Mr. Allen D. Walker of Alamogordo has been appointed by District Attorney M. A. Threat to fill the vacancy created by the death of his assistant, Hon. Cuba Clayton, which occurred Wednesday April 24th.

F. S. A. News

New Mexico farm families with standard rehabilitation loans from the Farm Security Administration have increased their average yearly income 67 per cent from $262.17 to $436.52, it is revealed by a nation-wide survey just completed in Washington and comparing FSA borrowers' 1939 status with their condition before coming into the program.

Results of the survey were received by G. Melvin Waters, County FSA supervisor, from Ralph R. Will, state director of the FSA's rural rehabilitation program.

Purchasing power of 4,211 New Mexico standard rehabilitation borrowers included in the survey was increased by $742,600.09.

The average net worth of these farm families above all debts was increased from $1,105.58 before they came into the program to $1,252.53 at the end of the 1939 crop year, a gain of 11 per cent.

The families have not only increased their net worth and annual income, but are making satisfactory progress in the repayment of their loans. They have thus far paid $1,378,218 into the Federal Treasury in loan installments out of $3,450,179 borrowed.

Mr. Waters said the average FSA low-income borrowers certainly could not be considered a top ranking credit risk, since this agency makes loans only to families who cannot obtain adequate credit elsewhere. Most of them had been on relief or were rapidly approaching relief status, yet the typical New Mexico farm family borrowed $871.70 and thus far has repaid $327.29, although the greater part of the loan will not be due for four or five years.

The average New Mexico FSA farm family last year increased the production of food for home consumption 217 quarts of fruits and vegetables, 435 gallons of milk, and 18 tons of forage under diversified farming. Mr. Waters said this has meant a higher standard of living, a better diet, and usually a marked improvement in health.

Nautical Notes

Contrary to popular belief, the principle of using iron to protect armed vessels from shell fire did not originate in the encounter between the Monitor and Merrimac in 1862. It had been used by the French against the Russians seven years before in the Crimean War. But the engagement between the Monitor and Merrimac was the first conflict between two ironclads and it conclusively demonstrated the fact that wooden men-o-war were a thing of the past.

To wear spurs with the naval uniform and bring a horse aboard a battleship is the privilege of one class of officers in the British Navy, and only one officer. That officer is a major of Marines aboard a flagship.

The crew of a 86 gun frigate of the United States Navy of 1812 consisted of 9 officers 30 petty officers, 216 seamen, and 46 marines. This was a total of 309 men on a ship a little larger than an ordinary house.

Ships at sea pass hundreds of snakes swimming about, miles off shore. They are known as sea snakes and are extremely poisonous. Doctor Ditmars, of the New York Zoo, states that their venom is about five times as poisonous as that of a rattlesnake.

Only two major powers man their naval ships with volunteers; Great Britain and the United States. The others use conscription. Enlistments in the British Navy are for twelve years, twice the new six year enlistment in our Navy.

The first U.S. warship of iron using steam was the Michigan built at Erie, Pa., in 1844. On June 17, 1905, the ship was reconditioned as a steam vessel. She was finally stricken from the Navy list on March 12, 1927, after 83 years of service.

THE TRUTH COMES OUT AT TEA FOR THE CROWD (See Recipes Below)

At the Tea Table

This is the one year in four when the bachelor had better put on his running boots or else risk getting caught and deprived of the freedom he prizes so dearly. For it's Leap year . . . girl proposes and man can't very well dispose . . . at least that's how the legend runs.

There's nothing quite so modern as an old-fashioned engagement tea with which to make the announcement that Judy loves John and John doesn't mind at all.

There's nothing so modern, either, as inviting the young man in the case and his bachelor friends to the party. Now, in 1940, afternoon tea is not the "strictly feminine" affair it has been unjustly accused of being. On the contrary, Mr. American prefers the invigorating pick-up, just as long as he can take his tea exactly as he likes! This may mean with clove-plucked lemon, or a touch of candied ginger, perhaps.

Since the boys hate fuss and frills, and like a girl to come straight to the point without keeping them guessing, they would think it pretty clever to "say it" with hearts bearing the initials of the happy pair attached to the strings of the tea-balls.

Cookies are to the male what candy is to the baby . . . the most desirable bun-bun in the world of sweetmeats. So . . . if you know any girl who has gotten herself engaged and is about to tell the world . . . suggest that she invite the boys along with the girls to bear the glad news and tell her to be generous with the cookies!

