Former Citizens Visit

Mrs. Joseph De Meke of Chicago, Ill., was a visitor in Carrizozo and White Oaks last weekend, looking over the old stamping ground of her father Robert H. Young and of her grand-father G. R. Young who lived in White Oaks in 1880, and was one of the first settlers there. G. R. (Dick) Young was a partner and also a brother-in-law of Mr. Taliaferro and assisted in running the General Merchandise store of Taliaferro & Young, at White Oaks, the building is still standing with the merchandise sign which time and weather have not erased. Mrs. De Meke's grandfather had played social games of cards with Billy the Kid back in the '80s. Her father attended the New Mexico Military Academy, which was the foundation for the present fine Military school at Roswell. Mrs. De Meke accompanied her mother, Mrs. Robert H. Young and her brother, Robert H., this far on their return trip from Chicago to Santa Cruz, California. They proceeded to California from here, while she returned to Chicago. They enjoyed reminiscences with Dr. Padon and Judge Hudspeth.

4-H GIRLS' NEW SLOGAN

Mothers, aunts and grandmothers— all remember the adage about a stitch at the right time. Well, it's gone modern and this is the new version: "Sew, chochet and knit to look one's best—and fit." And that is what the 4-H Club girls in this state will be doing in a brand new activity—the National 4-H Clothing Achievement competition, to be directed by the extension service.

The new program promises to keep the girls keyed up with high interest, as it teaches them to coordinate skill and art in designing, cutting and sewing garments through use of the very latest practices. It also helps them to dress appropriately and healthfully within the family budget, and to encourage making wearing apparel by crocheting, KNIT-ON GENERATOR

HOSPITAL CORPSMEN U. S. NAVY

Hospital corpsmen who are enlisted men of the regular navy are employed at U. S. Naval Hospitals and at all naval activities, both ashore and at sea, in the capacity of male nurses. No civilian male nurses are employed in any activity of the Medical Department of the United States Navy.

Enlisted men who are applicants for duty in the Hospital Corps, U. S. Navy, must be eighteen years of age, must have completed two or more years of high school work and must be able to pass a rigid physical examination.

Accepted applicants are sent to the Hospital Corps School at Portsmouth, Virginia, and San Diego, California, where they receive four months' intensive preliminary training. An effort is made, during this period, to eliminate, either by discharge or by transfer to some other branch of the service, all men who are not adapted to the duties and responsibilities of the Hospital Corps.

The school at Portsmouth, Virginia, is attached to the Norfolk Naval Hospital and the school at San Diego, California, is attached to the U. S. Naval Hospital, San Diego, California, but no practical ward experience is given the students until after the completion of the basic course. However, practical demonstrations and practice in a nursing laboratory are included.

A general outline of the curriculum as followed at these schools is as follows:

The general course is given over a period of sixteen weeks, with the object of indoctrinating the recruit with the elements and principles of each subject together with providing an opportunity for the trainee to acquaint himself with the appearance and use of the various items of equipment, apparatus, and appliances used in hospital practice and to acquire a certain dexterity in their use.

Not much china was imported into England until about 1650, when it began to be brought in by the East Indian Trading Company. Porcelain was not made in England until almost the middle of the eighteenth century. Earthenware was manufactured earlier than the eighteenth century. Pottery was at work at Staffordshire in the seventeenth century.

Legion Commander Endorses School Program

(The following statement from Charles Morgan of Artesia, Department Commander of the American Legion was released March 12th, 1941)

"Our attention has been called to the report of a special committee of tax payers appointed by Governor John E. Miles to study the financial needs of the public schools of the State of New Mexico. This report indicates very definitely a lack of funds to maintain a full term of school during the coming year, which will also result in a reduction of teachers' salaries. We have also had an opportunity to examine the pending legislation before the Fifteenth Legislature as an outcome of the work of this Committee, which legislation proposes that funds from the Federal Land Leasing Act and the State Casual Deficit Fund be made available for the use of the public schools in meeting this apparent shortage of funds.

In keeping with the mandates of the Department convention at Santa Fe on June 22, 1940, this Department has pledged to use its efforts in a reasonable way in securing adequate educational advantages to all students of the common schools of this State. Specifically, one of the resolutions adopted at this convention was:

"All sources of revenue presently available, including the revenue derived from the Federal Land Leasing Act, be used in their entirety for common school purposes, and to carry out the necessary minimum education program."

We, therefore, urge that the State Legislature give useful consideration to the recommendations of the Governor's Taxpayers Committee, and that the Legislature made available for the use of the public schools the revenue above referred to and take other steps necessary to maintain a reasonable program of schools for the children of New Mexico.

It is hoped that the resolution arrived at by the Governor's Committee, enacted into law and properly administered, will enable the school authorities to initiate possible economics and maintain high standards of equal educational opportunities throughout the entire State of New Mexico.

Mrs. Char. Hodgins underwent a successful operation at the Turner hospital last Monday night and is recovering very nicely.

Mrs. James Farley, formerly of Carrizozo and Alamogordo, N. M. now of El Paso, Texas, visited Mrs. Carrie Ziegler and other friends this week.

Arrived Monday

Last Monday at high noon 888 German sailors detained in Carrizozo. They had been at Angel Island in San Francisco bay, but authorities decided to move them to the Seamen's reservation at Fort Stanton, where they will remain, in all probability, until the war is closed. They got off the train in silence and walked to the large Pacific Greyhound buses which had been waiting for their arrival for several hours. They had much luggage, musical instruments, tennis rackets and so forth.

The three large buses has to make three trips to Fort Stanton to transfer the men, as thirty-six passengers was the average bus capacity and their special train had fourteen cars. This consumed about five or six hours. A large crowd was at the train from surrounding towns, and local citizens also, although furies of snow and a cold, piercing wind made it unpleasant for spectators. Twelve border patrolmen, immigration officials and six New Mexico policemen, supervised their transfer, acting as escorts.

The CCC camp which has been remodeled and refurbished for the sailors is composed of 18 or 20 frame buildings and is located at a scenic spot near the Marine hospital. The men are deportable aliens, but cannot be returned to their homeland because of the British blockade. Part of them speak some English, as English is a subject taught in the German schools. The ship's captain, Capt. Wilhelm Daehne, is a director of the North German Lloyd Line, which company is furnishing funds for their support during their internment.

