CARRIZOZO, NEW MEXICO; FRIDAY, OCT. 18, 1940

NUMBER 16

Elbert T. Collier

Mr. Elbert T. Collier age 76 passed away at his home here at 4 o'clock last Monday afternoon, October 14. His health has been slowly declining for several years.

Mr. Collier was born in Council Grove, Kansas, August 17, 1864. He came to New Mexico in his early childhood with his parents Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Collier and settled in the northern part of the state. In 1880 he moved to White Oaks and since that time has lived in the surrounding vicinity. Mr. Collier was a man of high integrity and always looked for the best in everyone, thereby making many friends.

He had an inquiring mind, seeking for more and more knowledge, and was deeply interested in the bigger things of life rather than those which are trivial.

He did not unite with a n y church, but, as he said during his illness, he had accepted Jesus Christ as his Lord and m a s t e r many years ago. His life exemplified this fact for through the years of his affliction he was a living example of patience and kindness.

He leaves to mourn his passing, his wife, Mrs. E. T. Collier, two sisters, Mrs. Geo. L. Hopping, and Mrs. Geo. M. Brown both of California, a number of nieces and nephews and a host of friends.

Funeral services were conducted at the First Methodist church Thursday afternoon by Rev. L. H. Hughes.

Mrs. Ben Burns, Mrs. Ray Lemon and Mrs. Don English were in charge of the music.

Pall bearers were: Messrs. Frank English, Calvin Carl. A. H. Hudspeth, Jack Cleghorn, R. E. Berry, Andrew McBrayer.

Honorary pall bearers were Messrs. Paul Mayer, Shirley Phipps, Vance Smith, Geo. Goodson, Meyer Barnett, A. L. Burke, Wm. Gallacher, C. A. Snow, Wayne Van Schoyck, Ed Queen, F. A. English, Clyde Luckey and Dr. Paden.

Interment was at the White Oaks cemetery, with the Masonic Lodge, of which he was a member, in charge.

Floral offerings were many and beautiful.

ONE 4-drawer (Standard) sewing machine for sale.

Mrs. R. A. Walker.

Mr. and Mrs. Ed Queen were here from White Oaks Thursday.

Mr. Jimmy Duncan made a business trip to El Paso Wednesday.

American Legion News

The American Legion and Auxiliary of Benjamin I. Berry Post No. 11, held their regular monthly meeting Thursday night, Oct. 10. Following a short business session, a covered dish luncheon was served. Those present included Miss Lydia Eickles Assistant Director of Public Welfare of N. M. and Mrs. Boettcher, county chairman of Public Welfare and the following members: Our Gold Star mother, Mrs. Hipp, Mr. and Mrs. Scharf, Mr. and Mrs. Conley, Mr. and Mrs. West, Mr. and Mrs. Gallacher, Mr. and Mrs. Norman, Mrs. Hobbie, Mr. and Mrs. Greisen, Mr. and Mrs. Shields, Mr. and Mrs. Jim Greer, Mr. and Mrs. Brown, Mr. and Mrs. Moore, Mr. and Mrs. Pink, Mr. and Mrs. Walker, Mrs. Wilingham, Mrs. Carl, Mr. Floyd Rowland, Mr. Dan Loudan, Mr. Hoeness, and our two new and youngest members, Misses LaWanna Conley and Ida Greer.

At a large table placed in the center of the Hut, using as a center piece the Legion and Auxiliary flags, were seated with Miss Eickles and Mrs. Boettcher, our District President, Rachel West, Pres. Beulah Scharf, Vice Pres. Laura Norman and Sec. May Conley. Following the supper, Miss Eickles gave a very interesting and impressive talk on child welfare legislation and the important part the Legion and Auxiliary take in this work. After Miss Eickles talk, the meeting was turned into a round table discussion and very much enjoyed by all. The Legion and Auxiliary wish to express their appreciation to Miss Eickles for the nice talk and the enlightenment she gave us as to further steps we may take in child welfare programs.

Mrs. Lou Fink, Publicity Chairman.

Independents Tell Why They Support Roosevelt

The group of independent progressives headed by Senator George W. Norris of Nebraska, and Mayor La Guardia of New York, who have organized a movement in support of President Roosevelt for another term, gave their reasons for doing so in this statement which Senator Norris made to the President:

"These are no ordinary times. "In this period of crisis, believing that the safety of the United States of America can best be assured through demonstrated strength and know leadership, and knowing well that what was won at the ballot box can only be protected at the ballot box, we call upon the independent-minded voters of America to support Franklin D. Roosevelt and Henry Wallace for President and Vice President of the United States.

"We have searched our hearts with the traditional apprehensions of independent-minded men and women about a third term for a President.

"In other circumstances some of us are on public record as having been against a third term for a President.

"But if independent-minded men and women are to preserve the liberties of American democracy dearest to their hearts they must be realistic in their apprehensions.

"In this crisis the American people have two choices and only two choices for Commander in Chief. Those choices are Willkie and Roosevelt.

"The first choice is the answer to the prayer of the utilities, monopoly.

The second is the hope of the American people.

"Under such circumstances a 3rd term is a relatively insignificant apprehension. Under such circumstances we are choosing between a third term for President Roosevelt, who has the nation's safety well at hand, and the uncertainty of a first term for an inexperienced and untried candidate.

"We do not fear a slogan. We rely on the judgment of the majority of the American people. Today the best assurance of the continuity of the American system is a third term President elected by the majority vote of the Americans in accordance with constitutional provisions.

"We choose Roosevelt."

Mrs. D. S. Elliott went to El Paso Tuesday. She was accompanied by her daughter, Mrs. Caroll Stinnett of Alamogordo.

Messrs. Jack Harkey and Buster Walker returned Tuesday from California.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Skinner and son and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Bill Skinner were here from Angus Wednesday.

PROCLAMATION NAVY DAY

Navy Day will again be observed this year throughout the United States and on board naval vessels to bring a greater understanding of the policies and problems of the Navy to the American people.

From the time of the birth of the United States Navy in 1775 the pages of history recount a record of brilliant martial achievements. In times of peace the Navy stands constantly vigilant, as the first line of defense; keeping pace with advancing science in training and material to carry out its major assigned mission, the guarding of the continental and overseas possessions of the United States.

Therefore, M. U. Finley, Mayor of the City of Carrizozo do hereby proclaim Sunday, Oct. 27, 1940, to be Navy Day and it is my earnest desire that on said day the citizens of Carrizozo cooperate with the press and with patriotic organizations in giving special thought and study to the glory and achievements of the American Navy, to the memory of its heroic deeds, and to the consideration of its future needs.

Given under my hand and the seal of the City of Carrizozo this 18th day of October, 1940.

M. U. Finley, Mayor.

Attest: Morgan Lovelace, Clerk.

BINGHAM BREVITIES

Several of the young people from Bingham attended the dance at Tokay, Friday night. Everyone enjoyed themselves.

Rev. A. T. Coleman held a church services every 2nd Sunday of each month and everyone is welcome to come.

Tom, J. W., and Delbert Hefner, Alvin Griffin and Big Boy Eubanks have gone to work for the Hueco Cattle Co., near El Paso, Texas. A farewell dance was given in their honor at the Pearson home Saturday night.

The Long's and Spence's spent Sunday in the Coker home.

Mrs. Long and Mrs. Coker visited School Friday.

Bingham got a light rain Saturday evening.

Mrs. T. R. Coker and daughter, Lottie spent Friday night and Saturday, in the Long home.

Card of Thanks

We wish to express our sincere thanks to our friends and neighbors for their many kind deeds and expressions of sympathy in our present bereavement.

