Glamor Boy-Makes Good Or Does He?

It is getting close to train time in Indianapolis. The Willkie Special is snorting at the station. In a clubroom nearby Candidate Willkie is discussing final details of his trip with his running mate Senator Charles McNary, and Republican Chairman Joe Martin. As the curtain rises Willkie stands at a mirror, carefully adjusting his forelock over his eyes in the whimsical fashion which we all know so well. Martin looks on admiringly, McNary curiously. The Hon. Senator is still not entirely at ease in fast company.

Willkie (turning from mirror) "How does it look boys?"
Martin: Swell. Did you bring Willkie: Yep. Right here.

He opens an old shoe box and extracts two ounces of hayseed and sprinkles over his lapels. After all, it's a farm country tour he's starting.

Martin: Fine, nobody would think you were less than three months out of Wall Street. Now if you'll just rumple your coat a little more, there that's it. And one more thing: in the course of this tour you're likely to see quite a few large clumsy animals with horns. Don't be frightened. They are cows.

Willkie: Cows, eh? I'll try and remember. Now is there anything else we need?

Martin: Not a thing. Just keep in mind that you're a country boy you'll.

McNary: Well I don't want to intrude, but don't you think we ought to have a few issues? (Willkie and Martin raise their eyebrows and he continues): You know what I mean, reasons why people should vote for us.

Willkie: I hadn't thought of that. Do you think it's necessary, Joe?

Martin: It might help a little.

Willkie: (plaintively): But every time I say anything I get into trouble.

McNary: You get into trouble when you don't say anything, too. After that acceptance speech of yours, even our own boys went around apologizing. They said you'd been left out in the sun too long. Implications of that sort don't do a candidate any good. It's just the same as saying you s--

Martin: Puh-lease, Senator! they said it. They all said it.

Martin (Lofty): Not the Herald Tribune! Now, lets get on to those issues.

McNary: How about T. V. A.? Willkie and Martin: Shut UP! Forget about T. V. A., can't you? The Hon. Sen. subsides, mut.

tering. He can't forget he voted for T. V. A., even if Willkie did try sink the hatchet in it.

Martin: You might try help to England, short of war Roosevelt's for that.

Willkie: Me too.
Martin: Conscription?
Willkie (Suspiciously): Of men or money?

Martin: (Hastily): Men. By all means men. I guess everybody's for that.

Willkie: Everybody? Are you sure?

Martin: Yep.
Willkie: Me too then.

McNary: There's a hell of "Me Too" about this conversation.

If the people get to calling you a "Me Too" candidate....

Martin (Who has been frowning in thought): Wait a minute! I've got it! It was right under our noses all the time.

Willkie: What? third term

Willkie: No good at all. That argument's dead. (Roosevelt's too big for it.

Martin: You miss the point. What you do is call it un-American.

Willkie (Perkin up): And un-democratic!

McNary [More cheerful now]: And a threat to hallowed institutions!

The three join hands and dance around the table. At that moment the train whistle blows. It's a curious kind of whistle. Instead of going "whoo-ee whoo-ee . . . whoo-ee" like most of 'em, it goes "phoo-ee . . . phoo-ee . . . phoo-ee."

Dennis Chavez, United States Senator.

Mrs. Mildred Davis who has been in Ruidoso is now working at the Star Cafe.

John Doering who recently underwent an operation here in the local hospital is much improved and will soon be dismissed.

Mrs. S. H. Nickles and daughter Mrs. G. C. Willis went to Capitan Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Carl returned home last Friday from Hot Spring where they attended the funeral of Mrs. Carl's sister, Miss Wallace.

"Mr. Willkie attempted to build so many spite lines in Alabama to defeat the Rural Electrification Administration projects that the slogan in Alabama today is, 'Spite lines with Willkie; life lines with Roosevelt.'" --Senator Hill of Alabama in U. S. Senate.

Obituary

Mrs. Frances Geneva Ellis McRoberts passed away Monday, Oct. 14 at 11:30 a. m. at her home in Corona, N. Mex. She had been in ill health for a number of years but her condition did not become serious until on Saturday before her death on Monday.

Mrs. McRoberts was born in New Florence, Missouri, April 22, 1898. Early in life she united with the Methodist church. She possessed a wonderful musical talent which was a great source of pleasure to her.

She was married to J. F. McRoberts July 10, 1925. Her great delight was in making a happy home before her illness struck.

In her years of illness, Mrs. McRoberts was ever patient and enduring, thus winning admiration from all who knew her. She was attended by Mrs. Emma Heaton, who was ever faithful, and her husband whose loyalty deserves much praise.

She is survived by her husband, mother and one brother.

Mr. McRoberts is superintendent of the Corona schools.

The sympathy of the entire community is extended to Mr. McRoberts in his recent bereavement.

A Friend.

Mabel Ruth Wallace

Miss Mabel Ruth Wallace passed away yesterday and her funeral is being held this afternoon at the French Chapel with Rev. E. E. Watts, of the Church of God officiating at the last sad rites and Mr. Kingston in charge of arrangements.

Mable was sixteen years of age, a junior in high school, but did not get to attend school this term as she has been ill the past two months. She was a sweet Christian girl and has gone to rest where there will be no more sickness.

Her father passed away here a year or two ago.

The junior class will be excused from school and attend the funeral in a body.

Those left to mourn the loss are her mother, Mrs. Tom Wallace a smaller sister and a little brother, also two older sisters, one of Amarillo and one at Carrizozo. All the loved ones have the sympathy of their many friends. --Hot Springs Herald Thur. Oct. 17.

Mr. Jack Greer was here yesterday from Tucumcari.

Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Hemphill went to El Paso Tuesday to meet Irl Hemphill, who was on his way to a Naval School. He will spend several days with his parents in Grenada Mississippi.

Mr. Willkie's inferiority complex is at work again. He has made the discovery that he is an "aristocrat." In entertaining this notion Mr. Willkie stands alone. It is not shared by those who have cheered his speech, his manners and his general behavior.

Motor Scooter, First Used as 'Adult's Toy,' Now Plays Important Transportation Role

By NATHANIEL WAYNE
(Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

NEW YORK.—A young man motored into New York one day not so long ago. He had started from Los Angeles for Chicago and when he arrived there decided since he was averaging 117 miles to the gallon, he had enough money left to go on to New York. When he arrived in New York, the trip had cost him $8 for fuel.

Naturally the lad wasn't driving a ten-ton truck, not even an ordinary passenger automobile. He was riding in a motor scooter, a vehicle that started out several years ago as a toy at an amusement park and has ended up as a machine that has the transportation industry agog.

Above is the youth who started from Los Angeles and wound up in New York. His scooter is of the older type, set to carry baggage. The girl in the lower picture is riding one of the new streamlined models.

Even the builders thought of them in the beginning as a frivolous adult plaything. The idea then was to install them in amusement parks. That was back in 1936. Much to the manufacturers' own amazement they soon discovered the scooters being used by Hollywood actors and actresses for recreation inside the studios during rest periods. And more or less youthful vacationers started riding them for sport in Florida winter resorts.

It wasn't necessary for this to go on for long without attracting attention. A few enterprising men soon established scooter stations and rented by the hour the power-driven, magnified children's toy. The proprietor of the establishment at Jacksonville Beach, Fla., stocked 50 for use on the 37-mile stretch of smooth, firm beach that appears there at low tide.