Birthday Party and Shower

Mrs. D. S. Elliott gave a party and shower at the Woman's club building last Saturday afternoon from 2:30 to 5 o'clock in honor of Mrs. Carroll Stinnett. The honoree received a great many beautiful and useful gifts. After games were played and the gifts were opened, a large birthday cake was served, together with dainty sandwiches and coffee.

Tom Cook left last night for Kansas City, Mo., he has accepted a position as assistant book keeper for the Witte Diesel Engine works.

Mr. Edie Davis, who has been employed at the Ford garage for some time is now employed at a Capitan service station.

KNOW YOUR BANK

Your Signature

YOUR signature is the bank's authority to pay money from your account or to execute other orders given by you. When you open an account at the bank you are required to leave a specimen signature on file as a guide in judging the genuineness of signatures on checks presented for payment. Because signatures are sometimes forged the bank watches them very carefully. If one differs materially from the one on file it will be brought to the attention of the signer. For this reason it is important that you sign your name exactly the same way each time. If you should change your signature, first leave a specimen of the new signature at the bank. Safeguard your banking signature. Do not leave paper lying around on which it appears. Thus you will prevent crooks from gaining access to the signature

WHO'S NEWS THIS WEEK

By LEMUEL F. PARTON
(Consolidated Features—WNU Service.)

NEW YORK.—As Japan stakes out Oceania for her own, Gen. George Grunert, commanding the Philippine department of the American army, is following his usual procedure of resolutely sitting on the lid. He tells the American community there, organizing for defense, not to get steamed up and warns against "spreading excitement or stirring up alarm."

The general knows island soldiering, from whacking his way through the jungle with a machete, which he did as a private, to running the army there, which he does as a general. He is known as a soldier's soldier, never involved in politics or army controversy, a skilled specialist in military techniques, of which he has been both a diligent student and teacher in the army schools.

His home town is White Haven, Pa., and he works hard to make Manila seem like home, in spite of threats, challenge and tension in the Far East. He was one of those small-town boys who fell in step with the village band music in 1898 and marched off to the Spanish-American war to the tune of "There'll Be a Hot Time in the Old Town Tonight," and kept right on marching, in the Philippine campaign and every other major and minor excitement in which we were involved. He was on the Mexican border in 1914, with the A.E.F. in France and with the army of occupation in Germany, gathering chevrons and medals on the way up.

In between these exercises, he was teaching military science at the Shattuck school in Fairbanks, Minn., serving as instructor and later commander of the Army War college and commanding the general staff school at Fort Leavenworth, Kan.

Whatever we may think of our historic little crow-hops in the direction of manifest destiny, they have trained some good men if we ever have manifest destiny thrust upon us.

REPORTS about many of the Nazi leaders, including Herr Hitler, consulting seers and astrologers, carrying talismans and reading It Seems a Dual dream books came over here back in the days when many of our citizens thought they were nice people, and were amused by their little human failings. Hence the dossier on Gen. Friedrich Christiansen, when he flew the Do-X to this country nearly a decade ago, was not inspired by ill-will or propaganda when it recorded his various devices to exorcise the demons of ill-luck. After the blitzkrieg, the general became runner-up for Dr. Soyas-Inquart, in the ball-and-chain department in Holland, and just now, as military commander for that area, is dealing plenty of bad luck to the natives. He says he is "taking steps." That meant executions a few days ago.

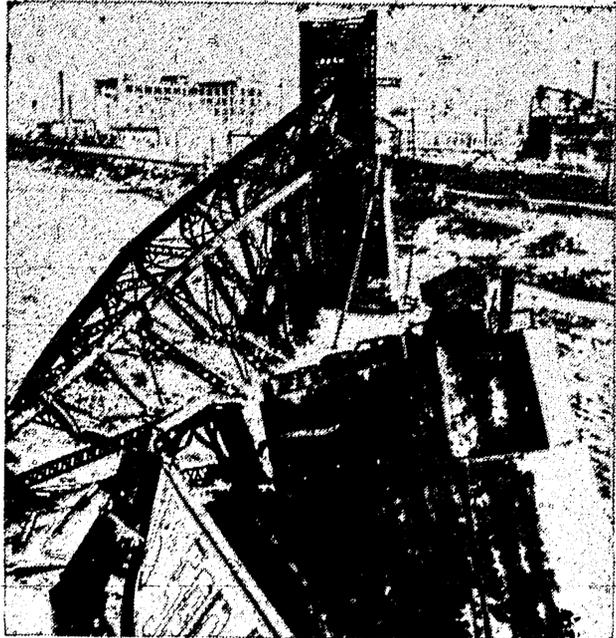

When the Do-X landed here in 1931, one young woman reporter was quite lyrical about the "handsome and gallant commander, with his mischievous blue eyes, bushy brows, and warm, ingratiating smile." He told about his good-luck horseshoe nailed in the cabin of the huge flying boat, and as necessary to its operation as a compass. It was an English horseshoe which he had picked up on the battlefield of Meas, in the World War. Many times, he had saved him from disaster, he said, and he could expect trouble if he ever let it lose its shine, and it doesn't work well unless he does the polishing.

His adventures with the horseshoe led him to a great discovery. When he was the squadron leader at Zeebrugge, Germany's first naval act, he was shot down by an English plane. That day, he had received a four-leaf clover, in a letter from a friend. When he was downed, he knew what had happened. The possession of more than one talisman by the same person spells trouble. He put the four-leaf clover in a cigar box weighted with iron and sank it.

There's no copyright on the idea if the Hollanders want to slip a rabbit's foot or a four-leaf clover in his pocket when he isn't looking.

Ernst Udet, famous World War ace and contriver of their parachute attack, is as full of superstitions as Frazer's golden bough. Flying a plane for the first time, he carves the initials of his best girl on the back seat. He, and many other German fliers will not wear a pair of gloves on a flight unless they have been down in another plane. It all sounds a bit jittery for super-men.

Los Angeles Called It a 'Heavy Dew'

Lashing torrential rains have made this Los Angeles' wettest season in 48 years. The floods undermined and ripped out half of the Santa Fe railroad bridge (shown above) across the Los Angeles river, closing streets and highways with landslides. Hundreds of automobiles were stalled in floodwater.

Why Not Use Adobe?

All over our great Southwest, the use of adobe for building purposes is widespread. It has been in general use ever since the days of the early Spanish settlers and, as a matter of fact, 80 per cent of all structures in Las Cruces, New Mexico are, at the present time, of 'dobe, or sun-dried brick.