Carl E. Freeman, Carl Albert Freeman, Rhoda M. Freeman, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Pruett.

Mr. Alvin Carl was called to Hot Springs Wednesday due to the death of Mrs. Carl's younger sister, Mabel Wallace, who had been in ill health for some time. She had visited here frequently and her many friends here are deeply grieved by the death of one so young and attractive.

Miles Will Win

If surface appearances count for anything, and they usually do, Governor John E. Miles seems destined to return to office by one of the greatest majorities ever given a candidate for his office.

The Republican opponent of Miles has not impressed his audiences during the campaign as having either any great knowledge of state affairs, or as being preeminently qualified to take the place of a man who has admittedly made New Mexico a fine governor.

Most of the Republican campaign in this state has been predicated upon either trivial or imaginary charges against President Roosevelt and the New Deal.

Few people have been misled by the cries of "dictatorship" on the part of the Republicans, and fewer still can see any danger to democracy in retaining President Roosevelt at the helm in order that the nation may have the benefit of his experience during the world crisis we are going through.

Unemployment in New Mexico is at a new low level. Our state tax rate has been reduced. Cost of state government is down. Those are concrete facts which seem quite comforting and acceptable when compared with the hollow promises and doleful earnings of the Republican speakers.

What old Nostradamus, a seer of 400 years ago, predicted that has since come true. The Grand Duchess Marie of Russia tells how he foresaw "the great plague" of 1665, Napoleon, the entry of the U. S. in the World War -- and what he says will happen in the future until 1999 when he predicts a cataclysm which will leave few of the human race to bother about anything. Don't miss this double feature by the author of "The Education of a Princess" in The American Weekly, the magazine distributed with next week's Los Angeles Examiner.

Mr. and Mrs. Carl D. Jones of Hollywood, California spent Sunday here. They were enroute to Chicago and Albany, N. Y. Mr. Jones will take his yearly advance course in Locomotive equipment. They will also take in the World's Fair. Mr. Jones will attend the Railway Supply Men's Association in Chicago.

Mr. Marshall St. John and daughter, Eva Jane, spent Sunday at the O. M. Lee ranch near Alamogordo, they were accompanied by Miss Mabel and Mr. Eloy St. John.

Why Let Yourself Get Constipated?

Why endure those dull headachy days due to constipation, plus the inevitable trips to the medicine chest, if you can avoid both by setting at the cause of the trouble? If your constipation, like that of millions, is due to lack of "bulk" in the diet, the "better way" is to eat Kellogg's All-Bran. This crunchy, toasted breakfast cereal is the ounce of prevention that's worth a pound of emergency relief. It helps you not only to get regular but to keep regular, day after day and month after month, by the pleasant means you ever knew. Eat Kellogg's All-Bran regularly, drink plenty of water, and see if you don't forget all about constipation. Made by Kellogg's in Battle Creek. If your condition is chronic, it is wise to consult a physician.

Lavish and Unique Use of Fur Is Important Fashion Message

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

FOR drama and glamour, watch furs and fur treatments. It is an exciting story. Interest lies not only in the fact that the types of furs in use are so widely varied but in the capricious, whimsical out-of-the-ordinary treatments that designers give them. This adds a new and fascinating touch to fall and winter coats, suits and even dresses. Almost everything is being lavished with fur this season. Voguish long-coat costumes are especially richly enhanced with fur.

You can have as much or as little fur as you like on your winter ensemble. The "big idea" is that it must be applied with cunning ingenuity and artistry. Much is being said in regard to the outstanding importance of brown fur. Brown on black is especially favored. It is brown-beaver that enriches the handsome coat of black suede-like wool shown to the right in the picture. There is a generous collar of fur. The novelty of the fur treatment begins in the wide beaver circular-cut ruffle that ripples its way down one side and all around the hemline. Dramatic and exceedingly swank and new is the large beaver-faced felt hat which mildy wears. To complete this wealth of fur there is a matching muff for muffs have been listed among the "must have" items for fall and winter.

Speaking of novel and almost eccentric use of fur, the prize for originality and daring should go to the designers of headgear. The display of hats made of fur out-imagines whitest-tanzy this season. The fall and winter output of millinery created of fur exceeds all previous records. In matter of turbans, imagination plays up to a new high in originality and out-of-the-ordinary effects. In every instance almost without exception there is an accompanying fur hat to match the fur or one's costume. The wide brims faced with fur are creating a sensation.

One of the new moves in fur trimmings is to elaborate the entire front of the cloth coat. The gesture is aptly expressed in the picture. The tuxedo fronts are generously furred with all possibility of bulkiness removed in that there is a full-length zipper closing. And isn't the little fabric bow at the throat clever?

Pockets are another of the fur themes that intrigue the fancy. An example of the existing pocket vogue is presented in the costume suit shown to the left in the group. The dress with its neatly gored skirt is of handsome gray wool. With it a bloused jacket in worn of gray sheared lamb, supplemented with huge pockets of matching fur on the skirt. Here is a fur-enhanced jacket suit that is to be coveted. Wherever the wearer goes, it is sure to attract attention.

No report as to what's what in fur on the current style program is complete without a few enthusiastic remarks in regard to the tremendous vogue that exists for spotted furs, most notably leopard and civet cat. The younger set is especially keen on the spotted fur subject. As a spectator-sports number, the coat worn by the girl pictured in the inset is a star in the firmament of smart casuals. This coat of civet cat is typical of what college girls want for general outdoor wear. It has polished metal clasps to fasten it in this instance. Huge taffeta bows tied at the neckline are also popular. You really should have at least a dash of spotted fur somewhere about your winter costume if you are young and fashion-aspiring. (Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

Riot Red Accents

And now it is riot red that is creating a big collegiate stir. For that high-style rating, the college lass pictured is majoring in riot red. This new color accent starts right at her finger tips (riot red polish is very popular), continues in the lining of her Teddy-bear jacket, goes on and up into the knitted helmet with its bright brass buttons, and repeats in the wool pouch that holds her pencils and her change. Ask for riot red when buying accessories. If you want to know, riot red is a clear dark red, sophisticated, and as young as the casual styles that are causing a collegiate sensation this season.

Fabric Combination New Styling Theme

It is growing increasingly apparent that designers intend to make a big play on fabric combinations. The newer coats and dresses feature velvet and now-so-voguish velveteen. They are used either for trimming touches or in fifty-fifty combination with wools, velvets and other materials.

Some cloth coats have long lever panels of velveteen down the front. Other cloth coats are piped or bound with velvet, adding buttons covered with matching velvet. Very unique and strikingly attractive is a coat of velveteen that is bordered each side down the front and opening with black suede. When carried out in a warm maple brown velveteen with matching suede, the idea is very effective.

Long-Coat Costume Suits Have Dignity

Quiet simplicity that stresses elegance of material and the idea that "beauty unadorned is adorned the most" is the new trend this season. The new costume suit has gained almost immediate popularity. It has a long matching coat without fur or other enhancement, except possibly a little braiding or stitching, or sometimes even a restrained quilted motif.

Best dressed women are starting the season with the long dressmaker-black coat topped with an important looking wide brimmed felt or suede hat.

Made-to-Order Miracles

The advent of television created quite a nifty set of headaches for that corps of geniuses known in the radio world as "special effects" men. In radio work, it was a simple matter to simulate the explosion of a pistol by dropping a book flat upon a table. But in television the "unseen audience" wants to SEE that pistol—SEE those galloping horses. These photos show how the "special effects" department tackles the job.

Right: A group of spiders at work. The mechanical insects, controlled by the wires of the web, merrily spin their yarn on tiny spinning wheels.