DOANS PILLS

IRISH EYES by Kathleen Norris

CHAPTER VIII—Continued "I was up at Tiller's Beach with some people this year," Sheila volunteered, "and I met Peter there. We liked each other, all right. Then I didn't meet him again until last—until—I guess it was Friday night. It seems years ago." "And you and him made a date, hey?" asked Ken. "Well, he wanted to see me. To explain—" "Explain why he threw you down?" A silence. "He didn't throw me down," Sheila said mildly, ending it. "He wanted me to know that he hadn't run out on me. He'd lost the number of my house."

CHAPTER IX

When they were finally approaching the city, and the theater advertisements and the multiplying apartment houses warned them that their long trip was almost over, Sheila was conscious of a sudden lassitude, a weariness that seemed to have as much to do with the soul as the body. Wonderful as it would be to get home to Ma and Angela and Joe and have the first thrilling conversation with them, she wished that it was over. She dreaded the explanations—

When the men returned—

She looked at the man who had been sitting next to her in the car. He was looking at her with a steady gaze. "What business was that of yours?" Mrs. Carscadden demanded unsympathetically. "You'd do much better to keep out of police stations as things are." "Well, if I don't think I'm in a bad dream!" said Sheila. "The Mc Canns reported it to the police," her sister said. "The Mc Canns did!" "Yes, they were so worried about Peter. He had half a dozen appointments for Saturday and he didn't keep one of them. And there was a big party Saturday night—" "I know. The Cahills."

"Begin at the beginning Sheila," Joe said.

proached her, with spirit, "If you could have seen the crying and goings-on—if you could have known how we all felt! Ma was up all night, and Joe kept coming in and out—it was something awful!" "And then yesterday—Ma, that was only yesterday!—then yesterday, Judge and Mrs. Mc Cann came." "Well," Sheila said, with a hard little laugh, "it seems that you mustn't let yourself get kidnapped by bootleggers these days." "Gertrude Keane has been terribly sick," Angela went on in the accusing, tender tone she had used all through the conversation, "she's simply prostrated."

Braided Rug With Scalloped Border

By RUTH WYETH SPEARS ONE day a snap-shot came from a reader showing a half dozen braided rag rugs spread out on the grass. No two were alike. Beef-Eating Plant

At least one species of the sundew, a plant that lives on insects caught with the aid of a viscid secretion exuded by its tentacles, is so sensitive that it reacts to the mere presence of food. When a small piece of raw beef is suspended on a wire within its reach, the plant extends its nearest tentacle and grasps the meat inside of an hour.—Collier's.

Isn't This Why You Are Constipated?

What do you eat for breakfast? Coffee, toast, maybe some eggs? What do you eat for lunch and dinner? White bread, meat, potatoes? If you eat this kind of food, you are probably constipated. You probably don't eat enough "bulk." And "bulk" doesn't mean the amount you eat. It's a kind of food that forms a soft "bulky" mass in the intestines and helps a movement. If this is your trouble, may we suggest a crunchy toasted cereal—Kelllogg's All-Bran—for breakfast. All-Bran is a natural food, not a medicine—but it's particularly rich in "bulk." Being so, it can help you not only to get regular but to keep regular. Eat All-Bran regularly, and drink plenty of water. Made by Kellogg's in Battle Creek. If your condition is chronic, it is wise to consult a physician.

Well-Trained Mind This is a proof of a well-trained mind, to rejoice in what is good and to grieve at the opposite.—Cicero.

We wonder who the Republicans will select for their meteor this time to go sailing across the heavens?

Last election Albert Mitchell was nominated. During the campaign he flew from point to point in his airplane with Charlie Madrid as his orator. Charlie was a fine speaker and his quaint Navajo accent was charming. At times we wondered whether Albert was the comet and Charlie the tail, or whether Charlie was the comet and Albert the tail. After the votes were counted we decided Johnnie was the Comet and Albert and Charlie were both tails. Some flying sky-binders, they were.

Of late years Lincoln county has been a step-child of the state and if our dissensions keep up it will continue so. For goodness sake, what-is it all about? Let's forget our selfish motives and support our party.

One of our local citizens said "Oh for a warmer climate!" We've read in the Bible about a place where the season is perpetual. Cheer up, you'll soon be dead.

Another weekly has folded its wings, and ceased publication. No less a paper than the New Mexico Sentinel. And here we were envying their wide circulation and apparent success.