Some facts in favor of adobe construction are, (1) it is inexpensive, requiring very small cash outlay; (2) it can be used without hiring any skilled labor; (3) it lends itself well to certain attractive styles of architecture; (4) it affords effective insulation against both cold and heat—buildings of adobe brick are noticeably warmer in winter and cooler in summer than are those frame or stucco; and, (5) it is fire-resistant.

The word "adobe," pronounced a-do-be, is a Spanish word meaning sun-dried brick, and is applied both to the bricks themselves and to the sticky clay loam from which they are commonly made. A general impression prevails that only this particular loam, peculiar to the Southwest, can be used for building, but this is not the fact: Most clayey loams are suitable for the manufacture of sun-dried brick. Very often the clay excavated from cellars is well suited to this purpose. A very heavy clay can not be used, since it cracks and warps when dried, and a very sandy soil will not hold together, but a good building material can be made by mixing the two. Perhaps the only way to tell in what proportion to mix the sand and clay is to form a brick and let it dry; if it cracks, you have too much clay; if it disintegrates, you have too much sand. Experimentation will result in the proper mixture.

Although adobe bricks are frequently made without straw, it is advisable to add straw at the rate of about 1 1/2 bales to 1,000 bricks. Since long straw is difficult to handle, some builders use chaff, horse manure or grass as a binder.

PREPARING THE MATERIAL

Mix only enough each day for that day's work. Pile the required amount in a layer, three inches or four inches deep, wet it well and "puddle" thoroughly, by the use of a mortar hoe. In many places the puddling is done by men, barefoot, trampling the mud. When the soil is wet to a uniform consistency, throw on straw or other binder, in a layer 1 1/2 to 2 inches thick. Mix, adding enough water to make the mud thoroughly plastic, yet leaving it stiff enough to stand up when removed from the form.

FORMS FOR MOLDING

The molding forms are made of lightweight, dressed lumber, the inside dimensions being those of the desired bricks. Small bricks (4 by 8 by 10 inches, weighing 23 pounds; 4 by 10 by 10 inches, weighing 35 pounds) are suitable for poultry houses and other small structures. Larger sizes (5 by 12 by 10 inches, weighing 53 pounds; 5 by 10 by 20 inches, weighing 55 pounds) are used for dwellings.

MOLDING AND CURING

If a smooth sod is not available for use in molding, level a suitable site and cover with straw to lay the bricks on as they are removed from the molds. This is done to keep them from sticking to the ground. Press the mud into the form, taking care to fill all corners; smooth the top; then lift the form away, refill, and repeat. If the form does not clear from the mud easily, tap the sides of the mold to loosen it. In a few days, if the weather has been favorable, stand the bricks on edge to give equal exposure of the sides to the sun and allow them to dry for a week. When they are dry enough to handle, scrape off loose dirt and straw from the bottoms and pile them where they will be protected from rain. In about three weeks they will be ready for use.

METHOD OF LAYING THE BRICK

Adobe brick are laid in a manner similar to that used in laying ordinary brick. Mud without straw is used for mortar, or, for permanent structures, a mortar is used made of one part lime to three parts sand. About a cubic foot of mortar is used in laying 25 to 30 bricks in the size 4 by 10 by 16, and a crew of three men should place from 500 to 700 bricks in eight hours.

For more specific information in this field, send five cents to the Superintendent of Documents, Washington, D. C., asking for Farmers' Bulletin 1726.

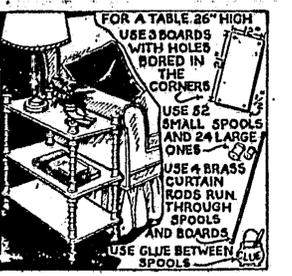

PRESERVING EGGS

Eggs may be preserved either in water glass or lime water. Water glass is obtainable from drug stores and is mixed with nine parts of boiled water and poured in an earthenware receptacle or galvanized can. Fresh clean eggs, free from cracks, should be chosen for preserving. At least one inch of liquid should be kept above the top layer of eggs and the container should be kept tightly covered. A lime-water solution is made by slaking three pounds of lime in five gallons of water.

NEW IDEAS

For Home-makers
By RUTH WYETH SPEARS

"DEAR MRS. SPEARS: I have made a pair of spool shelves like those you give directions for in your Sewing Book No. 3. They are painted watermelon pink to match the flowers in my bedroom curtains, and they are very pretty hung at each side of the windows. I would like to make some end tables of spools for the living room, but I can't think of a way to make them rigid. Have you any suggestions as to how this may be done? B. P."

Curtain rods are used through the spools to make the legs. Better take along a spool to try when you shop for the rods; and get the type that has one piece fitting inside the other. If the spools are a little loose on the rod, it won't make any difference for they must be glued between each spool, and also between the spools and the table shelves.

NOTE: If you have an iron bed or a rocking chair you would like to modernize, be sure to send for my Book No. 3. It contains 23 fascinating ideas of things to make for your home. Send your order to:

CHAPTER I

To sign a crew is one thing; to keep all hands aboard till sailing time is another. At dusk, Captain Keen moved the Sunset from the wharf out into the stream to wait for the morning tide. She was a full-rigged ship of three hundred and forty-seven tons burden, bound for the Fiji Islands to load with sandalwood for Chinese and Indian ports; but she was under charter to the Mission Board to carry certain freight and passengers from San Francisco to Honolulu and to the Marquesas, on the way. "I want to give the men overnight to sober off before the missionaries come aboard, Mr. Chase," Captain Keen told the mate as the ship swung to her anchor. "And another thing, as long as they're with us, I'll have no going ashore at Honolulu, or at the Islands, nor any native girls coming on the ship at all."

The Reverend John Gale and Mrs. Gale were returning to their post in Micronesia after a year's leave at home; and the Reverend George McAusland went to serve his apprenticeship with them. McAusland was not a young man as years go, but his training for the ministry was only just concluded. He was rather small, and decidedly thin. He was, actually, thirty-eight years old. John Gale, since they met a year or two before, had studied his new assistant. He had some misgivings. McAusland seemed full of a restless earnestness; but the old minister knew that too much zeal could be as dangerous as too little.

Aboardship, Mrs. Gale went to her cabin to settle her belongings there; but John Gale and McAusland stayed on deck to watch the business of departure.

"What decided you to become a missionary?" Gale asked.

"Why, sir, at the Seminary I read a great deal about the mission to the Sandwich Islands, and I want to be like the men who led that work. They did so much, and everyone loved them." McAusland added humbly: "I want to help people, and—to be loved. I'm pretty clumsy about it, though; about making friends."

