Registration of Home Economists

The American Home Economics Association is conducting a nationwide registration of home economists in order to put their special abilities at the service of the government in its program for national defense. For this "registration the term" home economist" includes any woman who has had training in home economics as related to above high school, regardless of age, present employment, or membership in the New Mexico or American Home Economics Association. Fields of training included are: Food, Housing, Clothing, and Textiles, Money Management, and Family and Social Relationships.

Any woman who has a significant amount of training in these fields should register whether or not she holds a college degree. Home makers are urged to register as well as those employed in any field of home economics.

Registration of the women of New Mexico is being conducted by Miss Amelia R. Hughes, chairman of Registration for Emergency Service, of Lovington, N. Mex. From these questionnaires a register will be made of the women of this state who are qualified for emergency service.

School Notes

The Carrizozo Basket Ball Team was victorious over Capitan, 28-10 and they were also victorious over Forrest, the highly touted contenders for State title in the early guessing. In the Forrest game, Carrizozo came out on the long end of a 23-14 score. These are the first two games, and the attendance was good. We still could improve with larger numbers of sport lovers attending these games. Come out and see our team play!

Joan Norris has been ill for the past week but is now back in school.

Monday at 2:30 Mrs. Kelley and her music pupils entertained the High School with a very interesting and enjoyable music recital.

Some of the Carrizozo Hi girls are preparing for the Yuletide by making beautiful charm strings of brightly painted cones, gourds and such. These will indeed make charming gifts.

Friday, the grade school pupils will give a program in the High School Auditorium, and they welcome all who wish to attend.

The grade school rooms have all blossomed out in varied schemes of Christmas decorations, tinsel, green and red ropes, gaily bedecked trees Christmas drawings adorn every room. These and the happy smiling faces of the youngsters combine to fill the atmosphere with the spirit of the good Saint who brings cheer to the hearts of children from the ages of two to eighty.

Season's Greetings From The American Legion

Once again we are about to enter the Holiday Season, with our thoughts reflect our experiences during the past year; moments of pleasure as well as periods of sorrow, when life drew heavily on the reserve and stamina of mankind, but symbolic of the approach of the Xmas Season, our associates, friends, neighbors and fellowman come in for the Good Cheer radiating from us all.

Regardless of what the passing year has produced in shattered hopes, obstacles, some of which may have seemed insurmountable and crucial worries to plague the progress and happiness of man; the dawn of the New Year, since Biblical times, has served as a brilliant and guiding Star for new hopes, to which the very life of humanity is geared. Signs are clearly visible on all sides of greatly improved domestic conditions, which gives us new faith of the bountiful prosperity and the happiness, productive of successful accomplishments.

May we wish you a most pleasant and Merry Xmas; and we hope the New Year will abound in the good things of life for you and yours. While Peace on earth is not as we wish, we do cherish and share with you the feeling of Good Will toward men.

Dan Conley, Adjutant.

Mrs. Burns' Pupils Give Recital

Baby Shower

A baby shower was given last Sunday by Mrs. Florencio Archuleta and Mrs. Flavio Mirabal in honor of Mrs. Emiliano McKinley. Refreshments of chocolate and cake were served. The honoree received many useful presents.

Mr. Gilmore, son of Mr. Watt Gilmore of Eagle, and his family from Mississippi came to attend the funeral of their grandmother at Tularosa last Tuesday.

MRS. ANSON J. GILMORE

Mrs. Anson J. Gilmore, mother of Mrs. Paul Mayer, passed away at the Mayer home last Sunday morning just after 5 o'clock, after several months of illness. She was patient and endured with Christian fortitude the hours of suffering.

Susan T. Green was born in Union Parish, Louisiana, June 5, 1854. When a small child she moved with her parents to Leon county, Texas, where she grew to young womanhood and on October 13, 1870 was married to Mr. Anson Jones Gilmore, who preceded her in death in 1934, when a small child she united with the Baptist church and was faithful to its tenets throughout her long useful life. She enjoyed church work and was active in church affairs until ill health prevented her taking part.

She was a devoted and loyal wife and mother, a sincere and helpful friend and neighbor.

Mrs. Gilmore is survived by three daughters, Mrs. Paul Mayer, Carrizozo; Mrs. Mae Miller, Tularosa; Mrs. Ora G. Tully, Glenwood and by two sons, Mr. Watt Gilmore of Engle and Mr. Matt Gilmore of Alamogordo, and fifteen grand children and eight great-grand children; also three brothers, Tom Green of Dimmitt, Texas, Will Green of Tahoka, Texas, and Anonias Green of Claypool, Arizona, and many other relatives.

Remains were sent to the old home in Tularosa for funeral services which were held by Rev. L. D. Cochran, pastor of the local Baptist church, with Mrs. Gunther Kroggel in charge of the music. Following the pastor's address, the Eastern Star held their beautiful service for the dead, followed by interment.

Pall bearers were grandsons of the deceased; their wives were flowers girls, assisted by Mrs. Sprinkle and Mrs. Hoffman of Carrizozo. The flowers were very beautiful and there were so many.

Mr. and Mrs. Gilmore were pioneers of Lincoln county, having moved here in 1887 where they owned ranches at Ruidoso and Eagle Creek. They have been a prominent and highly esteemed family throughout the years, socially, religiously and politically. It is with profound regret that we see the departure of the substantial pioneers who have helped Lincoln county to win her present bright place in the sun.

Carrizozo attendants at the funeral were Mr. and Mrs. T. E. Kelley, Rev. and Mrs. L. D. Cochran, Rev. and Mrs. L. A. Hughes, Mmes. Steve Bostian, Ben S. Burns, Kroggel, Collier, Phipps, Sprinkle, Hoffman and Miss Esther Ayers.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter LaFleur are guests of Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Rolland.

KNOW YOUR BANK

Collecting and Clearing Your Checks

ONE of the most valuable services rendered by banks to the American people and American business is the clearing and collection of checks, drafts, etc. It is a service that functions so smoothly, efficiently, and quickly that it is taken entirely for granted and little thought is given to how it operates.

This system works through a well developed plan of co-operation among country banks, city correspondents, and Federal Reserve banks.

WHO'S NEWS THIS WEEK

By LEMUEL F. PARTON
(Consolidated Features—WNU Service.)

NEW YORK.—Early in September, 1924, the League of Nations assembly was in session, on a sunny afternoon, with every garden in place on the lapel of its morning coat, with murmurs mingling with the bird song and the hum of the bees, heard through the open windows. The impeccable and somewhat desiccated Sir Eric Drummond, who played closer to his immaculate white vest than any living man, was presiding watchfully against any untoward procedure, any solecism, any break in syntax or punctilio, or move toward any overt suggestion or act.

There arose among the delegates a great, shaggy bearded man who started the windows rattling with his booming voice. He said: "You are just blowing bubbles. Your talk is hot air. You have done and will do nothing for peace. You know that the Dawes plan is doomed. You know that all treaties are destined for the waste basket."

It was a long, masterful and punishing philippic, delivered in a finished Harvard accent. Sir Eric was almost a hospital case.

The Jeremiah was Bishop Fan Stylian Noll, of the Albanian Orthodox church, and it is Bishop Noll, now supposedly living in Boston, who is named in a London cable to the New York Sun, as the popular candidate for a liberated Albania. With the aid of the Greeks, the hope of Albanian liberation is warming up daily, here and abroad. The Hugo, ruddy warrior-bishop, a medieval man with modern ideas, never has been caught in the feudal tensions and confusion of Balkan politics. He is a genuine libertarian and democrat, recruiting Moslems as well as Christians in his long running fight for modern free statehood for his country. His League of Nations speech was shushed in Europe, but all of it finally filtered through to American newspapers. It was the voice of a major prophet, as startling as the little flickering cinema spot on the walls of Belshazzar's palace.