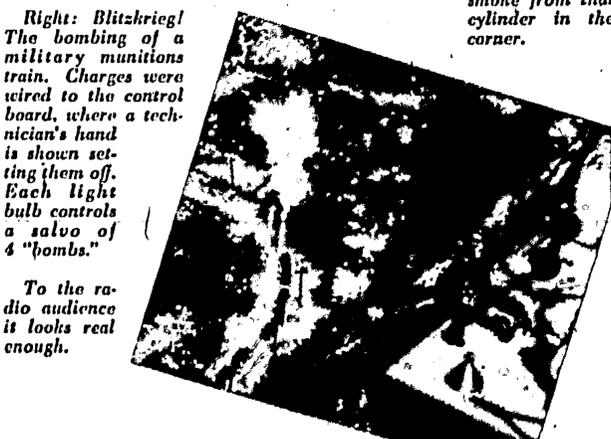

Picture Parade

Left: Smoke without fire... a "burning" castle. Special effects men built the miniature, arranged the "explosion" with a common rat-trap, and produced the smoke from that cylinder in the corner.

Right: Blitzkrieg! The bombing of a military munitions train. Charges were wired to the control board, where a technician's hand is shown setting them off. Each light bulb controls a salvo of 4 "bombs."

To the radio audience it looks real enough.

Left: William Eddy, NBC's special effects head, adjusting talking frog built for a television production of "The Sleeping Beauty." The frog also rolls his eyes and expands his chest.

Right: In television rain must be seen to be believed. And here it is. A realistic shower falls on a miniature castle. The rain is glass tinsel shaken through a wire screen.

Studio Battle Fleet... An ingenious and amazingly detailed miniature simulating a great harbor with a city in the background. In the harbor are a lighthouse and a squadron of battleships. The water, incidentally, is real.

WHO'S NEWS THIS WEEK

By LEMUEL F. PARTON
(Consolidated Features—WNW Service.)

NEW YORK. — Virginia Gayda, Italy's official writing wrist, pens a solemn warning to the U. S. A. In an editorial in his paper, Giornale D'Italia, he Spokesman Suave, tells us not to misanderstand the Axis-Japan agreement and hints that we're in for bad trouble if we make a misstep.

Why Gayda should have been chosen to do the tough talking, or rather writing, for Italy all these years has been a puzzle to this on-looker. Not that he doesn't do it well, but it is so unlike him. I met him once at a tea party in Rome, in the studio of a British sculptor. One would have thought he wouldn't hurt a fly. That was soon after Mussolini took power. Tall, slender, fair-haired, with a small, oilken mustache, impeccably dressed, Gayda seemed diffident and eager to please. He was then editor of Il Messaggero, which had been a strongly liberal paper, and he had made his political start in the general doctrinal zone of Mussolini's Marxian teachings.

But with the March on Rome he had done an about-face with Mussolini and was making his paper daily louder and fiercer. There was considerable embarrassment and shyness among the guests, as it wasn't safe for foreigners to mention Mussolini's name, and they engaged the suave Gayda in talk about art, Roman ruins, the glories of the Pitti and Uffizi, and the like.

Noting the signor's facile speech, I remarked to an old Scottish banker, standing by, that the editor seemed like a mighty smart chap. "Too smart for his britches," growled the old Scot. One never would have thought that come day he would be telling the U. S. A. where it got off.

A native of Rome, he began his newspaper career as central European correspondent for the Stampa, of Turin. He was in Russia when the World war started, entered the diplomatic service there and returned to newspaper work as editor of Il Messaggero in 1921. It was in 1928 that Count Ciano, Mussolini's son-in-law, discovered his penchant for ominous and threatening prose and made him the nation's editorial spokesman, as editor of Giornale D'Italia.

WHILE a talent for makeshift might not rate highly in a civilization assailed by deadly precision, it has certain advantages in a democracy as against the oil-or-nothing techniques of absolutist government. The mechanics of the letter are such that when it is wrecked, it is an inert, busted machine in a ditch, while a democracy has an organic quality which makes it adaptive, allows improvisation, and perhaps enables it to grow new tissue and survive a deal of waste and muddling.

Col. Douglas L. Netherwood, commanding officer of the northeast anti-aircraft defense at Mitchell field, indirectly touched off this idea. Recruits for the anti-aircraft forces are wearing odd assortments of uniforms, sleeping in garages because of the lack of tents, and drilling without sufficient rifles or other equipment. To the worriers, Colonel Netherwood says:

"Shucks, we're doing all right, and I'm sure that the quartermasters will catch up on their outfitting soon. I drilled in my civilian clothes when I joined the army back in 1906, as a private after I graduated from college. I'm sure the young fellows we have out here at Mitchell field don't mind it any more than I did."

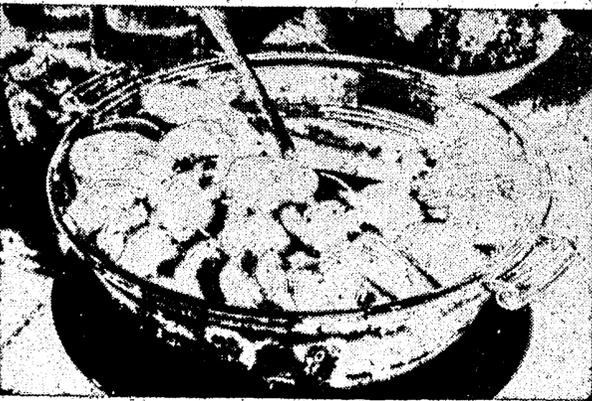

Colonel Netherwood was born in Birmingham, England, and, incidentally, the English are good improvisors and instinctive pragmatists. Their democracy came from adjustment and improvisation, rather than from the grand principles of the encyclopedists. However, Colonel Netherwood is no specialist for hit-or-miss preparedness.

In 1908 he entered the army, after his graduation from Texas Agricultural and Mechanical college. He has studied techniques of precision at the Army War college, the Army Industrial college and the Air Corps Practical school—with diplomas from all of them. He entered the signal corps and got his rating as a military aviator in 1917. In 1920 the aviation section of the signal corps was designated as the army air corps. He became a lieutenant colonel in 1928.

AN APPLE A DAY—SERVED IN A DIFFERENT WAY (See Recipes Below)

Apples hold a place of well-deserved popularity today, for they have been widely used as food from the earliest times. What other fruit has such a long season, tastes so good, keeps so well, can be served in so many different ways, and yet is relatively inexpensive?

Do you want apples for cooking, or for baking? Or do you want them for eating apples or dessert? Apples should be selected according to the purpose for which you are to use them.

A good cooking apple should be tart, or at least medium acid, with a juicy, fine-grained flesh. A good cooking apple, however, should have a distinct apple flavor. You are, no doubt, familiar with such names as Rome Beauty, Winesap, Black Twig, Grimes Golden and McIntosh.

Have you ever had the sad experience of baking apples only to find that they have remained hard and lack juiciness? Or did you use a variety that became so watery upon baking that you couldn't quite tell what it was? The Wealthy, McIntosh, Grimes Golden, Jonathan, Rhode Island Greening or Northwestern Greening, the Rome Beauty, the Winesap and Black Twig are all varieties of apples which may be used for this purpose.

A good dessert apple should have a prominent and distinct apple flavor, mildly acid, and with a fine-flesh texture. Here again you may select the McIntosh, the Grimes Golden, the Jonathan, the Rome Beauty, the Black Twig, or the Delicious.

A bowl of chining apples will appeal to the children when they come home from school. There will be no need for them to say, "Mom, I'm hungry; what can I have to eat?" The Wealthy, the Delicious, and the Rome Beauty are all popular eating apples.