The other suggested: "The trick is to like people. People like a man who seems to like them." He asked: "But what turned you toward the ministry, at your age?"

McAusland answered frankly: "I'd killed a man, in Nevada City, in the mines." There may have been surprise in the older man's quick glance, and an unspoken question, for the other explained: "I suppose I don't look like a—man of violence; but I lost my temper. He was drunk, and shouting at me, and I threw a pickaxe at him. It hit him in the head."

John Gale thought he would have to readjust his estimates of this young man. "Wasn't that—just an accident?" he suggested reoccurringly.

"I suppose a man is responsible even for his accidents," McAusland insisted. "He had no family. There was nothing I could do directly; but I wanted to find some way to—atone."

Captain Keen, one eye on his ship, joined them with some casual word. McAusland walked forward to watch them eat and fish the anchor, and John Gale looked after him, and after a moment he smiled and asked the Captain:

"Would you take that young man for a—?" he hesitated, used McAusland's own phrase—"a man of violence?"

The Captain said wisely: "There's never any knowing. The quietest little man I ever knew killed four Malay pirates with a cap's an bar."

"He and I are going to work together, these next years," John Gale explained. "I'm trying to find out what sort of man he is."

Captain Keen said: "You'll find out, presently. Being shut up on the same ship with a man, you come to know him. The sea strips him down, wears him down till what's inside him shows through."

The old minister nodded; and during the days that followed, while the Sunset took her peaceful way across the peaceful sea, he sometimes thought that McAusland was no more than an enthusiastic boy. The first morning at sea, he himself came on deck to find the other bare-footed, his sober black trousers rolled up his thin shins, pushing a holystone up and down the planking under the instruction of the sailor with the parrot. The sailor's name was Corkran; and the two were laughing together at McAusland's awkwardness. The parrot watched George too, its head cocked, and presently it nipped Corkran's ear and said wheedlingly: "Mighty pretty. Mighty pretty!"

Corkran laughed and clapped McAusland on the shoulder. "There, Reverence!" he said. "That's Pat's way of saying he takes you."

The friendship between these two developed rapidly. Corkran was an able seaman, above the level of his fellows in the forecastle; and he did his work so cheerfully and completely that he had certain tacit privileges. Whenever he was on deck, he and George were apt to be together. McAusland was intensely curious about ship's business. He worked under Corkran's instruction to learn the knots and bends and hitches, and how to seize and splice and serve.

John Gale, observing the friendship between McAusland and Corkran, tried to understand its basis. He saw that when they were together, George was always the listener.

The mate called Corkran to some duty; and George, turning, saw John Gale near them, and stopped beside him. "Corkran's a strange man," he said, and he colored in a slow way. "Most men are ashamed of their vices, but he brags about his. He's simply an animal."

The older man suggested: "You can't always judge men by the way they talk, George."

"I suppose not." McAusland laughed uncertainly. "And—I like him, in spite of what he is," he admitted. "I don't know why."

One late afternoon, George, under Corkran's instruction, was learning to put an eye-splice in a discarded piece of eight-inch cable when the masthead man sighted the first distant peaks above Honolulu. George laid down spike and maul and swarmed aloft to see for himself; and when presently he descended, dropping from the ratlines the last six or eight feet to the deck, he stepped on the marlinspike where he had left it. It rolled under him; and the result was a severely sprained ankle. John Gale bandaged the hurt; but in the morning when they were anchored McAusland was too lame to walk. The Sunset would lie in harbor overnight while Captain Keen lightered off the freight consigned to the Honolulu mission but Mr. and Mrs. Gale went to lodge with friends ashore, and they urged George, despite his lameness, to come along. When George decided to stay aboard, Mrs. Gale thought he was shyly relieved at having a valid excuse for avoiding a casual meeting with many strangers.

Ashore, she and her husband found that two other passengers would board the Sunset here. One was Joseph Neargood, a tall young Marquesan convert trained in the college at Oahu, going now to take his place in the native mission at Fafuhiva. The other was Mary Doncaster. Her father and mother had established themselves twenty years ago on one of the smaller northern islands of the Marquesan group, which Ephraim Doncaster called Gilead. Mary was born there a year later, and lived there till when she was ten years old they sent her home to New Bedford to school. Now she was returning to them; and John Gale, when he had talked with her, approved Mary mightily. He and Mrs. Gale agreed between themselves that it would be good for McAusland to have the girl's company aboard the Sunset during the rest of the voyage to Gilead. When they were all rowed out to the ship next afternoon a little before sailing time, the old man looked forward to watching McAusland's face light with pleasure at first sight of Mary; but George was not on deck to greet them, and John Gale found him in his bunk with a slight temperature, presumably from the pain of his hurt.

George did not come to supper, so he did not see Mary till next morning. John Gale had told him she was aboard, but—afraid of saying too much—he said only: "She's the daughter of Ephraim Doncaster, the missionary at Gilead." George inattentively expected Mary to be like a younger edition of Mrs. Gale. Mrs. Gale was pretty as paper flowers under a glass case, with a pale and delicate beauty that would not disturb a man; but Mary was mightily disturbing, beautiful not with youth alone but already ripely. The ship's carpenter had fashioned a crutch for George out of a mop-handle and a block of timber cut to fit the minister's shoulder socket. When George hobbled out into the cabin, the others were already at table, Mary sitting with her back to him; but John Gale greeted George as he appeared, and Mary turned to look up at him. The sun from the skylight fell full upon her countenance as she turned, and George stopped like a struck man, shaken and trembling. She thought he would fall, and she rose quickly to help him; slim and yet warmly round in her tight bodice above loose full skirts of sober stuff. The button at her throat was unfastened; and George as his eyes fell before hers saw her smooth white throat. She touched his arm, steadying him; and John Gale spoke her name and his, and she said:

George said defensively: "I'm all right." He freed himself and sat down; but his arm where she had touched it burned long after her fingers were removed. He sat beside her at the table with Captain Keen at the head, but he could not look at her. He ate briefly, a little, with trembling hands, silent, so that his silence oppressed them all. Afterward he took refuge in his cabin again; and when next day, his ankle quickly healing, he was able to hobble on deck, he walled himself behind an intense dignity.

But if he was afraid of Mary, he was attracted to Joseph Neargood. The Marquesan was youthfully impressed by his own consecration to the Mission work in which he would presently assume a place. McAusland, his own life committed to lead the Island people to Christianity, saw in Neargood a fine example of what could be done in that direction.