Our desk has an almost complete new list of exchanges. The majority of them are tabloids.

WHY I OUGHT TO GO TO CHURCH REGULARLY

"And, as his custom was, he went into the synagogue on the Sabbath Day." Luke, 4:16.

There are mistaken people who seem to think that going to church is all that is necessary to constitute one a Christian. There are others, a very great many, who say they believe it a duty and privilege to attend church, but their attendance is very irregular indeed. There are others who go so far as to invite people to go to church, yet refuse to attend themselves. And still others who extend the invitation but not only refuse to attend themselves but also say by virtue of their business or every day activities—Come on and go to hell. There is entirely too much lack of principle, too much irregularity and lack of constancy, too much easy-going carelessness among professing Christians in respect to this matter of church attendance. It bodes no good for the cause of Christ. It warrants us in pressing the reason for regularity. Regularity means

(Why I Ought To Go To Church Regularly) Continued.

"according to rule", from the Latin regula, which means "a rule". Why should we not have a rule about church attendance and live up to it? Why ought I to go to church regularly?

One excellent reason is because we have the example of Christ commending this custom to us. "And, as his custom was, he went into the synagogue on the Sabbath day." Not only here, but in other places in the Gospels it is made plain that it was our Lord's custom to attend the Sabbath services in the synagogue—those services which took the place precisely of our Sunday services. Then, if you are looking for Jesus, you may be sure that he can be found in the house of worship.

And there is great force in this example. We know how free Christ was from the constraints of mere custom and tradition, how quickly he repudiated all practices and ceremonies not profitable or grounded in the will of God, however ancient they might be or sacred in the eyes of the people. The fact that he did not cast this custom aside, that he made it his rule to observe it, that he found it a means of blessing to himself and of communicating blessings to others, gives us reason as strong as implicit command for us who are his followers to do as he did. In regularity we follow Christ's example in church attendance; in irregularity we depart from it.

A second reason for going to church may be found in the blessings received. When we are obedient and regular in following the example of Jesus, we are happy. We are strengthened for the task ahead, for the temptations and problems that may be ours. The church is a refuge for the tempted where they may find deliverance from sin and strength to defeat their spiritual enemies. It is a spiritual home where the children of God can hold fellowship with one another and enjoy a safe and happy social life.

A third reason is that we may learn more about God's will for the lives of man-kind. The church is an educational institution where the word of God is studied so that we may be stabilized in the teachings of the Bible. We study the greatest book the world has ever known. It is made up of the most thrilling love stories, the world's best poetry, the best of all history, and written by divinely inspired men. We study life, hardships, defeats, victories, punishments, and blessings.

Hebrews 10:25 says "Not forsaking the assembling of yourselves together, as the manner of some is, but exhorting one another; and so much the more as ye see the day approaching." So to stay away without a very good reason is to disobey God and transgress his word. If Christ should come to earth now, would he find us busy about "Our Father's business"?

Paul said in Eph. 5:25, "Even as Christ loved the church and gave himself for it." Now if Christ loved the church enough to die for it, what does he expect us to do for it? What have we done for it and what are we willing to do for it?

Nurses Get Rigorous Training In Hospitals Throughout U. S.

NEW YORK CITY.—National Hospital day, May 12, will find thousands of Americans visiting their local hospitals. Guiding the work of these humanitarian institutions are nurses, trained in any of the 1,375 accredited schools to become sentinels of U. S. health. At Mt. Sinai hospital, New York, is a typical nursing school, whose work is pictured below. Mt. Sinai has 235 student nurses who must be completed a four-year high school course with good record, must be between 19 and 30 years old, of good health and suitable personality. In three years they will have completed 6,000 hours of practical training and approximately 1,200 hours of theoretical work in the classroom and laboratory.