Original Model Redesigned. However, it was not until the manufacturers redesigned the scooter and gave it more power and mechanical durability, that business began to give it attention. While this has been less than three years ago, already more than 50,000 are in operation.

Telegraph companies have found that messengers can deliver twice as many telegrams, with greater speed by use of the scooters instead of a bicycle. Retailers have discovered that it offers a swift and cheap means for light deliveries. Garages are buying them to speed up deliveries of cars to owners who ask that their automobiles be sent to their homes. (The scooter is hooked on the rear bumper as a trailer.) Airfields are stocking them to eliminate the long walk between runways and hangars.

What is making the automobile industry think twice, however, is increased use of the motored gliders for non-commercial purposes. Some notable cases of long-distance touring are being recorded. A 55-year-old Missouri man in 18 months traveled 28,000 miles in 37 states, Canada, New Brunswick, Nova Scotia, Mexico, Cuba and the Bahamas. He towed a trailer containing a folding cot, blankets, clothing and a radio. He averaged more than 100 miles per gallon and his expenses were $1 a day.

Low Cost Operation. Two boys of 15 and 18 made a six-week journey last year from Minneapolis to Monterey, Mexico, and returned, carrying bedding, tent, clothing and some tools. The total cost of the 4,000-mile trip was $80.51. They used less than 40 gallons of gasoline.

Retail sales agents of automobiles are asking, "how long has this been going on?" They also would like to know where it is going to take them. As yet, none of the larger manufacturers of automobiles are turning out motor scooters. That may be changed any day now.

Meanwhile there are about 10 specialist companies making scooters, and they are laying down a national wide sale organization this year. The improvement and business application begun in 1930, increased in 1939 and is being vastly accelerated since spring. New models have gone in for streamlining and even more horsepower.

Telegraph companies are reported to be motorizing their messenger service, at least on the Pacific coast, and are expected to be using 4,000 scooters by the end of this year. The new type of machines are also doing service for parcel delivery companies, druggists, grocers, butchers, confectioners, automobile dealers, garages, printers, army and navy, police departments, postmen, and many others. In large industrial plants they transport tools, supplies and men, passing through gates and doors too narrow for motor trucks, and also do pickup work outside of the plants.

Export Sales Also

Although no drive for export sales has been made scooters have been shipped to countries all around the world—from Alaska to Argentina and from northern Europe to South Africa, and to Hawaii, the Philippines, China, New Guinea, Australia, India, and Palestine.

Light pleasure and messenger models have a top speed of 35 miles per hour and travel 100 to 125 miles on one gallon of gasoline. The heavier parcel carriers can make 25 or more miles per hour and run 75 miles on a gallon. The weight is close to the pavement, the doughnut tires give non-skid traction and all have brakes for safe operation. The numerous models are suited to many uses, for convenient transportation over short distances or on tours of thousands of miles and for the carriage of loads up to 200 pounds. Lastly, they are priced from less than $100 to $275.

Power of the engines has been tripled in many models and now ranges from 1/4 to 2 1/2 horsepower. All the engines are of single-cylinder, air-cooled, four-cycle type and operate at high speed, delivering maximum power and torque within a range of 2,000 to 3,500 revolutions per minute. They are self-contained little power plants, complete with accessories and fuel tank, and are manufactured by four small-engine companies primarily for stationary power purposes and for driving lawn mowers, small agricultural implements and the like.

Engine Equipment

The engines are equipped with air cleaner, generator, starter, speed governor, flywheel air blower, fuel tank, and lighting coil to supply electric current for horn and lamps. Some models have driving-belt pulleys that give automatic change of speed through all ratios from low to high speed. One has a two-speed sliding gear transmission, and some have an automatic clutch that releases tension on the belt so the engine can idle when the scooter is standing still.

Arrangements for carrying two persons take the form of an extra seat on the scooter for tandem and of a passenger sidecar designed to harmonize with the scooter.

Engines are concealed in a ventilated sheet-steel hood mounted in front of and over the rear wheel on a unit drop frame made of pressed steel, channel steel, or steel tubing and having a broad, flat foot-board. A wide, flat, comfortable coil-spring seat cushion is supported on the hood or on long springs extending up over it. A kick starter is provided on the side or front of the hood, and either a contracting or expanding brake on the rear wheel is operated by a pedal on the foot-board or by a lever or grip on the handlebar.

HALLOWEEN PARTY SUGGESTIONS
(See Recipes Below)

Halloween provides a good excuse for an unusual party. The theme you may select should be the basis around which the party is built. "Black Magic Party," "The Haunted House," "Buried Treasure Hunt," "The Witches' Rendezvous," "The Ghosts' Gambol" are all suggestive names for the party you may be planning for All Hallows' eve.

A Halloween party without decorations just isn't a party. They may be so simple that it takes very little time to put them up; pumpkins, cornstalks, and lighted jack-o'-lanterns. Or you may decorate with witches, owls, black and orange crepe paper streamers, black and gray crepe paper moss dripping from the ceilings, or ghosts standing in spooky corners with eerie lights thrown upon them.

The invitations should, of course, be indicative of the type of party you are giving.

"On Halloween the ghosts will dance, The gnomes and goblins will sing and prance; So don your masks and costumes gay,

To the Haunted House be on your way. The door will be open till the clock tolls eight, So take my advice and don't be late."

In keeping with Halloween we must not forget the traditional "games" and "pranks." The "chamber of horrors," with clanking chains, damp hands clutching the guests, and dark tunnels should put the guests into the spirit of the party.

Bobbing for apples, fortune telling and guessing games are all old favorites. These suggestions may bring to your mind others that may be old-time Halloween games.

Last, but not least, a party is never rightly ended without proper refreshments. If it is a small group, buffet supper may be served; and if it is a large group, simple, but delicious refreshments will finish the evening with the necessary zip!

Orange Date Cake.
1/2 cup shortening
1 cup brown sugar
1 egg (well beaten)
1 cup curd milk
2 cups cake flour
1 teaspoon soda
1 teaspoon baking powder
3/4 teaspoon salt
1 cup dates
1 whole orange
Cream shortening, add brown sugar slowly, and beat well. Add beaten egg and sour milk. Mix and sift flour, soda, baking powder, and salt. Grind dates and orange together through food chopper and add alternately with the sifted dry ingredients. Bake in a loaf pan in a moderate oven (350 degrees) for 50 minutes.

Halloween Ice Cream Clowns.
Place a ball of ice cream on a butter cookie and use raisins, tiny gumdrops or candied cherries to make the eyes, nose, and mouth in the ice cream. Place an ice cream cone upside down on the ice cream for a cap, and place a ruff of whipped cream on the cookie around the clown's neck.

Pumpkin Ice Cream. (Makes 1 quart)
3/4 cup sugar
1/2 teaspoon cinnamon
1/2 teaspoon ginger
Pinch of salt
1 cup coffee cream
2 egg yolks (beaten)
3/4 cup pumpkin (canned)
1/2 teaspoon orange rind (grated)
1/2 cup pecan meats
1/2 cup whipping cream
Combine the sugar, cinnamon, ginger and salt. Mix well. Add the cream slowly and scald over boiling water. Mix beaten egg yolks and pumpkin, and add to the cream mixture with the orange rind. Return to heat, and cook for 5 minutes, stirring constantly. Chill, fold in the

BETTER BAKING

Most of us are prone to be a little inactive and unambitious during the warm summer months. Our appetites for heavy, hot foods become dull and we readily accept and enjoy cool, refreshing salads and beverages. Just as we put on heavier clothing when the temperature drops, so do we discard using salads as the main dish and desert of the menu.