If the bishop should reclaim and redeem Albania, America would get an asset, if not a put-out. He was educated at Harvard university, entering in 1903 and finishing in 1912. In the former year, the peaceful religious revolution by which the modern Orthodox Albanian church was established was just getting under way, and it was in that year, that he was invested with the robes of his priesthood.

I got a glimpse of the bishop in the Commodore hotel in 1931, a keen-eyed, black-bearded giant, purposeful, alert and powerful in every aspect of his face and person. He had arrived just a jump ahead of certain student Albanian gunmen. On this and many other occasions, he blasted Albania's dead monarch, Ahmed Zog, much as he had blasted the 16-nation assembly of the league. But he changed hotels frequently and mysteriously, as for many years he has had death close on his heels. And it was in 1931 that he said that Premier Mussolini would snatch Albania when he got ready, and that Zog's government was all make-believe.

SIR PHILIP B. JOUBERT DE LA FERTE, British air marshal, has had a long and distinguished career in the army, and in all these years he has been a model of discretion and impeccable official behavior. Hence it was a most extraordinary slip when he broadcast to the world details of where German bombs had fallen. The ministry of information, of which Sir Philip is a member, had been clamping down the censorship lid and British papers were printing German communiqués, as the only news available. American newspaper men, sharply at odds with the censorship about getting news from Germany, are accusing Sir Philip for a fumble which they think was in the public interest. It seems to be his first fumble.

As a flier in the World war, he gathered both British and Italian decorations and was mentioned in dispatches six times. He joined the royal field artillery in 1907 and transferred to the royal flying corps in 1913.

He was in France in first two years of the war and in Egypt in 1918 and 1917. After the war he was R. A. F. instructor at the imperial defense college and commanded the R. A. F. staff college in 1920 and 1921. He was given command of the R. A. F. in 1927. He was educated at Harrow and Winchester.

FIRST AID to the AILING HOUSE

by Roger B. Whitman

(© Roger B. Whitman—WNU Service.)

Cracked Ceilings.
QUESTION: We are troubled with cracks in our plaster ceilings, and lately a piece three feet square fell in the living room. The beams are six inches by two inches, and cracking may be due to excessive deflection in the span. Would you advise replastering, with the possibility that the work will not last long, or would it be practical to remove the plaster and use some one of the rigid insulating boards? Can the white coat of plaster be applied directly to this material, or is it better painted?

Answer: A ceiling having a great deal of vibration or movement in the beams should not be plastered. You may have a repetition of the same trouble. Any one of the decorative insulating wallboards will most probably make a more lasting finish. A gypsum wallboard can also be used with very satisfactory results. Either of the above materials should be painted; a thin plaster coat will not do.

Amateur Painting.
Question: An attic room 20 feet square, used as a living-room, has a white ceiling and buff walls. It needs repainting. Could an amateur do it? If so, what material should be used, and how is it done? Would you recommend repeating the same colors?

Answer: I have seen many painting jobs by amateurs that were very successful. A paint dealer should be able to give you a handbook issued by one of the paint manufacturers, which will describe the needs and the processes. You will get good results with a cold-water paint containing casein. This comes as a paste to be thinned with water to the proper consistency. This kind of paint is very easily applied, and is washable when dry. A white ceiling would be satisfactory, but I should be inclined to make the walls light ivory rather than buff. However, that is a matter of personal taste.

Shady Yard.
Question: I have not been successful in growing grass or vines in my shady west side yard. At present the ground is bare. What would you suggest for planting or sowing?

Answer: Both ivy and myrtle grow well in the shade, and if these have failed, it is undoubtedly because of the poorness of the soil. Your soil may be clay, or may need fertilizer. If there is a garden club in your locality, ask the advice of one of the members. With the soil in good condition, you can get grass that is adapted to growing in the shade. Pachysandra would be another good choice for a ground cover, as it grows either in the shade or in the sun, and in poor soil. It is not intended to be walked on, however.

Holes in Curtains.
A correspondent, writing on the letterhead of a laundry, gives his reason for the cause of holes forming in rayon curtains, saying:

"Our experience shows that fine mesh rayon curtains usually become tender at the lower part toward the middle, where the curtains meet. This is due to the sulphuric acid in the smoke and dust which comes in through the lower part of the window, and which, together with the rays of the sun, causes the damage." That is interesting, and I am glad to have that professional opinion. There is no doubt that the sulphur in city air, due to smoke, goes far to destroy not only fabrics but even more substantial materials.

Roof for an Extension.
Question: My house is an old-fashioned city house with a dining room extension. I should like to fix the roof so that I could use it for a roof garden. The present roof is of tin. Please advise me as to the best and most inexpensive roof covering I can put down, one that can be walked on.

Answer: A type of roof covering, which is made in blocks of an insulating board saturated with asphalt, can be laid over your present tin roof. Ask your local roofer about it. Canvas roofing is also very satisfactory, but it may be necessary to remove the present tin roof in order to put down the canvas.

Fieldstone House.
Question: I have a farm on which I contemplate building a fieldstone house. Where can I get a book or information on this kind of work? I thought I might be able to do a lot of it myself.

Answer: At a library you should be able to find a book on the building of stone houses, by Ernest Flagg, published a number of years ago by Charles Scribner's Sons. This describes an excellent and very simple method of building stone houses.

New and Fascinating Transparent Sewing

By RUTH WYETH SPEARS
THERE are fascinating new transparent materials on the market now. Luncheon sets and aprons and rain coats and closet accessories all take on new glamour when made of them, and you will find that every left-over scrap will be used for something that is attractive and worth while. Less than 50 cents' worth of this window-pane clear material made the hat cover, underwear case and two glove cases like this one shown here. All the directions for cutting and making the hat cover are given here in the sketch. The material from two corners made the square underwear case. The material from each of the other two corners was folded to make a glove or handkerchief case. Bright blue bias tape was used for seam binding and the bottom facing and loop handle of the hat cover; and colored zippers to match the bindings were used for the case closings.

Today's article is typical of the economy short cuts that I like to plan for homemaking budgeters. There are complete working drawings for thirty-two homemaking projects in SEWING Book 8—enough exciting ideas to keep you busy all the rest of the winter. Send order to:

We Can All Be EXPERT BUYERS

Is bringing us buying information, as to prices that are being asked for what we need to buy, and as to the quality we can expect, the advertising columns of this newspaper perform a worth while service which saves us many dollars a year.
It is a good habit to form, the habit of consulting the advertisements every time we make a purchase, though we have already decided just what we want and where we are going to buy it. It gives us the most precious feeling in the world: the feeling of being adequately prepared.
When we go into a store, prepared beforehand with knowledge of what is offered and at what price, we go as an expert buyer, filled with self-confidence. It is a pleasant feeling to have, the feeling of adequacy. Most of the misapprehensions in the world can be traced to a lack of this feeling. Then advertising shows another of its manifold uses—shows how to go on and toward making off our business relationships more secure and pleasant.

THE STORY THUS FAR

Virgie Morgan, widow and owner of the Morgan paper mill in the Carolina mountain district, turns down a marriage proposal from Wallace Withers. He leaves in a rage. Branford Wills, a young stranger, who has been lost in the mountains for three days, finds his way to the Morgan home. He is fed and allowed to remain overnight. He identifies himself as a government employee, working with surveyors in the district. Wills develops pneumonia and is forced to remain in the household. Marian, Virgie's daughter, dislikes Wills. Trouble is developing as Wills meets Stanley Daniels, the mill's chemist. Virgie learns someone is attempting to obtain title to timber lands owned by Tom Pruitt, life-long friend of her deceased husband and part owner of the mill.