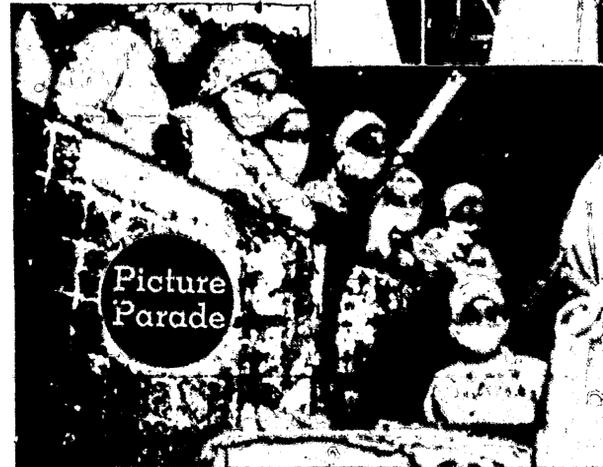

ABOVE: The nurse's health may be an important factor in her patient's health. Hence Mt. Sinai's students have daily exercises to keep them in trim for the rigorous schedule. RIGHT: "Capping day" is a great event in their lives. After passing the 24-week probationary period, they proudly receive the cap and uniform which makes them full-fledged student nurses.

ABOVE: In the second half of their first year, students attend lectures on medical and surgical nursing, also working five hours a day in the wards. LEFT: Typical instruction. Students are taught the different methods of massage by actual demonstration.

During her training period, the student nurse assists at from 25 to 40 operative cases. First, of course, they must observe actual operations. Right: Two students are "scrubbing up" to assist for the first time—a real adventure!

Fascinated, intent, these students are following every detail of a major surgical operation, familiarizing themselves with the technique and procedure. Each realizes that soon she will stand at the doctor's side to help him save a human life!

Time out from the routine to open the day's mail from home.

THAT THIRD TERM

President Grant Almost Made It, He Led for 36 Ballots in 1880

Teddy Roosevelt, Who Had Served Seven Years, Made Only Other 'Serious' Try in 1912 As 'Bullmooser.'

A contemporary cartoon by Keppler, depicting Grant as a "presidential automaton" (operated by Fish, Morton, Conkling and others, hidden behind the platform) who silently smoked his cigar while the people anxiously awaited a statement from him about his third term intentions.

EDITOR'S NOTE: The following article, last in a series of three impartial reviews of the third term issue, tells how a "dark horse" named James A. Garfield prevented Ulysses Grant from being elected a third time.

III. THE TWO BIG PRESIDENTIAL TRIES

ONLY twice in history has a President been receptive to a "third term." Ulysses S. Grant was the first and Theodore Roosevelt was the second. In Roosevelt's case, it wasn't exactly a "third term," for he had not previously had two complete terms as President.

About the middle of Grant's second term some of his supporters started a movement to renominate him. Immediately there was an uproar.

"Caesarism!" shrieked the New York Herald, the leading anti-administration newspaper, and that cry was echoed by Horace Greeley's powerful New York Tribune. Then other papers joined in the campaign to awaken the public to the dangers of the political machine that had been built up in Grant's administration.

As a result of this uproar, the Republican state convention in Pennsylvania on May 20, 1875, resolved:

That we declare a firm, unqualified adherence to the unwritten law of the Republic which wisely, and under the sanction of the most venerable examples, limits the presidential service of any citizen to two terms and we the Republicans of Pennsylvania, in recognition of this law, are unalterably opposed to the election to the presidency of any for a third term.

Grant had felt that it was undignified for the President to reply to the accusations of the newspapers. But when members of his own party went on record so strongly he felt that he couldn't ignore the issue.

He issued a statement informing the convention that he had sought neither his first term nor his second. "I am not, nor have I ever been, a candidate for renomination," he wrote. "I would not accept a renomination if tendered, unless it should come under such circumstances as to make it an imperative duty—circumstances not likely to occur."

Feared He'd be 'Drafted.'

But this didn't allay the suspicion that he might permit himself to be "drafted." So state conventions continued to adopt anti-third term resolutions and on December 15 Rep. William M. Springer of Illinois offered in congress a resolution

That in the opinion of this house the precedent established by Washington and other Presidents of the United States in refusing from the presidential office after their second term has become a part of our republican system of government, and that any departure from this time-honored custom would be unwise, unparliamentary, and fraught with peril to our free institutions.

The resolution was adopted by a vote of 234 to 18—80 Republicans joining with 148 Democrats to pass it over the opposition of 18 Republicans. That stopped the third term talk and Grant supporters made no effort to oppose the Republican nomination of Rutherford B. Hayes, who won in the election.

After leaving the White House Grant started his tour of the world which became a triumphal procession in every country he visited. When he returned his friends began talking third term again. Although he told them privately "I am not a candidate for any office, nor would I hold one that required any maneuvering or sacrifice to obtain," they weren't convinced that he wouldn't accept it if offered him.