There is nothing more delicious than a baked apple, apple pie, or a raw apple salad, but have you ever tried apples in fritter batter, or combined them with green peppers for a salad?

Here are some such recipes from my own test kitchen which are not only simple to prepare, but also include that much-longed-for variety in recipes when we have plenty of apples to use.

Norwegian Apple Pudding.

- (Serves 8)
- 1/2 pound prunes (about 9)
- 2 cups cold water
- 1 inch cinnamon stick
- 1 1/2 cups boiling water
- 1/2 cup cornstarch
- 1 cup sugar
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 1 tablespoon lemon juice
- 1/2 pound apples (about 3) (quartered) (cooked in a syrup of 1/2 cup water and 1/4 cup sugar)

Cover prunes with cold water, bring to a boil, and stew until soft. Remove stones and return the prunes, stick cinnamon and water to kettle. Add boiling water. Slowly stir in thin paste made of cornstarch, sugar, salt and a little cold water. Boil 20 minutes, stirring frequently. Remove cinnamon stick, and add lemon juice and apples. Place in greased molds and chill.

Scalloped Apples de Luxe.

- (Serves 6 to 8)
 - 2 1/2 cups graham crackers (about 26) (crushed)
 - 1/2 cup sugar
 - 1/2 teaspoon cinnamon
 - 1/4 teaspoon nutmeg
 - 1/4 teaspoon salt
 - 4 tablespoons butter (melted)
 - 1 quart apples (6 apples) (sliced)
 - 1/2 cup pineapple juice
 - 1/2 cup marshmallows (quartered)
- Combine graham cracker crumbs, sugar, spices, salt and butter. Place half of the crumb mixture in a well-greased 1 1/2 quart casserole. Add half of the sliced apples, moistened with part of the pineapple juice. Cover with the remaining crumbs, and top with apple slices. Pour the remaining juice over all. Bake covered in a moderate oven (350 degrees) for 45 minutes or until apples are tender. Remove the cover. Arrange marshmallows over the top and brown in the oven for 3 to 5 minutes. Serve with cream.

Apple Fritters.

- (Makes about 12 fritters)
 - 1 1/2 cups flour
 - 1 1/2 teaspoons baking powder
 - 1/2 teaspoon salt
 - 3/4 cup milk
 - 1 egg (well beaten)
 - 2 apples (medium size) (1 cup, sliced)
- Mix and sift dry ingredients. Combine milk and egg, and add to dry ingredients, gradually, stirring constantly. Wipe, core, and pare apples, and cut into eighths and then slices. Stir into the batter. Drop by spoonfuls into deep fat which has been heated to 360 degrees. Fry until golden brown (4 to 5 minutes). Drain on brown paper and sprinkle with powdered sugar.

Applesauce Doughnuts.

- (Makes 2 1/2 dozen)
 - 2 tablespoons butter
 - 1 1/2 cups brown sugar
 - 2 eggs
 - 1 cup applesauce
 - 4 cups all purpose flour
 - 1/2 teaspoon salt
 - 1 teaspoon soda
 - 1/2 teaspoon nutmeg
 - 1/2 teaspoon cinnamon
 - 4 teaspoons baking powder
- Cream butter and add sugar while beating constantly. Beat eggs and add. Add applesauce. Mix and sift together the flour, salt, soda, nutmeg, cinnamon, and baking powder, and add. Roll, cut with doughnut cutter and fry in deep fat (heated to 365 degrees). Drain and roll in mixture of powdered sugar and cinnamon.

Dixie Apple Sauce Cake.

- 2 cups cake flour
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 1 teaspoon soda
- 1 teaspoon cinnamon
- 1/4 teaspoon cloves
- 1/2 teaspoon mace
- 1/2 cup shortening
- 1 cup sugar
- 1 egg (unbeaten)
- 1 cup seedless raisins
- 1 cup thick apple sauce

Sift dry ingredients. Cream shortening, add sugar gradually and beat well. Add unbeaten egg and raisins and mix well. Add dry ingredients alternately with the apple sauce. When thoroughly blended pour into greased loaf pan. Bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees) for 40 to 50 minutes.

Apple Torte.

- (Serves 5 to 6)
 - 1 egg (beaten)
 - 1/4 cup sugar
 - 1/2 cup flour
 - 1 teaspoon baking powder
 - 1/2 teaspoon salt
 - 1 tart apple (about 1 cup, cut fine)
 - 1/2 cup nut meats (cut fine)
- Beat egg thoroughly and gradually add sugar, beating well after each addition. Sift together the flour, baking powder and salt, and fold into the first mixture. Add apple and nut meats cut fine. (If desired, a dash of cinnamon may be added here). Place mixture in a well-greased pie pan and bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees) for about 40 minutes.

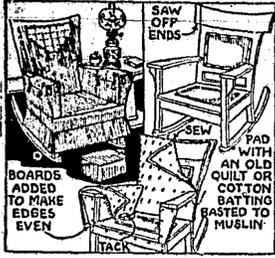

FEEDING FATHER.

Has "Dad" asked you to bake a Deep Dish Apple Pie, or to stir up his favorite Chocolate Cake lately? Probably not, but he will. Once he sees the nice, luscious red apples on the market, and feels a slight tangle of frost in the air, he will remember all of his old favorites. Why not be prepared by having reliable tested recipes of the ones he likes the best? Miss Howe's book, "Feeding Father," will give you just such recipes, and others, including "Spatteries with Apple Stuffing," "Mulligan Stew" and "English Currant Bread." You may secure your copy by writing to Eleanor Howe, 919 North Michigan Avenue, Chicago, Illinois, enclosing 10 cents, in coin.

HOW TO SEW

by Ruth Wyeth Spears

ONE day there came a letter with a rough sketch of the old rocker at the upper right. The last line of the letter said, "I will remove the rockers if you say so, Mrs. Spears, but I would like to keep them." Well, why not? There is nothing smarter now than things Victorian. Old oil lamps with flowered globes are being wired for electricity so, why not redesign this rocker along simple lines? Cover it with plain rep in a nice shade of blue perhaps, and give it a matching foot stool and a hem stitched linen chair set all tricked out in tassels?

Here is the result of that idea and the diagram shows all the steps that led up to it. Almost any old chair may be transformed with a slip cover if a little work

In Memory of Mrs. Carl E. Freeman

Dear Mrs. Freeman, has won rest so sweet, She's gone on a head, Her Savior to meet, Our friend and our neighbor, has gone away, But we will see Her again some day.

Tho' Her body has left us, Her works they yet stand, As fountains of blessings, they flow through the land We know She lived the "Golden Rule" yes, practiced it too. (Do unto others, as you would have them Do unto you.) Not because 'Twas a duty, But that She loved us all. She never failed us, when on Her, For help we did call. Hers was a life of service, given with so much cheer We enjoyed visiting with Her, we Loved Her Smile so Dear, When she heard of Some one who had sorrow, She cheered them and wished them a glad tomorrow. All of us who knew her, Loved Her through the years, Praise God! we did know Her, -we say through our tears, We know we will miss Her, But it was God's will, For Her tongue to be silent, Her body be still, We will cherish Her memory While She is at rest. And bow in submission For God knows best. Out of the Bible, the book that we love comes the promise from Our Savior above, Beautiful promise, bright shining word "Blessed are the dead, who died in the Lord; She rests from all labor, Her work is all done. She rests from all sorrow, in heaven there's none. She rests "Our Dear neighbor, So noble and true. She has finished the work God gave Her to do.