"We"—the older man had thin lips and a mouth that shut like a trap—"are victims of the Phillips' outfit."

Virgie kept silent. Very likely these were some of the crowd who had put up the money to back Phillips. Obviously they had no idea who she was. They thought her a quaint mountain character, probably, so she kept to the part, staring dully and curiously at them, as mountain people did.

Slamming her worn gears, she drove on up the ridge, turning south at her line and bumping across a stony meadow, sun-washed and pleasant.

She found her foresters eating their lunch, their legs dangling from the muddy tail of their truck. She shared their lukewarm coffee, inspected the damp little hillocks where baby spruce stood and shivered, feeling their cold, small bearded roots groping in strange, chill darkness.

"I hope we get a snow so they don't dry out too fast," she said.

"We heard a car a while back," one of the men said. "See anybody down that way, Miss Morgan?"

"I was going to speak about that," Virgie screwed the lid on a thornos bottle. "Much obliged, you boys—I meant to get home for lunch but I got delayed, as usual. About that car—I saw 'em. And I want you to quit early—you, too, Joe—knock off before three, leave the truck here, and go over the other side down toward Little Fork. There's a piece of hardwood down there—a hundred and sixty-odd acres. Take a good look at it and call me up tonight."

"Pruitt's stuff, eh?" said Joe, who knew these timbered slopes and ridges as well as Virgie did.

"It used to be Pruitt's stuff. Something's up. And I'm not going to let Tom be gypped by another bunch of slick talkers with blue-prints in their hands and black iniquity in their minds. Don't call up till after seven, hear? And don't talk to anybody but me about this business."

"Sure, boss—we understand. You don't want it mentioned to Pruitt, then?"

"I'll talk to Pruitt. Crank this old caboose for me, will you?"

She was thinking so absently as she drove in at the gate of the plant that she ran over a steam hose and ripped a sizable silver from the corner of the tool-house before she came to and stopped the truck.

Tom Pruitt heard the impact of her arrival and came slouching out of the back shed, picking gum off the palms of his hands.

"Anybody else bust up the premises like that and you'd fire him," he drawled amiably. "That steering-gear busted?"

"Oh, shut up!" grumbled Virgie, climbing down stiffly.

She was irritated by Tom. No man so huge should be so naive, so helpless.

"Whoever stuck that shanty out there in the way must have thought we'd be hauling stuff in here in ox-carts forever," Virgie continued to fume as she tramped into the office.

Tom opened the door for her. "I reckon Dave put it there," he said, calmly.

"Come in here," Virgie ordered.

Tom followed her obediently and began punching at the stove. Virgie made a complicated task out of getting her hat off and her desk opened. She did not look at Tom. She was exasperated, and when her temper got the upper hand her tongue slipped, and she did not want it to slip. She had to say the right thing to Tom, who was so helpless in the presence of law and finance and the crisscross web men weave of these two strands to hide the simple intent of their acts.

"Sit down," directed Virgie, "and don't squirm. Lucy, you go out and get the time slips. Pruitt and I have got business to talk over."

Lucy rose meekly, put on her coat. "How soon shall I come back, Mrs. Morgan?"

"Fifteen minutes is all I need. And if you hang around that laboratory, walk in the air some before you come back in here. There may be worse smells than young Daniels' invents, but Satan has got a monopoly on 'em."

Tom draped his long legs over a stool and twisted his hat.

"I reckon you found a seeder tree set that hadn't ought to be cut," he said. "I expect I done it."

Virgie wheeled her chair around. The darkened leather cushion on the back of it still held the print of David Morgan's lean shoulder-blades.

"I'm not going to talk about Morgan trees," she said. "I want to talk about yours. Do you know anything about that property of yours over the ridge—that hardwood tract? What shape is it in?"

Tom twisted the hat nervously. "I sold it. Way back in '28. You know about that I reckon. I sold it to that Phillips' outfit. They paid me the first payment. They ain't never paid any more."

"What sort of papers did you get? Have you got a lien?"

"They're all in the safe. Dave put 'em away for me. Dave told me I'd ought to foreclose—then he got down and you know how we been ever since—we ain't had time to think of nothing but keeping this here mill running."

Virgie sighed. "It's my fault, I suppose. I've got to take care of you—just like I've got to take care of Lottie and Lucy out yonder and some more helpless people."

"I got a good piece of money out of that land," Tom defended.

"They defaulted on the contract, didn't they? The company's out of existence. It will take a lawsuit, probably, to repossess it—but somebody's interested in it. I met a couple of men—bankers, they looked like—up on the ridge. They were asking the way to that piece you've got over there—that strip down Hazel Fork with the big poplar on it. You get those papers out, Tom, and let me look into them."

Tom lumbered out of his chair. There was one kind of action he could understand, indorse, and follow. Strange men had been on his land—land that Virgie said was his.

"I low them fellers better keep off, over yonder," he boomed, his eyes dour. "I don't know no law, but if that's my poplar them bankers better keep off my place."

"Well, you've got to have the papers first. I'll have Lucy open the safe for you."

But when Lucy came back, moon-eyed and absent, with a droop of unhappiness about her mouth, Virgie regarded her with impatience. Lucy had been strung tight as a fiddle lately, making mistakes and being rushingly apologetic about them, jumping when the telephone rang.

Virgie knew what was the matter with Lucy. Young Stanley Daniels was flattered by the sight of Virgie's little silver heart fluttering on her sleeve. He had grown arrogant and cagey.

Lucy needed shaking. So, because she was disgusted with Lucy's meekness, Virgie climaxed a day of exasperations by giving the girl a raise.

"Go out and buy yourself a new hat and some lipstick," she ordered, "and if that young Daniels is hanging on the gate when you start home give him the back of your hand and your chin in the air. I can do all the moping we need in this pulp business."

Lucy was tremulously grateful and husky. "It isn't that exactly, Mrs. Morgan. It's—oh, everything! Old lamps and the rug wearing out—and food costing so much—"

"I know," Virgie was gentle. "We had a sofa that flopped over and made a bed and my brother had to sleep on it. It was always flopped down in the parlor when I had a beauty. Don't let it get you down, Lucy."

At night Joe and Ed reported that the two strangers had walked over Pruitt's land, climbed back into their car, and gone away again. She would hunt up her lawyer, as soon as she had time, Virgie decided, and find out just what could be done for Tom.

Young Mr. Branford Wills was still seriously ill. A half-dozen telegrams had so far failed to locate anyone who belonged to him or who might be interested in him. Virgie had that to worry about.

She took time to hope that Lucy had found a decent hat.

She did not know that Lucy was sitting alone at home, among the ravelings, and that Stanley Daniels was, at that moment, occupying a rocker in front of Wallace Withers' old wood-burning stove, smoking one of Wallace's five-cent cigars and thinking very well of himself.

CHAPTER IV

When he let himself go, Wallace Withers was an eloquent man. He loved to hear his own voice editorializing, expounding opinions, setting the world right.

Now he walked up and down his sitting-room, talking as he had not talked in months, his rough hair standing away from his temples, a fresh coming and going on his watery neck.

This young fellow, Daniels, from the Morgan mill, was a flattering auditor. Middle-age is always a trifle fussed and important when youth condescends to listen. Withers was painting a picture of the pulp business—of the Morgan pulp business, as he averred it could be.

Bigger than any of them, tied in with the big Canadian mills, stacks and vats in batteries, timber rolling in, brown pulp going out by the trainload instead of a single car now and then.