The Sunset was five days out of Honolulu; and the day was lovely and serene, with a light steady breeze and a long easy swell so that the breast of ocean rose and fell as sweetly as the bosom of a sleeping woman. Two sailors on a stage slung over the side forward were scraping and painting, and Mary Doncaster and Mrs. Gale stood by the rail above the catheads, idly watching the men and watching the porpoises under the bow. Now and then as they talked together the sound of Mary's laughter rang out pleasantly. Captain Keen, near the two missionaries aft, cocked his head that way and chuckled.

"We'll be sorry to say good-bye to Miss Doncaster," he remarked. "The girl has an honest, friendly sound in her laughing."

Mary and the others were coming aft, toward them; and George, always apt to avoid Mary, went forward along the other side of the deck. She looked after him, her eyes sobered by hurt; and a moment later, when Mrs. Gale and Joseph Neargood had gone below, she smiled and said to John Gale:

"I saw you talking with poor Mr. McAusland."

He chuckled. "Now I wonder why you call him 'poor.'"

"But isn't he? He might have so many things, but he's afraid to take them."

"Afraid?"

"Well, at least sort of ashamed, and shy."

"Ashamed of what?" The old man watched her with a lively interest. "Ashamed of—life, perhaps." The girl's cheeks were bright. "Don't you know people like that? Old maids who think that there's something sinful in loving and marrying? People who persuade themselves that the things they want to do and don't dare do are really wrong and who think everyone else is wicked for doing them?"

He spoke in an affectionate amusement. "So wise so young!"

"I'm not so awfully young," Mary assured him. "I'm nineteen. Remember I lived on Gilead till I was ten, and the Island girls start having babies when they're not much older than that."

Military Influence Predominant In Juvenile Clothes for Spring

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

WHAT'S new in children's fashions? To tell the story would require endless recital, for designers of juvenile modes have found at command so many contributing sources of ideas that they have been inspired to do and to dare this season.

Perhaps most exciting of all is the rush of patriotic themes prevalent in all the apparel for the younger generation. Emblazoned stars, eagles with wide-spread wings, flags unfurled, ships, anchors and other nautical insignia, braiding, epaulets, sailor collars, officers' capes and brass-buttoned coats, colors red, white and blue in the true American way hold endless fascination for youngsters, especially when they adorn their very own coats and dresses and stylish cape outfits as they do this season.

What could be more attractive, we ask, in the way of new spring ensembles for school-faring sisters than the cunning two-sister cape models shown in the illustration herewith? To fully sense the charm of these clever cape outfits, one must visualize them in their own original bright colorings (matching red wool capes, hats, and skirts with navy jackets) as displayed at a preview of American-designed fashions presented in connection with a series of breakfast style clinics held in the great Merchandise Mart of Chicago. Face-making fashion events are these clinics which thousands of merchants and buyers attend each season in search of dependable authoritative forecasts which these style shows present.

The two coats in the picture shared applause with the cape suits. Their message is buttons. Rows and rows of em! Bright metal once a la militaire are favorites.

Children adore buttons, and three rows of them as used on the new aqua Shetland wool coat pictured to the right is enough to triple any little girl's joy. The pretty eyelet embroidered collar helps make this coat an important spring fashion, for white collared coats are featured for both adults and little folk.

The nautical influence can be seen in the coat pictured in the inset. Navy Shetland with a red and white trimmed sailor collar and two rows of glittering silver buttons is the formula adopted by the designer of this smart and attractive model.

The pendulum has swung back to sailor dresses. Both children and grown-ups will wear huge white lingerie sailor collars with their new spring frocks. The top color for spring is navy in coats, dresses and capes.

Amazing it is to see the way children's fashions this year copy those of their elders. An adult fashion that repeats in miniature for little daughters of the household is the print-with-plain costume. Cunning variations for tots are pleated-skirt print dresses tipped with capes (navy or pastel wools) lined throughout with the print of the dress.

Influences other than the navy or the army that make for versatility in styling are South American trends that bring vivid color into play. Dude ranch fashions also delight tots. There are larriat ties, cowboy fringe trims and studded leather belts. (Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

Smart Hats

If you are fashion-aleri and have a yen for exploiting "the latest," you will choose to wear with your spring suit or ensemble a coolie hat as pictured above, for Chinese influence is noted throughout costume design this season. This baku coolie is in bachelor blue, a color slated for spring success. In this instance there is a side cluster of tiny gros-grain bows and an attractive under-chain loop.

Colors as varied as a kaleidoscope give to the other hat a definite this-season aspect, for current fashion fairly shouts color, color, color! This fashioning is made of black, pale and deep rose, purple, green and yellow gros-grain ribbon stitched together in a pinwheel treatment.

Footwear Features Colors, Low Heels

Glamorized by style designers, low heeled shoes will lead the fashion parade this spring. Newest models have been given flippant touches to make them more attractive.

The great emphasis on color is perhaps their most outstanding feature: the more color the merrier. Sandals or step-in oxfords in a glowing tan, pale blond or smart wine red shade will enliven even the soberest black or navy blue suit. Tan tones are slightly favored over other colors. They range from the grayed twig tans, soft cocoa and tortoise, to khaki. This last color is especially smart in combination with black patent leather, with khaki gabardine used through the center of the shoe.

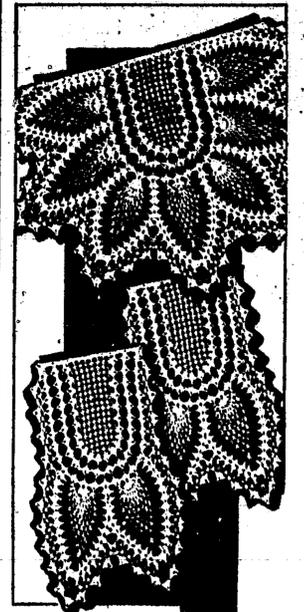

Wedges are renamed "lifts" and are recommended for country and sports wear. Soft cocoa-colored suede is used for one of the dressier shoe styles known as a Capri sandal.

Something a little different is even done to the navy blue oxford. Here the navy influence is definitely making itself felt. One oxford of navy blue calf and gabardine has three narrow folds of white calf across the toe. Similar bands of white cross the back of the heel. For the final touch, the shoelaces have flat leather ends with a small white star design in the center.

Hand-Crocheted Hats Inexpensive to Make

Sailors, turbans, brimmed hats all done in hand crochet—here's news that is news. Ask your milliner to show you some of the new crochets. If hats are not all-crochet, then the crochet idea is interpreted through trimming, such as crochet applique, yarn pompons, and huge twists of bright wool yarn.