MANY professional engineers believe that the increase in the number of graduate engineers from 2,000 in 1890 to 158,000 in 1930 means an overcrowding of the profession. Such an opinion, no doubt, has been influenced by employment conditions. There are many other engineers who feel that the training of highly skilled engineers will contribute much toward curing some of our economic ills. Certainly if the term "engineering" includes the technicians, the laboratory workers and the junior engineers, there always will be sufficient openings for engineering graduates. The achievements of present-day engineering will appear an interesting experiments compared to many accomplishments that lie ahead. More efficient harnessing of power, improved transportation on land, sea and in the air, universal communication and free exchange of scientific knowledge, exploitation of raw materials, a more sympathetic approach to all the problems of modern life—these and many others are the problems which will keep thousands of engineers busy for years to come. New applications of scientific knowledge are continually developing. The more we know about the forces and materials of nature, the better chance we have to use them in some manner beneficial to the human race.

TRUTH about ADVERTISING
 By CHARLES B. ROTH

$2 EGGS
 WHEN my mother went over-land in a covered wagon to a new home in the West, the country was just settling up. Transportation was slow, was expensive. Prices of everything were high.

She preserved a newspaper of her girlhood on the frontier, and it interests me occasionally to read the current prices of things you buy every day now for a few cents. Eggs were $2 a dozen in those days. Sugar brought 40 cents a pound. Kerosene was $3 a gallon. Candles cost 25 cents apiece.

Compare these prices with the prices you see advertised in your newspaper today and you will see that, although much talk is banded back and forth concerning the increased cost of living, the fact is that the cost has gone downward consistently since frontier times.

One of the reasons for high prices then was undoubtedly the difficulty with which the supply was obtained—the hazards and expense of transporting goods.

But the chief reason was that the cost of these necessities could not be spread out over enough customers to bring them at lower cost to all. The merchant had to pay the cost of his business out of sales to a comparatively few customers. Costs had to be high.

Prizes on everything you buy today, regardless of whether you live in a village or a large city, would be higher now if it were not for the service of advertising in lowering them to your advantage.

As soon as a manufacturer or a merchant begins to advertise he begins to sell more. As he sells more it costs him less to sell to each customer. He cuts the price. More customers come. Again he is able to cut the price.

Pretty soon you have the situation of improved quality and lower prices, brought about through the creative service of advertising to the consumer.

Advertising and high prices do not go together at all. They are extremely incompatible to each other. It is only the product which is unadvertised, which has no established market, that costs more than you can afford to pay.

Whenever you go into a store and buy an item of advertised merchandise, it doesn't make any difference what you are getting more for your money—more in quality and service—than you would get if you spent the same amount for something which was not advertised.

The man who builds a business on advertising can give you more for your money because advertising enables him to give more for less. See how advertising pays you every day.

Intensive Preparations by Army Insure Proper Accommodations for Conscripts

By FRANK M. DAVIS

(Released by Western Newspaper Union.)
WASHINGTON, D. C.—Adequacy in the provision of shelter, hospital, and sanitation facilities is the keynote in army preparations for the induction of selectees made available for military service by the Burke-Wadsworth Act.

Both the National Guard and the selective service inductees will be brought into the federal service by increments, in order that full preparations may be made prior to their induction. By the time any particular group is brought in, all necessary construction will have been completed and adequate facilities provided to insure healthful and comfortable living conditions.

This principle will apply particularly in regard to clothing and hospital equipment. The present War Department procurement objectives will also insure a sufficient amount of material so that the training of the new troops can be conducted on the latest and most modern equipment.

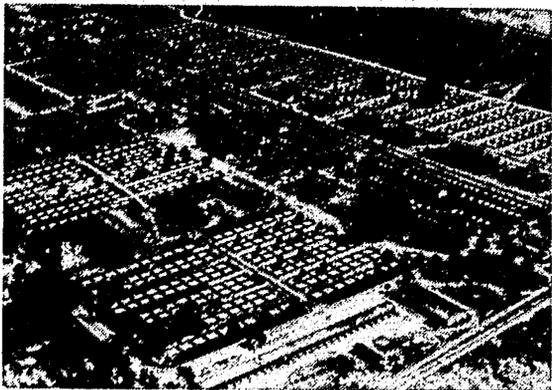

The selective service system of mobilizing the manpower of the nation in case of an emergency has been a subject of continuous study since the last war. The idea of selective service which was put into effect at that time proved to be sound, and since then all plans have been devoted to smoothing out the wrinkles and making minor improvements in the system.

The procurement of the manpower, authorized by the Burke-Wadsworth act is under the control of the director of selective service appointed by the President. The director has established a national headquarters and works through the governors of the states, who have appointed local boards composed of civilians—one board for approximately every 30,000 people. These local boards are charged primarily with the classification and examination of registrants as to availability for service. It is felt that members of such boards who are familiar with local conditions, who, in fact, are neighbors of the registrants, are much better qualified than any other agency to classify and judge the individuals who should be selected as the representatives of their communities in the army. The knowledge which the members of these boards have of each individual's status as to dependents, his work or profession, and his health, will go far toward insuring a fair and democratic operation of the system.

Army Requisitions States.

The army first exercises direct influence under the selective service act in requisitioning the various states for quotas of men to fill necessary military requirements as determined by the war department.

When a local board has been called upon by the state in which it is located to furnish a quota of selectees upon a certain date, the board will fill the quota by calling and assembling the necessary number of registrants in the order that their registration numbers are drawn by lot in Washington—provided, of course, that the men have been classified as available for immediate military service. The local board will give each man a physical examination and will accept for immediate service only those who are physically fit.

A typical army camp to which neophyte-soldiers may be assigned is Camp Dix, N. J., pictured above, which was a training base during the World war. Extensive construction work is being carried on in this and similar army camps throughout the country so that facilities for housing the conscripts will be adequate when the influx begins. Right—"C" Battery of the 68th Coast Artillery, maneuver an anti-aircraft gun at Potsdam, N. Y. Conscripts will be instructed in the manipulation of such weapons under the army's training program.

Before they are assigned to army units, the selectees will go through a careful sorting and selecting process. During the World war, before the problem of sorting manpower was solved, considerable time and effort were wasted because men were not properly distributed among the units in accordance with their military qualifications. For instance, one division was disrupted as many as four times by the transfer of men of certain qualifications to other organizations. The confusion and loss of time caused by failure to sort out personnel before assignment during the last war has caused the attachment of considerable importance to this phase of induction at the present time. Under the selective service act, a heterogeneous assortment of manpower will be received by the army. The accomplishment of the sorting process before the assignment of the men to organizations will lift a great burden from the tactical units which are concerned primarily with training. Consequently, the local board will send the group of selectees it has assembled, not to an army training camp, but to an induction station.

Induction Stations Important.

The basic purpose of an induction station is to give a detailed physical examination to the selectees; formally induct them into the military service, and then pass them on to the reception center. The induction stations will perform functions similar to those of the ordinary recruiting stations, and they will be so located as to expedite the processing of the selectees. Approximately 100 of these stations are distributed throughout the United States. It is planned to pass the selectees through the induction stations and on to the reception centers the same day that they arrive. If they arrive late in the afternoon, they will be kept overnight. If the induction station is located in a city, they will be cared for either at the station, or will be lodged in armories or hotels. If any of the men are found to be disqualified by physical defects at the thorough examination which will be given at the induction station, they will be furnished transportation back to their home towns at that time.