"Dave Morgan was Scotch," he said. "The Scotch build well, but have no foresight or imagination. They want security and they sacrifice other things for it. They let the Irish go prowling around late all the new places, killing off the Injuns, and then along came your Scotchman with a wagonload of goods, for sale, and he took up all the good half-sections. Then they married all the good-looking daughters of the Irish and tamed them down to raise sons to fit this country."

"Maybe they married the Irish girls because, secretly, they wanted to hear somebody laugh," Daniels contributed with a grin.

"Maybe so. Maybe that's why Dave Morgan married Virgie. Virgie was a handsome woman when she was young. She's not bad looking now."

"Rather a fine-looking woman now," agreed young Daniels.

"But darned impractical," declared his host. "Business is getting better fast—but she ain't going to catch up with it."

"Because she turns out a hand-craft product in a machine age," stated Stanley Daniels, much pleased with himself.

"You're kind of smart, ain't you?" Wallace Withers relaxed his long jaw. "I reckon you must have collected some ideas about making pulp at a profit?" He sat down, laid his long yellow fingers together,

"If that's my poplar them bankers better keep off my place."

draw his upper lip far down, giving his face a little the look of the skull beneath it.

Daniels laughed a trifle nervously. This old geezer had something funny on his mind, obviously; his dry old eyes were full of sly secrets, his knuckles flexed with an involuntary, crushing movement.

"Well, any young man hates to see a business dragging," he said, choosing his words carefully. "Especially when he sees that that business is standing on its own foot, making its own troubles. That's what's wrong with the world now, Mr. Withers—the young people have the ideas and the ambition and the vision and courage—recklessness, I suppose you would call it—and people your age have all the power and all the money."

"Some people," Withers said, "would call you a young fool. But I don't. I'm a thinking man. Personally, I'd like to see what you'd do—running the Morgan mill."

Daniels laughed. "That," he said, "would be a grand idea—but just about as hopeless as most grand ideas. Mrs. Morgan isn't going to surrender the control of that mill to anybody."

Withers did not answer for a moment. The stove clinked, a mouse crept out from beneath an old organ, gave a bright-eyed, terrified look about, scurried back again.

"Virgie Morgan don't own all the stock in that mill," he said, looking straight ahead. "There's some of it loose—and a lot of things could happen. Things might happen so that more of it could be had. She ain't got any considerable reserve, I know that. I know how she's fixed. If trouble was to happen in the mill or orders fell off, she'd be hard put to raise the money to carry on."

Stanley Daniels felt a sudden surge of wry distaste. His tongue tasted of copper, his ears buzzed faintly. So this old dick had ideas in his ratty brain, did he? Trick stuff, likely. He had suspected it.

Let him pull his own potatoes out of the fire, then. Daniels felt very noble and superior as he stood up, pulled down his coat.

"Well, this has been very pleasant, Mr. Withers. But I'm a working man, I'd better say good night."

Withers collected his limbs and scrambled out of the chair.

"But wait a minute—you ain't going to walk? I was figuring on taking you back—car's standing outside."

"I think I'd like the walk," Daniels was smooth, impersonal, inscrutable. "Need the exercise."

"Thunder—it's most five miles. I'll run you down to the main road anyway. You can walk from there if you're itching for air."

"Air—that was what Stanley Daniels felt the need for. His overcoat on, his hatrim snapped down, the door open, he felt honest again. He had had a hunch all along that this dry-eyed old guy was figuring on using him somehow. What made him hasten to be out in the wholesome air again was the awareness that he had been ready to hear Withers' schemes.

He had no inner hypocrisy. He knew that no loyalty would ever blind him to his own advantage. But he did not like being maneuvered, so he sat a little stiffly and replied in polite monosyllables to Withers' remarks, as they drove the rutty road to the highway.

He walked rapidly till he reached the outskirts of the village, his nostrils stinging in the frosty air. The town lay on a slope where the river widened, and as Daniels approached it the linked lights made it look like some jeweled ornament on the breast of the mountain.

He would go down to the mill, he decided. The air was keen and he should be certain that his tests were all right. A freeze would ruin several days' work.

At the mill he moved in authority and this pleased his young vanity. The men he spoke to had to listen. The forms that went out of his laboratory were commands; on them depended the quality of the Morgan pulp.

Only a few men were at the mill—the few who tended the processes that went on night and day. Daniels unlocked his laboratory, a tacked-on structure half brick, half wood, sheeted with metal. He snapped on the light, unlocked the cupboard where he kept his apparatus. His test-tubes, he saw, were all in good order, the thermometer stood at a safe temperature, and the rusty steam-pipe running along the wall was warm.

He put out the light again, locked the place. Then he saw that a light was burning in the office. It was after ten. Mrs. Morgan must be there. Lucy would not come down at night alone. She never came at night.

He stepped up to the office window and saw that the person inside was old Tom Pruitt.

Pruitt's status at the mill had always puzzled young Daniels. He knew that Pruitt had worked there since the plant was built, that he was always carrying messages from Virgie Morgan, giving orders that she initiated, yet he had apparently no definite position and no authority.

Daniels opened the office door. "Hello, Tom," he said, "anything wrong?"

Tom Pruitt looked up from Virgie's desk, where was spread out a loose array of legal-looking papers. He looked baffled, his hair was standing up, but he grinned at Daniels. "Nope—nothing special. I'm studying out this here. Never did see such fine printing nor so much writing that didn't make head nor tail. You know anything about this here business?"

"Let's look at it." Stanley Daniels slid out of his overcoat.

"You gotta know something about law, I reckon." Tom got up gratefully, surrendered his chair. "I've kept shy of the law for 50 years but now it looks like it caught up with me at last. I own stuff and I don't own it. Take a look at all them and see what you make out of it. I've done give up."

Daniels sat down at the desk briskly and unfolded one document after another, read them through, with Tom looking over his shoulder, his amazement growing.

"How about these contracts, Pruitt? They paid you, did they?"

"Not since '20, they didn't. They didn't pay in five years, nor in seven neither. They ain't paid nothing since that paper was wrote."

"You should file suit then—get your land back."

"Yeah—he said that, too—Miss Morgan. She said I'd ought to go to law. She wants me to hire that feller Willis Pratt. I was just studying about it. Pratt will want a lot of money for nothing, I reckon—them lawyers always do."

"But—that land must have been worth money. How much have you got, anyway?"

"Upwards of a thousand acres—mountain land. Never could raise nothing on it."

"And these"—Daniels snapped a rubber band about the thick bundle of certificates—"ought to be in a safety deposit box in the bank. I didn't know you owned this big block of stock in the mill. You're a rich man, Pruitt—I'm glad I know you."

"Rich? Me?" Old Tom rubbed his ear. "I just got me a piece of this mill, that's all. Dave Morgan and me worked mighty hard to keep this mill going—and I been workin' harder since Dave died. No, I ain't rich. I got no wish to be rich."

"Ever draw any dividends on this stock? Any money for your piece of the mill?"

Tom shook his head. "We agreed not to take out nothing, Miss Morgan and me. We pay ourselves off every pay-day, just wages. I got all I need. It takes the rest to keep them presses rolling and the hands working. We're both satisfied."

"But you ought to get that land back. You ought to file a claim, right away."

"Yeah—I reckon so. Reckon I'll have to get me a lawyer though I sure do hate to pay out money to that Willis Pratt."

"You could sell some of your stock, if you need money. That stuff is as good as cash, you know."

SPECIAL DELIVERY (A CHRISTMAS STORY)

By Roger Wheeler

EDITH'S drab room overlooked a snow-covered roof. Not the clean, cheery snow like they had back home on the farm but a murky gray covering on which rested the soot of a thousand city chimneys.