Contentment

Contentment in old age isn't simply a matter of a roof over your head and three meals a day. Contentment involves, above all else, the factor of independence, independence from charity, from relatives, from government relief. It means economic self security.

One of the great tragedies of life is the number of men and women who reach old age entirely without financial resources of their own. They feel that they are a burden to others, even though that feeling is not justified.

Today millions of Americans are making certain that this won't be their lot. They are building old-age security through systematic savings plans. In old age, these farsighted people will really know the meaning of contentment.

It is not necessary to abandon traditional democratic safeguards at home in order to provide effective aid for Britain.—The New York Times.

It is forecast that the Treasury will not offer any new tax proposals until late Spring. By then, it should have a fairly good idea of how much the lend-lease bill, plus our own rearmament, is going to cost, and how much of the total it is advisable to pay for as we go.

Higher direct and indirect taxes are, of course, considered inevitable in informed circles. That means further rapping of the income tax rate in all brackets, and perhaps further lowering of exemptions. It also may mean new taxes on commodities, to be collected at the source rather than from the consumer.

The sales tax has many supporters. So far, this tax has been opposed by the Administration, but some feel that it will eventually be accepted as a matter of necessity. State sales taxes have proven tremendous and dependable revenue producers. A national sales tax should go a long way toward meeting the arms bill.

The regular Lincoln County Singing Convention will convene at Tinnie the 4th Sunday, March 23, and Saturday, March 22nd; the night before.

Every one is invited to attend and bring basket lunch for dinner on the ground Sunday noon.

The Stamps-Daxter quartet and the James and Vaughn quartet of Lubbock, Texas will be there.

Cotton Mattress Project Underway

According to Carl P. Radcliff, County Extension Agent, the Cotton Mattress Project is now underway. A mattress center was opened Monday at Lincoln, and an average of six mattresses per day has been made this week. Applications for making approximately 400 mattresses have been approved by the committee, and additional material has been received to accommodate other eligible families who have not yet made their application.

Low-income families, who, for the latest preceding calendar year, had a net income of not more than $500.00 are eligible to receive material for making mattresses.

Those who are eligible and wish to make application are urged to make their application at an early date. Applications may be made by calling at the County Agent's office or by writing for an application blank.

Everyone welcomes our glorious New Mexico sunshine after the recent disagreeable and changeable weather which the March weather man has been sending us. Sleet, rain, wind and snow were the daily program for several days—of course the moisture was welcome.

Reserve Officers In Army For One Year

With the aim of giving field training to virtually all younger reserve officers, the War Department announced Saturday it would follow the policy of limiting most reserves to a single year's active duty.

With some exceptions, an order directed that not more than 75 per cent of reserve area service commands and War Department "overhead" installations should be continued on active duty for more than twelve months.

Not more than half the officers on duty in each regiment, separate battalions, company or similar organization may be granted extensions.

The effect, officials said, will be to give the opportunity to serve to thousands of reservist who otherwise might not have been mobilized during the Army expansion.

Of some 110,000 reserve officers about 38,000 already are on active duty and by June the number is expected to be increased to 65, 000.

AIR'S FREE
so why not use it?

GETTING right down to it, one reason why you get as much as 10% to 15% more miles per gallon from a 1941
FIREBALL Buick with Compound Carburetion is that this engine is supplied with more air.

For it is a mixture of gasoline and air that gives you power.

A single carburetor, no matter how many jets it has, can handle only so much air.

But two carburetors that function as needed, as is the case in Compound Carburetion, can meet any fuel-supply need from low-speed to heavy-power use — and always provide a well-balanced mixture.

They can double the air supply as well as the gasoline feed — and that's something you can't do in any single-carburetor car.

So Compound Carburetion gets as much as 800 miles for the gas-cost of 700 in earlier Buicks of the same size.

It also provides a walloping big bank of reserve power, which means an up-and-at-'em lift and surge that's nothing short of thrilling to experience.

And you can have Compound Carburetion, you know, on any 1941 Buick —
it's only a few dollars extra on the swell big SPECIAL
standard equipment on all other models.

Anyway, It's a Living!

It's true that one-half the world doesn't know how the other half lives. Yes, in this world there are some very strange professions, and this series of photographs shows you a few of them. The surprising thing is that the people engaged in these unusual professions fail to see anything at all unusual about them.

From Sharecropper to Packing Magnate, Americans Work Hard for Their Living

By HOPE CHAMBERLIN (Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

CHICAGO.—In most American homes, the "Mrs." holds the purse strings . . . less than 50 per cent of American houses have bath tubs . . .

The least amount of money that can sustain life is the three cents a day per person that the colored sharecroppers in Mississippi live on by eating flour and molasses in winter . . .

As much money is spent in ice cream and soft drinks as in building houses . . .

These and other down-to-earth facts are the findings revealed in "How America Lives," just off the presses of the Henry Holt publishing house. The full report on how Americans make their money—and spend it; what they eat, drink, wear and talk about; what gives them a kick; where the shoe pinches the most, and the least; what they dream of and what they believe in; and even what they do on Sunday afternoons was compiled by specialists who, after traveling to all parts of the nation during 1940, wrote the "How - America - Lives" series for "The Ladies' Home Journal."

The 16 families range from that of Henry Bracey, Negro Mississippi sharecropper, whose cash income last year totaled $28, to the family of Thomas Wilson, millionaire head of the Wilson Packing company of Chicago.

Summary of Study.

And here's a summary of the study which was conducted in the homes of real, warm, typical Americans:

As against the 1940 U. S. census statement that $22 a week is the salary of the average man in America, the survey disclosed that a man with a family of two children needs to earn at least $35 a week before he can own his own home, carry insurance, and give his children welcome advantages. And he can do this only

How America Lives . . . They spend as much on ice cream and soft drinks as on building houses. As a nation, they like to "eat well," and, particularly in these times, do eat better than any other nation in the world. The average city family spends one-third of its annual income, or $509, a year for food. It thrives on good plain cooking—three square meals a day. Few families keep accurate food budgets. They don't need to—the women are thrifty shoppers.

than 60 per cent were built without help from architects. Functionally they are inadequate. Aesthetically, they are unfortunate. They lack enough closet space; they are hard to heat; the roof leaks; and they are so poorly planned that the homeowner walks an extra hundred miles a year between the front door and the kitchen.

Kitchens Best Equipped.