Miss Howe's book "Better Baking" includes many fine recipes, tested in her own kitchen. It will prove not only an incentive for "better baking" but also for better and more satisfying meals. You may secure this book, "Better Baking," by writing to Eleanor Howe, 919 North Michigan Avenue, Chicago, Illinois, enclosing 10 cents in coin.

nutments and whipped cream, and pour into the freezing container of an ice cream freezer, filling it not more than 3/4 full. Assemble and cover the freezer. Surround with a mixture of 3 parts of crushed ice to 1 part rock salt. Next turn the crank slowly and steadily until turning becomes difficult. When the mixture is frozen, carefully remove the dasher and pack down the cream with a spoon. Replace the cover, draw off the water, and replenish the ice and salt. Let stand for an hour.

Orange Sauce.
1 tablespoon cornstarch mixed with 1 tablespoon cold water
5 tablespoons sugar
5 tablespoons hot water
5 tablespoons orange juice
1/2 teaspoon lemon juice
1 teaspoon butter
Make a paste of the cornstarch and cold water. Add sugar and hot water and cook for 15 minutes, stirring frequently. Add fruit juices and butter.

Goblin's Dessert. (Serves 4 to 5)
2 eggs (separated)
7 tablespoons sugar
1 tablespoon butter (melted)
1/2 teaspoon salt
3/4 cup orange juice
1 1/2 cups stale bread (cut in pieces)

Beat egg yolks until very light, and gradually beat in the sugar. Add butter, salt and orange juice. Pour over the cubed bread. Beat egg whites until stiff, and fold into the first mixture. Pour into buttered baking dish and bake in a moderately slow oven (325 degrees) for about 20 minutes.

Ginger Snap Pie Crust. (Makes 2 crusts)
Make 3 cups ginger snap crumbs by rolling ginger snaps on bread board or crumbling through food chopper. Combine with 3/4 cup melted butter and blend lightly. Then press mixture into pie plate, shaping firmly all around, and place in refrigerator to chill until firm.

Pumpkin Chiffon Pie. (Makes 2 pies)
3 tablespoons gelatin
1/2 cup cold water
6 eggs
2 cups sugar
2 1/2 cups strained pumpkin
1 cup milk
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon ginger
1 teaspoon cinnamon
1/2 teaspoon nutmeg
1/2 teaspoon cloves
1 cup whipping cream
Soak gelatin in cold water 5 minutes. Separate eggs and beat egg yolks. Then combine 1 cup of the sugar, the strained pumpkin, milk, salt, and spices with the egg yolks and cook slowly, stirring constantly, until thickened. Remove from fire, add gelatin, and stir until dissolved. Cool. When mixture begins to thicken, stir in the remaining cup of sugar and fold in the beaten egg whites. Pour filling in the chilled ginger snap pastry shell and chill in refrigerator until set. Before serving decorate pie with whipped cream faces, using chilled pastry tube.

HOUSEHOLD QUESTIONS

When making iron holders put in one layer of leather from an old glove, as it is a nonconductor of heat.

Care must be taken to avoid opening the oven door for five minutes after the cake has been placed in the oven. When removing it or drawing it to the front to see if it is baked evenly, be very careful, as the least jar may cause the cake to lose its lightness.

Lubricate the meat chopper and electric mixer with salad oil. This will prevent any disagreeable taste which might occur if regular lubricating oil were used.

Keep flowers out of drafts as much as possible; they are more susceptible to a chill than humans.

Cottage cheese, mixed with orange marmalade, grape jelly or raspberry jam, makes a good filling for graham bread sandwiches. These combinations are tasty as well as nutritious.

Watch Your Kidneys!

Help Them Cleanse the Blood of Harmful Body Waste
Your kidneys are constantly filtering waste matter from the blood stream. But kidneys sometimes lag in their work—do not act as Nature intended—fail to remove impurities that, if retained, may poison the system and upset the whole body machinery.
Symptoms may be nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting a night's swelling, puffiness under the eyes—a feeling of nervous anxiety and loss of pep and strength. Other signs of kidney or bladder disorder are sometimes burning, scanty or too frequent urination.
There should be no doubt that prompt treatment is better than neglect. Use Doan's Pills. Doan's have been winning new friends for more than forty years. They have a national reputation. Are recommended by grateful people the country over. Ask your neighbor!

United States Scene, Month of October, 1940:

Present business conditions are reflected in this map of the United States prepared by the La Salle Extension University of Chicago.

Spending for Defense Speeds Up Business

L. G. ELLIOTT
President, La Salle Extension University

Fall and winter business conditions will be the best in many years, as a result of the large amounts of money being spent for national defense. The total expenditures are large and under the governmental policy of spreading orders throughout every section of the country they directly provide more money for many communities. New opportunities for labor and for profitable business are being found in cities of the interior, in smaller towns, and in rural districts.

The upward trend has already carried business close to the highest level of a year ago. It is most strikingly indicated by the much larger volume of retail sales, the registration of more new passenger cars, the greater number of freight cars loaded each week, and the increased buying of both industrial and farm products. Unless adversely affected by unfavorable events abroad, the momentum of expansion will carry on for a considerable period.

Cash farm income, this year, is estimated at close to $3,000,000,000, which is about 5 per cent higher than last year. The increase represents an average annual gain of more than $75 per farm. The number of persons employed in manufacturing, and the amounts paid in wages, exceed those of last year by about the same percentage as does farm income. When higher purchasing power enables both city and rural consumers to buy more goods, trade increases and general conditions become more favorable.

Prices for farm and industrial products have been advancing moderately during the past few weeks, and for many commodities are close to the level of a year ago. Stable prices help maintain confidence and enable industry and agriculture to plan ahead more profitably. Periods of sound prosperity are those in which prices do not change too rapidly in either direction.

The steel industry continues to be the leader among those which are advancing steadily. It reflects the volume of orders from nearly every line of business and is, therefore, a good indicator of general conditions. The developing new industry—that of armaments, requires large amounts of steel and has already pushed operations close to capacity. Not only are government purchases for defense becoming greater, but also private buyers have been increasing their orders in response to the improved consumer demand for manufactured products.

Britain Has Bought 1,001 U. S. Ships

WASHINGTON.—Acceptance recently by the United States maritime commission of a British order of $4,640,000 for 19 of its 20 year old laid up vessels bring to 1,001 the number of American ships bought by Great Britain since the beginning of the war. Still other ships obtained by Canada may later be transferred to England.

WHO'S NEWS THIS WEEK

By LEMUEL F. PARTON
(Consolidated Features—WNU Service.)

NEW YORK.—Rear Adm. Hayne Ellis, who will command the new Atlantic navy, now being developed, is not only one of the country's Savoir Faire, as topnotch tars, but the snap-plest dresser in the fleet, Adm. Ellis' Dish and one of the handsomest and most popular of naval officers. He has a reputation for unusual spirit and enterprise and is credited with a wide and highly specialized knowledge of foreign affairs.

Like virtually all the navy high command, he is a landlubber, hailing from Macon, Ga. After his graduation from the Naval academy in 1900, he served in the Boxer and Philippine rebellions and thereafter commanded many first-line ships. He was liaison officer during the Washington arms conference, was aide to Secretary of the Navy Denby and from 1931 to 1934 was head of the naval intelligence. It was he who was picked as naval aide to the prince of Wales on the latter's good-will tour of this country.