Even if he was sincere in disclaiming any desire to return to the White House, that wasn't the case with his wife. Julia Dent Grant wanted to be queen of Washington society again. How much she had to do with convincing Grant that he might win a third time is unknown. But it was probably considerable.

At any rate, he allowed Roscoe Conkling to proceed with the build-up for his nomination by the Republicans. Sentiment in Grant's favor grew rapidly, partly because of his popularity with the people and partly because of their dissatisfaction with Hayes' administration.

As the movement to renominate him gained momentum, the old cry of "Caesarism" was raised again and early in 1880 a number of Republicans held an anti-third term convention in St. Louis. They adopted resolutions denouncing the third term idea, the corruption of the Grant regime and Conkling's "bossism."

When the Republican national convention was held, this element joined forces with the Hayes wing of the party and the supporters of James G. Blaine to prevent Grant's nomination. But despite their efforts, he led the balloting for 39 votes, only to lose out when they sprang a "dark horse" in the person of James A. Garfield.

Bitter in Defeat.

When Grant received the news of his defeat, he spoke bitterly of his managers. "They never should have permitted my name to come before the convention unless they were sure of victory," he declared, which was pretty sure proof of his desire for a third term and his willingness to accept it if offered him.

The case of Theodore Roosevelt was somewhat different from that of Grant. He became President on the assassination of President McKinley. After he finished McKinley's unexpired term, he was elected on his own right in 1904—and this was his only election as President. He had, however, served seven years, almost two terms.

On November 4, 1904, after his victory over Alton B. Parker, the Democratic candidate, Roosevelt issued this statement:

On the fourth of March next I shall have served 3½ years and these 3½ years constitute my first term. The wise custom which limits the President to two terms regards the substance, and not the form, and under no circumstances will I be a candidate for nor accept another nomination.

A "third term" boom was started for him in 1907 and he was obliged to repeat his refusal. Both these refusals rose up to plague him in February, 1912, when a letter signed by the Republican governors of seven states asked him to be a candidate again.

"I will accept the nomination for President if it is tendered to me, and I will adhere to this decision until the convention has expressed its preference," he replied.

Despite the cries of "Steamroller!" and "Fraud!" by Roosevelt adherents, the convention expressed its preference for Taft. So T. R. bolted the convention, formed the Bull Moose party and campaigned as its candidate. Although he carried six states with 83 electoral votes, as against Taft's two states and eight electoral votes, Woodrow Wilson, the Democratic candidate, carried 40 states, got 435 votes in the electoral college and won an easy victory.

Science Seeks New Ways to Fight Old Age

NEW YORK.—Science hasn't yet found a way of beating the Grim Reaper, but modern research is making great strides in uncovering causes and preventatives of physical and mental old age.

While admitting that people who live much beyond 100 years are rare exceptions, medical men have decided that proper care during youth and proper diet the rest of our lives can do much to keep men and women living to a ripe old age.

Seeking causes for the death phenomenon, they believe that old age is simply a series of changes in the human body, but no single place has yet been discovered where its effects are first felt. Glandular deficiencies are popularly thought to be largely responsible, and this in turn may often be traced to dietary deficiencies. When skin becomes drier, wounds take longer to heal, and bones get brittle it is generally conceded that the trouble can be traced to the glands.

Finds 'Filtrate Factor.'

Though medical men frown on straight vitamin dosages, Dr. Agnes Fay Morgan of the University of California has tried to isolate a new vitamin whose absence from the body is at least known to bring on many symptoms of premature age.

In working with rats Dr. Morgan has concentrated on diet, perfecting a "filtrate factor" whose absence results in rapid aging. Among ordinary foods, the constituents of this filtrate factor are believed to be contained in yeast, whole rice and rice hulls, eggs, milk and many vegetables.

Science has certainly determined that overeating is not conducive to longevity. It has long been a proverb that gluttons "dig their graves with their teeth," and laboratory rats allowed to eat all they wanted actually did experience shorter lives than those whose diets were controlled.

Hope to Boost Life Span.

Although it is recognized that a long life is often inherited from ancestors who possessed the same traits, some scientists actually hope the average life span can be increased to 100 years. Nor is this all they promise, for a long old age of feebleness is not conducive to happiness. Science believes, rather, that if mankind will co-operate it can avoid death by disease or other accidents until the time comes for a quick old age and sudden end.