When they arrive at the reception centers, the selectees will have their first real contacts with the army. Their records will be completed, uniforms will be issued, an opportunity given to obtain government insurance policies, vaccinations will be administered, and the men will be carefully sorted and classified for their first assignments in the army. Each man will be given a general classification test and will then be interviewed by an officer to determine the military duty to which he is best adapted. Information will be obtained as to the man's age, birthplace, home, parents, dependents, and education. It will be ascertained what foreign languages he speaks, if any; it will be determined what work he has done in civil life; and what previous military experience he may have had. If he appears to have been a trained specialist in some branch of a civil trade, that fact will be noted. He will be given an opportunity to express his choice in athletics, hobbies, and the nature of service he desires. This information will give a clear picture of the man's suitability for any particular military assignment.

Remain Three Days.

The selectees will remain at the reception center only long enough to be sorted and classified, which, it is anticipated, will require on an average, two or three days.

There are two possible systems by which the selectees might be trained by the already existing units. One would be to distribute them at once throughout the various small organizations; companies, batteries, etc., and have them absorb the fundamentals, working side by side with the older men. The other system would be to segregate them more or less under centralized control while they are put through the intensive period of training in the fundamentals under the supervision of specially qualified instructors. The war department has made a careful study of the matter particularly in the light of the developments of the present European war, and has decided that the latter method—that is, keeping them together until they are thoroughly trained in the fundamentals—is far superior.

Compared to School.

The training phases which these men will pass through might be compared to the grade school, high school, and college periods through which the majority of American youths pass. For 13 weeks after joining his organization, the selectee will—in a military sense—be in the grade school phase. The training he will receive is designed to harden him gradually without making severe physical demands at first, but developing eventually the ability to endure prolonged and arduous physical exertion. He will be taught to march, use his weapons, and care for himself and his means of transportation in the field. Tactical exercises will be limited to those of the platoon and company. At the end of this period, the selectee should be thoroughly versed in the fundamentals of the soldier and should be in prime physical condition.

The so-called high school phase will be devoted to battalion training, which will call for the combined use of the different weapons and equipment found in the battalion. It is only when the battalions are well-trained that the selectees will pass on to what has been spoken of as a college course and participate in regimental exercises and in maneuvers involving the co-ordinated use of the combined arms.

Not only is it intended to turn out well-trained soldiers, but it is expected to improve the men who come under army supervision, physically, mentally, and morally. Judging from past experience, the majority of the selectees will thrive on the army diet, and they will enjoy working, playing, and living with men from all walks of life, who, like themselves, are known to be strong, healthy, and intelligent, while the well-regulated life which they will lead in the army will give them ideas of promptness, neatness, and teamwork.

Officers Attend Classification Course

WASHINGTON.—To insure the possibilities of a soldier conscripted into the United States army being assigned duties for which he is best qualified by previous experience, the war department is completing a special course conducted for 48 selected regular army and reserve officers. The classification system will follow the soldier throughout his military service so that, when he returns to civil life, he may be more easily placed in a job suited to his abilities. Both the civil service commission and the United States employment service are co-operating. The officers assembled for the classification course were already specialists in their work. They have now been distributed throughout the army to supervise all classification activities.

Pre-views

American Labor Looks Ahead

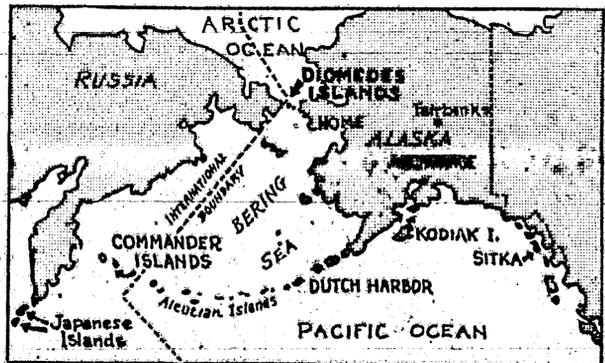

October 24 will mark another reduction in the standard work week of American labor. Under the federal fair labor standards act, the number of working hours will be reduced from 42 to 40, compared with 44 hours when the law went into effect two years ago. No other country in the world has so short a work week.

Noted Author

Sigrud Undset, Norwegian author and 1928 Nobel Prize winner, will deliver a talk in New York October 22 on "Scandinavia and the War." This will be the first of a hundred lectures by American and European statesmen, authors and journalists on the twenty-eighth annual schedule of Columbia university's Institute of Arts and Sciences.

Alaska 'Achilles Heel' of America

Alaska celebrated the seventy-third anniversary of its transfer from Russia to the United States on October 18. This huge area was purchased in 1867 for only $7,200,000. Military experts have termed Alaska the "Achilles Heel" of America. No one is only a few hours' flying time from Siberia and from Japanese air bases off the tip of the Aleutian peninsula. The United States is rushing work on air, naval and army bases at Dutch Harbor, Kodiak, Sitka and Anchorage.

'Happy Returns'

Thirty-two years separate the birthdays of two famous Americans who celebrate their birthdays this week. John Dewey, the renowned philosopher and educator, will celebrate his eighty-first birthday October 20. He is now lecturing at Columbia university. Father Charles L. Coughlin, Detroit radio priest, will observe his forty-ninth birthday October 28.

CHAPTER XXVI—Continued

Madam shook Lynn gently and laughed: "You ask how you're going on, I'll tell you. The first thing you're going to come to work. Nothing like work. Besides, you need the money, and I'll dock you if you aren't on the job! Next, you're going to have a lot of new clothes. Nothing like a smart new hat for a woman whose heart's broken! That's why I make money. Half the women who come in to my shop on a clothes spree have broken hearts. Don't you realize that? You haven't a corner on all the suffering in the world!" That idea had apparently not occurred to Lynn.

"Now, I'm going to see you into bed. I'll turn off the lights. And tomorrow night I'm going to take you home with me for the weekend. By Monday you'll be a different person."

Madam was as good as her word. Saturday night she came for Lynn and the girl went with Madam to her handsome uptown apartment.

When they had finished dinner, Madam began to talk about style.

"You should begin to study yourself, Lynn. Learn by trial and error what you should wear. You've been letting me dress you. You'd be lovelier if you'd evolve your own clothes. You've been too busy being in love to do anything but walk around in a daze. It's time you got to work. Then there's another thing. If Rene goes away, what about you?"

"I have my work."

"You don't want to work in my shop for $30 a week all your life. You've got a career ahead of you."

Madam looked thoughtfully at the girl: "I've had a couple of boys into the shop to see about you for color photography. You'd model well that way. I'd dress you, and it would not be bad for me, you know." Madam had an eye to the main chance.

"I couldn't pose for anybody but Rene, somehow!"

"Nonsense! You can face a color camera, can't you?" Madam smiled: "Your coloring is unusual, you know."

The next night Lynn took a bus down to the Square and walked over to Rene's studio.

"I hoped you'd come, I'm hungry." He grinned at her. "When do we eat?"

Rene's old cry! Lynn smiled in spite of herself, and she set about making supper. Then, seated across from Rene, she felt almost happy again.

Marty dropped in, seemed unaware that anything was wrong. But then, Marty was always tactful, Lynn mused.

"Well, the famous artist will be off for Paris and Rome before long," Marty remarked. "Lord I hate to see you go, Rene!" Rene nodded.

"Think of me!" Lynn demanded.

"I am," Marty squinted up at Lynn as she gave him a cup of coffee.

"Half the boys in town are screaming for you, Lynn. What do you say to that, Rene?"

Rene shrugged: "They show good taste!"

"You're the ideal model, Lynn."

"That's what Mme. Reanoud said. She wants me to do some photographic modeling."

"Common trade, eh?" Marty laughed. "Might be a good idea. I think you've been in that dress shop long enough. And if you wanted to pose for some of the illustrators you would have time."

"I wish you'd talk to Mme. Reanoud for me, Marty."