Last year he was transferred from command of the ninth naval district to the command of the Atlantic squadron. While the new Atlantic navy, starting with a nucleus of vessels now in the Atlantic, will be under his single command, both Pacific and Atlantic fleets will be under the supreme command of Adm. James O. Richardson, commander-in-chief of the United States fleet.

Sea dogs stress the admiral's popularity with the jack tars. A few years ago he was in charge of a flock of them on a visit to the Vatican. The boys pulled a navy yell, with their yell-leaders doing back flips. It might have seemed an unseemly proceeding, but the admiral had known it was coming, and had guessed correctly that it would bring a call for encore—which it did, from the pope himself.

Admiral Ellis is 63 years old, tall, erect and broad-shouldered and, again, magnificently tailored. He attained his present rank in 1933.

AS The Little Church Around the Corner marks its ninety-second birthday, Dr. Randolph Roy may be noting with interest that Jupiter and Saturn are swinging through a triple conjunction, which hasn't happened for something over 300 years. Dr. Roy keeps track of the stars and thinks it quite likely that his destiny "inclines" with theirs. For many years, he consulted the late Evangeline Adams, the astrologer. He thinks it quite reasonable that the affairs of men should be linked with the cosmic decepta.

Jupiter and Saturn, it happens, are backsliding, or retrograding, but Dr. Roy and The Little Church Around the Corner are standing firm—largely due to the tolerance, social tact and humane understanding of the rector. It is said that in his youth he was impressed by Robert Browning's invocation of a degree of humane worldliness among churchmen. That might have been Fra Lippo Lippi.

At any rate, Dr. Roy met the theater more than half-way in making The Little Church the haven for its people, and also the romantic shrine of thousands of marriages. He is no off-hand marrying parson. He investigates all couples thoroughly and the rites of his church are never casually administered.

Of southern birth, he was a "leg man" for the Brooklyn Eagle, and groped around the edges of law and medicine before he became a minister. Studies at Columbia university inclined him to the Episcopal ministry. After his ordination, he consulted Evangeline Adams. She told him he would go West and meet great success there. In Bryan, Texas, he became rector of St. Andrew's church and later was dean of St. Mathew's cathedral at Dallas.

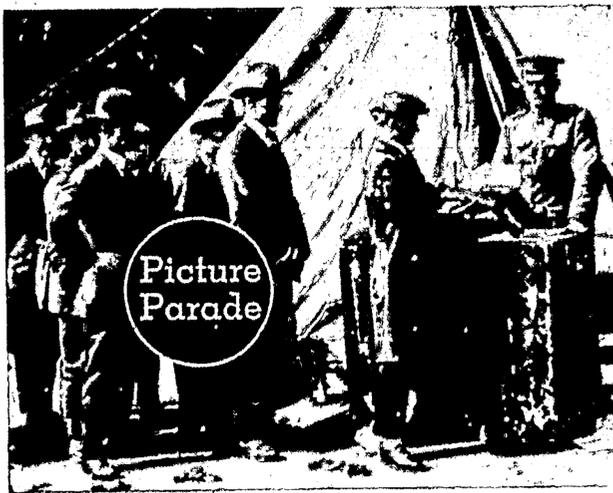

He came to The Little Church Around the Corner, more formally The Church of the Transfiguration, in 1923. With the years, he has taken on the appearance and demeanor of a British cleric, tall and dignified, conforming rigidly in all the requirements of the rubric, but less of a rigid conformist in every day friendly human intercourse. Inclined to overweight, he keeps in trim by working in his 130-acre garden at Litchfield. It was in 1871 that The Little Church Around the Corner became a famous marriage center.

Draft History to Repeat As Uncle Sam Gets Busy

The Burke-Wadsworth selective military service bill, which calls to military service men between the ages of 21 and 35, inclusive, recalls the scenes of 1917 when Uncle Sam drafted his army for the World war. As in 1917, there are not enough arms, to go around, and some draftees may be forced to train with wooden guns. Physical requirements will not be as strict as those used in selecting men for the regular army in peacetime, but the men chosen will be near-perfect specimens.

Fairness and impartiality marked selection of the first draftees in accordance with the selective service regulations during the World war. Here you see Secretary of War Newton D. Baker, blindfolded, drawing the first draft capsule from a glass bowl, in 1917.

Scenes like this, showing draftees checking in at Fort Slocum during the national call to arms in 1917, will once more be the rule now that the Burke-Wadsworth military training bill is in effect.

Draftees being examined by a military medical staff in 1917. The army of 400,000 men who are taking the oath of allegiance under the Burke-Wadsworth bill will be the healthiest conscription group in the nation's history.

Countless rolls of cloth in the quartermaster's department in Philadelphia soon will be cut into soldiers' uniforms.

Draftees training with wooden guns during the World war.

Open Porch Construction.
QUESTION: I want to build an open porch over an enclosed sun porch. It opens out from a bedroom which has three windows facing south. The three windows are set in one opening. What should be the construction of the flooring; material, pitch and drainage? Which window should be made into the door? Should I provide a storm door for winter?

Answer: The covering on a roof that is to be walked on can be of a prepared canvas, made especially for the purpose. The minimum pitch of the roof should be a quarter-inch to the foot. The surface and framing should be of rigid construction. The canvas should be laid over a No. 2 common flooring of pine, fir or spruce, 3/4-inch thick; not over four inches wide, and must be tongue-and-groove. It should be smooth, with joints planed if necessary. The canvas should be turned up or flashed four to six inches at the walls to insure water-tightness. The middle window is the one to be made into a door. You should by all means put on a storm door for the winter, and also provide good weather-stripping.

Squeaking Stairs.
Question: Stairs from my entrance hall creak and groan. Stairs are straight ascending in one unbroken line. How can I cure the horrid noises that accompany each footfall?

Answer: That squeaking is from the springing or arching of the treads away from the risers. If the under side of the stairs is open, tighten the wedges that secure the ends of the treads in the grooves of the side pieces; drive them in with a hammer. Otherwise, standing on a tread to weight it down, drive two-inch finishing nails through the tread near the front edge, so that they go into the riser. Nails should be driven in pairs at opposite angles. Sink the heads below the surface with a nailset and fill the holes with wood putty.

Refinishing a House.
Question: The walls of my stucco house are cracked in several places, and I am anxious to refinish the walls. I am considering brick veneer, asbestos siding or wood siding. Which of the three would you advise? Is it possible to refinish the walls without tearing down the stucco?

Answer: All three materials are very satisfactory as wall coverings. The first two, of course, will require little or no maintenance. As to the choice between the brick and siding, a great deal depends on the style of the house. If you collect brick veneering, the present stucco would not have to be removed; but for the siding, it would be better to remove the stucco.

Outdoor Fireplaces.
Question: How can I build a small outdoor fireplace? I have a cabin in the country, and we are anxious to cook steak in the open. Where can I get information on mixing cement?

Answer: Popular Science Monthly, 353 Fourth avenue, New York city, has information on this; illustrations and directions. For information on mixing cement, apply to the Portland Cement association, 247 Madison avenue, New York city, or to the Chicago office at 23 West Grand avenue. The association has published an excellent pamphlet called "Concrete Improvements Around the Home."