Sociologists are heartened by a modern reversal of the recent trend toward "junking" old people as unfit for profitable employment. It is now conceded that both youth and age are needed for a proper balance of the community, and old people themselves are realizing that their mental outlook on the world and life is as much a part of staying young as anything else.

Cite Franklin's Work.

Historians point to innumerable cases where people have done their most notable work at an advanced age. Benjamin Franklin was serving the United States as ambassador to France when he was 70, and several years later was making some of his most important scientific discoveries.

Moses, vigorous Israelite leader, was past 80 when he led his people to the promised land. Frenchmen still talk about Ninon de Lenicis, a lady who lived in the days of Louis IV. Although never beautiful, she was so witty and had such a lively mind that men were in love with her when she was past 80.

An Englishwoman, Jane Lewson, attained the age of 116 before she died in 1816.

It is because science believes premature death is caused so largely by accidents of youth that medical men lay great stress on protecting children from diseases that affect the heart and other vital organs. No offer of help is held out to those who seek repair of such bodily damages, yet Dr. Morgan found that rats which had gray hair and other signs of premature old age showed improvement when the "filtrate factor" was introduced in their diet.

WHY SHOULDN'T I STEAL HIM FROM YOU IF I CAN?

I gave her my best, but—my sister hated me.

Maybe it was because we were only half-sisters. Our mothers were different; as different as we were ourselves. But, I had promised our father on his deathbed that I would see that Gladys got everything until she was old enough to look out for herself.

I was faithful to that promise. Gladys was beautiful, popular—and in spite of my efforts—wild. And she envied me the man I loved. Yet she might have found real happiness, but—

Maybe you, yourself, are in the position of Jane Kent, or maybe you know some one who is. How would you work out this human problem?

That there is a way out—a real solution—is proved by the human, poignant diary of Jane Kent who writes her real life story under the title "Wild Sister" in June.

WHO'S NEWS THIS WEEK

By LEMUEL F. PARTON
(Consolidated Features—WNU Service.)

NEW YORK.—Adm. Sir Charles M. Forbes, commander-in-chief of the British home fleet, may be taking his current naval battles rather personally. He has a charming Swedish wife, who was Marie Louise Berndtson, daughter of Axel Berndtson of Stockholm. Their home has been a salon of mingling British and Scandinavian culture.

Sir Charles has not been particularly conspicuous in Britain's high command of the navy, but, by all accounts, he "has what it takes." Sixty years old, in the navy for 48 years, he has been in command of the home fleet since 1938. He fought in the Battle of Jutland, winning the D. S. C. From 1925 to 1928, he was director of naval ordnance. He commanded the destroyer flotilla Mediterranean fleet in 1930 and 1931 and was sea lord and controller of the navy from 1932 to 1934. He was second in command of the Mediterranean fleet from 1934 to 1936.

A British friend who arrived here recently tells me Sir Charles is regarded as perhaps the best naval strategist and tactician of England, of the esteemed "bulldog" type who, unless spurred by higher command, would attempt no too-hazardous exploits, but may be depended to go all the way through.

NO RUNS, no hits, no errors is a good score for a diplomat. The runs and the hits aren't expected in diplomacy and goose-egg in the error column is tops.

U. S. Diplomat's Batting Average Rated at 1,000%

Ray Atherton, scored thus after 24 years in the state department, is America's fully adequate minister to Denmark at a critical hour. He assumes charge of French and British interests.

He emerged against the backdrop of the Boston Beacon street aristocracy, and was known as the "beau of the beaux arts," when he was studying architecture in Paris. After short turns in architecture and banking, he entered the diplomatic service as a career man, serving in various posts at Tokyo, the Philippines and London until his appointment as minister to Bulgaria in 1937. He became minister to Denmark last August.

He is a cautious, "message to Garcia" diplomat who has learned never to get out on a limb—No. 1 in the diplomat's rubric. This in spite of an occasional frolicsome mood, as when he named his infant daughter Helen, Maria, in honor of General Dawes, his former chief at London.

IT WAS just a year ago that lean, grim, Calvinistic old Premier Hendryk Colijn warned Holland of big, bad trouble ahead in which innocent bystanders certainly would get hurt unless they prepared to defend themselves.