"I'll do what I can. You should have a good agent, Lynn. I haven't time to give you the thought I should, but I've promised Rene I'd keep an eye on you."

Lynn flashed Rene one of her lovely smiles. He had been very loyal to her.

"The first thing I want to do is move," Lynn said. "The thought of that apartment is too painful."

"That's not a bad idea," Rene turned to Lynn. "Take what you want of this stuff in here. It doesn't amount to much. There might be a small apartment in this building. Better ask tomorrow. It would be easier coming here."

Marty left early and Rene asked Lynn to stay while he smoked another cigarette.

"Now I'm going; I rather dread the break," Rene remarked.

"Think of me! Rene, what will I do without you?" Lynn turned to him in genuine distress.

He came over to her chair and took her hand. "Look at me, Lynn."

Her wide set brown eyes which he had painted with such power looked up inquiringly.

"I love you, Lynn. I have for a long time. I couldn't speak, knowing how you felt about Wild. But now it's different. Come with me! I'll do my best to make you happy."

Lynn gave a protesting little gesture.

"Don't answer me tonight, Lynn. Think about it. I won't ask for your love. Maybe some day you'll feel different. I think you care about me as much as you do anybody in this world. That will be enough for me. I won't ask for more."

He paced restlessly up and down the room as he pleaded: "I'm going places. I know that now. I feel the power in me! I couldn't have done anything without you."

He came over to her again. "I need you so, darling!"

CHAPTER XXVII

Lynn's hands were in Rene's. He clung to her. In her desperate loneliness she was tempted. Could she find a kind of happiness with Rene? Helping him to paint his fine pictures? It would mean a wonderful life, Europe, all the strange places of the world. For Lynn knew, too, that Rene had a great future before him. It would be wonderful to have a part in that career.

His arms were about her, as he pleaded his case: "We'll find a place down in Capri, and I'll work like mad, Lynn!" Rene's eyes were burning, his lips were on hers.

"Rene, I can't!" Lynn clung to his arm, appealingly as she spoke. "I can't, Rene. It's too late." He let her go then, and the suffering on his face accused her. Why make him unhappy? There was no peace for herself. Why not at least try to make him happy? But even as she argued with herself, she tried to make him understand: "You wouldn't be happy, Rene, knowing I loved somebody else. You're too fine a person for half measures!"

Rene could not agree. "I'm willing to take the risk, Lynn!" He held her hand that wore Wild's emerald. "Please think it over!"

She left him then to go back to her apartment. There she wondered whether she was right. Her ring hung heavy on her hand. She clipped it off. That was the first thing she must do. Even Lynn had not realized the value of the gorgeous stone. She put it back in its box, wrapped it carefully, and in a sure hand addressed it to Raymond Austin, Austin Manor.

Lynn felt almost happy again.

Later that week she found a small studio apartment in Rene's building, and it was arranged that the few things he had would be moved there.

The days hurried by. Marty had found an agent to handle her affairs and there was talk of a contract with a cigarette company for color photographs.

Rene's belongings were packed in his new luggage.

"I'm still hoping you'll change your mind, Lynn," Rene said one evening, just forty-eight hours before his sailing.

"Even if you don't come now, you could come over later if you change your mind."

"You're a darling, Rene. I wish I could."

But both of them were sure her answer was final.

The day Rene was to leave, Lynn got the morning off from the shop. She cooked Rene's last breakfast in her new apartment, and a lot of people dropped in to say good-by. Marty was there, of course. He was going to the boat, and so were several of Rene's artist friends. Lynn was glad there was a lot of excitement, and even at that early hour, Marty was ladeling out the highballs with gusto. There was little time for Rene and Lynn to talk. But he did manage to corner her in the kitchenette for a moment.

"I'm leaving some money in a savings account for you, Lynn," he said as he handed her a bank book. "It isn't much. But I want you to have it. You know how I feel. If the time ever comes you want your freedom, take that money and get it. That's what it's for."

Lynn looked at the book in her hand. "I can't take it, Rene."

"You have, already. It's in your name now. I asked you to come. That always stands. But I want you to know your freedom is there when you want it." He paused a moment: "I messed up your life once, Lynn. I don't want to do it again!"

He kissed her hand. "Remember, next time, tell the truth, or if you fall in love, get your freedom first."

"I'll never fall in love again, Rene. That's over."

"You will, but I still have hopes it might be me."

She smiled at him through her tears. "I wish it would be!"

"That's the sweetest thing you could say to me!"

"If you meet somebody, Rene. He would not let her finish. He leaned over and kissed her on the lips and then let her go.

The sailing party was gay and some fifteen men and girls piled into Rene's cabin.

Lynn wiped her eyes and the crowd insisted on taking her to luncheon with them. Marty was at his best and kept everybody laughing. Lynn was grateful to him, for she knew he understood. Later he offered to drop her at Mme. Reanoud's.

"In the taxi he gave her hand a pat: "Well, kid, a new deal. You're going to get some good cards now. Nothing can stop a girl with your looks. I'll drop in and see you now and then. How about supper tonight?"

Lynn knew why he asked, knew he realized how she dreaded that first evening alone with Rene gone, too.

"I'd be grateful," she said simply. "Maybe I'll have good news for you." Then she left him.

She worked hard all afternoon to make up for her morning off, and she was grateful to think that Marty would be waiting for her that night. He had been a staunch friend.

He was there when she finished the day's work at 6 o'clock, and he came into the shop to talk with Mme. Reanoud.

"It's all set, Madam, the boys will see you about the arrangement for clothes."

"Can I have Lynn for my Spring fashion show?" Madam demanded.

"Be sure it's understood in the contract, you'd better cast your eye over it."

Later, Marty and Lynn dined in a comfortable German restaurant over Third avenue. They sat long over their late dinner.

"You hate to go home, don't you?"

"Yes."

"Let me give you some advice. Keep going places. Then, after a while, you won't notice it when you come home to the studio. We're creatures of habit, and if you keep plugging, after a while things don't seem so important."

"If I could just forget for a while, go to sleep and wake up in about two years!"

CHAPTER XXVIII

Lynn's lovely face, in colors, smiled out from the back of the magazines these days.

Rene, in Rome, saw the first color photographs and cabled his congratulations. When that cable was delivered to her Lynn hardly had strength to open it. For that hope sprang always—that Wild might relent.

It was a gorgeous Autumn day. Lynn, by force of habit, turned straight to the society columns. That was the only word she had now—society or Wild. And that was so little.

She knew when Mrs. Austin left or returned from her Palm Beach home. She knew when Chuck joined his brother in Algiers in the early Spring and when he returned. It was there she learned Wild was on a trip around the world. And there was a great bitterness in her heart as she read.

"I must stay and face the music. He can go wherever he chooses—forget!"

There had been a photograph of Wild big-game hunting in India, entertained by a maharajah. She pursued the paper from her. No news today.

Rene had been faithful. His letters were a bright spot in her life. He did not write often, but when he did he gave her a delightful picture of his life in Rome. He was working like mad, painting wildly. And always the same plea: "Come."

Often for hours she'd forget about Wild. Then suddenly she'd find herself sitting in a restaurant where they had dined, and it was all she could do to keep from running out of the place. Or she would pass a book shop where they'd lingered on a lazy afternoon.

It was later than she thought when she got home that day and she hurried into the building. In her studio she found a letter from Rene.

She undressed leisurely and then slipped into bed. Now. She slit the envelope. Out fell some snapshots. They were Rene and a pretty brunette girl. "My new model." That was the way one of the pictures was labeled.

He had been vacationing up in the mountains. That is why he had not written. He had been ill. A cold again and the doctors had ordered him away. That's where he'd found his new model.