High points in American living are American kitchens—best equipped, most modern and most used room in the house. Living room is shabbiest, dining room barest and least used.

Ninety-five per cent of the women in America employ no household help. Average American homemaker's week (in home where there are growing children) runs 50 to 60 hours—and 24 hours a day, seven days a week she is "on call," when the children are little. (Grandmother's hours were nearly a hundred!) American boys and girls still help with the chores, even if they live in city apartments.

The typical American family's credit is good. Majority of families "pay as they go," after saving with a particular goal in view. Installment buying records show 98 1/2 per cent fulfill their payments. Foreclosures in FHA mortgages over five years have amounted to less than half of 1 per cent.

Largest single item of American families' yearly spending is food—14 billions, or 20 per cent of the national income. Conclusive proof that America as a whole eats a good table is the fact that the average city family spends one-third of its annual income for food. Ten dollars a week feeds a family of four adequately, but without many frills. It can be done for less . . . a Cedar Rapids, Iowa, woman's food budget was $7 a week for four people.

Food Budget 'Touchy.'

Touchiest subject among American homemakers is the food budget, about which they become more defensive and passionate than about a national presidential election.

American homemakers have been made acutely vitamin conscious. Per capita consumption of vegetables, other than potatoes, has increased from 26.36 pounds in 1919-20 to 31.39 pounds in 1934-35. Production and shipment of oranges jumped from 10 million boxes in 1900 to 55 million in 1935.

The big Sunday dinner is passing. More and more families go on automobile outings instead. Saturday night dinner has replaced Sunday noon as the big dinner of the week.

Gingerbread and baked beans are still America's number one choice; beef, number one meat; apple pie and chocolate cake, number one desserts.

When the pinch comes, American families economize on clothes first. But American women love clothes and have a vast choice in inexpensive styles (48 million felt hats in the $3.95 to $5 quality were sold last year.) There is no more Main Street of fashion.

Fashion a Fault?

American women's chief fashion fault—doing a good thing to death. If veiling is the fashion, they lose themselves in the mists. If open toes are in style, they go for the most extreme and open styles—and wear them every hour of the day and night. They pile on too much junk jewelry . . . lack co-ordinating powers when shopping for clothes.

Two permanents a year, averaging from $3 to $5 are fixed charges in the budget, although weekly trips to the beauty shop are usually supplanted by the home shampoo and bobby pin method.

America is reappraising itself . . . taken as a whole—some 30 million

How America Lives . . . What does Mrs. America do on an average day? She has no help with her housework. (85 per cent of American women don't.) Then it's likely she's up at 7 a. m. and she lights in her kitchen window will be shining long after sundown. She gets the meals, washes the dishes, cleans the house, markets, irons and mends, to mention but a few of the deeds which require 60 or more of her weekly hours.

families—America lives pretty well. There's room for improvement, yes. That, like the new vacuum cleaner, another pair of shoes for six or an addition to the house, will come.

Real 'Boom Town' Rises in Wasteland

HOLLY RIDGE, N. C. — Four months ago you could have bought all the land you wanted around here for three or four dollars an acre—unless you happened to be dealing with a native whose conscience would not allow him to accept such an exorbitant price. Today this same land is being sold in 20 foot lots and for serious money, too.

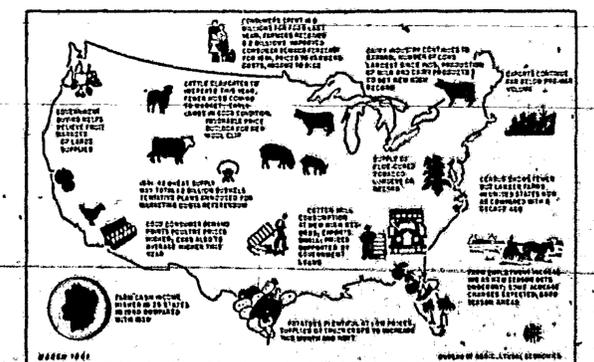

No, nobody has discovered oil in these parts. This just happens to be the place the federal government picked for the army's new anti-aircraft training camp, now under construction.

There is good farm land both to the north and south of Holly Ridge but the real estate in this immediate vicinity is little more than a scrub-timbered waste. But the U. S. army had other ideas. The section is not only easily accessible by highway and railroad, but offers an ideal spot over which to shoot anti-aircraft guns without danger of hitting anyone on land or sea. The shape of the coast and the lay of the land is well suited to the army's purpose. Guns will fire out into Onslow bay, wide coastal indenture many miles from the lanes of coastwise shipping.

Naturally the government didn't suffer from Holly Ridge's new land boom. In the first place, the price didn't rise until the army had acted and, in the second, the government has the right of condemnation. So its two-mile frontage on U. S. highway No. 17 and all the territory between here and the ocean came cheap enough. It's the land adjacent to the reservation that's suddenly become so valuable.

In November the entire population of the cross roads of Holly Ridge and for a mile in every direction totaled 28. This summer, according to government plans, there will be 20,000 troops stationed here. Already there are several thousand men building the camp and the trailer camps in which many of them live stretch up and down the highway for miles. Pine plank stores and bunk houses spring up over night and business is booming on every hand. How long it all will last nobody knows.

Government Defines Proper Use of Flag in Commerce

WASHINGTON.—The American flag can't be displayed promiscuously without violating the law even though it represents the "land of the free." To explain and clarify legal restrictions in connection with the use of the flag for advertising or other commercial purposes, the department of commerce has published a new handbook entitled, "The Flag of the United States—Its Use in Commerce." Numerous instances have been reported to the department of commerce of the questionable employment of the national emblem for commercial purposes. In most cases the violation of the law was done unwittingly. While there is no federal legislation covering the use of the flag, every state in the Union has passed laws prohibiting its use for advertising purposes. Similar laws appear on the statute books of Alaska, Puerto Rico and Samoa.

Cross marriages between two families produce some queer mix-ups, but the situation created by an American takes some beating. He married the daughter of his own daughter's husband by another wife, thus making him the son-in-law of his son-in-law. His daughter, therefore, became his stepmother-in-law and his bride her own stepmother. His wife has just given birth to a daughter. Concrete Cellar Floor.

QUESTION: I wish to lay a reinforced concrete floor in my cellar, and a wooden floor on top. Would you advise a three or four inch layer of concrete? Would a mixture of 1 part cement, 2 parts of small stones or ashes keep the moisture from coming through the floor, provided I put down a thin layer of tar over the concrete?