"So this is Christmas," she moaned, leaving her chair to pace the floor. "Oh! What I'd give to be back home tomorrow!"

But then, Edith had two Christmas presents to which she could look forward. Today, Christmas eve, the mailman MUST bring her annual package from home. And tomorrow there would be Christmas dinner with Ken—dear Ken who was working so hard these days that he could hardly take time off to think about Christmas.

Edith heard the bell ring downstairs and she skipped to her door, opening it softly and waiting tensely while the old landlady answered.

Yes, it was the mailman! And then came the shrill cry: "Miss Harris! Mail for you!"

Edith practically leaped downstairs, for there would be her package from home. Then her heart sank, for the landlady handed her only two letters, a greeting card from her friend Margie and (of all things at Christmas!) a bill from the department store.

Edith climbed sorrowfully back to her room and wept. Something was wrong, for Mother and Dad never forgot her at Christmas. She cried apocryphically the rest of the day, while downstairs she heard the other roomers shouting Christmas greetings as they arrived and departed.

But finally Edith consoled herself, for she could still look forward to Christmas dinner with Ken tomorrow!

He was due at two o'clock that day, and after church Edith hurried home to get ready. At 1:30 she was seated restlessly awaiting the doorbell.

She was still waiting at 2:30, for Ken did not arrive. And Edith was getting hungry.

Three o'clock passed, and Edith frowned.

"What could have happened to him?" she asked herself.

At four o'clock she cried. It was too much! First her family had forgotten, and now Ken had chosen Christmas day to tell her in this painful fashion that he didn't care!

At 5 p. m. misery began mingling with the pangs of hunger. Edith put on her coat and started to the corner restaurant. But she never got past the door. There she ran into a breathless Ken.

"Edith, dear!" he cried. "Sorry to be so late, but I knew you'd understand when you got my note."

"But—" Edith was confused, "I didn't receive any note, Ken."

"What? But I sent a special delivery message when the boss asked me to finish that laboratory experiment this afternoon. What happened to it?"

The blundering old landlady answered him.

"Please come in or go out, and close the door," she barked from the hall. Then—

"Incidentally, Miss Harris, I forgot to give you these things. They arrived this afternoon."

She handed Edith the missing special delivery letter—and a huge package from home! Edith tore into the Christmas box and found a note from Mother. They'd had a blizzard; couldn't get to town; she hoped Edith would get the package Christmas day.

A few minutes later a happy Edith sat across the table from her Ken in the little restaurant around the corner.

"And now, dear," he began very carefully. "How about your Christmas present for me?"

"But I gave you the fountain pen, Ken," she protested.

"Yes, silly one, and I appreciated it. But if you want to make me still happier, listen to this. The boss came in tonight and said I'd done such a fine job on that research project that he was raising my salary. Know what that means?"

"Not the faintest idea," Edith lied. For, after all, you can't take the words out of a man's mouth when he's about to propose!

The Better Way to Correct Constipation

One way to treat constipation is to endure it first and "cure" it afterward. The other way is to avoid having it by getting at its cause. So why not save yourself those dull-headachy days, plus the inevitable trips to the medicine chest, if you can do it by a simple common-sense "ounce of prevention"?

If you're troubled, like that of millions, is due to lack of "bulk" in the diet, "the better way" is to eat Kellogg's All-Bran. This crunchy, toasted, ready-to-eat cereal has just the "bulk" you need. If you eat it regularly—and drink plenty of water—you can not only get regular but keep regular, day after day and month after month! All-Bran is made by Kellogg's in Battle Creek. ### Food Stamp Plan Opens Wednesday

Last Wednesday 16,488 public assistance persons in Chaves, Curry, De Baca, Eddy, Guadalupe, Lea, Lincoln, Otero, and Roosevelt counties came under the provisions of the Food Stamp Plan.

Inauguration of the plan follows a month of preparatory work in which county commissioners, state and county welfare departments, various business groups, farmers, wholesale and retailer food trades, WPA, and the U. S. Department of Agriculture all cooperated to have the plan in effect on this date.

NYA Boys Camp to be Increased From 50 to 100

Fifty additional young men will soon be assigned to the NYA Boy's Resident Project in Portales, according to Oather Morper Area Youth Personnel Supervisor.

The principal work activity to be carried out will center around the completion of the dormitory buildings on the campus of the Eastern New Mexico College which were begun during previous session of the project.

All applicable phases of related training in building construction will be offered to youth employees, as well as instruction and experience in group living, hygiene and health, woodworking, and agriculture.

Applicants of any educational level may be considered, although the available educational program offers particular advantages to two classes of youth--those who have graduated from high school. The first group will be permitted to attend the Portales High School for credit, and the latter may be enrolled in the Eastern New Mexico College.

Resident youth employees will be employed on a thirty-day basis and will receive a monthly salary of $25. A subsistence deduction of $15 per month will be made for board, room, work clothing, transportation, and other items furnished to each enrollee.

Interested youth, who meet the requirements of being unmarried citizens, not taking 3/4 of a regular school load, and 17 to 24 years of age inclusive, should make immediate application to Mr. Morper, box 448 Carlsbad, N. M.

NOTICE

Mr. S. P. Vidal, Collector of Internal Revenue for the District of New Mexico, urges all individuals who are liable for the filing of income tax returns to avail themselves of the assistance of the internal Revenue employees immediately after the first of January, 1941.

In view of the thousands of additional taxpayers, brought about by the fact that the first Revenue Act of 1940 gives an exemption of only $800.00 to single men and $2,000.00 to married men, the local office anticipates a great rush of taxpayers prior to the final date, which is March 15th.

Taxpapers will not have to wait in line if they file early. Space in the Federal Building, temporarily leased to other government departments, is being returned to the Bureau of Internal Revenue and an increased force will be on hand to be of assistance to taxpayers, many of whom will be filing for the first time and will, therefore, need help.

Communiques

Toss the German, Italian, Greek and English communiques into a pot of boiling water, stir for two hours, add the salt and then strain through a cane-bottomed chair. Take out the big lumps and set on the window sill to cool over night. In the morning you will have an entire new set of communiques and you can throw the old stuff away.--Arthur "Bug" Baer.

In a thrilling and dramatic story, an American engineer tells how Communism has degraded Russian womanhood, and how he found himself in a worker's hell instead of the workers' paradise he had expected. ### Small Town . . . Big Job for U. S.

When most of us think of the great task involved in the carrying out of our gigantic defense program, we visualize belching furnaces and great shipyards where little men labor like ants to turn out big battle wagons. But we think of all these things as being in great cities like Chicago, Detroit, New York. However, vital jobs can be done outside of big industrial centers, as for example, Hagerstown, Md., one of the smallest industrial centers in the United States. Situated in the heart of the Maryland farming region, Hagerstown boasts an airplane factory that is turning out three planes a day for the fighting forces of Uncle Sam. It is the Fairchild Aircraft factory, makers of the training plane that bears the company name. This series of photos takes you through the plant.

ASSEMBLY . . . In this department of the Hagerstown plant of the Fairchild company the motors are installed in plane fuselages. Then the assembled ship is towed to Hagerstown airport where test pilots take the ships into the air before the planes are turned over to army fliers.

MAKING IT STICK . . . Craftsman J. E. Clopper is engaged in welding the hollow piping used to shape the framework of an airplane. The piping is of aluminum alloy and each piece must be welded to its mate with the greatest care to withstand flight strain.

A BORN RIBBER . . . Ribbing is the assembling of the framework of the wings. Vada E. Seibert is engaged in that task here. The wings of the plane are covered with plywood after this job is completed.