"I'll always miss you, Lynn," he said as she read on. "But life must go on. I'm glad the work is going well for you. Your pictures I see every place where they sell American magazines. It is exciting getting the new ones. But they're so expensive over here that I don't buy them. I permit myself the luxury of stopping at the newsstands and looking at your face."

The next few paragraphs left Lynn white-faced. "You remember what I said once. If I ever wanted my freedom, I'd tell you. I think it is better that you settle things once and for all. I say this after thinking about the matter for a long time. Go and see an attorney, Lynn. Try Mortimer. You know him. Tell him the story. He'll advise you. I wish you'd do this right away." The letter dropped from Lynn's hand.

Queer that she should feel so badly. He was in love with the model. Lynn scolded herself. After all, she had her chance. She had let him go. Now she must give him the freedom that he asked.

Refinishing Furniture.
QUESTION: How can table-tops of solid or veneer mahogany be treated for an oil finish, and for a glossy finish? What should be done to get a mahogany finish on table-tops that are not mahogany? Legs and other parts of the table are dark red, and the tops should match.

ANSWER: In any case, the finish should be removed to the bare wood, which can be done with liquid varnish remover. Do not allow the remover to drip on the legs and other parts. The remover is applied liberally, and allowed to stand for 20 minutes or so; the finish can then be taken off with a rough cloth and a scraper. The remover is inflammable, so take precautions against fire. This will take off the stain as well as the finish. Follow by washing with turpentine, and then, after drying, apply mahogany oil stain. Allow to soak in for a minute or two and then wipe off. Continue to apply stain in this way until you have reached the shade that you want. Allow to dry thoroughly.

For an oil finish apply a mixture of three parts linseed oil and one part turpentine. After an hour for soaking in, wipe dry. Repeat in 24 hours and then, after two or three days for drying, begin to polish with a piece of carpeting or other rough cloth.

For a glossy finish, apply one coat of quick-drying varnish to the bare wood. When dry, rub smooth with very fine sandpaper. Then put on a second coat and polish by light rubbing with finely powdered rottenstone and sewing machine oil, or other light oil—not linseed oil.

Outdoor Ping-Pong Table.
QUESTION: What is the best way to construct an outdoor ping-pong table? In the past, the wooden tables have warped despite the fact that they were apparently well painted. Can you suggest a different material instead of wood, or a method of painting that will eliminate warping?

ANSWER: Some of the well-known manufacturers of plywood now make a plywood suitable for outside use. The laminations of wood are cemented together with synthetic resin glue, which is not affected by the weather. The entire plywood top is then given a prime coat of aluminum paint, followed by two coats of a good quality deck or outside house paint. Some public playgrounds now have ping-pong tables of concrete.

Blistered Paint.

QUESTION: I built an extension on my house last summer, and finished it with a high quality paint. In several places bubbles appeared; when touched, a red deposit like rust comes out. I am told that this is caused by the paint. What do you advise?

ANSWER: That effect cannot be blamed on the paint; it is from moisture in the wood. Somewhere there is a leak that permits water to run down inside the clapboards; collecting on cross-pieces, it soaks into the clapboards from the back. On being drawn out to the front by warm air, it takes the paint with it. Look for leaks in the joint between walls and window frames. Have a carpenter close them with caulking compound, forced in with a caulking-gun.

Dog Scratches on Doors.

A correspondent sends the following for filling deep scratches by dogs in grain finished doors: Make a putty out of fine sawdust, a little plaster of paris and spar varnish. Apply with a putty knife. When dry, sandpaper down, with the paper wrapped around a block of wood. Apply stain, and grain to match the door. When this is dry, revarnish the door. If it is done by a good worker, the repair can hardly be detected. (Note: for a complete job, put a pair of boxing gloves on the dog.)

Brittle Reed Chairs.

QUESTION: My fine reed sun room chairs and furniture seem very brittle and small pieces frequently break out. Can I do anything to make it less brittle? How can I refinish the surface?

ANSWER: After removing the finish, coat the reed with a half-and-half mixture of raw linseed oil and turpentine. After an hour or so, wipe the surface clean. Allow to dry for 24 hours, then finish with one or two coats of a top quality spar varnish.

Fireproofing Cloth.

QUESTION: How can I fireproof cloth and paper?

ANSWER: Dissolve 2½ pounds boric acid and three pounds crystallized borax in six gallons of water; or if this is too much, use the same proportions with smaller quantities. Soak the cloth well, and hang up to drip and dry. Fireproofing of paper depends on the character of the paper. It is more difficult than the fireproofing of cloth, because of the wrinkling and uneven shrinkage of the paper in drying.

Waterproofing Canvas.

QUESTION: Kindly give me the formula for waterproofing canvas.

ANSWER: Make a solution of one pound of shaved paraffin in a gallon of gasoline. The canvas should be stretched when applying the solution. Do this work out in the open on an overcast day and do not smoke.

AROUND THE HOUSE

When making baked custard, pour boiling milk onto the beaten eggs. It will then bake very firm.

Any flaked ready-to-serve cereal may be used instead of bread crumbs in a recipe that calls for bread crumbs.

If you sprinkle a little flour in the grease in which you are to fry eggs, croquettes, etc., the grease will not spatter.

Never water house plants with other than water from the faucet. Florists never use heated water and, as you know, they have so much money invested in plants that they must meet with success.

Do not move bread dough after it begins to rise, or it is likely to fall. Select a spot, out of a draft, for the bowl. Cover with a cloth and then let the dough alone.

SINCE the Primary a number of my friends from the different political parties have asked me to run for the office of Sheriff of Lincoln county, in the approaching General Election, November 5.

I have been a resident of Lincoln county for 21 years, most of that time I have been in the stock business; I have held deputy sheriff's commission for 14 years, including the two years as chief deputy of Lincoln county under our present Sheriff. While acting as deputy Sheriff I tried to be fair and impartial at all times with all of whom I had any dealings regardless of party affiliations. I feel that experience as a deputy sheriff is a big asset to any Sheriff going into office. I need the job; have no other business interests that might require any of my time away from my duties of office.

If elected, I will perform the duties of Sheriff to the very best of my ability at all times. If the voters of Lincoln county feel that I am the right man for the office, then each and every vote cast for me will be appreciated in all sincerity, I assure you. My name will be on the ballot in the column under the word "Independent" I thank you.

DESDE la Primaria, un numero de mis amigos de diferentes partidos politicos, han pedido que haga la carrera para Alguacil mayor en el condado de Lincoln en la proxima Eleccion General, Noviembre de 5.

Yo he sido residente de este condado por 21 años, lo mas de este tiempo he estado en el negocio de ganado; yo he portado comision de diputado de alguacil por 14 años, incluyendo los dos años que servi como primer diputado, bajo del presente alguacil mayor. Durante el tiempo que actue como primer diputado, yo hice lo posible para ser justo y imparcial en todo tiempo con todos los que tube que ver, y lo hice imparcialmente. Yo creo que una experiencia como primer diputado es una ventaja para cualquier alguacil que tome la oficina que yo aspiro. Yo necesito el trabajo, no tengo ningunos otros intereses que requieran mi tiempo en otras partes lejos de mis deberes de la oficina.

Si soy electo, yo ejecutare los deberes de Alguacil Mayor a mejor de mi abilidad en todo tiempo; si los votantes del condado de Lincoln creen que yo soy el hombre necesario para esta oficina, entonces cada voto que ustedes me gratificen sera apreciado sinceramente, yo les aseguro. Mi nombre aparecera en la boleta bajo la columna marcada "Independiente"... Lea doy las gracias.