Waterproofing Brick Wall.
Question: What can I use to waterproof the outside of a brick wall? My neighbor does not want me to use black because it faces her yard. Black seems to be the cheapest waterproofing.

Answer: A cement composition paint is very satisfactory, providing the bricks have not been previously painted with an oil or asphalt paint. A black asphalt paint, of course, does not help the appearance of the wall.

Rubber Flooring.
A correspondent sends me a sample of the flooring in his dining room, and asks for the best method of cleaning it.

Answer: The material is rubber, which can be cleaned by mopping with clear water. It can also be waxed, but care should be taken to use a bright drying water wax; not paste or liquid wax, for these contain oils and solvents that are injurious to rubber.

Making Insect Screens.
Question: Where can I get instructions for making insect screens for my windows and front porch?

Answer: The making of screens of all kinds at home is well covered in a pamphlet issued by the Copper & Brass Research association, 420 Lexington avenue, New York city, that can be had for the asking.

Require Men of Unusual Ability

DENNIS CHAVEZ
For United States Senator

These are unusual times. They require men of unusual ability. It is especially important that in the Congress of the United States we have men who are trained in government . . . men who are experienced and who know their way around.

In times of crisis, men who have proved their ability under fire are vital to our security.

The Democratic Party offers such men.

United States Senator Dennis Chavez may well prove, during the next few years, to be the most important man in the Congress in our national effort to bring about unity and solidarity among the Americas. Senator Chavez is the only man in Congress of Latin-American descent. His long service makes him invaluable at this crucial time.

This year friendship among the Americas becomes of paramount importance. It is vital to our economic security. Senator Chavez is one of the most valuable men in the United States to help cement this friendship.

Clinton P. Anderson, Democratic nominee for representative in congress, has, over a period of years, established many important contacts in Washington. He is no newcomer in that field. He knows the various departments in Washington. He is personally acquainted with most of them. He will lose no time in taking up his important duties and in getting results for New Mexico.

Mr. Anderson has repeatedly demonstrated his ability as an executive, a business man and an administrator. He will take talent, determination and the priceless gift of leadership to his important job.

The Accomplishment Of Unselfish Leadership

The present state Democratic administration has been the most efficient and economical in the history of New Mexico.

It has worked closely with our president and our congressional delegation and with the national administration to get things done.

As a few examples of what capable, unselfish leadership can do, we cite the following:

Cost of government in New Mexico has been reduced by $2,157,000 annually.

Cost of highway construction has been cut almost in half.

Roads are built today for approximately 50 per cent of what they previously cost. This great saving means that New Mexico will complete all primary highways during 1941 and 1942, years ahead of schedule.

Strict adherence to a policy inaugurated by the Miles administration, of letting all highway contracts only by open, competitive bidding, has made this tremendous saving possible.

The leadership of Governor John E. Miles has been chiefly responsible for the great economic gains which the present administration has made.

On the basis of their records, these men deserve your full support.

Lights of New York

Information: A New York newspaper man, whose present post is London, was telephoning his office the other evening a story about a bombardment which was in full progress. He seemed to have picked the hottest spot in the English metropolis as bombs were crashing all about and the rewrite man, on this side, had difficulty in catching all the correspondent's words because of the noise. Nevertheless, the man in London kept on dictating steadily and rapidly since transatlantic telephone conversations run into money fast. Suddenly he interrupted himself, not to announce that he had to run for shelter but to inquire as to how a horse, on which he had a bet, had come out. And the rewrite man, after a hurried query, was sorry to report that the nag carrying the America's money had finished fifth.

New York: A brother and sister, because they live some distance apart, see each other only on occasions at the home of their mother. The other Sunday they had one of those reunions and it was so pleasant that the brother and his wife urged the sister and her husband to come to their home as soon as possible. The invitation was accepted. But the brother suddenly found an apartment, for which he had been waiting for some time, available. So he moved and in the confusion forgot to notify his sister of the change of address. The sister called and, finding no brother, sent this note to her mother: "Nice of him to invite us to his home but will he please let us know where he lives?"

Romance: Cupid has various ways of directing his arrows. For instance, the pretty young woman who lived on the sixth floor of an up-town apartment house and the young man with a good job who lived on the seventh floor. Neither was aware of the presence of the other until one evening when the young man thoughtlessly snipped a cigarette butt out the window. It struck on the awning of the girl's apartment. He hurried down, extinguished an incipient blaze and uttered profuse apologies. The young woman was forgiving. That was in July. They were married recently.

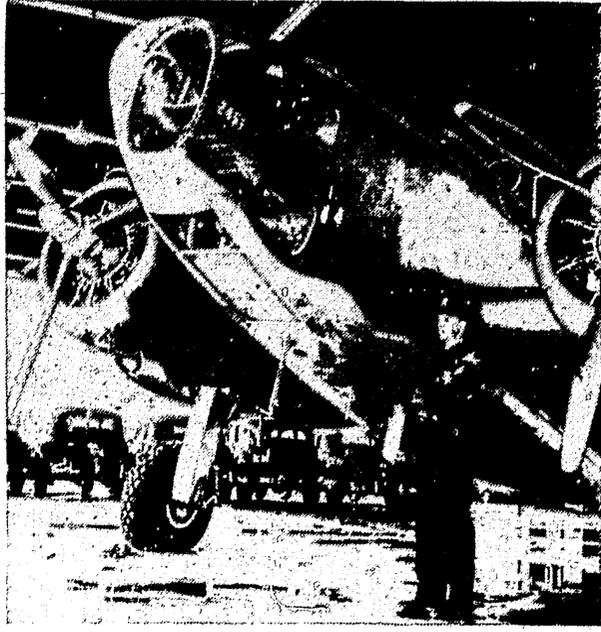

Santa Claus: A New Yorker who still lives in his summer home over at Lake Hopateong, finding the morning chilly, wore his overcoat to the station. When he boarded the train, the car being warm, he hung up the coat and buried his face in his newspaper. Not until several days later, the weather having been warm in the meanwhile, did he again think of his coat. Finding the closet empty, he remembered where he had left it and with no hope, whatsoever, visited the lost and found department of the railroad, described the garment and came away with his coat intact.

Old Book Predicts End of Present War

Cop Finds Tome That Puts Armageddon in U. S.

CUYAHOGA FALLS, OHIO.—A special policeman here, Harry Work Sr., was tidying up his attic when he discovered a book which predicts the end of the present war. "The Defence of Armageddon" bears no date but Work said he thought it was written "well over 100 years ago." Brown and worn, it once belonged to his grandfather, Thomas Lord, who lived in Mill Hall, Pa. Written in a cumbersome style, the book maintains that incidents in the Holy Bible are symbolic of things to come. Work shied from carefully reading the book until he came on a paragraph explaining that the Battle of Armageddon would be fought in a valley between Philadelphia and Harrisburg, Pa. "That's pretty close to home," mused Work as he began to delve into the volume. He found biblical passages that prophesied that England would be allied with Russia, but that the United States would have to settle the final battle. The downfall of Hungary was predicted and another statement said that France would fall, but would "be with us in the end." Not a student of the Bible, Work has appealed to several to help him read the book. "I'll have to find someone who knows how to connect all the names with their proper meaning," he declared.

Money Demand Will Keep U. S. Mint on 7-Day Week

PHILADELPHIA.—The Philadelphia mint is making money hand over fist, but at that it's nearly down to its last cent. Working a steady 24-hour shift, mint employees are producing 4,200,000 coins daily, but are unable to meet the demand for money and to replenish the establishment's normal reserve of $1,500,000.