BRAIN DEPT. . . . Before you can start to build an airplane there are scores of things you must know about aero dynamics. Here are two project engineers dopping out stress weights, etc.

DEBUT . . . The men who take all army planes made in Hagerstown for their first trip are shown here in a brand-new ship. In the cockpit is Capt. C. W. O'Connor, U. S. A., army test pilot; chatting with him is Dick Henson, Fairchild's own test pilot. Henson has already flown the ship and passes it on to Capt. O'Connor to make his own test.

A Fairchild plane, trim as a humming bird, makes its bow to the world.

People Hurt Themselves the Hard Way During Most Unusual Accidents of 1940

By PAUL JONES
(Released by Western Newspaper Union.)
CHICAGO.—Each year a surprising number of people discover new and novel ways of getting hurt. And the results are positively startling.

A man in Chicago, for example, is bitten by his own false teeth. A steel executive in Colorado rides out of his office on the cowcatcher of a locomotive.

Some of these odd accidents are amusing. Others are tragic. Put them all together and you find that Fate, the master showman, again has produced a literal hit parade of the year—the Oddities of 1940.

So, without further ado, on with the show!
Chief Clerk John Donnelly of the Cleveland Municipal court is quite a reader and frequently has his nose in a book. But one March day this year he had his nose in book ends—and it wasn't comfortable.

Mr. Donnelly was moving several books, in book ends, from one table to another. The books began to sily, and he tried to push them back between the book ends with his pin. But the books fell anyway, and the book ends came plopping together with Mr. Donnelly's nose between them. It was well red.

Louis Durdy of Pana, Ill., can understand now why the man in the Bible had so much trouble finding a good Samaritan. Smelling smoke one November afternoon, Mr. Durdy dashed into a nearby hotel room and rescued a sleeping guest from a flaming mattress. Firemen came and tossed it out the window. It landed on an automobile parked outside the hotel.

Yes, it was Mr. Durdy's auto. The auto was burned up, and so was Mr. Durdy—plenty!

Joseph Callahan of Chicago always had taken good care of his false teeth and, so far as he knew, they had no reason to dislike him. But one day as he dozed, he slipped off his chair. His teeth fell out and landed tooth-side up on the floor. Mr. Callahan's forehead struck them and they gave him a vicious bite.

Mr. Jay J. Martin, of Pueblo, Colo., is ready to believe that almost anything can happen in the steel business. Mr. Martin, a steel company executive, was seated at his desk one day, intending to stay there a while, when the next thing he knew, what was he doing but riding out of his office on the cowcatcher of a full-loaded locomotive!

At the end of his journey, which took him through a partition or so, Mr. Martin, understandably travel stained, learned that what had happened was that the locomotive had jumped the track just outside his office and had come on in through the wall. Mr. Martin didn't take the same train back.

Drinks Brake Fluid.

Bill Hiltbrand, of Springfield, Mo., knows now just how a hydraulic brake feels. He was drinking a bottle of soda pop in a filling station and discussing politics with a friend. Engrossed, he picked up a bottle and took a big swig. It wasn't the right bottle, and it wasn't even pop. It was brake fluid! The results weren't serious, however, for,

Only a bumper guard prevented this automobile from plunging into Lake Michigan after it skidded out of control on an icy pavement. The driver escaped with a ducking. Some of the many other freak accidents of 1940 described in the story below are illustrated above.

as you might expect, Mr. Hiltbrand was able to stop quickly.

Ever so often, it seems, some poor soul has to have his pants jerked off in public by an automobile. This year's victim of Fate's perennial gag was Mr. Giovanni-Evangellati, of Rochester, N. Y.

Mr. E. was waiting, believe it or not, for a street car in the crowded downtown district when the door handle of a passing automobile caught the Evangellati trousers and neatly swooshed them off. The apologetic driver rushed Mr. E. home for replacements.

Calf Lassoes Man.

When a calf lassoes a man—that's noooel! The man, Edward Acree, was walking along a road near Brazil, Ind., when the man-puncher calf broke loose from its tethering stake and dashed across the highway, its chain swinging. Mr. Acree complains that the next thing he knew the calf had lassoed him with the chain.

Bob Forde, strolling along in Marysville, Calif., wondered why the two men approaching him were walking so far apart. It wasn't neighborly. Mr. Forde decided to go between them. By the time he discovered they were carrying a big sheet of window glass, it was too late. Mr. Forde describes the experience as painful.

Walter Bell, a rural mail carrier of Harlan, Iowa, has heard of people fighting buzz saws, and he believes he can appreciate what they are up against. On a warm day this summer Mr. Bell plugged a six-volt fan into an 110-volt socket. The fan, the sissy, couldn't take it and leaped whirling toward Mr. Bell like an airplane. He raised his arm to stop it. Result: 35 stitches.

Infates Arm.

Elmer Mahnke is one of the people who fear quick inflation. This perhaps is understandable in view of an experience Mr. Mahnke had this year.

Mr. Mahnke is a filling station man at Racine, Wis., and part of his job, of course, is to blow up footballs and basketballs for small boys in the neighborhood. On the occasion to which we refer the air needle not only pierced a basketball, but Mr. Mahnke's arm. The first thing he knew his arm was bigger than Popeye's.

Never have more things happened to the Kaczynski family, of the Pittsburgh Kaczynskis, than on a cold day last winter.

First, six-year-old Frank Kaczynski grabbed a charged wire and couldn't let go. Then his brother Walter, eight, grabbed Frank, and he couldn't let go. Then sister Anna, 17, heard about it and dashed for the scene, just in time to see her sister, Frances, 14, get struck by a car. As Anna ran to help Frances, a big dog ran up and bit Anna.

The commotion attracted brother John Kaczynski, 24. John chased the dog away and, a few minutes later the Kaczynskis began pouring into the hospital.

Frank and Walter were treated for burns, Frances for cuts and bruises and Anna for dog bite. The police sergeant who wrote it all up for the records was treated for writer's cramp and fervently hopes that if it all ever happens again, it will happen to Smiths.

In Chicago a dignified old gentleman was standing on a safety island, waiting for a street car and having no intention whatsoever of taking a taxicab. But he did. For as a passing taxi swerved sharply to miss another car, the back door flew open. It scooped up the nice old gentleman and deposited him gently on the floor of the cab, all set for a ride.

As Ralph Lyman of Clarinda, Iowa, hurried to answer the phone he slipped and fell, but crawled painfully on to hear a voice say, "This is Doctor Burnett. Can you come right over and look at my furnace? It's broken."

"You'd better come right over and look at my leg first," replied Lyman. "It's broken, too."

And it was!
Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. Mann of Indianapolis weren't expecting anyone to drop in on them that day last winter. But 22 students of Indiana university did—in a BUZZ! Mr. Mann was that surprised he thought it was an earthquake shaking the house. But Mrs. Mann wasn't so sure, and when she investigated she found a big bus poking its nose through the basement wall. The bus was taking the students back to school from a vacation and the driver had swerved to miss an auto.

Herbert Greenwald of Berwyn, Ill., is a meticulous golfer and always tries to have his eye on the ball. But one day in October Mr. Greenwald switched the formula and had the ball on his eye.

Swinging lustily in the rough, Mr. Greenwald struck the ball squarely. It hit a nearby stone concealed in the grass, ricocheted straight upward and broke Mr. Greenwald's glasses into bits. The unhappy golfer not only was cut about the face, but he lost a stroke—and it was match play!

