident circumlocution. For answer Nahir's pale hand crept up and rested over her heart.

"Ask her how long she has been ill."

"She says she is sick for very, very long times. She has great fever in the night. In the morning she is better, but not well; in the morning she can eat some little, but later nothing at all."

Jebb had noted that Nahir was breathing very rapidly, or rather panting than breathing, for her respiration was exaggerated and shallow. He placed his hands at her sides, squeezed the chest walls. Nahir gave a little cry of pain.

And now with keener scrutiny he decried below her left breast a slight distention of the flesh, not in outline but faintly in perspective.

His first gasp of delight at his discovery was quenched in a realization of its vital import.

"You have found the evil, Jebb Effendim?" said Miruma eagerly.

"I think so, madame, but I must make sure. If I only had an aspiratory needle! I don't suppose I could get one in Ustak." He thought hard, then he said, "This hypodermic needle is large; it will have to do."

He darted from the room and ran downstairs, followed by the astounded Pasha. The old coffee-maker, as he expected, had a vessel of boiling water on the coals. Without further ado, Jebb dropped the hypodermic needle in and stirred the charcoal. When the instrument had boiled long enough to suit him, he flashed it out and hurried upstairs again.

When Jebb approached Nahir Hanim again and poised the needle over her heart, she thrust his hand aside with feeble haste and a little wail of fright. Even Miruma was afraid and interceded:

"Please not to hurt the poor lady!"

Original Siamese Twins Lived Normal Lives

The original Siamese twins, the famed Chang and Eng, let P. T. Barnum spread his tales that they were to be cut apart and were to go separate ways. Such publicity brought droves to the box office, but Chang and Eng liked comfort—as best they could get it with their uncomfortable union. They knew something.

They knew for one thing that they could not live were they cut apart. They had been examined by hundreds of physicians. They also knew that the day one of them died the other would not live long, no matter how robust his half was.

It was over 100 years ago that Chang and Eng were brought to this country to become so famed that henceforth their name, "The Siamese Twins," was to be passed on to every other similar union of birth.

Chang and Eng were 19 years old when Captain Coffin, of the American sailing vessel, Sachem, brought them to New York. They were not Siamese but three-fourths Chinese and one-quarter Malay—divided by two. He had sighted the boys at the amazing feat of swimming, bought them from their mother and taught them English on the trip to this country. They were intelligent boys who learned rapidly. The pair was bound together by a ligature growing out of their breast bones.

The Twins became a sensation, drew big crowds and wages and adjusted themselves to living comfortably here.

Chang and Eng took the name of Bunker when they became American citizens. Then they settled down in North Carolina as slave owners, met the fair daughters, Sally and Addie Yates, of a farm family down the road and one day bought two wedding rings—and four hearts beat as one.

However, Sally and Addie wanted privacy, or at least, separate homes, and the brothers took care of that by establishing two homes. They alternated, Eng spending three days with Sally and Chang, then spending three with Addie. Of course, their social life always was complicated by the problem of the extra man.

All in all, the Siamese twins had 21 children. All of their offspring were normal and their descendants still live in North Carolina, Kansas and Oklahoma.

Lights of New York

by L. L. STEVENSON

Identification: A rule in existence ever since the establishment of its lost and found department was broken by the Third Avenue railway system when a motorman found a charm bracelet evidently of great sentimental value. Ordinarily the railway company would merely have awaited a claimant. In this instance, however, the lost article was advertised by means of cards in various cars. The woman owner soon turned up and the motorman received a reward of $15. But what I started out to say was that the incident disclosed the fact that among the articles left by passengers each week, an average of two sets of false teeth are found. There never is a question of ownership. The owner is usually so pleased to recover the property that he or she pops it into his or her mouth immediately and if there is a fit, the worries of the railway company come to a happy ending.

Street Scene: Youngsters on sidewalks in the district known as Hell's Kitchen. Little girls playing with dolls, the faces of which are chipped and broken. Yet evidently loved though a leg or arm may be missing. Small boys, seemingly oblivious of the girls, engaging in various antics, including much wrestling. A pale woman watering geraniums standing behind a shining window. A street cleaner stopping to read a bit from a discarded newspaper before throwing it into his little cart. A big car, driven by a hard-faced youth, rapidly approaching. Brakes scream and the car pauses. Then dashes on. The driver looks back with a laugh. But there are tears in the eyes of boys and girls as they gather around a mangled puppy.

Stew stuff: Maybe this one is old but I'd never heard it before and so I giggled when Alice Frost told it:

A man was sitting at a bar downing one drink after another and laughing boisterously. Frequently, as he mumbled to himself, he held his hand as if in protest. Finally the bartender's curiosity got the better of him.

"Excuse me," he remarked, "but what do you think you are doing?"

"Nothin'," replied the customer. "Just tellin' myself jokes."

"But," protested the barkeeper, "why the hand in the air?"

"Oh, that's when I stop me if I've heard it."

Manhattan Mirages: (As imagined by Deane Janis) A taxicab speeds up to a hotel with a fare comfortably parked in the back seat. The fare digs into his pocket for change. The cabbie hops out and opens the door. "Two dollars even," he says. "Here's two and a quarter," remarks the driver politely. "I never take tips." Two beautiful girls, plainly quite lonely, sitting on a Central park bench. Two callous look earnestly at the girls as they pass. The girls smile. One sailor turns to the other and inquires, "What kind of a bird is that in that tree over there?"

Suggestion: A feature of a recent chamber music concert given by the Curtis quartet was the rarely heard "Forellen," or "Trout" quintet of Franz Schubert. The number was received with great applause and the next morning one of the quartet's admirers, to signalize the triumph, sent the artists a choice brook trout. Writing to thank him for the novel gift, Orlando Cole, cellist of the ensemble, reported, "And I think you may be interested to know that we are now rehearsing Hadyn's 'Ox Minuet.'"

End Piece: Allen Prescott tells the one about the movie executive who whizzed by his receptionist and babbled, "I'll be back in ten minutes. If anybody calls, tell 'em I went downstairs for coffee." Then he dashed out, hesitated a moment, returned, stuck his head in the door and shouted, "Make that tea!"

$30,000 to Innocent Man

A rare case of compensation for the imprisonment of an innocent man is that of Oscar Slater of Glasgow, Scotland. In 1909 he was convicted and sentenced to death for the murder of a woman, but the sentence was later commuted to one of penal servitude for life. In 1927, after spending 18 years in Peterhead prison, he established his innocence, was released and awarded $30,000.—Collier's.

THE TRUTH

Today's popularity of Doan's Pills, after many years of world-wide use, surely must be accepted as evidence of their value. And favorable public opinion supports that of the able physicians who test the value of Doan's under exacting laboratory conditions. These physicians, too, approve every word of advertising you read, the objective of which is only to recommend Doan's Pills as a good, reliable treatment for disorder of the kidney function and for relief of the pain and worry it causes. If more people were aware of how the kidneys must constantly remove waste that cannot stay in the blood without injury to health, there would be better understanding of why the kidneys are so important when kidneys lag, and diarrhea medicine would be more often employed. Burning, scanty or too frequent urination, aching joints, dizziness, headache, backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up twice, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—these are the signs that the kidneys are not doing their duty. All played out. Use Doan's Pills. It is better to rely on a medicine that has won worldwide acclaim than on anything less favorably known. Ask your neighbor!