Aside from the steady output, which is shipped away as fast as it can be packed, the mint's reserve is only $100,000, officials said.

"There are probably several reasons for the increased demand for small coins," Supt. Edwin H. Dressel said. "The greatest, possibly, is improved business conditions. Another is the greater use of pennies as a result of new national defence taxes."

Notwithstanding the present rush, Dressel's workmen must prepare to meet the annual demand for silver at Christmas, which is no small problem.

"We will continue operations on the present seven-day schedule until the new year at least," he said. "Beyond that I cannot say."

Science Turns Barber And Gives Peach a Shave.

BLACKSBURG, VA. — After all these years, the peach is getting a shave. The "barber" is Dr. Fred W. Hofmann, director of horticultural research at the Virginia Agricultural experiment station, who announced today the development of a fuzzless peach.

The new peach is not only as smooth and waxy as a plum, but also as large as standard varieties and just as delicious, he says. It is highly resistant to brown rot, a destructive peach disease, and has a higher degree of frost resistance than the Elberta, he adds. Any standard variety can be made fuzzless by the breeding process, it is said.

The fuzzless peach, the fruit of nearly 40 years' research by Dr. Hofmann, will be distributed soon among orchardists for planting, but probably will not reach the consumer for three to six years.

European War Found to Check Import of Drugs

SALT LAKE CITY.—The European war is having a beneficial effect on the narcotics habits of the United States, according to Mrs. Elizabeth Bass, supervisor of district No. 13 of the Federal Narcotics bureau.

Mrs. Bass, only woman in the narcotics service, explained the war has cut off the source of supply of many of the nation's narcotics addicts, forcing them to break themselves of their habits. Limited supplies, she said, also decrease the possibility of new cases of addiction. Most serious problem in Mrs. Bass' district was described as the smuggling over the Arizona and New Mexico borders from Mexico. She said Utah was comparatively free of serious narcotics problems.

Frilled Curtains Give Glamour to Windows

By RUTH WYETH SPEARS

THE newest frilled curtains give a full, lavish effect. If they make your old curtains look a bit dejected, like those shown here at the right, don't be discouraged. The window at the left uses those same curtains with a dash of glamour added. This economy trick saved a certain young matron enough money to buy a number of smart new accessories for her living room.

She discovered that a diagonal dart, which took up the curtains at the back, threw more fullness to the front, thus giving the new high drape a smart line. Tie-backs and valance were made of flowered chintz in rose and plum tones, lined with plain plum colored chintz. One yard of each kind of chintz was required for each window.

NOTE: The chintz covered lamp shade and the pool table also add interest to this window. Full directions for making a shade like the one illustrated are in SEWING, Book 1. Directions for the pool table are in Book 5; also descriptions of the first four booklets in this series. There are 22 home-making projects in each number; for which there is a per-piece charge of 10c each to cover cost and mailing. Send order to:

There was little sleep for Lynn that night. In the morning she re-read the letter again. It seemed incredible to her that Rene meant what he said. She was tempted to cable him. But what could she say?

The next morning Lynn went to Mortimer's office. After a long wait, she was finally ushered into Mortimer's office. She smiled a little as she thought of her first visit there.

Mortimer greeted her cordially. She took his breath away, she was so much lovelier than he remembered her. Lynn was a far cry from the shy, terrified girl who had come into his office a year and a half ago.

"What can I do for you, Miss Morrow?"

Lynn found it hard to begin. "You've probably wondered how I got North after that Florida episode?"

Mortimer's face was a blank. She probably wanted more money. This time it would really be expensive. He speculated on how much her Fall suit had cost.

Haltedly, she began the pitiful little story. It took her a long time, and Mortimer had to ask many questions. She took out the crumpled marriage license from her bag and gave it to him.

"I sounds so preposterous as I tell it," she said appealingly.

"I hear much stranger stories than this. Your problem is simple. You want me to start an annulment suit. That is what you want." He cleared his throat. "There will be some publicity connected with this. Boucher is a pretty important person these days, and you're well known."

"I'm prepared to face that. There is nothing we can do about it."

Mortimer nodded. "I want to ask you what your fee will be?"

Mortimer smiled. "We won't even talk about that, Miss Morrow." He paused and weighed his words. "Some time pretty soon I may ask you to help me. All I ask is that you comply when I appeal to you."

"I don't understand."

"Just forget what I said for the moment. I'll start the annulment suit immediately. Let me have your address. Good. Now don't worry. I'll keep this here," he said, holding up the license which had caused Lynn so much trouble. "I want to warn you, it will take several months."

That was the last she heard from Mortimer for several days. She had one letter from him suggesting to go to Rene if she could leave here. That was impossible, however. Then one afternoon as she left Wellington's studio she noticed the afternoon newspaper at the subway stop. A big photograph of herself was spread over the front page, a picture of Rene as he left for Europe, and one of Wild.

Lynn had known there would be publicity when Mortimer filed that suit, but she had not realized quite how bad it would be. When she got off the bus near her apartment she bought all the afternoon papers and took them home. She forced herself to read them, clipped the stories and pictures. Then she put them into an envelope and wrote to Rene: "I'm sorry. It was hard to write that letter. Mr. Mortimer warns me it will take a long time. I wish I could rush it through for you, but it is impossible for me to leave town right now. Wellington has a contract which keeps me here. I wish you every happiness."

She sealed it, put stamps on it and went down and dropped it into the letter box on the corner.

Terry had asked to take her to dinner that night, and she tried to reach him on the telephone while she was out. She felt she could not face anybody tonight. But she failed. He was not at his office or his club.

When he came at 7 o'clock, he had a newspaper in his hand and he was excited, anxious to hear all about everything.

"Why didn't you tell me?" he demanded. "Not that it matters to me." He waved the paper at her accusingly.

"I didn't tell anybody."

"Not even Wild?"

"He knew," was all Lynn said and, by her tone she halted any more questions. "I can't go out to dinner tonight. I couldn't."

"Nonsense!" Terry was firm. "Of course, you're going!"

"It might mean publicity for you."

"I don't care."

"I do. I hate people staring and questioning and gossiping."

"They'll gossip anyway. Be glad you're important enough to make front page! Get your hat on."

He insisted and as Lynn put on her hat, Terry offered a little advice:

"You're going places, Lynn. You've got to get used to all this. Besides, nothing's so dead as last week's headlines. It's all over now."

Lynn shook her head dubiously. Suppose somebody should find out about that marriage, the circumstances surrounding it!

"Keep your chin up!" Terry patted her shoulders as they went out the door. "You're not the first girl who ever got married and made a mess of it. I always wondered why Rene released that grump, Rene!"

CHAPTER XXIX

It turned out that both Terry and Lynn were right. Reporters sought Lynn out, but she said little. Then somebody dug up that old portrait which Rene had painted for the Lu Lu garage mechanic. Lynn hid away and refused to go even to Wellington's studio. She lost weight, mooned about.

But suddenly she realized what Terry had said was so. It was an old story. People forget so easily. There was a trunk murder to take front page. Lynn was forgotten. Marty found her on the third day after the "garage picture" story, huddled in her darkened studio. He pounded until she opened the door in self-defense.

"How's Beautiful?" he demanded as he came in breezily. He pretended not to see her fragile face. "And Wellington's wild. What's the idea?" Lynn did not attempt to explain. "Get into your glad rags, we're eating."