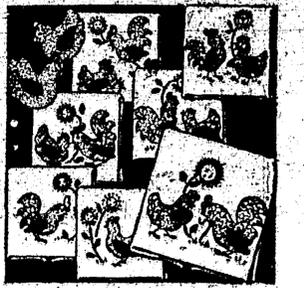

Mr. Olen Deatherage of Springfield, Ill., knew that some women drivers can make an automobile do some mighty funny things. But she never dreamed she could run over herself, until she did it. Her car spun around after a collision, throwing her out the right hand door. Her body hit the gear lever and shoved the gear from low to reverse. As she fell from the car it backed up over her.

Yes, in these days anything can happen—and does!

Many a pedestrian has been struck by a hit and run driver. But to Mrs. Anna Martinelli of Johnston, R. I., goes the distinction of being the victim of a hit and run dog which itself was the victim of a hit and run driver. The driver hit the dog and fed. The dog hit Mrs. Martinelli and fed. Mrs. Martinelli did not flee. She had been knocked unconscious by the dog. Her injuries were not serious.

There are but a smattering of the many freak accidents of 1940 recorded in the files of the National Safety Council in Chicago.

Warfare Becomes an Art

The technique of marksmanship is being developed to a fine art by the U. S. army. You would have to get close to the machine-gun nest above before you could identify it for the death trap that it is, and then your identification would come too late. These soldiers are shown practicing at Fort Belvoir, Va.

Americans Spent More, Earned More Last Year
MINNEAPOLIS.—Americans are going places and doing things with their rearmament prosperity; during 1940 they bought a billion gallons more gasoline, 600,000 more automobiles, 25 per cent more entertainment, 13,000,000 gallons more liquor, and 2,000,000,000 more cigarettes than by this time last year, according to a buying summary made by Northwestern National Life Insurance company. Private sale of guns and firearms also increased. Soft drink manufacturers report new sales records; candy sales are up, the report goes on. Out of more pay envelopes and fatter pay envelopes the public bought 25 per cent more theater tickets and admissions to other amusements. It purchased 25 per cent more radios and radio equipment; the boom in sales of this last named item can probably be partially credited to interest in war news and in the political campaign just finished, the report comments.

IT COMES UPON THE MIDNIGHT CLEAR...
MERRY CHRISTMAS AND A CUP OF CHEER!
(See Recipes Below)

'Tis the night before Christmas and all through the house everybody's stirring except the wee people who are wandering in dreamland with Santa Claus. The little stockings have been filled to bursting, the last package has been tied up in tissue and ribbon, the Christmas angel has taken the tree under the shadow of its wings... and everybody's hungry!

So... when it comes upon the midnight clear—that glorious song of old—the family wish each other Merry Christmas and gather round the buffet table for a snack and a cup of cheer.

The bill of fare, on such an occasion, is as simple as the way it's served; a platter of cold meats, served with hot chili sauce; soft rolls or French bread or perhaps melba toast; and cookies for the sweet tooth are the perfect accompaniment to hot tea which quickens the Christmas spirit.

Or perhaps you'd like to serve bowls of creamy, old-fashioned oyster stew, with toasted hard rolls, a green salad if you like, and for desert doughnuts with hot, spicy apple sauce.

Oyster Stew
(Serves 6 to 8)
1 quart oysters
1/2 cup butter
2 quarts rich milk
Salt and pepper to taste
Place oysters, strained oyster liquor, and butter in a saucepan and cook gently until edges of oysters begin to curl. Heat milk in a separate saucepan at the same time. (Caution: Milk should be thoroughly heated, but should not boil.) Add oysters to milk and season to taste. Serve immediately.

Straw Chocolate Cake
(Makes 1 8-inch square cake)
1 egg (unbeaten)
1/2 cup cocoa
1/2 cup shortening
1 1/2 cups flour
1/2 cup sour milk
1 teaspoon soda
1 teaspoon vanilla
1/2 cup hot water
1 cup sugar
1/2 teaspoon salt

Put ingredients in mixing bowl in order given. Stir or beat until the batter is smooth. Pour into greased cake pan 8 by 8 by 2 inches square. Bake in a moderately slow oven (325 degrees) for about 50 minutes.

Boiled Icing
2 1/2 cups sugar
1/2 cup light corn syrup
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 cup water
2 egg whites (well beaten)
1 teaspoon vanilla extract
Place sugar, corn syrup, salt and water together in a saucepan and cook to the firm ball stage (250 degrees). Pour the hot syrup slowly into the well-beaten egg whites, beating constantly. Add vanilla extract and continue beating until the frosting will hold its shape when tossed over the back of a spoon. Should the icing become too stiff to manipulate easily, a very small amount of hot water may be added, or the icing may be reworked in the top of a double boiler. Spread on cake in swirls.

Buttermilk Rolls
(Makes 2 dozen)
1 cake yeast
2 cups buttermilk (scalded and cooled)
2 tablespoons sugar
1 teaspoon salt
1/4 teaspoon soda
4 cups flour
2 tablespoons shortening (melted)
Soften yeast in buttermilk which has been scalded and cooled to lukewarm. Add sugar, salt, and soda to the rest of the buttermilk. Add softened yeast and half of the flour. Beat until the batter is smooth and full of bubbles. Beat in fat and remaining flour, mixing until dough forms a ball. Turn onto a well-

Feeding Father.
For the married folk who like to remember with an inexpensive Christmas gift, or for clever party favors, how about a copy of Eleanor Howe's cookbook "Feeding Father"? You'll find in it the recipes for the foods that men like best, tested recipes, too, for foods like Old Fashioned Navy Bean Soup, Baked Onions, Stuffed Pork Chops and Chocolate Cream Pie!

To get your copy of this clever book, send 10 cents in coin to "Feeding Father," care of Eleanor Howe, 919 North Michigan Avenue, Chicago, Illinois.

Floured board (using 1/2 cup flour) and knead until the dough is smooth and elastic. Roll out to 1/2-inch thickness. Cut into rounds and place 1/2-inch apart on greased baking sheet. Brush with melted butter, and let rise in a warm place until double in bulk (about 1 hour). Bake in a hot oven (425 degrees) for 15 to 20 minutes.

Deviled Eggs
6 hard cooked eggs
5 tablespoons mayonnaise-type salad dressing
2 teaspoons onion (minced)
1/2 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon prepared mustard
Tabasco sauce
1 tablespoon pickle (minced)

Cut hard cooked eggs in half lengthwise. Remove yolks and force through sieve. Add remaining ingredients and mix well, using additional salad dressing if desired. Refill whites with yolk mixture. Chill. Sprinkle with paprika or minced chives.

Spley Apple Sauce
(Serves 6)
8 medium-sized tart apples
Water
1 cup sugar
1/2 teaspoon cinnamon
1/2 teaspoon nutmeg

Wash, quarter, and core apples. Place in saucepan with just enough water to cover. Add sugar and spices, cover, and cook over low heat for about 10 minutes. Rub through coarse strainer. Serve hot.

Sour Cream Doughnuts
(Makes 3 dozen)
2 eggs
1/2 cup sugar
1 cup thick sour cream
3 cups flour
1 teaspoon nutmeg
1/2 teaspoon soda
1 1/2 teaspoons baking powder
1/2 teaspoon salt

Beat eggs until thick and light; add sugar and sour cream. Beat well. Sift remaining 5 dry ingredients together. Add to first mixture to make a soft dough. More flour may be needed if dough is very sticky and is to be rolled and cut immediately. If not used at once, chill overnight or several hours. Roll out dough, small portions at a time, 1/4 inch thick, using as little flour on board as possible. Cut with floured cutter. Preheat enough frying fat to 375 degrees Fahrenheit. Fry a few doughnuts at a time, turning them only once. When browned on both sides, remove from fat and drain on soft, absorbent paper. When cold, sprinkle with powdered sugar, if desired.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS
If your kitchen storage space is limited, make filelike shelves in a lower cupboard and use them for storing lids, pie and cake pans and other flat utensils. This will be a time saver.
Hard-cooked eggs will peel easily if, as soon as they are cooked, their shells are cracked slightly and the eggs are dropped into cold water for five minutes. The eggs may then be chilled and used.