Answer: A word of warning: Never use ashes as a base for concrete or as mix with concrete; use clean building sand. Four inches or more of concrete should be laid for a basement floor. The following mix is advisable: 1 part Portland cement, 2 1/2 parts of clean building sand and 3 parts gravel or crushed stone of 1 inch maximum size. Complete printed instructions on the laying of concrete floors can be secured from the Portland Cement Association at 347 Madison Ave., New York City. (Chicago office at 33 West Grand avenue.) After the concrete has dried thoroughly, and before laying the wood floor, coat the cement with liquid tar or asphalt; then put down a layer of heavy asphalt saturated felt, overlapping the sheets at least half the width. The wood floor is then laid on an asphalt cement, which is spread on the felt.

Tiling a Kitchen.

Question: I have several questions I would like to have your advice on. One: Do you advocate tile extending to the ceiling behind the stove? Would the heat from the stove crack the tile? Two: What materials and method of placing the tile should be used to insure it not becoming loose after a time? Do you recommend the use of straight Portland cement? Three: Are there various grades of tile?

Answer: It is not necessary to tile the wall to the ceiling. If the oven of the stove is not insulated, the stove should be moved far enough away from the wall to eliminate the risk of fire. Nowadays, most ovens are insulated. Two: To describe in detail the method and materials used for tile setting would take too much space in this column. Write to the Tile Manufacturers Association at 19 West 44th Street, New York City, and ask for the pamphlet that they issue, covering this question. The pamphlet also describes the various grades of tile. It will be sent without charge.

Concrete on Brick.

Question: We want to cover a brick paved court with concrete. What mixture should we use?

Answer: If the brick are laid directly on the ground, there is every chance that heaving, as the ground freezes and thaws, will crack the concrete. This is not so likely to happen if the brick are laid on a foundation of eight inches of packed cinders—not ashes—or on a concrete bed. If this is not the case, there is likely to be trouble. If you want to go ahead, use a mixture of 1 part cement, 2 1/2 parts building sand, and 5 parts finely crushed rock or small pebbles, with only enough water to make a workable mixture. Spaces between the bricks should be cleaned out to a depth of an inch or more, to permit the concrete to penetrate, and at the time of pouring, the bricks should be well soaked with water.

Cement Paint Stains.

Question: How can I remove stains of a paint made with white Portland cement from a rubble-stone foundation, and from red slate surfaced shingles?

Answer: To remove the stains from the foundation stones, moisten with a mixture of 1 part muriatic acid and 20 parts of water; the paint will quickly soften and can be scraped or wiped off. Be careful of this mixture, for it is corrosive. Wear rubber gloves and old clothes. You will not need much; ask your druggist to make up a pint.

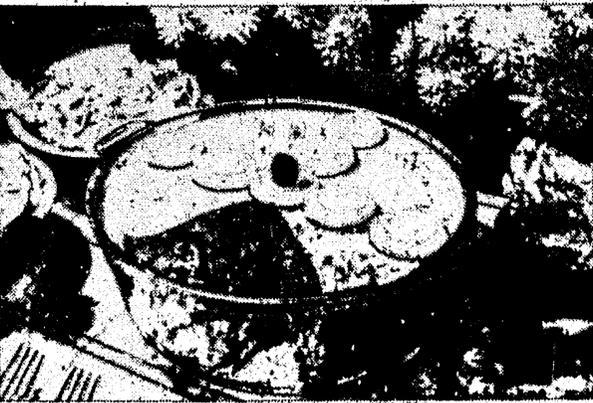

Anything that will take off the paint will damage the shingles. The remedy is to touch the paint with outside paint of a shade that matches.

Lining a Basement.

Question: In making a basement into a clubroom, is it practical to use wallboard for the walls? Can the floor be painted?

Answer: The wallboard that is like thick pasteboard will swell and shrink with changes in weather, and is not practical. You will do better to use a kind of insulating board that has a treatment making it resistant to dampness; get it at a lumber yard. Ordinary paint will not last on a concrete floor, because of the destruction of the oils by the lime in the cement. At a large paint store you should be able to get a dye for coloring the floor, or possibly a cement paint, intended for that special job.

PUDDING FAVORITE AS MEAL TOPPER-OFFER
(See Recipes Below.)

DESERVING DESSERTS

Once upon a time a friendly neighbor living close to our house in a small friendly town used to say over and over, "But a dinner just isn't a dinner unless you top it off with a 'deserving dessert.'" And when I pressed him to explain to me just what he meant by a "deserving dessert" he explained that it was a dessert which was so good that even at the end of a man's meal it still deserved to be eaten.

After all, men, bless them, do like their desserts and so in this column today—I am giving to you a number of brand new, easy-to-make recipes for deserving desserts.

All but one, and that's a recipe for a deserving salad. And the reason I am featuring this lone salad recipe with all the dessert recipes are these: First, it makes one of the best-to-eat salads I have ever tasted. And second, I have a theory that while men like desserts a good many of them simply do not eat as many salads as they should.

So, come time, serve this salad in your dinner menu; then top it off with any one of these desserts and not alone will the man of the family have had his favorite meal topper-offer, but he will have had a health giving, vitamin containing dish as well.

Tomato and Ham Salad.
(Makes 10 servings)

- 1 1/2 cups water
- 2 10 1/2-ounce cans condensed tomato soup
- 4 tablespoons unflavored gelatin
- 1 cup cold water

Banana oil is not made from the banana fruit or the banana tree. Strangely enough, this transparent, colorless liquid has no connection with bananas other than the fact it has a banana-like odor. It is isoamyl acetate, produced by the union of certain acetic acids with amyl alcohol.

TIPS to Gardeners

NEW SWEET PEAS

A NEW, more vigorous, longer-blooming, heat-resistant sweet pea family has been introduced to the gardening world. It is the spring flowering sweet pea.

Because of their newness, spring flowering sweet peas are as yet available in only seven colors. Three All-American prize-winners were introduced last year: Rose pink, blue, and lavender. The new ones this year are white, clear pink, light lavender, and mauve.

The new sweet peas are grown just like other types now in general use. They may be planted outdoors as soon as the soil can be worked. For best results the soil should be spaded to a depth of 18 inches, and the lower 12 inches mixed with fertilizer, preferably well-rotted manure. The trench should then be filled with the soil-fertilizer mixture to within six inches of the top, and the seed planted one inch deep in this shallow trench.

After vines are well established they should be watered thoroughly once every five to seven days, and the flowers picked regularly.