Lynn was defenseless before Marty's determination. She went with him. He marched her into the smartest mid-town restaurant he could think of.

"Take your medicine. It will be over quick. Then you can go on where you left off," he said as the waiter took them to a conspicuous table. Then the waiter paused solicitously, waiting for their order.

"You look half starved. Steaks, that thick!" Marty said with a wave of the hand.

"You're always feeding me in crises," Lynn said with a little laugh.

"That's all you let me do, kid." Marty's voice was light, but his eyes belied his words. "You're such a babe in the woods, Lynn."

Lynn shuddered inwardly under the coaxes of interested eyes turned toward them. Then across the room she saw Chuck Austin dining with a man whom Lynn did not know.

"Oh!" she gasped aloud. Chuck had seen her, was bowing. He got up and came over to her table. It was the first time she had ever seen him since that February morning when Wild had called.

"How are you, Lynn?" he said. "May I stop a moment?"

Marty ordered a highball for their guest. Lynn's heart was beating to suffocation. Her lips trembled so she could not answer, only try to smile.

"Sorry about all your difficulties, Lynn." His voice was quite sincere. "But maybe some day it will be for the best. I think you're going places. You'll turn up in Hollywood one of these days."

"Thanks."

Neither of them mentioned the thing foremost in both their minds. If only he'd give her some news of Wild!

Then their checks came, and Marty turned the talk to business.

"I keep thinking of Hollywood for you, Lynn. You're the type, and you can act. You've grown up in the last few months."

"Yes," Lynn shook her head. "And it is not very pleasant."

"It's the business of living."

"But I'm not interested in Hollywood."

"You can't go on like this. You can't model all your life. You're capable of great things." Lynn seemed to find the idea amusing.

"I mean it, Lynn. Wild isn't worth ruining your life over. He's a good guy but a playboy. It was bound to end one way or another. You'd never have been happy with him. He's just the first man you ever fell in love with. Some day you'll look back and think how funny you were with all your moaning and weeping!"

Lynn's face was deadly serious: "I wish I could believe you, Marty." There were sudden tears in her eyes.

One cold November day while Wellington was hard at work his studio telephone rang. It was for Lynn. Sometimes Marty called her there if he had a commission for her. But it was Chuck. He wanted to have dinner with her. When she came back and stopped on to the model's stand again Wellington watched her face.

"Now that's the expression I've been trying to get, Lynn. You've been sort of dead. Come on, turn on that smile and keep it!"

She looked forward to the evening eagerly. Just to be with Wild's brother was comforting.

When Chuck called for her at 7 o'clock he seemed blue and discouraged. He seemed ill at ease. Before they'd finished their soup Lynn knew he would not mention Wild. She could see that determination in his eyes. There was a restraint between them. Chuck tried to talk about his own troubles but he could not.

Finally Chuck gave up, took Lynn home early, and when she asked him to stop and smoke a cigarette, he said he wanted to get home early. His eyes pleaded for understanding, and Lynn did understand. It was no use. They could not be friends. It was too difficult. When Chuck left he did not ask if he could see her again.

Alone in her apartment Lynn sat down at the window for a long time. Somehow she'd always counted on Chuck. It was foolish, after all, Wild was his brother. That night Lynn finally and irrevocably renounced Wild. She would never see him again. Or if she did it would not matter. She must face facts. She had not done that before. It was over!

And that night when Lynn dropped off to sleep, there were no tears on her pillow. She accepted the inevitable.

In the middle of the month, Lynn was ill for a few days with a bad cold, but she managed to work through in spite of her red nose which so infuriated Wellington.

Terry, the faithful, was still on hand. He called for her at 6 at Wellington's studio one night without phoning, but she was too ill to go out. He insisted on seeing her to her apartment. Lynn's head ached horribly, and she wished fervently that Terry would go.

He seemed much preoccupied, and finally he said: "Lynn, I've been wanting to say this for a long time. Will you marry me?" He stood before her, embarrassed and yet determined as he watched her with hot eyes. For a moment Lynn thought she was delirious from the fever which burned in her.

"You aren't serious, Terry."

"I am." He set his chin firmly.

"There'll be a hell of a row at home, but we can face it."

Lynn put her hand to her aching head. "For one thing I'm not in the marriage market, yet, you know, I'm a married woman."

"Well, you won't be long. That doesn't mean anything. Will you, Lynn?"

She tried to make him understand, but he refused to take her "no."

"You think it over. You need somebody to take care of you, Lynn. The family can't cut me off. I've got some money of my own, anyway. If they do, they can just cut it!"

Lynn sighed. Why hadn't she fallen in love with this amiable Irishman instead of Wild? She was desperately lonely. His devotion was pleasant, and they'd had some happy times together.

"I'm not in love with you," Lynn finally protested. Terry's face fell.

"You would be, if you were married to me. I know it! I appreciate you. I wouldn't walk off and leave you. Not in a million years, if I thought I had a chance!"

Lynn was white. She knew he spoke the truth. Terry was so different from Wild.

Wellington decided to knock off work for two weeks before Christmas, and Lynn looked forward to the vacation. Then Mme. Renouard wanted her back for the holidays, and reluctantly Lynn went. She felt she owed Madam a lot. Besides with the approach of the holiday season Lynn's loneliness increased.

She was glad to be back with the girls she knew.

On the second day Lynn was back in the shop, Madam came in late from luncheon. She threw the afternoon paper down on the table of the fitting room where she found Lynn: "The Austins kept breaking into print, kid. Lucky you didn't hitch up with that family. They're all crazy!"

With apprehension Lynn picked up the paper. There were black headlines about Chuck Austin's fight for the custody of Charles Talbot Austin, 3d. There in the fitting room Lynn stared a long time at the photograph on the front page. It was a picture of Mrs. Austin and her son, taken two years previously. Lynn's knees were weak. She leaned against the gray, painted wall of the little room as she stared.

The woman was Helen Warren. The child was Buddy.

CHAPTER XXX

While Lynn stood there, one of the girls came to tell her she was wanted on the telephone. It was Mortimer.

"Can you drop into my office after you get through work?" he asked. Lynn promised.

"I wanted to be sure and see you tonight, Miss Morrow," he said. She sat down in a chair.

"Tell me what it all means?" she demanded, tapping the late afternoon paper on his desk. "I'm simply flabbergasted."

"You were?" Mortimer looked long at her.

"I've a confession to make. I thought when you started going around with young Austin that you knew."

"Knew? I never was so surprised in my life! I still can't believe it!" Mortimer cleared his throat, trying to think just how to begin.

"I've got a lot of things to say to you, Miss Morrow. In the first place, you know, we'll be forced to call you as a witness."

"Witness?" Lynn's face blanched. "Oh, I couldn't! It would be too terrible, especially since I knew Mr. Austin. I know both of them!" Lynn jumped up and leaned across the desk. "You mustn't ask me, Mr. Mortimer!"

"Miss Morrow, I want to be honest. You realize the Austins have a lot of money. They'll move heaven and earth to get that grandchild! This is not a question even of duty. It is a matter of human decency. You can't see an injustice done. You know Helen Austin! You know the adored that child of hers! Do you want to see him taken away from her?"