Statesman Colijn Warned Holland To Be Prepared

His urging had much to do with his country's diligent war preparations of the last twelve-month and today, Mr. Colijn, no longer premier, but an influential elder statesman, says Holland is ready to make things extremely unpleasant for trespassers. In the World war, the astute Queen Wilhelmina managed to save her country by a miracle of adroit maneuvering. She might be able to do it again, but just in case, they have re-rigged their dykes for web-footed warfare, if necessary, greatly enlarged their fighting forces and co-ordinated their defenses for the best possible showing a bantam-weight country could possibly make against the big sluggers.

Mr. Colijn, 70 years old next July, is an amiable, cultured gentleman, not given to fighting talk, but not inexperienced in real fighting. His political and financial fortunes were advanced by his showing in some catch-as-catch-can milling against the savage Sassaks on the Island of Lombok, east of Java, when he was a young lieutenant in the Netherlands army. His service in the Far East brought him in touch with Sir Henry Deterding and he moved along with Sir Henry to wealth and eminence in the world expansion of the Royal Dutch Shell Oil company.

He is a financier with a strongly liberal political orientation. In his public activities, he has been a vigorous foe of both the Nazis and Communists. In November, 1938, he denounced the Nazi anti-Semitic pogroms as "the most tragic episode of modern times."

He is calmly assured that civilization has staying power, air bombs or no air bombs. He has been leader of Holland's Calvinist party.

White Satin With Lace Accents And Diamonds for Wedding Gown

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

SENTIMENT for the wedding gown of traditional white satin seems to prevail among this season's brides-to-be. Not that exceptions to the rule will be lacking, for fashion continues to introduce fascinating innovations such as white silk jersey draped in sculptural lines for the bride's dress.

For the very youthful bride a leading designer creates a vision of loveliness fashioned of 57 yards of fairy-like diaphanous net for the skirt and train. Then there is the excitingly new nuptial robe made of lovely deep old ivory ribbed silk faille. Even more thrilling is a beautiful model of brocaded silk that takes on a touch of color via a quaint patterning of romantic floral sprigs and foliage.

For the simple wedding, fashion declares in favor of the prettiest sheer dainties fancy might picture, which is in line with the new trend to wear smart and lovely cottons this summer. Along this line of thought is an entrancing gown designed for the bride who favors sweet simplicity. Styled of dotted organdy, there are deep bias-cut ruffles fluttering here and there on bodice and skirt. A low-cut round neckline finished off with fluttering frills accents youth in its every detail.

However, notwithstanding the lure of bridal themes that depart from the conventional and usual, the fact remains that enthusiasm for a revival of time-honored traditional white satin is very apparent this season. Furthermore, there is an awakened interest in the all white wedding among prospective brides. The bride in classic white satin, the attendants in billowy white net, white lilacs, white roses with a plentiful showing of green in foliage and stems makes a picture of surpassing charm and elegance. To distinguish the gown of ivory white satin, superb styling must reflect in every detail. The patrician gown in the illustration bespeaks that perfect finesse that proclaims its elegance. This lovely model boasts a basque bodice with wide picturesque skirt beginning from shirring at the hips. Exquisite Alencon lace incerted in the puffed sleeves carries an important style message that accents of precious lace on white satin is a feature emphasized in spring-summer wedding gowns.

The news about the brides pictured in the insets is that they wear diamonds instead of regulation pearls. Not a superfluous display that offends good taste—not by any means! A single important piece is the theme fashion advances, perhaps an heirloom brooch or pendant. An aristocratic as a princess in the bride pictured in the top inset. The square-cut neckline with its dainty frill of filmy white tulle is ever so flattering. Her necklace sparkles, so does her tiara headpiece.

"Something old and something new" is the thought that is expressed in the charming little quaint headpiece fashioned from the lace yoke of her mother's wedding dress worn by the bride portrayed in the oval below. The new diamond cross pendant that lends infinite enchantment to the bridegroom's gift. Her engagement ring is a marquise (boat shaped) cut—very new and very smart in design.

In regard to fabric choices for the maid of honor and the colerie of bridesmaids and flower girl that grace the wedding picture, it is interesting to note the revival of that old-time favorite, marquisette. (Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

Big White Quills

It's a white season for millinery. If the hat is not all white the accent of tremendously large white quills will give the proper touch to a swank navy or black straw hat. For that matter the very latest is to trim one's voguish gray felt casual hat with a white feather or flock of little white wings. The novel black straw hat pictured above shows the white feather advantageously in two enormous quills.