Modern Women Are Adopting Home Sewing as Their Hobby

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

ARE you among the thousands of enthusiastic women who have taken up home sewing as a hobby? Not only is this a fascinating pastime but it has been proven that the "make your own" venture is a profitable and gratifying one. It yields big dividends in style, quality, and money saving, and gives a feeling of general satisfaction in the matter of self expression and accomplishment.

One of the chief rewards home-sewing offers is that the money saved "in the making" enables one to buy the best in materials. Women who make their own pretty frocks and blouses rejoice because they can afford to be "choosy" about the materials they use. Perhaps no other argument is so frequently stressed as this: "Making my own clothes, I can afford the best of materials." Even if you are a beginner, you'll find it easy to reproduce smart couture touches in your wardrobe with the aid of modern equipment. The tucks, gatherings, and darts that distinguish current fashions are within easy reach of amateur sewers. Modern sewing machine attachments have put all these dressmaker details at command of the most untutored novice. Even if you have never sewn a stitch you can learn to do a professional job by spending a few afternoons in the sewing center in your community.

The illustration presents several easy-to-make models. The daring charm of the gown shown to the left belies the simplicity with which it is made. The pattern is delightfully free from complications and your sewing machine will whiz up the seams in the gored skirt in a jiffy. It's a trick at all to make the occasional joinings of the midriff and bodice with flat seams that flatter

The rustling romantic evening gown of moonbeam blue rayon mofre centered in the group is a good style for beginners to undertake. Should you possibly encounter a puzzling move, a few hours spent at the sewing center will clear the way that leads to a professional looking job.

When it comes to a glamorous evening dress that's easy to sew, the model of printed crepe to the right is just that. The hood adds an air of mystery. When you don't want it to shelter your curls you will find that it folds into a lovely soft collar. It is one of the noted cover-up dinner frock types that are definitely high style this winter. Its fashion points are legion. The long bishop sleeves and the cummerbund that hugs your waistline all bespeak outstanding style details. The waist and skirt are separate, so repeat your costume in various combinations, and change about.

Perhaps the most fun and satisfaction of all lies in making up a wardrobe of pretty house frocks of lovely wash materials. You will find the day-long dress in the inset gives you a grand start in sewing. Fitted and flared with touches of white lace ruffles at neckline and sleeves, this type frock is ever so flattering. Use the ruffler attachment to your machine for the befrilled neckline. The little hemstitcher gadget will achieve picoted silts for the ribbon-run beading at the neckline.

Pastel plaids and vividly striped taffetas are ideal materials for evening wear. For daytime wear there are exciting new clan plaids, gay corduroys, Jersey of sleek rayon weave or warm "comfy" wool-type. A fashion "must" is the dress of spun rayon or sheer wool in pastel shade made classically simple, depending on effective jewelry and colorful accessories for "last word" chic.

HOUSEHOLD QUESTIONS

Airtight boxes or jars make handy containers for keeping cookies fresh. And waxed paper between the layers of cookies keeps them from sticking together.

Don't let any cabbage stamps remain over winter. They harbor pests.

Use needles to pin down the pleats when pressing a pleated skirt. The needles will leave no marks when you remove them.

Layer cakes with soft fillings will not become soggy if a thin icing made with confectioner's sugar is put on and let harden, before spreading the filling.

Penwiper Felts

The new penwiper felt hats are especially designed for young girls. They are offered in all bright colors from which can be chosen the correct personalized color according to the birth date of the wearer. The jaunty quill is in reality a quill pen and cleverly concealed in the perky bows at the back is a pencil. With one of these hats on your head it's easy to get autographs at unexpected moments. The teen-age adore these novel hats.

Lace Yokes
Nowadays the big idea is the simple frock that takes on glamorous accessories. A striking reaction to this trend is found in separate yokes, bibs and revers that sparkle with glittering beadwork.

Winter Housecoat

Gains in Elegance
New fashions for leisure hours are, many of them, as elaborate as your favorite evening dress. They are designed with sweeping skirts, slim waists and gleaming metal embroidery. Even when your budget is limited, it is possible to choose a housecoat or lounging robe that has fashion significance.
The trend toward slim skirts has had small influence in this group and skirts are as wide as they have ever been. Newness is seen in the colors, the fabrics and the trimming details.
The vogue for spotted furs has brought lounging robes with spotted trimming. The covered-up look inspires long, full sleeves and high necks, as well as skirts snugly fastened with slide fasteners from neck to knee.
Fabric run the gamut from printed cottons to deep-pile velvets and soft wools. Printed satins and printed wool-jerseys are some of the newest.

Single Piece of Jewelry

Gains New Importance
Each season there are certain outstanding fashion gestures that become increasingly and conspicuously important as the season advances. One such is the matter of wearing a single gorgeous glittering clip or brooch pinned to the bodice of your classic simple daytime frock. Flower sprays and exotic birds are favored motifs. These are done in colorful glittering stones or sparkling rhinestones and to say they are dazzling mildly expresses it.

Influenza Threatens

Washington, D. C.—The Pacific Coast influenza epidemic, now spreading eastward, can be expected to last through the winter months, according to Dr. Williams DeKleine, national medical director of the American Red Cross.

"Fortunately the current siege of influenza apparently is not of the virulent type, yet it will keep thousands from their work and classrooms," he said. "The greatest threat lies in the complications which may follow the illness. Persons of low resistance suffering from influenza are easy prey for a pneumonia germ."

Dr. DeKleine pointed out that hundreds of thousands who died in the world-wide 'flu epidemic of 1918 did not die of influenza but of pneumonia which followed. No instances of epidemic influenza have not been followed with an increasing number of pneumonia cases.

Observing general health rules is the best method of developing resistance against 'flu, Dr. DeKleine stresses. When influenza is prevalent the first sniffle of a common cold should serve as a warning. If the body temperature is above normal, the victim should immediately consult a physician and go to bed. Serious consequences can be the result of neglect, even for a few hours.

To those who will be exposed to the flu germ this winter, Dr. DeKleine gives the following advice: "Nothing is more important than dietary habits in building up resistance to respiratory ailments. Elements contained in food provide materials with which the body builds its defenses. Proteins, vitamins, minerals and other elements are translated into specific resistances. Milk, vegetables, cereals and fruits are rich in protective value.

"Equally important is outdoor exercise. Get into the open as much as possible. Proper sleep is vitally essential. Insufficient sleep is one of the greatest factors in breaking down resistance to respiratory diseases. Defenses built up by other hygienic habits can be torn down through lack of rest.

EDITORIAL

According to the Los Angeles Examiner Hiltner owns 14 sections of land in Colorado. We are in favor of taking these German sailors away from Fort Stanton and putting them on Hiltner's land, and then building a wall around it too high to be scaled.

The state of Texas refused to give them a haven of refuge, Albuquerque would not permit them to stay there; Santa Fe said "no" emphatically, but they send them here; we will be gracious hosts and permit them to oust the CCC boys from their comfortable quarters and not even lift a finger; we are easy marks.

And besides we are not any more worn out with German propaganda than we are with the British brand that is handed us all day long over the radio. If we knew the British were sincerely grateful it would be different. But we doubt if they really are.