'Trimmed With Velvet' Becomes A Popular Fall Fashion Slogan

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

DO NOT decide on the new coat, dress or suit until you have thoroughly looked into the matter of the cloth-trimmed-with-velvet vogue that is fairly taking the world of fashion by storm this season. So inspired have designers become in this direction they are playing up the theme with all the cunning and imagination at their command. The idea is being exploited to the utmost, and as the movement develops, the possibilities offered unfold in endless chain.

Black velvet sleeves, yoke and front panel have been used with telling effect to give an assuredly new-to-season look to the smart two-piece wool jacket-dress shown to the left in the illustration. Yes, indeed, you will show fashion alertness if you see to it that your first town dress flaunts accents of velvet. Canning style details that add to the prestige of this costume are the barbaric pair of clips, the centers of which are huge cabochon emeralds, the huge silver fox muff and the veil-draped black felt chapeau worn with it.

The other velvet trimmed model shown here is one of those all-important long-coat costume suits which best dressed women are accepting as a most welcome fashion this season. Bottle green tweed is the chosen material for this handsome ensemble. The gored skirt is topped with a full length coachman's coat accented with green velvet (velveteen) collar, lapels and buttons and various binding of edges. The lapel ornament—everybody's wearing lapel gadgets this season—is of silver with three charms hanging on chains. The stunning off-the-face hat is of felt in matching bottle green.

In the chic velvet trims a new avenue of design has been opened that promises anything and everything in the way of artful expression. The smart side fastenings in one piece dresses invite velvet accents in no uncertain manner. Creators of smart fashions are taking advantage of the vogue to introduce many novel interpretations of the mode, such as a princess dress in black sheer wool that fastens down one side under a wide border of velvet. At a long-torso waistline point the dress is tied with velvet in the same manner as the new coats that tie to one side.

Dresses of cashmere jersey are cunningly trimmed with velvet in such accents as collar, cuffs and novel pockets. It is very good style, too, for the two-piece dress is made of a jersey skirt with velveteen blouse top that is finished off with jersey at neckline and wrist and down the front.

The very chic jacket suits that make simplicity of line their keynote show they are of newest vintage when they are piped with velvet, have velvet covered buttons and most likely a velvet collar of matching velvet. Of course the favorite suit is black with black velvet. However, the "call to colors" is resulting in suits and coats made of gorgeous tweeds that are colorfully velvet-trimmed.

One house of design noted for its smart fashions is making a play on dresses that exploit the new pencil slim lines that take on a flounce below the knee. These are of sheer wool, notably cashmere jersey or the new suede-finished wools. The high style feature reaches its climax in stunning pencil-line collars of matching velvet. Shirred velvet muffs are also a new style note.

Fur-Faced Hat

Nothing less than a sensation, that's what the new and dramatic fur-faced broad-brimmed hats are creating. The model pictured tells the "reason why" every woman of fashion is sending in a rush order for a fur-faced hat to match her coat. The hat and coat ensemble shown here is of heaver. It is made of such smooth furs as Persian lamb, black seal skin, leopard and other spotted varieties, also ermine for evening wear. These repeat again and again in millinery to match the fur coat or fur trim on the suit. For those who can indulge in fur luxury, an important new fashion is hat and muff twosomes. It is said that the white fur theme in accessory sets of this type will become a pronounced vogue this winter. They add a distinctive appearance that women find most becoming.

Fashion-Wise Use Bright, Gay Colors

This is developing into a season of gorgeously gay colors. The tweeds for coats and suits were never so strikingly colorful. Plaids have gone on a rampage of color. Feathers on hats flaunt color to the limit. Accessories are a riot of eye-blinding color.

In costume design a play on color is being made that is startling in effect, but the bold handling of contrast colors is one of the most fascinating gestures fashion records this season. For example, it is chic for a dress to have a neutral colored shirtwaist top, with a skirt which introduces panels of vivid colors. Such a dress could be made of pale beige with sections of scarlet, Irish green and royal blue.

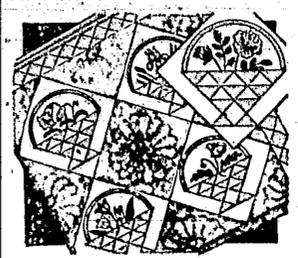

The new black frocks achieve their dash of color with yokes, vestees or front-panel-effects made up of green, cerise and purple crepe. Dare as much color as you please and you will be none too colorful this season.

Newest Hats Made Of Pasted Feathers

It is a season of gayest of gay plumage and novelty feathers. So much so, the newest hats of the season are made entirely of pasted feathers in gorgeous colors. With the new dark furs they are simply stunning. Your feather chapeau may be of the now-so-chic broad-brim type or it may be a cunning little novel shape or a close fitting turban. Just so it's feathered to distinction.

Felt casual hats flaunt spectacular feathers and other feather novelties. New too are the felt brotons as well as those of velvet that have a fringe of brilliant feathers outlining the brim.

Things to do

Transfer No. Z762

THE Flower Basket quilt is one of the most beautiful and versatile designs you could imagine. Parts of the flowers may be appliqued and the rest done in outline, or if you desire, the flowers may be done entirely in embroidery.

The transfer, Z762-15c, gives you the cutting pattern for the pieced baskets, as well as 20 different flower motifs which fit in these baskets. You will find many more uses for these flowers, too, as they are ideal for luncheon cloths, curtains and other linens. A quilting design also comes on this transfer. Send order to:

SINCE the Primary a number of my friends from the different political parties have asked me to run for the office of Sheriff of Lincoln county, in the approaching General Election, November 5.

I have been a resident of Lincoln county for 21 years, most of that time I have been in the stock business; have held deputy sheriff's commission for 14 years, including the two years as chief deputy of Lincoln county under our present Sheriff. While acting as deputy Sheriff I tried to be fair and impartial at all times with all of whom I had any dealings regardless of party affiliations. I feel that experience as a deputy sheriff is a big asset to any Sheriff going into office. I need the job; have no other business interests that might require any of my time away from my duties of office.

If elected, I will perform the duties of Sheriff to the very best of my ability at all times. If the voters of Lincoln county feel that I am the right man for the office, then each and every vote cast for me will be appreciated in all sincerity, I assure you. My name will be on the ballot in the column under the word "Independent" I thank you.

DESDE la Primaria, un numero de mis amigos de diferentes partidos politicos, han pedido que haga la carrera para Alguacil mayor en el condado de Lincoln en la proxima Eleccion General, Noviembre dia 5.

Yo he sido residente de este condado por 21 años, lo mas de este tiempo he estado en el negocio de ganado; yo he portado comision de diputado de alguacil por 14 años, encluyendo los dos años que servi como primer diputado, bajo del presente alguacil mayor. Durante el tiempo que actue como primer diputado, yo hice lo posible para ser justo y imparcial en todo tiempo con todos los que tube que ver, y lo hice inpartidariamente. Yo creo que una experiencia como primer diputado es una ventaja para cualquier alguacil que tome la oficina que yo aspiro. Yo necesito el trabajo, no tengo ningunos otros intereses que requieran mi tiempo en otras partes lejos de mis deberes de la oficina.

Si soy electo, yo ejecutare los deberes de Alguacil Mayor a mejor de mi abilidad en todo tiempo; si los votantes del condado de Lincoln creen que yo soy el hombre necesario para esta oficina, entonces cada voto que ustedes me gratifiquen sera apreciado sinceramente, yo les aseguro. Mi nombre aparecera en la boleta bajo la columna marcada "Independiente" Les doy las gracias.