Organdy Necklaces

A smart white lingerie touch is treated like a piece of jewelry in a new flower necklace to brighten a dark colored basic dress. The flowers are made of starched white organdy, each one edged with a fine line of red and strung on a rolled organdy band.

Paris Coats Show Fullness at Back

The new coats are of various cuts, fitted and somewhat flared; with movement in the back only; or straight. Morning and sports types again vacillate between the redingote, this spring with plaits in its back, and the ample coat that hangs from the neck or from a shallow yoke.

A newcomer is the coat that is flat in front and bloused in the back at the waist. There are a few capes, mostly rather straight, broad shouldered, and long enough to cover the gown.

Dark Twill Coats Spring's Favorite

Favorite coat this season is a dark twill cut on fitted lines, though a number of loose-backed ones are also shown. (It's smart to wear a loose plaid one over a plain suit.) Frocks to wear under the new coats are of printed crepe, jersey and wool.

Navy blue, black, milk chocolate brown, gray, cadet blue and sand beige are outstanding colors in new clothes.

Newest Silhouette Shows Slim Skirt

Outstanding news in the new clothes is a narrower silhouette in which a slim skirt is grafted to a bloused top either in coats or frocks. Otherwise spring skirts are gently flared below a long torso with an incurved waist.

"The Name Is Familiar"

BY FELIX B. STREYCKMANS and ELMO SCOTT WATSON

Smithsonian Institution

THE Smithsonian Institution in Washington bears the name of an Englishman who never had set foot on American soil but who left his entire fortune to establish in this country what was destined to become one of the greatest storehouses of scientific knowledge in the world.

James Smithson, born in 1765, was the natural son of a widow, Elizabeth Keate Macle and Hugh Smithson, an English country squire. During his boyhood and college years he bore the name of James Lewis Macle, but after he was admitted to the Royal society and had won some fame as a scientist, he applied to the crown for permission to take his father's name. This was granted in 1802 and thereafter he was James Smithson. However, his father's title as duke of Northumberland went to his half-brother, Lord Percy.

James Smithson

Because of the bar sinister on his name he never married. He hated the monarchical system and left England to make his home in Genoa, Italy, where his life of tragic frustration ended in June, 1825. When his will was opened it was found that he had left a fortune of more than half a million dollars "to the United States of America to found at Washington, under the name of the Smithsonian institution, an establishment for the increase and diffusion of knowledge among men."

Why did he do it? That is one of the unsolved mysteries of history. Once he wrote, "My name shall live in the memory of man when the titles of the Northumberland and the Percys are extinct and forgotten." That may afford a clue!

Bowie Knife

DICTIONARIES say a bowie knife is a stout, straight, single-edged hunting knife. But more than a hundred years ago, when hunting knives were more important as a means of self-preservation, a Bowie knife was known as "the kind that Jim Bowie carries."

History is not certain as to who invented the knife, but there is no question that it was named after Colonel James Bowie, a native of Tennessee. There is a story that Bowie thrust his butcher knife into an attacking Indian and his hand slipped down over the blade, cutting it severely.

However, it was the Indian who failed to heal up, not Bowie, and at his first opportunity Bowie had a hunting knife made to order with a guard on it. Soon after he began to carry it he was attacked by three desperadoes and killed all of them with his new kind of knife. The men of the times began ordering knives like Bowie's and soon began merely to ask for Bowie knives.

Bowie was finally killed himself in the battle of the Alamo but when his body was found it was surrounded by dead Mexicans whom he had killed first. Col. James Bowie was the kind of man who, if he lived today, would be prominent in the testimonial advertisements.

Volts

VOLTS—the units for measuring electrical force—are named in honor of Alessandro Volta, Italian professor who tamed the electric spark in the early 1800s.

Up until then electricity was produced only by rubbing a piece of glass, resin or wax with the dry hand or a piece of dry cloth, making a spark. Electricity had no practical use—except as a novelty of the French drawing rooms. There gentlemen who wore laces would shock ladies who wore hoop skirts by generating static electricity and then touching the ladies on the cheek. This pastime is much less shocking, however, than some of the others that history says went on in French drawing rooms and perhaps we should minimize the importance of static electricity.

At any rate, Alessandro Volta spent the greatest part of his life trying to generate electricity without rubbing anything. One day he tried piling silver and zinc discs of equal size upon each other with wet pieces of cloth between. He connected the first and last discs with a wire and got—not a shock, but the first steady current of electricity in history. (Released by Western Newspaper Union.)
